FOR SALE: pr. table lamps and shades, pr. vinal armchairs, metal lounge chair, 2 floor lamps, kitchen cart & stepstool, kingsize headboard, 2 huge wood trays, 2 stereo or TV stands w. record bottoms, bedpillows, sofa 864-7788.

Single women – best references, no pets, wants 4 rooms in refined environment. 862-4894.

1966 Porsche 912 needs work, $1200, 434-2982.

1973 Vespa Motorcycle – Bicycle (Moped) for sale. Fully auto. trans. 170 mpg., 30 mph. Best offer. Phone anytime. Tel. 1-775-1111

Bolton Lodge (Bottom Lodge) – The Long Trail – Thanks for the ride to Smuggler's Notch on June 20 to pick up my car. It saved a few footsteps. I would like to hear from you. My address is: Box 44, Warrenville, Conn. 06278. Andy.

RESEARCH

Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage/ delivery time is 1 to 2 days.
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
The catalog material is sold for research assistance only.

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER®
Downtown Burlington
Essex Junction

If you are considering purchasing a
RADIO DIGITAL CLOCK RADIO
STEREO SYSTEM CASSETTE RECORDER
OR PORTABLE TELEVISION
Wait until you've checked our sight and sound sale
(starting October 1st)
UNIVERSITY STORE
ON THE CAMPUS

MEXICO NORTH
imports arts crafts boutique
at the 5 corners Essex Jct., Vt.
Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont
Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more
Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.
10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

shape up!
NOW OPEN...
O'b's
CUT & CARE SALON
A TOTALLY DIFFERENT AND MOST PRIVATE ENVIRONMENT AT O'b's.

Located on our 2nd floor, 135 Main St.

This is where you find "HAIRCUTTERS" who are serious about making GUYS and GALS look great with super healthy hair.

O'brien's Beauty Salons Inc.
Phone 658-2752 for your appointment or —come in and see O'b's.

VERMONT CYNIC

Founded In 1883

Barbara Frankel '75, Editor-in-Chief
Rick Steinberg '75, Assistant Editor
Wyatt Kash '77, Managing Editor
Bruce Maddocks '76, News Editor
Randy Jensen '77, Assistant News Editor
Margo Howland '75, Feature Editor
Lisa Charles '75, Arts Editor
Peter Campbell '75, Assistant Arts Editor
Mike Schwartz '73, Sports Editor
Kathy Stiansni '77, Copy Editor
Debbie Powell, '76, Advertising Manager

Editorial

A Perversion Of Justice

On September 8th President Ford pardoned former President Nixon 'for all offenses against the United States which he, Richard Nixon has committed or may have committed or taken part in during the period from January 20, 1969, through August 9, 1974.' In one swift move, President Ford exempted Mr. Nixon from all Federal offenses.

Some of the reasons given by President Ford for the decision to grant the pardon were concern over Nixon's health, the stability and well-being of the nation, and the belief that a fair trial would be long and difficult to obtain.

President Nixon's health is supposed to be a major factor in Ford's granting the pardon. In his speech he said "that allegations and accusations... threatening his health as he tries to reshape his life, a great part of which was spent in the service of this country by the mandate." The September 10th issue of the New York Times reveals the reports of Nixon's ill-health were a lobbying effort by Bebe Rebozo and Robert H. Abplanalp. A former counselor disputes that Nixon was in poor health.

It is understandable that Ford was concerned with his friend's health. However, this concern blinded President Ford's decision making capabilities. Ford has used his constitutional power of pardon to commit a grave error of social injustice. A pardon to a man, a former President, who lied and deceived the nation, congress and the courts, is distasteful to the people of America and leaves many doubts of equality under the law.

Is this justice? No, it is a perversion of justice. Nixon is allowed to go free while his former associates and staff go to jail or on trial. How can one expect the average citizen to follow and respect the law when a presidential pardon of a man who has committed many crimes against the American people, is thrown into his/her face?

President Ford's most important responsibility was to the American people. Nixon's guilt or innocence should have been settled by the courts. Richard Nixon is now a citizen and should be treated as any other citizen who commits an illegal act. He should receive a trial by his fellow citizens.

Now we see two kinds of justice. One for ex-high officials (Agnew is another good example) and one for common citizens who don't have the benefit of a former high position. President Ford's belief "in equal justice for all Americans" remains to be seen in light of his pardon.

Speaking about the Watergate affair, President Ford said "...someone must write 'The End' to it. I have concluded that only I can do that." By his actions, Ford has possibly ended all hope in discovering the entire scope of former President Nixon's activities. President Ford has not written "the End" to the Watergate tragedy, but has left a chapter unwritten.

In his pardon speech, President Ford says "As President, my primary concern must always be the greatest good of all the people of the United States whose servant I am." Obviously Ford doesn't take American public seriously. A Gallop Poll last week revealed that 56 per cent of the American people were in favor of trying Mr. Nixon while only 37 per cent were opposed to his trial. President Ford must think that Americans do not know what they want.

How bad off is Mr. Nixon? He is pardoned of any federal crimes by Ford. Nixon now holds the right to destroy the Presidential tapes. He will receive $60,000 a year pension plus several $100,000 for various reasons. He will unlikely amass several million dollars from his memoirs. And at last reports he was in good health. Under these conditions, would you feel sorry for Mr. Nixon because "he suffered enough." His friend President Ford obviously did. It was Nixon who "suffered," but it is the American people who have been forced to live under a corrupt administration. They now feel the sense of frustration as Mr. Nixon goes free.

Americans will not be relieved of the burdens of Watergate. Rather, they will see the same corruption, lies, and deceiving of the American public in the present administration. Quoted on August 28, President Ford said of pardon for Mr. Nixon, "I don't think the American people would stand for it," while only two days leter, President Ford is checking into the legal aspects of a pardon. Ford's credibility now will be questioned more and more after this misuse of the public trust.

President Ford's actions have severely damaged the little confidence and respect Americans have for their government. The American people now realize that this is no longer "a country by the people, for the people," but a government by which selfish individuals who serve only their own interests and receive little or no disciplinary action as the consequence of their activities. One wonders if this is what our forefathers had in mind for America 200 years ago. Ohh would think not.

R.J.

Three Views Of President Ford

The Pardon

by Margo Howland

When President Gerald Ford pardoned former President Richard Nixon for "any or all crimes he committed or may have committed" he answered a question that has been on the minds of all Americans for months. The question had been: Would he or would he not?

Now, another query comes to mind: Why, and why now?

When Ford was Vice President, he was asked if Nixon should be pardoned by a future president. Ford replied, in his refreshingly blunt manner, "I don't think the public would stand still for it."

We think that statement still stands. What made Ford change his mind? Much has happened since the days of Ford's Vice-presidency. A prominent, once-popular, once-respected president has resigned under fire. Extraordinary tapes and documents have surfaced and become objects of public scrutiny. We've seen aide after White House aide resign or be fired, their careers in ruins. We've seen aides go to trial, be convicted, or plead guilty. We've seen proud names disgraced and marriages such as John Mitchell's destroyed.

And then came Jerry Ford – and with him an Era of Good Feeling swept over the country. Will this healthy atmosphere change now? Not even Ford's amnesty proposal for draft dodgers and deserters has aroused so much controversy.

Ford says that Nixon has suffered enough – that waiting for indictments and trials in the years to come might affect Nixon's health. What about those poor slobs in jail now?

If Ford had waited for the judicial proceedings to have run their course, and pardoned Nixon if he received a sentence, we would have seen "justice done" – and questions answered. We would also have seen the man who was once President go through years of absolute hell. Recall the plight of Dostoyevsky – who was imprisoned, brought before a firing squad and – at the last minute – "shot" with harmless blanks. Pardoned he was, but his nerves were shot and he died a broken man. Should Nixon have gone through this, being under the cloud of criminal prosecution?

It can be argued that Ford's action was premature – that it amounts to prejudging the former president, to assume that Nixon would indeed be convicted. That may seem a foregone conclusion, but indeed, it is unfair to prejudge anyone, no matter how strong the circumstantial evidence may appear.

Should Ford have waited for the courts to take action?

Ford has prevented a long, embarrassing, messy trial of our former President. Nixon will have to honor the subpoenas he has received; he must testify under pain of being held in contempt of court. Since he can no longer invoke the protection of the Fifth Amendment, Nixon will be the key witness in telling of most Watergate questions.

With Watergate behind him, Nixon may now be able to become a useful, productive member of society once again, and Ford can turn his attention to the economy. Certainly it was not a snap decision. It was to be expected, sooner or later; few people were eager to see the former president behind bars.

Yet it's hard to get away from the feeling that Ford's timing was off. Jerald terHorst's protest resignation as White House press secretary should show Ford the handwriting on the wall. The "honeymoon" at the White House is over now.

Whether Ford's decision will ultimately be judged as a brave and merciful action or as a terrible mistake, only time, and history, will tell.

Time For Amnesty

by Steven Rice

Written several days before President Ford's inexplicable pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon. What is justice tempered with mercy? Unconditional amnesty for a man who destroyed public confidence in our government? Or, rather, unconditional amnesty for men who left the country with a moral sense of duty and justice against the Vietnam War? The following thoughts reflect the latter, for it is the most merciful:

I can remember the time. Who will ever forget it? Like raindrops, bombs were falling many miles away, while I marched down Pennsylvania Avenue with a million others. TV cameras lined the route, and like the eyes of an eagle, looked down upon us with cold objectivity as we walked by in solemnity.

It was an April day of my nineteenth year, and tulips were blossoming on Capitol Hill as those bombs kept falling on rice paddies. And the halls of sweet justice and liberty on that avenue were empty, protected still by policemen, anxious for the day to come to an end. And throughout America, millions watched in despair, and a million others didn't care.

So we marched, indivisible, but invisible to the people of Vietnam.

Now it is the fall of my twenty-second year, and as the leaves begin to turn color, so have the branches of the federal government in their consideration of amnesty. President Ford spearheads the tone of compassion and reason. Since coming to office, the President, for all his simplicity, has delivered to our Watergate-weary public some moments of courage. And it took courage for Mr. Ford to address the recent convention of the Veterans of Foreign War in Chicago, calling for healing the wounds of Vietnam. Unfortunately, the veterans responded with contempt by rejecting Mr. Ford's words.

The wounds of any war take a long time to heal, but heal they must. What results otherwise are conventions held once a year, packed with veterans patting themselves on the backs for serving their country in those long, difficult wars, while never forgetting the horrors of those wars, outside the convention hall, usually during the darkest hours of night.

So President Ford has taken the first step. He must take an additional step, a step which will be unpopular in the eyes of the majority. But courage always involves taking the step beyond. Conditional amnesty simply isn't enough for a war that was never declared, a war which brought home 50,000 of my American brothers and sisters in flag-draped caskets, and type-written farewell note from the President, and a war whose perhaps the worst wounds are the children still running the streets of Vietnam, homeless and parentless, the result of misplaced American bombs. And the war goes on in that land of wars...

No one who was directly involved in registering for the draft during those years will fully understand all the emotions experienced by young men like myself. I made a moral decision then not to participate in any war. Actually the decision had been made long before when I was taught it was wrong to take the life of another. The lesson became more vivid when I had my interview in Bennington, Vt., with the selective service board for conscientious objection. I suppose I was one of the luckier ones; the board listened with an open heart, which seems now hard to believe, considering that at least one of the three, who looked me in the eye, had served in a past war. Forty-eight hours after the interview, I was classified I-O, a consientious objector, eligible for a two-year alternative service in America if called. I wasn't called. Later that summer of 1970, the lottery came, and some of my friends became the victims of it.

Yes, some of my friends weren't as lucky.

A year later, one simply boarded the bus on his eighteenth birthday for Canada, leaving behind his friends and families. In our local newspaper, where he and I worked as reporters, he told the reasons why he had to leave. He simply couldn't participate in what he termed the American War Machine. Perhaps more simply than this, he too couldn't take the life of another.

I have another friend who didn't board the bus. He too couldn't take the life of another, but he was sent to Vietnam. I saw him this past summer. He's quite simply a victim of drugs. For in that land of wars, there wasn't much else to do after bombing villages of innocent civilians.

My list could go on. Each tale brings tears to my eyes. Some of my friends died. Some of my friends dropped bombs. Some of my friends continue to die.

It takes time to heal the wounds, but heal we must. Unconditional amnesty is the only step worthy of the heart.

In Defense Of Ford

by Tom E. McCormick, '75

Gerald Ford has been President of the United States for about a month. He finally assumed the burdens of that office Sunday, when he granted immunity to Richard Nixon. The buzzards are out and circling. The honeymoon is over.

There is a significant portion of the populace which detests Mr. Nixon. Curiously, they are the ones who most often preach conscience and mercy; they are the ones who will demand blanket amnesty for draft evaders and deserters; they are also the ones who demand – in the strongest terms – that retribution – in the prison systems. For Mr. Nixon, however, there is no solace. They will not rest until he is soundly punished. They broke him financially; they stripped him of his office; they soiled his reputation. And they coveted his freedom.

Invoking his conscience and his constitutional power, President Ford rescued Mr. Nixon's carcass from those who would beat it. He acted quickly, prudently, and well. But he has been, and will be, criticized.

As is the custom, many will condemn by phrase: "double standard," in this case. Locally, Patrick Leahy said the "double standard shocks every principle I have fought to uphold as one of the nation's prosecutors. How can Mr. Nixon be given this blanket, unconditional amnesty for his acts – and not the others (in his administration)." Nationally, Senator George McGovern remarked, "It has seemed to me that the central lesson of Watergate should be that no one stands above the rule of law. It is difficult to understand granting immunity to Mr. Nixon while committing his subordinates to prison."

Now, in one sense, both Mr. Leahy and Sen. McGovern are quite right when they observe that executive clemency singles out a person for special treatment. A presidential pardon is an extraordinary act. It is selective. But to suggest that it establishes a "double standard" is incorrect. Justice demands recompense. That's a function of the courts and of prison sentences. However, mercy forgives. And that is a prerequisite of the President. No wrong is done if, say, John Erlichmann and H. R. Halderman serve terms which they truly deserve, while Mr. Nixon is pardoned. The justice of their sentences is not dependent upon the treatment of Mr. Nixon. They are still receiving their due.

Mr. Leahy and Sen. McGovern aren't really worried about the creation of a "double standard" – or they would propose the abolition of executive clemency, which is always, by its nature, exclusive. They aren't concerned that an injustice has been done to Halderman and Erlichmann – or they would demand pardons for those men too. They are really incensed that forgiveness has been extended to Mr. Nixon.

President Ford offered a simple explanation for granting his predecessor "a free, full, and absolute pardon." "I feel that Richard Nixon and his loved ones have suffered enough."

He's right, you know. But chances are he'll pay for that act of mercy.

Apathy At The University

by Debbie Adler

There are many revolutions, so to speak, going on in the world and in our own community which too few people know about.

Students at UVM are very interested in the nuclear power issue and the lettuce boycott, but no one seems to give any thought to the emerging women's movement.

A rape crisis center is being established in this city – The Vermont Women's Health Center is moving to Burlington providing complete gynecological services and no one seems to know or care about this. It must affect some people in Burlington as it affects me.

From the outside, it does not seem that many women are dissatisfied with their status. It is inconceivable to me that every woman in this vicinity is content with the treatment she is receiving as a female.

Do more than a handful of people know how many more states are needed to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment? Nobody takes the time to find out about an issue as important as equal rights for 53 per cent of our nation's population.

That is a pretty sad state of affairs. And this is what I call apathy at the University of Vermont. It exists in many cities and on campuses throughout the country, but I see no reason why people here should remain unexposed and uninformed on topics as important as equal rights and equal pay for women or the facilities of a gynecology clinic in our own city.

Through a weekly column, I will expose and discuss many ideas I have on areas relating to the women's movement. Hopefully, I will give you a good idea of what resources most UVM people do not realize exist in and around Burlington. If anyone has any ideas they would like discussed or if you are interested in looking into those or other areas, please get in touch with me through the Cynic office. I want to write about those areas which both concern and interest you.

Why the long faces? Congress perhaps?

SPS Photo: Steve Gold

The Cynic welcomes letters and columns from students, faculty, or any other readers. Materials for publication must be signed, but names will be withheld upon request.

VERMONT CYNIC

NEWS: Vincent Arias, George Georgakis, Andy Morse, Audrey Rothstein
FEATURE: Paul Ajamain, Carol Dufait, Amy-Catherine Fischer, Pam Hogarth
ARTS: Sari Bodi, Robert Dembe, Amy Fisher, Barbara Freedman, Joe Kauffman, Adelaide Murphy, Paul Prior, Marsha Woletz
COLUMNISTS: Debbie Adler, Tom McCormick, Scott McKay, Steve Rice
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Lesley D'Elia, Eileen Driscoll, Joan Forsith, Karen Hill, Beth Levine, Daniel Mead, Jody Parker
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Gramcoy, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Tom Gutman

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of the members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published yearly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and Business offices in the Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone: 656-4911. Deadline for reviews is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1883. Subscription rate $6.00 per year, single copy ten cents.

Ope

A Defi

After a long hot summer in Dudley, Massachusetts the most God-forsaken holes this side of the moon truly returned to Burlington with high hopes. Unfort he got a little too high, and well... uh... suffered a seve to his countenance. Fully cognizant of how an athle can substantially increase one's chances of findin young thing to sleep with (after all, everyone kn jocksettes go wild over football and hockey scolds dutifully explained to all comers that our lacerated the result of an athletic mishap. However, when it wa discovered that our definition of "athletic injuries" stretched to include those incurred falling off a barst watching the Red Sox... well... needless to add sleeping alone.

Due to this injury and the allure of Burlington's r barrooms, our planned column on the demise of TE on the shelf for another week. In its place, we shall t at a few of the items that make up "Chuck"– an opt to describe anything or anyone that is bush, barren, and totally without any socially redeeming value. discover whether or not you qualify for the social simply read further.

Anything promoted or described as wholesome or "good clean fun".

New Jersey... and anything even remotely conne the "Garden State".

New Yorkers who deride Vermont politics... any the state whose gifts to the U.S. Senate include that fascist, James Buckley, and Jake "the Snake" Jav keep his goddamn mouth shut.

Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Eagle Scouts...and Ea

Limosine Liberals who are all for Busing...but al their kids to private school.

The Windsor Lounge ...and any damn fool wh services for anything more extensive than the urinal.

Porno flicks...after all, when you've seen one you've seen 'em all.

Anyone who puts an American flag decal on h sews it to the seat of his pants.

The guy who still thinks a "Zig Zag" is a foot or a Marine obstacle course.

The fellow who joined the Hale Irwin fan club he thought it had sex appeal.

The High-Brow whose cocktail party panoply Phi Beta Kappa key conspicuously displayed in the

That swimmer turned make-out salesman...Ma

The American Legion, the V.F.W., the Elks, the Moose, the P.T.A.....and of course, sheep, equi

Male chauvinists, Female chauvinists, Black White chauvinists, Old Glory chauvinists, Hamm chauvinists, Tricolor chauvinists, Union Jack Star of David chauvinists, Red Star chauvinist genre of humorless zealot or breast-beating b convinced his brand of religion, politics, ca cigarettes will usher in utopia. People who ar over whether "Fords are better than Chevies" who believes either one of them has any better id

[illegible] and paraphrased to propose the innocent

The collective obnoxiousness (no or othe bustling burghers of Burlington is non-operati of explanation: random mutterings of spontan were amassed in front of the Willard. Skystare insight into people's psyches, to see if they victorious or psyches thwarted. Given that methods and that attitudes are anathema, maximize methods to our maldesses. To c outlook. (Effective till neuter replacement is fo Environmental outlook No. 1, female expression: "Amazin' grace, the land is presently sunshine, moonshine, greenshine and lotes soul peace. Oh what an auspicious locale for gettin one's books and one's comrades." AUC: unauthorized comment): How obnoxious th how wordy their ways.

Environmental outlook No. 2, male in p news: "Ford's granting amnesty (also compris Nixon for Watergate-related happenings) [illegible] AUC: We the people must go down on Harry's inadmissable little flaw when he graces us with Environmental outlook No. 3, female in weather: "Everyone's down pause sweater winter's coming in." AUC: Howsabout autu The latter being sunny, 70 degrees, beautiful.

Environmental outlook No. 4, female in p leaves: "It's great today. I'm really looking f fall. It's nice to have people back." AUC: pleased to report that comments here are un therefore nil.

Environmental outlook No. 5, female in p "The job's the thing. They lie or not they counselors fear no go. Alas, my search, thus One consolation: free time." AUC: You ca what you want, but if ya try sometimes, ya g Thought for the day: "Life is a banquet and th is not starving." Quoth Murino.

Next: Do people seem to be one with their clo

FRANKLY SPEAKING... by

©COLLEGE MEDIA SERVICES-BOX 9911-B

Open Season

by Scott MacKay

A Definition Of A Chuck

After a long hot summer in Dudley, Massachusetts (one of the most God-forsaken holes this side of the moon), yours truly returned to Burlington with high hopes. Unfortunately, he got a little too high, and well... eh... suffered a severe injury to his countenance. Fully cognizant of how an athletic injury can substantially increase one's chances of finding a sweet young thing to deep with (after all, everyone knows that jocksettes go wild over football and hockey accidents), we dutifully explained to all comers that our lacerated face was the result of an athletic mishap. However, when it was further discovered that our definition of "athletic injuries" can be stretched to include those incurred falling off a barstool while watching the Red Sox... well... needless to add... I'm still sleeping alone.

Due to this injury and the abuse of Burlington's numerous barrooms, our planned column on the demise of TEP remains on the shelf for another week. In its place, we shall take a look at a few of the items that make up "Chuck"— an epithet used to describe anything or anyone that is trash, barren, third-rate and totally without any society redeeming value. Thus, to discover whether or not you qualify for the social doughnop, simply read further.

Anything promoted or described as respectable, wholesome or "good clean fun".

New Jersey... and anything even remotely connected with the "Garden State".

New Yorkers who deride Vermont politics... anyone from the state whose gifts to the U.S. Senate include that articulate fascist, James Buckley, and Jake "the Snake" Javits should keep his goddamn mouth shut.

Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Eagle Scouts...and Eagle Knights.

Limosine Liberals who are all for busing...but always send their kids to private school.

The Windsor Lounge ...and any dumb fool who enters its environs for anything more extensive than the use of the urinal.

Porno flicks...after all, when you've seen one blow job, you've seen 'em all.

Anyone who puts an American flag decal on his car... or sews it to the seat of his pants.

The guy who still thinks a "Zig Zag" is a football pattern ...or a Marine obstacle course.

The fellow who joined the Hale Irwin fan club...because he thought it had sex appeal.

The High-Brow whose cocktail party panoply includes a Phi Beta Kappa key conspicuously displayed in the label.

That swimmer turned unsuccessful statesman...Mark Spitz.

The American Legion, the V.F.W., the Elks, the Eagles, the Moose, the P.T.A.....and of course, sheep, squirrels,.....

Male chauvinists, Female chauvinists, Black chauvinists, White chauvinists, Old Glory chauvinists, Hammer & Sickle chauvinists, Tricolor chauvinists, Union Jack chauvinists, Star of David chauvinists, Red Star chauvinists -- viz. any genre of humorless zealot or breast-beating buffon who's convinced his brand of religion, politics, economics, or cigarettes will usher in utopia. People who argue seriously over whether "Fords are better than Chevies" ...and anyone who believes either one of them has any better ideas.

A jerk like Charlie Colson who tried to walk on water using the same combat boots employed to stomp on his grandmother.

MacDonalds, Burger King, Howdy's, Carroll's, Burger Chef, Big Burgers, Small Burgers, Burger Castle, Burger Outhouse or Vermont Fried Vermin... gastric and aesthetic monstrosities all.

Kahlil Gibran...and Rod McKuen

Education courses...and any gut monger who takes more than three credits worth.

Anyone who sat through "Love Story" without rooting for the cancer.

...or thinks Robert Redford is a decent actor after his non-performance in the "Great Gatsby"... damn it, can't pretty boy Redford stick to harmless banalities like the "Sting" and "The Candidate".

And that all-American boor himself... Frank Sinatra

Charlie Finley, the WFL, the WHA, and the ABA

Except for Dr. J

The fellow who thinks Dr. Hunter S. Thompson teaches at the Med School

Ug...soap Operas

And OmyGawd yes...White painters pants

Any idiot who garners his news from a Tee Vee set... or reads articles about Patty Hearst.

Anyone who calls Nixon, Haldeman, Erlichman, et al a bastard...thereby giving that word a bad name and further denigrating all those poor souls who really were born out of wedlock.

Fools who pick up literature at the Young Americans for Freedom table in Billings... unless you're toilet training your dog or need to start a fire.

All Living Advertisements for Legalized Abortion... like Guru Maharaj, Sun Myung Moon, Rabbi Korff, Father McLaughlin, and two old stand-bys...Billy Graham (as in cracker?) and Norman Vincent Peale.

Peanut Kennedy...and Republicans in general..

oooooooooooooooooo

Parting Shots Department: Maybe America isn't so bad after all.. I mean what can you say about a country that sets Ellsburg free and sentences Erlichman to the slammer.

So you're broke and unemployed...but look at what you're doing for the War Against Inflation.

You Never Know

by Elliot Freeman

And so it was, I think back in first grade, the most important rule in the class required a student to obtain permission to go to the bathroom. It just isn't regular for a person to take a leak when he has to, you know you have to teach these kids some kind of discipline and get them ready for the "grown up world". If they don't learn to respect authority at a tender age they will never be able to conform later on. Now the procedure for using the lavatory (at that time I thought I was going to find some scientist in that little room performing an experiment) was to raise your hand and point towards the door. My teacher explained very thoroughly so that everyone understood. You see this avoided the dilemma of having thirty first graders shouting out "I HAVE TO WEE-WEE". Life I was not particularly slick at that time in my life, so I went along figuring that no teacher would ever give me a bum steer. My teacher was god. She had the answer to life and was so unselfish that she was trying to teach it to me.

Now no one ever really gave the lady any trouble, I mean if she said to quiet down and face forward... everybody did; if there was any type of resistance the mention of staying after school to make up the time wasted got the class into line real quick. I was under her control, just a lump of clay with no form or direction ... it was just she who had the grueling but very rewarding and self-satisfying job of molding me for what lay ahead. I submitted totally.

Until one day when I saw the shortcoming of her power, the tragic flaw. She was into a very heavy discussion of the alphabet and in no mood for any shit from us. She wanted no interruptions. She was going to get through the lecture if it was the very last goddamn act she performed on this earth. I'm sitting cool and calm until the feeling comes on that I would have to tinkle if it was the very last goddamn act that I performed on this earth.

So with my legs crossed and my thumb and index finger acting as an emergency cut-off valve (clamped so tight, oh so tight) I raised my hand and frantically pointed towards the door. While I had been making the necessary adjustments to ward off the approaching onrush, my dear sweet even tempered god of knowledge, sculptor of my future had proceeded to write on the chalkboard in block capital and small letters the entire alphabet. Her back turned, she was as oblivious to my predicament as the politicians in Washington are to the plight of the people. There was no possible way that I was going to break the rule, shout out for permission or just get up and walk out. No way. Not a chance. I was sure as hell not going to be responsible for keeping the whole class after school (peer pressure, bladder pressure).

With my legs wrapped around each other about three times and only a fraction of an inch remaining between my fingers, I moved to the last resort... pray... pray... pray to the only god I knew, the only god who could claim the totalness of my devotion... my teacher. Why not? SHE HAD THE POWER. " Oh, please ... please you who commandeth the chalk and desks, you who grade with fairness and quality for all, grace this room with knowledge, you who... oh please hold back this mighty tide of piss that is so anxious to burst forth..."

And in that moment I felt the warmth of the pale yellow river flowing down my pantleg and saw the greatness and vastness of the ocean that formed below my desk.

Fond memories of my youth in Asia ... I was damn near embarrassed to death ... but through the band-aid of time and with a little luck we all overcome traumas... childhood or not. Learn from our mistakes? Of course. I don't piss in surrounded by the warmth of the pale yellow river of life you make your way gasping and grappling and hopefully one day swimming into the great and vast ocean of eternity ... and all the while you never know.

The Demas Era

by Barbara Frankel

People are very transient, especially in a university situation. There are some people, however, who just seem permanent. They've always been there, they always will. We take them completely for granted, without ever realizing what it would be like without them!

Foremost among these people at UVM has been the omnipresent Terry Demas. Demas has virtually become a campus institution. A dynamic, endless source of energy, creativity and originality, Terry Demas almost single-handedly created SAFilms, while adding his wealth of knowledge and ideas to the Student Senate, the Concert Bureau, Continuing Education, the UVM Players and the Vermont Cynic, to name a few.

To the regret of many, myself included, Terry Demas is now leaving us. Although we can all certainly understand his needs to try something new, UVM will seem a little different and a little lonelier without him.

Universal Joint

by Elliot Freeman

please don't judge me by the car i drive or the suit of clothes that i might wear cause if we were to take a stance and drop our pants well you know we are all about the same down there maybe a little bigger maybe a little smaller it is hard to tell exactly what exactly makes a man, just remember friend this basic point that each and every one of us has got a universal joint and me i am here merely to rock the universal joint along with all the red men and black ones and whites and girls and boys alike cause every has got it no lie come and look at it and hold it in your hand and keep an eye out for it and take damn good care of it keep it greased and in running order and share it with other people on the planet there is more than enough to go around the universal joint
i have one
Teddy Roosevelt had one
Bridgete Bardo has one John Dillenger had one and Janis Joplin and New York City has quite a few and the glorious green State of Vermont has lots of them and Richard Nixon had one but it shriveled up and grew rip this universal joint rub this universal joint suck this universal joint blow loud and long and hard this universal joint and come onto this universal joint cause it is you and so beautiful and is all that links you to the chain chain chain of life and love and makes you kin to every man woman and child that ever at any time or place existed existed and existed
then and now and forever because of this universal joint let it hang let it roll and sweat and grow and show and roll side to side and up and down and open and close and point
the universal joint
Jesus Christ talked about the universal joint and Buddha and all the Mormons and Christians and monks and rabbis and Moslems and Arabs and Indians and even Southerners and congressmen and housewives and Hugh Downs and Hugh Hefner and Hugh and Hugh and me and you and your mother your father even gramps and aunt bee and sister rose and brother john and the mona lisa and i have thought about the universal joint but we all come together with our universal joints come together with our universal joint wouldn't that be nice
the universal joint
the irreversible point
the universal joint
the universal joint
the universal joint

The Making Of The Underpass '74

by Peter MacAusland

The University of Vermont is well prepared to and has full intention of spending several hundred thousand dollars of state funds to build a pedestrian underpass for UVM students. The underpass would basically provide a safe crossing of Main Street for students. Yet this proposed underpass seems to be not only a poor, inflexible solution to the existing problem, but also a poor utilization of state funds.

The underpass has been labelled as the best feasible solution to the problem. The problem according to university officials, is heavy congestion of both cars and students intersecting on Main Street at the two pedestrian crossings. The congestion is quite evident several times a day when peak vehicular and pedestrian traffic flow coincide. But does this intersection justify a grade-separation as the underpass would create?

In this case, grade-separation -- the physical separation of vehicular and pedestrian travel paths -- would theoretically provide a smoother flow of vehicular traffic and an uninterrupted crossing for the student under Main Street. Yet several criteria must be examined to determine if it is warranted.

Grade-separation is an expensive venture. Some planners rule it out as a solution solely on the financial aspect. The proposed underpass would cost several hundred thousand dollars and that is quite cheap when compared to financing an earlier, now rejected, solution of lowering the roadbed with on-grade pedestrian crossings. Its price tag as estimated would be a minimum of several million dollars. But in comparison to the existent traffic control systems which cost forty to fifty thousand dollars, the underpass is an expensive venture. The existing traffic control systems have the capacity to alleviate auto-pedestrian conflict. The ideal solution should have the characteristics of a maximum level of safety with a minimal financial expenditure. Does the underpass meet both these characteristics?

To judge the underpass' utilization, which determines its effectiveness, consideration to its structure and the surrounding environment is necessary. John Bruce Reading, a professional traffic engineer with the Utah State Department of Highway, stated his philosophy of auto-pedestrian conflict and grade-separation in a July 1973 article in Traffic Engineering: "Vehicles lend themselves well to channelization and control because of the physical limitations to their movement. Not so the pedestrian. His desired lines of travel carry him into conflict zones with vehicles at many locations. Physical barriers, separating vehicular and pedestrian traffic, only seem to challenge the intellect and cunning of the pedestrian until paths around, under, over or thru the barriers are found." This philosophy seems evident at the University. (Footpaths on campus become well established along the shortest and quickest routes of travel.) The underpass would provide this ideal route for students travelling from Redstone campus to main campus. But students now crossing at the Living/Learning crosswalk would still be able to utilize that crosswalk to reach main campus. The underpass solution, to minimize random student crossing, would include in its plans a redesign of footpaths channeled toward the tunnel, and fences constructed to further prevent unwanted on-grade crossing. (Yet, if Reading's philosophy applies even to the underpass solution, which indeed it may, then the tunnel's utilization would be less than satisfactory, thus decreasing its effectiveness as a solution. Therefore, the potential of the underpass as a tool to minimize pedestrian accidents may not be realized. And as a direct result, the public funding of such a venture would be seriously questioned.

The problem characteristic of the basic interaction of cars and people is slowly but surely changing. To illustrate this, underpass planners, back in Fall 1971 determined that an overpass would be the most desirable solution. On November 4, 1971, the university received tenth approval of separate loans of $125,000 each from the Chittenden Trust, the Howard, and the Merchants. The change of thought from an overpass and public funding to an underpass and private financing is significant and deserves attention. This change demonstrates the flexibility of the characteristics of the auto-pedestrian interaction and that the characteristics may change again in the future, constituting yet another solution.

Prisoner Mutterings

rendered by worn one and paraphrased by puppet-like democrats

The collective consciousness (sic or otherwise) of the bustling burghers of burlington is non-existent today. By way of explanation: random smatterings of spontaneous thought were amassed in front of the Willard St. store to get some insight into people 's psyches, to see if they were psyches victorious or psyches thwarted. Given that thoughts are methods and that attitudes are madness, there are many unanimous methods to our maddeness. To distill this into outlook. (Effective till another replacement is found.)

Environmental outlook No. 1, female to pursue with expression: "Amazin' grace, the land is presently blessed with sunshine, moonshine, grandstone and lotsa soulfully strutting peons. Oh what an auspicious locale for getting it on with one's books and one's comrades." AUC (author's unauthorized comment): How obnoxious the loquacious, how wordy their ways.

Environmental outlook No. 2, male in pursuit of the news: "Ford's granting amnesty (alias complete pardon) to Nixon for Watergate-related happenings is only forgivable in AUC: We the people must get down on bended for this most inadmissable little flaw when he graced us with his presence.

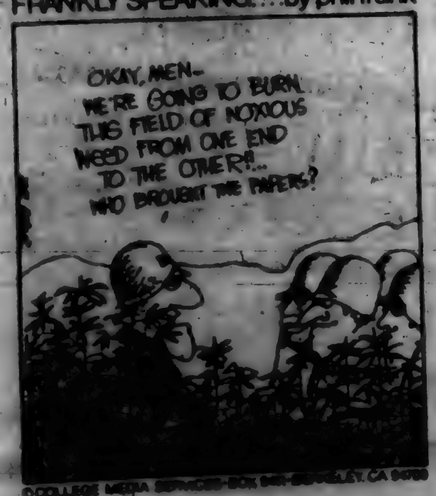
Environmental outlook No. 3, female in pursuit of the weather: "Everyone's down paste summer's dying and winter's coming in." AUC: How about autumn, or today? The latter being sunny, 70 degrees, beauteous.

Environmental outlook No. 4, female in pursuit of falling leaves: "It's great today. I'm really looking forward to the fall. It's nice to have people back." AUC: The author is pleased to report that commonsense here are unnecessary, and therefore nil.

Environmental outlook No. 5, female in pursuit of work: "The job's the thing. They be or dot they be? Placement counselors fear no go. Alas, my search, thus far, to no avail. One consolation: free time." AUC: You can't always get what you want, but if ya try sometimes, ya get what ya need. Thought for the day: "Life is a banquet and this poor bastard is not starving." Quoth Murino.

Next: Do people seem to be one with their clothes?

FRANKLY SPEAKING... by phil frank



©COLLEGE MEDIA SERVICES-BOX 595-BERKELEY, CA 94709

Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS

Flynn Theatre
Main Street
That's Entertainment

State Theatre
Bank Street
Clockwork Orange

Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
S★P★Y★S
Thunderbolt & Lightfoot

Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
Tamarind Seed
California Split

Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
Williston Road
Dr. Zhivago
Sting
Slaughterhouse 5

call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights
or special showings

Arts & Entertainment

Lane Series Offers Greatest Variety Ever

This year's Lane Series offers the greatest variety of entertainment in its long history of twenty seasons on the UVM campus. The 18 live concerts include a pop singer, musical comedy, two legit plays, jazz, three bands, contemporary dance – as well as several classical solo artists and group attractions.

The Series opens on September 30 with Broadway's most successful smash hit musical comedy in years, "Pippin," the winner of five Tony awards, closely followed on October 1 by Shakespeare's witty comedy, "Love's Labour's Lost," presented by the City Center Acting Co., and directed by the distinguished producer John Houseman.

Then comes the Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater, Oct. 9, the most exciting dance company in the world today, combining modern, jazz and classical dance. Next, October 16, is the National Chinese Opera Theatre from Taipei, the Republic of China. With stage orchestra, the company is total theater: dancing, singing, pantomime, acrobatics and clowning. On October 29, the Big Band Cavalcade presents the favorite songs of America as conducted by Bob Crosby, Freddy Martin, and Red Norvo, with singer Helen Forrest.

Pop artist Cleo Laine, hailed by the London Sunday Times as "quite simply the best in the world," will be heard on November 2; she will be backed by the John Dankworth Ensemble. On November 8 the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande, from Switzerland, makes its long-awaited American tour; it is conducted by Wolfgang Sawallisch, with Israeli pianist Ilana Vered as soloist.

Neil Simon's latest comedy, "The Sunshine Boys," starring Robert Alda and Arny Freeman, will be seen on November 12, followed on November 18 by the George Shearing Quintet, led by London-born pianist and composer George Shearing. The first semester's offerings conclude on December 5 with two marching bands from Great Britain, the Welsh Guards and the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, a company of 80, in an inspiring spectacle of pomp and ceremony.

Opening the second semester on January 14 is the Moscow Chamber Orchestra from Russia, an ensemble of 35 conducted by its founder, Rudolf Barshai. Next, on February 2, is the sensational Metropolitan Opera mezzo soprano Frederica von Stade, who last year opened the Paris Opera in "Figaro." Young guitarist Christopher Parkening, the young classic guitarist whom Segovia called "one of the most brilliant guitarists in the world," plays on February 13.

On February 18 the Quartetto Italiano appears for the second time on the Lane Series, a string ensemble that critic and composer Virgil Thomson calls "the finest string quartet, unquestionably, that our century has known." The intimate P.D.Q. Bach, with Professor Peter Schickle and the Semi-Pro Musica, a gigantic spoof of baroque music, will perform on February 22.

The final three concerts are organist Virgil Fox in the celebrated "heavy organ" program, with light show, on February 27; Spanish virtuoso pianist Alicia de Larrocha, the darling of the New York critics, on March 2; and the Duke Ellington Orchestra, led by Mercer Ellington, the son of the late Duke Ellington, making its second Lane appearance on March 8 in an evening of "dance or listen music." At this concert, ticket holders may either listen (from the balcony of Memorial Auditorium or the floor bleachers) or dance; there are no reserved seats.

One extra concert has also been announced, the Hartford Ballet Company in a new full-length production of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker." Tickets for this concert, to be presented on December 7, go on sale in November. It is not included in the series concerts.

Season tickets, ranging in price from $15 to $24 for 6 events, are now on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Tel.: 656-3418 for information.

Tickets for single concerts (all events) are also on sale in the Lane Office. Prices are $3, $5, and $6.

Five of the concerts, the Shearing Quintet, Christopher Parkening, the Quartetto Italiano, Alicia de Larrocha, and Frederica von Stade, will be presented in the Allen Chapel, while the Welsh Guards will appear in Patrick Gymnasium. The other twelve concerts will be held in downtown Memorial Auditorium.

No spring Chamber Arts Series will be offered this year; five concerts of the type usually presented on this series are included in the 18 major

Don't cap your pleasant evening at the Champlain Shakespeare Festival with a parking ticket!

Theatre-goers are asked to be cautious about parking on the street near the Royall Tyler Theatre. Watch for the new traffic signs.

COLLEGE SPECIAL
at
ELAINE POWERS FIGURE SALON!
Complete 3 month program is $30.00
Call for an appointment for your free figure analysis.
Elaine Power Figure Salon
Grandway Shopping Plaza
So. Burl. Vt.
862-6548

VERMONT'S GREAT ART STORE
You'll Find All These Lines and More ★ Windsar & Newton ★ Liquitex
★ Sculpture House ★ Chart Pack
★ Strathmore ★ Rapidograph
★ Rembrandt ★★ Name it
Boutilier's
M. G. BOUTILIER CO.

THE SILVER KEG
★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★
MONDAY-LADIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY - ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★★★★★★★★ WEDNESDAY ★★★★★★★★★
UVM NITE ★FREE★ WITH UVM I.D.
(MUST BE 18 YEARS OF AGE)
THURSDAY- ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★ FEATURING ★
THE BEST ROCK GROUPS IN THE EAST
OPEN 7 NITES WITH LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Tilting At Windmills
Graphic Arts Gallery
Original Graphics
Limited Edition Posters
Fine Arts Prints
10% Discount UVM Students
Thru Sept. 30
100 Dorset Street
South Burlington
Phone 862-6100

AGAIN!
Student Theater Discount Cards are available to all full-time students starting Sept. 9, 1974
Stop by the Cynic office to get yours - they are free and good for .50 off movies
RIGHT ON!
Limit one per ID

The Rolling Stone Audio Report is here.
Free! Come in for your copy.
Concert Electronics Co.

SEPTEMBER 12, 1974

Six full-length films, all directed by the distinguished French director Francois Truffaut, will be presented this fall by the Lane Film Society Series.

The films include "Farenheit 451," "400 Blows," "Jules and Jim," Oct. "Kisses," Oct. "Board," Nov. "the Piano Player"

The movies

Living/Learning Hosts C

The fourth annual concert series of the Con Brio Chamber Ensemble will be hosted again this year by the Living/Learning Center. The ensemble presents a varied program with emphasis on traditional pieces of unusual orchestration and the best of contemporary chamber works. This year's series will feature an original composition by Thomas Read of the UVM music department.

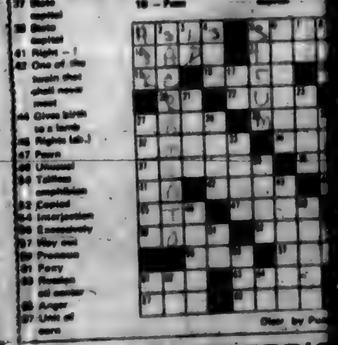
The Con Brio players are all Vermont musicians and members of university and college faculties

support of the ing Center hop quality chambe accessible to and Burlington

Series tick available for Wednesday ev on October 2, February 12 with special ra Write to Co Living/Learnin adult series t and student $2.50. Series be available at concerts.

(continued o

crossword puzzle



FALL SEMESTER'S
BIG BURGER
CROSS WO
CONTEST

Upon correct completion of the abo puzzle, BIG BURGER will award a fre meal will be given to the first 15 people the finished puzzle after 9:00 p.m. tonight will be announced in the next CYNIC.

BIG BURGER
1200 WILLISTO

ty Ever

," Young ristopher ng classic ovia called t brilliant 64," plays

18 the ppears for the Lane mble that er Virgil he finest question- ntury has ate P.D.Q. or Peter Semi-Pro spoof of t perform

y organ" w show, on ish virtuoso arrocha, the New York 2; and the chestra, led on, the son Ellington, ood Lane arch 8 in an d or listen ncert, ticket ther listen lcony of rium or the or dance; ed seats. cert has also the Hartford in a new full-length production of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker." Tickets for this concert, to be presented on December 7, go on sale in November. It is not included in the series concerts.

Season tickets, ranging in price from $15 to $24 for 6 events, are now on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Tel.: 656-3418 for information.

Tickets for single concerts (all events) are also on sale in the Lane Office. Prices are $3, $5, and $6.

Five of the concerts, the Shearing Quintet, Christopher Parkening, the Quartetto Italiano, Alicia de Larrocha, and Sviatoslav Richter, will be presented in the Alpen Chapel, while the Welsh Guards will appear in Patrick Gymnasium. The other twelve concerts will be held in downtown Memorial Auditorium.

No spring Chamber Arts Series will be offered this year; five concerts of the type usually presented on this series are included in the 18 major

Don't cap your pleasant evening at the Champlain Shakespeare Festival with a parking ticket!

Theatre-goers are asked to be cautious about parking on the street near the Royall Tyler Theatre. Watch for the new traffic signs.

AIN!
count Cards are me students starting

ffice to get yours
ood for .50 off movies

T ON! e per ID

ng Stone
ort is here.
me in for copy.

Concert Electronics Co.

Six full-length films, all directed by the distinguished French director Francois Truffaut, will be presented this fall by the Lane Film Society Series.

The films include "Farenheit 451," Oct. 4; "The 400 Blows," Oct. 11; "Jules and Jim," Oct. 18; "Stolen Kisses," Oct. 25; "Bed and Board," Nov. 1; and "Shoot the Piano Player," Nov. 15.

The movies will be shown on Friday evenings, at 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., in the Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Season tickets for the six films, $5, are now available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Tickets for single films, $1, are also on sale, either in the Lane Office or at the door on film nights. Tel.: 656-3418 for information.

Living/Learning Hosts Con Brio

The fourth annual concert series of the Con Brio Chamber Ensemble will be hosted again this year by the Living/Learning Center. The ensemble presents a varied program with emphasis on traditional pieces of unusual orchestration and the best of contemporary chamber works. This year's series will feature an original composition by Thomas Read of the UVM music department.

The Con Brio players are all Vermont musicians and members of university and college faculties, and with the support of the Living/Learning Center hope to make top quality chamber music easily accessible to the university and Burlington community.

Series tickets are now available for the four Wednesday evening concerts on October 2, November 6, February 12 and March 19, with special rates for students. Write to Con Brio at the Living/Learning Center for adult series tickets at $9.00 and student series tickets at $2.50. Series tickets will also be available at the door on the concerts.

(continued on page eleven)

Lyric Theatre Invites UVM Participants

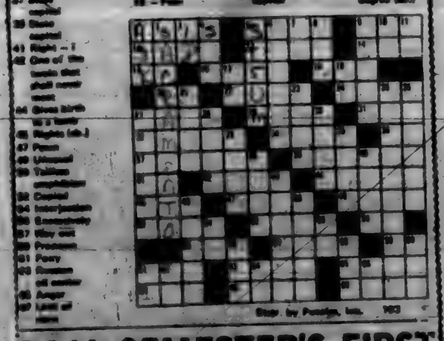
UVM students who are seeking involvement in community affairs are urged to contribute their time and talents to the newly formed Burlington Lyric Theatre, Inc.

The group will offer its first production of this season at the Flynn Theatre on November 14 through the 17. The musical Gypsy has been chosen as the vehicle and musical comedy buffs will know right away that it's the story of the rise to fame of Gypsy Rose Lee, the Queen of Burlesque of the 40's and 50's.

Showgirls, strippers, hoofers, child actors, young adults and character roles are all needed to round out the

(continued on page eleven)

crossword puzzle



FALL SEMESTER'S FIRST
BIG BURGER
CROSS WORD CONTEST

Upon correct completion of the above crossword puzzle, BIG BURGER will award a free dinner. The meal will be given to the first 15 people who present the finished puzzle after 8:00 p.m. tonight. Winners will be announced in the next CYNIC.

BIG BURGER
1200 WILLISTON RD.

GET ACQUAINTED WITH A FINE RESTAURANT !
NEXT TO SHOWCASE I & II

MENU

12 OUNCE BONE IN SIRLOIN STEAK DINNER
$3.99
The House Specialty

8 OUNCE BONELESS SIRLOIN STEAK DINNER
$3.59

½ LB. CHOPPED SIRLOIN DINNER
$2.59

10 OUNCE TOP SIRLOIN STEAK DINNER USDA CHOICE OUR FINEST ITEM
$5.89

ALL DINNERS INCLUDE
• Buttered Baked Potatoes • Hot Buttered Rolls
• Crisp Chef's Salad With Our Homemade Dressings SELECT FROM A VARIETY OF DESSERTS at small extra charge

SIZZLING STEAK
1216 WILLISTON ROAD
SO. BURLINGTON, VERMONT
(NEXT TO SHOWCASE I & II)

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HOURS
DINING ROOM: 4 P.M. TO 11 P.M. MON.-FRI.
NOON TO 11 P.M. SAT.-SUN.
LOUNGE: 4 P.M. TO 1 A.M. MON.-FRI.
NOON TO 1 A.M. SAT.-SUN.
SERVING ALL LEGAL BEVERAGES

RED DOG SALOON
Lower Church St.- 8649524

A Traditional Beverage
and Entertainment Emporium
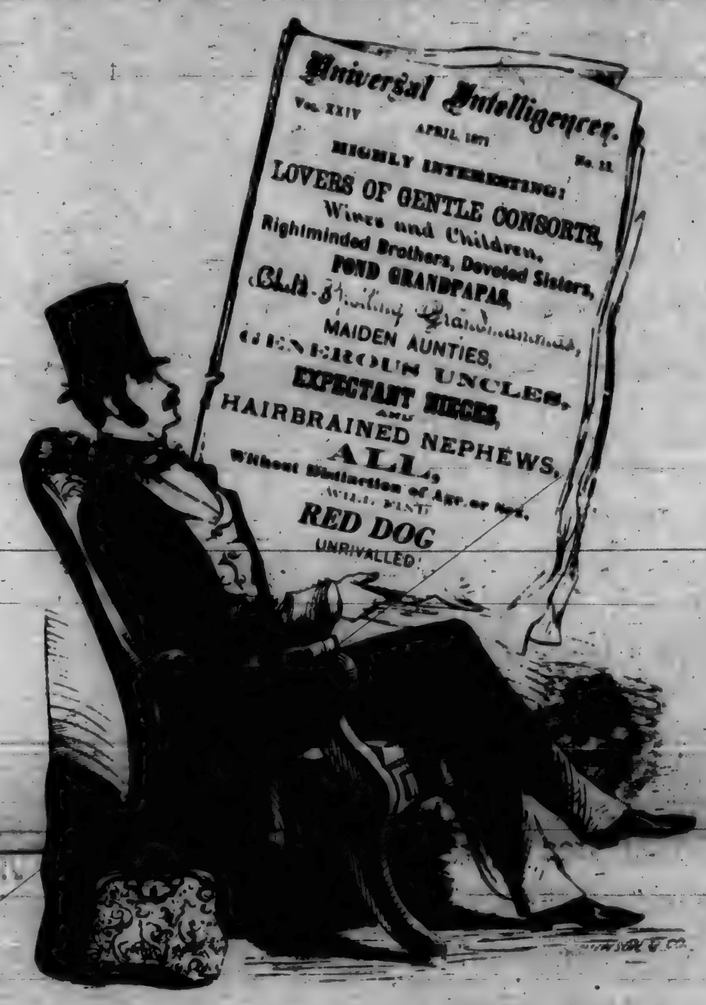
Since 1965



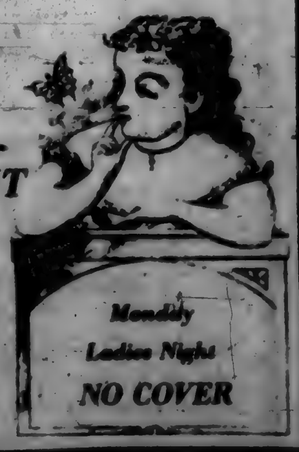
Open Every Night
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

This Week
HUDSON TERRAPLANE

Next Week for Two Weeks
BETTER DAYS & CO.

Every Sunday
DOWNPOUR

HAPPY HOUR
Friday 4-6:30
LIVE
ENTERTAINMENT
Spirits Half Price



PRE-SEASON SKI & CLOTHING SALE

Adult Skis

	Reg. Price	Sale
Rossignol Strato 102 - one year guarantee	176.	120.
Rossignol Stratix - one year guarantee	150.	99.
Olin Mark ii - one year guarantee	189.	120.
Olin Mark i - one year guarantee	155.	99.
Head HRP - one year guarantee	155.	99.
Head Std. - one year guarantee	135.	85.
Spalding Starboard - one year guarantee	150.	40.
A & T Javos	40.	10.
A & T Aspen	30.	10.

Junior Skis

	Reg. Price	Sale
Volkl Explosion - one year guarantee	125.	62.50
Spalding Sideral Jr. - one year guarantee	120.	60.
- one year guarantee	65.	32.50
A & T Sabre	18.	9.
A & T Ski Sets - Skis, poles & bindings	27.	13.50
A & T Ski Sets - Skis, poles & bindings	25.	12.50

½ PRICE ON ALL CROSSCOUNTRY SKIS

20%-50% OFF ON POLES BY: Barrecrafter, K-2, Scott, Tomie and Crosscountry.

Ski Parkas & Warmuppants 25% to 50% OFF

Ski Gloves $5.00 - Values up to Values up to $22. (small sizes)

Ski Sweaters - 50% OFF

Ski Boots

	Reg. Price
Nordica Olympic	185.	140.
Nordica Slalom	165.	120.
Nordica Mercury	100.	75.
Nordica Elegance	60.	45.
San Marco Pro	135.	67.50
Caber Pioner Foam	85.	40.
Hanson Internation, I - wax	160.	70.
Hanson Prima	120.	50.
Trappeur Equipe	165.	120.
Trappeur Comp.	170.	110.

1975 SKI EQUIPMENT ARRIVING DAILY
Skis by : Rossignol - K-2 & Atomic Ski Boots by : Nordica - Hanson - Raichle & K-2

OPEN 9 to 9 M-F
SAT. 9-5

Valuga Sports
1230 Shelburne Rd.
South Burlington Vt.
862-1561

BANKAMERICARD
MASTER CHARGE

next to Swiss Pot Restaurant

National Teacher Exams Offered To All Seniors

College seniors preparing to teach school may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of the four different test dates announced today by Educational Testing Service, a nonprofit, educational organization which prepares and administers this testing program.

New dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: November 9, 1974, and January 25, April 5, and July 19, 1975. The tests will be given at nearly 500 locations throughout the United States, ETS said.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and an Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a registration form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Organizational Fair

A new year is on its way to success, which must be supported. The only way this can be done is by getting the participation of the students themselves, which is not always easy. The Communication's Committee realizes this fact, and is out to help.

This year they are going to base a "show and tell," type of fair at Billings, in which all S.A. recognized organizations are strongly urged to participate. They feel this will give the best possible connection between the students and the organizations.

The fair will be held in Billings (North Lounge) on Wednesday, September 18, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. During this time, organizations are encouraged to have a display and/or any other means of information which will get the students' interest, and to have someone there at all times to answer questions. Displays can be set up from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and be taken down between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Redstone Hall To Reopen In January

Redstone Hall, a small but favorite residence hall on the University of Vermont campus, will be reopened at the beginning of the second semester next winter.

The residence hall, a 19th Century manor house, was closed in October 1973 when persistent plumbing problems made obvious the need for a major overhaul.

Proctor M. Lovell, director of administrative support services, said a committee made up of both students and staff members has approved the plans for restoration of the building, as proposed by architect Colin P. Lindberg. These plans are now being sent out to a selected list of bidders, with a stipulation that the work must be completed so the building can be put into use at the beginning of the next semester, when it will house 35 women students.

The house was built in 1889 by Addison A. Buell, a prominent Burlingtonian who lived there until his death in 1916. That building and others were acquired by the University in 1921 and the area has since been known as the Redstone Campus.

Interview Program

The Career Planning and Placement Office, Mansfield [illegible] its Campus Interview Program for 1974.

Employers, graduate schools, federal, state, and military agencies will be represented in the recruiting effort. Campus interviews will be conducted in the Placement Office from October 14 to December 13.

A similar program is scheduled for the spring semester.

All graduating students are encouraged to become familiar with the career, planning, and placement services and to pick up a placement credential packet in order to have a resume and letters of recommendation on file.

These credentials are especially essential for all students planning to participate in the recruiting program.

A placement credential file is also highly recommended for students pursuing any area of employment and for students planning to pursue graduate study.

Career information, employer brochures, the Peterson Guide to Graduate Study, resume writing assistance, career discussion and advisement services are all [illegible] office.

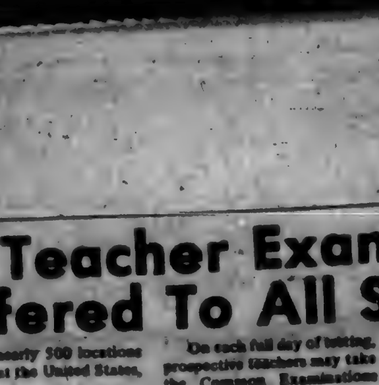
You are [illegible] to stop by anytime to meet with the director or placement staff.

Trying something new

You're always trying something new. This year you began ballet lessons. And today, you finally mastered that new position. You feel wonderful.

Trying Tampax tampons for the first time can be a wonderful new experience, too. They're worn internally so you can always be your most active. No one will know you have your period; even in a leotard, a bikini, or a tennis skirt. They're easy to use, too. The silken-smooth container-applicator makes insertion safe, easy and comfortable. And the exclusive Junior absorbency-size is just right for a beginner.

Try Tampax tampons and every day of the month can be a good day to try something new.



PHYSICS/CHEMISTRY LIBRARY
FALL 1974

THURSDAY, AUGUST 29 – TUESDAY, DECEMBER 17
Monday-Friday	8:30 a.m.–12 Midnight
Saturday	10:00 a.m.–10:00 p.m.
Sunday	12 noon–12 Midnight
PLEASE NOTE EXCEPTIONS:
Monday, September 2 (Labor Day)	12 noon–12 Midnight
Wednesday, November 27	8:30–5:00
Thursday, November 28	Closed
Friday, November 29	8:30–5:00

LUMS HAS JUST WHAT YOU WANT.

Good news for everyone who loves good food! There's a great LUMS in town – the big, growing family of Lums Restaurants.
LUMS is for your family, too. We serve gourmet burgers, snacks, roast beef, shrimp – everything from a snack to a meal. (Beers and wines, too.) Come out to LUMS for a great treat.

LUMS No one else will give you more. more. more.
williston road
(NEAR THE AIRPORT)
open 11:00 am - 1:00 am 7 days a week

New Brochure UVM Environm

A brochure outlining University of Vermont policy for use of its natural areas is available on request from the UVM Environmental Program. The brochure includes the resolution of the Board of Trustees designating nine areas and setting forth use regulations. A map indicates the approximate location of the areas.

Administration of the areas is the responsibility of Dr. Carl H. Reidel, director of the UVM Environmental Program. Commenting on the brochure, Reidel stressed that "protection of these areas for study and recreation will be possible only with strong public support. Regul won't mean much people using these are concerned enough to r the natural limitations o fragile areas."

Reidel expressed concern for fragile w and high mountain sites summit of Mt. Mansfi seriously threatened," h "as increasing numbe people visit the area. seldom realize that walking across the very alpine tundra can perma damage it. I would plea people to walk on designated trails and areas, and use extrem not to litter." Reidel

Chemists Find

Sick of hearing about shortages and higher prices?

Chemists meeting at the University of Vermont heard quite the opposite last month.

There will be no shortage of sulfur, promised Dr. Milton B. Abraham of R. B. MacMullin Associates, Niagara Falls, N.Y. Instead there'll be so much of the stuff we'll probably end up burying it, instead of mining it as we do now.

Dr. Abraham explained that current demand for energy has stepped up consumption of fossil fuels, which contain large amounts of sulfur. He promised aimed at reducing eliminating sulfur dioxi results from the comb of these fuels.

"As many as 40 m have been put forw viable solutions to elimination of emission," he said. "In terms, these fall into t broad categories, remo sulfur before combust the capture of the sulf combustion."

And what does this m It means, answered

Towards Understand Electric Power

Vermonters concerned – and perhaps confused – about electric power issues have help on the way.

The Institute for Liberty and Community, a nonprofit educational organization, has just published a 68 page "Vermont Citizens Guide to Electric Power Issues." It explains as objectively as possible the generation, transmission and distribution of electric energy; the structure of the electric power industry in New England and Vermont; the history of governmental regulation and rate making, the differences between investor-owned utilities, cooperatives, and municipals; and current facts and figures on all Vermont utilities.

Perhaps the most valuable part of the Guide is a clear and concise summary of all the major and minor proposals for changing the present electric power system in Ve This includes the VEL the Lifeline propos Daniels bill, the Hoff-K report, the Webb pr and a stimulating discu public utility districts truly free market industry.

Editor of the Institute President McClaughry, who se three years in the House as a membe Commerce Committe handled electric legislation. "The mai of the Guide," Mc says, "is to bring to factual information new proposals for the electric field benefit of citizens a officials." The G available for $1.00 from the Institute fo and Community, Vermont, 05824.

Science Majors Present Lectu

by Larry Desind

The Interdisciplinary Science Majors Program, linking the fields of chemistry, zoology, psychology and others, is now in the process of formalizing several series of discussions featuring UVM faculty members who are within the above areas. These lectures are open to all faculty and students and will be held weekly in the L/L Center complex (exact times and places will be announced).

As its main purpose, the ISMP will be attempting to show the interrelationships among the different branches of the physical and social sciences in formal content, matter, research, organizational structures and other related aspect sciences. To accomp goal a variety of topi presented and disc guest speakers in an seminar/lecture form presentation will be monthly series devo broad issue in the Upon completion series, the group (con thirteen students) w examine and emph similarities of disciplines discuss the month. At th formal write-up meeting's results composed for availability to all people at the en semester.

PLANTASI

107 St. Paul St.
Burlington, Vt.
864-9537

WE'RE STILL HERE, BEGINNI OUR SECOND YEAR, TO OFFER EVEN WIDER SELECTION OF INDO PLANTS FOR YOUR PARTICUL ROOM AND BUDGET. COME AND S WHAT THE SUMMER HAS BROUG TO PLANTASIA. ADVICE SELECTION, PLANT CARE, AND FR RE-POTTING OF ANY OF OUR PLAN INTO YOUR CONTAINERS.

BRASS MISTERS
PLANT FOOD & INSECTIC
POTTING SOIL
ALL SIZES CLAY POTS
MACRAME
WE CARRY ONLY VERMO MADE POTTERY

ms Seniors

which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a registration form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Interview Program

The Career Planning and Placement staff at Mansfield [illegible], is preparing its Campus Interview Program for 1974.

Employers, graduate schools, federal, state, and military agencies will be represented in the recruiting effort. Campus interviews will be conducted in the Placement Office from October 14 to December 13.

A similar program is scheduled for the spring semester.

All graduating students are encouraged to become familiar with the career planning, and placement services and to pick up a placement credential packet in order to have a resume and letters of recommendation on file.

These credentials are especially essential for all students planning to participate in the recruiting program.

A placement credential file is also highly recommended for students pursuing any area of employment and for students planning to pursue graduate study.

Career information, employer brochures, the Peterson Guide to Graduate Study, resume writing assistance, career counseling and advisement services are all offered [illegible] office.

You are invited to drop in anytime to meet with the director or placement staff.

HAS HAT
ANT.

[illegible] food! There's a great [illegible] of Lung Restaurants. [illegible] serve gourmet burgers, [illegible] from a snack to a meal. [illegible] for a great treat.

more. more.

7 days a week

New Brochure Outlines UVM Environmental Program

A brochure outlining University of Vermont policy for use of its natural areas is available on request from the UVM Environmental Program. The brochure includes the resolution of the Board of Trustees designating nine areas and setting forth use regulations. A map indicates the approximate location of the areas.

Administration of the areas is the responsibility of Dr. Carl H. Reidel, director of the UVM Environmental Program. Commenting on the brochure, Reidel stressed that "protection of these areas for study and recreation will be possible only with strong public support. Regulations won't mean much unless people using these areas are concerned enough to respect the natural limitations of these fragile areas."

Reidel expressed special concern for fragile wetland and high mountain sites. "The summit of Mt. Mansfield is seriously threatened," he said, "as increasing numbers of people visit the area. People seldom realize that simply walking across the very fragile alpine tundra can permanently damage it. I would plead with people to walk only on designated trails and rock areas, and use extreme care not to litter," Reidel stated that camping, picnicking, and fires of any type are prohibited on the top of Mt. Mansfield.

The University plans to issue additional brochures for each of the major areas, describing natural features, study opportunities, and necessary protective measures.

The University currently cooperates with the state and the Mt. Mansfield Co., in supporting a summer ranger program on Mt. Mansfield. The rangers provide information about natural features and enforce use regulations.

According to Reidel, school groups are welcomed to make use of the University's natural areas for educational purposes, provided groups are supervised. "But like general public use," Reidel said, "we hope that teachers and students will familiarize themselves with the area before their visit. Most damage to natural areas occur by people who are not aware of the delicate natural systems that make these such special places."

The areas are East Woods, Red Stone Quarry, Centennial Woods, Pease Mountain, Colchester Bog, Mt. Mansfield, Molly Bog, Concord Woods and Shelburne Pond.

Chemists Find Excess Of Sulfur

Sick of hearing about shortages and higher prices?

Chemists meeting at the University of Vermont heard quite the opposite last month.

There will be no shortage of sulfur, promised Dr. Milton E. Abraham of R. B. MacMullin Associates, Niagara Falls, N.Y. Instead there'll be so much of the stuff we'll probably end up burying it, instead of mining it as we do now.

Dr. Abraham explained that current demand for energy has stepped up consumption of fossil fuels, which contain large amounts of sulfur. He promised there would be a maximum effort aimed at reducing or eliminating sulfur dioxide that results from the combustion of these fuels.

"As many as 40 methods have been put forward as viable solutions to the elimination of sulfur emission," he said. "In general terms, these fall into two very broad categories, removal of sulfur before combustion and the capture of the sulfur after combustion."

And what does this mean? It means, answered Dr. Abraham, that while we "solve our air pollution problem we are of course creating another serious problem.

"What do we do with the recovered sulfur? If we recovered all of the sulfur dioxide from the fuel used in our power plants in the United States, we would recover more than 24 million tons of sulfur each year. This is a quantity greater than our present annual demand for sulfur. It represents somewhat more than a half pound of sulfur per day for every man, woman and child.

"Let us assume that we proceed, as expected, with gasification of coal to provide for future synthetic natural gas need. One consequence of this commitment will be an accumulation by the year 2000 of an annual excess above our needs of 18,000,000 tons annually. This represents about five pounds of sulfur per week for the average family."

"Of course, by that time our sulfur mines will be shut down. We may just have to reactivate them to bury the sulfur we will be producing."

Towards Understanding Electric Power

Vermonters concerned — and perhaps confused — about electric power issues have help on the way.

The Institute for Liberty and Community, a nonprofit educational organization, has just published a 68 page "Vermont Citizens Guide to Electric Power Issues." It explains as objectively as possible the generation, transmission and distribution of electric energy; the structure of the electric power industry in New England and Vermont; the history of governmental regulation and rate-making; the differences between investor-owned utilities, cooperatives, and municipals; and current facts and figures on all Vermont utilities.

Perhaps the most valuable part of the Guide is a clear and concise summary of all the major and minor proposals for changing the present electric power system in Vermont. This includes the VELCO bill, the Lifeline proposal, the Daniels bill, the Hoff-Kennedy report, the Webb proposals, and a stimulating discussion of public utility districts and a truly free market electric industry.

Editor of the Guide is Institute President John McClaughry, who served for three years in the Vermont House as a member of the Commerce Committee, which handled electric industry legislation. "The main purpose of the Guide," McClaughry says, "is to bring together the factual information and the new proposals for change in the electric field for the benefit of citizens and public officials." The Guide is available for $1.00 postpaid from the Institute for Liberty and Community, Concord, Vermont, 05824.

Science Majors Present Lectures

by Larry Désind

The Interdisciplinary Science Majors Program, linking the fields of chemistry, zoology, psychology and others, is now in the process of formalizing several series of discussions featuring UVM faculty members who are within the above areas. These lectures are open to all faculty and students and will be held weekly in the L/L Center complex (exact times and places will be announced).

As its main purpose, the ISMP will be attempting to show the interrelationships among the different branches of the physical and social sciences in formal content, matter, research, organizational structures and other related aspects of the sciences. To accomplish this goal a variety of topics will be presented and discussed by guest speakers in an informal seminar/lecture format. Each presentation will be part of a monthly series devoted to a broad issue in the sciences. Upon completion of each series, the group (comprised of thirteen students) will meet to examine and emphasize the similarities of all the disciplines discussed during the month. At this time a formal write-up of the meeting's results will be composed for eventual availability to all interested people at the end of this semester.

PLANTASIA
107 St. Paul St.
Burlington, Vt.
864-9537

WE'RE STILL HERE, BEGINNING OUR SECOND YEAR, TO OFFER AN EVEN WIDER SELECTION OF INDOOR PLANTS FOR YOUR PARTICULAR ROOM AND BUDGET. COME AND SEE WHAT THE SUMMER HAS BROUGHT TO PLANTASIA. ADVICE ON SELECTION, PLANT CARE, AND FREE RE-POTTING OF ANY OF OUR PLANTS INTO YOUR CONTAINERS.

BRASS MISTERS
PLANT FOOD & INSECTICIDES
POTTING SOIL
ALL SIZES CLAY POTS
MACRAME
WE CARRY ONLY VERMONT-MADE POTTERY

STARTS FRIDAY —for a limited time only
EVERYDAY BOOKSHOP
RECORD — ALBUM
SALE
SAVE UP TO 80% OFF
SCHWANN LIST
ON QUALITY LP's and BOXED SETS CLASSICAL—FOLK—BLUES—JAZZ—100's TO CHOOSE FROM
$1.98 $2.39 $2.49
SETS $6.98 to $14.98
Great Records — Great Prices
EVERYDAY BOOK SHOP
106 Church St. 862-5161
Open Thurs. & Fri. Evenings

This is the strange, wonderful shoe with the heel lower than the toe.

This shoe is different from any shoe you've ever worn. It's the EARTH® negative heel shoe. The shoe designed to work in harmony with your entire body.

The heel of the Earth® shoe is actually lower than the toe. This allows you to walk naturally. Like when you walk barefoot in sand or soft earth and your heel sinks down lower than your toes.

The entire sole of the Earth shoe is molded in a very special way. This allows you to walk in a gentle rolling motion. And to walk easily and comfortably on the hard jarring cement of our cities.

But remember, just because a shoe looks like ours doesn't mean it works like ours. So to be sure you're getting the Earth brand shoe, look on the sole for our Earth trademark and U.S. Patent #3305947.

Your body will thank you.

Shoes, sandals, sabots and boots for men and women. From $23.50 to $42.50.

"EARTH is a registered trademark of Kalsø Systemet, Inc. ©1974 Kalsø Systemet, Inc.

139 BANK STREET

THE LAST CHANCE SALOON

WELCOME BACK TO BURLINGTON

Best Selection of Draft Beers in Burlington

Great Drinks at prices you can live with

Best in Late Night Snacks

Now Air Conditioned

A PLACE TO MEET OLD FRIENDS AND MAKE NEW ONES

147 MAIN ST.
BURLINGTON
3 DOORS DOWN
FROM THE FLYNN THEATRE

A world of intriguing objects from far away places and intricate creations from our foremost native craftsmen. Pleasant Aromas, exciting designs, bountiful colors and an atmosphere designed to stimulate your imagination await you in one of Vermont's most exciting shops. Owned and operated by a native craftsman, Serendipity has become a local favorite and an attraction to visitors. Come, enjoy some time with us!

N
W E

College St.

BE SURE TO VISIT OUR LATEST ADDITION
THE JEWEL BOX
12 CHURCH ST.
HANDCRAFTED JEWELRY FROM 25 COUNTRIES

SILVER AND GOLD JEWELRY DESIGNED AND CREATED IN OUR SHOP BY OWNER DICK BRUNELLE

Imports From Israel
Poland
Italy
Ireland
Austria
Thailand
Bangladesh
Pakistan
Iran
Japan
China
Korea
India
Taiwan Philippines
Turkey
Mexico
Haiti
Bolivia
Argentina
Peru
Ecuador

Serendipity
206 COLLEGE ST
DOWNTOWN BURLINGTON
'WHERE FINE CRAFTSMEN EXPRESS THEMSELVES'

Optimistic Outlook For S

Two-a-day practice sessions are in progress for the University of Vermont Soccer team, as the 28 man varsity squad reported to campus August 28. In addition to the varsity squad (all upperclassmen), a big freshman contingent has also begun drills.

Twelve lettermen, led by co-captains Rick Taylor and Bob Cleverdon, reported back to Don Soderberg's varsity eligible for varsity status, will "not be rushed into varsity competition their first year," but if they "mature quickly, they certainly will be used in the varsity program."

Paul Reinhardt is the "B" squad coach.

Last year, the Catamount booters finished 5-8 overall and 0-6 in the Yankee Conference, a disappointing year for a soccer program that has over the years established a winning tradition. "We are aiming for a return to the championship years of the late 60's and 1971 (10-2-1 overall and

Conference
Soderberg.
Vermont op
at Connecticut, Huskies are champions.
The 197
follows:
Sept. 21 –
10 a.m.
Sept. 25 –
3:30 p.m.
Sept. 28 –
10:30 a.m.
p.m.
Oct. 5 –
10 a.m.
Oct. 9 –
2 p.m.
Oct. 12 –
10:30 a.m.
Oct. 16 –
p.m.
Oct. 18
HAMPSHIRE
Oct. 23 –
3 p.m.
Oct. 26 –
a.m.
Oct. 30 –
p.m.
Nov. 1 –
SETTS – 3 p.m

OVP Holds

by Jan Hutchinson

The Office of Volunteer Programs at the University of Vermont will be holding its Fourth Annual Fair on the 12th and 13th of September in the North Lounge at Billings Center. WRUV-AM will be there again broadcasting both the music, the events and the happenings at the Fair. The purpose of the Fair is to provide exposure for student volunteer projects, to recruit new students to work in ongoing projects, and to encourage students with project ideas of their own to come to OVP and get some help turning their ideas into reality.

The OVP office at UVM began five years ago as a student movement and since then has grown into a link between students and the administration. Through its office, OVP places about 1,000 student and community volunteers annually. Volunteers work independently or in projects organized by other volunteers. This was the case with TAP Water project: two University Year for Action students felt that there were far too many homes in Vermont without running water, and they, working together with a field supervisor and a plumber, installed running water to many of the homes of the 5,000 Vermonters who did not have piped water.

OVP has Planned Pare
as medical educators, in technicians, relations. Spe for runaway volunteers wi make a comm work in the present staff companionsh
With the OVP profess
Project Coor
(PCC), volun facilities are the needs a with inform developing can also use sounding bo and ideas tha
The Off
Programs al federal Uni Action Prog
the ACTI Washington,
UYA prog
students poverty-rel
Vermont
12-month jobs are students credit th university work they are curren
Mobile De vans, at t
Correction
Public

The New Deadline Fo
In The CYNIC Will
Friday Preceding Pu

VERMONT CYNIC

Section II

Optimistic Outlook For Soccer

Two-a-day practice sessions are in progress for the University of Vermont Soccer team, as the 28 man varsity squad reported to campus August 28. In addition to the varsity squad (all upperclassmen), a big freshman contingent has also begun drills.

Twelve lettermen, led by co-captains Rick Taylor and Bob Cleverdon, reported back to Don Soderberg's varsity squad. [illegible] eligible for varsity status, will "not be rushed into varsity competition their first year," but if they "mature quickly, they certainly will be used in the varsity program."

Paul Reinhardt is the "B" squad coach.

Last year, the Catamount booters finished 5-8 overall and 0-6 in the Yankee Conference, a disappointing year for a soccer program that has - over the years- established a winning tradition. "We are aiming for a return to the championship years of the late 60's and 1971 (10-2-1 overall and Conference title)," said Soderberg.

Vermont opens its season at Connecticut, Sept. 21. The Huskies are the defending champions.

The 1974 schedule follows:

Sept. 21 – at Connecticut – 10 a.m.
Sept. 25 – at Plattsburgh – 3:30 p.m.
Sept. 28 – BRIDGEPORT – 10:30 a.m.
[illegible] p.m.
Oct. 5 – at Boston Univ. – 10 a.m.
Oct. 9 – at St. Michael's – 2 p.m.
Oct. 12 – at Rhode Island – 10:30 a.m.
Oct. 16 – at Norwich – 3 p.m.
Oct. 18 – NEW HAMPSHIRE – 3 p.m.
Oct. 23 – at Middlebury – 3 p.m.
Oct. 26 – at Maine – 10 a.m.
Oct. 30 – St. Michael's – 3 p.m.
Nov. 1 – MASSACHUSETTS – 3 p.m.

Recipe...

Recipe of the Week:
Brew Your Own Booze

3 lb. can malt extract
1 tablespoon hop extract
4 lb. white sugar or honey
1 tablespoon salt
1 envelope yeast
5 gal. water

Heat one gallon of water, dissolve malt hops, sugar and salt in it. Add remaining water, let cool to 80 degrees or below and add the yeast. Ferment under air lock (one hole stopper with tubing, bubbling through a glass of water will do), until bubbles slow to three per minute (about ten days). Put in bottles or sturdy bottles (disposable bottles can explode).

Add ½ tablespoon of sugar to each 12 oz. bottle. Ferment in the bottle for one or two weeks more, to put a head on your beer.

From Vermont Peoples Yellow Pages -- 1973–1974

Con Brio...

(continued from page seven)

first concert evening, as well as single tickets at $2.50 and $3.75. Call the Living/Learning Center at 656-4200 for further information.

Lyric Theatre...

(continued from page seven)

distribution of the over 60 people in the cast – not to mention the 30 musicians needed in the pit and the important stage crew which makes the whole show move.

UVM students who participated in, or who say How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying last spring know the calibre of production that can be attained at the Flynn, so come one, come all.

Tryouts will take place at Trinity College auditorium at 1:00 and 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, September 15 and again at 7:30 p.m. on [illegible]

OVP Holds Annual Fair

by Jan Hutchinson

The Office of Volunteer Programs at the University of Vermont will be holding its Fourth Annual Fair on the 12th and 13th of September in the North Lounge at Billings Center. WRUV-AM will be there again broadcasting both the music, the events and the happenings at the Fair. The purpose of the Fair is to provide exposure for student volunteer projects, to recruit new students to work in ongoing projects, and to encourage students with project ideas of their own to come to OVP and get some help turning their ideas into reality.

The OVP office at UVM began five years ago as a student movement and since then has grown into a link between students and the administration. Through its office, OVP places about 1,000 student and community volunteers annually. Volunteers work independently or in projects organized by other volunteers. This was the case with TAP Water project: two University Year for Action students felt that there were far too many homes in Vermont without running water, and they, working together with a field supervisor and a plumber, installed running water to many of the homes of the 3,000 Vermonters who did not have piped water.

OVP has volunteers at Planned Parenthood working as medical aids, group educators, interviewers, lab technicians, and in public relations. Spectrum, a shelter for runaway teenagers, needs volunteers who are willing to make a commitment and help work in the house, or aid the present staff in activities and companionship for teens.

With the advisement of the OVP professional staff and the Project Coordinators Council, (PCC), volunteers learn what facilities are available, where the needs are, are provided with informal assistance in developing new projects, and can also use the OVP staff as a sounding board for problems and ideas that arise.

The Office of Volunteer Programs also coordinates the federal University Year for Action Program sponsored by the ACTION agency in Washington, D.C. Through the UYA program, full-time UVM students are placed in poverty-related projects in the Vermont community for a 12-month period. Their UYA jobs are full-time and the students receive academic credit through individual university departments for the work they do. UYA volunteers are currently serving on the Mobile Dental and Medical vans, at the Department of Corrections, at the Vermont Public Interest Research Group, at the Parent Child Center in Barton, and also at the Office of Volunteer Programs Clearinghouse throughout the state college system in Vermont. Part-time student volunteers can also participate in UYA projects.

The Fair will run for two days in order to provide the opportunity of meeting and talking with all the community agency people, the UYA volunteers, and the OVP Project Directors, at the same time and in the same place.

Those who wish to get involved with an agency or a project such as:

- Vt. Legal Aid
- Winooski Mobile Classroom
- Senior Citizen's Centers
- Adopt-A-Grandparent
- Bread and Law Task Force
- TAP
- Threshold
- Spectrum
- ACTIONFEST
- Horizons

will be able to come to OVP for immediate placement, in an area which meets the needs of both the agency and the volunteer. If you are interested in academic credit or helping someone help themselves, stop in at the Fair on the 12th and 13th of September, or feel free to drop in at the office in Mansfield House, 25 Colchester Avenue, 656-2062. The Office of Volunteer Programs is open through the noon hour.

The New Deadline For Articles To Be Printed In The CYNIC Will Be At 12 Noon On The Friday Preceding Publication where are we going?

where are we coming from?

and what can YOU do about it?

tuition: up up and away

faculty $queeze

STOP HIGH TUITION!

higher ed.

international innovations

community: campus

washington dissent

Join and support the

VERMONT CYNIC

the student newspaper

Editor
Barbara Frankel

WRITERS - PRODUCTION STAFF - TYPISTS - TYPESETTERS

Lower Billings Center 658-4911

"Tis a Privilege to Live in Vermont

FIRST LECTURE - Resurrection of Jesus Christ
SECOND LECTURE - Bible Prophecy
THIRD LECTURE - Maximum Sex
Josh will be speaking at
The University of Vermont
PATRICK GYM
SEPTEMBER 11, 12, 13
at 7:30 PM
SPONSORED BY CAMPUS CRUSADE

Guess Who's Coming To Dinner?

Members of IRA and the Women of UVM, who are again jointly sponsoring the Guess Who's Coming to Dinner program, have announced a change in date for the program from Sept. 22nd to Oct. 27th.

The change has been made in deference to a dinner on Sept. 22nd honoring two long-time members of the faculty of the School of Home Economics, to which all faculty have been invited.

Faculty, staff and students who have already signed up for the Sept. 22nd "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner Program" will have their reservations transferred to the new October 27th date, and should contact the Student Activities Office at Billings Center if the new date is not workable for them. Deadline for reservations for Oct. 27th will be advanced from the original 12 noon of Sept. 13th to 12 noon on Oct. 18.

The program pairs faculty and staff interested in inviting one or more students to their home with students who are interested. Last year several hundred students were guests of faculty and staff for dinner, picnics, or other outings affording an opportunity for UVM students and faculty and staff to meet socially informally.

Reservations or more information may be obtained at the Student Activities Office in Billings Center, 656-2060, or from any member of the Women of UVM or of IRA.

PLEASE COUNT ME IN FOR GUESS WHO'S COMING TO DINNER NIGHT

Student Form: Name _____

Campus Address _____

Best time for host to reach me by phone _____

Class _____

Campus Phone _____

FACULTY STAFF FORM

Name _____

Address _____

Title _____

Phone _____

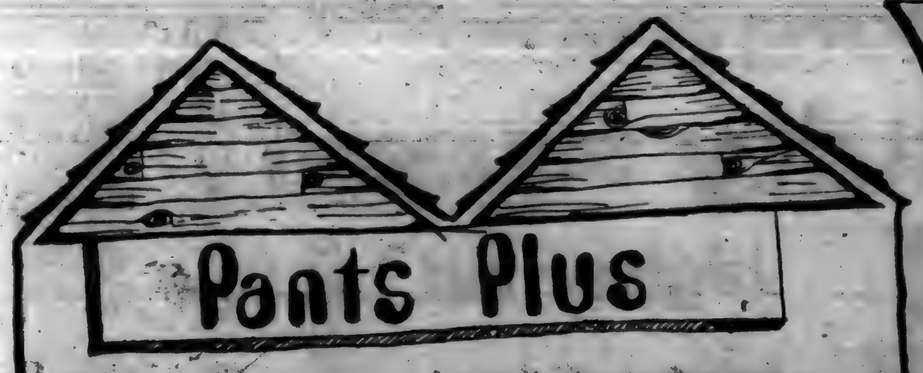
My family would like to host ___ students on Sunday, Oct. 27.

NOTE TO PARTICIPANTS: Students signing up will be matched with faculty-staff families signing up. The faculty or staff host will be asked to contact the student or students he or she is assigned and arrange for times and transportation with the students guests for Sunday, October 27th.

KOREAN KARATE
PHYSICAL FITNESS & SELF-CONFIDENCE
SELF-DEFENSE DISCIPLINE
[illegible]
VISITORS WELCOME

north winooski avenue at pearl street
downtown burlington

Conni Blanchard



Jeans, Pants, Shirts & Tops
for girls & guys
LEVI'S
Straight legs & Bells
10% off with valid UVM Student ID

OPEN FOR LUNCH
11:30 AM - 2:00 PM
HAPPY HOUR
11:30 AM - 7:00 PM
Mon. - Sat.

We, Th

by Linda Clayton

In this modern age of bra burning, aborti and the sexual revolution, nothing turns a ma
"liberated" woman. The days of the coy, fl young thing are over. The well-scrubbed dimpled cheerleader no longer serves as the Standard American sexual fantasy.

Men often identify the liberation of wom freedom. After all, the most popular femini the last few years, in the male view, has bee burning. And liberated women tend to be mo open about their sexuality.

Today's cinematic Venus is an up
"blue-jeaned baby-queen," hair long and s showing seductively through a sheer halter.

It is easy for men to applaud this Helen version of femininity, in which modern wom from the drudgeries of housework so that she a total sensual being. A man no longer ha carefully planned, frustrating seduction of t fancy, nervously reminding himself that " much as I do." Nowadays, all a man expects t greetings and a few key political words, and t assuming the basic gynecological examinatio

The attraction is more than skin deep. A l is necessarily a strong woman, and that mean an invulnerable woman, one who doesn't support, affection, time, or concern. Wham, ma'am. The all-American girl.

And don't forget the sincere attracti independent women, and the just as sincere that independence and that contempti invulnerability.

There is nothing invulnerable about strength comes from compassion, from suffering, from the recognition of the nee better life. Like every other person, a femini immediacy and desperation of the wom indicates to me that a liberated woman may more crucial needs than her more satisfied co sets her apart is that she understands those fight to earn their fulfillment.

There is nothing sexy about the lit oppressed group.

Rosa Parks didn't sit in the front section spark the civil rights movement to be sex because she was tired.

An Appalachian woman, her husband because his lungs are black with coal du dangle around her waist from nursing ba worried about being released from the dru so that she can develop as a sensual being; sh having enough to eat.

A ghetto welfare mother is not bother free love; she is worried about her children

The definition of the women's move sexuality is a dangerous obfuscation dangerous for both men and women, be language of sexual attitudes which it is ess
A new, and acceptable, vocabulary. So of the same old attitudes of phallic domi

AMERICAN
BEADS FR
THE FUNCTIONA
POT
FEATURIN
HANDS
CRA COME IN AND

To Dinner?

...'S COMING TO DINNER NIGHT

...Sunday, Oct. 27.

...be matched with faculty-staff families signing up. ...dent or students he or she is assigned and arrange ...Sunday, October 27th.

...eet

Conni Blanchard

...LMORE

...CH

...M

We , The Women, Protest!

by Linda Clayton

In this modern age of bra burning, abortion on demand and the sexual revolution, nothing turns a man's head like a "liberated" woman. The days of the coy, flirtatious sweet young thing are over. The well-scrubbed all-American dimpled cheerleader no longer serves as the object of the Standard American sexual fantasy.

Men often identify the liberation of women with sexual freedom. After all, the most popular feminist activity over the last few years, in the male view, has been the great bra burning. And liberated women tend to be more secure in and open about their sexuality.

Today's cinematic Venus is an update of that "blue-jeaned baby-queen," hair long and straight, nipples showing seductively through a sheer halter.

It is easy for men to applaud this Helen Gurley Brown version of femininity, in which modern woman is "liberated" from the drudgeries of housework so that she may develop as a total sexual being. A man no longer has to conduct a carefully planned, frustrating seduction of the object of his fancy, nervously reminding himself that "she wants it as much as I do." Nowadays, all a man expects to do is exchange greetings and a few key political words, and there she will be, assuming the basic gynecological examination position.

The attraction is more than skin deep. A liberated woman is necessarily a strong woman, and that means, to many men, an invulnerable woman, one who doesn't need emotional support, affection, time, or concern. Wham, bam, thank you ma'am. The all-American girl.

And don't forget the sincere attraction of men to independent women, and the just as sincere desire to quash that independence and that contemptible facade of invulnerability.

There is nothing invulnerable about strength. True strength comes from compassion, from empathy with suffering, from the recognition of the need to fight for a better life. Like every other person, a feminist has needs. The immediacy and desperation of the women's movement indicates to me that a liberated woman may have deeper and more crucial needs than her more satisfied counterpart. What sets her apart is that she understands those needs, and will fight to earn their fulfillment.

There is nothing sexy about the liberation of any oppressed group.

Rosa Parks didn't sit in the front section of a city bus and spark the civil rights movement to be sexy; she sat down because she was tired.

An Appalachian woman, her husband unable to work because his lungs are black with coal dust, whose breasts dangle around her waist from nursing her children, is not worried about being released from the drudgeries of her life so that she can develop as a sensual being; she is worried about having enough to eat.

A ghetto welfare mother is not bothered with dreams of free love; she is worried about her children dying of rat bites.

The definition of the women's movement in terms of sexuality is a dangerous obfuscation of the real issues, dangerous for both men and women, because it couches a language of sexual attitudes which it is essential to discredit in a new and acceptable vocabulary. So far the women's [illegible] of the same old attitudes of phallic dominance. The women's movement, I reiterate, is non-(physically) sexual. It is not that the corresponding sexual revolution does not have merit, it is that it has nothing to do, in essence, with the movement to liberate women.

Texas Instruments
electronic calculators

SLIDE RULE CALCULATOR

$69.95

TI SR 10

- Perform reciprocals (1/X), squares, square roots.
- Full floating decimal.
- 12-digit display
- Operates on AC or built-in rechargeable batteries AC charger included, carrying case.
- Compact 6.3x3x1.4". Weighs 9 oz.

LAFAYETTE
157 Pearl St., Essex Jct.

Gigantic Pre-Season

SKI SALE

OVER 200
SKI BOOTS
Nordica, Lange, Reiker
Humanic, Technica, Koflach

OVER 100
SKIS
Rossignol, K2, Kneissl,
Head, Olin, Durafiber, Hart
Volkl, Hamaha, Northland

20% TO 50% OFF

Mens', Ladies', Children's SKI PARKAS
AND SKI SWEATERS

up to 50% OFF

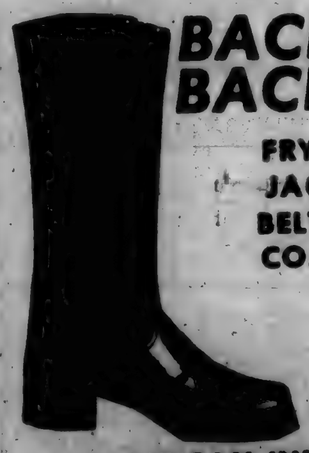
1975 SKI EQUIPMENT HAS ARRIVED!

Brand new 1975 SKI BOOTS by NORDICA, DOLOMITE and LANGE have just been received!
1975 SKIS by ROSSIGNOL, K2, KNEISSL, DYNAMIC, OLIN, DYNASTAR, HEAD and VOLKL are in for your inspection.

ALPINE SHOP
WILLISTON ROAD, SO. BURLINGTON
OPEN DAILY 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.

Trader's Way

SUNDANCE



BACK TO COLLEGE IS BACK TO SUNDANCE

FRYE BOOTS·LEATHER VESTS· JACKETS·HATS·MOCCASINS·
BELTS·HANDBAGS·SHEEPSKIN
COATS AND MUCH MORE· · ·

AMERICAN INDIAN JEWELRY· BEADS FROM ALL OVER
THE WORLD·
FUNCTIONAL AND DECORATIVE POTTERY· · ·
FEATURING GIFTS FROM THE
HANDS OF VERMONT'S
CRAFTSMEN· · ·

COME IN AND ENJOY THEM WITH US

The Pipe Rack

The Pipe

The pipe draws wisdom from the lips of the philosopher,
And shuts up the mouths of the foolish;
It generates a style of conversation
Contemplative, thoughtful, and benevolent,
And unaffected.

Thackeray

The Pipe Rack

owned and operated by the University of Vermont

BOOKS: Have you browsed through our new Best Seller Section? Over 200 titles with new ones added weekly

CACULATORS: Bowmar Hewlett-Packard Melcor, Texas Instruments

CANDY & NUTS: by the pound from the Sweet Shoppe

CIGARETTES, TOBACCO, PIPES

CLOCKS AND WATCHES: Westclox and Timex
10% off for a limited time only

GAMES: Chess, Backgammon, Checkers, Cards, Puzzles, Cribbage Boards

GIFT CERTIFICATES

GREETING CARDS: Studio, Everyday, Seasonal & Art Cards

HAND TOOLS: by Globemaster

JEWELRY: Rings, bracelets, Charms, Earrings, Watch for upcoming advertisement regarding SILADIUM rings!

LEATHER KEY CHAINS: Personalized - If you don't see one with your name, it can be ordered for you.

PICTURE FRAMES

POSTER AND PRINTS

RECORDING TAPES: Scotch and Capitol

RECORDS: Rock, Folk, Jazz, Blues, Classical

SWEAT SHIRTS AND T-SHIRTS: Imprinted with the decal or lettering you select

TEN-SPEED BICYCLES: and accesories
The Grasshopper for $99.95 plus frieght

TYPEWRITERS by Olympia repairs on almost any brand free estimates

COME ON IN AND SEE WHAT ELSE WE HAVE

Sediments Accumulate On Banks Of Lake Champlain

Sediments 600 feet deep have piled up in Lake Champlain off Burlington Harbor.

And off Fisher's Landing in Charlotte, at 390 feet near the deepest spot in the lake the sediment accumulation is more than 800 feet deep.

These sediment depths and many others, greater than many had expected, were measured for the first time only recently.

University of Vermont geologists, working with a team from the University of Connecticut, pooled their scientific expertise and equipment and worked on board the UVM floating laboratory, the Melosira.

Out of this effort came some answers to the long un-answered question: How fast is the lake filling up and how much has it filled up?

Dr. Allen S. Hunt, professor of geology at the University of Vermont, emphasized that man, despite his often careless attitude toward the lake, cannot be blamed for this deep buildup. "The fastest buildup was about 13,000 years ago, in the era immediately after the glacial period," he explained.

At that time, because there was less vegetation and abundant meltwater, rivers and streams carried vast amounts of material into the lake. The pace slowed as the ice completely melted, and has probably only slightly accelerated since man cut the forest and began cultivating the land.

In this recent study, Dr. Hunt and students from his department worked with Dr. John Dowling and his students from the Marine Science Institute of the University of Connecticut, in Avery Point, Connecticut. Dr. Dowling is a geophysicist and oceanographer.

He and Dr. Hunt explained the system used in measuring the sediment's depths. An instrument called an "air gun" creates a low frequency sound wave at the water surface, at the rate of one per second. Part of the energy of this sound wave goes to the bottom and is bounced back from the top of the sediments and recorded on board the ship as the depth of the water.

Another part of the energy continues through the sediments and is not reflected until it hits a good reflecting surface such as solid rock.

The recording device charts the succession of both echoes on a single sheet, resulting in a graph-like reading of both the water and sediment depths.

Thus, for example, with the Melosira moving across the lake, it is possible to construct with the record a profile of both water and sediment depths in one line across the lake. This is what the team did during a week of work on the lake, carefully plotting their position, then recording sediment depths in various lines on the broad lake.

This information fills an important gap in the knowledge being collected at the university about the lake bottom. For the past several years, by plunging a steel tube far below the water surface and 20 feet into the sediments, then bringing up this "core", Dr. Hunt's team has learned much about the composition of those sediments. They found, for example, that the fossilized skeletons of diatoms, tiny one-celled creatures, made up as much as half of the layers above the bed rock.

Other equipment had provided much information about the sediment depths down to about 200 feet. But when Dr. Hunt was questioned about sediment depths in many areas of the lake, he could only answer, "More than 200 feet deep." Now he gives specific answers. Thus the recent research cruises were invaluable in learning more about the lake.

Dr. Dowling suggested several gains:

"The trip was of a reconnaissance nature," he commented. "It provided valuable information, but also identified interesting questions to be pursued, such as the distribution of fguits in the bed rock.

"And it did provide much practical information of the type engineers require for any activity on the lake, such as the laying of cables.

"But to both Dr. Hunt and me, the educational aspect was equally important. Our students had an opportunity to work and study together. And I'm sure they saw clearly the accomplishments that can result when scientists of different background, such as Dr. Hunt and I, combine their knowledge and work together."

College Expenses High?

save money on your prescription
Grandway Discount Pharmacy,
Vermont's first discount pharmacy

LOW LOW LOW prices

ask about us at University Infirmary
All your friends shop here' shouldn't you?

Grandway Pharmacy
Grandway Shopping Center
Shelburne Road
864-6869

Engineers— Be Creative

Science and Engineering students have an opportunity to be rewarded for creative thinking. The engineering school bulletin board has flyers posted containing details on an energy storage contest.

Feasible ideas, rather than completed plans, are eligible for prizes of $25.00, $50.00, and $100.00 U.S. Savings Bonds.

For contest rules write to: Friedman Energy Contest, 6031 St. Clair Ave., Cleveland, Ohio 44103. State how many copies wanted. Good luck.

All Studiocraft Speakers are computer-tested on a six-foot electric ear.

Syncom II™. It's the most unique, most advanced speaker testing system there is. Most testing systems listen to the highs and the lows and the middles right where they come out of the grille. That's the problem: most people don't listen with their ears right on the grille. Only strange persons.

Syncom hears what you normal persons hear: all the sound in the room. And every Studiocraft speaker is adjusted to that total soundscene. So if a flute sounds like a flute in front of the speaker, it doesn't sound like an ambulance from the sofa.

The Syncom computer makes sure Studiocraft sends you real sound everywhere — whether you're in a chair, under the table, or on the ceiling.

Studiocraft Syncom II™— tested speakers.

They give you a big electric ear.

Studiocraft

tech hifi
151 CHURCH ST., BURLINGTON, VT. 05401
PHONE 862-2449

Student Lo

Throughout the fall the National Student Lobby, a four year old federation of individual students and student governments headquartered in Washington, D.C., will fight for adoption of Congressional legislation insuring a national air transportation policy that will benefit students.

Arthur Rodbell, Executive Director of the National Student Lobby, announced that NSL's lobbying strategy will center around the passage of two bills by Congress, S.1739 and S.2651. Both bills appear to have excellent chances of passage before Congress adjourns for the November elections.

One of these bills, S.2651, would overturn a decision made two years ago by the Civil Aeronautics Board prohibiting the scheduled airlines from offering the so-called "youth-fares." Due to NSL's massive lobbying effort, S.2651 was unanimously passed by the Senate in November of 1973, and is due to come up for hearings before the House Subcommittee on Transportation and Aeronautics as the Subcommittee's next order of business. S.2651 would reinstate discount fares on a standby basis for youth under

The regular schedule for the Sunday

Monday – Friday
Saturday

Billings Center regular schedule has new schedule:

Sunday
Monday – Friday

Saturday

Music Thing

by Michael Thurston

Sounds of the South

There are basic questions we deal with here. Where does the critique travel after we speak of Allman Brothers comparisons? What happens after we discuss the band that released the surprise album of 1973? What can we say after determining Lynyrd Skynyrd as the band chosen to accompany The Who on their Quadrophenia tour? We can either rehash the obvious, or explore a new facet. The former wears itself thin, while the latter runs risks of delving too far. Let's delve anyway.

Al Kooper, producer extraordinaire, began as a session musician. He went on to the much acclaimed, non-commercial Blues Project, did stints with Michael Bloomfield on super session packages, and founded Blood, Sweat, & Tears. As a solo artist, Kooper found a niche of following, that, while far from impressive, managed to pay the bills and attract industry attention. MCA hadn't much stake in the sudden blast of southern bayou ballads, and decided to take a gamble on Kooper to make it happen. MCA instituted a new label, Sounds of the South, Kooper found Lynyrd Skynyrd in an Atlanta club, and the rest is history.

Kooper's influence on Skynyrd is more than coincidental. His experience with improvisational bands, and his ability to pump a commercial riff for all it's worth, is the formula fused for much of Skynyrd's material. The roots of the south remain, pure and unharmed. Whining guitars, roving and rampageous keyboards, coupled with nasal, gritty vocals, provide the high end of an atypical, southern, white band, playing black-oriented swamp songs.

Notes:

New John Lennon album coming up soon, entitled Looking Back, a collection of, guess what?, old rock and roll... new Rollin' Stones album due shortly. The ABC California Jam, billed as ABC's first super-concert netted some 200,000 people, to the tune of 2 million smackers. The entire event is on tape, and will be telecast for In Concert, as well as a possible movie feature.

ate Champlain

...device ...on of both ...ogle sheet, ...graph-like ...r water and ...

...mple, with ...g across the ...to construct ...a profile of ...d sediment ...e across the ...the team did ...work on the ...lotting their ...recording ...in various ...lake ...

...tions fills an ...in the ...collected at ...point the lake ...the past ...plunging ...ow the water ...feet into the ...bringing up ...Hunt's team ...h about the ...of those ...found, for ...be fossilized ...atoms, tiny ...res, made up ...of the layers ...ch.

...pment had ...information about the sediment depths down to about 200 feet. But when Dr. Hunt was questioned about sediment depths in many areas of the lake, he could only answer, "More than 200 feet deep." Now he gives specific answers. Thus the recent research cruises were invaluable in learning more about the lake.

Dr. Dowling suggested several gains:

"The trip was of a reconnaissance nature," he commented. "It provided valuable information, but also identified interesting questions to be pursued, such as the distribution of faults in the bed rock.

"And it did provide much practical information of the type engineers require for any activity on the lake, such as the laying of cables.

"But to both Dr. Hunt and me, the educational aspect was equally important. Our students had an opportunity to work and study together. And I'm sure they saw clearly the accomplishments that can result when scientists of different background, such as Dr. Hunt and I, combine their knowledge and work together."

Engineers— Be Creative

Science and Engineering students have an opportunity to be rewarded for creative thinking. The engineering school bulletin board has flyers posted containing details on an energy storage contest.

Possible ideas, rather than completed plans, are eligible for prizes of $25.00, $50.00, and $100.00 U.S. Savings Bonds.

...contest rules, write to: Friedman Energy Council, 6031 St. Clair Ave., Cleveland, Ohio 44103. State how many copies wanted. Good luck.

...peakers ...tested ...ot ...r.

...Syncom computer ...ure Studiocraft sends ...sound everywhere— ...you're in a chair, ...he table, or on the ...

...ocraft Syncom II™— ...peakers. ...give you a big electric ...

...ifi

Student Lobby Fights For Youth-Fares

Throughout the fall the National Student Lobby, a four year old federation of individual students and student governments headquartered in Washington, D.C., will fight for adoption of Congressional legislation insuring a national air transportation policy that will benefit students.

Arthur Rodbell, Executive Director of the National Student Lobby, announced that NSL's lobbying strategy will center around the passage of two bills by Congress, S.1739 and S.2651. Both bills appear to have excellent chances of passage before Congress adjourns for the November elections.

One of these bills, S.2651, would overturn a decision made two years ago by the Civil Aeronautics Board prohibiting the scheduled airlines from offering the so-called "youth-fares." Due to NSL's massive lobbying effort, S.2651 was unanimously passed by the Senate in November of 1973, and is due to come up for hearings before the House Subcommittee on Transportation and Aeronautics as the Subcommittee's next order of business. S.2651 would reinstate discount fares on a standby basis for youth under 22, senior citizens over 65, and handicapped persons.

The second bill, S.1739, would liberalize the conditions under which U.S. airlines may offer inclusive tour charters (ITCs) to the public. Restrictions would be removed which now prohibit airlines from offering the lowest possible prices and the greatest selection of packages to the travelling public.

"Students stand to gain in different ways from each of these bills," Rodbell said. "According to the U.S. Office of Education, 1.6 million students commute 500 miles or more between their homes and school. The cost of air travel is no small component in the overall cost of obtaining a post-secondary education in the 1970's. When travel costs suddenly and dramatically increase, an extreme burden is imposed upon the student, the student's family, and in some cases the student cannot complete his/her education because of the financial hardship."

S.2651, which would allow the student with a flexible time schedule to travel standby at a reduced price, could save students as a whole an amount approaching 100 million dollars annually. Passage of S.1739 would provide the student a greatly expanded opportunity to travel by group charter, and save in many cases more than half of what would be the current costs of their travel.

Letters are needed now from students who care about the prohibitive cost of air travel. Write your Representative (c/o House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515) expressing your support for the passage of S.2651, and to your two Senators (c/o U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510) stating complete support for S.1739.

Fact Sheet on S.2651 and S.1739

S.2651 reinstates airfare discounts on a standby basis for youth under 22, senior citizens over 65, and the handicapped. The National Student Lobby believes that there exists a host of altogether justifiable reasons for treating these groups as separate and distinct classes of passengers, and that reduced space-available fares for these classes are called for on the basis of:

(1) the especially flexible time schedules and unique travelling habits of youths and senior citizens;

(2) the lower median income of the youth and senior citizens; and

(3) the economic benefits which the air carriers can derive from properly administered standby discounts.

Standby fares are designed to attract passengers who have more time than money, and who are not usually restricted by rigid travel schedules.

The regular schedule for the Catamount Den this fall is the same:

Sunday	2:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.
Monday – Friday	7:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.
Saturday	Closed

Billings Center regular schedule has been changed as of August 23. The following is the new schedule:

Sunday	2:00 p.m. to 11:30 p.m.
Monday – Friday	7:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. (Midnight on the Fridays that the Billings Center Governing Board schedules a coffee house.)
Saturday	9:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m.

Music Thing

by Michael Thurston

Sounds of the South

These are basic questions we deal with here. Where does the critique travel after we speak of Allman Brothers comparisons? What happens after we discuss the band that released the surprise album of 1973? What can we say after determining Lynyrd Skynyrd as the band chosen to accompany The Who on their Quadrophenia tour? We can either rehash the obvious, or explore a new facet. The former wears itself thin, while the latter runs risks of delving too far. Let's delve anyway.

Al Kooper, producer extraordinaire, began as a session musician. He went on to the much acclaimed, non-commercial Blues Project, did stints with Michael Bloomfield on super session packages, and founded Blood, Sweat, & Tears. As a solo artist, Kooper found a niche of following, that, while far from impressive, managed to pay the bills and attract industry attention. MCA hadn't much stake in the sudden blast of southern bayou ballads, and decided to take a gamble on Kooper to make it happen. MCA instituted a new label, Sounds of the South, Kooper found Lynyrd Skynyrd in an Atlanta club, and the rest is history.

Kooper's influence on Skynyrd is more than coincidental. His experience with improvisational bands, and his ability to pump a commercial riff for all it's worth, is the formula fused for much of Skynyrd's material. The roots of the south remain, pure and unharmed. Whining guitars, roving and rampageous keyboards, coupled with mean, gritty vocals, provide the high end of an atypical, southern, white band, playing black-oriented swamp songs.

News:

New John Lennon album coming up soon, entitled Looking Back, a collection of, guess what?, old rock and roll... new Rollin' Stones album due shortly. The ABC California Jam, billed as ABC's first super-concert netted some 200,000 people, to the tune of 2 million smackers. The entire event is on tape, and will be released for In Concert, as well as a possible movie feature.

Due to the Tremendous Response—

LIPPA'S IS REPEATING BY DEMAND—

EAR PIERCING CLINIC

FRIDAY — SEPT. 13
4 PM to 9 PM

SATURDAY - SEPT. 14
10 AM to 5:30 PM

A registered nurse especially trained in ear piercing and using a precision instrument will be at Lippa's to perform the painless procedure.

FREE EAR PIERCING with the purchase of one pair of earrings at $8.95

JOIN LIPPA'S EARRING CLUB

After your 5th earring purchase, we'll average out the cost of your earrings and give you the sixth pair FREE!

Small Down Payment

Small Weekly Payments

LIPPA'S JEWELERS
46 Church Street Burlington, Vermont
Open Fri. Eve.

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 862-7686

FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS

- Fine work on American cars
- Firestone tires • Exide Batteries
- Front end alignment • Spin balancing
- Undercoating • Engine rebuilding

VW BRAKE JOB $49.95
Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 turn drums, rebuilt 4 wheel cylinders. Discs $10 additional.

VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

royal christy

Burlington's only Specialty Ski Shop

SPECIAL PRE-SEASON SALE
20 - 50% OFF
'73 - '74 EQUIPMENT

SKIIS	WERE	NOW	BOOTS	WERE	NOW
OLIN MARK II	189.	122.00	NORDICA OLYMPIC	185.	92.00
MARK III	175.	131.00	SLALOM	160.	125.
LANGE SL/GS	185.	111.00	PRO	120.	84.
LC	150.	80.00	MERCURY	100.	75.00
DYNASTAR MV²	180.	120.00	ALPINA	45.	30.00
S-730	209.	167.00	LANGE BANSHEE	180.	144.00
S-430	180.	144.00	DEMON	130.	91.00

X-COUNTRY EQUIPMENT
Skilom Lovett Scott
Fisher Aruids

PRE-SEASON SKIERS TUNE-UP

our welt belt sander, the only one in Burlington sharpens edges, repairs & waxes bottoms without the heat and friction buildup conventional sanders produce.
SKI REFINISHING THAT RIVALS A FACTORY REFINISHING WITHOUT SPENDING $20 AND 6 WEEKS BRING YOUR SKIS IN & WATCH OUR WELT BELT WORK WONDERS!

The royal christy
388 Shelburne Rd
located within

MAGRAMS
MAGRAMS
MAGRAMS
MAGRAMS

LEVI'S® CORDS
LEVI'S® CORDS
LEVI'S® CORDS
LEVI'S® CORDS
LEVI'S® CORDS
LEVI'S®

LEVI'S

MENS SHOP
DOWNTOWN BURLINGTON

Exciting new corduroy jeans and jackets that dress up or go casual. You find them all at Magrams Men Shop in a variety of fall '74 colors with famous LEVI'S® fit.

Tuition Rises For In And Out-Of-State Students...

(continued from page one)

this source is not anticipated. Another 25 per cent is federal money, but this is based on present programs. Money from this source is also shaky due to President Ford's campaign to fight inflation which may result in cuts in aid to education. The third quarter comes from miscellaneous sources such as endowments, alumni money, gifts, etc. Not much increase is expected from this source as many people hold on to their money in times of inflation. UVM's last 25 per cent of its income comes from its students in the form of tuition.

As this is the only other source that can produce ample additional income, the trustees had no other choice but to hike tuition rates.

The figures below illustrate the cut out that UVM has implemented.

DISTRIBUTION OF PLANNED EXPENDITURES

	FY 75 ORIGINAL BUDGET	FY 75 REVISED BUDGET
Instruction	$16,070,554	$15,860,724
Operation & Maintenance of Plant	3,861,059	3,784,579
University Support services	4,043,479	3,865,759
Libraries	1,681,486	1,669,936
Student Services	802,548	797,298
Organized Activities, Extension, Athletics	4,287,440	4,258,250
Financial Aid	1,701,212	1,701,212
Total	$32,447,758	$31,937,758

The total amount saved totals $510,000. All aspects of university spending have been reduced except financial aid causing a considerable impact on the university community. The amount cut represents about $510,000 including $100,000 cut in faculty salaries, wages, and fringe benefits. Faculty cost reduction will result in empty positions not being filled and not rehiring some professors. About 30-55 faculty positions will be affected, says Dr. Patterson. Approximately another $100,000 will be cut from the staff and administration budget which in turn will have a pronounced effect on the Burlington economy.

Many feel these reductions can't help but result in a decline in the quality of education. UVM, which already has a high student-professor ratio, will go even higher, while upkeep of the residence halls will deteriorate. Personnel is also stretched very thin at UVM so that some departments are at a minimum staff at the present.

Hope has been expressed by some people that UVM could use the money that is being spent on the underpass. Not so, says Dr. Patterson. The money allocated for the underpass (about $500,000) is bonded money. In other words, the money for the underpass would be raised for only the underpass. Therefore, no underpass, no money.

The one million dollar plus surplus last year will be used by the university to make up the difference between resources and expenditures. This along with the reductions UVM will make this year, will enable UVM to end Fiscal Year '77 at 0. These predictions, however, were made in August and might have to be revised if the economic atmosphere worsens.

As can be seen the surplus from the FY 74 will help the FY 75 (Revised) so that UVM does not finish in the red. The $510,000 in the General Fund Balance for FY 75 (Revised) is the savings UVM will make this year and will equalize the expenditures with the resources in FY 76.

Tuition, (see chart below) is the largest component of the university's resources. Medical Compacts is what other states pay to send their students to UVM's Medical school. Only an insignificant increase will occur. Morill-Nelson/-Bankhead-Jones is a federal program for agriculture students to also receive a liberal arts education. Indirect cost reimbursement is the overhead on federal grants UVM receives. This money depends on how much money Washington gives to education. Annual Giving is gifts and endowments from Alumni. Although it is expected to rise somewhat, the amount present is not enough to make a dent into UVM's financial headache. Temporary investment income is what UVM invests. It takes tuition and other income and invests the amount into Certificates of Deposit. Certificates of Deposit are short-term (30/60/90 days) which yield 12 per cent interest. Since UVM does not have to pay salaries and other costs until a few weeks after college begins it can invest the money at a substantial profit. However, the increase in this source is unstable because it depends on the stock market situation. The stock market is now in a downward slump which will influence UVM's temporary income. A larger rise in Organized Activities profit is also not expected. Sales and Services, Intercollegiate Athletics and other sources will also show only a slight rise. General Funds is the surplus from previous years.

	FY 75 BUDGETED	FY 76 PROJECTED	FY 77 PROJECTED
Tuition and Fees	$14,986,750	$16,109,540	$18,032,442
Medical Compacts	820,000	830,000	830,000
Morrill-Nelson/Bankhead-Jones	200,000	200,000	200,000
Indirect Cost Reimbursement	1,250,000	1,400,000	1,512,000
Annual Giving	241,000	220,000	250,000
Temporary Investment Income	900,000	1,000,000	1,000,000
Organized Activities	513,500	533,000	533,500
Sales and Services	117,500	137,000	137,500
Intercollegiate Athletics	100,000	110,000	110,000
Other Sources	429,856	450,000	470,000
Subtotal	$19,568,606	$21,096,540	$23,176,442
General Funds Available from prior years	1,423,000	$10,000	-0-
Total	$20,991,606	$21,606,540	$23,176,442

These figures represent only the General University Resources.

The economic and financial situation will most probably follow the nation's lead which is not good. UVM has one advantage that many colleges don't have and that is UVM has a full enrollment. This in itself is one of the few optimistic notes that the administration can look forward to in the coming years if applications continue on the same high plane as before.

Why is UVM in this situation? According to Dr. Patterson, a state like Vermont, with only 450,000 population and little industrial base, cannot support a university the size of UVM especially with the large medical school. "The fat must be trimmed," says Dr. Patterson, emphasizing that some programs have to be reduced and others eliminated. Faculty cuts and a reduced student population are also in the making. As the financial situation worsens, everyone connected to UVM will be affected.

Students will have to dig deeper in their pockets. The subsequent rise in college expenses will undoubtedly force some students out of college. Vermont students will be particularly affected considering the low incomes present in Vermont.

Faculty will no longer have secure positions especially if they have low enrollment in their courses or teach courses that can be eliminated without much harm to the quality of education. Only professors who have tenure will have security.

Members of the community who work for UVM will find lay-offs, firings, and reduced hours more common. The $166,000 decrease in wages for staff will also affect the Burlington tax rolls and welfare and unemployment programs.

Fearful pessimism is what UVM's administration is expressing at this point and little relief is expected for the college community.

TOTAL RESOURCES

FY 74 Final (Unaudited)	FY 75 Original	FY 75 Revised	FY 76 Request	FY 77 Request
$49,000,000	$52,577,000	$52,577,000	$57,000,000	$62,000,000

TOTAL EXPENDITURES

FY 74 Final (unaudited)	FY 75 Original	FY 75 Revised	FY 76 Request	FY 77 Request
$47,776,000	$54,000,000	$53,490,000	$57,510,000	$62,000,000

EXCESS RESOURCES (OPERATING DEFICIT)

$1,224,000	$(1,423,000)	$(913,000)	$(510,000)	$ -0-

REQUIRED REAPPROPRIATIONS

$(124,000)

GENERAL FUNDS AVAILABLE FROM PRIOR YEAR

$-323,000	$1,423,000	$1,423,000	$510,000	-0-

GENERAL FUND BALANCE

$1,423,000	$ -0-	$510,000	$ -0-	$ -0-

LOVE IS

Love is a giving thing, so give the gift of love ... a Keepsake diamond ring. Choose from perfect solitaires, beautiful matched sets or his & hers. Modern and traditional settings in precious 14K gold. Keepsake, there is no finer diamond ring.

Keepsake

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING

KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, BOX 90, SYRACUSE, N.Y. 13201

Texas Instruments electronic calculators

SLIDE RULE CALCULATOR

$69.95

TI SR 10

- Performs reciprocals (1/X), squares, square roots.
- Full floating decimal.
- 12-digit display
- Operates on AC or built-in rechargeable batteries . . . AC charger included, carrying case.
- Compact 6.3x3x1.4". Weighs 9 oz.

LAFAYETTE

• 157 Pearl St., Essex Jct.

Welcome Back To School.

E & E TIRE CO.

Complete line of new and retreaded summer or winter tires

All retreads carry new tire warranty at about ½ the price of a new tire!

E & E TIRE CO., INC.
152 RIVERSIDE AVE.
864-7759 BURL.
OFFICIAL VERMONT INSPECTION STATION

"When you've got your faith, you've got just about everything!"

Want to make sure there are more Edmundite Priests and Brothers to keep a good thing going? Write:

Edmundite Admissions Office
Enders Island
Mystic, Connecticut 06355

INDIA IMPORTS

INDIAN IMPORTS
SHORT SLEEVE JERSEYS
TWIN & FULL BEDSPREADS
FLOOR LENGTH SKIRTS
LONG SLEEVE JERSEYS
BEADWORK BELTS
HUNDREDS OF SCARFS
COLORFUL PATCHWORK BLOUSES

ALL AT FACTORY PRICES

CHARLESTOWN MILL STORE
65 MAIN ST
OPEN DAILY 9-9, SATURDAY 9-5

If she doesn't say yes it won't be our fault.

Prices start from under $100

E.J. PRESTON & SON INC.

The following intramural events These dates are subject to change. official change notice, the announced Entry forms are available at the Intram

EVENT
Faculty-Staff Handball (D) Men
Faculty-Staff Racquetball (S) Men
Faculty-Staff Squash Men
Tennis (S) Men
Tennis (S) Women
Touch Football Men
Soccer Men
Faculty-Staff Tennis (S) Men
Faculty-Staff Tennis (S) Women
Co-ed Volleyball
Co-ed Tennis
Handball (S) Men

Women's M

themselves off from men?

"It's like playing golf," says Ms. Delaricheliere. "You can't just take a woman and stick her on the men's tee and expect her to adapt right away. You have to give her

She sees men as already having had a jump on women. "Women are outside the grapevine," she adds. They're not invited to join the Rotary or Kiwanis Clubs where many business deals are discussed and completed.

"We have to have a little bit of separation if we're going to achieve our goals," agrees Ms. Choukas. She adds that the members of the caucus are not "bitter or negative."

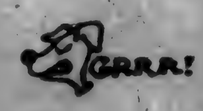
"When you make a remedy for something you have to separate it out of the problem," says Dolores Stocker, one of the founding mothers of the caucus. "Maybe eventually we can get back together. The first thing to do is to grow introspective and find out where we are." She sees the caucus as "just a phase," the start of a process which will bring about the goals of the movement.

The day-care center which the caucus hopes to set up will be for the children of faculty, administrators, staff members and students. It will be more convenient than the one at Fort Ethan Allen, and may be set up on a cooperative basis in order to cut costs.

Delores Stocker is part of the committee assigned to implement the affirmative action law. She reports that UVM is "vastly deficient" in the number of women and minority teachers it employs. Ms. Delaricheliere has a chart listing the academic departments who are "under par," which seems to include almost every one at UVM.

"Right now we're at the equal opportunity stage, one step behind affirmative action," says Ms. Stocker. The committee is doing research into the pool of people available to fill teaching positions in each field, and in many cases the statistics are not available.

Additionally, the fact that all other universities in the country receiving federal aid are simultaneously trying to



Students...

FY 75 Revised	FY 76 Request	FY 77 Request
$52,577,000	$57,000,000	$62,000,000
FY 75 Revised	FY 76 Request	FY 77 Request
$53,490,000	$57,510,000	$62,000,000
ING DEFICIT)
$(913,000)	$(510,000)	$ -0-
FROM PRIOR YEAR
$1,423,000	$510,000	-0-
$510,000	$ -0-	$ -0-

gest component of the ty's resources. Medical ts is what other states end their students to Medical school. Only nificant increase will Morill-Nelson/- d-Jones is a federal for agriculture to also receive a ts education indirect mbursement is the on federal grants ctives. This money on how much money ton gives to . Annual Giving is endowments from

FY 77 PROJECTED
$18,032,442
830,000
200,000
1,512,000
1,000,000
533,100
137,500
110,000
470,000
$23,176,442
-0-$23,176,442

Alumni. Although it is expected to rise somewhat, the amount present is not enough to make a dent into UVM's financial headache. Temporary investment income is what UVM invests. It takes tuition and other income and invests the amount into Certificates of Deposit. Certificates of Deposit are short-term (30/60/90 days) which yield 12 per cent interest. Since UVM does not have to pay salaries and other costs until a few weeks after college begins it can invest the money at a substantial profit. However, the income in this source is unstable because it depends on the stock market situation. The stock market is now in a downward slump which will influence UVM's temporary income. A larger rise in Organized Activities profit is also not expected. Sales and Services, Intercollegiate Athletics and other sources will also show only a slight increase. Transfer is the surplus from previous years.

These figures represent only the General University Resources.

The economic and financial situation will most probably follow the nation's lead which is not good. UVM has one advantage that many colleges don't have and that is UVM has a full enrollment. This in itself is one of the few optimistic notes that the administration can look forward to in the coming years if applications continue on the same high pleas as before.

Why is UVM in this situation? According to Dr. Patterson, a state like Vermont, with only 450,000 population and little industrial base, cannot support a university the size of UVM especially with the large medical school. "The fat must be trimmed," says Dr. Patterson, emphasizing that some programs have to be reduced and others eliminated. Faculty cuts and a reduced student population are also in the making. As the financial situation worsens, everyone connected to UVM will be affected.

Students will have to dig deeper in their pockets. The subsequent rise in college expenses will undoubtedly force some students out of college. Vermont students will be particularly affected considering the low incomes present in Vermont.

Faculty will no longer have secure positions especially if they have low enrollment in their courses or teach courses that can be eliminated without much harm to the quality of education. Only professors who have tenure will have security.

Members of the community who work for UVM will find lay-offs, fringe, and reduced hours more common. The $166,000 decrease in wages for staff will also affect the Burlington tax rolls and welfare and unemployment programs.

Fearful pessimism is what UVM's administration is expressing at this point and little relief is expected for the college community.

Photo by Peter Brady

The following intramural events are open for entries. These dates are subject to change. However, barring an official change notice, the announced dates will be official. Entry forms are available at the Intramural Office, upstairs at Patrick Gym.

The Handball, Racquetball, and Squash events are ladder tournaments. They will end on Dec. 13. Although games begin on Sept. 10, players may enter anytime.

EVENT	ENTRIES OPEN	ENTRIES CLOSE 4:30 P.M.	SCHEDULE BEGINS
Faculty-Staff Handball (D) Men	Sept. 3	Sept. 13	Sept. 17
Faculty-Staff Racquetball (S) Men	Sept. 3	Sept. 13	Sept. 17
Faculty-Staff Squash Men	Sept. 3	Sept. 13	Sept. 17
Tennis (S) Men	Sept. 3	Sept. 13	Sept. 17
Tennis (S) Women	Sept. 3	Sept. 13	Sept. 17
Touch Football Men	Sept. 3	Sept. 13	Sept. 19
Soccer Men	Sept. 3	Sept. 13	Sept. 19
Faculty-Staff Tennis (S) Men	Sept. 4	Sept. 16	Sept. 19
Faculty-Staff Tennis (S) Women	Sept. 4	Sept. 16	Sept. 19
RECREATION INFORMAL PLAY
Co-ed Volleyball	Sept. 9	Sept. 17	Sept. 19
Co-ed Tennis	Sept. 10	Sept. 18	Sept. 23

Women's Movement Goes Slowly

themselves off from men?

"It's like playing golf," says Ms. Delaricheliere. "You can't just take a woman and stick her on the men's tee and expect her to adapt right away. You have to give her some help."

She sees men as already having had a jump on women. "Women are outside the grapevine," she adds. They're not invited to join the Rotary or Kiwanis Clubs where many business deals are discussed and completed.

"We have to have a little bit of separation if we're going to achieve our goals," agrees Ms. Choukas. She adds that the members of the caucus are not "bitter or negative."

"When you make a remedy for something you have to separate it out of the problem," says Dolores Stocker, one of the founding mothers of the caucus. "Maybe eventually we can get back together. The first thing to do is to grow introspective and find out where we are." She sees the caucus as "just a phase," the start of a process which will bring about the goals of the movement.

The day-care center which the caucus hopes to set up will be for the children of faculty, administrators, staff members and students. It will be more convenient than the one at Fort Ethan Allen, and may be set up on a cooperative basis in order to cut costs.

Dolores Stocker is part of the committee assigned to implement the affirmative action law. She reports that UVM is "vastly deficient" in the number of women and minority teachers it employs. Ms. Delaricheliere has a chart listing the academic departments who are under par, which seems to include almost every one at UVM.

"Right now we're at the equal opportunity stage, one step behind affirmative action," says Ms. Stocker. The committee is doing research into the pool of people available to fill teaching positions in each field, and in many cases the statistics are not available.

Additionally, the fact that all other universities in the country receiving federal aid are simultaneously trying to fill their quotas of female and minority professors makes UVM's recruitment job all that more difficult. The university is at a disadvantage since it spends less money on faculty salaries than a lot of other universities.

If UVM does not meet the affirmative action guidelines, its federal aid will be frozen.

The number of qualified women in most fields is very low, and many have trouble surpassing the credentials of the men in their fields. Ms. Stocker claims that this is the result of the discrimination which has always been shown towards women and minority groups, as they have always had a harder time getting things published. Publications are often an important criteria in the hiring and tenuring of faculty. She feels that in order for the university to move into the affirmative action stage, credit should be given for other aspects of a woman's career.

Affirmative action is important not only for the monies at stake, but also, says Ms. Stocker, in order to expose students to influences other than those white and male. Ms. Delaricheliere supports this belief in terms of role models for women. She cites statistics which show that women who have gone to all-girl schools have a higher degree of success than those graduates from coeducational institutions. She believes that the movement should extend into the junior high schools in order to convince girls at that age that there are other careers besides nursing, hairdressing and homemaking that they can go into. "The real success of the women's movement will come when the mediocre woman can make it."

The CORNER BOOKSTORE The CORNER BOOKSTORE The CORNER BOOKSTORE

We can buy and sell Picasso.

But so can anyone who is in the art business or interested in art. We're both. And we want to make you aware of it. We're a complete art shop with supplies, books and ideas. We're a friendly art shop with a knowledgeable staff. Come down and see us sometime. We're in the cellar.

Church and College Streets
Downtown Burlington
658-4554

the corner bookstore

"One-stop shopping for books, stationery and art supplies"

The CORNER BOOKSTORE The CORNER BOOKSTORE

Museum Presents Shows

by Mark Seralnick

The University of Vermont's Fleming Museum, located on Colchester Avenue, will be exhibiting a variety of shows this fall encompassing a number of art disciplines.

Visitors who were turned off last year by the blase appearance of the marble court, with its boorish eighteenth and nineteenth century American and European portraits and tapestries, will find a refreshing and noteworthy change. The court now furnishes pieces by such artists as Robert Rauschenberg, Robert Motherwell, R. Indiana, and Clare Van Wiet. Also on display are the recently acquired pieces bought with the aid of the National Endowment for the Arts. These include works by Ivan Albright and one painting by Frank Hewitt, a member of the art faculty at UVM.

This fall a major exhibition titled "Recycled Architecture" will open September 29, and run through October 25. All galleries will be changing for this event which will examine the theme of how old buildings can be seen in Burlington.

From November 3-24 Meg Walker, a local artist, will have a one woman show titled "Works in Fiber". Tapestries, weavings and wall hangings for architectural spaces will be displayed. Simultaneously two other exhibits, "Contemporary Eskimo Art" and "Art of the Northwest Coast" will be showing.

The final showing, "Vermont Crafts '74" will run from December 3 to January 1, and will feature outstanding examples of work by Vermont craftsmen. This work will also be on sale. Students in the Art Department are planning an exhibit of contemporary Black American artists' work.

With the new marble court and some very interesting exhibits planned for the fall, the Fleming Museum has a good chance of attracting more students. New and returning students should make an effort to visit the museum, and take note of the beautiful ceramics and lithographs in addition to the old American paintings.

Landsberger To Visit UVM

Professor Henry A. Landsberger of the University of North Carolina will be on campus Wednesday, Thursday and Friday (September 18-20) as a guest of the Latin American Studies Program of the Center for Area & International Studies.

His visit has been arranged in co-operation with the Sociology Department. While at UVM Prof. Landsberger will visit classes and meet with students and faculty.

On Thursday he will give a Sociology Colloquium in Dewey Lounge at 3 p.m. entitled "Working Class and Peasant Movements as Examples of Class Mobility." Students and faculty are invited.

Thursday evening at 8 in Memorial Lounge, Prof. Landsberger will give a public lecture: "The Chilean Road to Socialism: Why Did It End?"

Start the Year off on a Bright Note

-PAINT your room, apartment, car, dog, or roommate

To get you started

★ 20% off all supplies with a valid UVM ID

★ free helpful advice-questions welcome

Come see us for everything you need from paint hats to paint

PITTSBURGH® PAINTS

61 Main Street
863-6866

Ad Hoc Committee To Study Women's Athletics At Vermont

by Mike Schwartz

The growing place and role of women's intercollegiate athletics on the college campus is becoming ever apparent. At Vermont, the growth in interest and in participation by women has led to the formation of a fact finding committee.

In June, a faculty-student ad hoc committee was formed on women's intercollegiate athletics. The chairperson is Jackie M. Gribbons, Dean of Women. Other members include a variety of people such as physical education professors, the chairman of the UVM Athletic Council, and students.

Currently the committee is in a fact finding stage in its attempt to submit recommendations to the Vice President for Academic Affairs. All components of the UVM athletic program will be assessed in the study.

One way the committee is seeking to learn about women's athletics is through a random sample questionaire of 150 men and women from each class. One form is just for entering freshmen women to determine their expectations of the UVM women's athletic program. The second form for other students seeks information on familiarity with programs and facilities, participation rates, and opinions on recruiting athletes.

Another information source is interviews with the vast group of experts in the athletic field on campus. Such topics as coaching, recruiting, financial aid, budgeting, discrimination of females, and the role of athletics are being discussed by the committee with these experts. Student expertise in this area will also be interviewed. Ultimately, the question is: what is the place for athletics at the University?

A third way to assess the women and sport is through an analysis of the growing literature and legislation on women's sports. A major legislative piece to analyze is Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. This provision prohibits sexual discrimination in education programs or activities that receive federal financing. As far as athletics is concerned, Title IX seeks to provide equal opportunity for participation by either sex, equal supplies and equipment, but not necessarily equal aggregate expenditures. Recent literature from Sports Illustrated on women's athletics and the New York Times on recruiting practices, add further opinion to the vast

(continued on page twenty)

Becoming a physician is a tremendous satisfaction.
Let us give you the job satisfaction that should go with it.

Whether you're still in medical school with the rigors of three to five years of graduate medical education still to be faced, or are already a practicing physician, it's our opinion that the Air Force can offer both professional and personal satisfaction hard to duplicate in civilian life.

An overstatement? Not if you consider the specifics.

Take the problem of graduate medical education. It's a period of your life the Air Force can make considerably easier with comfortable salary and living conditions.

Creature comforts aside, the Air Force offers professional advantages. Besides receiving training in your own specialty, you'd be in contact with physicians in all of the medical specialties. You'll function in an environment which is intellectually stimulating and professionally challenging.

Not all physicians pursue post residency fellowships. But if you are interested, the Air Force conducts them both in-house and at civilian institutions.

The physician already in practice can look forward to other things. If your truest training is the practice of the medicine of the future, you'll find it in the Air Force. For example, there's emphasis on group medicine and preventive medicine, and the growing specialty of "family practice." Whatever your interest, there are few specialties which are not being practiced in today's Air Force.

The physician starting his practice in civilian life has to take into account the cost of setting up an office. The physician commencing his practice in the Air Force does not. He finds his office established for him. Supplies and equipment readily available. He has many options available to him when treating patients. For example, he can consult with Air Force specialists. He also has referral to other Air Force facilities via aeromedical evacuation. Last, but not least, are the satisfactions that come with having the opportunity for regular follow-ups, and a utilized appointment rate that is practically nil.

Whether you are already a physician, or soon to become one, you might find it extremely interesting to find out what the Air Force has to offer. We think it could be a real eye-opener. If you'll mail in the coupon, we'd be happy to send you detailed information.

Air Force Opportunities, P.O. Box AF, Peoria, Ill. 61614 CC04-04

Please send me information on the Air Force Physician Program. I understand there is no obligation.

Name (Please Print) Son (M) (F)

Address

City

State Zip Code Date of Birth

Health Care at its best. Air Force.

X-Country Starts Season

Vermont's cross country team, led by captain Mike Berry, opened its season last Saturday (September 7) with the annual A.T. Post five-mile run at UVM. Vermont captured the team title, with Green Mountain Athletic Association's Jon Dimick winning the individual championship. Dimick is a former UVM runner. The Catamount harriers, coached by Bill Nedde eye their opener September 21, at Maine. With everyone back from its 1973 squad, which finished third in the Conference run, Nedde is anxious for the season to unfold.

******

Anyone interested in Varsity golf tryouts must sign in the athletic office c/o Bernie Handy -- room 204.

FROM THE BACKSIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN
R.A. COONER
Playing second fiddle to no one
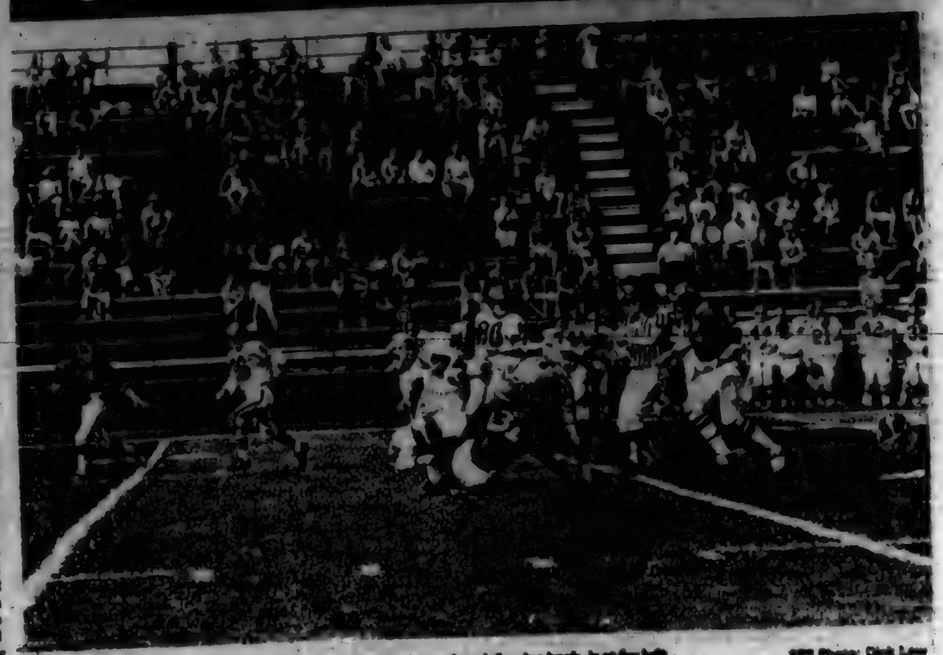
COLORFUL INTERLUDES ON GUITAR & piano for instruction or advice call 899-3690 or send carrier pidgeon

UVM SPORTS



Steve Ernst (31) makes a tackle for UVM. Gary Gotfried, another defensive back, is at far left. SFS Photo: Dick Law

SLU Beats UVM in Preseason Game

by Mike Schwartz

In contrast to the beautiful weather last Saturday at Centennial field, the UVM football club sputtered around and lost a controlled scrimmage to St. Lawrence by a score of 9-0. In a game where punts were not returned and kickoffs eliminated, the prospects for Vermont football were clearly seen. The offense doesn't know what the word offense means while the defense held the opponents off for as long as they could.

The first quarter ended with no scoring. On their first possession, UVM passed midfield but nothing was generated. A 10 yard run by Mike McAllister was the best [illegible] for a 24 yard movement up field. As the period ended, St. Lawrence started the game's only touchdown drive. Beginning on their own 28, SLU made midfield on a pass interference by UVM's Duke Snodgrass. Dick Klingman and John Wipfler then ran the ball into UVM territory.

When the second quater began, Klingman ran two yards on a fourth down to the UVM 20. Then on 2nd and 13, Earl Scott, a freshman quarterback, passed 23 yards into the left corner of the endzone to Joe Kotloski. It was Scott's only completion for the day. The extra point made it 7-0.

Towards the end of the first half, UVM made a move with John Margarita at quarterback. George Brunst and Phil Vrana led a defensive charge that pinned SLU. UVM started a drive at the SLU 43 after the strong defensive showing. Margarita passed 12 yards to Greg Sorrentino, a good freshman running back. Mike Gross ran to the 24 but on fourth down, a pass intended for another freshman was incomplete.

The second half provided less offense than the first. It was basically four downs and punt. What hurt Vermont was that they always got the ball deep in their own territory while SLU operated from midfield. On one such occasion in the fourth period, UVM took over on their own 2. On third down from the 3, Margarita was tackled in the end zone by Kelley Dempsey. The score became 9-0 and remained that way.

The second half also saw many UVM turnovers. After the safety and a few exchanges, UVM had the ball around midfield. But on second down from the SLU 39, Margarita threw an interception.

Quickly, UVM recovered a fumble and had the ball on the SLU 27. A 14 yard run by freshman Mike Gross was nullified by offside. A pass to Sorrentino did get them back to the SLU 14 yard line. Then [illegible] Margarita handed off to the wrong guy, Ron Pelligra of SLU. That ended any chance for UVM to score in the game.

The only praise for the game goes to the defense. The front four constantly hounded Scott and sacked him on many occasions. Mike Johns, Dave Alberico, Fred Fournier, Brunst and Vrana all played excellently. Their work made it easier for the line backers and secondary. The only big penetration by SLU all day was their touchdown drive.

In contrast, the offense was inept. The line stands the need for improvement. The backfield was inconsistent except for Sorrentino. Sorr[illegible] Blood and Larry Lockwood, two holdovers, did not play well at all. If you are wondering what happened to Bob Bateman, the starting quarterback, his 2-11 for 25 yards eliminates the need for commentary. Of the six total completions, five were to running backs. Wide receivers Paul Jarry and Frank Pancoast spent more time relaying the plays from the bench than getting open on pass patterns. Coach Falivene experimented with many freshmen at wing back and tightend.

For the game, five turnovers, only 149 yards gained with nine first downs and little protection by the [illegible] The leading rusher, because he could not find a receiver, was Margarita with 29 yards. Among the freshmen, only Sorrentino played effectively. One frosh, Marty McClean committed a fumble and a few procedure penalties at the wing back position.

So, this Saturday, the Cats play Norwich and anything can happen. A Norwich win would not be much of an upset, judging by the performance seen last Saturday. But then again, the spirit of the rivalry and the interest in the state can make any team sky-high. We will just have to wait and see.

Women's Field Hockey Schedule

September 20 – at Johnson St. "A"	4:00 p.m.
September 24 – at Castleton "A" and "B"	3:00 p.m.
September 27 – Green Mountain "B"	3:30 p.m.
October 2 – at Dartmouth "A" and "B"	3:00 p.m.
October 4 – Bridgewater	3:00 p.m.
October 6 – Oneonta	3:30 p.m.
October 10 – Plymouth St.	3:30 p.m.
October 16 – at Plattsburgh St.	3:30 p.m.
October 18 – Vermont College	3:30 p.m.
October 23 – Middlebury "A" and "B"	3:30 p.m.
November 2-3 – Collegiate Tournament

MADMAN MURRAY SAYS
3 cheers for fav $AVINGS
THOUSANDS OF RECORDS TO CHOOSE FROM!
ROCK-COUNTRY WESTERN-JAZZ-EASY LISTENING-CLASSICAL GREAT NAMES LIKE

ONLY $1.99 each
1000's of 8-TRACKS & CASSETTES only $2.91 ea.
MADMAN MURRAY'S
CHURCH ST. & MECHANICS LANE (Behind Gover's) BURLINGTON

BEVERAGE WAREHOUSE

September supper at Flynn Ground
175 King St. Burlington
Mon - Thurs 11:30 a.m. - 10 p.m.
Fri - Sat 11:30 a.m. - mid-night

M	T	W	Th	F	S
closed	Eggplant 1.35 Parmigiana; Navy Bean Soup	Enchiladas 1.85 Mushroom Barley soup	Chicken Teriaki 2.25 Lentil soup	Lasagna 1.75 Chicken Gumbo Creole	Salisbury Steak 1.95 Maryland Corn Chowder
Sept 8	Sept 9	Sept 10	Sept 11	Sept 12	Sept 13
Chicken Tetrazzini 1.85 Sugar Mexicana	Beef Pizziola Americana 1.95 Cream of Spinach	Marinyakki 1.50 Cucumber French Onion Soup	Curry Chicken or Tofu 1.85 Potage Bonne	Crepe Cheese-ignon 1.60 Navy Bean Soup	Barbequed meat balls 1.95 Minestrone Soup
Sept 15	Sept 16	Sept 17	Sept 18	Sept 19	Sept 20
Crepe 1.95 Parmigiana	Yankee Pot Roast 2.20	Stuffed Eggplant 1.85	Chicken Oriental 2.25	Ratatouille de Sole 2.25	Sweet & Sour Pork or Tofu 1.85
Cochise Lobster soup	Pride of Naples Soup	Peanut Barley Soup	Cream of Carrot Soup	American Cowboy Broccoli	Cream of Tomato Soup
Sept 22	Sept 23	Sept 24	Sept 25	Sept 26	Sept 27
Stuffed 1.95 Peppers	Manicotti 1.85	Chinese Beef & Bean Pan	Eggplant 1.85 Rollatini	Cinnamon 2.25 Chicken	Marinyakki Cucumber 1.50
Chicken Gumbo Gold Soup	Minestrone Fish Soup	Pasta e Piselle Soup	Dutch Pea Soup	Magic Mice Soup	Cream of Celery Soup

Plus Evening Menu - Chile Con Carne, Enchilada, Tostada, hot & cold Sandwiches, Assorted dishes, pastries & a variety of hot & cold Beverages

Rugby Team Starts Practi

The UVM Rugby Team [illegible] its sixth season with [illegible] September 6 and is [illegible] to improve on last fall's [illegible] of six wins and two [illegible]. Returning to coach and [illegible] the team after a year's [illegible] of absence will be David [illegible]. Serson is a professor of [illegible] at UVM and [illegible] had coached at [illegible] in 1970 when they [illegible] the Big Ten Rugby [illegible]. Assisting Mr. [illegible] will be Robert [illegible] and James [illegible] who served as last [illegible]'s interim coach.

The general outlook for [illegible] team is that it will be a [illegible] year due to the [illegible] of ten of the [illegible] A-team members. [illegible] will also be faced with a [illegible] upgraded schedule: [illegible] in this season [illegible] will be two Yankee [illegible] teams, the [illegible] of New Hampshire [illegible] the University of Rhode [illegible]; New England rugby [illegible] Dartmouth and [illegible]; and Quebec's two [illegible] rugby teams: [illegible]rmont of Montreal and [illegible] Montreal Irish. All [illegible] scheduled this year [illegible] include both an A and a B [illegible].

Anyone who is [illegible] in playing is invited [illegible] team. No previous [illegible] is required and all [illegible] guaranteed to play. [illegible] held Tuesday, Wed[illegible] Thursday at 4:30 on [illegible] Post Field across [illegible] Patterson Field H[illegible] rugby team will t[illegible] Julie Quebec thi[illegible] where they have [illegible] entered in the Mo[illegible] Rugby Tournamen[illegible]

SCHEDU[illegible]
Sept. 14 – Mo[illegible] Rugby Tournamen[illegible]
Sept. 15 – Mo[illegible] seven-a-side Tournamen[illegible]
*Sept. 22 – Unive[illegible] Hampshire
Sept. 25 – Norwi[illegible]
Sept. 28 – Keene [illegible]
Oct. 5 – Albany [illegible]
Oct. 12 – We[illegible] Montreal
Oct. 13 – McGi[illegible]
Oct. 19 – Rhode [illegible]
Oct. 26 – Co[illegible] Hampshire
Nov. 2 – Montreal
Nov. 9 – Dartmou[illegible]
*Game played [illegible] New Hampshire

All home gam[illegible] the Archie Post[illegible] begin at 2 p.m.

Norwich-UVM Gam[illegible] This Satu[illegible]

The biggest crowd since the Vermont-Massachusetts football game, October 29, 1966, is expected at UVM's Centennial Field this Saturday (September 14) as the Norwich Cadets visit the Catamounts in a renewal of a rivalry that dates back to 1897. The Massachusetts game drew 10,000 fans. Vermont last played Norwich in 1968, winning the game, 20-7. Vermont leads the overall series, 39-15-6. The last Norwich victory was in 1958. The Cadets have lost the last nine games. Kickoff is set for 1 p.m.

"We are very anxious for victory for us, t[illegible] understand N[illegible] Norwich is and h[illegible] are. Sabol (Jo[illegible] head coach) has[illegible] best club ever at[illegible] we are a very y[illegible] team. While No[illegible] 14 starters, we h[illegible] back from last fa[illegible] "Despite th[illegible] are in a rebuil[illegible] (only five sen[illegible] Norwich will h[illegible] been in a gam[illegible] leave Saturday [illegible] great thing [illegible] football, parti[illegible] state of Vermo[illegible] the most talke[illegible] recent years[illegible]

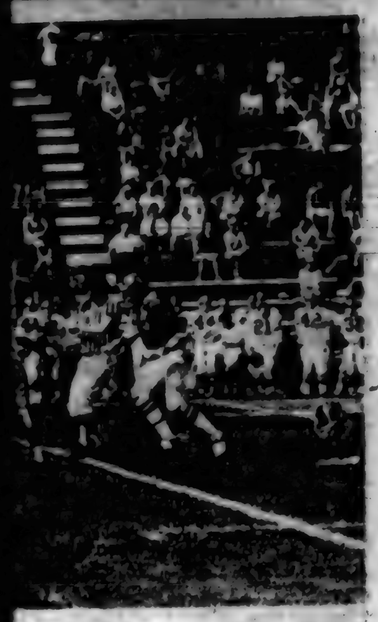
"This finest small college teams in New England this year," said Falivene. "Although fans are expecting a buried Norw[illegible] week be[illegible]

(continued on

REEL TO[illegible] OR CAS[illegible] TE[illegible]
The leader. Alwa[illegible]
HAS A M[illegible] FOR YO[illegible]

AU[illegible]
100 DORSEY
South Burling[illegible]
Phone 863-4[illegible]

ORTS



...h, last for left. SPS Photo: Dick Low

...eseason Game

...over on their own ...down from the 3, ...was tackled in the ...by Kelley Dempsey, ...became 9-0 and ...last way.

...ond half also saw ...d turnovers. After ...y and a few ...UVM had the ball ...dfield. But on ...n from the SLU ...arita threw an ...

..., UVM recovered a ...had the ball on the ...14 yard run by ...Mike Grow was ...offside. A pass to ...did get them back ...10 yard line. There ...

...handed off to his ...y, Ron Pelligra of ...t ended any chance ...to score in the game. ...only praise for the ...to the defense. The ...constantly hounded ...sacked him on many ... Mike Johns, Dave ..., Fred Fournier, ...d Vrana all played ...y. Their work made ...or the line backers ...dary. The only big ...n by SLU all day ...touchdown drive. ...atmet, "the offense ... The line stands the ...or improvement. ...orld was inconsistent ...y. Interesting, four ...

Blood and Larry Lockwood, two holdovers, did not play well at all. If you are wondering what happened to Bob Beteman, the starting quarterback, his 2-11 for 25 yards eliminates the need for commentary. Of the six total completions, five were to running backs. Wide receivers Paul Jarry and Frank Pancoast spent more time relaying the plays from the bench than getting open on pass patterns. Coach Fallveco experimented with many freshmen at wing back and tightend.

For the game, five turnovers, only 149 yards gained with nine first downs and little protection by the ... The leading rusher, because he could not find a receiver, was Margarita with 29 yards. Among the freshmen, only Sorrentino played effectively. One frosh, Marty McClean committed a fumble and a few procedure penalties at the wing back position.

So, this Saturday, the Cats play Norwich and anything can happen. A Norwich win would not be much of an upset, judging by the performance seen last Saturday. But then again, the spirit of the rivalry and the interest in the state can make any team sky-high. We will just have to wait and see.

...en's Field Hockey Schedule

...r 20 – at Johnson St. "A"	4:00 p.m.
...r 24 – at Castleton "A" and "B"	3:00 p.m.
...r 27 – Green Mountain "B"	3:30 p.m.
... – at Dartmouth "A" and "B"	3:00 p.m.
... – Bridgewater	3:00 p.m.
... – Lyndon	3:00 p.m.
...0 – Plymouth St.	3:30 p.m.
...6 – at Plattsburgh St.	3:30 p.m.
...8 – Vermont College	3:30 p.m.
...23 – Middlebury "A" and "B"	3:30 p.m.
...r 2-3 – Collegiate Tournament

...ugby Team Starts Practice

...UVM Rugby Team ...its sixth season with ...September 6 and is ...to improve on last fall's ...of six wins and two ...Returning to coach and ...the team after a year's ...absence will be David ...Scraws is a professor of ... at UVM and ...dy had coached at ... in 1970 when they ...the Big Ten Rugby ...ions. Assisting Mr. ... will be Robert ...ester and James ...n who served as last ...interim coach.

...general outlook for ...m is that it will be a ...ng year due to the ...sion of ten of the ... A-team members. ...ill also be faced with a ...y upgraded schedule: ...d in this season ...de will be two Yankee ...rence teams, the ...rsity of New Hampshire ...e University of Rhode ...; New England rugby ...s Dartmouth and ...ch; and Quebec's two ... rugby teams: ...ncent of Montreal and ... Montreal Irish. All ...es scheduled this year ...clude both an A and a B ...

Anyone who is interested in playing is invited to join the team. No previous experience is required and all players are guaranteed to play. Practice is held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 4:30 at the Archie Post Field across from the Patterson Field House. The rugby team will travel to St. Julie Quebec this Saturday where they have two teams entered in the Montreal Irish Rugby Tournament.

SCHEDULE

Sept. 14 – Montreal Irish Rugby Tournament
Sept. 15 – Montreal Irish seven-a-side Rugby Tournament
*Sept. 22 – University of New Hampshire
Sept. 25 – Norwich
Sept. 28 – Keene State
Oct. 5 – Albany Law School
Oct. 12 – Westmount of Montreal
Oct. 13 – McGill University
*Oct. 19 – Rhode Island
Oct. 26 – Concord New Hampshire
Nov. 2 – Montreal Irish
Nov. 9 – Dartmouth
*Game played at Hanover, New Hampshire

All home games played at the Archie Post Field will begin at 2 p.m.

...orwich-UVM Game This Saturday

...he biggest crowd since ... Vermont-Massachusetts ...ball game, October 29, ..., is expected at UVM's ...ennial Field this Saturday ...tember 14) as the ...vich Cadets visit the ...mounts in a renewal of a ...ry that dates back to ... The Massachusetts game ... 10,000 fans. Vermont ...played Norwich in 1968, ...ing the game, 20-7. ...mont leads the overall ..., 39-15-6. The last ...vich victory was in 1958. ... Cadets have lost the last ... games. Kickoff is set for 1 ...

..."We are very anxious for ... ...the finest small college teams ...e New England this year," ...d Fallveco. "Although ...y fans are expecting a ... victory for us, they just don't understand how tough Norwich is and how young we are. Sabol (Joe, Norwich's head coach) has probably his best club ever at Norwich and we are a very young football team. While Norwich returns 14 starters, we have only nine back from last fall."

"Despite the fact that we are in a rebuilding program (only five seniors starting), Norwich will know they have been in a game when they leave Saturday. This game is a great thing for college football, particularly in the state of Vermont. It has to be the most talked about game in recent years," concluded buried Norwich, 43-0, the week before that

(continued on page twenty)

SCHWARTZ ON SPORTS

by Mike Schwartz

This Saturday marks the beginning of another football season. Football fans around the country and in New England, where the fall weather comes early, wait with anticipation at the college results. For UVM, the game against Norwich could go a long way in deciding how far the Cats will progress through their schedule. It will also decide the feasibility of an intra-state football series. As of now, the key to the Vermont season seems to be revamping the offensive line, replacing splitend Tony Jones, and keeping the second ranked Yankee Conference defense strong.

As this season starts, the first controversy concerning Vermont sports has already hit area newspapers. The question centers upon recruiting practices at UVM. In essence, do Vermont teams recruit enough, let alone express sufficient interest in, Vermont high school athletes? It seems that Vermont high school coaches are complaining that UVM basketball and football do not consider their athletes. Therefore, they lose them to out of state colleges.

Recruiting is a big issue, but as far as this aspect is concerned I believe that the coaches have a bigger problem to handle. As far as Vermont recruiting, as anyone can deduce, and as Coach Pete Salzberg of the basketball team has explained to me on several occasions, the Vermont population does not support superior competition. If you want the better talent, even at a small school, you must recruit from the centers of competitive action. Thus, the basketball team looks to the New York City area, Albany, and, if funds allow, to Washington and Philadelphia. Similarly, the football team will try to find talent from New Jersey or Ohio.

In both cases, the Vermont athlete is given his chance. In football, Vermont will still get a Billy Looker or a Mike McCallister while basketball will try to find a player like George Ferody who developed into a better than average player during his years of varsity competition.

And as the Vermont schoolboy hockey program grows, it can be expected that these hockey players will get their chance. It was funny to read articles about this controversy, and yet hockey was overlooked (it does help to be a winning team!). For in the end, the major reason Vermont has not been the dominant Yankee Conference team (while UMass and UConn are) is that the state population and the total student body size offer a smaller home base of talent to choose from.

What is more important to consider among these high school and college coaches is the practice of professional raiding of undergradustes. At first there was the hardship draft to allow undergradustes to play before they graduated. Now money is making Moses Malone skip college and go to the pros with a bribing clause of 30,000 dollars for every year of college he might finish (and since his grades were not even C in high school he probably lacks the attitude to go to school in the off-season). No matter what his athletic ability, Malone lacks mental maturity and needs to polish off his physical skills to become a star at the professional level. Publicity has also hurt Malone and also brings out the practices colleges go through to get an athlete (like the hotel bills of recruiters who stayed in Malone's town for 60 straight days).

(continued on page twenty)

Pearl St. MOBIL

281 Pearl St.

862-3333

Complete Auto Repairs
(American & Foreign)

STUDENT SPECIAL

LAST MONTH WAS OUR 9.95 TUNE UPS

THIS MONTH

LUBE, OIL CHANGE, FILTER

$9.95

A $14.00 VALUE

Be Sure to Mention our "STUDENT SPECIAL"

REEL TO REEL OR CASSETTE

TEAC

The leader. Always has been.

HAS A MODEL FOR YOU.

3340S : For the 4-head mind.

The TEAC 4-channel 3340S offers just about every creative feature of a professional recording studio. With the 3340S Sound-Sync* and an accessory add-on panel, you can overdub, sweeten, edit and stack tracks. And wind up with 4 discrete channels containing 8 tracks of far more than live performance. Four mic and four line inputs with full mixing, 10½" reels, full remote capability, and much more. Go creative with a true professional — the 3340S.

AUDIO DEN

100 DORSET ST. South Burlington Phone 863-4396 & 50 MAIN STREET Middlebury Phone 388-6788

"In Person Tonight . . . ."

THERE'S NOTHING BETTER THAN HEARING A LIVE PERFORMANCE! WHETHER IT'S A SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA OR JUST AN IMPROVISED GATHERING, IT STILL SOUNDS GREAT. THE THRILL OF LIVE MUSIC JUST CAN'T BE DUPLICATED. WE, PERHAPS MORE THAN ANYONE ELSE KNOW THIS, YET STRIVE CONSTANTLY TO OFFER EQUIPMENT THAT COMES CLOSER TO THE NATURAL EXPERIENCE OF BEING THERE . . . . LIVE! WE HAVE PUT A SYSTEM TOGETHER, AT A BUDGET PRICE, THAT WE THINK COMES CLOSER TO THE REAL THING THAN MANY THAT COST LOTS MORE.

THE HEART is a PIONEER SX535

PIONEER

As you can see the front isn't loaded with unnecessary gadgets. It's simple, functional, absolutely utilitarian. The amplifier has 22 watts per channel with less than 8 per cent distortion. The tuner section has a sensitivity of 1.9 micro volts and a capture ratio of 1dB.

THE RIGHT ARM is a DUAL 1225 turntable, coupled with a SHURE M91E stereo cartridge.

Dual

THE DUAL gives you high performance with its low mass counter balanced tone arm, it can track as low as 1¼ grams, and has a separate antiskate control with calibration for conical, elliptical, and CD-4 Style.

THE SHURE cartridge is one of the best made. Used in conjunction with the DUAL 1225 you will be playing records with the same precision that they were pressed with.

THE SOUL and spirit of a live performance is virtually captured with EPICURE MODEL 100 speaker systems. They are extremely accurate, have excellent dispersion with minimum distortion.

Anything we might add about these speakers would certainly be an understatement.

Come to AUDIO DEN and audition this fine system.

Model 100

EPICURE
A STEP CLOSER TO REALITY

$599.00

SAVE OVER $100.00

2 Locations
1. 100 DORSET ST., SO. BURLINGTON
PHONE 863-4396
OPEN: Mon.-Fri. 9 am to 9 pm, Sat. 10-5:30
2. 50 MAIN ST., MIDDLEBURY
PHONE 388-6788

AUDIO DEN

SIS Photo: Lew Cincotti

Bruce Ciampanelli, new UVM Lacrosse Coach. Bruce is a former All-American attackman (Cortland State) and will assume all responsibilities as head coach on December 1. A native Long Islander, Bruce has considerable coaching experience and has played professionally for Rochester of the World Lacrosse League.

Big Game This Week ...

(continued from page nineteen)

Massachusetts game, and that game began the talk of the eventual demise of the Vermont-Norwich rivalry. But, that was 1966. Now, the sports talk in Vermont is Norwich-Vermont, September 14, at Centennial Field.

Vermont's squad, now 71 players, is the biggest squad (in numbers) ever to begin a season at Vermont. "We are extremely happy that we have so much interest and desire in the underclassmen. It's vital in our rebuilding program," said Falivene. The Catamount squad lists 30 players from the freshman class; 19 in the sophomore class; 13 in the junior class and only nine are seniors. Looking ahead to Saturday, Falivene expects that five seniors, three on offense (guard and captain Bob Weiler, fullback Mike McAllister and left tackle Chris Henry) and two on defense (cornerback Carl Cincotta and end Mike Johns), will be in the starting lineup. Eight sophomores, seven juniors and one freshman are probable starters. The only freshmen definitely a starter is middle guard, Tony Kurnick.

According to Ed Bartlett, Athletic Business Manager, there are a few reserve seats left for the Norwich game. General admission tickets for the Norwich game Saturday will go on sale at 12 noon at Centennial Field, an hour before game time.

Athletic Committee...

(continued from page eighteen)

support area.

By the end of this semester all of this information will be processed and compared. As Ms. Gribbons describes the situation, the recommendations will be based on soundness both philosophically and pragmatically. Through the ad-hoc committee, our knowledge of this important subject should be increased as recommendations come forward. At Vermont, the role of women and sports is getting a long look.

New Coaches

Cochran's Join Skiing

Besides the action on the field, there have been a few coaching changes at Vermont these past few weeks. These changes affect the basketball and ski teams.

In basketball, assistant coach Mike Brown has accepted an assistant coach's job at the University of Cincinnati. Much of his duties will involve recruiting in the northeast as he steps up a notch to a major basketball power. Cincinnati has produced the likes of Oscar Robertson and former New York Net Jim Ard.

In skiing, Barbara Cochran who won the gold medal in the slalom at the 1972 Olympics will be the coach of the women's Alpine Ski Team. Instead of returning to international competition, Ms. Cochran will stay close to her home in Richmond by coaching the women.

Meanwhile, her father Mickey Cochran returns to help coach the men's alpine team and former world class jumper, Jay Rand will help the jumping team to its quest for top honors in the east and in the NCAA. These appointments round out a superb coaching array headed by Chip Lacoste.

Griffin - Basketball

A new assistant basketball coach has been named to the University of Vermont staff, it was announced September 5 by Ernie Lambert, Director of Athletics.

Mike Griffin, 30, has been appointed an assistant to head coach Peter Salzberg. Griffin, a graduate of Columbia, comes to Vermont from Columbia, where he served as an assistant for four years. He had previously been freshman coach at RPI for three years.

"I'm very optimistic about this season, after watching films from last year," said Griffin. "I'm excited about recruiting for Vermont, as I think we have a lot to offer a high school prospect."

Griffin will head up the recruiting program, scout future opponents and coach the JV team which Vermont will field this season.

"Mike Griffin will be a big asset to our basketball program. His years of experience will be invaluable in recruiting and in the development of the players on the squad," said Salzberg.

Griffin replaces Vermont's assistant for the last two years, Mike Brown, who accepted a position as an assistant coach at the University of Cincinnati under head coach Gale Catlett.

Baseball Team Splits DH

The University of Vermont Baseball Club split a doubleheader last Sunday against North Adams State at North Adams. In the first game, two seventh inning errors led to three North Adams runs in a 3-4 loss. Then the Cats took the second game 9-4 behind an eleven hit attack.

In these opening games, the heavy hitters included Jim Edgerton and Gary Niles. In the second game victory, Niles had three hits and two runs batted in while Edgerton had three hits including a three run homer. At press time, a tentative game against St. Michael's was scheduled for Wednesday and a definite doubleheader at Norwich is on tap for Sunday. The line scores:

	FIRST GAME
Vermont	210	010	04	7	2
N. Adams	011	003	05	7	2

W. – Parmenter L. – Segale

	SECOND GAME
Vermont	230	400	0-9	11	0
N. Adams	002	002	0-4	6	4

W. – Kimball L. – Hoyt

Schwartz On Sports...

(continued from page nineteen)

This professional indifference is more important to consider than the petty controversy of Vermont recruiting. It is a problem for all colleges to consider, and even in Vermont, the home state recruiting practices should take a back seat.

RUV

AM 580 Khz 656-3220

FM 90.1 Mhz 656-4399

Organizational

MEETING TONIGHT (Thurs)

7:30 PM B106 Cook

find out about student radio on campus

ON WRUV-AM

UVM FOOTBALL

UVM vs NORWICH

1

1:00 PM this Sat.

brought to you by... UNIVERSITY STORE ON THE CAMPUS

UVM MEN AND WOMEN

HAVE YOU CONSIDERED

ROTC?

Did you believe that by joining ROTC you were obligating yourself to military service?
Not so! There is no obligation for the first two years of ROTC.
Sophomores: Did you believe that it is too late to join ROTC?
Not so! Investigate our compression program or two year program.

Courses In Military Affairs?

Did you believe that the Department of Military Studies offered courses only to ROTC cadets?
Not so! Many non-ROTC students enroll in our courses.

HERE IS SOME OF WHAT WE OFFER

–CHALLENGING LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCES –Interesting courses
–Opportunity to Become an Army Officer
–Full Tuition Scholarships
–Civilian Career Enhancement
–$100 per month for approximately 10 months (for Juniors and Seniors)
–Extracurricular Activities (Pershing Rifles; Co-ed Athletic Pershing Rifles)
–Flight Instruction (for Seniors)
–Field Training (Rappelling, Orienteering, Helicopter assaults, Weapons, etc.)

For the ROTC Cadet and Non-ROTC Student (Full Term)
–MS 1 Introduction to Military Studies
–War + Civilization
–Military Theory
–Contemporary Issues

For more information visit the Dept. of Military Studies 3rd floor Williams Hall or call 656-2966/2967

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 17
SEPTEMBER 19, 1974

V

SAGA Direc... Students Use C...

by Bruce Maddern

UVM's Vermont plan has not had too many problems according to Fred Smith, UVM SAGA director. However he did discuss its flaws in a Friday afternoon interview.

Smith termed the biggest flaw a misunderstanding. He said students are holding their coupons instead of using them. Students are trying to make the base plan stretch all semester.

This results in costing the students far more per meal. The plan was designed so that the base plan would last for 40% of the meals, and then extra coupons would have to be bought for the remainder of the semester. The effect of not using extra coupons increases the cost of meals by 50% (base plan coupons are 59½ cents. Smith said that much of the misunderstanding was in the freshman class.

He also... meals are ... cafeteria. ... Walter's lo... being heavi...

Smith ... long lines ... Living/Le... the qualit... Rather ha... SAGA ha... now being ... dinner.

He ... coupon ... renewed. ... four cou... and may ... notch.

As ... concerne... make an... extra bo... look go... student ... cut due ... served.

Shanker Tri...

Union Of C...

Albert Shanker will speak at UVM on Sept. 23 at 4:15 p.m., Marsh Life Sciences.

by Phillip W. Semas
From the Chronicle of Higher Education

Albert Shanker, the newly elected president of the American Federation of Teachers (A.F.L.-C.I.O.), declared at the union's annual convention here that organizing college professors "will be a top priority of my administration."

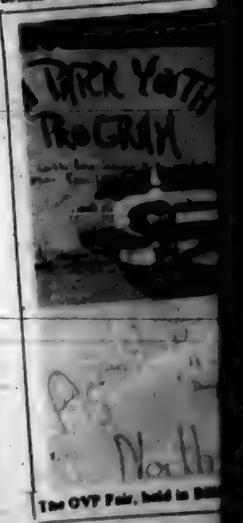
The convention had voted that the A.F.T. should "allocate a larger proportion ... the college, university and postsecondary school level." But because of his domination of the convention, Mr. Shanker's personal commitment was thought to be more important.

At a press conference following an easy victory over incumbent David Selden, Mr. Shanker listed higher education as one of the major areas where the A.F.T. would concentrate its organizing efforts. The union will also give high priority to organizing teachers at all levels in states like California or Florida that have adopted or may adopt laws giving collective bargaining rights to public employees.

"Visibility, Power, and Money"

"Higher education is one of the great areas of organizing that is available to us," he said. College teachers are prime targets for A.F.T.-style unionism, he added, because they now face many of the same problems as other teachers, including financial troubles, loss of jobs, and the new problems in teaching that result from open admissions.

Mr. Shanker promised to "develop a structure with visibility, power, and money" in higher education. He said he would be meeting with campus A.F.T. leaders after the convention to develop the details of that structure and...



The OVP Fair, held in ...

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 17
SEPTEMBER 19, 1974

VERMONT CYNIC

University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont

"It's a Privilege to Live in Vermont"

SAGA Director Claims Students Use Coupons Unwisely

by Bruce Maddern

UVM's Vermont plan has not had too many problems according to Fred Smith, UVM SAGA director. However he did discuss its flaws in a Friday afternoon interview.

Smith termed the biggest flaw a misunderstanding. He said students are hoiding their coupons instead of using them. Students are trying to make the base plan stretch all semester.

This results in costing the students far more per meal. The plan was designed so that the base plan would last for 40% of the meals, and then extra coupons would have to be bought for the remainder of the semester. The effect of not using extra coupons increases the cost of meals by 50% (base plan coupons are 59½ cents. Smith said that much of the misunderstanding was in the freshman class.

He also said that fewer meals are being served in the cafeteries. The Den and Waller's Ice Cream Shoppe are being heavily patronized.

Smith didn't think that the long lines at the Den and Living/Learning reflected on the quality of SAGA's service. Rather he said the quality of SAGA has gone up. Meat is now being served at lunch and dinner.

He mentioned that the coupon prices may be renewed. Basically, brunch at four coupons is not worth it and may be brought down a notch.

As fir as profit is concerned, SAGA does not make anything unless they sell extra books. Prospects don't look good now and some student help will probably be cut due to fewer meals being served.

Many of the little problems, such as long lines, are due to the new help hired for the year. The students and full time help are a little rusty after a long summer.

Specials, like the ala carte line at Harris-Millis are not well attended but if is slowly gaining popularity.

Smith said that he and many students will be looking at the plan continuously throughout the semester. Also SAGA will have a program in L/L (SOUP) which will look at food costs on campus and off campus to help off campus students face rising food prices.

He closed by saying that the Vermont Plan is still very new and that many of the problems won't become evident until later in the semester or at the end of it.

Hilberg Calls For Resignation Of Vice-President Rollins

by Margo Howland

Dr. Raul Hilberg, professor of political science, has called for the resignation of UVM's Academic Vice President, Dr. Alfred B. Rollins.

In an open letter issued last Wednesday, Hilberg charged Rollins with contributing to a "qualitative decline" in the student body by the utilization of secret admission quotas for each undergraduate unit of the University.

Freshman enrollment in the College of Arts and Sciences has been reduced as part of an University-wide cutback, and according to Hilberg's letter, "the out-of-state component of this class has been cut down drastically. Whereas the University as a whole receives more than 40 per cent of its freshmen from other states, the College of Arts and Sciences was allowed barely 30 per cent."

Hilberg, who represented the College of Arts and Sciences on the Policy Committee —known now as the Academic Affairs Committee— wrote the letter after the College of Arts and Sciences was informed Sept. 9 that the University was now operating under a quota system for the admission of out-of-state students into the various colleges.

Hilberg charged further that Rollins had for several years "pushed and supported a wild proliferation and expansion of programs that were clearly headed for academic and financial trouble."

Hilberg feels that if the University and its colleges are to be of service to the people of Vermont, the services won't amount to much unless they are "qualitatively solid." The cost of this must be kept in mind, Hilberg said. He discussed the situation in a recent Cynic interview.

The professor noted:

"A classroom inhabitted by students that are not very well qualified will not be a quality service to the people of Vermont."

"If you are a Vermont parent and you send your child to school here; if you are a Vermont student and you come to school here, your education is a package that consists of the quality of the lecture you receive, the support services made available, and also, first and foremost, the level of the students you converse with."

Therefore, Hilberg reasoned, "the University can be of service only so long as it maintains a reasonably high level of performance in its research and teaching efforts."

According to Hilb problems arise when progra are allowed to expand out of proportion. As the program expands, more faculty are added. Circumstances may cause a drop in student interest and enrollment declines. The program must find a way to attract students. Grade inflation is one way— but Hilberg contends "students are too smart for that."

"You believe in students, don't you?" Hilberg asked. "And if you can't bring them in from in-state you will get them out-of-state." UVM plans under no circumstances to cut their Vermont enrollment, so limitations are therefore put on out-of-state enrollments.

"Now you would expect, if you were a Vermonter, that you would want the best seven hundred out-of-staters. But... if you took the best ones, certain programs would not get very many or would not get any at all. If a college needs one hundred out-of-staters in order to justify its existence, and if, theoretically, one hundred students apply and that's all, then it stands to reason that all one hundred will be accepted. What this leads to in a word, is a differential quality between one group of out-of-staters and another group of out-of-staters, depending upon which college they have applied to and to which they have come. And this is a good way of lowering the standards of the University as a whole," Hilberg explained.

The political science professor also commented on a sentence in a Rutland Herald article that suggested he regarded Vermont students as inferior. In the Rutland Herald Sept. 12, Tom Slayton of the Vermont Press Bureau wrote:

"Implicit in Hilberg's criticism of the 'quota system' was the assumption that Vermont students are substandard in aptitude and intelligence to students from out-of-state."

Hilberg attempted, to set Slayton straight on the situation:

"...I was a bit disturbed by that interpretation. Let me put the matter into my own words, since I intended no such interpretation at all.

"It goes without saying that if theoretically, a college of a university is admitting say, 1000 students and that out of that thousand, nine hundred are Vermonters, and one hundred are chosen from the cream of the crop of those applying from out-of-state, that the one hundred out-of-state will be as a group superior to the Vermonters. Vice versa, if we took only 100 Vermont students, which would be literally scholarship students, and took nine hundred out-of-state students to pay off our bills, it might be easily found that the out-of-state students as a whole are far less prepared, in aptitude and everything else, than the Vermonters." Hilberg believes that a close to 50-50 ratio is the best situation. He also noted that for many Vermonters, UVM is the only available choice, except for the state colleges. Out-of-staters, on the other ahnd, have their own universities as a choice.

Rollins' involvement in the increasing number of faculty and staff receiving tenure also worried Hilberg. The process of determining tenure goes through a chain of various faculty and standards committees. The Academic Vice President is the individual that makes the recommendations to the President who then makes the final decision.

When Hilberg was a member of the Policy Committee, which dealt mainly with reappointment considerations, his committee felt that "those reappointed, especially with tenure, should be in every case solid people." As far as Hilberg was concerned, that also meant that they met at least a minimum standard, to the extent that one could be defined."

The Policy Committee found that while they would recommend some and not others, the administration favored tenure overwhelmingly. Actual quality control was severely limited to just a few colleges.

"We could not understand why, year after year, 90 per cent of those qualified were actually receiving tenure." In fact, Hilberg added, in the College of Education he couldn't recall "one single individual being turned down for tenure, not one!"

UVM is therefore faced with a dilemma, as Hilberg sees it. With more and more faculty being tenured, it will become harder and harder to meet the payroll, with inflation bypassing the projected cost-of-living increases built into the salaries, and with each coming year seeing salary increases "until retirement, some thirty years away. In his view, there is no room for expansion, increases in salaries of tenured faculty will cost money, which will affect the numbers of out-of-state students, which will effect Vermont students...ad infinitum.

Hilberg expressed surprise at a comment attributed to President Andrews in the same Herald article. "He (Andrews) said that a higher percentage of out-of-state students was accepted in the past because of the higher tuition fees they pay, which were needed to balance a sagging budget. Now, the numbers of out-of-state students must be cut back to allow a fair proportion of Vermont students as the growth of the university is maintained," the article said.

"I don't think they should be told to their faces in the press 'we take you when we need your money; we don't take you when we get along without it,' Hilberg declared.

Vice President Rollins has made no direct comments on the situation. A staff member told the Cynic that Rollins feels this matter should be addressed as a policy issue, to be put before the faculty. Therefore, Rollins will present his information at the Faculty Senate meeting today at 4:30 in B-106 Cook. He will include charts and diagrams.

Rollins does not want to deal with this problem in terms of personalities or individuals, but rather in terms of policy issues which deserve discussion and debate, the aide added.

Prof. Raul Hilberg — SPS Photo: Lew Clements

Shanker Tries To Organize Union Of College Professors

Albert Shanker will speak at UVM on Sept. 23 at 4:15 p.m., Marsh Life Sciences.

by Philip W. Seman
From the Chronicle of Higher Education

Albert Shanker, the newly elected president of the American Federation of Teachers (A.F.L.-C.I.O.), declared at the union's annual convention here that organizing college professors "will be a top priority of my administration."

The convention had voted that the A.F.T. should "allocate a larger proportion of its resources to the organization of the college, university and postsecondary school level." But because of his domination of the convention, Mr. Shanker's personal commitment was thought to be more important.

At a press conference following an easy victory over incumbent David Selden, Mr. Shanker listed higher education as one of the major areas where the A.F.T. would concentrate its organizing efforts. The union will also give high priority to organizing teachers at all levels in states like California or Florida that have adopted or may adopt laws giving collective bargaining rights to public employees.

"Visibility, Power, and Money"

"Higher education is one of the great areas of organizing that is available to us," he said. College teachers are prime targets for A.F.T.-style unionism, he added, because they now face many of the same problems as other teachers, including financial troubles, loss of jobs, and the new problems in teaching that result from open admissions.

Mr. Shanker promised to "develop a structure with visibility, power, and money" in higher education. He said he would be meeting with campus A.F.T. leaders after the convention to develop the details of that structure and that the union would soon announce its plans.

College professors at the convention expressed satisfaction with Mr. Shanker's commitment.

"I think we will get more support than we have had in the past," said Norman Swenson, president of the A.F.T. local at the two-year Chicago City Colleges, one of the first faculty unions in the nation to win collective bargaining rights.

Robert Nielson, director of the A.F.T.'s college department, said he expected to get more help. His department currently has only two staff members. "It's going to be a great year. We're going to kill them," Mr. Nelson added, referring to the union's two rivals, the American Association of University Professors and the National Education Association.

John Sperling, chairman of the A.F.T.'s college committee and a long-time union leader in the California state colleges, said the "political struggle in the A.F.T. during the past year has meant that we've moved more slowly than I would have hoped."

Mr. Sperling was referring to the year-long struggle between Mr. Shanker and Mr. Selden, which ended with the former's election here. "Hopefully, with the ending of that internal strife, we'll get moving," Mr. Sperling said.

In his written president's report, Mr. Selden said that he had recommended the appointment of an assistant in the college department but that appointment, along with several others, had been blocked by Mr. Shanker and the A.F.T. executive council. Observers speculated that Mr. Shanker blocked the appointments so he could choose his own staff when he took over.

Mr. Neilson maintained, however, that the Selden-Shanker feud did not harm the A.F.T.'s campus organizing efforts. The union won 11 of 20 elections it entered and increased its campus membership from 26,000 to 35,000, he said.

Some Professors Unhappy With Union

Although his department has only two staff members, Mr. Neilsen said, "there's always been enough money and staff for organizing campaigns." He said the regular A.F.T. staff does most of the campus organizing. Each of the union's five regions now has a staff member assigned to higher education, as do most of the A.F.T.'s state federations, he said.

(continued on page ten)

City Planners Take No Action On Acceptance Of Underpass

by Randy Jansen

The Building Planning Commission of Burlington held a public hearing on the acceptance of the underpass on Sept. 8. No action was taken on the question due to a lack of quorum.

Mr. Snyder, of UVM's Development Department, presented the detail plans of the underpass. He gave a brief talk, outlining the reasons for the underpass. The problem, according to Snyder, is that the congestion of 20,000 cars and 12,000 pedestrians at the Main Street crossing has become an unsafe situation. Several alternatives such as the jughandle and lights have not relieved the conflict of cars and pedestrians.

Several aspects of the underpass are to encourage or to force students (depending on your point of view) to use the underpass. An earth birm (wall) will be built sloping to five feet and 12–5 feet from the curb on the north side, near the maintenance building. This action will mean elimination of the sidewalk from the Dairy Science Parking Lot to about 100-150 feet beyond the Living-Learning light, which is the length of the earthen wall. The wall will include prickly bushes covering a four foot fence on top of the earth birm. Plantings would also be placed at the base of the birm.

The north entrance will be beside the Home Economics Building (Terrill Hall) under the hill. To alleviate the security question, security headquarters will be moved to the north entrance so 24-hour surveillance of the tunnel would be possible.

Earth will completely cover the 1600 square foot building so only the west side of the building will be visible. The UVM dispatcher will have a window for observation in the tunnel to survey the tunnel's interior.

On the south side, an extra wide sidewalk from Living/Learning will direct students to the south entrance of the underpass. An earth birm similar to the north side will also be constructed between the sidewalk and the road.

Three flights of stairs will lead Living/Learning area students down to a large (2500-5000 square foot) — open plaza at the south entrance.

From Redstone Campus, students would descend two flights of stairs to the same plaza in front of the south entrance. A six-foot bicycle path will be provided so Redstone bicyclists can use the underpass.

The underpass itself will have an arch width of eighteen feet, seven inches. Overall shape will be more of an oval than a circular shape to increase walking area. The underpass will be constructed to accomodate the possibility of widening Main Street into four lanes.

After Snyder finished his presentation, the Advisory Review Board made a few recommendations. Among those were that more land be acquired for the southside walkway, and increasing the slope of the earth birm. Also the board wants some sort of concrete base relief on the north side entrance to humanize the area and some place where graphics displays can be put up.

Rising in opposition to the underpass was UVM Student Association President Peter MacAusland, citing that many students have told him that they will not use the underpass. MacAusland also objected to the high cost of the project, declaring that alternatives to the underpass have not been fully researched.

The meeting was then opened to comments from the audience. Scott Smith, manager of the University Apartments, expressed his belief that the land that UVM desires for the southside sidewalk will not be sold. He also agreed with MacAusland that the students will not use the underpass.

Since a quorum was not present, the Planning Commission gave MacAusland a week until the next board meeting to present a suitable alternative. On that note, the board moved onto another matter of concern, and the decision on the underpass will be made next Thursday.

UVM Plans Large Additions To Gym

by Randy Jansen

UVM is planning extensive additions to the gymnasium.

The current gym setup was originally built for 4,000. Present student population is now 8,000 and gym time and space is stretched to the limit, especially with the increased emphasis on women's sports.

High priorities for new construction are office and classrooms to replace those in Southwick Gym which is being turned over the the Music Center. More squash and handball courts are also being planned.

Since a recent federal law states that women's facilities must equal those of men, where federal money is spent, 2600 women's lockers and shower areas are also high on the list.

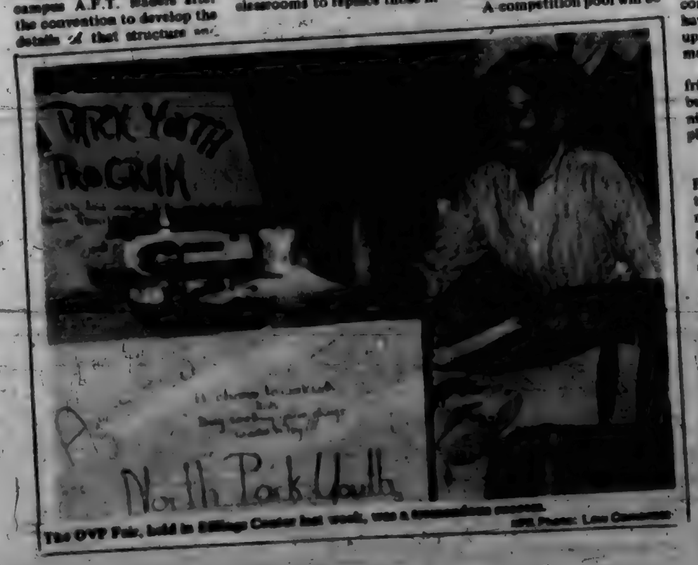
A competition pool will be included for meets with an increased number of bleachers for spectators. For spectators there will be an east-end addition to the Gutterson Field House for those waiting in line in inclement weather.

Hockey will get a visiting team room and a new area for the Zamboni machine. The Zamboni machine will have to be moved because new compressors, enabling UVM to have year round ice, will take up the room the Zamboni machine now occupies.

New bleachers paid for by friends of UVM hockey will be built. For tennis fans, eight to nine court facilities are planned.

Early estimates by Freeman, French, Freeman, the architects, is about $3 million. At present, no one is sure where the money will come from. However, there are several possibilities.

Money could come from state appropriations, but this seems highly unlikely, considering the present economic situation. A second alternative is to continue the Athletic Fee past the 1982 deadline. According to Larry Snyder, no federal money is available at present. Because of the uncertainty of money, construction has not be planned. Snyder gave no date when construction might begin.



The UVP Fair, held in Billings Center last week, was a tremendous success. SPS Photo: Lew Clements

Featured This Week:

Open Season...p.5
Wine And Cheese Column...p.8
The Doctor's Bag...p.8
UVM Beats Norwich ...p.14

Table Of Contents:

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Calendar/Announcements . . . . p. 2
Doctor's Bag . . . . . p. 11
Editorial . . . . . p. 4
Op. Ed . . . . . p. 5
Sports . . . . . p. 14

CALENDAR / ANNOUNCEMENTS

A.S.C.E. To Meet

The student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will hold its first business meeting Wednesday, Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 209, Votey Building. The agenda will consist of a brief business meeting followed by a speaker. This week the speaker will be Joseph Lawler, President of Camp, Dresser and McKee, a prestigious engineering firm from Boston.

Lawler will speak on professionalism and engineering ethics, a subject all engineers and engineering students will wish to become more familiar with. All faculty and students, whether members of the chapter or not, are most welcome to come and hear Lawler speak. After the address, refreshments will be served.

This Saturday, Sept. 21, the ASCE Student Chapter is holding a fall picnic at Ethan Allen Park. All civil engineering students and faculty are welcome to come for the fee of one dollar. Rain date is Sept. 22.

Drop Period Ends

The Drop period ends Tuesday, September 24th. All cards must be in the Registrar's Office by 5:00 p.m. that day.

Don't forget to turn in your brown local address at the Registrar's Office. It is important to you because we mail important information to you at that address throughout the semester. If you forgot pick up a new brown card and turn it in as soon as possible... Thank you.

Med Tech

Medical Technology students are welcome to come to our monthly meetings held the first Thursday of each month. Please come and learn about the Vermont society of Medical Technology.

Newman Center

Mass Schedule:
Weekdays: Monday through Friday at 4:15 p.m.; Tuesday evening at 10:00 p.m.
Weekends: Saturday at 4:15 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday at 9:00 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 4:15 p.m., 6:30 p.m.

Confession: Before weekend Masses and by appointment.

Choir practice: For those who wish to be part of the 4:15 Sunday Mass choir, practices are on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m.

Pre-Cana Conferences: The third in a four-part series of marriage preparation conferences will be held on Sunday, September 22 at 7:30 p.m.

Freshman "creative" evenings: An opportunity for Freshmen to create evening discussions or other group programs helpful to them in their first months on campus, this program will be held every other Thursday, beginning September 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Basic Catholicism course: Enquiry/up-dating classes for those interested in learning about basic Roman Catholic beliefs; the program begins Monday, September 23 at 7:30 p.m.

"A New Look at an Old Book": This program of Scripture Study Evenings begins on Tuesday, September 24. Sessions are scheduled for 7:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. Tuesday through Friday."

Starting this Tuesday night, September 24, GOD-TALK. The first series of three discussions will be on Prayer and Meditation. There will be three parts to the discussion: 1. Prayer - what I was taught and what I do (Sept. 24); 2. Prayer in various religious traditions (Oct. 1); 3. Prayer as a Christian discipline in my present life (Oct 8). Time is 7:30 p.m. at St. Anselm's. Chaplain Appleyard will lead the discussion.

Episcopal Chaplain Jon Appleyard personally invites you to come up to the chapel, "I need your ideas and thoughts for programs. I am wide open to your suggestions. Please feel free to drop in. I am there most of the morning.

Schedule

Schedule for services: St. Anselm's Episcopal Chapel on the Redstone Campus. Holy Eucharist: Sunday 9 a.m. and Tuesday 10 p.m., Morning prayer: Monday through Friday 7:15 a.m. (on Tuesday and Thursday Discussion follows).

Bookmobile

The Atid Bookmobile will be visiting the Burlington community this week. The Bookmobile, sponsored by United Synagogue of America of the Conservative Movement and its collegiate affiliate organization, Atid ("future" in Hebrew) is a travelling bookstore of Judaica, with a large selection of paperback and hardback books on Jewish philosophy, festivals, prayer, and history, as well as fiction, poetry, and children's books.

The visit sponsored by the Hillel Foundation will be from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. on September 23 in back of the bookstore, by the Dairy Bar.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19

Church Street Center offers a course starting at 9:30 a.m. "Women in Politics", taught by Madeleine Kunin, and at 12 noon, "Exotic Middle Eastern Cookery." Also, two courses at 7:30 p.m.: "Budgeting Family Finances to Combat Inflation," and "Beginning Calligraphy." Details from the Center, 135 Church St., 656-4221.

The Latin American Studies Program of the Area and International Studies Center presents two lectures by visiting professor Henry A. Landsberger of the University of North Carolina. At 3 p.m. professor will address a sociology colloquium in Dewey Lounge, Old Mill, in "Working Class and Peasant Movements as Examples of Class Mobility", and at 8 p.m., he will speak in Memorial Lounge, Waterman Building, on "The Chilean Road to Socialism: Why did it end?"

This week's Mathematical Sciences Seminar presents Dr. Robert Wright who will lecture at 3 p.m., B104 Cook on "Finite difference methods in exponential fitting."

Ananda Marga Yoga Society presents a yoga class and group meditation, 6:30 and 8 p.m. respectively at the Unitarian Church. All welcome.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20

First in a series of museum skill shops at Fleming Museum. Further information is available from Barbara H. Lewis at the museum.

Special research seminar jointly sponsored by the UVM departments of biochemistry and pediatrics, Dr. William H. Zinkham, director of pediatric hematology, Johns Hopkins University Medical School, "LDH-X Biochemical and Genetic Considerations, 12 noon, E210 Given Building.

Open House at Royall Tyler Theater, 4 p.m.

Church St. Center presents an open poetry reading with R. Tinker Greene of Poets Mimeo Cooperative, 7:30 p.m. at the Center.

The Baha'i Club of UVM invites students to attend Baha'i Firesides at 71 S. Willard St., across from the music building, Friday evenings at 7:30 p.m. Betsy and Doug Crawford, members of UVM Baha'i Club will be the hosts.

8 p.m.-11 p.m. International Folk Dancing. Dances taught from all over the world. No prior experience necessary. In the Southwick Ballroom.

8 p.m. L/L Climbing Suite presents color slides on Big Wall Climbing on El Capitan in Yosemite National Park by Steve Arsenault, 115 Commons of the L/L Center.

Roundhouse opens another season with music and poetry in a coffee-house atmosphere, basement of Billings Center, from 9-11:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Billings Center Governing Board.

SATURDAY AND SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 21-22

No calendar events listed.

A recital of music for flute and harp, the UVM Horticulture Center's annual "Chrysenthemum Show," and a day-long program for Vermont high school counselors are among events of interest at the University of Vermont next week, Sept. 23-29.

A new show will also open at Fleming Museum, and the Lane Series will be selling last-minute tickets to those who plan to see the musical, "Pippin" on Sept. 30, but who haven't reserved a ticket. The Lane Office is located at 234 Waterman Building, 656-3419.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 23,

Office of Volunteer Programs (OVP) has scheduled orientation to the following agencies or programs: Big Brother/Big Sister; Horizons; Red Cross; Pine Ridge Radio Station. Interested volunteers call in at OVP, 656-2062, or just drop by.

Scottish Country Dancing, 7:45 p.m., 107 Perkins Geology Building. More information from Ben or Dot Stein, 863-4105.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24

Last day for degree students to drop courses without academic penalty.

OVP orientation continues with sessions on Brandon Training School, Kinderhaus, and Champlain Valley Area Agency on Aging. Details from 656-2062.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25

OVP orientation concludes with Adopt-A-Grandparent, Burlington Youth Service Bureau, and Medical Center Hospital. Details from 656-2062.

High School Counselors Day, where high school counselors from Vermont visit the UVM campus, hosted by the Admissions Office.

VPIRG presents a workshop describing VPIRG work in the area of highways and suggestions on how a volunteer can get involved.

A lecture will be given by Peter Franchot of VPIRG staff in the livingroom of Robinson Hall, "Pesticides, the Environment and YOU."

Lyric Theatre Invites UVM Participants

UVM students who are seeking involvement in community affairs are urged to contribute their time and talents to the newly formed Burlington Lyric Theatre, Inc.

The group will offer its first production of this season at the Flynn Theatre on November 14 through the 17. The musical Gypsy has been chosen as the vehicle and musical comedy buffs will know right away that it's the story of the rise to fame of Gypsy Rose Lee, the Queen of Burlesque of the 40's and 50's.

Showgirls, strippers, hoofers, child actors, young adults and character roles are all needed to round out the

Geography Club

Any students who would like to get together periodically for "Good Times" and discussion of common interests in geography are urged to come and help in the creation of a program. All majors, graduates, and interested students are welcome. Slides of Prince Edward Island canoe trip will be featured at this organizational meeting to be held at 4 p.m. at 110 A Old Mill on Sept. 19. Coffee and donuts will be provided. And the sponsors of the get together urge you to bring a friend.

Help UVM Yearbook

Attention:

The 1975 Yearbook Staff seeks all interested volunteers in the areas of writing, art, photography, and all other areas which would benefit the 1975 Ariel. All interested please leave name at the Ariel Office in Lower Billings Center, or call 656-2056.

Senior Class Council

HELP WANTED

If it is possible for you to think back to last semester, you may vaguely recall hearing or reading something in the Cynic about the Class of 1975 elections for a senior class council. Even if you can't remember - it did occur. There was an election and as of now there are four individuals elected to serve as the senior class council for 1975. Those elected were:

Ken Currier - 327 Millis Hall, 656-3828

Diana Richardson - 306 Millis Hall, 656-3823

Gayle Jackson - 118 Curtis Ave., Burlington, 862-3377

Mary Ellen Fennessy - 363 So. Willard St., Burlington, 863-9841 or 864-5484.

We met September 12 to discuss ideas for the year. Some of the topics mentioned were graduation, senior week, social activities, the class financial situation and a newsletter for all seniors. Each of these areas will require separate attention from interested seniors. To expedite the development of these areas, there will be a meeting of all members of the class of '75 on September 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the Main lounge of Harris-Millis. We need your ideas but more importantly - you!

Living Learning To Hold Bike Race

The Living-Learning Center and the Education Recreation Program with the help of the Communications Program invite all students and faculty of UVM to enter the first annual Living-Learning Center Bike Race to be held October 5 at 2:30 p.m. from the Living-Learning Parking lot. This will be 10.3 miles of beautiful Vermont scenery.

Look for more information in next week's Cynic and your dormitory bulletin board.

Awards For Engineers

Science and Engineering students have an opportunity to be rewarded for creative thinking. The engineering school bulletin board has flyers posted containing details on an energy storage contest.

Feasible ideas, rather than completed plans, are eligible for prizes of $25.00, $50.00, and $100.00 U.S. Savings Bonds.

For more copies of the contest rules write to: Friedman Energy Contest, 6031 St. Clair Ave., Cleveland, Ohio 44103. State how many copies wanted. Good luck.

The Marines fit the man to the uniform.

Not the uniform to the man. It takes a special person to be a Marine officer. A man who wants to lead. A man who isn't afraid of a challenge. A man who can handle responsibility. Enroll in PLC, the Platoon Leaders Class. The Marines are looking for a few good men who want to lead.

plc

The Marines are looking for a few good men.

4 & 25 September 9AM to 3PM

Lobby of the Billings Center

Professional Announcement

Dr. Terrance D. O'Brien, O.D.

announces

the opening of his office for

SOFT CONTACT LENS FITTING ONLY

177 Pearl Street

Burlington, Vermont

for appointment call 863-6241

3,000 JEWISH BOOKS ARE WAITING TO BE READ

The ATID BOOKMOBILE offering books on:

Israel, the American Jewish scene, history, law, Customs, and Ceremonis, Hebrew Literature, poetry, the Holocaust, philosophy and Jewish thought.

PLUS: Jewish records and posters.

20% STUDENT DISCOUNT

DATE: SEPT. 23, 1974 TIME: AM& PM

PLACE: BACK OF BOOKSTORE, NEAR DAIRY BAR

Texas Instruments electronic calculators

SLIDE RULE CALCULATOR

$69.95

TI SR 10

- Performs reciprocals (1/X), squares, square roots.
- Full floating decimal.
- 12-digit display.
- Operates on AC or built-in rechargeable batteries . . . AC charger included, carrying case.
- Compact 6.3x3x1.4". Weighs 9 oz.

LAFAYETTE

• 157 Pearl St., Essex Jct.

Even if you could put your hands on one, you couldn't touch a scientific calculator for less than $149.95. Until now.

The $99.95 CASIO FX-10 is here...in quantity ...for immediate delivery.

The FX-10 can solve trigonometry problems.

The FX-10 eliminates the need to refer to charts or tables to solve common and natural logarithms.

The FX-10 can also calculate squares, reciprocals and problems dealing with exponents, powers and Pi (carried to 6 decimal places!).

The $99.95 CASIO FX-10 can perform each of these functions with a single touch of the appropriate independent function key.

- Of course, the FX-10 provides such basic capabilities as floating decimal, true minus sign (to 7 digits!), overflow indication and constants in the four basic functions.

The CASIO FX-10 is fully protected by a 1-year warranty. It will operate anywhere on replaceable penlite batteries (included) or with its own AC adaptor (also included).

All this for just $99.95 plus $2.50 for shipping and handling. And, it's available for immediate delivery.

HINDA DISTRIBUTORS 607 S. Dearborn St./Chicago, Illinois 60605

Send me ____ CASIO FX-10(s) @ $99.95 (+$2.50 shipping) ea.

☐ Cash Enclosed ☐ American Express ☐ BankAmericard

☐ Master Charge (its. bank no. _____)

Card No. _____ Card Exp. _____

Name: _____ Phone: _____

Address: _____

City: _____ State: _____ Zip: _____

Signature: _____

NOTICE

Dr. Charles A. Paolantonio, Chiropractor, announces the change of his office hours to include Tuesday evening. This extra time is allotted for students. Those interested in Chiropractic care or chiropractic as a career may call 985-3275

WHY PAY THE HIGH PRICES FOR PRESCRIPTION AND GET 10% OFF

OUR PRICES ARE LOWER WITHOUT THE BIG 10% OFF

ask your physician about us, he probably comes here for his own prescription.

Grandway Pharmacy

Grandway Shopping Center

Shelburne Road

864-6869

...on with music and poetry
...rment of Billings Center,
... by the Billings Center

SUNDAY
11-21

...e and harp, the UVM
...ysanthemum Show," and a
...gh school counselors are
...niversity of Vermont next

...Fleming Museum, and the
...nate tickets to those who
..." on Sept. 30, but who
...e Office is located at 234

...MBER 23
...s (OVP) has scheduled
...racies or programs: Big
...d Cross, Pine Ridge Radio
...in at OVP, 656-2062, or

... 7:45 p.m., 107 Perkins
...on from Ben or Dot Stein.

...EMBER 24
... to drop courses without

...with sessions on Brandon
...d Champlain Valley Area
...6-2062.

...TEMBER 25
...th Adopt-A-Grandparent,
...ren, and Medical Center

...Day, where high school
...e UVM campus, hosted by

...describing VPIRG work in
...ons on how a volunteer can

...r Franchot of VPIRG staff
... Hall, Pesticides, the ...Council

Mary Ellen Hennessy
...1 So. Willard St.,
...rlington, 863-9841 or
...4-3484.

We met September 12 to
...cuss ideas for the year.
...me of the topics mentioned
...re graduation, senior week,
...cial activities, the class
...ancial situation and a
...ewsletter for all seniors. Each
...parate attention from
...terested seniors. To expedite
...e development of these
...eas, there will be a meeting
... all members of the class of
...75 on September 25 at 7:30
...m. in the Main lounge of
...arrie-Millis. We need your
...deas but more importantly –
...ou!

...Hold Bike Race

...October 5 at 2:30 p.m. from
...he Living-Learning Parking
...ot. This will be 10.3 miles of
...eautiful Vermont scenery.

...Look for more information in
...ext week's Cynic and your
...ormitory bulletin board.

...ngineers

...e prizes of $25.00, $50.00,
...nd $100.00 U.S. Savings
...onds.

For more copies of the
...ontest rules write to:
...riedman - Energy Contest,
...031 St. Clair Ave., Cleveland,
...Ohio 44103. State how many
...copies wanted. Good luck.

...r, announces the
...esday evening.
...Those interested
...a career may

...RICES
...
...E BIG 10% OFF
...bably comes
...n.
...nacy
...ter

Dance To Benefit People's Free Clinic

On September 22 at 8:00 p.m. the Southwick Ballroom on Redstone Campus will ring to the calling and accordian playing of Dudley Laufman, famed New Hampshire caller and contra dance teacher. He will be assisted by Louis and Wilfred Beaudoin, Burlington's own French-Canadian music contingency and members of the Arm and Hammer String Band and other Vermont musical groups. As dances will be taught, experience is not a prerequisite to having a good time.

The dance, sponsored by the University of Vermont Folk Dance Club, is to benefit the People's Free Clinic, located at 260 North Street in Burlington. The clinic is an outpatient medical facility where basic medical care is made available to everyone free of charge regardless of income level.

The clinic operates on the following principles:

1) That quality medical care should never be determined by the patient's ability to pay.

2) The clinic should be a model neighborhood health care facility offering free health care to anyone without discrimination, and

3) Examination procedures, test results and treatment should be explained as the patient has the ability and should understand the functions of his/her own body – this allows for preventative maintenance instead of the usual crisis approach to health care.

The clinic is open every weekday from 1–3 p.m. for information, making appointments and referrals and 7–10 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday for examinations and treatment by doctors. It is completely staffed by volunteers. The facility runs on a budget of approximately $400/month acquired from patient donation, community support and reimbursements from the State Board of Health. For more information about the clinic or the dance, call 864-6309 during clinic hours.

UVM's Radiologic Tech Department Places Second In New England

Statistics recently released by the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists (ARRT) showed that the 13 graduates of the University of Vermont's Associate Degree Program in Radiographic (X-ray) Technology placed second among the 58 American Medical Association (AMA) approved programs in New England.

The ARRT is the examining board which reviews the credentials of all graduates of AMA-approved programs. Registered radiologic technologists operate X-ray machines in hospitals, clinics, and private offices. The University of Vermont program has graduated students since 1972.

Five hospitals are affiliated with the program with the Medical Center Hospital of Vermont in Burlington providing the primary source of clinical experience for the students. Other affiliations are with Central Vermont Medical Center in Berlin, Putnam Memorial Hospital in Bennington, Brattleboro Memorial Hospital, and North Country Community Hospital in Newport.

Vermonters in the graduating class are: Linda Houghton, Montpelier; Mary Ottairano, Bennington; Alexandria Papageorge Montagne, Burlington, Melissa White Wheeler, Morrisville; Deborah Lowell Borah, White River Junction; Lynn Cline, St. Albans; Mary Comeau, Burlington; Linda Connors, Rutland; Diane Danyow, Essex Junction, Mary Giroux, St. Albans, and Jacqueline Montagne Maggin, St. Albans.

Difficult Big Wall Climbs To Be Discussed At Living/Learning

Steve Arsenault, the initiator of Big Wall Climbing in New England and veteran of many difficult and well-known climbs will give a free slide show Sept. 20 at 8 p.m. at 115 Commons of Living/Learning.

Big Wall Climbing was originally developed in Yosemite at the start of the 1960's and came to the public eye as the result of the coverage given by TV and Life Magazine to Warren Harding and Dean Caldwell's first ascent of the wall of early morning light on El Capitan in 1971.

What separates Big Wall Climbing from other forms of mountaineering is that the climber's principle obstacle is a steep, vertical or overhanging wall, several thousand feet high, and upon first inspection, featureless. Through techniques of aid climbing and free climbing, the climber is able to make his way up in a time ranging anywhere from two days to three weeks.

Steve Arsenault has done this in Yosemite, as well as in areas of the Rocky Mountains, Canada, and ranges beyond North America.

His most well know Yosemite climbs include El Capitan, the nose and the Salathe Wall; the first solo ascent of the prow on the Washington Column where he fell 1600 feet above the ground, but caught himself 70 from the ground, thereby being available to give this slide show, and the Direct Northwest on Half Dome.

Big Walls are a different world of sky and rock contained in a vertical horizon. Steve's photographs show that world magnificently. Come see them and meet Steve.

Governor's Commission Seeks Student Members

The Governor's Commission on Student Affairs will hold its first meeting of the 1974-75 school year on Sept. 29. A call has gone out to all student governments asking that two representatives be selected from the student body to become members of the commission.

Each president of an institution of higher learning has been asked to lend their support to the commission by offering facilities for meetings and providing transportation.

According to Thomas Salmon's office:

"An active Commission will allow students throughout the state to be represented in the political arena. It will enable members of the Commission to gain insight and understanding of the process of state government. The opportunity exists for meaningful exchange between the representatives of 25 colleges and universities. This is a chance for students to have input and effect on the legislative process."

Students interested in becoming commissioners should immediately contact their student government.

Smuggler's Notch Special Offer

Smuggler's Notch has just one week left to offer UVM students, faculty, and staff the $5.00 Discount Pass. In an effort to reach all of those interested, a table will be set up in Billings Center, Monday, [illegible] 25 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. ID pictures are required so parents should bring their children or have a picture that can be used.

The discount pass will enable you to ski for $5 weekdays, and $7 on weekends all season (regular $10.00 and $11.00). It will also allow you to participate in special events held at Smuggler's Notch all season free. They have the facilities for many types of events and if your group or organization would like to plan your own, call us. An example of what they are doing is the Oct. 13 OctoberFest. Friends of UVM Skiers are using the grounds for an outdoor concert, raffle drawing and party. Using this pass, you enter free.

They have sold over 350 passes to the UVM community and plan on running buses up to the mountain on weekends all season. Any questions, call 899-4089 (local).

Viet Nam Veterans Hold Meeting

The Vietnam Veterans Against the War/Winter Soldier Organization (VVAW/WSO) will hold an open meeting this Thursday evening at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge in Billings Center on the UVM campus. The purpose of this meeting is to establish a VVAW/WSO chapter at UVM.

VVAW/WSO is an anti-imperialist organization with an open membership policy and interested non vets, as well as vets, are encouraged to attend. Due to both the organization's history and its extremely active role in advancing veterans demands for decent health, education and job opportunities, its membership is predominantly vets, but non vets wishing to work actively for VVAW/WSO's goals are welcomed on equal standing.

In addition to fighting for veterans benefits, VVAW/WSO is actively working for an end to the continuing war in Indochina in which more Asians died last year under the "Nixon Doctrine" of using "Asians to fight Asians" than during any other period of the war except for 68 and 71. Universal, unconditional amnesty for war resisters is another major goal which includes the demand for a retroactive single-type discharge for all vets. VVAW/WSO is also fighting for an end to all U.S. support for corrupt and repressive regimes abroad and domestic political repression and "Watergating" at home.

Vets "rap groups," counseling, and a discharge upgrading project are among the group's planned activities in addition to public speaking, debates, media work, film forums, community involvement and other projects.

For those interested in VVAW/WSO's work, but unable to attend the meeting Thursday evening, there will be a literature and information table set up in the lobby of Billings Center from 8:30 to 4:00 on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. For more information, call VVAW/WSO at 862-8175 (evenings are best).

Chinese University Offers Places To U·S· Students

New Asia College of the Chinese University of Hong Kong will be able to offer places to a limited number of qualified American students for the spring semester, 1975. Interested students should write to Hong Kong Semester, Beaver College/Franklin and Marshall College, Glenside Pennsylvania, 19038, or phone 215-884-3500 for information. Admissions are handled through these American colleges.

At the Chinese University of Hong Kong, a number of social science and humanities courses are taught in English.

New Asia College offers interdisciplinary courses in Chinese studies, and in Chinese History and Culture, also taught in English. The University Language Center, founded jointly by New Asia College and the Yale-in-China Association provides Mandarin and Cantonese instruction at any level commensurate with the student's ability and preparation.

No previous language training is necessary to attend the Chinese University, but exchange students are expected to have a better than average academic record and to have their attendance at the Chinese University approved by the appropriate officials at their home colleges; State Scholarships and federally insured student loanfunds can be applied to the fee. Since 1972, students from 37 American colleges and universities have taken advantage of this opportunity to study in Hong Kong.

New Music Recital Hall

A substantial grant from Kresge Foundation of Troy, Michigan will be applied to the construction at the University of Vermont of a new music recital hall on the Redstone Campus.

The foundation has announced a grant of $100,000 towards construction, now under way, of the recital hall which will be housed in a new building attached to the existing Southwick Hall.

The entire facility will include classrooms, offices and practice rooms for the UVM music department.

A main feature of the 350-seat recital hall will be an organ of the French Baroque type, a custom-designed and built by Charles Fisk of Gloucester. It will be the only one of its type in Vermont and will broaden the scope of the University's teaching capacity in that field. The hall will also be used for small ensemble and chamber concerts, and student recitals.

The $1.5 million project is made possible with funds voted by the Vermont legislature, and with the Kresge Foundation Grant. Completion is anticipated in fall of 1975.

The project was planned with the cooperation of university students and faculty. The general contractor is Reed and Stone, Inc., of Essex Junction, Vt.

VPIRG Refund

VPIRG will have a refund table set up in Billings from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. the week of September 16-20. This will enable students who do not wish to support VPIRG to reclaim the $3.00 VPIRG fee listed on their semester bill.

'The Absurd'

The Interdisciplinary Science Program seminar series presents Dr. Donald Gregg speaking on Chemistry — "The Absurd" —, Sept. 26, at 8 p.m. in Room B-102 Living/Learning Center.

Dr. Gregg is the second in the series of speakers who throughout the semester will explore the interdisciplines of science. All are welcome to attend.

Plant Missing From Theatre

An attractive green plant is missing from the Royall Tyler Theatre under mysterious circumstances. "Wanted" signs are up all over main campus, asking for information leading to the capture of the Pernicious Plant Purloiner. According to the notices, the lush, lovely plant disappeared from the stairwell connecting the Royall Tyler Theatre lower lobby with the costume shop below.

The loss was detected last Wednesday morning, September 11.

Anyone noticing a trail of deep green heart-shaped leaves or a suspicious-looking skunk, skulking about with rich brown earth beneath his/her fingernails is asked to contact Mrs. Barbara Phillips at the business office, Ext. 2095.

Cat's Tale

At the time of the publication of The Cat's Tale, the phone numbers of McAuley Hall were unable to be listed. They are as follows:

Main desk	864-7784
2nd floor	656-4357
	656-4222
3rd floor	656-4358
	656-4359

Correction: The Millard Fillmore Bar welcomes everyone, but there is no official "gay night".

MEDICAL SCHOOL APPLICANTS

American Medical College Admissions Profile, Inc., offers a computerized analysis to assist you in more effectively assessing your qualifications and more accurately directing your medical school applications. Your MCAT scores, grade point average, college attended, state of residence, age and other criteria are used in a comparative analysis with the previously accepted class at the medical schools you select.

Contact your pre-medical advisor for further information or write A.M.C.A.P., Inc., Box 8747, Boston, Massachusetts 02114.

Mobil
SPILLANE'S SERVICENTER
811 WILLISTON RD.
TOWING SERVICE
COMPLETE REPAIR SERVICE
ELECTRONIC TUNE UPS
ALIGNMENT MACHINE
TRAVEL INFORMATION
VERMONT STATE INSPECTION
863-2896
JUST DOWN THE HILL FROM UVM
NEAR THE INTERSTATE

VERMONT CYNIC

Founded In 1883

Barbara Proulx '75, Editor-in-Chief
Rick Steinberg '75, Assistant Editor
Wyatt Kash '77, Managing Editor
Bruce Maddaloni '76, News Editor
Randy Jansen '77, Assistant News Editor
Margo Howland '75, Features Editor
Lissa Charles '75, Arts Editor
Peter Campbell '75, Assistant Arts Editor
Mike Schwartz '75, Sports Editor
Kathy Stimmel '77, Copy Editor
Debbie Powell, '76, Advertising Manager

Editorial

Those Lines In The Den ...

This editorial was originally planned as a sharp criticism of the Den. Instead, we will settle for a mild reproof with a pat on the head for effort.

For the first few weeks of this semester, the UVM Den was an unmitigated disaster. As a result of SAGA's new policy of allowing students who hold meal coupons to use these coupons in the Den, lines were incredibly long. One student claims to have waited one and a half hours for a hamburger!

The students who own meal coupons also have the option of using Waterman's dining facilities. Unfortunately, an off-campus student, with one hour between classes for lunch, has had to do without.

The managers of the Den, however, tried to alleviate this situation by creating a Mini-Den. The Mini-Den served all "uncooked" food, such as yogurt, fruit, sandwiches, and cookies.

Although this has helped to cut down on the lines, it is creating a new problem. The north lounge of Billings, already a heavily congested area, is the present location of the Mini-Den. This causes new lines of people merely trying to walk through.

While we're on the subject—one more gripe. This year, the Den raised its outrageous prices. It was unofficially revealed that SAGA is making quite a profit off the students who use the Den. Students, at least the ones we know, are not rich. Forty-five cents for a Dannon yogurt and thirty cents for a rotten apple is just too much.

The managers of the Den are trying. We'll grant them that. There are other ideas which might also help. Perhaps limiting the number of hours during which students can use meal coupons would solve the problem. Perhaps lowering SAGA's profit margin on the Den would help the students' sagging budgets.

B.F.

Contraception And Abortion

by Debbie Adler

Sixty years ago, abortion clinics were as uncommon as women voting for President.

Today, along with cough syrup and aspirin, the Wasson Infirmary dispenses birth control pills. A gynecology clinic exists on the second floor of the Wasson building with free services available five days a week to all women who have paid the student health fee.

A doctor, male or female, either from the medical school, health service or private practice examines each patient and helps her choose the birth control method best suited for her.

The infirmary provides a good service and records are kept completely confidential. A student must make an appointment by going to the Wasson Infirmary. Hours are: Mondays, 9-12, Tuesdays 9-12, Wednesdays, 1-5, Thursdays 9-12, and hours on Fridays alternate each week 9-12 and 1-4.

It is certainly the least expensive gynecological service available in the Burlington area for UVM women. It's free except for a small charge for a pap smear and an I.U.D.

The Vermont Women's Health Center provides the only abortion service in the vicinity.

Abortion is available by vacuum aspiration up to 12 weeks of pregnancy, while the Early Uterine Evacuation (EUE) is performed on pregnant women up to the seventh week. Unmarried women under 18 must have a guardian's consent for abortion as it is a minor surgical procedure. Referrals will be made to agencies or physicians in the area when necessary. Follow-up visits are provided and encouraged after the pregnancy is terminated.

The Center also provides counseling, full examination, and all methods of contraception control. Diagnosis and treatment of venereal disease, urinary tract infection, and vaginitis is also a service provided by the Vermont Women's Health Center.

The staff includes physicians certified in obstetrics and gynecology and physicians with a special interest in women's health. Information is kept strictly confidential and fees may be adjusted based on the ability to pay them.

The Center is in the process of moving to 158 Bank St. in Burlington. It is located above the State Theatre and the phone number is 863-1386.

It is a collectively run consumer group organized by women and from what I have heard, has a very warm, comfortable atmosphere.

Another service in Burlington is the Planned Parenthood Center on 19 Church St. It concentrates on providing assistance to men and women in birth planning and family limitation but the Center also provides a pretty complete range of gynecological services for the college woman.

Instruction in all medically acceptable methods of birth control is given and physicians guide the patient in the choice of a birth control method.

Clinics are held every Wednesday evening for women between 18 and 24 on group education in birth planning methods and services, and complete physical examinations are performed at this time.

Appointments must be made for the clinic by calling 863-6326.

Planned Parenthood has no services for pregnancy testing, treatment of V.D., or infection and no facilities to perform referral services for patients who need or request it.

Although there is a sliding fee scale, Planned Parenthood feels women attending college are able to pay the rates at the top of the scale.

I have given you this information in hopes that you will take full advantage of these facilities.

Just the fact that abortion is available in Burlington is in itself a good beginning.

Letters To The Editor

The Den

To the Editor:

Lucky campus residents! UVM has gone out of their way to serve them. Now they can eat at the convenient Den by using their coupons. Unfortunately, those of us who have to commute now cannot even get close to the place to get some lunch.

And just to make things a little cozier, the tables in the Den were pushed closer together, leaving no aisle space, to make room for the mini-Den. Whoopee! Why don't we send the residents back to their dorms or over to Waterman to eat? They have their choice of countless dining halls. Give the Den back to the commuters who have no place to eat.

A Commuter

'Open Season'

To the Editor:

I noticed that Scott MacKay has made a stab at imitating the late George Frazier, in his "Open Season" column last week. "What is Chuck?" might have become a fair parody of Frazier's "What is Bush?" but didn't quite make it. It is evident from last month's "Curtain Call" that MacKay has a good deal of respect for Frazier, which just makes everything worse.

Please, one George Frazier is enough! If I never read another posthumous column of his it will be too soon. I suggest you go back to something on the lines of TBR in your future "Open Season" columns. Incidentally, Scott, did you notice that Frazier considers the Greek system "bush"? Heaven forbid!

Marsa Howland

We, The Women

by Linda Clayton

With all the problems women have getting jobs, gaining admission to schools, gaining control of their bodies, etc., it is a little sad that one of the biggest problems a woman who is trying to grasp her life has is with other women.

For every woman who is experiencing the agony of growth, many more women are critical of the effort—women who criticize and scorn, women who scream to the world that they are ecstatically happy being housewives, sex objects and any number of other things.

It is natural that the liberation of women threatens men. If we redefine the meaning of woman, we also redefine the meaning of man. For the boys at the top, this is at the least uncomfortable, and at the most destructive to much that they have gained in their years of assumed superiority.

But, why should the liberation of women threaten other women? Women, like men, have grown to accept the role they play in society. All those women who are making it in the ways they were taught to make it by pushing to the fore their sexuality and storing their selves for another time, are the ones among us who balk at change. The woman who is gaining the security she has always sought (through a man) is the woman who cannot face the error of her teachings.

And what about the older woman who sees her daughter planning a life much different, and perhaps more fulfilling, than hers? Her hostility is natural. She sees in the rejection of her life an indication that it was perhaps wrong, that many years of her life were wasted. Few of us are strong enough to admit to a wasted life, rework it, and go on.

These women are not "other women". They are all within us. No amount of will power can wipe away all the false lessons we have learned. No degree of radicalization can totally stifle all of our yearnings. No amount of awareness that many of our needs are conditioned can make those needs disappear. We are all many different women, and our struggle is within us and among us as well as with others.

Growth is painful; thought is dangerous; awareness is potentially destructive. Who can honestly criticize those that avoid the struggle?

For women, growth has its added pains. There are no models. We cannot say that many have come this far, looked so deeply and been better for it. Surely many women have struggled for rights, but their inevitable pain was experienced privately, not within a public mass movement.

We don't know how it will come out. We don't know whether we are trifling with a destructive process. All we really know is that stagnation is death.

No woman calls herself a feminist lightly. No woman is a feminist because she wants easy sex, because she hates men, or because she wants a job to which she is not entitled to by merit.

Women are feminists because they are attempting to cast off a societal role which has evolved over hundreds of years. And many more women are fighting them. All of us are afraid. We fear that if all those years of illusion are stripped away, we may find very little of ourselves left.

It is a frightening experience to look deep within oneself and face the possibility of finding a void, of having to heave out whatever little is left and begin again. It is understandable that so many fight against the process. No woman welcomes it. But no woman can stop it now that it has started. We can only hope that the struggle is a life-bringing one.

Compliments

To the Editor:

I would like to compliment Randy Jansen on the clarity and accuracy of his recent article on the University of Vermont's fiscal condition. He has taken an extremely complex and difficult topic and presented it in a lucid and unbiased manner.

I feel sure that this article will assist all members of the University community in understanding the fiscal problems and option we all face.

Sincerely,
Wayne C. Patterson
Executive Vice President

Rockefeller For V.P.?

by Steve Levine

A longtime friend of mine from New York once told me that our new Vice President Nelson Rockefeller is wont to dine each morning upon a pint of human mother's milk. Something about being alone with a couple of billion dollars seems to breed weird lusts in a fellow.

It is not enough to be the world's richest man, in Rockefeller's case. On three occasions he has sought to make himself the world's most powerful man as well. Now that he has grown too old for that chase he is apparently ready to settle for the second spot. Perhaps he sees hope in the fact that three Vice Presidents have acceded to the Presidency in the last decade.

For whatever reason Nelson Rockefeller settled for the Vice Presidency it should have never settled for him. His appointment represents just exactly the sort of amalgamation of economic and political power that has brought this nation so close to ruin in the second half of the 20th century. Rockefeller has such holdings and interests as would be the envy of a number of small states in the world. So broad are his personal concerns they must inevitably conflict with those of the nation at large.

How can we expect honest counsel on economics and foreign policy from a man who owns a large part of the world's largest oil company. For a man who owns big chunks of South Africa. From a man who owns shares in coal mining operations the activities of which Congress is trying to regulate?

Rockefeller, the humanitarian liberal who sent the troops into Attica and signed the most Draconian drug law ever enacted in this country's history, has throughout his career shown himself to be a man of unbridled ambitions concerned only with the expediencies of power. He is without principles and shares no popular priorities. He can be expected to act as an unofficial and highly effective lobbyist for the biggest of big businesses.

His appointment, I am afraid, confirms fears that the Ford Administration will be distinguished from its predecessor mainly for its politesse. We may have traded a bunch of incompetent and egregious thugs for a more subtle group of power brokers but the essential elements of a special interest government have not been challenged in the least. If there be any in Congress who value their independence let them show it by voting against the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller for Vice President.

The Cynic welcomes letters and columns from students, faculty, or any other readers. Materials for publication must be signed, but names will be withheld upon request.

VERMONT CYNIC

NEWS: Vincent Arias, George Georgakis, Andy Morse, Audrey Rothstein
FEATURE: Paul Ajamain, Carol Dufait, Amy-Catherine Fischer, Pam Hogarth
ARTS: Sari Bodi, Robert Domke, Amy Fisher, Barbara Freedman, Joe Kauffman, Adelaide Murphy, Paul Prior, Martin Woletz
COLUMNISTS: Debbie Adler, Tom McCormick, Scott McKay, Steve Rice, Elliott Freeman
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Lesley D'Elia, Eileen Driscoll, Joan Forsaith, Karen Hill, Beth Levine, Daniel Mead, Judy Parker
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Granger, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Pete Gutman

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of the members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published yearly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and Business offices in the Billings Camp, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone: 658-4911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1883. Subscription rate $5.00 per year, single copy ten cents.

Season'

Please, one George Frazier is enough! If I never read another posthumous column of his it will be too soon. I suggest you go back to something on the lines of TBR in your future "Open Season" columns. Incidentally, Scott, did you notice that Frazier considers the Greek system "trash"? Heaven forbid!

Marco Howland

liments

I feel sure that this article will assist all members of the University community in understanding the fiscal problems and option we all face.

Sincerely,
Wayne C. Patterson
Executive Vice President

r For V.P.?

ve Levine
e from New York once told me Nelson Rockefeller is wont to pint of human mother's milk. with a couple of billion dollars fellow.
the world's richest man, in ccasions he has sought to make erful man as well. Now that he hose he is apparently ready to rhaps he sees hope in the fact e accorded to the Presidency in on Rockefeller settled for the ve never settled for him. His xactly the sort of amalgamation er that has brought this nation nd half of the 20th century. s and interests as would be the tes in the world. So broad are his nevitably conflict with those of ecial counsel on economics and who owns a large part of the For a man who owns big chunks who owns shares in coal mining which Congress is trying to arian liberal who sent the troops most Draconian drug law ever tory, has throughout his career unbridled ambitions concerned power. He is without principles ues. He can be expected to act as ctive lobbyist for the biggest of afraid, confirms fears that the be distinguished from its olitique. We may have traded a regious thugs for a more subtle he essential elements of a special been challenged in the least. If d value their independence let nst the confirmation of Nelson nt.

---

ters and columns from students, ff. Materials for publication must withheld upon request.

T CYNIC

Steve Rice Elliott Freeman
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Lesley D'Elia, Eileen Driscoll, Joan Foosish, Karen Hill, Beth Levine, Daniel Mead, Judy Parker
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowen, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Gramery, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Fern Gorman

...articles, comment, or columns in ...y reflect the opinions of the ...ality, or staff, or the State of ...d by the columnists do not ...ion of the majority of the ...ial Board.
...e college year by the students ...ont State Agricultural College, ...ton in the Billings Center, ...ont. 656-4011. Deadline for ... of publication.
...ption rate $5.00 per year, single ...

If They Don't Like The Subjunctive-Let 'em Die

by John Howland, Jr.

Wow! Did you see that lady in blue on the back page of last Monday's Burlington Free Press? The one in the full page Winston cigarette ad? Now there's the kind of woman who could get me to take up smoking again.

I don't follow newspaper ads and I never watch television, so I can't really tell you how long the new Winston ads have been out, I suspect the series is new.

Throughout my youth, I was haunted by that "Winston tastes good—like a cigarette should" jingle. It had that dramatic pause after "like a". There was the pause and then a couple of knuckle-raps on the tabletop.

I can remember walking home from school with the tune going through my mind. I'd be carrying a stick, and every time the pause came, I'd give a couple of whacks to the nearest rock or maple tree.

Pretty goddamn effective advertising. They used to get us when we were really young. I think I first learned of Luckies (you know L.S./M.F.T.) from the ads on television during the fifties. We didn't have television. I used to go to my friend's house to watch Walt Disney on Wednesday night. That's when the cigarette ads first got me.

Actually, I didn't start smoking until I was 15. I got broken in on Newports and, after a brief flirtation with Parliaments, settled down with Luckies.

I never smoked Winstons. I suspect their jingle was as hazardous to my mental health and spiritual well being as their smoke would have been to my lungs, but the fact remains that throughout the 20 years or more they worked on me, they never got me to smoke Winstons.

It was after I quit smoking in 1969 that I really began to notice cigarette ads. I began to notice a lot of things about cigarettes. How bad they smelled, how unhealthy smokers are, how disgusting the ads are, how much I still wanted a smoke.

The Winston ad was the one I really came to hate. It wasn't the pictures of the beautiful women and handsome rugged men. They all had that.

It wasn't that they told you to smoke to be cool, to be the kinda guy everyone would envy. They all said that. It wasn't even the innuendo that unless you smoked, you weren't, well, you weren't really normal.

It was the goddamn grammar. Listen you bastards——I was a nervous wreck going through the withdrawal phase — listen, damnit: It's "AS a cigarette should!" Do you hear me? AS! AS! aaaaaaa! (Then I would put my head down on the table top and cry into the crumpled newspaper.)

I got over it eventually. Now——It's been almost five years — I find I only want to smoke, say, three times a week.

And cigarette ads rarely bother me. I understand that smokers die young. Serves them right. Can't say no one warned them.

But very frankly I'm not completely cured. I thought so until I saw that ad with the beautiful lady in blue. She wasn't a girl. She was a woman. Had a few miles on her. She looked strong and willful and maybe a bit arrogant. Looked as though she might be standing on a wind swept dune on Cape Hatteras. Just standing there on the sand with the wind in her hair. She's just asked me if we haven't met somewhere, and I'm about to answer. And she's just taking a Winston out of the package in her hand. And the wind is in her hair and the surgeon general's warning is in a box up there in the clouds. Yes, I say. Yes. Yes, oh yes.

And then I looked down from her face and read what she had really just said. There it was across her chest in 78 point type:

"If it wasn't for Winston, I wouldn't smoke."

That's what she said. "If it wasn't for Winston, I wouldn't smoke."

The pain of 1969 returned with a sickening rush. I tore the paper, turned with an anguished cry, and began beating my fist against the magazine rack. The woman who ran the news store came trotting over in alarm.

"Weren't! Weren't!" I sobbed. "It's weren't, the subjunctive, goddamn it! The subjunctive!"

My friend helped me out of the store and up the street to a bar. We sat in dark corner and had a few draughts.

Draughts are good. They're cheap, and there aren't any labels on the bottles to start those jingles going through your head.

I wanted a cigarette to calm my nerves, but decided against it. It wouldn't help. I tried to put the idea out of my head.

seething inside me all summer long,
was a poem was this poem
boiling thrucout the dreary life of an ice cream lady;

she raged as i kissed, the feets of peppermint stick women and their hot fudge children, seldom treating myself to milkshaken men.
this poem had a fit
as i killed and cooked our dinners;
poor defenseless vegetables struck for seeds and sorels on cemetery plates.
poetry, (as I had begun to call her) screamed out in protest
as i rocked in your arms,
and listened to your sighs,
and stared out the window at the fire escape:
12 steps again and again and again.
so now i've let her out;
written in chocolate drippings,
zucchini blood,
and sad, sad semen.

leslee '74

****

For Love and Nancy Elizabeth Hood
by T. M. Boswell

full moon,
a diaphragm,
preventing conception of another earth.

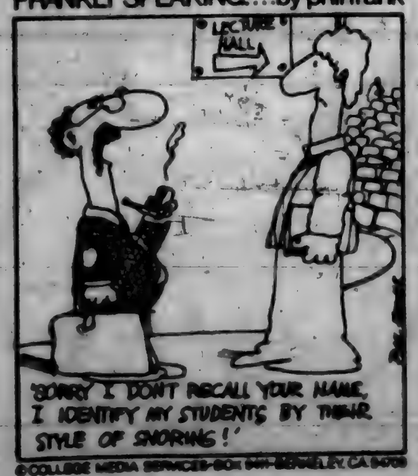
The Rape Of The Mind

by Sista Sue

To all my sisters. Do you realize that it is somewhat impossible for us to: a) pass a group of construction workers or other males on the street who will leave well enough along? b) wear a short skirt and not feel guilty because obviously we're trying to be seductive? c) yell at anyone without later having our consciences bother us because we should always be sweet? d) get sympathy for ourselves and retribution for the attacker in the event we are physically raped (never mind mentally — it's fostered by this perverted patriarchy), e) not be expected to show ecstatic happiness whenever any unknown male who happens to be dealing with us admits, "Oh I don't mind you, you're kinda cute?", f) do what we want to do?

"In struggling we sometimes get hurt, but in fighting back we win."

FRANKLY SPEAKING....by phil frank



©COLLEGE MEDIA SERVICES-BOX 841-BERKELEY,CA 94709

You Never Know

by Elliot Freeman

Dizzy Deville alone in her one room apartment stands by the window and talks to herself.....

The first spring rain! How wonderful! How glorious! Simply delicious! The wonders of Nature never cease to amaze me. I could smell it in the morning breeze when I awoke this day. I felt it in the bones of my body and the center of my soul. I watched the birds and the animals and insects and yes even the people prepare for the rain that I just knew was going to come. April showers bring May flowers...this time of year makes me come alive. The winter, the dreary winter months take their toll on my spirit, especially a winter as long as the one we just went through. It grinds my spirit as thin and as tight as a tiny wire. The dark and cold and wet and snow make it so hard for a body to exist. Oh time, how you have ruined me, damn you. Father time and his distant cousin weather in cahoots together to drive me down and out. Those dark frozen nights... the wind singing a song of disaster, me in this room playing endless games of canasta, listening to the wind sing a song of disaster with me humming along.

Now the earth like a dry sponge sucks at the rain waters. Sucks and sucks and sucks and when it cannot suck in another drop it turns the waters into mud like some kind of holy king refusing an easy gift. The water pours and dribbles and splashes and puddles and sprinkles and then pours some more; down from the mountains and into the streams, off of the rooftops and into the streets, through the bleak horrors of winter and into my dreams. Spring conquers and I am set free.. oh just listen to that rain!

Somewhere in the distance we hear the beautiful sounds of a spring shower, a church bell tolling softly and the voice of Edgar Allen Poe reciting the following...

...it's dusk and it's raining
I'm doing my work but I'm straining from taking a walk while it's raining
i finally give in, i cannot resist today put on my coat and go away how strange to take a walk while it's raining i'm free i can be anything that i want this is it, to walk and talk in the rain in the rain, in the rain, it's pouring in the rain you might pass me and say it is strange for him to be in the rain don't care, i'm free i'm me in the rain..

Edgar Allen Poe evaporates as the voices of the entire chorus of the Sister Of the Christ Almighty Twenty Four Hour All Night All Right Church Of Mother Mary, roar in a holy climax...

...Rain Child
Running through the water
Rain Child
Do you think you ought to live the way you do?
RUN THROUGH THE RAIN CHILD!
RUN THROUGH THE RAIN CHILDREN!
RUN THROUGH THE RAIN CHILD!....

And on and on and on they keep singing and fade off into the background, the rain keeps pouring and Dizzy Deville sits in front of her mirror brushing her hair. Stroke. Stroke the hair so long and thin. Stroke. Stroke the brush moves between the strands of hair. Dizzy imagines the horrible truth of a story that someone just has to be telling...

I swear this is the truth, really believe me. I had gone down to the bar just figuring that the walk there and back to the apartment plus possibly a couple of nice cold beers would pleasantly drown the restless energy that was eating at my nerves like ants gone wild at a picnic. The walk down was a pleasant enough time, so when I made it up to the bar to order a brew, I was feeling pretty good... standing at the bar keeping pace with the music... tapping my feet and moving my face with the pace of the crowd.

Just about that, right about then, little miss hot britches comes strolling up to me, staring wide-eyed above her sweet country girl smile, comes and whispers in my ear, "How 'bout a quick one?" My brain short circuits and my mouth goes ahhhum? Taken back I tell you, taken way back, I stand frozen for a minute....thoughts shooting like red, white and blue fireworks against the back wall of my brain. I say well you want something to drink and she says no thanks, come on let's go. She's walking towards the door, and I am right there behind her. Down the street, around the corner, through the door, up the stairs, into an apartment, into a room, into the shower and she's sucking on me like an innocent babe! Water pouring out of the nozzle and off my chest flowed like a magical river down through her hair and onto her breasts...yes I fucked her... and she...she fucked me...

Dizzy Deville sits in front of her mirror brushing her hair.

Open Season

by Scott MacKay

The Nixon Pardon

This week, in our usual illogical fashion, we will seek to merge the fearsome with the frivolous, the tragic with the comical, or as many will maintain, the insane with the inane.

Pardon me...but...I'd like to make one thing perfectly clear. I am not a liberal vulture. I certainly never yearned for the fateful day when a sunglassed handcuffed Nixon, in the tow of Federal Marshalls, was finally dragged to prison. No sultry, vermin infested, urine stained South Vietnamese tiger cage would rehabilitate this mendacious monomaniac. No pillory or hangman's noose would reform this knave. For he lied not only to the American people, a resilient lot, inured to such treatment, but also to his closest confidantes, his beleagured congressional defenders, even to his lawyers.

That Nixon will never witness the seamy bowels of a penitentiary is not my objection to President Ford's mercy-motivated pardon. Rather it is that the American people will never know the full extent of Nixon's involvement in this miasma we euphemistically term "Watergate". No judge or jury will ever unearth the extent to which Mr. Law and Order infringed upon our constitutional rights, the destruction he wreaked upon our cherished institutions and ideals. Not even a Warren Commission to peovide a facade of credibility.

And what of Nixon? Good ole Tricky is now free to peddle his biased, bowiderized version of Watergate to a publishing house for a reported two million dollars and become a member of the Geritol generation in style. Perhaps he even envisions himself in the midst of a temporary exile. Napoleon-like, his Seventh Crisis. Will he atone for his criminal actions? Never. Just like the mawkish movie resigning from the Presidency in disgrace means never having to say you're sorry.....What's next Gerry.....A supreme court nomination for Agnew?

****

"There may not be much difference between Democrats and Republicans; I have made that argument myself — with considerable venom, as I recall — over the past ten months....but only a blind geek or a waterhead could miss the difference between McGovern and Richard Nixon. Granted, they are both white men; and both politicians — but the similarity ends right there, and from that point on the difference is so vast that anybody who can't see it deserves whatever happens to them if Nixon gets re-elected..."

Hunter S. Thompson — 1972

****

"The tragic lesson of guilty men ...walking free from hundreds of courtrooms across this country has not been lost on the criminal community..."

Richard M. Nixon — 1968

AMEN

****

A Definition of Bummed-Out

In ancient times the term "Bummed-Out" was easy to define. It usually meant a bad experience with drugs, such as not being able to handle the heightened reality of a mescaline trip. But nowadays people use the term "bummer" to describe everything from the death of a loved one to the rank coffee in the Den. In an admittedly futile effort to lend clarity to this once-venerable epithet, we offer the following examples of being REALLY BUMMED OUT...

Finding out that you have contracted VD...from your supposedly steady, loyal girlfriend.

Discovering that the high-priced psychiatrist you've been getting therapy from reads "Dear Abby" for his advice.

And your sex-therapist scrutinizes every month's Playboy "Advisor".

Your condoms got recalled by the Federal Food and Drug Administration for "suspected perforations"...and you don't find out until the morning after.

Taking umpteen bennies to cram for a chem hourly...and crashing into a Rip Van Winkle sleep an hour before the exam.

Being the Queen of the Prom, never-without-a-date in high school, coming to UVM...and now you've memorized the scripts to *M*A*S*H*, All In The Family, The Mary Tyler Moore Show, and you're having fantasies over the guy who reads the 11 o'clock news.

Suffering through Abnormal Psychology...then realizing that's one subject you'll never have to leave your dorm to learn.

Buying the latest spy mystery...and discovering that the CIA censored all the good parts.

Helping your little brother with his History ...when all he wants to know is how large a kickback Jefferson received from the Louisiana Purchase.

Coming to Camp Catamount and losing your religious faith...after all, God couldn't have created the world in six days...surely he screwed off for five days and then pulled an all-nighter.

Being carded at every bar you walk into....when you're 24.

Getting rejected by a computer dating service.

Going to the bathroom at a UVM football game...and missing perhaps the only touchdown you'll see all year.

Remembering, despite what you tell everyone...that you really did vote for Nixon.

Looking at the price sticker on a gas pump.

Franklin B. Smith being nominated for a Pulitzer prize.

Wondering what your savage, football-playing jock roommate really thinks of you ...and finding out when he gives you a Playgirl subscription for your birthday.

Volunteering for a birth control pill effectiveness study... and realizing you are in the "Control" group.

Being a real Miss (Ms?) Women's Lib...and discovering yourself perusing the Mark Eden advertisements in Cosmopolitan.

Standing in line at Hannibul's for last call...and having the bartender ring the bell just as you've finally reached the bar.

Worse yet, discovering yours truly right in front of you ...on that note...we'll give this over-worked typewriter a respite 'til next week.

America
has the best advertised drug problem in the world.

The most popular headache remedies include Excedrin, Empirin, Anacin, Cope, Vanquish, Bufferin, and Bayer. But if you knew the truth, those pills might get pretty hard to swallow.

THE COMBINATION DRUGS
According to a recent American Medical Association drug report, combinations of analgesics (pain relievers) are "irrational" and "not recommended." That means remedies like Excedrin, Empirin, and Vanquish.

BUFFERED PREPARATIONS
That same report could find "no sound basis" for taking remedies like Bufferin instead of plain aspirin.

ASPIRIN AND CAFFEINE
It also found simple aspirin plus caffeine, which is what Anacin is, does no more for your headache than plain aspirin.

BAYER VS BRAND X
As for plain aspirin, there is no persuasive scientific evidence Bayer Aspirin is more effective at relieving headache than any other brand. It may differ from other brands but that doesn't mean it works better.

SAVE ON HEADACHES
The major brand remedies cost up to six times more than ordinary aspirin. Partly because you have to pay for the advertising that gets you to buy them. So next time you buy something for your head, use your head... Buy the least expensive plain aspirin you can find.

Medical Committee for Human Rights
710 South Marshfield
Chicago, Illinois 60612

Prepared by The Stern Connect

This space made available by the Vermont Cynic.

New Soviet Classical Records Released

Two of the most celebrated Soviet musicians are paired on this disc playing concertos by two leading Soviet composers. Undisputed dean of present-day Russian violinists is David Oistrakh, heard here in music by his friend Sergei Prokofiev (1891-1953). Nikolai Miaskovsky (1881-1950) is not so well known in the West as Prokofiev and Shostakovich, but he was a prolific composer of broadly proportioned pieces in two inventively formed movements. Mstislav Rostropovich brings to it his unique lyrical gifts and effortless technique, as well as a sense of poetry. Recorded in London with superb accompaniments, these two sides are important documents of Soviet music, for both their composers and performers, and the Miaskovsky was never previously released in America.

Virtuosos of the violin and cello are featured on two new Seraphim albums, playing four brilliant concertos.

David Oistrakh's fiery recording of Prokofiev's Violin Concerto No. 2 in G minor is coupled with Mstislav Rostropovich's lyrical performance of the Cello Concerto in C minor of Miaskovsky. Both are accompanied by London's Philharmonia, led respectively by Alceo Galliera and Sir Malcolm Sargent.

The Quartetto Italian Are Just One Of The Many Lane Series Attractions This Year

Another Classical Disk

PAGANINI: CONCERTO NO. 1 IN D, OP. 6
WIENIAWSKI: CONCERTO NO. 2 IN D MINOR, OP 22

Michael Rabin (violin)
Philharmonia Orchestra,
Sir Eugene Goossens cond.

Michael Rabin died in a tragic accident at his New York home in 1972 at the age of 31, depriving the world of one of the finest violinists ever born in America, who had just begun his international career.

Two earlier violin virtuosos provide the kind of music that brought out the best qualities of Rabin's playing: Niccolo Paganini (1782-1840) pushed back the frontiers of violin teaching with his own (supposedly) diabolically inspired compositions that only he could master; the Polish master Henryk Wieniawski (1835-80) also made formidable technical demands but enriched them with song-like contrasts that invite sensitive responses from a musician like Michael Rabin.

As with his album of popular short pieces reissued on Seraphim under the title "In Memoriam" (S-60199), this new album, also originally on the Capitol label, forms an invaluable souvenir of an immense, and sadly lost, talent.

News From The Ozone :
Stevie Wonder Fullfills Again

by Paul Prior

Since there is no way I can possibly hope to equal the eloquence of the first paragraph of last week's column by Scott MacKay, I'll dispense with the formalities and give you some idea of what I hope to accomplish through this weekly rock column. I want to do more than just review an album a week, being that there's a wealth of untapped sources for rock literature: concerts, films, books, periodicals, and hopefully some interviews will grace this column. Onward and Upward.

For about the last two years there has been an onslaught of albums dealing with prayer, devotion, and the virtues of religious worship. The movement's first major spokesman was George Harrison, whose "All Things Must Pass" and "Living In The Material World" albums dealt with his love for the Lord. These records clearly paved the way for musical statements by artists such as Pete Townshend, Eric Clapton, John McLaughlin, and Carlos Santana.

Clapton had been in the presence of the Lord since his days with Blind Faith, and his latest album, "461 Ocean Boulevard" carries his belief full circle, with songs such as "Give Me Strength" and "Let It Grow" being good examples. Townshend, McLaughlin, and Santana are disciples of gurus now. Townshend had Meher Baba, the Maheshvishnu and Carlos (who is now called Devjdip) are under the wing of Sri Chimnoy. The music of McLaughlin and Santana, while not being overtly Jesus oriented, is driven by an overwhelming spiritual intensity that defies description, but is easily one of the directions rock will take in the years to come.

No, rock and roll isn't dead, as many say these days—it's just dormant for the time being, much like the years before the Beatles bopped on the scene. Occasionally there will be a flash of brilliance, a superlative inadequate to convey the beauty of Stevie Wonder's new release Fulfillingness' First Finale. Of course, Wonder is no "flash" if you interpret flash to mean short lived. His previous works, Talking Book and Intervisions were heading in the spiritual direction so prevalent in (for brevity's sake) Fulfilling. The music isn't as intense as that of McLaughlin and Santana, but much mellower. "Heaven Is 10 Zillion Light Years Away" is a good illustration; an interesting melody coupled with lyrics such as these: "Let God's love shine within us to save our evil souls — For those who don't believe will never see the light "Where is my God?" — He lives inside of me.

A beautiful song. Wonder maintains excellence throughout the album — not a bad cut on it. The lyrics on "Heaven Is..." and "They Won't Go When I Go" amplify Wonder's devotion towards all religions.

The musicianship on the album is flawless. It has a distinct reggae-type influence. Wonder plays all instruments on the album, no small feat. It's a painstaking process in recording. The drumming tends to repeat itself, Wonder just speeds up, slows down in accordance to each song. That's the only complaint. He is assisted vocally by a wide variety of people: The Jackson 5 themselves on "You Haven't Done Nothing" (and if you aren't singing Doo-Doo Wop by the end of the song something is amiss). On "Heaven Is..." he is assisted by Paul Anka and Syreeta Wright, his ex-wife. Occasional side-men are used to augment the sound, but this album is Wonder's show, from first cut to last cut. Encore Stevie...

Flute And Harp Featured In Marble Court

Two evenings of music for flute and harp will be presented by Victoria Scoones and Suzanne Thomas on September 26, 8 p.m. at the Johnson Building on the Middlebury College campus, and on Sept. 27, 8 p.m., at the Marble Court of the Fleming Museum on the University of Vermont campus. Assisting them will be Jane Ambrose, flute, and Diane Williams, viola. Composers featured will be Ibert, Spohr, Berlioz, Debussy, and Persichetti.

Thomas is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, where she received the Bachelor of Music degree and the Performer's Certificate. She has also studied at the Fontainebleau School of Fine Arts in France. Her orchestral experience includes performances with the Aspen Festival Orchestra, the Berkshire Music Center orchestra and the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, of which she has been principal harpist for the past eight seasons. In 1973, Thomas was a prize winner at the Fifth International Harp Competition in Israel. She is also a faculty member of the State University of New York at Buffalo.

Scoones also received the Bachelor of Music degree from the Eastman School of Music where she studied flute with Joseph Mariano. She continued study in Switzerland with Andre Jaunet and on her return to this country earned the degree Master of Arts in Music from the University of Vermont. She is a member of the applied music faculties at the University of Vermont and Middlebury College. Scoones has performed in a number of lecture recitals throughout the state.

Ambrose has studied with James Pappoutsakis of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Skidmore College and has her Master of Arts degree from the University of Vermont. She has played with the Albany Symphony Orchestra, the Tri-City Symphony Orchestra, the Vermont State Symphony and the Vermont Philharmonic Orchestra. Ambrose is a member of the University of Vermont Con Brio Ensemble and the UVM Baroque Ensemble. She is Assistant Professor of Music at the University of Vermont.

Williams has been a member of the Buffalo Philharmonic for six years. She received the Bachelor of Arts degree from Oberlin College, where she studied viola with William Berman and voice with Robert Fountain. Further studies were at the Manhattan School of Music with William Lincer and Lillian Fuchs. She has taken part in musical activities at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, and the Monadock Music Festival. Williams has given many performances of all types of chamber music in and around Buffalo.

Victoria Scoones

DOLLAR SHOWING
Thurs. at 4:00 PM
IF
shown at
Merrill's Showcase on Williston Road
TICKETS MAY BE OBTAINED FROM BILLINGS MAIN DESK OR AT THE THEATRE

IODINE SPRINGS
ROCK 'N ROLL & BOOGIE
EVERY WEEKEND
CHAMPLAIN ISLANDS
Old Rte. 2 South Hero, Vt.
Just a Few Miles North of Burlington
OPEN EVERYDAY 4 - CLOSING
Sept. 20 & 21 - SASS
Sept. 27 & 28 - RUBY DITCH

FRESH GROUND Coffeehouse

BEVERAGE WAREHOUSE
(RETAIL OUTLET)
FANTASTIC SELECTION OF BEERS, ALES AND IMPORTED WINES
AT GREAT SAVINGS
OPEN MON. THRU SAT.
12 NOON SUNDAY
RETURNABLES WELCOME

Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS
Flynn Theatre
Main Street
TRIPLE FEATURE
Sleeper
Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Sex
Where's Poppa
Fri & Sat 11:30 PM
Night of the Living Dead
State Theatre
Bank Street
Girl From Petrovka
Mary Queen of Scots
Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
Dr. Zhivago
Parallelex View
Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
Tamarind Seed
Harrad Summer
Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
Williston Road
That's Entertainment
Oting
Slaughterhouse 5
call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights or special showings

THE LAST CHANCE SALOON
Friday Afternoon Happy Hour 4-7 P.M. ½ Pound Burger and Draft: $1.00
TUESDAY NIGHT 50¢ Specials 7-10
WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY $1 Am 7-10
147 MAIN ST.

Julie Andrews and Omar Sharif... together as only lovers worlds apart can be.
FINAL WEEK! 7:10 & 9:30
"MOVIE OF THE MONTH! It's the kind of movie you rarely see these days, a pleasure and a delight" —ED MILLER
The Tamarind Seed
2001 a space odyssey
2001 a space odyssey
First-The Harrad Experiment and then stay more family for us...
HARRAD SUMMER
Shows At 7:00 and 9:00
BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 2
PHONE 862-8078 ANYTIME!

Lane Classical

If you dig classical music, this year's Lane Series offers a complete program to fit your sophisticated taste. In addition to the many popular and semi-popular concerts, there are at least seven events that you must see.

The National Chinese Opera Theatre (Oct. 14) from Taipei, the Republic of China, represents a new adventure in opera for Lane patrons. Unlike the conventional or ultra-modern Western opera, traditional Chinese opera is total theatre: singing, dancing, acrobatics, pantomime and clowning — all with a stage orchestra.

The Orchestre de la Suisse Romande (Nov. 8) from Geneva, Switzerland, is one of the great orchestras of the world. When Ernest Ansermet was conducting it, he refused to tour America. But its new conductor, Wolfgang Sawallisch, will bring the orchestra to the U.S. for the first time. Pianist Ilana Vered, from Israel, will be the soloist. The program contains compositions by Stravinsky (Jeu de Cartes), Schumann (Piano Concerto in A Minor) and Brahms (Symphony No. 4).

The Moscow Chamber Orchestra (Jan. 14) has included some of the most

Films': Californ

by Peter Campbell

The impression I had was that California Split, Robert Altman's latest movie received very favorable reviews in New York. After seeing the film myself, I would like to chalk up another miss for Altman.

In California Split, he is tackling a great Cine-American theme— gambling, and when it comes to making films, Robert Altman is somewhat of a gambler himself. He hit the jackpot artistically and financially with *M*A*S*H*, a movie ... was just right for the time. Since then, he has been making films that were reiterations of other American genres, such as the western with McCabe and Mrs. Miller or the detective film The Long Goodbye. Like *M*A*S*H*, these movies were set in earlier times, but the people were modern characters. They were very valueless and cynical people. In *M*A*S*H*— situation of war— this became absurd and funny, but in other situations this cynicism was depressing. The feeling one got was of a destruction that was never resolved, a gnawing away at things— a tedium that the movie that was tedious to the viewer as well.

In California Split, (set in modern times), Elliot Gould and George Segal play two aging men who meet in a poker parlor. They become friends are robbed of their winnings and then become real friends in misfortune. Gould is a loud-mouthed gambling addict who lures Segal, a bored magazine writer, into the low life gambling rooms and race tracks. They drift around winning and losing till they win big in Reno, but they still feel like losers. In... ah, life's Big Game I guess.

In spite of a few good scenes, some decent acting by Elliot Gould and ...

ls Again

od interesting melody coupled d, with lyrics such as these re ...et God's love shine within us
w, to save our evil souls
e. For those who don't believe ke will never see the light gs) "Where is my God?" – He Sri lives inside of me.

of A beautiful song. Wonder ns, maintains excellence ose throughout the album – not a on bad cut on it. The lyrics on ual "Heaven Is..." and "They ers Won't Go When I Go" amplify one Wonder's devotion towards all ete religions.

The musicianship on the n') album is flawless, it has a y- distinct reggae-type influence.
me Wonder plays all instruments
ers on the album, no small feat.
ims It's a painstaking process in ere recording. The drumming
, a tends to repeat itself, Wonder in last speeds up, slows down in vie accordance to each song.
ase That's the only complaint. He
Of is assisted vocally by a wide
" if variety of people: The Jackson an 5 themselves, on "You ous Haven't Done Nothing"(and if nd you aren't singing Doo-Doo in Wop by the end of the song no something is amiss). On y's "Heaven Is..." he is assisted by uc Paul Anka and Syreeta Wright, of his ex-wife. Occasional ut side-men are used to augment 10 the sound, but this album is a Wonder's show, from first cut an to last cut. Encore Stevie...

Court

Scoones

College, where she studied viola with William Berman and voice with Robert Fountain. Further studies were at the Manhattan School of Music with William Lincer and Lillian Fuchs. She has taken part in musical activities at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, and the Monadock Music Festival. Williams has given many performances of all types of chamber music in and around Buffalo.

Lane Series Features Classical Concerts This Year

If you dig classical music, this year's Lane Series offers a complete program to fit your sophisticated taste. In addition to the many popular and semi-popular concerts, there are at least seven events that you must see.

The National Chinese Opera Theatre (Oct. 16) from Taipei, the Republic of China, represents a new adventure in opera for Lane patrons. Unlike the conventional or ultra-modern Western opera, traditional Chinese opera is total theatre: singing, dancing, acrobatics, pantomime and clowning – all with a stage orchestra.

The Orchestre de la Suisse Romande (Nov. 8) from Geneva, Switzerland, is one of the great orchestras of the world. When Ernest Ansermet was conducting it, he refused to tour America. But its new conductor, Wolfgang Sawallisch, will bring the orchestra to the U.S. for the first time. Pianist Ilana Vered, from Israel, will be the soloist. The program contains compositions by Stravinsky (Jeu de Cartes), Schumann (Piano Concerto in A Minor) and Brahms (Symphony No. 4)

The Moscow Chamber Orchestra (Jan. 14) has included some of the most distinguished musicians in the Soviet Union. Conducted by its founder, Rudolf Barshai, this noted ensemble will perform a program by Haydn (Symphony No. 44 in E Minor), Prokofiev (Visions Fugitives), Corelli (Concerto Grosso No. 8) and Vivaldi (Concerto for Two Violins).

The concert by Christopher Parkening (February 13), the young American classical guitarist, is already close to being sold out. Andres Segovia has called him "one of the most brilliant guitarists in the world." This concert will be held in Ira Allen Chapel, where it may be necessary to add stage seats to accommodate the expected overflow audience.

The Quartetto Italiano (February 18) will also perform in Ira Allen Chapel. Making its second Lane appearance (the first was sold out), it has achieved recognition as one of the three or four major string ensembles in the world.

Alicia de Larrocha (March 2), the virtuosa Spanish pianist, has recently catapulted into fame for her superb artistry and technique. She is no longer described as a foremost "woman" pianist, but simply as a pianist, period, worthy of being compared to Van Cliburn and Rubinstein. She will also be heard in Ira Allen Chapel.

Finally, mezzo-soprano Frederica von Stade (February 2 – new date) is regarded as one of the rising stars of the Metropolitan Opera. She earned accolades last year when she was chosen to open the Paris Opera in "Figaro." In 1972 von Stade was heard on the Lane Chamber Arts Series to great critical applause. She will perform in the Chapel.

In addition to these seven concerts, the lover of classical attractions may wish to attend the City Center Acting Company's production of Shakespeare's "Love's Labour's Lost" (October 1), directed by John Houseman; the Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theatre (October 9); the Intimate P.D.Q. Bach (February 22), with Professor Peter Schickle, a gigantic spoof of Baroque music; and organist Virgil Fox (February 27), with his Heavy Organ and lights show.

Both season and single concert tickets are now on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Season tickets range from $15 to $24 for six concerts. Single concert tickets are $3, $5, and $6. All 18 concerts are available as of this date.

The Lane Series opens on

Films': California Split-Another Loser

by Peter Campbell

The impression I had was that California Split, Robert Altman's latest movie, received very favorable reviews in New York. After seeing the film myself, I would like to chalk up another miss for Altman.

In California Split, he is tackling a great Cine–American theme– gambling, and when it comes to making films, Robert Altman is somewhat of a gambler himself. He hit the jackpot, artistically and financially with *M*A*S*H*, a superb parody of the war film that was just right for the time. Since then, he has been making films that were reiterations of other American genres, such as the western with McCabe and Mrs. Miller or the detective film The Long Goodbye. Like *M*A*S*H* these movies were set in earlier times, but the people were modern characters. They were very valueless and cynical people. In *M*A*S*H*– a situation of war– this became absurd and funny, but in other situations this cynicism was depressing. The feeling one got was of a destruction that was never resolved, a gnawing away at things– a tedium in the movie that was tedious to the viewer as well

In California Split, (set in modern times), Elliot Gould and George Segal play two aging men who meet in a poker parlor. They become friends, are robbed of their winnings, and then become real friends in misfortune. Gould is a loud-mouthed gambling addict who lures Segal, a bored magazine writer, into the low life gambling rooms and race tracks. They drift around winning and losing till they win big in Reno, but they still feel like losers. In... ah, life's Big Game I guess.

In spite of a few good scenes, some decent acting by Elliot Gould and some questionable acting by George Segal, this movie seemed all very deja vu. Much of it was done better in films like Husbands, The Sting, and The Cincinnati Kid.

Robert Altman may be making a series of statements about the hopelessness of modern times, but I get the feeling that this malaise has taken over Altman's directing abilities. Just as his characters have nothing to give each other, Altman seems disinclined to give anything to the viewer, other than to ask him or her to watch these movies die slowly before their eyes. Who needs it?

Frankenstein Is Monster

by Marcia Woletz

"To know death, Otto, you must fuck life in the gall bladder."

This is perhaps the best way to summarize Andy Warhol's Frankenstein. It is a bloody flick for both Andy Warhol fans, and for those interested in blood and guts. Paul Morrissey, the film's director, cornies on the tradition of Warhol making a film that arrives unexpectedly. Warhol's other films have had much the same impact on mass audiences. His works have surprised and appalled the influenced the more liberal.

As for blood and guts, there are some fine scenes of torn flesh, internal organs, and fantastic scars with a pair of third spectacles the carnage is all around you at one point.

Viewers ducked as some black bats flew at their faces.

The acting is rather good in Frankenstein. The players do not put themselves into their roles, they act when they are called upon, but they have a sense of personality which only adds to the humor of the movie. Joe Dellasantro, of Trash and Flesh fame seems to take his acting seriously. But the setting is old Eastern Europe. And his accent is pure Brooklynese. Is that enough to tell you about Joe's abilities?

So, although Warhol's Frankenstein has come and gone from Burlington, it should be back again, and it is likely to be a favorite of the college crowd for some time. If you have some idea of what this movie is about before you see it, you will not become violently ill. Forewarned, you will still probably be amazed. But don't expect to catch this one on the late-late show. TV is too tame for this monster.

Paid Lane Series Tickets Held

Paid Lane Series season tickets are being held in the Lane Office (234 Waterman) for the following persons: Shawna Murray, Ninette C.

These tickets were received on order forms with no (or inaccurate) college addresses, or were returned to the Lane Office by the post office because of faulty addresses. The above persons should claim their tickets Gratiot, Leslie Caraccioli, C. Cindy Murphy, Francis X. Feltman, Kathleen Smit, Peter M. Andrews, Stephen Crump,

Want a PAYING job?

The Lane Series wishes to hire people for its stage crew for the various concerts this year. If you are interested, get in touch with the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Tel. 656-3418. A fringe benefit is the opportunity to see the concerts you work.

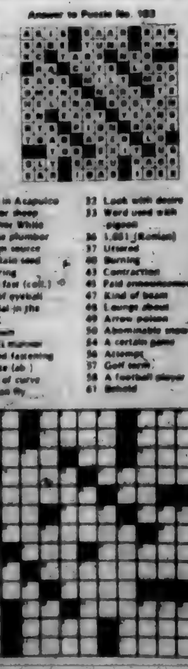
GET ACQUAINTED WITH A FINE RESTAURANT !
NEXT TO SHOWCASE I & II
SIZZLING STEAK
1216 WILLISTON ROAD
SO. BURLINGTON, VERMONT
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

AGAIN!
Student Theater Discount Cards are available to all full-time students starting Sept. 9, 1974
Stop by the Cynic office to get yours - they are free and good for .50 off movies
RIGHT ON!
Limit one per ID

862-0910 Chiott's 87 King Street
10% OFF ENTIRE TOP-SIDER LINE WITH STUDENT I.D. CARD
MENS & WOMENS:
MOCCASSINS
CANVAS & NYLON OXFORDS
FOUL WEATHER JACKETS & TROUSERS
TOP-SIDER
WE WILL ORDER ANY TOP-SIDER ITEM NOT IN STOCK AND THE DISCOUNT WILL APPLY

NEW SHIPMENT
Men's & Women's SHIRTS
only 399
Plaids & Muslins
Button Down with Pockets
CHARLESTOWN MILL STORE
65 MAIN ST

BIG BURGER Crossword Puzzle



Due to the unusual complexity of the problem there were no winners

Upon correct completion of the above crossword puzzle, BIG BURGER will award a free dinner. The meal will be given to the first 15 people who present the finished puzzle after 8:00 p.m. tonight. Winners will be announced in the next CYNIC.

The Cheese And Wine Reporter

by William Dorman

The marriage of cheese and wine must have been made in heaven, for this age-old way of entertaining is fun. All you need are two or three different types of wine, four or five different cheeses and six to eight guests.

For your first tasting party, serve three fine tasting cheeses and four wines. The cheeses are easily obtained these days at your supermarket; while the wines listed here can be purchased at your neighborhood wine shop. We have selected Californian wines since they are inexpensive. We have also listed some more expensive imports.

Let us first select the cheeses. Dorman's Swiss is an excellent cheese, available in chunks; about three pounds for 6-8 people. The flavor of Swiss cheese is sweet and nutlike. Holland Edam is a smooth, mellow cheese made from cow's milk. Danish Bleu, also known as Danablu, is an imitation of French Roquefort, an excellent quality cheese with a soft, creamy texture. Italian Provolone with its "smoky" like flavor is most pleasing. The individually wrapped small Laughing Cow cheeses are spreadable, mild and creamy.

The wines to serve are California Zinfandel, dry red wine. About $2.75 a bottle. California Cabernet Sauvignon, made from the red Bordeaux grape, about $2.75. California Pinot Noir, red burgundy, about $2.00. California Pinot Blanc, white, about $2.50. Other wines, imported, are: Greece's Domestica Red, Italy's Valpolicella, and Portugal's Rose.

Bon appetit!

«the doctor's bag»

by Arnold Werner M.D.

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner
Box 974, East Lansing, Mi. 48823

****

QUESTION: I have been working with an oxygen-acetylene welding outfit in my home basement. Everything had been going well until last night when I took a deep breath and my lungs hurt. Although breathing is normal this morning, I am wondering what gases I might be inhaling when the oxygen, acetylene and steel react. I don't know the chemical composition of the steel, I just find scraps in yards and dumps. Since the open windows don't seem to provide adequate ventilation, I thought a breathing mask might help, but I don't know anything about masks.

ANSWER: A wide variety of gases are produced in the welding process. The type of gases generated are dependent upon the nature of the material being welded and the types of chemicals the metal has been treated with. By and large, welding does not seem to be an especially dangerous procedure from the point of view of poisoning oneself with gases. However, adequate ventilation is still important.

Certain metals, especially those containing copper, do produce toxic fumes. People who weld copper-bearing metals are generally advised to wear a mask that not only filters particles from the air, but contains a canister with material which will absorb certain gases. An appropriate mask can be obtained from dealers in industrial safety equipment. They are listed in the Yellow Pages under Safety Equipment and Clothing.

****

QUESTION: My girlfriend claims that there are drugs that would grow hair on my chest. I don't believe this is possible. I have a lot of hair but it is like "peach fuzz". Would hormone injections stimulate the hair follicles to grow and darken?

I've been meaning to get this question off my chest for sometime now.

ANSWER: There are no drugs that can safely be used to grow hair on one's chest, or anywhere else. The administration of male hormones for such a purpose would be highly dangerous and probably not effective.

The major determinant of body hair distribution and appearance is genetic. Of the changes which begin at puberty, the appearance of hair on the chest and body is the slowest and latest to develop. Body hair often continues to increase in amount and distribution into the twenties.

Dear Dr. Werner:

We were much interested in your discussion on cockroaches. We will have to disagree with you on one point. We have living proof that cockroaches get larger than 2 inches. We have a pet cockroach named George who is 3½ inches long. His scientific name is Blaberus giganteus and his common name is the Giant West Indian Leaf cockroach.

By the way, George is an ideal pet. He requires minimum care and is well-behaved and quiet. We also have three kittens and for their protection, we have found it advisable to keep George in a cage when not being supervised.

Thank you for telling me about George. About his qualifications as a pet: How does he show affection?

*****

QUESTION: I know that you have said that masturbation can be an asset to a sexual relationship in marriage. I agree that this is true, especially when one partner is unwilling or unable to engage in sex. In my case, my husband is home alone part of the day while I am at work and I know that he masturbates. Then, in the evening when I feel sexually aroused, his sexual desire is nil. I seem to be good only for a weekend fling. This was not the case a little while ago when we were both away from home during the day and I am very frustrated by his behavior. I wouldn't mind so much if he had a low-key sexual desire or a lack of interest in sex, but I know that this isn't true.

ANSWER: The situation you describe is not going to be an especially easy one to deal with. However, it is manageable. As I have indicated, masturbation occuring during marriage usually does not interfere with heterosexual relations as it tends to occur when heterosexual relations are either not possible, do not occur frequently enough for one or the other partners or are not sexually gratifying. Masturbation tends to occur more frequently when a person is under pressure and, for some people, when they are anxious. Many single men, for instance, report more frequent masturbation during examination periods or other times of stress.

There has obviously been a change in your domestic situation. In addition to what you describe as going on sexually, you also indicate that your husband is home more. Is it possible that he is under more stress than he was before? How are things going in your relationship outside of the sexual area? Answers to these questions might guide you in dealing with this problem.

It may be that your husband has a relatively low tolerance for delaying gratification and yields to small urges for sexual release. Since he is home and alone, there is little restraint. If the situation is one in which you cannot identify what to do to direct his sexual attentions more toward you, you may have to take the matter up with him directly.

I was curious about your statement that you know that he masturbates when he is home. Is he giving you a poorly disguised message that he is under pressure of some sort? Perhaps he wants to talk about what is going on and is waiting for you to bring the issue up. If you take the matter up directly, your task will be to act in a supportive manner rather than in an accusative way. ("Lately we have been having sex less frequently, I am wondering if there is anything wrong" as opposed to: "Why are you ignoring me?")

As I indicated before, these are not the world's easiest things to talk about; the odds remain however that the masturbation is a symptom of some difficulty rather than a difficulty in and of itself.

*****

QUESTION: I have a dry scalp! I have tried all the commercial shampoos and wonder if there is some helpful homespun remedy or some brand that I have not heard of.

ANSWER: In dry weather, many people suffer from dry scalp and think they have dandruff. This is especially true if they shampoo their hair with strong detergent type shampoos too frequently. A homespun remedy that combats this is to rub olive oil into your scalp and then wrap your head in wet hot towels. Let the olive oil soak in for a good hour or so and then shampoo your hair with one of the milder products, Breck is one that was recommended to me.

Please understand that you shampoo the olive oil out of your hair before you appear in public (or appear in public at your own risk). Between olive oil treatments, wash your hair only as often as absolutely necessary.

In cool weather, the general advice is to shampoo your hair less frequently than you do during warm weather. Try this for a few weeks. If there is no improvement, you might need to see a dermatologist.

Dry weather also results in dry skin for a lot of people. Frequent bathing makes the situation worse as protective skin oils are removed. Less frequent bathing and the use of a body lotion helps the skin problem.

QUESTION: My wife and I have noticed that certain foods, particularly the legumes, cabbage, and eggs, lend themselves to the production of flatulence. What is it about these foods that cause this condition? Also, can the effect be counteracted with another type of food? We live in a small apartment and the odor is sometimes unbearable.

ANSWER: There is a noticeable seasonal variation in the type of letters I receive. Within a few days I received several letters similar to this one, which I can only assume was due to rainy weather driving people indoors. As you can imagine, some of the questions were more difficult to answer than others. I really do not know if men are noisier than women or what the difference is between a silent fart and an explosive one. Fortunately, the present letter is answerable.

The vast bulk of gas that is passed by rectum is produced in the small intestine and large intestine by bacterial action on various foods. The volume of gas and the composition of the gas is determined by the nature of the food material worked upon, as well as by the type of bacteria involved. In fact, the bacterial population changes somewhat in response to different foods ingested.

The legumes (including navy beans, soy beans and lima beans) are pretty wicked gas producers. This seems to occur because they are broken down into low molecular weight carbohydrates and are acted on by a certain type of anaerobic bacteria (they work in the absence of oxygen) that live in the small intestine and colon. Careful experiments have been done to demonstrate the particular part of the bean and the specific bacteria involved.

Gas production from these foods can begin in about six to eight hours after they are ingested and last for as long as 24 hours. Diets high in meat protein produce heavy gasses in larger volumes and eggs seem to do the same thing for some people. Cabbage and other foods are equally infamous in regard to gas production. However, there does not appear to be a food which cancels out the effects of other foods. As I have indicated in this column before, some of the gasses produced are inflammable.

Among the situations other than dietary ones which influence gas production, anxiety ranks high. There is some dispute over whether air swallowing, often associated with anxiety, increases gas production or whether it just produces more belching. But, when a person is anxious his gut works in strange ways. Viral gastrointestinal illnesses and any use of antibiotics can influence the bacterial population of the gut and change gas production.

*****

QUESTION: My question concerns the growth of hair on the penis. I am not worried about this, but I have about a dozen hairs gathered along the left side and underside of the penis but none on the glans. Is this unusual?

ANSWER: Hair on the shaft of the penis is not at all unusual. Usually the situation is just as you describe it, and I have not seen any furry penises; nor have I seen any with hairs on the glans. A lot of people spend a lot of time worrying about the size, shape and appearance of their penises. As with other simple functional devices, the best attitude to take is: If it works, don't worry about it.

*****

QUESTION: What exactly is "non specific urethritis." Is it a form of gonorrhea?

ANSWER: Something non specific is exactly inexact. Non specific urethritis refers to an inflammation of the urethra (the tube carrying urine from the bladder in the woman and the common exit for urine and semen in the man). Such a urethritis can be caused by a variety of organisms, but excludes the type or urethritis caused by gonorrhea. These inflammations are treated by antibiotics after a physician determines for sure that syphilis or gonorrhea is not present. Inflammations generally cause annoying itching, but are not dangerous. They should be treated, however.

PLANTASIA

Mostly ~ Plants
Macrame'
Pots
Soils

Advice
Which?
What?
Where?
How?

107 St. Paul Street Burlington 864-9537

You just can't stuff 100 musicians and a fat contralto into a wooden box.

Yet most speaker manufacturers are trying to do just that. And they're good at it. Catch every sound and tunnel it right out at you with range and strength.

But they've missed the main concept of sound:

When you're really there, live, the sound doesn't come from one place. It comes from all over the place—bouncing above you, beside you and behind you as well as right at you.

Studiocraft speakers are designed not to bring you all the sounds, but to bring your room all the sounds.

Thanks to a unique design concept called Acousticouple®, the speakers are acoustically joined to the surrounding walls, to produce radiational as well as direct sound.

The kind you hear in a concert hall or a jazz club—but may never have heard before from a stereo system.

The kind you can hear at our place, all this week. We've got a system all revved up, and invite you to bring your ears in for a test drive.

Studiocraft

tech hifi

159 CHURCH ST. BURLINGTON, VT. 05401

royal christy

BURLINGTON'S ONLY SPECIALTY SHOP

PRE-SEASON SALE
20-50% OFF
'73-'74 EQUIPMENT

SKIS	WERE	NOW	BOOTS	WERE	NOW
OLIN MARK II	189.	122.95	NORDICA OLYMPIC	185.	92.95
OLIN MARK III	175.	131.95	NORDICA SLALOM	160.	125.
LANGE SL/GS	185.	111.95	NORDICA PRO	120.	84.
LANGE LC	150.	80.95	MERCURY	100.	75.95
DYNASTAR MV²	180.	120.95	ALPINA	45.	30.95
DYNASTAR S-730	209.	167.95	LANGE BANSHEE	180.	144.95
DYNASTAR S-430	180.	144.95	LANGE DEMON	130.	91.95

located within The Ski Shop — royal christy — 388 Shelburne Rd public (or appear in public at d treatments, wash your hair ery) al advice is to shampoo your o during warm weather. Try no improvement, you might dry skin for a lot of people.

ntention worse as protective veral bathing and the use of a ren
noticed that certain foods,
e, and eggs, tend themselves
What is it about these foods
Also, can the effect be of food? We live in a small mes intolerable.
le seasonal variation in the a few days I received several
I can only assume was due ndoors. As you can imagine, re difficult to answer than men are quicker than women when a silent fart and an present latter is answerable.
used by rectum is produced intestine by bacterial action f gas and the composition of nature of the food material type of bacteria involved. In hanges somewhat in response

y beans, soy beans and lima oducers. This seems to occur into low molecular weight on by a certain type of the absence of oxygen) that colon. Careful experiments e the particular part of the olved.
ods can begin in about six to ed and last for as long as 24 can produce heavy gassing in do the same thing for some ds are equally infamous in ver, there does not appear to effects of other foods. As I before, some of the gases than dietary ones which y ranks high. There is some wing, often associated with n or whether it just produces son is anxious his gut works stinal illnesses and any use of terial population of the gut ns the growth of hair on the hin, but I have about a dozen n and underside of the penis nal?"

the penis is not at all unusual.
you describe it, and I have not" e I seen any with hairs on the t of time worrying about the their "penises. As with other best attitude to take in--If it non specific urethritis." Is it a cific is exactly inexact. Non inflammation of the urethra the bladder in the woman and d semen in the man). Such a a variety of organisms, but ' caused by gonorrhea. These antibiotics after a physician

a or gonorrhea is not present.
annoying itching, but are not ed, however.

sty

WERE NOW
C 185. 92.⁵⁰
M 160. 125.
O 120. 84.
RY 100. 75.⁰⁰
A 45. 30.⁰⁰
EE 180. 144.⁰⁰
N 130. 91.⁵⁰

Shelburne Rd

Fall Campus Fashions 1974

A Dedicated Follower Of Fashion

The Double Breasted Look Is Back!

Based On A Novel By Elliot Freeman

All Photos By Wynn Gold

Keeping It Out Front And Ahead Of All The Rest

MEXICO NORTH
at the 5 corners Essex Jct., Vt.
Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont
Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more
Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.
10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

Maybe Einstein didn't need one. But the rest of us do.

SHARP

Small, fast and easy. That's Sharp's new, handy slip-in pocketable EL 122. Yet, you can perform complicated calculations up to 12 digits. So easy on the mind, so easy on the pocket, financially as well as workwise. Years ahead in quality!
Calculates up to 12 digits with double capacity system
Easy-to-read zero suppress system
Overflow error check device
Easy-to-operate algebraic operation
Chain multiplication & division
Complete floating decimal point positioning
Automatic clearing system
Lower digits indicator
Battery or AC operation.

only $39.95

MCAULIFFE, INC.
burlington square north, burlington, vermont 05401
658-4444

UVM STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF
BOOGIE YOUR BOARDS OFF!
at
Smugglers' Notch
$5.00 DISCOUNT PASS
$5.00 weekday (Reg. $10.00) $7.00 weekend (Reg. $11.00)
BUSES WILL BE RUNNING FROM CAMPUS ALL SEASON
REPRESENTATIVE AND CAMERA WILL BE AT BILLINGS CENTER:
Mon, Sept. 23rd
Tues, Sept. 24th
Wed, Sept. 25th
10AM - 6 PM
I.D. Pictures are required and will be taken at this time.

OFFER ENDS OCT1st

Fall Campus Fashions 1974

A Dedicated Follower Of Fashion

The Double Breasted Look is Back!

Based On A Novel By Elliot Freeman

All Photos By Wynn Gold

Keeping It Out Front And Ahead Of All The Rest

MEXICO NORTH
at the 5 corners Essex Jct., Vt.
Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont
Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more
Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.
10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

UVM STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF
BOOGIE YOUR BOARDS OFF!
at
Smugglers' Notch
$5.00 DISCOUNT PASS
$5.00 weekday (Reg. $10.00) $7.00 weekend (Reg. $11.00)
BUSES WILL BE RUNNING FROM CAMPUS ALL SEASON
REPRESENTATIVE AND CAMERA WILL BE AT BILLINGS CENTER:
Mon, Sept. 23rd
Tues, Sept. 24th
Wed, Sept. 25th
10AM - 6 PM
I.D. Pictures are required and will be taken at this time.
OFFER ENDS OCT1st

Maybe Einstein didn't need one. But the rest of us do.
SHARP
Small, fast and easy. That's Sharp's new, handy slip-in pocketable EL 122. Yet, you can perform complicated calculations up to 12 digits. So easy on the mind, so easy on the pocket, financially as well as workwise. Years ahead in quality!
Calculates up to 12 digits with double capacity system
Easy-to-read zero suppress system
Overflow error check device
Easy-to-operate algebraic operation
Chain multiplication & division
Complete floating decimal point positioning
Automatic clearing system
Lower digits indicator
Battery or AC operation.
only $39.95
MCAULIFFE, INC.
burlington square north, burlington, vermont 05401
658-4444

Shanker Tries To Organize Profs...

(continued from page one)

Still, many professors here were unhappy with the A.F.T.'s activities for them.

"Often I get the feeling that we're a dependent of the A.F.T.," said Frederic Leviss of the State University of New York at Stony Brook. He suggested that college professors form a higher education caucus in the A.F.T. similar to the one formed two years ago in the N.E.A.

"I think the A.F.T. could do more in higher education," said Irwin Polishook, first vice-president of the faculty union at The City University of New York. "The staff are few. The money spent is modest."

Many professors said they found A.F.T. staff members uninformed about higher education and the A.F.T. leadership insensitive to their problems.

What especially angered many of the professors, particularly those from New York, was the failure of Mr. Shanker and his supporters to include any campus union leaders among the 30 vice presidents who sit on the A.F.T. executive council. (One vice president, Jules Kolodny, a long-time Shanker supporter, teaches at New York University but many of the professors said they did not view him as their representative.)

College leaders had sought vice presidencies for Chicago's Mr. Swanson, whom one delegate called "Mr. College Unionism," and the City University's Mr. Polishook, as a representative of the fifth largest local in the entire A.F.T. But neither was nominated by Mr. Shanker's Progressive Caucus.

When they learned the night before the election that Mr. Polishook would not be supported, delegates from the City University went to see Mr. Shanker in his suite on the eighth floor of the Royal York Hotel here.

"An Emotional Outburst"

They told Mr. Shanker that he was not very popular with college professors, and they felt they deserved more service and a larger voice in the union's affairs.

One delegate called it "an emotional outburst."

"We came in like a bad-mannered hungry local," said another.

Mr. Shanker listened for a while, then he "finally admitted that there was nothing in the A.F.T. for higher education in the way of structure and services," according to one delegate.

He promised the professors that "something of a substantial character" would be done for higher education in the A.F.T.

"Shanker became aware of higher education after that meeting," said one delegate.

The next day Mr. Shanker made his promises public and acknowledged that "there is a lot of room for improvement" in the A.F.T.'s campus programs. He also admitted that "it was a mistake that there is not an additional college vice-president."

In other actions related to higher education, the A.F.T. convention:

Condemned tenure quotas.

Called upon colleges to "divulge the reasons for all personnel actions," including decisions not to grant tenure.

Supported free tuition and open admissions.

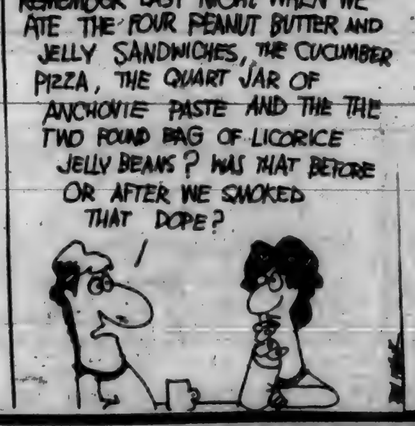
Supported faculty status for librarians and urged that such status be included in A.F.T. contracts.

Supported affirmative-action plans aimed at increasing the number of women on college faculties.

The vote on affirmative action was one of the closest of the convention. Some delegates thought the resolution was too weak; others, that it was too strong.

One delegate attempted to remove the words "affirmative-action plans" from the resolution on the grounds that such plans involve quotas. Another delegate attempted to substitute a resolution calling for an A.F.T. "organizing program for women in higher education." Both amendments were rejected.

FRANKLY SPEAKING...by phil frank



For Life's Necessities, Dial '0'

By Rick Mitz

Not since the mail-order bride business have we been able to buy so much without ever moving. We can get anything via Ma Bell these days. We can register for college, feed a feast to 17 hungries, have our rugs cleaned, have our nails sprayed, furnish our classrooms and even visit our mothers—all by letting you fingers do the walking and your mouth do the talking. And if you can't do that, you just call a number and they'll send out someone who can.

Last Saturday, I went downtown to a large department store and found that the place was more barren than Palm Springs in July. I told the manager I was sorry that business was so bad.

"Bad!" he bayed. "Business has never been better. We've never sold more. It's just that everybody's ordering everything over the phone."

He led me to a room crowded with hundreds of ladies wearing telephone headsets over their blue hair and cauliflower ears. It looked like a joint convention of the League of Women Voters, Hadassah and the DAR. I walked around and listened.

"Yes, Mrs. Slotnick. We'll send out your artificial resuscitator this afternoon. Will someone be home to accept delivery?"

"I'm sorry, Ma'm, but we have a $5 minimum purchase on deliveries. Now if you add a loaf of bread and some cheese to your salami..."

Then the manager took me to the fortress in the next room where the delivery boys were lined up against the wall waiting for their assignments.

"Jimmy Slocum!" the manager called.

"Yes, Sir," he said, clicking his heels together and stepping forward for his mission.

"Slocum, scoot up to lingerie and get two 36 Cross-Your-Hearts for Mrs. Scott on 1989 Lilac Lane, 44307."

"Yes, Sir!" he clicked and off he went to lingerie.

"What about the rest of the store," I asked the manager. "Nobody's here."

"We just keep the store open for tax purposes," he explains. "It looks good. I mean, we aren't in the mail order business."

"I'm looking for a pair of jockey shorts," I whispered. "Where can I find someone to help me?"

He told me to wait and called out pretty Miss Smythe from the phone room.

"Sir," Miss Smythe said. "May I help you?"

"Yeah. I'd like a pair of, um, jockey shorts."

"Oh," she said, looking befuddled. "Well, let me see.. our horseback riding attire is on sixth floor..."

"No, no, no," I said. "Jocket shorts...underpants. Where's your men's underwear department?"

"Gee...I don't know," she said and then smiled. "Why don't you trot across the street to the pay phone and call me and I can have them delivered to you there. I'm not sure how to do it any other way. You can charge it."

"I don't have a charge account here. I wanted to pay cash."

"Cash? Oh, you mean like money." She beamed.

"Yes. Sort of like money."

"This is highly irregular. I don't think we deal in cash here." She paused. Say, why don't you just shoplift the underwear? Our insurance will cover it."

"Listen, Miss Smythe. Where can I open a charge account?"

"At the phone booth across the street."

"Thanks, Miss Smythe," I said, and began to walk away. "Say, can you tell me where the restroom is?"

"Gee," she said. "You can have that delivered, too. And charge it, of course."

I thanked pretty young Miss Smythe again and walked across the street. There was a line 100 feet long waiting to get into the phone booth. I overheard a lady talking on the phone.

"Could you send over a ham on rye—hey how 'a the mayo—with garnish and a pickle? Just charge it to my account. I'm the lady in the chartreuse dress."

Finally, it was my turn. "Could you please send over two pairs of jockey shorts, size 32. I'm the one with the worn out underwear on. And—oh, yes—could you also send over Miss Smythe, about a size 6, I think."

I now do all my shopping by phone.

Too Much To Remember

do you hear the music playing can you see the trees softly swaying
as we sit here

the autumn night embraces
we talk about the places
that we've been to

nighttime in the city
I sang a little ditty
as I kicked along the sidewalk

you were in Chicago
with no place to go
so you mingled with the streetlamps

you say you really missed me
wanted so much to kiss me
and hold me close to you

I lay in bed with someone beating like a drum
I drank too much wiskey to remember

—Elliot Freeman

A Look At Another Food Program

Storrs, Conn. – (I.P.) – When it comes to student-operated food services, undergraduates at the University of Connecticut are writing the book for the whole nation.

The Associated Student Commissaries (ASC) was organized about a year ago, and recently, President Michael Duane reports that the $2.5 million-a-year operation appears to be in for a bright future.

Mr. Duane, a junior, heads the non-profit corporation which provides about 2,000,000 meals annually for more than 4,000 students. The ASC operates this way:

Undergraduates in 18 dormitories delegate the management of their kitchens to the ASC which hires a chef, buys the food, provides dietary supervision, insures quality control, maintains records and trains food handlers.

Students pay from $220 to $310 each semester for food services. For these prices students receive three meals a day, five days a week, plus between-meal snacks. "The women's units usually pay the smaller amounts – the girls don't each as much as the men," quipped Mr. Duane.

Kent Banning, coordinator of the University dining halls, reports that the ASC units provide well-balanced meals, high in nutritional value. What's more, he says, students receive very generous portions – with seconds or thirds for most items.

Mr. Banning, who gives a helping hand to the ASC, noted that nutritional experts on the faculty of the School of Home Economics serve as consultants to the ASC to insure wholesome menus.

Mr. Banning also noted that ASC buys quantities of steak, lobster, roast beef, turkey and other dietary mainstays. At the same time, however, a liberal amount of hamburg and hot dogs also are on the ASC menus because "that's what the students want."

This bulk buying – of both food and supplies – actually saves money for each of the dining units, says Mr. Duane. He also notes savings result from centralized accounting procedures, and the investment of extra capital. Last year, investments earned $19,000.

Under terms of the ASC constitution, the organization consists of individual housing units which select one representative for the ASC governing council. The Council is served by a Board of Directors which actually handles the ASC operations. The president receives a $1,000 stipend, the treasurer $500, and board members, $50 per semester.

Virtually all of Mr. Duane's spare time is spent in the ASC offices, or on the phone communicating with stewards, assistant stewards, chefs and others in the various dormitory kitchens.

The ASC hires its own professional personnel, including purchasing officer E.W. Grafton. It employs a total of 140 full-time and 700 part-time workers. Though on paper, the ASC might appear to be a cold "big business" kind of operation not responsive to the individual student, nothing could be further from the truth.

Each residential unit has control over its own menus and if the students don't like the fare – they change it.

CLINIQUE

THE BEAUTY SYSTEM WOMEN BELIEVE BECAUSE

IT WORKS

Clinique's skin care system is simple and fast—scientifically programmed for your specific skin type. More effective than you ever thought possible. Designed under the guidance of leading dermatologists—basic skin care with just 3 products, 3 steps, that take just 3 minutes. You'll see results in just a week! Think about the future. Think about Clinique. It works.

Exclusively at

mayfair

the store with the green door Upper Church St. Burlington

HORNY BULLS THINK A BULL FIGHT IS A LIE SWAPPING CONTEST.

The Montezuma Horny Bull:
1 oz. Montezuma Tequila.
5 oz. CONCENTRATED ORANGE BREAKFAST DRINK. Over ice.
It's sensational, and that's no bull.

Montezuma TEQUILA

©1976 80 Proof Tequila Barton Distillers Import Co. New York, New York

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE

INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 862-7666

FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS

- Fine work on American cars
- Firestone tires • Eddie Bettinger
- Front end alignment • Spin balancing
- Undercoating • Engine rebuilding

INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES

VW BRAKE JOB $49.95
Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 new drums, rebuilt 4 wheel cylinders. Discs $10 additional.

VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

Maximun Abandon

Josh McDowell is a follower of Christ who tours the world's universities speaking on the subject of his religious faith and how it ties in with current events, national crises and topics of interest to youth and elders alike. His recent visit to UVM was sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ and included three different presentations. I attended one of these entitled Maximum Sex.

"Why sex?", Josh first asked of his audience. "Because, according to the Bible, 'two should become one flesh'. This ultimate or maximum oneness can be attained only if a relationship is rich in three separate dimensions," explained Josh. The three aspects which must be fulfilled in order to experience maximum sex, according to Josh, are physical, psychological and spiritual oneness. Josh believes that too much emphasis is placed on the physical aspect nowadays while the psychology and spirituality of the experience are ignored. Sex partners are all too concerned about various positions and techniques in their attempts to physically please one another. The most important sex organ, contends Josh, is the mind. Josh points out that the main purpose of sex is not procreation – world census figures illustrate this

Full Fre Held Pr

by Audrey Rothstein

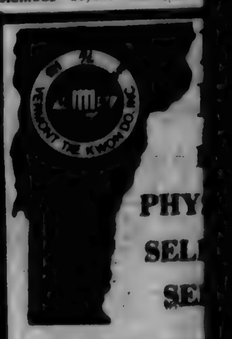
Due to the threat of a fuel shortage, freshman orientation was held the week prior to the beginning of classes this semester. Formerly orientation was held during June, but last February when the dates were under consideration, the orientation committee decided on a fall orientation.

Nancy Magnus, chairperson of the committee, said that students were saved the cost of a special trip to UVM during a time when gas prices were expected to be high and lines long.

Registration for classes was done by mail earlier in the summer and John Stanton, associate registrar, said that freshmen did a good job filling out the necessary forms. He added that the departments, for the most part, did a good job of explaining schedules and curriculums in the literature they sent out. But Stanton said that he felt something was lost in that the freshmen were not able to meet face to face with their advisors prior to setting up their schedules.

The program itself ran from Monday, August 26, through Monday, September 2. Activities included such things as a hot dog roast, a hike up Stowe and several movies.

According to Bonnie Broch, the IRA program coordinator, the most popular activities were a freshman mixer and the showing of "Goodbye Columbus." "One hundred people were turned away from "Goodbye Columbus" because there just



PHY
SEL
SE
DAY & EVE
MEN-WOME
VER
TAE KWO
LAKE SHORE DR
MALLETS BAY
864-0414
VISITORS

Shanker Tries To Organize Profs...

(continued from page one)

Still, many professors here were unhappy with the A.F.T.'s activities for them.

"Often I get the feeling that we're a dependent of the A.F.T.," said Frederic Levine of the State University of New York at Stony Brook. He suggested that college professors form a higher education caucus in the A.F.T. similar to the one formed two years ago in the N.E.A.

"I think the A.F.T. could do more in higher education," said Irwin Polishook, first vice-president of the faculty union at The City University of New York. "The staff are few. The money spent is modest."

Many professors said they found A.F.T. staff members uninformed about higher education and the A.F.T. leadership insensitive to their problems.

What especially angered many of the professors, particularly those from New York, was the failure of Mr. Shanker and his supporters to include any campus union leaders among the 30 vice presidents who sit on the A.F.T. executive council. (One vice president, Jules Kolodny, a long-time Shanker supporter, teaches at New York University but many of the professors said they did not view him as their representative.)

College leaders had sought vice presidencies for Chicago's Mr. Swenson, whom one delegate called "Mr. College Unionism," and the City University's Mr. Polishook, as a representative of the fifth largest local in the entire A.F.T. But neither was nominated by Mr. Shanker's Progressive Caucus.

When they learned the night before the election that Mr. Polishook would not be supported, delegates from the City University went to see Mr. Shanker in his suite on the eighth floor of the Royal York Hotel here.

"An Emotional Outburst"

They told Mr. Shanker that he was not very popular with college professors, and they felt they deserved more service and a larger voice in the union's affairs.

One delegate called it "an emotional outburst."

"We came in like a bad-mannered hungry local," said another.

Mr. Shanker listened for a while, then he "finally admitted that there was nothing in the A.F.T. for higher education in the way of structure and services," according to one delegate.

He promised the professors that "something of a substantial character" would be done for higher education in the A.F.T.

"Shanker became aware of higher education after that meeting," said one delegate.

The next day Mr. Shanker made his promises public and acknowledged that "there is a lot of room for improvement" in the A.F.T.'s campus programs. He also admitted that "it was a mistake that there is not an additional college vice-president."

In other actions related to higher education, the A.F.T. convention:

Condemned tenure quotas.

Called upon colleges to "divulge the reasons for all personnel actions," including decisions not to grant tenure.

Supported free tuition and open admissions.

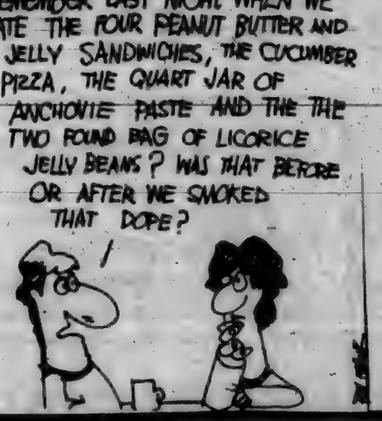
Supported faculty status for librarians and urged that such status be included in A.F.T. contracts.

Supported affirmative-action plans aimed at increasing the number of women on college faculties.

The vote on affirmative-action was one of the closest of the convention. Some delegates thought the resolution was too weak; others, that it was too strong.

One delegate attempted to remove the words "affirmative-action plans" from the resolution on the grounds that such plans involve quotas. Another delegate attempted to substitute a resolution calling for an A.F.T. "organizing program for women in higher education." Both amendments were rejected.

FRANKLY SPEAKING...by phil frank



For Life's Necessities, Dial '0'

by Rick Mike

Not since the mail-order bride business have we been able to buy so much without ever moving. We can get anything via Ma Bell these days. We can register for college, find a feast to 17 hungries, have our rugs cleaned, have our cars towed, furnish our classroom and even visit our mothers—all by letting you fingers do the walking and your mouth do the talking. And if you can't do that, you just call a number and they'll send out someone who can.

Last Saturday, I went downtown to a large department store and found that the place was more barren than Palm Springs in July. I told the manager I was sorry that business was so bad.

"Bad!" he bayed. "Business has never been better. We've never sold more. It's just that everybody's ordering everything over the phone."

He led me to a room crowded with hundreds of ladies wearing telephone headsets over their blue hair and cauliflower ears. It looked like a joint convention of the League of Women Voters, Hadassah and the DAR. I walked around and listened.

"Yes, Mrs. Slotnick. We'll send out your artificial resuscitator this afternoon. Will someone be home to accept delivery?"

"I'm sorry, Ma'm, but we have a $5 minimum purchase on deliveries. Now if you add a loaf of bread and some cheese to your salami..."

Then the manager took me to the fortress in the next room where the delivery boys were lined up against the wall waiting for their assignments.

"Jimmy Slocum!" the manager called.

"Yes, Sir," he said, clicking his heels together and stepping forward for his mission.

"Slocum, scoot up to lingerie and get two 36 Cross-Your-Hearts for Mrs. Scott on 1989 Lilac Lane, 44307."

"Yes, Sir!" he clicked and off he went to lingerie.

"What about the rest of the store," I asked the manager. "Nobody's here."

"We just keep the store open for tax purposes," he explains. "It looks good. I mean, we aren't in the mail order business."

"I'm looking for a pair of jockey shorts," I whispered. "Where can I find someone to help me?"

He told me to wait and called out pretty Miss Smythe from the phone booth.

"Sir," Miss Smythe said. "May I help you?"

"Yeah. I'd like a pair of, um, jockey shorts."

"Oh," she said, looking befuddled. "Well, let me see.. our boxbook riding arms is on sixth floor..."

"No, no, no," I spid. "Jocket shorts...underpants. Where's your men's underwear department?"

"Gee...I don't know," she said and then smiled. "Why don't you just across the street to the pay phone and call me and I can have them delivered to you there. I'm not sure how to do it any other way. You can charge it."

"I don't have a charge account here. I wanted to pay cash."

"Cash? Oh, you mean like money." She beamed.

"Yes. Sort of like money."

"This is highly irregular. I don't think we deal in cash here." She paused. Say, why don't you just shoplift the underwear? Our insurance will cover it."

"Listen, Miss Smythe. Where can I open a charge account?"

"At the phone booth across the street."

"Thanks, Miss Smythe," I said, and began to walk away. "Say,..can you tell me where the restroom is?"

"Gee," she said. "You can have that delivered, too. And charge it, of course."

I thanked pretty young Miss Smythe again and walked across the street. There was a line 100 feet long waiting to get into the phone booth. I overheard a lady talking on the phone.

"Could you send over a ham on rye—lay low on the mayo—with garnish and a pickle? Just charge it to my account. I'm the lady in the chartreuse dress."

Finally, it was my turn. "Could you please send over two pairs of jockey shorts, size 32. I'm the one with the worn out underwear on. And—oh, yes—could you also send over Miss Smythe, about a size 6, I think."

I now do all my shopping by phone.

Too Much To Remember

do you hear the music playing
can you see the trees softly swaying
as we sit here

the autumn night embraces
we talk about the places
that we've been to

nightime in the city
I sang a little ditty
as I kicked along the sidewalk

you were in Chicago
with no place to go
so you mingled with the streetlamps

you say you really missed me
wanted so much to kiss me
and hold me close to you

I lay in bed with someone beating like a drum
I drank too much wiskey to remember

—Elliot Freeman

A Look At Another Food Program

Storrs, Conn. – (I.P.) – When it comes to student-operated food services, undergraduates at the University of Connecticut are writing the book for the whole nation.

The Associated Student Commissaries (ASC) was organized about a year ago, and recently, President Michael Duane reports that the $2.5 million-a-year operation appears to be in for a bright future.

Mr. Duane, a junior, heads the non-profit corporation which provides about 2,000,000 meals annually for more than 4,000 students. The ASC operates this way:

Undergraduates in 58 dormitories delegate the management of their kitchens to the ASC which hires a chef, buys the food, provides dietary supervision, insures quality control, maintains records and trains food handlers.

Students pay from $220 to $310 each semester for food services. For these prices students receive three meals a day, five days a week, plus between-meal snacks. "The women's units usually pay the smaller amounts – the girls don't each as much as the men," quipped Mr. Duane.

Kent Banning, coordinator of the University dining halls, reports that the ASC units provide well-balanced meals, high in nutritional value. What's more, he says, students receive very generous portions – with seconds or thirds for most items.

Mr. Banning, who gives a helping hand to the ASC, noted that nutritional experts on the faculty of the School of Home Economics serve as consultants to the ASC to insure wholesome menus.

Mr. Banning also noted that ASC buys quantities of steak, lobster, roast beef, turkey and other dietary mainstays. At the same time, however, a liberal amount of hamburg and hot dogs also are on the ASC menus because "that's what the students want."

This bulk buying – of both food and supplies – actually saves money for each of the dining units, says Mr. Duane. He also notes savings result from centralized accounting procedures, and the investment of extra capital. Last year, investments earned $19,000.

Under terms of the ASC constitution, the organization consists of individual housing units which select one representative for the ASC governing council. The Council is served by a Board of Directors which actually handles the ASC operations. The president receives a $1,000 stipend, the treasurer $500, and board members, $50 per semester.

Virtually all of Mr. Duane's spare time is spent in the ASC offices,—or—on the phone communicating with servers, assistant stewards, chefs and others in the various dormitory kitchens.

The ASC hires its own professional personnel, including purchasing officer R.W. Grafton. It employs a total of 140 full-time and 700 part-time workers. Though on paper, the ASC might appear to be a cold "big business" kind of operation not responsive to the individual student, nothing could be further from the truth.

Each residential unit has control over its own menus and if the students don't like the fare – they change it.

CLINIQUE

THE BEAUTY SYSTEM WOMEN BELIEVE BECAUSE

IT WORKS

Clinique's skin care system is simple and fast—scientifically programmed for your specific skin type. More effective than you ever thought possible. Designed under the guidance of leading dermatologists—basic skin care with just 3 products, 3 steps, that take just 3 minutes. You'll see results in just a week! Think about the future. Think about Clinique. It works.

WHAT'S YOUR SKIN TYPE? THE CLINIQUE COMPUTER WILL TELL YOU

Find out from your Clinique Consultant. She'll give you a fast, free skin analysis with the Clinique Computer. The heart of the Clinique System at each store. It's how you begin to get effective results for your skin.

CLINIQUE'S UNBEATABLE SKIN CARE

The system tested by dermatologists: usage 3 quick steps to get your skin in shape and keep it fresh. Soap Mild or Extra Strength, 7.50. Clarifying Lotion in three strengths, one exactly right for your skin type, 6.00. Dramatically Different Moisturizing Lotion, the drink all skins need daily, 7.50.

Exclusively at

mayfair

the store with the green door

Upper Church St. Burlington

HORNY BULLS THINK A BULL FIGHT IS A LIE SWAPPING CONTEST.

The Montezuma Horny Bull:
1 oz. Montezuma Tequila.
5 oz. CONCENTRATED ORANGE BREAKFAST DRINK. Over ice.
It's sensational, and that's no bull.

Montezuma TEQUILA

©1974. 80 Proof. Tequila Bonton Distillers Import Co., New York, New York

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE

INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 862-7666

FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS

- Fine work on American cars
- Firestone tires • Eddie Bauer tires
- Front end alignment • Spin balancing
- Undercoating • Engine rebuilding

INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES

VW BRAKE JOB $49.95

Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 new drums, rebuilt 4 wheel cylinders. Discs $10 additional.

VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

Maximum Abandon

Josh McDowell is a follower of Christ who tours the world's universities speaking on the subject of his religious faith and how it ties in with current events, national crises and topics of interest to youth and elders alike. His recent visit to UVM was sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ and included three different presentations. I attended one of these entitled Maximum Sex.

"Why sex?", Josh first asked of his audience. "Because, according to the Bible, 'two should become one flesh'. This ultimate or maximum oneness can be attained only if a relationship is rich in three separate dimensions," explained Josh. The three aspects which must be fulfilled in order to experience maximum sex, according to Josh, are physical, psychological and spiritual oneness. Josh believes that too much emphasis is placed on the physical aspect nowadays while the psychology and spirituality of the experience are ignored. Sex partners are all too concerned about various positions and techniques in their attempts to physically please one another. The most important sex organ, contends Josh, is the mind. Josh points out that the main purpose of sex is not procreation – world census figures illustrate this

Full Fre... Held Pr...

by Audrey Rothstein

Due to the threat of a fuel shortage, freshman orientation was held the week prior to the beginning of classes this semester. Formerly orientation was held during June, but last February when the dates were under consideration, the orientation committee decided on a fall orientation.

Nancy Wiener, chairperson of the committee, said that students were saved the cost of a special trip to UVM during a time when gas prices were expected to be high and lines long.

Registration for classes was done by mail earlier in the summer and John Stanton, associate registrar, said that freshmen did a good job filling out the necessary forms. He added that the departments, for the most part, did a good job of explaining schedules and curriculums in the literature they sent out. But Stanton said that he felt something was lost in that the freshmen were not able to meet face to face with their advisors prior to setting up their schedules.

The program itself ran from Monday, August 26, through Monday, September 2. Activities included such things as a hot dog roast, a hike up Stowe and several movies.

According to Bonnie Broch, the IRA program coordinator, the most popular activities were a freshman mixer and the showing of "Goodbye Columbus." "One hundred people were turned away from "Goodbye Columbus" because there just

PHY...
SEL...
SE...
DAY & EVE...
MEN-WOME...
VER...
TAE KWO...
LAKE SHORE DR...
MALLETS BAY
864-0414
VISITORS

'0'

...ysha. Where can I open a
...outh across the street."
...ysha," I said, and began to
...en you tell me where the
...d. "You can have that
...charge it, of course."
...y young Miss Smythe again
...the street. There was a line
...ing to get into the phone
...a lady talking on the phone.
...d over a ham on rye—lay low
...garnish and a pickle? Just ...moment. I'm the lady in the

...ay turn. "Could you please
...of jockey shorts, size 32.
...e worn out underwear on.
...d you also send over Miss
...6, I think."
...hopping by phone.

...th the streetlamps
...missed me
...kiss me
...to you
...meone
...mikey to remember

"Elliot Freeman"

...t Another ...rogram

...don't such as much as the ...men," quipped Mr. Deane.

Kent Benning, coordinator of the University dining halls, reports that the ASC units provide well-balanced meals, high in nutritional value. What's more, he says, students receive very generous portions — with seconds or thirds for most items.

Mr. Benning, who gives a helping hand to the ASC, noted that nutritional experts on the faculty of the School of Home Economics serve as consultants to the ASC to insure wholesome menus.

Mr. Benning also noted that ASC buys quantities of steak, lobster, roast beef, turkey and other dietary mainstays. At the same time, however, a liberal amount of hamburg and hog legs also are on the ASC menus because "that's what the students want."

This bulk buying — of both food and supplies — actually saves money for each of the dining units, says Mr. Deane. He also notes savings result from centralized accounting procedures, and the investment of extra capital. Last year, investments earned $19,000.

Under terms of the ASC constitution, the organization consists of individual housing units which select one representative for the ASC governing council. The Council is served by a Board of Directors which actually handles the ASC operations. The president receives a $1,000 stipend, the treasurer $500, and board members, $50 per semester.

Virtually all of Mr. Deane's spare time is spent in the ASC offices — or out — the rest communicating with stewards, assistant stewards, chefs and others in the various dormitory kitchens.

The ASC hires its own professional personnel, including purchasing officer E.W. Gauthier. It employs a total of 140 full-time and 700 part-time workers. Though on paper, the ASC might appear to be a cold "big business" kind of operation not responsive to the individual student, nothing could be further from the truth.

Each residential unit has control over its own menus and if the students don't like the fare — they change it.

Maximum Sex Requires Total Abandonment, True Love Control

Josh McDowell is a follower of Christ who tours the world's universities speaking on the subject of his religious faith and how it ties in with current events, national crises and topics of interest to youth and elders alike. His recent visit to UVM was sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ and included three different presentations. I attended one of these entitled Maximum Sex.

"Why sex?", Josh first asked of his audience. "Because, according to the Bible, 'two should become one flesh'. This ultimate or maximum oneness can be attained only if a relationship is rich in three separate dimensions;" explained Josh. The three aspects which must be fulfilled in order to experience maximum sex, according to Josh, are physical, psychological and spiritual oneness. Josh believes that too much emphasis is placed on the physical aspect nowadays while the psychology and spirituality of the experience are ignored. Sex partners are all too concerned about various positions and techniques in their attempts to physically please one another. The most important sex organ, contends Josh, is the mind. Josh points out that the main purpose of sex is not procreation – world census figures illustrate this well. Sex should not be a once-and-for-all event but rather, should grow and develop. Sex used for pleasure only shows a disrespect for people at which time the meaning of "love" is often perverted and misused by those who attempt to achieve this shallow end. This concept is certainly nothing revolutionary – all of us have, at one time or another, been told that sex without love is fun but meaningless. In defining the term "love", Josh set forth three attitudes on love and sex and cited examples of each. The first is the condition, "I will love you if...", after which such clauses as "if you will go to bed with me, if you will satisfy me, if you will marry me," can be added. The second attitude is "I love you because (you are pretty, you are rich, you give me security)." Both these viewpoints indicate selfishness and a desire to take instead of give. They also try to disguise an underlying, hidden motive: lust. "Love can't wait to give, lust can't wait to get," philosophized Josh. Josh advocates a third attitude: "I love you...period!" This can be restated in the following way, "I love you in spite of your weaknesses and shortcomings." Here, Josh adds that knowing Christ can facilitate one's adoption of this attitude, since self-centeredness is the major problem preventing ready acceptance and practice of total abandonment to another person. Although non-Christians can experience this giving relationship, belief in the doctrine of Jesus will immediately dissipate any trace of self-centeredness.

Josh recommends that men and women have no pre-marital sex, that they learn to control sexual energies and that they wait for the right time, right place and right person. Josh theorizes that certain negative factors and barriers can result in post-marital life from pre-marital sex play. Couples will often suspect one another of fooling around behind each other's backs; distrust may result from extensive pre-marital experience, states Josh. Another problem may arise in the form of extreme frustration during times of separation from husband or wife. If one can learn to control sexual energies before marriage, passions and desires will be easier to sublimate and supress after marriage.

How do you learn to control sexual desires? Everyone knows it's not easy. It hurts. Josh himself waited thirty-one years. He suggests that people be aware of the Law of Diminishing Returns applied to sex which states simply, "the more you get, the more you're gonna want." By keeping this in mind, control will come easier.

Josh closed his speech on a religious note. He asked the audience to invite Christ into their lives and then prayed. By show of hands, it was discovered that only one fifth of the audience had been truly influenced in everyday life by Christ. Just as the audience contained a smaller proportion of true Christians than I had expected, Josh's emphasis on Christ and the Bible was limited. This was satisfactory to me as, had I been battered with preachings in the fist-shaking and bellowing style of Billy Graham, I would have walked out as I am not a devoted Christian. Josh established from the start that he was not there "to shove anything down anybody's throat. Take and weigh what I say." He related to the audience well, joking and telling stories from past experiences. An extensive pantomime reminisced on the subject of "Remember your first date?" and was well received. Role-playing the nervous, clumsy male kid who, in the darkness of a movie theater, repeatedly makes spasmodic (yet unsuccessful) passes at his girlfriend, produced much laughter. Josh demonstrated excellent public speaking abilities, manipulating his audience effectively, capturing the audience's attention and having fun throughout the entire engagement.

Full Freshman Orientation Held Prior To Start Of Classes

by Audrey Rothstein

Due to the threat of a fuel shortage, freshman orientation was held the week prior to the beginning of classes this semester. Formerly orientation was held during June, but last February when the dates were under consideration, the orientation committee decided on a fall orientation.

Nancy Magnus, chairperson of the committee, said that students were saved the cost of a special trip to UVM during a time when gas prices were expected to be high and lines long.

Registration for classes was done by mail earlier in the summer and John Stanton, associate registrar, said that freshmen did a good job filling out the necessary forms. He added that the departments, for the most part, did a good job of explaining schedules and curriculums in the literature they sent out. But Stanton said that he felt something was lost in that the freshmen were not able to meet face to face with their advisors prior to setting up their schedules.

The program itself ran from Monday, August 26, through Monday, September 2. Activities included such things as a hot dog roast, a hike up Stowe and several movies.

According to Bonnie Broch, the IRA program coordinator, the most popular activities were a freshmen mixer and the showing of "Goodbye Columbus." "One hundred people were turned away from "Goodbye Columbus" because there just wasn't enough room," she added.

Parents of students also participated in the program and attended special lectures. One lecturer spoke to parents about the changes that they should expect in their son or daughter when he or she returns home for the Thanksgiving break.

One evening over 800 parents also dined on campus where they got a sampling of Sage food. The response, according to one committee member, was favorable.

SAGA managers also received praise from Bonnie Broch who said that they were most helpful in making the dining halls available for dances and other orientation activities.

Nancy Magnus said, "The main objective of the orientation program was to acquaint the students to the university well enough so that they'd be comfortable when school started."

Ms. Magnus said that the fall orientation made it a bit more difficult to satisfy this objective due to the great number of freshmen on campus at the same time. She explained that in past June programs the groups were smaller and returning students were not a factor.

Ms. Magnus also found some good points in the fall orientation. She said that in June school is just ending and many freshmen are working or involved in other summer plans and can't make it to orientation. She added that a lot can be forgotten between June and September.

Ms. Magnus concluded that the program had both weak and strong points. Having run the orientation in the fall for the first time, she said that she can foresee some improvements that the committee could make should they decide to run a fall orientation again.

Keith Miser, director of residential life and a member of the committee, said that he would like to see a shorter fall orientation. He said, "Students were bored at times." He added that the long week of partying makes it difficult for the freshmen to settle down as soon as school starts. "But for the most part," he concluded, "the fall orientation was a big success."

Common Interest Is Theme

The commonality of interest between the Machine Tool Industry and the Arts and Sciences will be the theme of a meeting to be held at the Springfield High School on September 21st, from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Sponsored by the Vermont Academy of Arts and Sciences, in close cooperation with the area Machine Tool Industry, the discussion will review the history of the industry, why it is in the area, and its importance to the community, the state, and the International Trade of the United States.

Professor Wayne G. Broehl, Jr., Benjamin Ames Kimball, Professor of the Science of Administration at the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration of Dartmouth College, will present the historical background, and tell of the growth of the industry and its effect upon the local economy. Professor Broehl is the author of the book Precision Valley, published in 1959, and has a keen interest in, and a thorough knowledge of his subject.

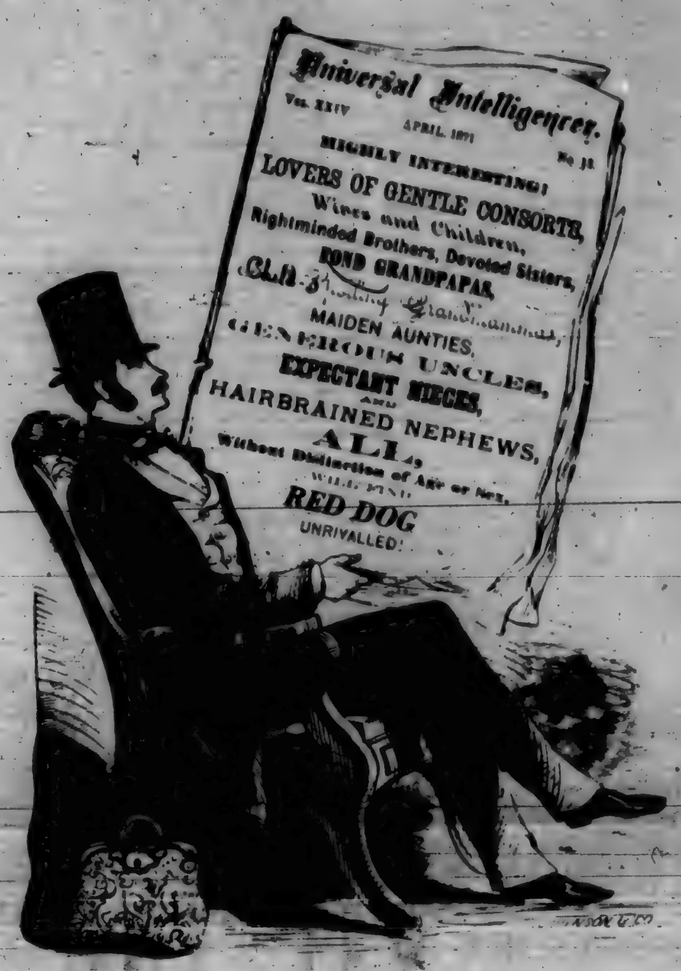
Alan E. Stubbs, of Bryant Grinder Corporation, will talk on Foreign Trade, in which he has been engaged for many years. Between these talks, there will be a period in which the machine shop of the High School may be visited. Here are many types of machines such as are to be found in the area shops, and they will be in operation during the inspection period.

(continued on page twelve)

KOREAN KARATE
DISCIPLINE
PHYSICAL FITNESS
SELF CONFIDENCE
SELF DEFENSE
DAY & EVENING CLASSES
MEN-WOMEN- CHILDREN
VERMONT TAE KWON DO, INC.
LAKE SHORE DR MALLETS BAY 864-0414
TAFT CORNERS WILLISTON 879-7100
VISITORS WELCOME!

Tilting At Windmills
Graphic Arts Gallery
Original Graphics
Limited Edition Posters
Fine Arts Prints
10% Discount UVM Students
Thru Sept. 30
100 Dorset Street
South Burlington
Phone 862-6100

RED DOG SALOON
Lower Church St.- 8649524
A Traditional Beverage and Entertainment Emporium Since 1965



Open Every Night
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Next Week for Two Weeks
BETTER DAYS & CO.

Every Sunday
DOWNPOUR

HAPPY HOUR
Friday 4-6:30
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
Spirits Half Price

Schwartz On Sports

(continued from page thirteen)

the pass. But the big backs ran at will.

On wide sweeps, the defensive ends could not turn plays inside. This made it harder for the defensive backs to come up for the play. Line pursuit, especially in the first half, did not stop the run. There is a need for the defensive line to react more quickly, and turn the plays inside where more defensive help can be found. For Mike Johns, George Brunst, and company, this is the primary task.

The defensive backs played particularly well. They won't get a full test, however, until they play a team with a good passing attack. Norwich featured great run and fair pass. When Yankee Conference games against UConn, UMass and URI take place, the overall defensive effectiveness will be seen.

In sum, there is cause for optimism.

The lackluster play of the St. Lawrence scrimmage has become a thing of the past under the influence of the college football atmosphere of two longtime opponents.

The reaction of the teams and the fans make this a series to continue, if not permanently, at least every few years. Norwich is a very fine team which was just a bit outclassed in size, speed and depth. At their own level of competition they should win most of their games.

For Vermont, the Yankee Conference schedule now begins as they play touch UConn on Saturday. Indeed, more will be known of the Cat possibilities for the season after that game.

Common Interest...

(continued from page eleven)

At the same time, since it could not be in the shop at the same time, there will be a film A Hoe for Calibu, made for the Machine Tool Industry, and tracing the development of tool manufacturing from primitive to the most modern conditions.

To wind up the program, there will be a panel discussion, led by four panelists of whom at least one will be from the industry, one from the news media, and one from the Academy. Audience participation will be an important part of this discussion, and the panel of "experts" will be prepared to field any and all questions.

As a further tie between Industry and the arts, everyone working in one of the area shops has been invited to submit examples of painting, sculpture, carving, photography, or any of the graphic arts. These will be on display in the High School Lobby during the meeting.

Lunch will be served in the school cafeteria for those who want it, and there will be tables available for those who prefer to bring their own.

This meeting is open to all at no charge, and the aim of both sponsors is to acquaint the general public with just what is going on around them, what the future may hold, and why the industry is important to each and everyone of us living in the area and in the State of Vermont.

Nutrition Ignored In The Name of Appearance

by Sue Morse and Cindy Theall

"NUTRITION: the act or process of nourishing or being nourished: specif: the sum of the processes by which an animal or plant takes in and utilizes food substances."

This is the standard definition as given by Webster's Dictionary. Yet nutrition is no longer just the presumably simple process of taking in food substances. What goes in? What comes out as a result of this process of metabolizing foodstuffs from sunlight to a hot fudge sundae? Does everyone or every plant-thing respond equally to the same foodstuffs or are there different reactions, behaviors, growth effects between individuals and between food products? Do the things we eat do us any good? Are the foods we most avoid also the most vital to life? Is there a relationship between nutrition and disease that is sorely in need of scientific inquiry?

These are some of the questions and problems we hope to investigate and perhaps answer during the course of this column. Nutrition is generally considered as everything from eating three square meals a day to a fad that includes vitamin pill popping and Dr. Atkins' Diet Revolution. The problem in studying nutrition is that many of the experts are, themselves, controversial figures, admired by one group of scientist, laughed at by another. The public is in the middle of this battleground, listening only to what they want to hear and not being able to believe facts that disagree with their whims and desires simply because the "experts" cannot decide amongst themselves.

Americans as a whole are most concerned with their physical appearance and we tend to forget about internal appearance. As long as Suzy Q can fit into a size 2 dress by next week, she does her body gross injustices in order to fit into a dress four sizes too small. She'll starve herself. She'll drink a lot of water. She'll run around the block three times and exercise in her room. She is irritable and edgy. She's hungry at midnight and so gorges on that grill cheeseburger, claiming, "Well, I haven't eaten anything all day and I'll make up for it tomorrow." It's a typical way to lose weight, one of America's biggest hangups. Half of the world faces malnutrition from an overabundance of food.

What happens when we cut off our food supply, both liquid and solid. Our stomach starts growling after a while, attempting to tell us something. This is due, for the most part, to muscle contractions of an empty stomach which in turn may stimulate appetite. But many times we sit there, telling our stomach to shut up.

Our liver steps up its energy production now, breaking down the limited supply of stored carbohydrate, glycogen. The pancreas is producing little insulin until the glycogen is broken down into glucose. The normal pancreas will react to the glycogen-turned-glucose by elevating its insulin production then as the glucose is metabolized, insulin production tapers off and returns to the steady level for the individual. By breaking down glycogen, your blood sugar is higher than if glycogen was not processed. However, the blood sugar is not as high as after eating a meal. Consequently, you may feel somewhat weak, giddy, or fatigued if you've skipped a couple of meals due to your slightly lower blood sugar level.

Without water intake, your kidneys shut down and concentrate the urine, conserving precious body fluid. Without solid intake, you may become "irregular" because of lack of roughage, fluid, and the push needed from a continuous flow of solid food material. You'll probably become very sassy, burp a lot at both ends, because of the amount of air in your digestive tract that was swallowed, churned up by an empty stomach and by certain foods you may have eaten previously that are now in your lower intestines.

But how is all of this affecting Suzy Q? After all she is trying to lose weight. She knows, as we all do, that we need proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins, minerals, and trace elements in order to function properly. But why? How much of each is required by our body? When do we threaten to starve our system, our organs, our brain? Is Suzy Q going to lose weight safely this way?

We shall investigate the most widely consumed food group on campus, carbohydrates, in our next article. Needless to say, reduced food intake may help Suzy Q lose weight, but eating correctly just might make her physically and psychologically easier to live with. As the saying goes, "What goes in, must come out..."

PFG Recreation Schedule

The following is a general outline of the recreation times available to students in the various PFG facilities.

We ask in the interest of security and of keeping out unauthorized people, that you use only the two doors at the passageway between Gutterson and Forbush and the side door at the loading platform by the outdoor tennis courts. We will attempt to keep all the other doors locked so that only UVM Students will gain admittance to these areas.

Please bring your ID cards with you and have them with you at all times.

We will issue a special weekend schedule to appear in the Cynic and This Week to keep you further advised as to the recreation hours during these periods.

FRIDAYS
GYM – Students 8 a.m. – 12 noon; 1:25 – 5 p.m.; Faculty-Staff Recreation – none after 5:00 p.m. (Campus Crusade for Christ)
POOL – Faculty–Staff Recreation 7 - 8 Children only; 8 – 10:30 p.m. Adults
TENNIS – Students 8 a.m. – 4 p.m.; Women of UVM 9 – 11 a.m. (with students); Faculty – Staff Recreation – 8 – 10:30 p.m.
TRACK – Students 2:30 – 6 p.m.; Faculty – Staff Recreation 7 – 10:30 p.m.
SATURDAY
GYM – Student Recreation 1 – 5 p.m.; 7 – 10:30 p.m.
POOL – Student Recreation 1 – 5 p.m.; 7 - 10 p.m.
TENNIS – Student Recreation – 1 - 5 p.m.; 7 – 10:30 p.m.
TRACK – Student Recreation – 1 – 5 p.m.; 7 – 10:30 p.m.
SUNDAY
GYM – Student Recreation – 1 – 5 p.m.
POOL – Student Recreation – 1 – 5 p.m.
TENNIS – Student Recreation – 1 – 5 p.m.
TRACK – Student Recreation – 1 – 5 p.m.
MONDAY
GYM – Student Recreation
POOL – Student Recreation
TENNIS – Student Recreation
TRACK – Student Recreation
HANDBALL AND SQUASH COURTS: By appointment only. Call 3069. Work to start on new floors for handball and squash courts on Saturday, September 14.
MONDAY THROUGH THURSDAY
Tennis – Only outdoor courts available
Pool – 8:00 – 10:30 p.m. Students
Other Facilities – 7 – 8 p.m. Students
These periods may be superseded by varsity activities or special events.

Lacrosse Meeting

There will be a meeting of The UVM Lacrosse Team at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 26, at Harris-Millis. This will be the only meeting so if you can't attend, write Box 42 in Billings Center.

NOTHING STANDS IN THE WAY OF OUR FAST, FREE DELIVERY

Nothing. No chicken liver salads. No spaghetti. No ice cream. No potato salad. No kidding. We deal in pizzas only. The finest pizza we can make. And we usually deliver it within 30 minutes of your call. And our pizza is made of fresh ingredients only. They are never frozen. Never. So give us a try the next time you crave really good pizza. See why Domino has grown from a single shop in Ypsilanti to franchises throughout the country.

The Domino People are pizza people, Period.

DOMINO'S PIZZA Williston rd. 864-7444 Downtown 658-3333

THE SILVER KEG

★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★
MONDAY-LADIES NITE UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY - ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
WEDNESDAY
UVM NITE ★FREE★ WITH UVM I.D. (MUST BE 18 YEARS OF AGE)
THURSDAY- ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★ FEATURING ★
THE BEST ROCK GROUPS IN THE EAST
OPEN 7 NITES WITH LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER
Downtown Burlington
Essex Junction

SPECIAL SKI SAVINGS
This Week at
The SWISS CHALET

Head GK03 Downhill Skis
Reg. $120 NOW $60
Head HRP Skis
Reg. $155 NOW $99
Allsop Downhill SkiBindings
Reg. $65 NOW $36
Cross-country Norge Skis
Reg. $38.50 NOW $19.95

Downhill Ski Tune Up
Fill in scratches and gouges on bottoms
Flat file edges
Sharpen skis
Binding maintenance check
FOR ONLY $5.95
(for skis in average condition)

Swiss Chalet
40 PEARL ST 878-8901
Essex Jct. hours Mon.-Fri. 9-6 Sat.

Listen Smokers:
You don't have to wait 20 years for cigarettes to affect you.
It only takes 3 seconds.

In just 3 seconds a cigarette makes your heart beat faster, shoots your blood pressure up, replaces oxygen in your blood with carbon monoxide, and leaves cancer-causing chemicals to spread through your body.
All this happens with every cigarette you smoke.
As the cigarettes add up, the damage adds up.
Because it's the cumulative effects of smoking—adding this cigarette to all the cigarettes you ever smoked—that causes the trouble.
And tell that to your dog, too.
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE • This Space Contributed as a Public Service

Pants Plus
JEANS, PANTS, SHIRTS & TOPS
Levi's
FOR GIRLS & GUYS
10% off with valid UVM Student ID
Trader's Way
12 N. WINOOSKI AVE. 864-0181

Bob Bateman enlits the Norwich defen
Vermont to victory.

Bateman Leads Against Cad

(continued from page fourteen)

this touchdown as the half came to the end, UVM might have found it much harder to beat the Cadets. Had it not been for Casella all day, the Cats might have also lost.

In the first half, Pizzamenti and company ran well. But in the second half they were contained just enough to let the Vermont aerial attack operate at full force.

On the second half kickoff Jim Kelly returned to the NU 24. Kelly took the next three handoffs to the 47. Then on a pass play, Gary Gottfried intercepted – but pass interference was called. This questionable call led to a TD as Kelly later ran two yards to make it Norwich 20, UVM 7.

Vermont came right back. On first down at the UVM 45, Bateman, the Cats leading ball carrier all day, ran 14 yards to the NU 41. A curl in pass to Looker moved the ball to the 27 and then Rocky Thompson beat the secondary on the right side for a 27 yard pass play from Bateman. It was now 20-14.

Towards the end of the period Vermont had one opportunity. From the UVM 24 on third down, Bateman lofted a pass to Sam Blood who was one on one with the defender. It was just past his [illegible] and a sure touchdown was incomplete. The period ended 20-14 Norwich.

Then the wild fourth quarter began. At the start of the period and Vermont at the NU 44, a pass to Jarry was knocked away at the last minute by Pat Murray. On fourth down a pass to Thompson was dropped. Three plays later Dil.eva passed to Pizzamenti who broke a tackle and completed a 53 yard pass and run. The kick was wide and with ten minutes left Vermont trailed

TyPewrite

PORTABLE TY
CLIN
Air Clean
Replace R
Clean Platen &
Operationa
Minor Adju
$11.
(electric Typewriters
YOUR OLD PO
WORTH AT LE TOWARD A NE
UNIV

...earance

...erative tract that was swallowed, ...tomach and by certain foods you ...ly that are now in your lower

...affecting Suzy Q? After all she is ...known, as we all do, that we need ...ins, vitamins, minerals, and trace ...on properly But why? How much ...body? When do we threaten to ...organs, our brain? Is Suzy Q going to

...e most widely consumed food ...trates, in our next article. Needless ...ake may help Suzy Q lose weight, but ...might make her physically and ...e with. As the saying goes, "What ..."

...5 – 5 p.m., ...m. (Campus

...ldren only. 8

... of UVM 9 – ...ation – 8 –

...ulty – Staff

...0:30 p.m. ...0 p.m. ...:7 – 10:30

...:7 – 10:30

...ppointment ...handball and

...y activities or

...it 20 years ...t you. ...ds.

...our heart beat faster. ...oxygen in your blood with ...r-causing chemicals ...body ...ette you smoke. ...mage adds up. ...moking – adding this ...u ever smoked – ...ble. ...g, too.

This Space Contributed as a Public Service

...Plus ...IRTS & TOPS ...S

...GUYS ...VM Student ID ...Way ...864-0181

Bob Bateman splits the Norwich defense on one of his runs as he leads Vermont to victory. SPS Photo: Dick Low Bateman Leads Cats To Victory Against Cadets, Throws 3 TD's...

(continued from page fourteen)

this touchdown as the half came to the end, UVM might have found it much harder to beat the Cadets. Had it not been for Casella all day, the Cats might have also lost.

In the first half, Pizzamenti and company ran well. But in the second half they were contained just enough to let the Vermont aerial attack operate at full force.

On the second half kickoff Jim Kelly returned to the NU 24. Kelly took the next three handoffs to the 47. Then on a pass play, Gary Gottfried intercepted but pass interference was called. This questionable call led to a TD as Kelly later ran two yards to make it Norwich 20, UVM 7.

Vermont came right back. On first down at the UVM 45, Bateman, the Cats leading ball carrier all day, ran 14 yards to the NU 41. A curl in pass to Looker moved the ball to the 27 and then Rocky Thompson beat the secondary on the right side for a 27 yard pass play from Bateman. It was now 20-14.

Towards the end of the period Vermont had one opportunity. From the UVM 24 on third down, Bateman lofted a pass to Sam Blood who was one on one with the defender. It was just past his fingertips and a sure touchdown was incomplete. The period ended 20-14 Norwich.

Then the wild fourth quarter began. At the start of the period and Vermont at the NU 44, a pass to Jarry was knocked away at the last minute by Pat Murray. On fourth down a pass to Thompson was dropped. Three plays later DiLeva passed to Pizzamenti who broke a tackle and completed a 53 yard pass and run. The kick was wide and with ten minutes left Vermont trailed 26-14.

An exchange of fumbles gave Vermont the ball. Casella caught one at midfield. Then on the next series with 3rd and ten, Jarry caught a 15 yarder. On first down Looker went to the 21 and a Norwich penalty for a late tackle moved the ball to the 11. Blood ran to the two with Norwich looking for a pass. McCallister then took it in from the two. It was now 26-21 with about five minutes left.

Norwich was held on downs after the kickoff and Vermont began the deciding drive from their 26. Bateman ran 11 yards to the 37. He then threw to Lookes for 17 more. Thompson caught a pass for seven and then Bateman ran through the middle to the 30. Now Bateman passed to Blood deep on the right side for a thirty yard touchdown pass. Blood who had just missed a TD earlier and proved effective on short swing passes all day made Vermont the winner. The delay of game for the jubilant Cats in the end zone did not matter. They had come from behind and defeated a tough Norwich team. The Cats intercepted a desperate heave by DiLeva and Bateman fell on the ball as the clock ran out.

Needless to say, the scoring summary emphasizes the superb passing attack. Bateman threw three TD's. Casella caught one TD and had 6 catches for 93 yards. Blood also caught six and Looker five. Looker also proved an effective punter with a 40 yard average for six kicks.

Running the ball the Cats did have problems. Bateman's good scrambling gave him 75 but Blood with 18 was next best runner. In comparison Pizzamenti ran for 116 and Kelly had 93. The effective passing did upset the Norwich defense. If their passing was a bit better the score could have been the other way. So Vermont enters their next game against UConn with a pepped up pass attack and a need to improve the running game. Likewise, the defense against the run needs to improve, especially on end sweeps that gave Pizzamenti huge chunks of yardage.

The excitement among the 8900 fans and the spirit on the field makes the series worthwhile to continue. It was a great game all the way. And for the victors from UVM it was even better.

Anybody willing to work at home women's swim meets as an announcer, timer, scorer, or recall judges please contact Janet Riley at Ext. 4242 or 4245. Any questions, please call Janet or Sandy Lane at 425-2670.

SCHWARTZ ON SPORTS

by Mike Schwartz

Centennial Field really looked like a college football stadium as a near capacity crowd saw the Vermont-Norwich game last Saturday.

The bands played constantly and the teams were really psyched. When Duke Snodgrass leaped into the arms of his fellow teammates during the pre-game introductions the spirit became apparent. I, for one, had never seen such an enthusiastic Vermont bench.

The performance on the field also was full of spirit on both teams. But to get away from the frenzied pitch that could affect this article I shall try to analyze team performances in the proper perspective.

The Catsarea young team with little experience in many positions. When the quarterback can help settle the situation with a poised performance, the team can look like a veteran crew. Bob Bateman did just that. His passing was pinpoint as he threw three touchdowns and just missed two others. His only bad pass did lead to the Norwich second touchdown, but in general he was superb.

For the Cats, a Bateman who runs and passes this well could mean trouble for opponents.

The receivers he threw to made the task that much easier. They got open on one-and-one coverage and did some open field running after catching the ball.

Tightend Chuck Casella was particularly impressive as he split the seam between the secondary and the linebackers over the middle. Thompson, Jarry and Looker rounded out the formidable receiving corps.

In the passing game, one noticed the Cat's advantage of team speed. Norwich linebackers did not make good drops. It seemed that the four deep backs had to do all the defending with little line support. One particular play with Casella surfing into the middle was wide open all day. Norwich was never able to adjust to this play.

Cat receivers also had plenty of room on down and out patterns and curl ins as Norwich seemsd to honor the deep threat the Cats presented.

The Cat attack could have been more effective if the running game gelled. Except for Bateman's scrambles and the planned rushes, there was little ground gaining. Norwich shut off the middle and the Cats rarely ran wide.

The only good running play was before McCallister's touchdown, when Blood reversed the flow and ran for eight while Norwich was looking for a pass. The wingback in motion did not help. Much help is needed in the running game so that the passing game can be more effective.

On defense, the Cats would bend but not break. They caused five turnovers and did a good job in defending against

(continued on page twelve)

Vermont Rugby Wins 10-4

The University of Vermont Rugby team began its fall season defeating the Montreal Rugby Club by a score of 10-4. During the first minute of play, UVM had problems in dealing with a more experienced side which was captained by Larry Ddyte, a former member of the British Lions, the national team of Great Britain. After being scored on early in the period, UVM was able to move the ball well inside the Montreal side of the field, but were not able to score. Montreal was able to consistently kick the ball away. The score at half time was Montreal 4, UVM 0.

UVM's first score came early in the second half when scrum half Marcel Bergeron was able to take the ball away from one of the Montreal players and race 55 yards for a four point try or touchdown. The two point conversion was added by Ed Fidrocki. Later in the game, the backs were able to work the ball out to wing Alan Coutier for another game score. Montreal was able to mount several attacks on the UVM goaline late in the game. However, several game saving tackles by fullback Sam Weiner were able to preserve the victory for Vermont.

The B team was defeated 29 to 8 by the McGill University Graduates. Despite the score, the coaching staff was pleased with the performance in light of the fact that UVM had to face a very experienced team. The Vermont squad had 12 out of 15 members playing their very first game. The Cats were able to hold McGill to 11 to four halftime lead. It was not until the second half when the Graduates led by Jon Peters, a Canadian national player, were able to capitalize on UVM's inexperience and take a 29-4 lead. However, UVM continued to drive at the McGill goal line and score with 15 seconds left when freshman Greg Smith broke through McGill's line-out and fell on the ball in their end zone.

UVM now prepares for its most arduous week of the season. They will play three games in seven days beginning with the University of New Hampshire on Sept. 22. Then, UVM will host Norwich University at the Archie Post Field, Sept. 25 at 2:30 p.m., and Keene State of New Hampshire, Oct. 25 at 2 p.m., also at the Archie Post Field.

Golf Team Second

This past weekend the Catamount Golf Team travelled to Plattsburgh for the Plattsburgh Invitational Golf Tournament. They walked away from the Bluff Point Country Club course in second place, Plattsburgh State College won with a team score of 312 with UVM following at 324. St. Michael's finished fourth with 331 among the eight competing schools.

Mark Wilson of Plattsburgh was the top scorer with a 73 or one over par for the course. The top UVM performers were tied for fourth in the medal standings. Titus (Buddy) Piomaritius and Jack Clifford (better known for his hockey exploits) each had 78. Dave Gaffney and Mike Agusta had 84s for the round.

Soccer Preview...

(continued from page fourteen)

not they will be at the very least competitive.

Soderberg and his assistants, Paul Reinhardt and Chris Harris are priming the team for competition. The UVM's squad first home game is on Sept. 28. The season looks bright and the results, although they are unknown, are hopeful.

Intramural Calendar

	ENTRIES OPEN	CLOSE	SCHEDULE BEGINS
Swimming Meet Men	Sept. 16	Sept. 23	Oct. 9, 10
Swimming Meet Women	Sept. 16	Sept. 23	Oct. 9, 10
Racquetball ($) Men	Sept. 18	Sept. 27	Oct. 2
Racquetball ($) Women	Sept. 18	Sept. 27	Oct. 2

TUNA FISH AT THE COMPANY STORE

The COMPANY STORE

★ Levis
★ Leather ★ Shoes
★ Skirts ★ Shirts
★ Whatever
★ Apparrel For Men & Women
★ Tuna Fish
★ Custom Leather Jackets, Skirts, Belts, Bags Pants, Vests,
★ Tuna Fish For The Discerning Shopper

COMPANY STORE
LOWER CHURCH STREET
BURLINGTON

Typewriters!

PORTABLE TYPEWRITER CLINIC

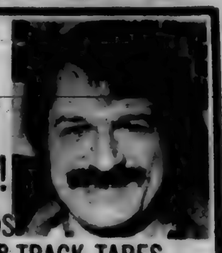
Air Clean & Oil
Replace Ribbon
Clean Platen & Feed Rolls
Operational Check
Minor Adjustments

$11.95
(electric Typewriters slightly higher)

YOUR OLD PORTABLE IS WORTH AT LEAST $20.00 TOWARD A NEW OLYMPIA

UNIVERSITY STORE
ON THE CAMPUS

MAD-MAN MURRAY LOVES STUDENTS!



1000's of RECORDS CASSETTES AND 8-TRACK TAPES
COUNTRY WESTERN. EASY LISTENING ROCK. JAZZ.
LP RECORDS!
NAMES LIKE

$1.99

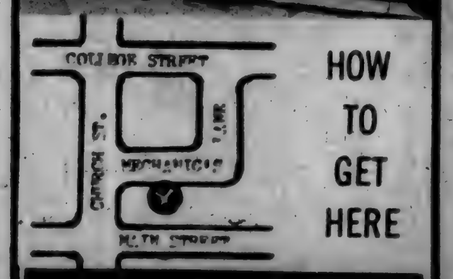
*Steppen Wolf
*Beach Boys
*Deep Purple
*Chuck Berry
*Dave Mason
*Jimi Hendrix
*T. Rex
*John Mayall
*Young Bloods
*James Gang

8-TRACK TAPE CASSETTES
Only $2.91
BUY 3 AND GET ONE FREE!

STEREO EQUIPMENT HEADQUARTERS
Tenna 8 Track Car Stereo Only $49.95
Compact size.12 watts stereo power
.Illuminated Channel Indicator
.Repeat Play Button

NEW BURLINGTON LOCATION--
CHURCH ST. and MECHANICS LANE

Use our FREE BULLENTIN BOARD. If you need a ride home for vacation or want to sell something. Put your message on our student bulletin board absolutely FREE.



HOW TO GET HERE

tape city, u.s.a.

We repair all makes of stereo equipment
We repair 8-track tapes and cassettes
Church Street & Mechanic Lane Burlington — Route 7 & Hinesburg Rd. Colchester

UVM SPORTS

Sam Blood tucks in the pass that wins the game as Cadet Gary Kurz dives in vain. Paul Jarry watches in expectation at left. SPS Photo: Dick Law

Bateman Stars As UVM Beats Norwich 28-26 On Late TD's

by Mike Schwartz

The Norwich Cadets forced away Charlie Catamount's tale and head but they couldn't get the game away from the Cats. Behind a tremendous passing attack, the Vermont football team came from behind to beat Norwich 28-26. Behind 26-14 with ten minutes left, quarterback Bob Bateman put it all together, the winning touchdown coming with 1:06 left in the game. Bateman was 21 for 37 with three touchdown passes. He threw for 284 yards.

Of course, nothing should be taken away from Norwich. Their running attack, led by Sam Pizzamenti, racked up 272 yards. In the end, Vermont passing was better than Norwich running in this wild and exciting game. For most of the game it looked like Norwich would be the upset winners, but Vermont made the most of Cadet errors and Bateman stayed poised in clutch situations.

Though it was 0-0 after one period, Norwich controlled the action with 28 plays to UVM's nine. Norwich took the opening kickoff. Passes and runs were mixed as Norwich drove to the Vermont seven. Duke Snodgrass knocked down a pass and quarterback Tony DiLeva was stopped on the five as Joe Lusardi faked a fourth down field goal attempt.

The second time Norwich had the ball they drove from their own 45 to the UVM 26 where Pizzamenti fumbled the ball and Snodgrass recovered. Vermont didn't even throw a pass in the first quarter.

In the second period, Norwich scored the first touchdown. With third and twelve on their own 36, DiLeva hit Dana O'Brien for 23 yards to the UVM 41. Then Pizzamenti ran 16. Two plays later Pizzamenti ran up the middle and cut left on a beautiful 25 yard run. Lucardi's kick made it 7-0.

It looked like a long day for the Cats. On the ensuing kickoff, the Cats accepted a NU offside and on the next kick found themselves on their own 20 instead of the 32. Then later on in the period Joe Kurnick hit DiLeva as he attempted to pass and Fred Fournier picked up the fumble. But two plays later Bateman couldn't find a receiver downfield. He lofted a floater that was picked up by Norwich co-captain Jim Kurz who ran 70 yards for a score. The kick was no good and Norwich led 13-0. The bad pass proved to be Bateman's only mistake of the day.

Vermont got the ball back. Three completions to Chuck Casella, Billy Looker, and Paul Jarry moved the ball to the NU 38. Bateman scrambled for 12 yards to the 23. He ran six more yards the next time and then threw to Casella in the left side of the end zone on a 17 yard play. The kick made it 13-7 with 45 seconds left in the half. Had it not been for

(continued on page thirteen)

Soccer Team Hopes To Return To Winning Form

by Norm Robinson

The University of Vermont soccer squad opens their season this Saturday against the 1973 Conference champs, Connecticut. Last year, UVM had a disappointing 5-8 record, but things promise to be better this year.

Head coach Don Soderberg reports the team to be in excellent condition. The squad got off to a great start this fall and wasted little time in preparing for the season. The team has scrimmaged since the second day of practice, and all members were capable of playing an entire 90 minutes.

Defensively, the club should be stronger with Jim Pedrotty and Gerald Daly combining with freshman Carl Christensen. Half-back appears to be a strong suit with co-captains Bob Cleverdon and Rick Taylor anchoring these positions. Taylor is the lone senior on the squad.

At the present time, Jim Taft will guard the nets for the Cats. Last year, he played on the forward line as well, but due to a knee operation he will play exclusively in goal this year. Junior goalie, Jeff Jonas is expected to see action in the back-up role for Taft.

Soderberg feels this club has a terrific attitude. "They all love this game and are willing to sacrifice other things for it," said the head coach.

Five new faces will don Vermont uniforms this season. All are highly regarded by the staff as outstanding prospects. They are Carl Christensen, Geoff Greig, Jon Koerner, Max Martin, and Dick Whidden.

The Cats will have a tough schedule, particularly early in the season. They play Bridgeport a week after Connecticut. Bridgeport was in the top twenty in the nation last year and are as strong this year.

When asked about the remainder of the opponents, Soderberg remarked, "Rhode Island is always tough. New Hampshire lost very few to graduation and should be very good and Maine falls under the same category." In-state opponents Middlebury and Norwich always get up for Vermont.

For this season to be a success, UVM must get off to a good start. Last year, the Catamounts lost some close games to Connecticut, 1-0 and Boston University, 2-1, and got discouraged early.

If the freshmen can jell with the varsity members of the squad, the team will be on the right track. Of the thirteen returnees, there are four sophomores, eight juniors, and one senior.

Coach Soderberg summed up his team this way, "This year's team like last year's is young, but the big difference is experience. [Last year we scored only 12 goals in the entire season. We should score more goals and give up less."

The key to the 1974 season for Vermont is to build their confidence with some early wins. If the team does jell and play good soccer, UVM could be very good, if

(continued on page thirteen)

UVM-Norwich Stats

	1	2	3	4	T
Norwich	0	13	7	6	26
Vermont	0	7	7	14	28

NU – Pizzamenti 25 run (Lusardi kick)
NU – Kurz 70 interception run (kick failed)
UVM – Casella 17 pass from Bateman (Brunst kick)
NU – Kelly 2 run (Lusardi kick)
UVM – Thompson 27 pass from Bateman (Brunst kick)
NU – Pizzamenti 53 pass from DiLeva (kick failed)
UVM – McAllister 2 run (Brunst kick)
UVM – Blood 30 pass from Bateman (Brunst kick)

	NU	UVM
First Downs	21	23
Rushing yards	272	124
Passing yards	123	284
Passes	6-17	21-37
Fumbles lost	3	3
Interceptions by	1	2
Punts	6-36	6-40
Penalties	7-61	4-71

Rushing – UVM-Bateman 17-75; Blood 10-18; Lockwood 4-14; McCallister 4-10; Thompson 2-7. NU–Pizzamenti 16-116; Kelly 16-93; Brown 9-23; Lusardi 7-25; Martin 3-11; Sperounis 1-6.

Passing – UVM–Bateman 21-37 284 yds 3 TD 1 Int. NU-DiLeva 6-17 123 yrds 1 TD 2 Int.

Receiving – UVM-Casella 6-93-1 TD; Blood 6-60-1; Looker 5-72; Thompson 2-34-1; Jarry 2-25. NU-Morris 2-26; Kelly 2-21; O'Brien 1-23; Pizzamenti 1-53-1.

CLASSIFIED

For Sale– Tapedeck, 8 track Mikado, Never Used. Price $25. Call 656-2516, ask for Bruce.

LOST– black and brown medium size female dog. N.H. license tag number 362. Please call 863-6550 after 5 p.m.

Female bartender– car necessary. Hours negotiable. Tel. 878-4305. So. Hero

Ride Needed to Danbury, Ct. or anywhere in Fairfield Co. Sept. 20 –willing to share driving and/or expenses. Call Pat, 862-1236.

to STEVE in response to ad for water bed: Please call Linda, 164 N. Union St., Burlington. 864-4015 (after 5). thanks.

For Sale: Yamaha DT1–E, 1971. Excellent running condition. Koni shocks, S&W Fork Springs. 52 North Champlain, William Brooks.

NEW: triangle trading post – Furniture, antiques, books, camping equipment. We buy, sell, trade. 79 Archibald St. 862-4008. Open 9-6, Friday till 8.

Deadline for Classifieds is Mon Nite

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only

Wrestling Club

UVM Wrestling Club will have a meeting today at Patrick Gym in the wrestling room at 4:00 Thursday. For information, call Randy Jansen, 206 Wright Hall 656-3092 or Ed Von Turkovich 863-5170.

****

College Football Scores
Temple 38 – Rhode Island 7
Villanova 17 – Massachusetts 13
Texas 42 – Boston College 19
Boston U. 7 – Maine 6
Northeastern 29 – Central Conn. 27

S.A. FILMS PRESENTS
FALL 1974

Mondays - The War Film
7:30 103 Rowell Adm. Free
SEPTEMBER 23 PATHS OF GLORY
OCTOBER 7 GARDEN OF THE FINZI–CONTINIS
OCTOBER 14 HOUSE ON 92ND STREET
OCTOBER 21 THE NAZIS STRIKE; NIGHT AND FOG
OCTOBER 28 THE LONGEST DAY
NOVEMBER 4 THE SORROW AND THE PITY
NOVEMBER 11 THE SHOP ON MAIN STREET
NOVEMBER 18 THE BRIDGE ON THE RIVER KWAI
NOVEMBER 25 TWO WOMEN
DECEMBER 2 THE BEST YEARS OF OUR LIVES
DECEMBER 9 JUDGMENT AT NURENBERG

Thursdays - Musicals
7:30 101 Votey Adm Free
SEPTEMBER 20 YANKEE DOODLE DANDY
OCTOBER 3 BABES ON BROADWAY
OCTOBER 10 BITTERSWEET
OCTOBER 17 SOUTH PACIFIC
OCTOBER 24 CALL ME MADAM
OCTOBER 31 THE MUSIC MAN
NOVEMBER 7 OKLAHOMA
NOVEMBER 14 A STAR IS BORN
NOVEMBER 21 EASTER PARADE
DECEMBER 5 WEST SIDE STORY

Fridays - Biggies
7:30 & 9:30 101 Votey Adm. $1.00
SEPTEMBER 27 LITTLE BIG MAN
OCTOBER 4 MONKEE BUSINESS and SONS OF THE DESERT
OCTOBER 11 KING OF HEARTS
OCTOBER 18 DRACULA and MUMMY
OCTOBER 25 WALKING TALL
NOVEMBER 1 SLAUGHTERHOUSE 5
NOVEMBER 8 MY FAIR LADY
NOVEMBER 15 DUCK SOUP and LITTLE RASCALS
DECEMBER 6 BOB & CAROL & TED & ALICE and GREAT RACE

Saturday - Newman
7:30 101 Votey Adm. Free
SEPTEMBER 21 LONG HOT SUMMER
SEPTEMBER 28 THE RACK
OCTOBER 5 CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF
OCTOBER 12 THE HUSTLER
OCTOBER 19 SWEET BIRD OF YOUTH
OCTOBER 26 HUD
NOVEMBER 2 COOL HAND LUKE
NOVEMBER 9 SOMETIMES A GREAT NOTION
NOVEMBER 16 HARPER
DECEMBER 7 EXODUS

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 18
SEPTEMBER 26, 1974

AFT Fa... Gains S...

by Barbara Frankel

An increasing number of faculty members are supporting the local chapter of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) Union. Close to 50 per cent of the professors in the College of Arts and Sciences are members of the union. Faculty members in other colleges have expressed growing interest in the union. Why has this happened now?

According to union leaders, the AFT, which is a member of the AFL-CIO, is a "national labor organization that really has a voice in government." Professor Huck Gutman of the English Department commented, "It's a militant group with power."

Many members of smaller local unions are now considering joining the AFT. Gutman hoped that "if this trend continues, the AFT will become one of the strongest unions in the state. We're building bridges to other teachers and to other employees."

Professor Sid Poger, also of the English Department, added, "we're employees and must bargain as such. We are also professionals and must behave as such."

The union, which now has between 80 and 90 official members, has been coordinated by a small nucleus of concerned professors. Besides Gutman and Poger, Justin Joffe (Psychology), Tony Bradley (English) and Marc Kessler (Psychology) were instrumental in forming and developing the union.

The union began at UVM on a purely local level. Last spring, the members of the local Union of College Faculty voted almost unanimously to affiliate with the AFT. They also had the choices of affiliating with the National Education Association or the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), or Senatori... Lin...

Richard M...

by Margo Howland

Vermont Congressman Richard Mallary of Fairlee, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, has indicated that he will not accept any campaign contributions from "special interest groups" and will not accept contributions greater than $500 from individuals.

Mallary's Democratic opponent, Chittenden County State's Attorney, Patrick Leahy, has refused to place a limit on contributions from individuals. He also plans to accept contributions from special interest groups, according to the Free Press and the Rutland Herald of September 23.

In a Cynic interview Sunday, Mallary discussed his positions on campaign spending. During the primary, Mallary suggested to both his Democratic and Republican opponents that he would be "willing to agree to any

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 18
SEPTEMBER 26, 1974

V

AFT · Fac
Gains Su

By Barbara Frankel

A [illegible] the [illegible] American [illegible] Teachers (AFT) [illegible] 50 per cent of the [illegible] the College of [illegible] are members of the union. [illegible] faculty members at other AFT colleges have expressed [illegible] interest in the union. Why has this happened now?

According to union leaders, the AFT, which is a member of the AFL-CIO, [illegible] labor organization that needs [illegible] has a voice in government. Professor Huck Gutman of the English Department commented, "It's a militant group with power."

Many members of smaller local unions are now considering joining the AFT. Gutman hoped that if this trend continues the AFT will become one of the strongest unions in the state. "We're building bridges to other teachers and to other employees."

Professor Sid Poger also of the English Department added, "we're employees and must bargain as such. We are also professionals and must behave as such."

The union which now has between 80 and 90 [illegible] members, has been coordinated by a small nucleus of concerned professors. Besides Gutman and Poger, Justin Joffe (Psychology), Tony Bradley (English) and Marc Kessler (Psychology) were instrumental in forming and developing the union.

The union began at UVM on a purely local level. Last spring the members of the local Union of College Faculty voted almost unanimously to affiliate with the AFT. They also had the choices of affiliating with another national union, such as the National Education Association or the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), of [illegible]

Senatorial [illegible] Lim

Richard M

by Margo Howland

Vermont Congressman Richard Mallary of Fairlee, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, has indicated that he will not accept any campaign contributions from special interest groups and will not accept contributions greater than $100 from individuals.

Mallary's Democratic opponent Chittenden County State's Attorney Patrick Leahy has refused to place a limit on contributions from individuals. He also plans to accept contributions from special interest groups according to the Free Press and the Rutland Herald [illegible] September 21.

In a [illegible] interview Sunday, Mallary discussed his positions on campaign spending. During the primary Mallary suggested to both the Democratic and Republican opponents that he would be "willing to agree to a MONTEZUMA'S OFFICIAL GUIDE TO THE ANCIENT TEQUILA ARTS.

Tequila Pineapple
Liqueur

Tequila Stinger

Tequila Buttermilk

Bloody Mona

Tequila Fizz
- 2 oz Montezuma Tequila
- Juice 1/2 lemon
- 1 Teaspoon sugar
- 2 Dashes maraschino Bitters
Stir with ice, strain over ice into tall glass with club soda. Garnish with lime shell

Golden Knife
- 2 oz GOLD Montezuma Tequila
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 2 Teaspoons sugar
- 2 Dashes bitters
- 1 Small egg
- Fizzed club soda and salt
Blend with ice. Strain into 14 oz glass with ice. Fill with soda. Sprinkle salt.

Tequila Earthquake
- 2 oz Montezuma Tequila
- 1 oz Strawberries
- 1 Teaspoon granadine
- 3 Teaspoon orange bitters
- 1 Slice lime
- 1 Fresh strawberry
Blend strawberries and granadine in blender. Add other ingredients and ice. Serve on rocks. Garnish with lime and strawberry

Tequilorino
- 1½ oz Montezuma Tequila
- 1 oz Pineapple juice
- 1 oz Lime juice
- Sugar to taste
Shake, serve on rocks in Collins glass

Tequila Mephotter

Tequila Ghost

Horny Bull
- 1½ oz Montezuma Tequila
- 4 oz Beer
- Dash Worcestershire sauce
- Dash Tabasco sauce
- Pinch celery salt
- Pinch pepper
- Squeeze lime
Shake with ice and pour into glassware: mason jar, beer mug, bud vase, etc. Garnish with orange slice.

Tequila Straight
- 1½ oz GOLD Montezuma Tequila
- Wedge of lime
Squeeze lime into glass with ice. Add tequila. Serve with lime wedge.

Tequila Pup
- 1½ oz GOLD Montezuma Tequila
- 1 Teaspoon honey
- Juice of ½ lime
- Dash of bitters
Mix in shaker with ice. Pour into chilled glass.

Tequila Sunrise
- 1½ oz Montezuma Tequila
- Fresh juice of 1 orange
- Juice of ½ lime
- 1 Orange juice
- 1 Teaspoon grenadine
Serve in tall glass with ice. Garnish with lime.

Aztec Punch
- 1 Gal Montezuma Tequila
- Juice 12 lemons
- 4 16 oz cans grapefruit juice
- 2 qts strong tea
- 1½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1½ oz Bitters
Let stand 2 hrs before blending. Yields 24 cups.

Tequila Carambo
- 1½ oz Montezuma Tequila
- 1 oz Grapefruit juice
- 1 Tablespoon sugar
- Club soda
Shake with cracked ice, add club soda. Serve in highball glass.

Mexico Martini
- 2 oz Montezuma Tequila
- 1 oz Dry vermouth
- 2 Drops vanilla extract
Stir with ice, strain into chilled cocktail glass.

Tequila Tropical
- 1½ oz Montezuma Tequila
- ½ oz grenadine
- 3 oz Orange juice
- 1 Teaspoon lemon juice
Pour in highball glass over cracked ice. Garnish with orange slice and cherry.

EHECATL

CIPACTLI

TL

QUIAHUITL

TECPATL
The sword

OLIN

COZCACUAUHTIL

CUETZPALLIN

CALLI

COATL

MIQUIZTLI

MAZATL

TOCHTLI

ATL

ITZCUINTLI

OZOMATL

MAZINALLI

ACATL

OCELOTL

CUAUHTLI

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 18
SEPTEMBER 26, 1974

V

AFT Fac
Gains Su

by Barbara Frankel

Senatorie
Lim

by Margo Howland

Vermont Congressman Richard Mallary, of Fairfield, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, has indicated that he will not accept any campaign contributions from "special interest groups" and will not accept contributions greater than $100 from individuals.

Mallary's Democratic opponent, Chittenden County State's Attorney Patrick Leahy, has refused to place a limit on contributions from individuals. He also plans to accept contributions from special interest groups, according to the Free Press and the Rutland Herald of September 23.

In a Cynic interview Sunday, Mallary discussed his positions on campaign spending. During the primary, Mallary suggested to both his Democratic and Republican opponents that he would be willing to agree to a

CLASSIFIED

For Sale– Tapedeck, 8 track Mikado, Never Used. Price $25. Call 656-2516, ask for Bruce.

LOST– black and brown medium size female dog. N.H. license tag number 362. Please call 863-6560 after 5 p.m.

Female bartender– car necessary. Hours negotiable. Tel. 878-4385. So. Hero

Ride Needed to Danbury, Ct. or anywhere in Fairfield Co. Sept. 20 – willing to share driving and/or expenses. Call Pat, 862 1236.

to STEVE in response to ad for water bed: Please call Linda, 184 N. Union St. Burlington. 864-4015 (after 5). thanks.

For Sale: Yamaha DT1–E, 1971. Excellent running condition. Koni shocks, S&W Fork" Springs. 52 North Champlain, William Brooks.

NEW: triangle trading post – Furniture, antiques, books, camping equipment. We buy, sell, trade. 79 Archibald St. 863-4008. Open 9-6, Friday till 8.

Deadline for Classifieds is Mon Nite

RESEARCH

Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page

Send for your up to date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).

RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493

Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 18
SEPTEMBER 26, 1974

VERMONT CYNIC

University of Vermont, Burlington, Vermont

"It's a Privilege To Live in Vermont"

AFT Faculty Union Gains Support At UVM

by Barbara Franklin

An increasing number of faculty members are supporting the local chapter of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) Union. Close to 50 per cent of the professors in the College of Arts and Sciences are members of the union. Faculty members in other colleges have expressed growing interest in the union. Why has this happened now?

According to union leaders, the AFT, which is a member of the AFL-CIO, is a "national labor organization that really has a voice in government." Professor Huck Gutman of the English Department commented. "It's a militant group with power."

Many members of smaller local unions are now considering joining the AFT. Gutman hoped that "if this trend continues, the AFT will become one of the strongest unions in the state. We're building bridges to other teachers and to other employees."

Professor Sid Poger, also of the English Department, added, "we're employees and must bargain as such. We are also professionals and must behave as such."

The union, which now has between 80 and 90 official members, has been coordinated by a small nucleus of concerned professors. Besides Gutman and Poger, Justin Joffe (Psychology), Tony Bradley (English) and Marc Kessler (Psychology) were instrumental in forming and developing the union.

The union began at UVM on a purely local level. Last spring, the members of the local Union of College Faculty voted almost unanimously to affiliate with the AFT. They also had the choices of affiliating with the National Educators Association or the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), or remaining a local non-affiliated union. Union leaders felt the other national groups were not active as labor organizations on campus, while the local union would probably be controlled by the administration.

After affiliating with the AFT, the union members requested the right of collective bargaining. They asked that faculty be put under the state law for employees, which guarantees this right. The administration, however, claimed that UVM, which receives a great deal of money from out-of-state sources, falls under federal, not state, jurisdiction. After a close vote, the legislature agreed.

This created several problems for the newly nationalized union. Union members were forbidden to meet on campus or to use the inter-university mail system. Vice-President Wayne Patterson issued an anti-union statement in This Week, the university newsletter. Union leaders were denied the right to reply. At present, however, continuing negotiations have somewhat alleviated the situation.

This summer, the Boston Regional Office of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) said they did not have national jurisdiction over UVM. Both the administration and the union filed an appeal with the NLRB. A council of lawyers of the NLRB recently recommended that the decision be reversed. No official act has yet been taken on this.

If national jurisdiction is established, 30 percent of the faculty must show their support by petition for an election. This election would determine whether or not faculty members wish to be represented by a union and, if they do, whether collective bargaining. All colleges except the medical school will be invited to participate. In addition, some staff members, such as librarians and lab assistants, will also be invited.

A few professors, however have been outspoken in their disapproval of the union. Prof. Betty Bandel of the English Department, commented: "Unionization, though obviously necessary for workers in many factories, especially of the nineteenth century, seems to me to diminish the professional attitude in fields such as teaching. A professional person is almost by definition a person whose first consideration is the job to be done, regardless of hours, pay, or any other rewards other than the satisfaction of doing the job. Note that high school teachers who have joined unions tend to ask for "overtime pay" if they are asked to direct the school play, for instance. In my view, there is no such thing as overtime work or overtime pay for a professional person. A university is a community of scholars – from undergraduates to the president. Any move which tends to set up a we-they, attitude among groups in the community rather than an us-all of us attitude seems to be to work against the purposes of a university."

On September 30, Albert Shanker, President of the AFT, will visit UVM. Shanker will present a charter to the Vermont Board of Teachers.

Memorial Services

The Cynic extends sincere condolences to the family of Prof. Dick Warner, who died early Monday. Memorial services will be held at Ira

Vice President Rollins Presents His Side Of "Enrollment Quota"

by Margo Howland

UVM Academic Vice President Alfred B. Rollins last week presented to the Faculty Senate a series of charts and graphs relating to admissions quotas, distribution of Vermont and out-of-state student enrollment in the various colleges, and SAT and class rank comparisons.

It was an attempt to clear up some of the mystery and controversy surrounding a decision of the Administration last year to cut the enrollment of out-of state students.

The biggest change was in the College of Arts and Sciences, where out-of-sate enrollment dropped from 40 to 30 per cent. This was the direct result of a decision made by the Administration and the Board of Trustees to put a ceiling on the growth of the University. Planned undergraduate enrollment would be set at 7250 hopefully at the end of five years.

The situation has resulted in a flurry of dissention from faculty members. On Sept. 9, 1974, the College of Arts and Sciences learned of the reduction in its incoming freshman class enrollment. On Sept. 13, Dr. Raul Hilberg of the political science department issued an open letter calling for the resignation of Vice President Rollins. On Sept. 19, Dr. Rollins presented the Administration's side of the question. President Andrews and Admissions Director Richard Steele also participated in the presentation.

Two years ago, the Administration decided to admit an additional 200 out-of-state students for economic reasons. Now having decided to limit the growth of the University, this year's freshman class was cut by [illegible] of out-of-state students.

Dr. Rollins stated three main points in his explanation:

1. That the decision to limit the growth of the University is a decision to serve the State of Vermont as much as possible.

2. That transitional problems are expected in the leveling off of the size of the University; and

3. That the University of Vermont is admitting qualified students.

According to Rollins' charts, 30 per cent of the entering Vermont freshmen were in the top ten percent of their high school class, 55.7 percent were in the top twenty percent or better of their class.

Of the entering out-of-state freshmen, 36 were in the top ten percent of their class, and 58 percent were in the top twenty percent or better. Both sets of figures include private schools.

Of the entering Vermont freshmen, the mean SAT scores were 482 on the verbal and 526 on the math. Out-of-state students had a mean score of 520 on the verbal and 577 on the math. There was a wide variety of SAT distribution throughout the colleges, with lowest Vermont scores in Home Economics and the lowest out-of-state scores in the College of Education.

It was further pointed out there are a number of problems encountered in setting admission policies. Admission is done separately by each college and there are varying standards. Dr. Rollins has emphasized that the University of Vermont is a State University and that its first priority is to the State and people of Vermont.

People have asked for explanations for the differences between Vermonters and out-of-staters in terms of ranks. In a Cynic interview, Rollins explained, "We have different admissions standards. We say to a Vermonter, 'If you're qualified to take the program, we'll take you.' We say to an out-of-stater, 'We want the best students we can get.' We are choosing Vermonters who are qualified."

It was also noted that many Vermonters do not have an option to apply anywhere else.

A number of faculty members are not yet satisfied with the situation of the explanations. Comments have ranged from allegations that unqualified out-of-state students that would not have been accepted into the College of Arts and Sciences have been accepted into programs with less competition because the programs attract few Vermonters, to suggestions that the College of Arts and Sciences

(continued on page nine)

Vice-President Alfred Rollins — SPS Photo: Lew Comenetz

News Analysis:

Nuclear Power Debate Rages In Vermont

by Sarah Hutchinson
VPIRG Coordinator

The great nuclear power debate [illegible] Sept. 23 Gastritis New York Times reports the shutdown of 21 of the 50 nuclear plants now commercially operating in the United States. Coupled with this report on the shutdowns was the announcement by a leading nuclear safety expert that he was resigning his post with the Atomic Energy Commission.

The expert, Carl Hocevar declared in his letter of resignation: "In spite of the soothing reassurances that the A.E.C. gives to the uninformed, mislead public, unresolved questions about nuclear power safety are so grave that the United States should consider a complete halt to nuclear power plant construction while we see if these serious questions can somehow, be resolved."

Complimenting Hocevar's resignation was the discovery of a leak in the cooling system of a reactor near Morris, Ill.; a leak of radioactive water. The discovery of the cracks in the pipes of the Morris plant prompted the A.E.C. to investigate further. Inspections of other plants led to the discovery of similar leaks in plants throughout the country, which resulted in the decision to shutdown 21 of the 50 nuclear plants producing electrical power in the U.S.

The leaks were traced to cracks in the pipes used to circulate water around and so cool the core of the reactor in which the nuclear reaction itself is housed. The pipes are similar to those used in the ECCS – Emergency Cooling System, the most important safety feature incorporated in the plants. The ECCS is designed to harness a melt-down of the core, theoretically preventing the escape of radioactivity into the environment. The fact that the ECCS has never been tested under anywhere near real conditions, coupled with the fact that the system has failed all simulated tests, leads one to wonder just how safe nuclear reactors are. In the event of a melt-down and subsequent failure of the ECCS, massive doses of lethal radiation would be released into the area surrounding a plant. Estimates of human fatalities and property damage run from thousands of lives lost to billions of dollars. And these are only initial loses. Radioactive contamination of the area would render it totally useless for any kind of use by man or beast for hundreds of years.

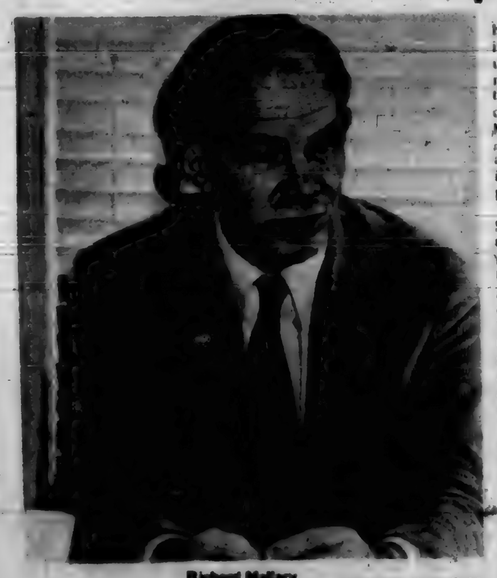
The chances of meltdown [illegible] Vermonters with a chance to voice their concerns on the issue. The fear is manifested to an extent, however, it does not necessarily rationalize the risks involved in the production of energy by nuclear means.

Questions concerning the safety and practicality of nuclear power production are becoming increasingly answerable. The history of Vermont's infamous Yankee Plant at Vernon has provided Vermonters with a chance to voice their concerns concerning this issue. Repeated shutdowns and fines due to malfunctions, accidents and violations of safety standards – have made nuclear power both expensive and occasionally frightening. Vermon is one of the 21 slated to be shut down due to the recently discovered cooling leaks. Power from the Vernon plant is now costing us more than three times what it was originally promised to, (4-mill per kilowatt hour was the originally promised cost, actual cost is now 12+ mill per kilowatt hour).

The basic question concerning nuclear power seems to boil down to the amount of risk we are willing to take in

(continued on page eight)

Senatorial Candidate Mallary Limits Campaign Financing



Richard Mallary — SPS Photo: Wynn Gold

by Margo Howland

Vermont Congressman Richard Mallary of Fairlee, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, has indicated that he will not accept any campaign contributions from "special interest groups" and will not accept contributions greater than $500 from individuals.

Mallary's Democratic opponent, Chittenden County State's Attorney, Patrick Leahy, has refused to place a limit on contributions from individuals. He also plans to accept contributions from special interest groups, according to the Free Press and the Rutland Herald of September 23.

In a Cynic interview Sunday, Mallary discussed his positions on campaign spending. During the primary, Mallary suggested to both his Democratic and Republican opponents that he would be "willing to agree to any reasonable limitations on campaign spending."

"I suggested total limitations on spending; I suggested limitations on media spending; I suggested limitations on individual contributions, either in size or in source; out-of-state limitations; limitations on contributions from special interest groups. I had no response, no favorable response..." Mallary said.

Mallary will spend a maximum of $72,000 on the campaign, 10 percent less than Leahy. He agreed with a Common Cause proposal brought up in California that "incumbents running for re-election should be restricted to spending 90 percent of as much as non-incumbents, to try to equalize the differential."

"Whether that's an accurate reflection of the difference, I don't know," he added.

During the primary there had been strong hints that incumbent candidates had unfair advantages over their non-incumbent opponents and that these advantages should be counterbalanced in some way. Mallary, while not technically an incumbent in this campaign, allowed that his status as an incumbent Congressman did provide advantages:

"I'm not an incumbent Senator, but as an incumbent Congressman in a one-district state, I am certainly better known than I would be if I were a private citizen milking cows over in Fairlee, Vermont. There's no question about that!... There is the advantage of name recognition and ... anybody who's an incumbent in any office has some advantages."

Mallary suggested Leahy had some advantages from his incumbency also. Leahy has been Chittenden County State's Attorney for several years.

"There are disadvantages to incumbency as well as advantages," Mallary cautioned. "And that comes from the fact that during the course of serving in Congress, you must cast votes on individual issues as they come up..."

Mallary pointed out that he has another disadvantage, a time factor:

"Congress is still in session and will be until October 11. I'm going to have to be down there every week, during the middle of the week while the Congress is in session, tending to the business that I was elected to tend to. The non-incumbent candidate can be traipsing around the state campaigning!"

Campaign Reform

Mallary was asked about ideas for campaign reform (in addition to campaign spending) concerning other influences, such as lobbies.

"The significant fact of lobbies is the special interest economic groups that make large contributions to the campaigns of individual members. The other things in campaign reform mostly are tied to the (massive and contributions," Mallary noted.

Mallary favored legislation which would set up a "separate independent monitoring agency, to monitor all the activities of campaign organization: funding, the contributions, and the expenditures." The bill has passed the House.

He also was in favor of what was called the Anderson-Udall bill which would have reformed the funding of congressional and senatorial elections:

"It would have provided incentives for small contributions, and some federal funding, match funding of contributions up to $50. It would not have provided those incentives for larger contributions," he said.

The bill never came out of committee; the provision was offered as an amendment, and it failed by about 40 votes, according to Mallary.

Power Plants

Mallary was asked whether Vermont can afford to build more power plants, in light of what Vermont Yankee has cost.

"If we're going to have power, someone's going to have to build power plants. Whether the plants that we build should be fossil fuel plants or whether they should be nuclear plants is a totally different situation..." he mused.

Mallary does not see the prospect of additional nuclear fission plants constructed in the immediate future, but cautioned that additional power would be needed "if we are to have any kind of growth in the economy and in the Vermont population, which is projected. Vermont Yankee was projected to cost 4 to 6 mils per kilowatt hour when it was first proposed. (A mil is one-tenth of a cent.) It is now costing 20-22 mils. Mallary commented, "I guess the projections now are that if it runs at 80 per cent capacity, which should be reasonable if they get their fuel rod situation straightened out, it'll run

(continued on page ten)

Living/ Learning Center Offers Fall Foliage Bike Race

As summer is chilled from the hills of Vermont and everyone gears up for the terrible first round of hourlies, most of us fail to take advantage of some of the fall's finest days. To solve this problem the Living Learning Center's Education-Recreation Program with the Communications Program are happy to invite all interested UVM students and faculty to rival in the foliage and three fine Vermont hills while completing ten point three miles in the first annual Living Learning Center Bike Race.

This race is for the fired-up and the weighted down. Not everyone will win, but you'll have a great time cruising over some of Vermont's scenic roads. We're not looking for winners but rather for people who have always wanted to try something like this. To help convince those occasional riders with three speed bicycles there is a special three speed catagory and prizes for those that finish near the bottom in each catagory, of course, in addition to the prizes for the winners. Most of the race will be low key and anyone that rides will have time to enjoy the scenery if they wish without being mowed off the course by the super riders. To help keep the field from jamming up we will be seeding all riders that claim to be experienced near the front of the pack. Those that are out for the ride will be near the rear. This doesn't mean that a person in the back has a disadvantage because of position. The riders will line up in rows of ten with five starting every thirty seconds. Because of safety, and common sense the field of riders will be limited to two hundred. For spectators the best place to see the action will probably be in the Living Learning Center's, Parking Lot where the start and finish will be. If the weather is fair live entertainment is planned for the starting area.

The race will start at 2 p.m. and from the Center's parking lot. The racers will turn right onto Spear Street and go South for 4.3 miles to Barstow Road. At Barstow the riders will turn left, go one mile, then turn left again onto Dorset Street. The race will go up Dorset for 2.4 miles then go left onto Swift Street. One mile down Swift the riders will turn right onto Spear. From the Spear, Swift intersection it is two miles back

(continued on page twelve)

Debate

The three candidates for Vermont's only seat in the U.S. House of Representatives will be at the Patrick Gym on Thursday October 3, at 7:30 p.m. to debate the issues of this year's campaign. James Jeffords, Republican candidate; Francis Cain, Democrat candidate; and Michael Parenti, Liberty Union Candidate, having been victorious in their respective party primaries on September 10th, are presently campaigning toward the general election in November. The program, sponsored by the Student Association Speakers Bureau, is expected to consist of a brief present- on by each of the candi-...s followed by a debate and ending with a brief period for questions from the audience. Students, area residents, and interested persons are invited to attend.

Featured This Week:

Lane Series-Pippin p.6

Bike Paths Planned p.12

Table Of Contents:

Arts & Entertainment . . . . . p. 6
Calendar/Announcements . . . . p. 2
Crossword Puzzle . . . . . p. 8
Doctor's Bag . . . . . p. 9
Editorial . . . . . p. 4
Op. Ed. . . . . p. 5
Sports . . . . . p. 14

CALENDAR / ANNOUNCEMENTS

Hillel

Thursday the 26th – break the Yom Kippur Fast at 7:20 p.m. at Hillel House, 389 College St.

Sunday the 29th, there will be a brunch at 11:30 a.m. followed by the building and decoration of the Sukkot.

October 5 at 7:00 p.m., there will be a Havdalah ceremony followed by Israeli dancing and singing (weather permitting in Sukkot, otherwise indoors) to be followed by silent films. Refreshments – wine, cheese, apples, etc. Donations are a dollar. Pay either at the brunch on September 29 or contact Marty in 313 Hamilton, extension 2613.

Newman Center

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Saturday 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday 9:00 and 11:30 a.m. and 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

WEEKDAY LITURGIES: Mondays at 3:30 p.m. (Please note change.) Tuesday through Friday at 4:15 p.m. Also Tuesday at 10:00 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

(continued on page eleven)

St. Anselm's Chaple

The second discussion group in St. Anselm's GOD–TALK series will be on Tuesday, Oct. 1, at 7:30 p.m. This past Tuesday the group discussed their own personal experiences of prayer and meditation within their childhood and teenage years. Some of the questions

(continued on page eleven)

C.P.P.O. Hosts Employers

The Career Planning and Placement Office will be hosting a number of employers during the Fall Semester. These employers will be interested in talking with seniors and graduate students on a personal basis. Sign-ups will begin October 7, 1974.

Roundhouse

On Friday night, Sept. 27 at 9:00 p.m., the Billings Center Governing Board will sponsor a special event at Roundhouse. Tim Settini, a mime artist and folk guitarist from Chicago, will be performing and singing. On Saturday and Sunday nights at 8:00 until midnight in North Lounge, Settini will present old time Twilight Zone flicks complete with commercials. So come and be nostalgic.

I.C.U.V. Meeting

ICUV (The International Club of the University of Vermont) will meet in room 425 Waterman at 5:00 p.m., Oct. 2. All foreign students including research fellows are required to participate. The door is also open to American students who are interested in ICUV. Elections of executive committee and activities of ICUV will be on the agenda. Coffee and cider will be available.

T.E.W.C. Test

On October 1 and 2 at 7–8 p.m., there will be a Teacher Education Written Communication test in B106 Cook. This test is required of all upperclass students seeking certification.

Bach Program

Erich Goldschmidt, former colleague of UVM music professor Mrs. Ambrose will be giving an all Bach organ recital on Sept. 29 at 3:00 p.m. The concert will be free, open to the public, and will take place at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Science Seminar

The third speaker for the Living and Learning Interdisiplinary Science program will be Dr. Robert Keene, on Oct 2 at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Keene will prove with statistics that storks do bring babies. The seminar will be held in B-102 at the Living and Learning Center. All are welcome.

Art Meeting

ATTENTION – Student Art Show Opening and Art Club Meetinx will be held in Williams Science Hall Thursday, Sept. 26 at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

Unwind At Blundel

On October 9, a place to get together for the exchange of information, counseling, or an opportunity to unwind, will be ready at Blundell House – the home of UVM's Human Development Program on Redstone Campus.

A partial roster of counselors can currently provide 20 hours weekly for personal or career counseling and referral services. As the list of qualified personnel increases, the number of available services will expand.

Anyone wishing information about the Center and its services may call 862-0902. Qualified counselors who wish to volunteer a few hours of their time each week are also invited to call this number.

A new show will open at the Fleming Museum this next week, with a reception on Sunday, Sept. 29. The show is entitled "Recycled Buildings: Twelve Projects." Ways of giving a new life for old Vermont structures will be shown. Organized in cooperation with the Chittenden County Committee for UNICEF and the Vermont Chapter of the A.I.A., look for it in the Front, Main and Lounge Galleries.

The Lane Series Office has tickets to individual concerts on sale at 234 Waterman Building, as well as single and season tickets for the fall film series. The first Lane Series concert of the season will be Sept. 30, the musical "Pippin." Tickets are priced at $6, $5, and $3. The Truffaut film series starts Oct. 4 with "Fahrenheit 451." Single admission tickets to Lane Series attractions are $6, $5, and $3. Single film tickets are $1; season tickets (six films) are $5.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26

9 a.m., Women of UVM Hiking Group meets in front of Gutterson Fieldhouse. For further information, call Shirley Sargent, 863-4107.

3 p.m., Mathematical Sciences seminar, Dr. Taka Ashikaga, "Linear discriminant function under conditions of non-normality," B-104 Cook Bldg.

6:30 p.m., Ananda Marga yoga class, followed by group meditation at 8 p.m., Burlington Unitarian Church.

7:30 p.m., Student Committee of the UVM Women's Caucus meets at the UVM Women's Center, Blumdell House, Redstone Campus. All interested students are welcome.

8 p.m., the Interdisciplinary Science Program seminar series presents Dr. Donald Gregg, who will speak on "Chemistry, the Absurd," B-102 Living/Learning Center. All are welcome to attend.

8 p.m., Women of UVM's Play Reading Group meets at the home of Joann and Bob Stanfield, 107 Loomis Street, to read Shaw's "Major Barbara." Spouses and friends welcome. Further information from 658-1499.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27

10 a.m., Women of UVM Field Hockey group practices at Redstone. Some equipment supplied; everyone welcome. Further information from Marion Morgan at 879-7677.

12 noon to 4 p.m., UVM apples on sale at the Horticulture Farm, off Shelburne Road (behind Nordic Ford). $2 per peck for handpicked, $1 per peck for drops and seconds.

4 p.m., "Friday at Four" open house at Royall Tyler Theatre; open to all.

7:30 p.m. Baha'i Club of UVM invites UVM campus affiliated to a Baha'i fireside at 71 South Williams St. (right across from the Music Building). Hosts: Doug and Betsy Crawford.

8 p.m., recital of music for flute and harp by Victoria Scoones and Suzanne Thomas, Marble Court, Fleming Museum; admission free.

8 p.m., Folk Dancing at Southwick Bldg., hosted by UVM Folk Dance Club. All welcome.

9-11:30 p.m., "Roundhouse," informal entertainment in a coffee house atmosphere, basement, Billings Center, hosted by Billings Center Governing Board.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28

No calendar events listed.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 29

There will be a Nuclear Power Movie presented today. Call Billings Center for more details.

1:30 to 4 p.m., UVM Horticulture Farm "Chrysanthemum Show," free and open to all. Get there by taking Rt. 7 south (Shelburne Road); watch for sign on left near Nordic Ford.

3 p.m., opening at Fleming Museum of "Recycled Buildings: 12 Projects." The show, which features a new life for old Vermont structures, is organized in conjunction with the Chittenden County Committee for UNICEF and the Vermont Chapter of AIA. It fills the front, main and lounge galleries.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30

4 p.m., Seminar on the "Flammability of Children's Wearing Apparel" given by Dr. Evelyn Stout of Cornell University in Room 108 Terrill Hall. All interested faculty and students are welcome to attend.

6:30 p.m., VPIRG planning meeting for the up-coming hearing on transportation. Round Room, Billings Center.

7 p.m., UVM Modern Dance Workshop at Southwick Ballroom. Call -3240 for further information.

7:45 p.m., Instruction in Scottish Country Dancing for beginners and intermediates. Room 107 Perkins Hall (Geology Bldg.), minimal fee required. For information, contact Ben Stein at 863-4105.

8 p.m., Lane Series presents "Pippin," one of Broadway's most successful and exciting smash hit musical comedies in years and winner of five Tony awards. Memorial Auditorium. Ticket office: 234 Waterman (tel. -3418).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1

7 p.m., Teacher Education written communication test, Room B-106 Cook. Required of all upperclass students seeking certification. Sign up in Room 306 Waterman. Also given Oct. 2.

7:30 p.m., God-Talk Series at St. Anselm's Chapel, Redstone campus. Open to all. Discussion of "Prayer in various religious traditions" will be led by Chaplain John Appleyard.

7:30 p.m., The Lamplighters, a Pentecostal fellowship group, will meet in MAT Lounge to worship the Lord in song and word. All are welcome! For more information, call Sue Kukla, -2952.

7:30 p.m., SA Senate meeting in North Lounge, Billings Center.

SA ELECTIONS HELD TODAY!

8 p.m., Shakespeare's "Love's Labour's Lost" will be presented by the Lane Series at Memorial Auditorium. Tickets available by calling Ext. 3418.

Last day for changes from credit to audit and for withdrawal from Evening Division courses without academic penalty.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2

4 p.m., 'Tertulia' is an informal gathering of anyone who wants to speak Spanish and meet the Spanish professors. It will meet at the Living and Learning Center, Bldg. D, Suite 350.

5 p.m., Meeting of the International Club of the University of Vermont in Room 425 Waterman. All foreign students and research fellows are required to attend. American students interested in ICUV are also welcome. Election of executive committee is on the agenda. Coffee and cider will be served.

8 p.m., Dr. Robert Keene will speak for the Living/Learning Interdisciplinary Science Program. He will prove statistically that storks do in fact bring babies! Don't miss this eye-opening lecture in B-102 L/L Center.

8 p.m., Con Brio Chamber Ensemble Concert at Commons 115 L/L Center. The players are all members of Vermont university and college faculties who will present a varied program of traditional and contemporary pieces of unusual orchestration. Admission is $2.50 for students. Call L/L at -4200 for more information.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3

9 a.m., Women of UVM Hiking Group meets in front of Gutterson Fieldhouse. For further info, call Shirley Sargent, 863-4107.

12 noon, Non-Academic Employees Council Meeting, Memorial Lounge.

Table Tennis

The UVM Table Tennis Club will be holding its first open tournament on Sept. 29th, in the ping-pong room in the Living/Learning Center. All participants must be there by at least 1:10 p.m. or they will not be allowed to enter.

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER®
Downtown Burlington
Essex Junction

Petitions are due this Friday for dorm and town residents who want to be
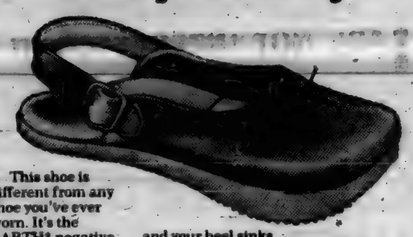
Student Association Senators

The shoe that works with your body.



This shoe is different from any shoe you've ever worn. It's the EARTH® negative heel shoe. The shoe designed to work in harmony with your entire body.

The heel of the Earth® shoe is actually lower than the toe. This allows you to walk naturally. Like when you walk barefoot in sand or soft earth and your heel sinks down lower than your toes.

The entire sole of the Earth shoe is molded in a very special way. This allows you to walk in a gentle rolling motion. And to walk easily and comfortably on the hard jarring cement of our cities.

But remember, just because a shoe looks like ours doesn't mean it works like ours. So to be sure you're getting the Earth brand shoe, look on the sole for our Earth trademark and U.S. Patent #3305947.

Your body will thank you.

Shoes, sandals, sabots and boots for men and women. From $23.50 to $42.50.

earth shoe

*EARTH is a registered trademark of Kalso Systemet, Inc.
©1974 Kalso Systemet, Inc.

139 BANK STREET

Professional Announcement
Dr. Terrance D. O'Brien, O.D.
announces
the opening of his office for
SOFT CONTACT LENS FITTING ONLY
177 Pearl Street
Burlington, Vermont
for appointment call 863 6241

SKIN and SCALP care center by
FOOSTIEN
For Those who appreciate the beauty of a Natural Complexion...
European Estheticain
113 Church Street
658-2770
A COMPLETELY ORGANIC TREATMENT
Removal of Blackheads
Treatments for oily skin & scalp
Treatments for dry skin & scalp
High frequency treatments to stop loss of hair
Scalp and Shoulder Massage
Body Massages
Hair removal by wax
Cosinta Products
Reasonable Prices Come down and Visit!!!

HORNY BULLS THINK A BULL FIGHT IS A LIE SWAPPING CONTEST.

The Montezuma Horny Bull:
1 oz. Montezuma Tequila
5 oz. CONCENTRATED ORANGE BREAKFAST DRINK. Over ice.
It's sensational, and that's no bull.
Montezuma TEQUILA
©1974 80 Proof Tequila Baron Distillers Import Co. New York, New York

Next to acquiring good friends, the best acquisition
is that of good books.
— Cotton

We have all the good books . . . and so much more!
Artist Materials • Posters • Puzzles
Greeting Cards • Photo Albums
Prints • Stationery • Games

Church and College Streets
Downtown Burlington
658-4554

the corner bookstore
"The bookstore that's more than a bookstore!"

The CORNER BOOKSTORE

SEPTEMBER 26, 1974

Theatre Facilities

The Department of Communication and Theatre and the University Players are happy to announce the long-awaited return of Friday at Four.

Friday at Four is designed to give members of the University and Burlington community the opportunity to use the facilities of the Royall Tyler Theatre for

Student Guide

A comprehensive new music magazine for students is currently being distributed on campus by the Student Association at Billings Center October 1 and 2. This new publication, entitled Sound, The Sony Student Guide to Music, features a 10-page article "Growing Up on American Pie A History of Rock," which covers the evolution of rock from Elvis and Dylan to the

G.I.s Asked Fo

UVM veterans are cordially invited to enlist in supporting the latest version of the GI Bill, now pending in Congress, by wiring a telegram to President Ford urging his approval of HR Bill – 12628.

HR Bill – 12628, now under consideration, would increase monthly benefits by 23 per cent and extend the period of eligibility to 45 months. Under the new bill, a single veteran

Calendar Change

A change has been made in this semester's calendar. Advance Enrollment will be held the week of November 18-22 in Billings instead of the previously published October dates.

Don't forget to turn in your local address to the Registrar's Office as soon as you know what it is. Advance enrollment information and other important data will be mailed to you at your local address so be sure we have yours.

For those of you who had your Photo ID's taken during probably come into the Registrar's Office by now. Being your temporary ID card with you to pick up your permanent ID card in the Registrar's Office. The sooner the better.

Habla Espangol ?

Are you interested in speaking Spanish?

Come to "Tertulia" – an informal gathering of students who want to converse in Spanish and meet the Spanish professors – every Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 in Suite D 250 of the Living and Learning Center.

$200

Simplicity

in a solitaire is a quality that has alw
We have a fine selection of tradition from which to choose. We cordially

Illustrations slightly

PRICES START UNDE
Illustrations slightly

YOU ARE INVITED TO PRESTON'S CHARGE

F.J. PRESTON

...All welcome.
..."Roundhouse," informal entertainment in a ...osphere, basement, Billings Center, hosted by ...verning Board.
...ATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28
...nts listed.
...UNDAY, SEPTEMBER 29
...a Nuclear Power Movie presented today. Call ...more details.
..., UVM Horticulture Farm "Chrysanthemum ...pen to all. Get there by taking Rt. 7 south ...watch for sign on left near Nordic Ford.
...g at Fleming Museum of "Recycled Buildings: ...e show, which features a new life for old ...es, is organized in conjunction with the ...y Committee for UNICEF and the Vermont ...fills the front, main and lounge galleries.
...MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30
...st on the "Flammability of Children's Wearing ...by Dr. Evelyn Stout of Cornell University in ... Hall. All interested faculty and students are ...
...PIRG planning meeting for the up-coming ...ortation: Round Room, Billings Center.
...d Modern Dance Workshop at Southwick ...40 for further information.
...struction in Scottish Country Dancing for ...rmediates. Room 107 Perkins Hall (Geology ...required. For information, contact Ben Stein ...
...Series presents "Pippin," one of Broadway's ...d exciting smash hit musical comedies in years ...Tony awards. Memorial Auditorium. Ticket ...hon (tel. -3418).
...TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1
...er Education written communication test, ...3. Required of all upperclass students seeking ... up in Room 306 Waterman. Also given Oct. 2.
...-Talk Series at St. Anselm's Chapel, Redstone ...all. Discussion of "Prayer in various religious ...led by Chaplain John Appleyard.
...he Lamplighters, a Pentecostal fellowship ...MAT Lounge to worship the Lord in song and ...come! For more information, call Sue Kukla, ...
... Senate meeting in North Lounge, Billings ...
...S HELD TODAY!
...espeare's "Love's Labour's Lost" will be ...Lane Series at Memorial Auditorium. Tickets ...Ext. 3418.
...anges from credit to audit and for withdrawal ...son courses without academic penalty.
...EDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2
...a' is an informal gathering of anyone who ...nish and meet the Spanish professors. It will ...nd Learning Center, Bldg. D, Suite 350.
... of the International Club of the University ...m 425 Waterman. All foreign students and ...re required to attend. American students ... are also welcome. Election of executive ...agenda. Coffee and cider will be served.
...ert Keene will speak for the Living/Learning ...cience Program. He will prove statistically ...t bring babies! Don't miss this eye-opening ... Center.
...o Chamber Ensemble Concert at Commons ...The players are all members of Vermont ...lege faculties who will present a varied ...nal and contemporary pieces of unusual ...ssion is $2.50 for students. Call L/L at -4200 ...n.
...THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3
... of UVM Hiking Group meets in front of ...se. For further info. call Shirley Sargent, ...
...-Academic Employees Council Meeting, ...

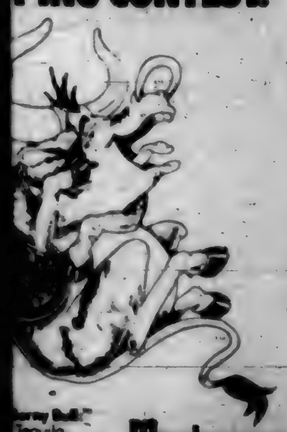
...Table Tennis

...Tennis Club Living/Learning Center. All ... first open participants must be there by at ...t. 29th, in least 1:10 p.m. or they will not ...m in the be allowed to enter.

Professional Announcement

...nce D. O'Brien, O.D.
announces
... opening of his office for
...NTACT LENS FITTING ONLY
... 177 Pearl Street
...rlington, Vermont
...ointment call 863 6241

...Y BULLS THINK
...L FIGHT IS A LIE
...PING CONTEST.



...Montezuma
...TEQUILA

Theatre Facilities Available

The Department of Communication and Theatre and the University Players are happy to announce the long-awaited return of Friday at Four.

Friday at Four is designed to give members of the University and Burlington community the opportunity to use the facilities of the Royall Tyler Theatre for informal performance before an audience. In past years, the series has been very successful.

If you are interested in theatre, music, dance, public reading, in short, any aspect of the performing arts, and would like to participate in Friday at Four, please contact Peter Kurth at the Royall Tyler Theatre, 656-2095.

Student Guide To Music

A comprehensive new music magazine for students is currently being distributed on campus by the Student Association at Billings Center October 1 and 2. This new publication, entitled Sound: The Sony Student Guide to Music, features a 10-page article "Growing Up on American Pie: A History of Rock," which covers the evolution of rock from Elvis and Dylan to the Beatles, Rolling Stones, artists of '74 and more. "Don't Lay No Boogie Woogie on the King of Rock and Roll" offers an in-depth look at the big business industries of rock and record production. Sound also presents introductions to jazz, blues, classical and country music; a directory to 120 current music personalities, and a guide for the selection and buying of stereo components.

G.I.s Asked For Support

UVM veterans are cordially invited to enlist in supporting the latest version of the GI Bill, now pending in Congress, by wiring a telegram to President Ford urging his approval of HR Bill – 12628.

HR Bill – 12628, now under consideration, would increase monthly benefits by 23 per cent and extend the period of eligibility to 45 months. Under the new bill, a single veteran would move up from $226 to $270 per month; a man with one dependant would move up from $261 to $321, two dependants from $298 to $366; and $21 per dependent for three or more, retroactive to September 1, 1974.

A telegram can be sent for only $2 by calling Western Union toll free in Washington at 1-800-257-2221, and it should specifically refer to HR Bill – 12628.

Grants For Study Abroad

In May, 1974, the 1975-76 competition for grants for graduate study abroad offered under the Mutual Educational Exchange Program (Fulbright-Hays) and by foreign governments, universities and private donors was officially opened by the Institute of International Education. Now, only a few more weeks remain in which qualified graduate students may apply for one of the 550 awards which are available to 52 countries.

Most of the grants offered provide round-trip transportation, tuition and maintenance for one academic year; a few provide international travel only or a stipend intended as a partial grant-in-aid.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by the beginning date of the grant, have language ability commensurate with the demands of the proposed study projects, and good health. Preference is given to those between 20 and 35 years of age.

Application forms and further information for students currently enrolled at UVM may be obtained from the campus Fulbright Program Advisor, Dean Macmillan of the Graduate College, located in Room 335, Waterman Building. The deadline for filing applications is Oct. 15, 1974.

B.C.G.B. Openings

by Jeff Thaxter

The Billings Center Governing Board (B.C.G.B.) has several openings for students interested in becoming directly involved in the operations of Billings Center.

The Governing Board, one of the most active organizations on campus, is responsible for making all policies concerning Billings Center as well as providing an ongoing educational, social and cultural program within the building. Programs such as the Roundhouse, films, are planned, different from student interest and their respective organizations, to meet the varied needs of everyone in the UVM comunity.

New people and new ideas are needed so that the Governing Board can carry out creative and stimulating programs. If you're interested in becoming involved in the operations and activities of Billings Center, please stop in at the Governing Board Office in Billings Center, or leave a message at the Student Activities Desk.

Chess Tournament

The UVM Chess Association will hold its first chess tournament Oct. 6 in 120 Commons Building, Living/Learning Center. The tournament is open to all students and graduate students that play chess. No prior tournament experience is needed.

Registration will be held starting at 8:30 a.m. and continuing until 9:30 a.m. There will be a registration fee of $.50.

The first round will begin at 10 a.m. There will be four rounds with no penalization for losing. Players with similar scores will be matched against each other. There will be a time limit of forty moves in one hour. A special tournament clock with two faces will be used to time the moves.

There will be two categories for winners: two prizes for players with tournament experience and two prizes for players with no tournament experience.

For more information about tournament procedure and the use of the chess clock, the Chess Association will provide an information sheet. To receive the sheet, send your request to: UVM Chess Association
c/o SA Box 89
Billings Center, UVM

You may call Polly Peterson at 656-2037. Off-campus students please include a stamped self-address envelope. You are also welcome to attend the meetings on Monday nights at 7:30 p.m. in B-132 Living/Learning.

Organ Recital

Jack A. Grebb will present an organ recital at the College Street Congregational Church (corner of South Union and College Streets) on October 11 at 8 p.m. Grebb, a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences, is a pre-medical student majoring in zoology. He has been the organist at College Street Church since his freshman year, and has performed with the Vermont Philharmonic, the Norwich University/Vermont College Choir, and the UVM Choral Union. Admission is free.

Interest Crisis

Do you think the energy crisis is a thing of the past?

Do you think energy conservation is a dead issue?

Do you think school children in the Burlington community need to know some ways to conserve energy?

If your answer to the last question is YES, there's a group of volunteers you can join who are creating art programs, plays, and puppet shows to educate Burlington elementary-age children about ways to conserve energy.

Contact VPIRG: 863-3435, 49 North Prospect St.

Student Awarded Grant

Daniel B. Haslam, III, a junior at the University of Vermont, has been awarded a $50. scholarship for the 1974-75 academic year by the Sigma Phi Epsilon Educational Foundation. Haslam, son of Mrs. Joy P. Haslam of Burlington, is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon. He is a Communications major.

Sigma Phi Epsilon, a national college fraternity founded in 1901 at the University of Richmond, Virginia, has 193 chapters at colleges and universities in 43 states and the District of Columbia. The foundation is supported by contributions from undergraduate and alumni members of the fraternity. It awards scholarships annually to student members who qualify on the basis of scholarship, leadership in fraternity and college and community activities, and need. In the past 14 years, over 300 scholarships worth $77,000 have been awarded.

S.A. News

Petitions for Student Association dorm and town senators are due 5 p.m., Friday at the S.A. office in Billings.

S.A. meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday in North Lounge, Billings.

Aid At C.T.C.

Trouble studying? Trouble taking tests? The time is drawing near to put it all together. Check in at the Counseling and Testing Center, 146 South Williams Street, telephone 656-3340, and ask for Louise Gulla or Janet Forgays.

Calendar Change

A change has been made in this semester's calendar. Advance Enrollment will be held the week of November 18-22 in Billings instead of the previously published October dates.

Don't forget to turn in your local address to the Registrar's Office as soon as you know what it is. Advance enrollment information and other important data will be mailed to you at your local address so be sure we have yours.

For those of you who had your Photo ID's taken during registration, you'll very probably come into the Registrar's Office by now. Bring your temporary ID card with you to pick up your permanent ID card in the Registrar's Office. The sooner the better.

Part Time Psychology Students Now Accepted

The University of Vermont department of psychology will admit "a very small number" of part-time students into its Ph.D. program each year, and will accept applications from interested persons this year until Sept. 30.

For many years, in common with most universities, all of the doctoral students have been full time.

With the change, the UVM psychology department hopes to serve "neglected constituencies, such as employed mental health workers and women with family responsibilities at home, for whom the full-time pursuit of graduate work has not been possible."

"The need has been obvious for a number of years," according to Dr. Harold Leitenberg of the psychology department, who said the UVM Graduate College will accept applicants for the part-time option until Sept. 30 and select two or three students to begin study in January of 1975.

"We regret that we are only able to provide a limited number of opportunities," Dr. Leitenberg said, but added the course of study leading to the Ph.D. degree in psychology would be given an individual emphasis determined on the basis of the student's needs and available faculty resources.

The particular program will be individually tailored for each student, based on past study, current occupational situation, and financial and time constraints. Financial support for students in the part-time option is not available.

Those interested in the part-time option are invited to contact a member of the committee for part-time graduate studies, UVM psychology department, Dewey Hall, 656-2670 or 656-2690.

Habla Espangol ?

Are you interested in speaking Spanish?

Come to "Tertulia" – an informal gathering of students who want to converse in Spanish and meet the Spanish professors – every Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 in Suite D 250 of the Living and Learning Center.

IF YOU ARE NOT GETTING YOUR PRESCRIPTION FILLED HERE YOU SIMPLY ARE NOT INTERESTED IN SAVING MONEY

We are a discount pharmacy and we sell at discount prices.

Grandway Pharmacy
Grandway Shopping Center
Shelburne Road
864-6869

PLANTASIA

Mostly ~ Plants
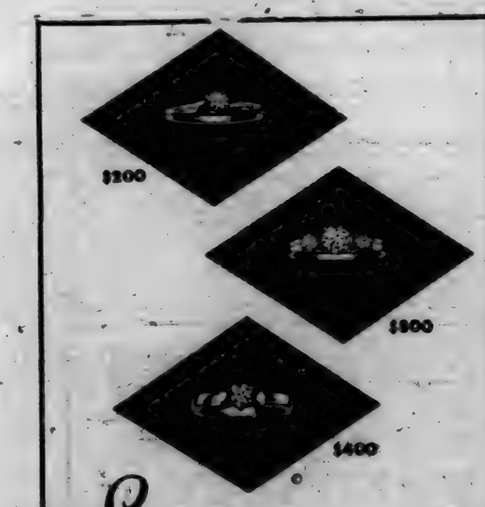
Macrame'
Pots
Soils

Advice
Which?
What?
Where?
How?

107 St. Paul Street, Burlington 864-9537



Simplicity

In a solitaire is a quality that has always been treasured. We have a fine selection of traditionally styled solitaires from which to choose. We cordially invite your inspection!

Illustrations slightly enlarged

PRICES START UNDER $100.00
Illustrations slightly enlarged

YOU ARE INVITED TO OPEN A PRESTON'S CHARGE ACCOUNT

F.J. PRESTON & SON INC.

SKI MAD RIVER GLEN for $70

1. Weekends — Special discount price of $8.00 all weekends and Christmas week.
2. Weekdays — Unlimited skiing all weekdays, all season except Dec. 26—Jan. 1.
3. Deadline — After October 15, the price goes up to $80.00, $90.00 after Dec. 1. To qualify for this special season pass, you must be a resident of Vermont or a student.

Do it!!!

MAD RIVER GLEN
The Ski Area for Skiers
WAITSFIELD, VERMONT 802-496-3551

For less than $100, even a scientist can use a little mathematical genius.

Casio

Solve problems like these in seconds:

- sin 12° 45' 9"
- log 2.3
- $2 \times \sqrt{2}$
- $e^{\frac{1}{3}}$
- ln 0.31
- $a = r \cdot \cos\theta$
- $4.56^{1.23}$
- 2.3^7
- $s = \pi r^2 \rightarrow r = \sqrt{\frac{s}{\pi}}$

Casio's new FX-10 is the math specialist's hand-held calculator. It answers practically every need of scientists, engineers, students and architects—anyone who works with complex formulas. And it operates on AC or battery.

Its independent, 10-function key system is unique to the Casio FX-10. One touch of the function key gives you instant answers to problems in trigonometry, common and natural logarithms, and exponentials, to name a few. There's also a π key.

Even when you're using the FX-10 for ordinary math problems, there are advantages. Such as constants in all four functions, an automatic floating decimal system, true credit balance readings and overflow check.

So why buy just a brain when Casio gives you mathematical genius? Try our FX-10.

LAFAYETTE
• 157 Pearl St., Essex Jct.

VERMONT CYNIC

Founded In 1883

Barbara Pinsker '75, Editor-in-Chief
Rick Steinberg '75, Assistant Editor
Wyatt Kash '77, Managing Editor
Bruce Maddaro '76, News Editor
Randy Jensen '77, Assistant News Editor
Margo Howland '75, Features Editor
Lissa Charles '75, Arts Editor
Peter Campbell '75, Assistant Arts Editor
Mike Schwartz '75, Sports Editor
Kathy Shimmel '77, Copy Editor
Debbie Powell, '76, Advertising Manager

Editorial

Program Standards Committee

The controversy over the admissions policies at the University of Vermont has grown to alarming proportions. Vermont students are wondering if they are being considered "backward" compared to their out-of-state peers. Out-of-state students are being spoken of in terms of commodities.

The Faculty Senate is wondering why their views haven't been considered in the decision to cut out-of-state enrollment.

Dr. Hilberg is wondering what will become of the University.

And Dr. Rollins, who is not to blame for this situation, is wondering why everyone is getting so excited.

The Cynic is wondering if the Faculty-Senate shouldn't have had some say in these administrative decisions. Would it not be appropriate to consider the views of the professors involved, who have to work in these fields and teach these students?

If there could be, each semester or perhaps each year, an organized review on a rotating basis of every single program in the University, and its admission standards, we could avoid the continuing of useless, expensive programs not needed by the University, and the resulting tenure of extraneous faculty members.

Such a Programs Standards Committee could consist of President Andrews, Vice-President Rollins, the Deans of the six Colleges, a representative from the Board of Trustees, a representative from the Faculty Senate, Richard Steele from Admissions, and when the occasion warrants it, a faculty member from the program under study and a student who has been through it. We might be able to save a lot of grief that way.

M.M.H.

Letters To The Editor

Outside Contacts

To the Editor:

My name is Reginald Earl Bailey. I'm presently an inmate at the United States Penitentiary at McNeil Island in the state of Washington. I am a 27 year old, black man, born under the sign of Aquarius, 5'9½", 165 pounds, and I'm very openminded. I hail from the Nation's Capitol.

The primary reason for the correspondance is in hopes that your paper will aid me in the establishment of outside contacts with any young ladies who wish or would consider corresponding with me. I write poetry and would love to send any young lady any of the many poems I have composed. Since my incarceration, my so-called friends and acquaintances have shown their true loyalty by not writing letters to me, and being so far from my home town, it's very depressing not to receive any mail. In my desperate attempt to reestablish myself with the reality of the outside world, I humbly implore your paper to assist me in this so far fruitless quest.

Peace,
Reginald Bailey
No. 36982
September 16, 1974

Billiard Parlor Needed

To The Editor:

The University and the community sorely need a billiard parlor.

With the closing of the "Rec Room," in the building now occupied by the Farmer's Market, Burlington is completely without a decent pool hall.

This is a void which might be admirably filled by channeling a little of the newfound S.A. money towards the acquisition of a few good used tables and other necessary equipment. As soon as an empty room was found, tables could be set up and rented out on an hourly basis, as is the custom in most such establishments.

The University of California at Berkeley has a billiard parlor the size of the Gutterson Field House. While such a facility would be too extravagant for our present needs, would three or four tables somewhere on campus be too much to ask for?

Yours,
Bill Scheller

The Nixon Pardon

To the Editor:

As soon as I heard that President Ford had granted an unconditional pardon to Richard Nixon, I issued a statement denouncing this action as "an outrageous miscarriage of equal justice" and the worst coverup of all." I sent a message to Chairman Peter Rodino of the House Judiciary Committee asking him to request that Ford, Attorney General Saxbe, Special Prosecutor Jaworski and General Haig come before the committee to be questioned about the pardon.

I have since introduced a Resolution of Inquiry, which has gone to the Judiciary Committee, requiring President Ford to answer 12 questions relating to the pardon. Under this kind of resolution, if it is approved by the House, Ford would have to answer the questions within seven days after receiving them.

The questions are intended to find out, in part, whether Nixon's resignation was related to a promise of a pardon, what role Haig and others played in arranging the pardon, whether Ford or his representatives attempted to get a confession of guilt from Nixon in exchange for the pardon, and whether he had any medical or psychiatric reports to guide him in his decision. If you favor this, please write to Chairman Rodino, urging him to support an investigation and the Resolution of Inquiry.

Some members of the Judiciary Committee are discussing reopening the Nixon impeachment inquiry. I felt very strongly that the committee made a mistake in not insisting on a House vote on its impeachment articles, and would support such a move if it is made now. I do not believe, however, that an impeachment inquiry meets the main issue, which is to nullify the pardon.

In letters to Saxbe and Jaworski, I stated my disagreement with those who claim the pardon was a constitutional exercise of Presidential power. My legal staff has made a study of this issue and I believe that the legality of the pardon is extremely questionable and should be tested in court. I have urged Saxbe and Jaworski to proceed with an indictment of Nixon. This would require him to come into court to claim that he had been pardoned, and a court test would follow. I would also urge that you write to Saxbe and Jaworski asking them to go ahead with the indictment of Nixon, as well as with pending prosecutions and investigations.

The storm of public protest has forced President Ford to step back from his hint that he was considering blanket pardons for the whole Watergate crew. Public protests must continue, and, if necessary, public meetings and demonstrations should be held to serve notice on the White House that we will not tolerate a continuation of the Watergate cover-up and the perversion of the concept of equal justice.

I would just like to add that I voted against the confirmation of Gerald Ford as Vice President because I believed that we should not accept anyone nominated by a discredited and impeachable President. Events have borne out my fears that Mr. Ford would act as Nixon's surrogate. I shall also vote against the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as Vice President.

It seems incredible to me that after the revelations of Watergate corruption and abuse of the democratic process, we should be ruled by a non-elected President and a non-elected Vice President, neither of whom ever said one word of criticism of the Watergate horrors. Mr. Rockefeller is also objectionable because he is the very symbol of the big business interests whom Nixon served. I believe we should have national elections so that the American people can choose their own leaders. I shall also vote against the $850,000 appropriation for Nixon's "expenses."

Sincerely,
Bella S. Abzug
Member of Congress

The Pardon / The C.I.A.

by Steve Levine

For months members of the press have been subjected to unrelenting complaints to the effect that their deliberate efforts have prolonged the whole Watergate affair beyond its natural life.

I think I am not alone in saying as a writer that for quite some time I have anxiously looked toward the day when I would never again have to comment on any aspect of the matter.

I have anticipated with relish never again having to spell out the odious name of Richard Nixon.

As of last week it seemed as if I might get my wish. Despite lingering worries that such as finally did happen might, I had become relatively convinced that Nixon would end up the problem of the judiciary and that he had at last quit public politics for good.

Once more I must remind myself that where Nixon is concerned there is never any such thing as never. Like Dracula, Nixon possesses the secret of the undead.

I got home from Mexico, where I had been interviewing American kids jailed for drug offenses, to find that Gerald Ford, of whose intentions everyone was so sure at the outset, had unconditionally pardoned the former president for all crimes past and present and presumably future.

Within hours the defrocked Nixon issued his mea culpa, as always admitting nothing specific.

In the days following, the White House has attempted to obscure the issue with all sorts of bilge concerning the president's declining health, but public reaction, which has been massive and entirely negative, would suggest that American's suspect that a dirty deal was made. Many people think, and I confess to being among them, that Nixon vacated the presidency knowing in advance that he would receive unconditional amnesty and probably quite a tidy sum of money as well, and that he left quietly only because he was so assured. The announcement that Nixon would be allowed to destroy the White House tapes in ten years enflames such suspicions.

So it now seems as if Nixon's crimes will go unpunished. The man who contrived to subvert the entire system of laws of a great nation for purposes of self aggaddizement, this man who bombed cities on Christmas Day and raved about attacking criminals without pity, will retire to his mansion with his money to plot whatever perfidious revenge he can execute. I would not be shocked to find him on a ballot again somewhere some day.

The injustice of this is dreadful enough. The other Watergate personalities face long jail terms for their actions in Nixon's behalf.

Far worse is the damage Ford's pardon will do to the political future of the nation as a body. Now the full story of Watergate will be unlikely ever to emerge. The pervasive cynicism toward government that Mr. Ford had sought to ameliorate will now intensify. The powerful and well positioned will be more arrogant than ever in the pursuit of their objects and the disenfranchised will despair more deeply of ever receiving their due. In a single stroke, Mr. Ford has done as much damage to the strength of constitutional government as his predecessor did in five years of unflagging effort.

Constitutional experts say that Ford's move erects an unbreachable stone wall around Nixon and that it could not be revealed even by the new president himself.

However Nixon is still liable to civil action and to state and local criminal prosecution. One hopes that those who were damaged by Nixon's machinations, which includes at the very least everyone on the enemies list, will take their legal remedies and that prosecutors in Washington and California will see their duty more clearly than did Mr. Ford. And if Mr. Ford attempts to balk justice any further then he too must be subjected to investigation.

All of this is mandated not by some perverse national need for vengeance but rather out of self protection, seeing to it that would-be dictators are brought to justice in an open tribunal rather than driving a stake through the heart of a vampire.

On another area of concern which I like to share with you, the CIA, which has at last been compelled to admit to funding operations against Chile's late president Salvador Allende, is receiving its closest congressional scrutiny this week at a special congressional coference on the intelligence community. There is some talk of legislation limiting the CIA's vast world ranging authority. The 1948 law under which the Agency was created specified its mission as the gathering of foreign intelligence. The more radical elements on Capitol Hill would like to eliminate the CIA counter espionage power altogether. There is also likely to be an attack on CIA funding fronts in efforts to limit the Agency's spending to what congress appropriates.

All I can say is I would not envy the senator who casts the deciding vote against the CIA.

Soviets Crush Art Show

by Mark Seralnick

On September 15, the creative non-conformist artists of the Soviet Union were dealt a severe blow by the Soviet authorities. Using water and dump trucks, bulldozers, vigilantes and policemen, the "First Autumn Outdoor Art Show" was destroyed. The Soviets use of these absurd tactics to break up an art show representing some of the leading non-conformists painters in Russia sent several hundred people, including many Western journalists, fleeing for safety. Many people were roughed up by policemen and vigilantes as they confiscated, trampled or tore up the painting being exhibited on a vacant lot in Moscow.

This bit of news should surely document the Soviet authorites long held opinion concerning modern non-conformist art. The communists dislike most art which is abstracted or conceptual. This would encompass such trends as modernism, abstraction, fantasy, pop art, surrealism, and expressionism. Soviet artists must conform to a Socialist realism in order to be accepted by the Artists Union, which exhibits most of the Soviet artists' works.

Only in the Soviet underground art movement are the non-conformists free to paint as they please. However, they form a small eclectic group – thus limiting the chance for the Soviet citizenry to become aware and educated about modern artistic trends today. Therefore, this noble gesture by the artists was of significance because their paintings were on public view, not being restricted to circulation among artists and their friends.

As a result of this ghastly incident, five Soviet artists were given 15 day prison terms on charges of petty hooliganism for offering resistance against the vigilantes who disbanded the show. However, the Soviets felt sharp criticism from abroad because a number of Western diplomats and newsmen were injured or forced to run from the onslaught of trucks and vigilantes.

Although the Soviet authorities gave permission to the artists to exhibit the show in a vacant lot, they later stated that the lot had to be cleared for a park. However, I view the incident on ideological grounds. In the Soviet Union, art is supposed to serve the state, hence, these Soviet artists are a "threat" to the state because they don't conform to the communist system.

It is a sad fact in this day when a discipline such as art can not function freely, uninhibited by governments, ideologies and the like. In the Soviet Union, I foresee an unhappy future for the non-conformists. The Soviet government's misunderstanding of the nature of art and creativity will likely restrict modernistic art trends. I only hope the communists, will one day, realize that this "filthy" art they frown on will probably do them no harm, and possibly release creatively recluse individuals. In closing, I celebrate the artists who attempted to bring a revolutionary movement into the open in the Soviet Union and I wait for their success.

FRANKLY SPEAKING...by phil frank

© COLLEGE MEDIA SERVICES-BOX 9411-BERKELEY CA 94709

Counterpoise:

Obsolete Advisor System

by Tom E. McCormick

When the VIPs here at the university get a breather from such pressing matters as raising tuition (again) or reviving the four day school week, they should release the student body from the bondage of the advisor system. It's as obsolete as winning football teams at UVM.

Presently advisers are 1) inaccurately titled and 2) nuisances. They are most important during orientation. At that time they serve as the friendly faces of an otherwise large and mechanical institution. Computers can't talk, so they do. They assist by translating student course choices into the appropriate code numbers.

The hitch is that the university insists that students are still incapable of coping without an advisor long after orientation is over. Contraceptives are available with out a note from a counselor and coed dorms are furnished to test them. But you still need an official OK to add or drop a course?!

Basically, the advisor system is irritating because it's practically impossible to find the advisor. Just where do profs go when they aren't teaching? They rarely go, for instance, to the library or to the gym (are you kidding?) or to the Den. And they are never in their offices when you need them (McCormick's Law). But the university requires their initials on drop-add cards. And tracking down professors can be a tedious and annoying procedure.

The ideal situation, of course, is an adviser on sabbatical. In this case, anyone can sign the form. But this option is too good to hope for, and too rare to count on. The second best situation is an advisor with no conscience. In this instance, the adviser doesn't feel the responsiblities of his title, and therefore doesn't insist upon an in-person signing ceremony. Thirdly, there is the advisor who clings to the system. This is a nasty situation and should be avoided at all costs. All sorts of problems can arise because the adviser insists upon putting his initials on your drop-add card.

I have a friend, for instance, who got tangled with an advisor of the third type. My friend didn't need advice, just a signature. There was no doubt about the course – it was a prerequisite for graduation. There was no doubt about instructor approval – she had already signed the form. But the university required his adviser's autograph on the card. So everyday, he trotted over to the department headquarters, and everyday his adviser was absent. Finally on the last day of the "add" period he initialled the card himself, and delivered it to the registrar. At the first opportunity he informed the advisor of his actions. The advisor reacted angrily, threatening recrimination on future scholastic resumes.

Now, that situation is not typical, but it's a natural outgrowth of the system. It wasn't necessary, however.

Advisors shouldn't be compulsory. Students who wish to do so can maintain contact with their counselors after orientation. That's their privilege. But there are many, many more of us, who would rather leave professors to their research papers than try to find them.

Women's Caucus

by Debbie Adler

The Student Committee of the Women's Caucus, a non-sexist student oriented group, which exists on our campus, is looking for new members and new ideas.

The people involved in the organization are hoping to make the UVM student body aware of the expanding role of women in American society.

I don't think their activities were well publicized last year, but through workshops dealing with health care, athletics career planning and current problems affecting women, this committee hopes to achieve its goal.

Activities now in the planning stages are films, lectures, and a resource collection concerning women, particularly relating to "The Changing Image of Women in Society."

Although the membership is small at present, the group is seeking new interested people who want to get involved and inform the UVM community of activities and ideologies affecting women and society.

Whatever you are into – be it consciousness raising or bringing about changes in the women's athletic department, the Student Committee of the Women's Caucus looks like the place to go to get involved.

There will be an organizational get-together tonight, September 26 at 7:30 p.m. at Blundell House on Redstone Campus.

The goals and ideas of the group are pretty open at this point and now is a great time to get involved if you are indeed interested.

The Cynic welcomes letters and columns from students, faculty, or any other readers. Materials for publication must be signed, but names will be withheld upon request.

The UVM Records Office

To the Editor:

I recently went to the Records Office in the Waterman Building to request that my transcripts be sent to the Graduate Office located in the same building. I was informed that said service would be offered me only upon the receipt of four dollars. "What, for two transcripts copied at the cost of ten cents, and carried some 200 feet down the hall?" I retorted in shock. "Well, you know... rising costs and all," my disbelieving ears heard in return. I can see no justification for this outrageously priced service, even though in some cases a ten cent stamp is most generously thrown into the deal. My sympathy to some pre-med students, who frequently, must send two transcripts to ten or more schools.

Michael S. Elmore
Class of 1973

'California Split'

To the Editor:

The only thing more wearisome than a film review is a letter contesting such a review, but as a student of film I must dispute a review that borders on fabrification, Peter Campbell's review of California Split. Campbell not only does not understand his subject, he doesn't seem seem to know much about it. To start with, The Long Goodbye, another Altman film was not a movie set in earlier times with "modern characters." It was the very opposite, concerning a fifties hero who, as Altman describes him, suddenly awakens in the middle of 1973; California Split did not do well with New York critics; and as the focal point for at most a half-dozen films gambling does not qualify as a "great Cine-American theme." (Gambling is a recurring motif in American film, but nowhere is it given the moral and thematic weight Altman lends it here.) Beyond this, to reduce a theme of such intricacy and filmmaking of such subtlety to an assertion like "Altman (is) making statements about the hopelessness of modern life..." alone suggests a questionable sensitivity, but to hold up such totally vacant films as The Cincinnati Kid and (heaven save us!) The Sting as models for anything is sheer debauchery. Indeed, the only thing about Altman Campbell even comes close to getting right is his statement concerning Altman being somewhat of a gambler himself. Alleluia.

Barry M. Snyder

VERMONT CYNIC

NEWS: Vincent Arias, George Georgaklis, Andy Morse, Audrey Rothstein
FEATURE: Paul Ajamain, Carol Dufalt, Amy-Catherine Fischer, Pam Hogarth
ARTS: Sari Bodil, Robert Donike, Amy Fisher, Barbara Freedman, Joe Kauffman, Adelainde Murphy, Paul Prior, Marsha Woletz
COLUMNISTS: Debbie Adler, Tom McCormick, Scott McKay, Steve Rice, Elliott Freeman
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Lesley D'Elia, Eileen Driscoll, Joan Forsaith, Karen Hill, Beth Levine, Daniel Mead, Judy Parker
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Gracey, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Fern Gutman

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of the members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published yearly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and Business offices in the Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone: 658-4911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1883. Subscription rate $8.00 per year, single copy ten cents.

SEPTEMBER 26, 1974

OPEN SEASON: Dec

From the present appearance of t
Epsilon Phi died the old whore death junkie, falling in its terminal stages into besieged by its creditors with liens electricity and hot water supplies disco resembles a burned out public-housing dump, with debris strewn haphazardly entrails are all that remain: remnants o victor in the Winooski River Race, tat chairs of the genre that a Catholic Charit surely reject, yellowing paged textb catalogs that will never be read...the ten

TEP was once a respectable, exclus
With the onslaught of the mid-sixties, th into obscurity, going the way of the R and Presidents who sometimes tell the tr pluralism, mingled with a dose of burrowed its head inside the thick Jewish-only, WASP-only or Banker's so were no longer, pardon the expremion, re

Grafted unto the death of the eth termination of the anti-Vietnam war mu "Counter-culture." The left wing studd into disparate pieces; many adopted Ke

Autumn Haiku

leaves of my tears are crying on the harsh cement waiting to be raked.
leak

all the useless poems I'd written for you lay upon your desk
like empty wishe
until we crumpled them up and played in them
like leave winter

words,
cutting me like icicle dagger stand between us as we thrust them won't my smile
or my tear,
melt you lonesome snowman?
spring
feelings bloom,
walking in the rain,
reaching towards the su
our smiles become a bed of moss
and we lay in sweet green becomin

summer
and the willows of your hair shall mesh with the blossoms of wine falling down the meadow
of our back curtseying at the botto

The C.I.A

by Anne Urrutia

(IF) September 11th was the first a overthrow of the democratically ele Salvador Allende. The year since his d torture, bloodshed, the abolition of d radical lowering of the standard of people. It also marks the return of generous increase of military aid.

On September 11, 1973, I was visit a university and port city 525 kilometer morning the woman I was staying with we learned that the military was attemp government office downtown and we had succeeded. Soon soldiers appe beginning the searching and ransackin supporters of the previous Unidad curfew was instituted and all people o homes. We listened to the radio an proclamations, accompanied by milita

One of the proclamations said t irregular condition should report to th
Since I did not have my passport wit government office in Santiago where I visa, I went the following day to the m workers being brought in, shoved aroun backs. When I asked what they had d tried to stop the work at their plant. Co in front of the hundred or so of us w could well imagine the treatment they closed doors. Later conversations with had been taken prisoners bore out extensive torture and summary execu without trial or benefit of defense.

I was told next to report to the po large box of novels, poetry, politica books which had been published by the company, Quimantu. Again, I aske puzzled, and was told, "You must be (I later learned of the raids on book which all literature with any remote co government was confiscated.) I went up my name and other personal informati longer interview and possible imprisonm central American country whose appa was studying sociology at the Universit

When I returned to the house, proclamations, stating that anyone literature, any posters, magazines, ne indicating by possession sympath government would be taken into cu looked through my things, and burned and a pamphlet, all of which had been and in the bookstores, along with all th material that was available in Chile. S what the word facism means.

Finally it dawned on me that thes simple changing of office-holders. Th bloody matter. It wasn't until two newspapers were published, carrying

Editor

The Nixon Pardon

heard that granted an pardon to issued a ncing this outrageous ral justice" up of all." I Chairman
the House
tee asking that Ford,
l Saxbe, aworski and before the questioned

troduced a uary, which Judiciary
ng President questions
dom Under tion, if it is
House, Ford
nswer the seven days

re intended rt, whether was related rdon, what s played in n, whether resentatives nfession of n exchange whether he psychiatric um in his favor this,
Chairman
to support and the

of the ittee are the Nixon
ry. I felt that the mistake in use vote on ticles, and move if it
ot believe,
peachment
main issue,
he pardon.
Saxbe and ted my those who was a rcise of My legal ity of the issue and I believe that the legality of the pardon is extremely questionable and should be tested in court. I have urged Saxbe and Jaworski to proceed with an indictment of Nixon. This would require him to come into court to claim that he had been pardoned, and a court test would follow. I would also urge that you write to Saxbe and Jaworski asking them to go ahead with the indictment of Nixon, as well as with pending prosecutions and investigations.

The storm of public protest has forced President Ford to step back from his hint that he was considering blanket pardons for the whole Watergate crew. Public protests must continue, and, if necessary, public meetings and demonstrations should be held to serve notice on the White House that we will not tolerate a continuation of the Watergate cover-up and the perversion of the concept of equal justice.

I would just like to add that I voted against the confirmation of Gerald Ford as Vice President because I believed that we should not accept anyone nominated by a discredited and impeachable President. Events have borne out my fears that Mr. Ford would act as Nixon's surrogate. I shall also vote against the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as Vice President.

It seems incredible to me that after the revelations of Watergate corruption and abuse of the democratic process, we should be ruled by a non-elected President and a non-elected Vice President, neither of whom ever said one word of criticism of the Watergate horrors. Mr. Rockefeller is also objectionable because he is the very symbol of the big business interests whom Nixon served. I believe we should have national elections so that the American people can choose their own leaders. I shall also vote against the $850,000 appropriation for Nixon's "expenses."

Sincerely,
Bella S. Abzug
Member of Congress

UVM Records Office

l to the Waterman
that my
to the ted in the informed would be upon the
rs. "What, pied at the id-carried the hall?" I
"Well, you know... rising costs and all," my disbelieving ears heard in return. I can see no justification for this outrageously priced service, even though in some cases a ten cent stamp is most generously thrown into the deal. My sympathy to some pre-med students, who frequently, must send two transcripts to ten or more schools.

Michael S. Elmore
Class of 1973

'California Split'

ng more review is a review,
lm I must borders on Campbell's
nia Split.
does not bject, he to know tart with, another movie set

"modern the very a fifties describes ens in the rnia Split
New York
l point for zen films ualify as a

"great Cine-American theme." (Gambling is a recurring motif in American film, but nowhere is it given the moral and thematic weight Altman lends it here.) Beyond this, to reduce a theme of such intricacy and filmmaking of such subtlety to an assertion like "Altman (is) making statements about the hopelessness of modern life..." alone suggests a questionable sensitivity, but to hold up such totally vacant films as The Cincinnati Kid and (heaven save us!) The Sting as models for anything is sheer debauchery. Indeed, the only thing about Altman Campbell even comes close to getting right is his statement concerning Altman being somewhat of a gambler himself. Alleluia.

Barry M. Snyder

MONT CYNIC

...ne, George — Steve Rice, Elliott Freedman
...ne, Audrey — SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
...ein, Carol — PRODUCTION: Lesley D'Elia, Eileen Driscoll, Joan Foresith, Karen Hill, Beth Levine, Daniel Mead, Judy Parker
...Fischer, — ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Gramery, Debbie Powell
...Freedman, — BUSINESS MANAGER: Fern Gutman
...de Murphy,
...Adler,
...ett McKay,

...ressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in ...must necessarily reflect the opinions of the ...administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of ...ions expressed by the columnists do not ...ect the opinion of the majority of the ...CYNIC Editorial Board.

...ished during the college year by the students ...y of Vermont and State Agricultural College. ...Business offices in the Billings Center, ...mont. Telephone: 658-0311. Deadline for ...ert, prior to date of publication.

...1883. Subscription rate $8.00 per year, single

OPEN SEASON:

Death Of A Fraternity

From the present appearance of 383 College Street, Tau Epsilon Phi died the old whore death of a perforated-veined junkie, falling in its terminal stages into an abyss of bankruptcy, besieged by its creditors with liens and attachments, heat, electricity and hot water supplies disconnected. Its edifice now resembles a burned out public-housing project, one enormous dump, with debris strewn haphazardly from stem to stern. The entrails are all that remain: remnants of an ancient raft, thrice victor in the Winooski River Race, tawdry tablets and broken chairs of the genre that a Catholic Charities Rummage sale would surely reject, yellowing paged textbooks and grad-school catalogs that will never be read...the ten year party is over.

••••••••••••••••••••

TEP was once a respectable, exclusively Jewish fraternity. With the onslaught of the mid-sixties, the ethnic fraternity faded into obscurity, going the way of the Raspoon coat, Kike Walk and Presidents who sometimes tell the truth. Cultural and ethnic pluralism, mingled with a dose of egalitarianism, finally burrowed its head inside the thick walls of Greekdom. Jewish-only, WASP-only or Banker's son- only fraternity houses were no longer, pardon the expression, relevant.

Grafted unto the death of the ethnic fraternity came the termination of the anti-Vietnam war movement and its resultant "Counter-culture." The left wing student movement shattered into disparate pieces; many adopted Ken Kesey's dictate – that the best way to end the war was to walk away and say "fuck it" – as a lifestyle. The best way to avoid a sick society was simply to internalize that "fuck it" attitude.

In the sixties, the prolongation of adolescence to at least one's mid-twenties coupled with the collapse of almost every institution of social control – the family, the church, the school, the corporation, the government. To many of the educated young, these institutions had lost all credibility, had become devoid of all meaning or validity. Society had lost its moorings, a whole nation had cut many of its young adrift.

TEP became a haven for UVM's drifters and drop-outs, a virtual Salvation Army home for the community's wayward degenerates. It ceased, for all intents and purposes, to be a fraternity; its name had even changed to "Hipsterville". Like a huge lodestone, it attracted the underside of the community, a sundry lot varying from football players to freaks, from students with mere life problems try a few who probably belonged sequestered between the walls of Waterbury's padded cells. Yet there was one unifying force shared by all TEP's inhabitants and frequent visitors; the insatiable desire to alter one's consciousness, to simply escape life's gritty responsibilities and vicissitudes for a while, to hang a "Gone Fishin'" sign on existence, to play Hooky on society.

Life at "Hipsterville" was one perpetual party, one stoned merry-go-round of divine decadence. Upon opening the front door, the olfactory was pierced with the sweet, pungent, unmistakable odor of burning marijuana. Whether it be three in the afternoon, or three in the morning, there was always a party, always dope to be inhaled, snorted or whatever, always loud rock music shaking plaster off the paper-thin walls. On a typical day at TEP, one was merely strunk, that mellow combination of being stoned and drunk. On a day when the 'Ville was hopping, everyone present was wired, plugged into 220-volt circuits on some delightfully evil substance, as if the whole crew were seeking to outdo Hunter Thompson on his way to Las Vegas, as if their collective mission was some undiscovered mental planet in a new solar system.

Some will hold that TEP reaked of sophomoric, teen-aged nihilism, that its death is a hopeful symbol of the denounment of the hedonistic lifestyle among college students. Yet, social workers, anti-drug crusaders and liberal, Woodrow Wilson-apeing reformists to the contrary, there really are amongst the living incorrigible hedonists, people who just want to drink get high and make love and merriment for the rest of their lives. Indeed this segment of humanity has always been with us; even the annals of the right-living, God-fearing Puritans are replete with tales of public whippings of alcoholics and do-nothings, of sermons denouncing the corrosive influence of Ale-houses upon that righteous society. One makes no value judgments of this lifestyle; it simply exists.

But most people have other ideas about these things. And society has this harsh, inexorable way of enforcing its own values. Needless to point out, they do not merge with the mores of TEP. Dionysian revelry is not conducive to attending classes, cleaning houses, paying bills or garnering enough pledges to stay in the fraternity business.

The inhabitants and hangers -on have scattered. A few, mainly those bright or lucky enough to have escaped with some grey cells intact, have entered the ivy-coated walls of graduate and professional schools. Others are working for the Establishment in Bennington, U.S.A., or have gotten married. A couple are festering in jail. Most are still floating, going to school, working intermittently, carousing, making love, groping for a new reference group, undecided about everything... Alas, for these drifters, the party isn't over. It has merely sought a change of venue.

Autumn Haiku

leaves of my tears are crying on the harsh sement
waiting to be raked.

leslea new york '73

all
the useless poems i'd written for you lay upon your desk
like empty wishes.
until we crumpled them up and
played in them
like leaves.

winter
words,
cutting me like icicle daggers,
stand between us as we thrust them
won't my smile
or my tear,
melt you lonesome snowman?
spring
feelings bloom,
walking in the rain,
reaching towards the sun.
our smiles become a bed of moss
and we lay in sweet green becoming one.

summer
and the willows of your hair
shall mesh
with the blossoms of mine
falling down the meadow of our bask
curtseying at the bottom.

leslea Vermont '74

You Never Know

Did you ever try and smile at some people, and all they ever seem to do is stare?

G. Parsons – Goldberg

I wish I was an Oscar Meyer Wiener, that's what I'd really like to be.
Cause if I was an Oscar Meyer Wiener, then everybody would be in love with me!

Oscar Meyer

Okay, I'll admit it... I am lonely. In fact, this world is the loneliest place that I have ever been. As much as I hate, loathe, despise, fear and try at all costs to avoid that lowdown ditch where the bitch of loneliness lies... as much as all that, in a sad, strange way I am starting to understand it. Loneliness.

I am becoming so well acquainted with loneliness that we have struck up sort of a third-rate friendship. She's a bitch though, no doubt about it, kick you right in your ass the first time that you turn your back. Alone with loneliness.

Modern times and progress and the year nineteen hundred and seventy-four and America and loneliness are all related. A family unit. It is lonely at the bottom and lonely at the top and lonely in the middle and the lonelies never stop. Some folks really can get off behind loneliness... they shoot it three times a day and then crawl into dark little spaces and peer out at the world with sad, tearstained eyes. Not me. I am one of those kind that figures that if I can build a wall that is high enough and thick enough and tight enough, it will keep all the loneliness away. It doesn't. You build that big old wall and all you get is more loneliness.

I suppose that everybody is born with a hole in their heart or their soul and sets out into Life trying to fill up that lonely hole. When you think about it, it's a tough trick to turn. But we try. With organic vegetables and cars and bars and drugs and painter's pants and houses and pictures and money and Jesus and fame and dogs and Kojak and the Beatles and war and Burger King and Kung-Fu and movies and jobs and cheap talk and long walks and bullets and blades and babies and breasts and Bibles and you can't imagine what some people try to put in that hole! The harder you try to fill up that lonely hole in your heart, the darker and deeper the sucker seems to get. Nothing seems to fit.

So one day you are sitting at the kitchen table when you start to wonder... what the hell is going on?... you are bored and anxious and worried and you have been walking around for all those years trying to fill up this Grand Canyon of a lonely hole and nothing seems to fit! The television set is on the blink... the woman won't put out... the car broke down... the church benefit has been rained out... and you are sitting in the kitchen a lonely schmuck. Smile. You start to smile... hahaha and a laugh and hahahaha... mumbling and laughing... Nothing seems to fit I have a hole in my heart and nothing fits... the idea of it... smile the joke was on me... my god what a realization... the ahhhhhaaaaa experience! ... and you are smiling and laughing and your hand over your heart... the hole is gone!!! Smile.

Dear Reader,

Okay, I'll admit it... I am lonely. Smile. Are you lonely? Smile. You trying to fill that hole and nothing seems to fit? Smile. The joke is on you, except that fact and smile. Smile and smile and smile woooo smile ahahahahahaha smile smile smile smile all the way to the bank... smile. Be a good egg and SMILE. SMILE. Here's smiling at you.

Yours Smiling,
Frank Footer

Richard Warner 1933-1974

Dick Warner knew what was going on.

He was the only one at the University of Vermont with the ability to play "Hail to the Chief" on a trombone with his foot working the slide.

It was a cold Friday afternoon last year when a bunch of people were hanging around the Political Science Department trying to relax from a typical University week.

You could hear the usual discussions and complaints; politics, Waterman, the Supreme Court. Plenty of jokes.

"You mean you've never heard Warner play 'Hail to the Chief' with his foot?"

"No."

A bearded, curly-headed pink-complexioned cherub emerged from his office with a beat-up brown case.

He sat down and opened the case, removing a dusty trombone.

He assembled it, removed a shoe, put an athletic-socked foot on the slide... the mouthpiece to his lips... and out came 'Hail to the Chief.'

And there's nobody around now who can top that.

C.M.B.

On The Road To Mount Anthony

by Steven Rice

We really had no time, you or I. For we got lost yesterday. Or was it the day before? Or was it the day before that?

Yes, you and I, we got lost yesterday. Or maybe before. I, a young man of nearly twenty-three, and you, an old man of nearly seventy-three, with knapsacks on our backs, running off to Mt. Anthony, the only mountain left around in town.

Down the road we travelled. And though it was May, you could never tell. The dandelions were gone, the maples were gone. And the riverbed had been filled, not with spring rain, but with at least several tons of concrete to become another street, pulsating with Chevies and Fords, Volkswagons and Toyota Celicas, Plymouths and Buicks, Lincolns and Cadillacs, heading somewhere, vomiting the spring air with carbon and everything else. We couldn't even see the drivers, and they couldn't see us. They were in such a hurry.

But we continued along, trying to sing a song, but we were interrupted by the whistles of factories, traffic policemen draped in gray, and a man, withered with wrinkles, selling vitamins on a beach in the asphalt park, puffing his last Marlboro, cursing, coughing, breathing the lovely, May air as cars kept passing by.

Pass the McDonald's, pass the Carroll's, pass the Big Burger, pass the Burger King, pass the Dairy Queen, pass the Tastee-Freez we continued, wondering where it would all end, as we passed ten-story apartment buildings, filled with rats and senior citizens, Zero Population Growth and military offices, which had replaced hundreds of acres of apple trees, sometime before, but even the Old Man couldn't remember exactly when.

Oh where oh where was Mt. Anthony? That big, beautiful mountain, where we could get away from it all, where we could climb and climb and climb, where we could become intoxicated with maple and pine, and drink from the stream near Everett's Cave, and collect wood for an early, evening fire, and let time and soul transpire. But oh where oh where was Mt. Anthony?

From his sack the Old Man took his map, and unfolded the yellow document. With his compass, and by process of triangulation, he pointed over there, beyond the yellow. His hair was layered with dirt. And so was mine. He coughed once, and then once again. But like a general preparing to enter battle, he cleared throat, and continued to point his finger in the same direction.

"Over there, my boy, is Mt. Anthony, beyond the yellow," the Old Man cried in jubilation.

So into the yellow, we entered. All was quiet, all was cold. On neat square blocks of asphalt bones were lumped in piles, according to weight and heighth. Not just a few bones, but millions and millions of bones, perhaps a billion bones in all. Dinosaur bones, whale bones, seal bones, dog bones, hippopotamus bones... and then, human bones. There was one special pile of human bones held together with a blue ribbon, and a sign posted in front of it reading 6,000,000 Jews. The letters were carved in concrete. There was also another sign way up on top of the pile, shaped like a billboard, with neon lights flashing "We Were Not Responsible."

All the bones were tinged with yellow. We kept on walking. The Old Man began to weep. He pointed his finger ahead again.

"Mt. Anthony is over there. I'm sure of it! Over there!"

But from over there, a man dressed only in a white robe appeared. He wore a yellow hard-hat on the top of his head. But his hair was a long yellow, almost down to his waist, and his beard sparkled. He blew his whistle, raising his hand to stop us.

"Where are you going?" he demanded.

"Why, Mt. Anthony," we answered; our voices wavered.

"There is no Mt. Anthony. You're off-limits," he said almost apologetically.

Then he sat, or rather fell down upon his knees, and he wept.

"Mt. Anthony, you see, was blown up over a hundred years ago with dynamite and bombs dropped from F-111's for a Zayre Shopping Center, a Super-Duper Supermarket, and three liquor stores, two marijuana plazas, four houses of prostitution, five military recruiting stations, and even a house for destitution."

"This happened over a hundred years ago?" we asked in stunned disbelief.

"At least that. I can't even remember myself. It's funny how you can't put your finger on it anymore. But it was around the time of the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, the Convention in Chicago and Woodstock, and the assassinations of Kennedy and King, and Hank Aaron's homerun, and Nixon's snow-job, and the resulting Depression. Really that's why you're off-limits now," he answered, wiping the tears away on his white robe.

"And these bones?" the Old Man asked.

"Yes, these bones. Quite an impressive sight, wouldn't you say? These bones are a collector's item."

"Who collects them?" the Old Man persisted.

"I'm under strict orders from Above not to tell anyone, including myself. For security purposes. You can understand that," he answered, almost robot-like now.

The Old Man wailed. It made no sense! No more Mt. Anthony, no more maples, no more pines, no more rivers, no more anything — perhaps not even us? Only these bones?

We had taken the wrong turn and had got lost yesterday. Or was it the day before?

The bearded man in the yellow hard-hat offered us a cup of tea to settle our nerves, and said we could sit upon a pile of bones to rest ours. Beyond the yellow, cars passed by on such a lovely, May day. We could hear the horns and whistles as we held our teacups. And the fifty years between the Old Man and me were only seconds in the yellow, ending with a mountain named Mt. Anthony, blown to pieces over a hundred years before. Or was it longer? Or was it yesterday? Or the day before?

We had taken the wrong turn. And I cried and cried and cried. I wanted to die, or wasn't already dead?

"Son, son, what are you crying for?" the Old Man asked, as he shooked me from my sleep. "C'mon get up. We still have a long way to go to reach the summit."

The birds were singing, the fire was crackling, the wind was blowing. It was a quiet, May morning on Mt. Anthony. I trembled.

The C.I.A. And The Fall Of Allende

by Anne Urrutia

(IF) September 11th was the first anniversary of the military overthrow of the democratically elected President of Chile, Salvador Allende. The year since his death has been marked by torture, bloodshed, the abolition of democratic rights and the radical lowering of the standard of living for most Chilean people. It also marks the return of U.S. economic aid and a generous increase of military aid.

On September 11, 1973, I was visiting in Concepcion, Chile, a university and port city 525 kilometers south of Santiago. That morning the woman I was staying with turned on the radio and we learned that the military was attempting a coup. We went to a government office downtown and were told that the military had succeeded. Soon soldiers appeared in all the streets, beginning the searching and ransacking of homes of suspected supporters of the previous Unidad Popular government. A curfew was instituted and all people ordered to remain in their homes. We listened to the radio and heard various official proclamations, accompanied by military marching band music.

One of the proclamations said that any foreigner in an irregular condition should report to the nearest military office. Since I did not have my passport with me because it was in a government office in Santiago where I was trying to get a work visa, I went the following day to the military headquarters. I saw workers being brought in, shoved around, rifles jabbed into their backs. When I asked what they had done, I was told they had tried to stop the work at their plant. Considering their treatment in front of the hundred or so of us who had lined up there, I could well imagine the treatment they were going to get behind closed doors. Later conversations with workers in Santiago who had been taken prisoners bore out my worst suspicions of extensive torture and summary executions, that is, execution without trial or benefit of defense.

I was told next to report to the police station. There I saw a large box of novels, poetry, political science and economic books which had been published by the government-run printing company, Quimantu. Again, I asked, "What's this?" truly puzzled, and was told, "You must be crazy if you don't know." (I later learned of the raids on bookstores and newsstands in which all literature with any remote connection with the former government was confiscated.) I went up to an office where I gave my name and other personal information. Being held there for a longer interview and possible imprisonment was a student from a central American country whose apparent "crime" was that he was studying sociology at the University.

When I returned to the house, we listened to further proclamations, stating that anyone found with any Marxist literature, any posters, magazines, newspapers, books, records, indicating by possession sympathy with the previous government would be taken into custody by the military. I looked through my things, and burned a newspaper, a magazine and a pamphlet, all of which had been sold openly on the streets and in the bookstores, along with all the capitalist and right-wing material that was available in Chile. So, I said to myself, this is what the word facism means.

Finally it dawned on me that this wasn't going to be any simple changing of office-holders. This was going to be a very bloody matter. It wasn't until two days later that the first newspapers were published, carrying the headline that Allende was dead. That was just the beginning of what was to be the torture and murder of thousands of people, which continues to this day.

Through all this my thoughts kept running to the U.S. government and corporations who had done everything in their power to aid and abet the Chilean military. It made me angry, knowing that what I was experiencing was being labelled the restoration of democracy in Chile. And this experience prompted me to research and stay abreast of the situation in Chile.

Note: This is part one of a two-part eye-witness account of the fall of Salvador Allende a year ago. Ms. Urrutia in part two documents the involvement of the U.S. government, the C.I.A., and a number of giant corporations in the overthrow of the Chilean government.

Tales From The Ozone:

Souther, Hillman, Furay Band On Record...In Concert At UVM

by Paul Prior

John David Souther – After several years of knocking around the music business as a singer/songwriter/producer, he comes to roost in Glamour City with five other ace musicians.

Chris Hillman – Hillman has spent much of his time in the country rock field, from his early days with the Byrds, to the Flying Burrito Bros., then to Manassas.

Richie Furay – One of the Buffalo Springfield; with that group's demise, he joined up with Poco.

These three individuals all have impeccable credentials, and are the nucleus of the Souther Hillman Furay Band. The album, released this summer, was the result of about six weeks time together. I wonder if they should have logged more time playing together and writing more material, while the disk is good, one gets the feeling that if they'd waited just a bit longer to record... At any rate, the album is a good example of fine musicianship that needs just a wee bit more direction. Richie Furay's compositions fare the best musically, though he really isn't doing anything innovative, (which is perhaps the greatest flaw of the SHF band). His tunes, "Fallin In Love," "Believe In Me," and "Flight of the Dove" all resemble tunes in the Poco mold. I suppose it shows from where Poco's strength eminated.

Chris Hillman has written some nice songs for the album, but they fail to evoke any of the beauty of his work done with the Byrds, Burrito's or Manassas. (The songwriting is shared quite equally throughout the L.P., each member contributes about 3 songs.) J. D. Souther seems to be the rocker of the bunch, with his "Heartbreaker" and "Bordertown" being standouts on the album. Of the three songwriters, it is he who achieves the most from this congregation of superior musicians. The three leaders are backed by the solid presence of Al Perkins on guitars and dobro; he was with the Burritos and Manassas, his work is consistant through the disk. Also Paul Harris, who is perhaps the least known of the group contributes effectively on most cuts, though most of the keyboard has been "mixed under" in the overall group sound.

Last but not least is Jimmy Gordon on drums and percussion. I would have to say that he sparks this group quite a bit, his drumming is always solid, innovative, and never repetitive. Listen especially to his work on J. D. Souther's "Bordertown." In what might have been the typical desperado ditty, ("Life ain't so easy in this bordertown, too much dope, too much runnin' around"), Gordon's drumming successfully drives the tune

(continued on page eight)

by Lissa Charles

Have you ever heard of the "Souther, Hillman, Furay Band"? Don't be surprised if you haven't – it's a new ensemble of three well-known, very talented musicians who will perform at Patrick Gymnasium on October 18.

Having cut their first album (which goes by the name of the group) only ten weeks ago, the band features Richie Furay (formerly of Poco and the Buffalo Springfield), Chris Hillman (from the Byrds and Flying Burrito Brothers) and John David Souther (former producer for the Eagles and other west coast groups).

"It should be a great concert. It's a really good combination of artists who really know music", commented Dave Hurwitz, head of the S.A. Concert Bureau. "Anyone who likes Poco and the Byrds should appreciate this new sound."

In addition to presenting the "Souther, Hillman, Furay Band", the Concert Bureau is planning to schedule one concert per month at UVM. The Bureau has already put in a bid for the Beach Boys, to appear November 20. And if that proposition is rejected, Hurwitz plans to schedule the Marshall Tucker Band and Elvin Bishop on November 15 instead.

"We're working with a limited budget", Hurwitz explained. "This is the biggest drawback in our whole operation. Most schools operate with a $40,000 budget – they can afford to lose money and schedule frequent, diversified groups. But UVM only gets $6,000, which is hardly anything. We have to depend on ticket sales for almost all of our expenses. So we have to be very cautious when we select a certain group," he added.

Unfortunately most students don't understand the monetary mechanics of scheduling profitable concerts. Hurwitz feels that the majority of students at UVM don't really 'know music', while the minority of those who do, are frustrated by most concerts at the university.

"And it's not because it's bad music", Hurwitz contended. "It's just that it's always the same kind of music. If we had the money we would try to accomodate everyone at UVM. But as it is now we have to depend on ticket sales for expenses; which means we have to schedule groups that appeal to the most students – big names at low prices."

Thus the S.A. Concert Bureau is wary of promoting 'unfamiliar names', local or highly specialized groups. It is, however, considering a jazz concert to be held at the Flynn Theater in November.

As for October, students should expect a good, mellow evening of country-rock music

(continued on page eight)

Film: Death Wish

by Stephanie Allen

The film Death Wish is advertised in its capacity to invoke "timely terror" in those who view it, for one reason or another, it manages to meet one's expectations.

Charles Bronson, in his portrayal of Paul, highly respected and moralistic city dweller, departs from his code of ethics when his wife and daughter are brutally assaulted by a street gang. Seeking retribution, but thwarted by the ineffectual police force, he plans and executes his revenge as a vigilante.

The film illuminates several social issues, some of which had significant import. For instance, it was interesting to witness the personality transition which Paul undergoes after he is catapulted from the role of observer to that of participant in urban crime. It cannot help but cause one to speculate on the possible psychological influences of crime on society whether there exists a criminal predisposition or not.

However, I feel that the main thrust of the film was presented from a disconcerting viewpoint. In essence, the theme dealt with the question of using vigilantism as a deterrent to urban crime. Paul was a paragon of the concept in practice as he delegated to himself the responsibility of eradicating crime because of the inadequate process of law and order. His illegal methods, however, were not exactly met with wholehearted disapproval which served the purpose of encouraging others to follow suit. Perhaps the crime rate declined but I think that such a solution could have far-reaching consequences with questionable benefit, which renders the question a rather threatening one to pose with affirmative undertones.

At any rate, a reaction bound to be shared by all viewers is the anger and frustration one feels at the perpetration of senseless crimes against innocent, defenseless victims.

Film:

If...

by AG Pinhen

If... ...could really go far in this town, if only we gave it half a chance.

Although the story takes place in England, depicts "education in an elite upperclass British boys school, and takes frequent fantasy trips

(continued on page seven)

Pippin And Love's Labor Lost Perform Monday And Tuesday

The 1974-1975 Lane Series, now celebrating its 20th season, opens next week with a double-header of theatre. "Pippin," the smash Broadway musical comedy hit, will be offered on Sept. 30, and Shakespeare's witty comedy "Love's Labour's Lost" will be seen on Oct. 1.

Both plays will be presented at downtown Memorial Auditorim and begin at 8 p.m.

"Pippin" — still selling out on Broadway after nearly 36 months of continuous performances — has been called "one of the best musical stagings to be seen on Broadway in years" by Clive Barnes of the New York Times. The play has music and lyrics by Stephen Schwartz and book by Roger O. Hirson.

Stephen Schwartz, whose enormous hit "Godspell" has been seen around the world, has written only three musicals. They are all currently playing in New York. In addition to "Godspell" and "Pippin", his newest musical, "The Magic Show", has recently opened and is a near-sellout at the Cort Theatre. He also collaborated with Leonard Bernstein, providing the new English text for Bernstein's 'Mass'. Schwartz is only 26 years old.

"Pippin", the recipient of five Tony Awards last season (1973) will feature Barry Williams, known for his role on the television series "The Brady Bunch", in the leading role of Pippin.

"Pippin" has been hailed as one of the most innovative musicals in recent times. Filled with electrifying dances devised by director-choreographer Bob Fosse, "Pippin" is a kaleidoscopic entertainment that combines elements of Broadway musical with minstrelsy, magic, circus, commedia del'arte, rock music, ballet, vaudeville and total spectacle.

"Pippin" abandons traditional musical comedy form, and the unconventional opening discovers the leading actor dangling from high on the proscenium asking directions to the stage. The curtain rises to reveal a dark stage clouded in mist through which pairs of disembodied hands appear, writhing in airy body-less suspension. From the mist emerge the Leading Player, a sort of strutting, Mephistophelian M.C., and his troupe of gauzily dressed harlequins to propel Pippin on his pilgrimage. They perform "Magic to Do", an exciting opening number that offers the promise of an evening of illusion.

The leading player explains that his troupe will enact the life and times of Pippin, son of Charlemagne, 8th century emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. To be historically accurate, Charlemagne's son, like his own father, bore the name Pepin. Little about him has been passed down through history except that he never ascended the throne — his father outlived him. But the mere fact of his existence serves as a point of departure and an excuse to fill the stage with color and pageantry.

Pippin, though the son of an emperor, is a pacifist and a rebel, an 8th century "flower child", who vows not to follow in the footsteps of his father, whom he sees as a tyrant. Rather, he would seek fulfillment in life, and he vows not to waste his life in common-place pursuits. In a wild dervish of colorful stage pictures and exhilirating Bob Fosse dances, he dabbles in books, samples the furies of war, luxuriates in the vacant pleasures of flesh, foments a revolution, and even murders his father.

Pippin is finally offered the choice between the supreme act of immortal fame (immolation by fire by jumping through a magician's flaming hoop) or settling for married life with a

(continued on page eight)

BEVERAGE WAREHOUSE
Retail outlet
FANTASTIC SELECTION OF BEERS, ALES, AND AMERICAN & IMPORTED WINES AT GREAT SAVINGS
140 EAST ALLEN
862-3620

GET ACQUAINTED WITH A FINE RESTAURANT !
NEXT TO SHOWCASE I & II
SIZZLING STEAK
1216 WILLISTON ROAD
SO. BURLINGTON, VERMONT
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Robert Redford as "Jeremiah Johnson"
A SYDNEY POLLACK FILM
The man who became a legend.
The film destined to be a classic!

ROBERT REDFORD in A Sydney Pollack Film
JEREMIAH JOHNSON
A Joe Wizan-Sanford Production
Co-Starring WILL GEER
ALLYN ANN McLERIE · STEFAN GIERASCH · CHARLES TYNER · And introducing DELLE BOLTON · Music by John Rubinstein and Tim McIntire
Screenplay by John Milius and Edward Anhalt · Produced by Joe Wizan Directed by Sydney Pollack · Panavision® · Technicolor®
PG
STARTS WEDNESDAY
SEPTEMBER 25TH
1 WEEK ONLY
BURLINGTON ..... Flynn
MORRISVILLE ..... Bijou
ST. ALBANS ..... Weldon

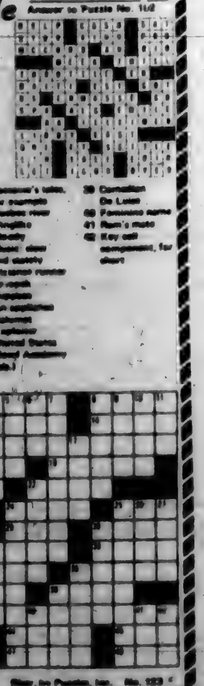
Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS
Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
from Williston Road
I Sting
Women in Love
II That's Entertainment
Plus Co-Hit
State Theatre
Bank Street
Juggernaut
Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
The Way We Were
UFO Target Earth
Devil's Triangle
Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
Uptown Saturday Night
UFO Target Earth
The Devil's Triangle
Flynn Theatre
Main Street
Jerimiah Johnson
NO DISCOUNT
call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights
or special showings

SIDNEY POITIER BILL COSBY and HARRY BELAFONTE
Brought Back by popular demand
They get funny when you mess with their money.
PG
EVES at 7 & 9 PM
UPTOWN SATURDAY NIGHT

THIS FILM TEARS AWAY THE VEIL OF SECRECY AND EXPOSES THE TERRIFYING TRUTH BEHIND TODAY'S HEADLINES!
MIGHT JUST BLOW YOUR MIND
Showing 7:00 & 9:..

UFO TARGET EARTH
And
What mysterious force attracts everything from sailing vessels to jet aircraft and never leaves a trace???
Showing once at 11:30
THE DEVIL'S TRIANGLE
Starring VINCENT PRICE
$10,000.00 AWARD
BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2
PHONE 862-6070 ANYTIME!

BIG BURGER crossword puzzle



Last Week's Winners
1. Dave Ring
2. Jeff McDonald
3. Sarah French
4. Dinah Hamilton

Upon correct completion of the above crossword puzzle, BIG BURGER will award a free dinner. The meal will be given to the first 15 people who present the finished puzzle after 8:00 p.m. tonight. Winners will be announced in the next CYNIC.

Jerry Jefff W... To Perform A...

Jerry Jeff Walker and Tracy Nelson, two of the foremost members of the new and creative generation of musicians who are bringing their own kind of sound to the rapidly changing country music scene, will appear in concert, on Friday September 27 in Burlington.

Jerry Jeff Walker is a rambler, a west-wise story-teller who sings about what he sees, and lives just about the way he sings, natural and easy. He did his growing early, somewhere in upstate New York, and came out of the Catskills at 16 to go on the road in the proud tradition of minstrels and troubadours.

Jerry Jeff stayed in New Orleans for a time and worked in the bars, sang in the streets, passed his hat and made some friends. It was here he met Babe Stovall, the man who taught Jerry about the music that goes with the song on the road.

Working out of Texas, Walker first gained attention as a member of a rock group called Circus Maximus, but it was as a song writer that he jumped to national fame, penning the classic "Mr. Bojangles." Although this song has been recorded by more than 40 artists, including Bob Dylan and John Denver, his own version is generally considered the best. As a solo performer, he has been catagorized as rock, folk and country becoming a staple of the "cosmic cowboy" scene and a top concert performer. He will be appearing with the "Lost Gonzo Band" with whom he worked on this latest album, "Viva Terlingua." The album was recorded in Luckenback, Texas, about an hour from Austin. Officially, Luckenbach is a ghost town – four buildings, with a big old pot-bellied stove in one of them and nothing even resembling a studio control board anywhere. It was here that he and his band and producer, Michael Brovsky, and a mobil unit from New Jersey created "Viva Terlingua" which

"If"...

(continued from page six)

into the character's mind's imagination, don't get too [illegible] disoriented. It's all very much [illegible] us.

The story is about Mich and two fellow students who are the non-conforming seniors at a very traditional school. The three of them, through the increasing dosages of discipline, learn that violence is their only escape. "War...," they say, "is the only creative act left."

And so it goes. The hierarchy of Masters and Whips beating school boys to accept blind tradition, and the mounting waves of rebellion in three individualists, until there is, finally, War.

The picture is an exaggeration of course. Literature, whether it be printed on a page or framed on a strip of celluloid, needs to stretch truth to make its point. Some exaggerations will surprize you, (like meeting the

Tilting At Wi...

Graphic Arts
Original Gr...
Limited Edition...
Fine Arts P...
10% Discount U...
Thru Sept.
100 Dorset ...
South Burli...
Phone 862-...

Jerry Jefff Walker And Tracy Nelson To Perform At Memorial Auditorium

Jerry Jeff Walker and Tracy Nelson, two of the foremost members of the new and creative generation of musicians who are bringing their own kind of sound to the rapidly changing country music scene, will appear in concert, on Friday September 27 in Burlington.

Jerry Jeff Walker is a rambler, a street-wise story-teller who sings about what he sees, and lives just about the way he sings, natural and easy. He did his growing early, somewhere in upstate New York, and came out of the Catskills at 16 to go on the road in the proud tradition of minstrels and troubadours.

Jerry Jeff stayed in New Orleans for a time and worked in the bars, sang in the streets, passed his hat and made some friends. It was here he met Babe Stovall, the man who taught Jerry about the music that goes with the song on the road.

Working out of Texas, Walker first gained attention as a member of a rock group called Circus Maximus, but it was as a song writer that he jumped to national fame, penning the classic "Mr. Bojangles." Although this song has been recorded by more than 40 artists, including Bob Dylan and John Denver, his own version is generally considered the best. As a solo performer, he has been catagorized as rock, folk and country becoming a staple of the "cosmic cowboy" scene and a top concert performer. He will be appearing with the "Lost Gonzo Band" with whom he worked on this latest album, "Viva Terlingua." The album was recorded in Luckenback, Texas, about an hour from Austin. Officially, Luckenbach is a ghost town – four buildings, with a big old pot-bellied stove in one of them and nothing even resembling a studio control board anywhere. It was here that he and his band and producer, Michael Browsky, and a mobil unit from New Jersey created "Viva Terlinqua" which included his powerful single "Up Against the Wall, Redneck Mother."

Jerry Jeff Walker has come to be the symbol for a new trend in country music which has become known as the "Austin Sound." Besides Walker, artists such as Waylan Jennings and Willie Nelson have moved to the Austin, Texas area and have evolved a brand-new style of Country-rock and have made the city the fastest growing country-music center in the U.S.

Time Magazine September 9, 1974, described the music by comparing it to the calculated Nashville Sound. "If the Austin sound has a common trait, it is the lack, onstage, of show business antics or, in the recording studio, of slick electronic techniques. Leading musicians concertize and make records the way they drink – quickly, while everybody is looking, with few rehearsals and fewer regrets. The more natural, unlaundered, even raunchy the results, the better."

Of Walker, Time said, "Without doubt, the quintessential country rocker is Jerry Jeff Walker."

Also appearing will be Tracy Nelson and Mother Earth. She first teamed up with Mother Earth in San Francisco in 1967 to record the highly acclaimed album, "Living With The Animals." Her latest album, "Tracy Nelson," includes her hit single, "After The Fire Is Gone" which is a duet with the legendary Willie Nelson with harmony vocal by Linda Ronstadt.

The concert will take place at the Burlington Memorial Auditorium and is sponsored by Shaker Mountain School.

Professor Gino to Direct "Gypsy"

by Robert DeNike

Dr. Thomas Geno of UVM's Romance Languages Department, when not lecturing to students of French theatre, concentrates his efforts on the up-coming production of the popular Broadway musical Gypsy of which he is the director. Dr. Geno is an old theatre buff: his background in this field of interest is so extensive that he would not list for me his past accomplishments – partly out of modesty (I'll end up getting off on a big ego trip," he confessed) and partly because the list is long. I did manage to discover that Tom is presently UVM's foremost authority on French drama in which he received his Doctorate Degree. Last year, he tried out for a part in How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying presented by the Burlington Lyric Theatre, Inc. He ended up with one of the leading roles. This year, he was elected the company's Director and given the choice of any musical he wished to put on. For a while he toyed around the idea of staging A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum but his final decision rested with Gypsy. "Gypsy is really the perfect musical since it is strong in music, 'book' (plot), and characterization," Dr. Geno explained. "Most musicals fail in at least one of these aspects."

Gypsy is a biography of the famed queen of burlesque, Gypsy Rose Lee. The main character, however, is Gypsy's mother who relentlessly forces both her daughters into show business and pushes them to success (Gypsy's sister was the talented and well-known actress, June Havoc). Gypsy's career began unexpectedly one day while she was sitting in a bar. When she overheard the director of the burlesque act disgustedly remark that the leading lady was sick and could not perform, Gypsy jumped up enthusiastically volunteering, "I can do it!" She was determined to make something of the shameful form of entertainment so Gypsy adopted a gimmick ("as do most great performers", remarked Dr. Geno), she never stripped completely! Though coming close many times, not once did she strip to the bare essentials.

I asked Dr. Geno if he had had any interesting experiences so far in the process of organizing the musical. He mentioned that try-outs for parts were held at Trinity College. Those males lucky enough to have been in the audience during any of the three sessions held last week would have witnessed some extraordinary auditioning. Dr. Geno had no qualms about asking each prospective actress of Gypsy's role to perform in the nude at that time: neither did any of the women, much to the director's surprise and satisfaction. Dr. Geno will not emphasize the nudity in his production. Some must be included, however, in order to "accurately and realistically portray Gypsy's career' Evil is evil in the eye of the beholder", he believes.

Anyone of age can participate in the productions of the Burlington Lyric Theatre. There is only one requirement – talent. Over two hundred people turned out for the three try-out sessions which proved to be the largest and most intense concentration of talent Dr. Geno has ever seen in one place. Among this group were excellent singers, dancers and musicians in addition to good actors. The gathering was representative of the entire Burlington community (including Essex and Winooski counties) which numbers well over sixty thousand.

Gypsy will be presented in the Flynn Theatre – the ideal location for several reasons. Firstly, the musical was written to be performed in a large theatre comparable to those of Broadway (the Flynn seats

(continued on page eight)

Chamber Ensemble To Perform At Living . Learning

The Con Brio Chamber Ensemble opens its fourth annual concert series Oct. 2 with a Wednesday evening concert at the Living/Learning Center. Curtain time is 8 p.m. in Room 115 of the Commons Building.

Opening the program is Concerto a Tre by modern composer Robert Starer, with Layton Davis, clarinet, David Brubaker, trumpet, Robert Wigness, trombone, and Elizabeth Metcalfe, piano.

Beethoven's Quartet in D major will be performed by Thomas and Evelyn Read, violins, Roger Gillim, viola, and Bettina Roulier, cello.

Following intermission, soprano Shari Fleming will sing four poems of Emily Dickinson set to music of Aaron Copland, with piano accompaniment by Marie Vogelmann.

Dvorjak's Quintet in G major ends the program, with Ronald Foulkes, double bass, Bettina Roulier, cello, Roger Gillim, viola, and Thomas and Evelyn Read, violins.

Season tickets and single tickets will be available at the door or may be purchased in advance at the Living/Learning Center Office. Single ticket prices are $2.50 general admission and $.75 for students; season tickets for all four concerts are $9.00 general admission and $2.50 for students.

Calling All ARTISTS

Come To Vermont's Great Art Store

You'll Find Most Everything You Need And At Fair Prices

Boutilier's

Art Center
112 Church St.

"If"...

(continued from page six)

into the character's skin in the Blackhorse Cafe). Others (like when the general is addressing the audience on parent's weekend and the platform catches fire) will give you a laugh.

But most of them will drive home a serious point that might have otherwise gone unnoticed. The history lesson, the church sermons, the beatings and the nude walks of the housekeeper's wife are all too important to risk missing without some emphasis.

Don't dismiss the movie because it wasn't "nice" – it isn't Walt Disney, understandably.

Don't be mad because you didn't "get" it – any good piece of work has to be thought over and integrated quietly into your mind. As a good poem, a good film, like this one, needs to be "read" again and again, getting more out of it each time.

Look beyond any imagination, don't get too disoriented, it's all very much us.

The story is about Mich and two fellow students who are the non-conforming seniors at a very traditional school. The three of them, through the increasing dosages of discipline, learn that violence is their only escape. "War...," they say, "is the only creative act left."

And so it goes. The hierarchy of Masters and Whips beating school boys to accept blind tradition, and the mounting waves of rebellion in three individualists, until there is, finally, War.

The picture is an exaggeration of course. Literature, whether it be printed on a page or framed on a strip of celluloid, needs to stretch truth to make its point.

Some exaggerations will surprize you, (like meeting the significance in the scattered black and white shots (randomly taken for convenience in a low budget film) and the crazy apology to the chaplin, sucked away in a morgue – like drawer in the master's study...

Look deep into Anderson's timeless and universal theme of authority vs. independance as try to relate some of the director's exaggerated scenes of revolution to us, here and now. Give the movie a chance!!!!!

"Welcome to Georges"
corner of North St. & N. Winooski Ave.
862-7449

THE BEST IN PIZZA PIES
Midgett $1.25
Small $1.75
Large $2.00
extras 25c
DELICIOUS!!!!!

Special every day
Homemade Meals
$1.95 and — UP
Homemade Soup
SUBS Antipasto
Beer-Wine-Liquor

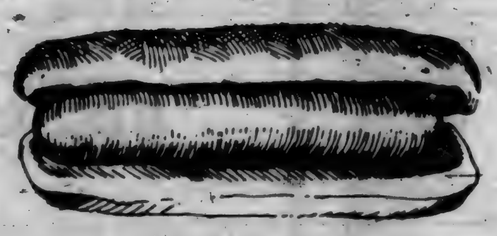
Open 8am-12 am. STUDENTS WELCOME!!

MEXICO NORTH
at the 5 corners Essex Jct., Vt.
Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont
Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more
Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.
10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

Tilting At Windmills

Graphic Arts Gallery
Original Graphics
Limited Edition Posters
Fine Arts Prints
10% Discount UVM Students
Thru Sept. 30
100 Dorset Street
South Burlington
Phone 862-6100

No Tom, Dick or Harry can beat our frank.



Lots of people try.
But there's just no way to improve on the great eating Lumdog. After all, nobody knows more about hot dogs than LUMS. Whether you like it with melted cheese, spicy chili or hot sauerkraut LUMS is a place for a great Hotdog.
The Lumdog.

LUMS
FAMILY RESTAURANTS
TILLISTON ROAD · TOWARDS THE AIRPORT
1130 am - 1:00 am

THE SILVER KEG

★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★
MONDAY-LADIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY - ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★★★★★★★★ WEDNESDAY ★★★★★★★★★
UVM NITE ★FREE★ WITH UVM I.D.
(MUST BE 18 YEARS OF AGE)
THURSDAY- ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★ FEATURING ★
THE BEST ROCK GROUPS IN THE EAST
OPEN 7 NITES WITH LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

's Labor Lost And Tuesday

...s' Schwartz ... recipient of ... Tast season ...tures Barry ...e his role on ... "The Brady ...nding role of ...

...en hailed as ... innovative ...times. Filled ...nces derived ...grapher Bob ... is a ...tertainment ...lements of ...cal with ..., circus, ... rock music, ... and total ...

...conventional ... the leading ... high on the ...directions to ...tain rises to ... clouded in ...ch pairs of ...ds appear, ... body-lem ... the mist ...g Player, a ...trutting, ...C., and his ...ly dressed ...l Pippin on ...ry perform ...an exciting ...t offers the ...evening of illusion.

The leading player explains that his troupe will enact the life and times of Pippin, son of Charlemagne, 8th century emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. To be historically accurate, Charlemagne's son, like his own father, bore the name Pepin. Little about him has been passed down through history except that he never ascended the throne – his father outlived him. But the mere fact of his existence serves as a point of departure and an excuse to fill the stage with color and pageantry.

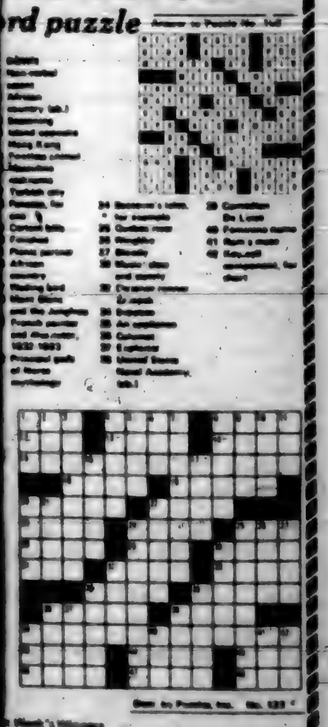
Pippin, though the son of an emperor, is a pacifist and a rebel, an 8th century "flower child", who vows not to follow in the footsteps of his father. Rather, he would seek fulfillment in life, and he vows not to waste his life in common-place pursuits. In a wild dervish of colorful stage pictures and exhilirating Bob Fosse dances, he dabbles in books, samples the furies of war, luxuriates in the vacant pleasures of flesh, foments a revolution, and even murders his father.

Pippin is finally offered the choice between the supreme act of immortal fame (immolation by fire by jumping through a magician's flaming hoop) or settling for married life with a

(continued on page eight)

BURGER

rd puzzle



...ect completion of the above crossword ... BURGER will award a free dinner. The ... given to the first 15 people who present ... puzzle after 8:00 p.m. tonight. Winners ...unced in the next CYNIC.

Music Thing

"Elliot Murphey Is Dylanesque"

by Michael Thurston
Aquashow
Elliott Murphy
Polydor PD 5061

Elliott Murphy's Aquashow originally appeared in January, 1974 and was immediately adorned in adjectives proclaiming a new Dylan, a new spokesman. In June, 1974, Murphy surfaced as a commercial success via Last of the Rock Stars, released as a single. It's about time! Murphy is undoubtedly in line for honors on an excellent first album, but any likeness to Dylan is purely accidental, and any 'run-at-the-mouth' superlatives serve to camouflage the artist as he is, and serves to fill column inches in a relatively inactive music business.

Elliott Murphy is Dylanesque in that he speaks with naivete, and frequent misinterpretations or over-simplifications of subject matter. The comparison ends here. Murphy has no intentions of being Dylan. Murphy wants respect, demands to be a star, contrary to Dylan the 'recluse,' who could take or leave stardom, and return to the hills. With Dylan, the whole thing happened by accident, anyway. With Murphy, there's an inescapable impression that the whole thing was calculated. Murphy, Long Island born, has no hills to return to. No identity. This suburban minstrel has no taproot. His declaration of stardom serves as the groundwork for his first touchdown with an identity of his own. White Middle Class Blues acutely defines the lack of identity Murphy contended with during his youth. His father ran the Aquashow on Long Island, as well as the swankest restaurant on the island, leaving Murphy as a rich man's orphan. Not that Murphy is special, or that intentional orphanage is uncommon. It's become the earmark of a mobile and rootless society. Murphy's ability to transform an personal needs, the unknown, into a constant separates him from the masses. As a result, his widespread appeal, based in part on his bridging the gap between confusion, misdirection, and confirmed self-knowledge, has answered or at least introduced the fundamental questions to a youth market in much the same shoes. Murphy's spokesmanship, therefore, lies not as much in answering, as in defining the problems at hand.

As with the great heroes he idolizes, such as F. Scott Fitzgerald, Murphy has one tragic flaw. It could be his undoing, or it could make Murphy a tragic hero. Dylan can be naive, and yet be sincere. Dylan has the ability to take the listener on a total ride, and you're willing to buy every word of it. Murphy can't pull it off. Marilyn, the solumn, mournful ballad to Norma Jean, demonstrates trite naivete. "Marilyn Monroe died for our sins." Like hell. Elbott Murphy is still captivated in childhood fantasy, Interestingly enough, Elton John makes the same claim about Marilyn in his Candle In The Wind, and gets away with it. The difference is subtlety. Never once does John mention the name. Murphy hits the listener over the head with the name, as if he just learned how to pronounce it correctly. Murphy's Marilyn inspires a golly, gee, wow. Elton John's Candle In The Wind inspires nothing but solemn attention.

Gothic back-up is the best term that comes to mind in describing Murphy's studio section. Yes, much of it is lifted from Dylan, especially the harmonica. But still, the context in which the instruments are used is totally different from Dylan's. Dylan's talents are far more earthy.

Dylan has undercurrent. Murphy rides the surf. Murphy's working on a deeper element, but hasn't yet grounded his snappy, quick, non-directive mind.

Lane Series Presents "Pippin"

(continued from page six)

wife and son. He chooses the latter, whereupon the stage is peeled of illusion to reveal something close to dis-illusion: the bare stage and the newly enlighted Pippin are perfectly joined.

The notable musical numbers in "Pippin" include "No Time At All," a show-stopper in which the audience is invited to "follow the bouncing ball" and sing along, plus "Corner of the Sky" (made popular by the Jackson Five), "Magic To Do," "War Is a Science", "Simple Joys", "Spread a Little Sunshine" and "On the Right Track." The original cast album has been recorded by Motown Records.

Among the Tony Awards received by "Pippin" were one for Ben Veeren as Best Actor in Musical; two for Bob Fosse, for Best Director and Best Choreographer; one for scenic designer Tony Walton, and one for Lighting Designer Jules Fisher.

"Pippin" is currently on a cross country tour of 90 cities. The Broadway production, which begins its third year on Oct. 23, is still playing to capacity audiences and is the top-grossing show on Broadway.

"Love's Labour Lost" will be presented by the widely-acclaimed City Center Acting Company of New York City, which has just completed a highly successful season at Saratoga, N.Y.

The City Center Acting Company is a triumph of theater and a tour de force for its celebrated guiding spirit, the distinguished producer-director and now actor (The Paper Chase), John Houseman. The Company is an outgrowth of the Drama Division of the Juilliard School-Lincoln Center in New York. In its two years of operation, the Company has already established itself as a major touring company, bringing a repertory of plays, both classic and modern, to campuses, regional theatres, and major cities all over the United States, the only permanent and professional ensemble to do so.

The New York press unanimously approved the Company when it opened in the city, and Clive Barnes of the New York Times wrote, "I enjoyed myself and what is more, I enjoyed the prospect of a new repertory company that New York can grow up with." He also compared the production of "The School for Scandal" favorably to that of Britain's National Theatre and dubbed it "the finest repertory company in New York City." In its second season at New York's Billy Rose Theater, the company presented New York premieres of Chekhov's "Three Sisters", John Gay's "The Beggar's Opera" and Shakespeare's "Measure For Measure."

Since that first off-Broadway stand the company has performed to an estimated 300,000 people in 20 states, and this season traveled and played in colleges and universities across the country for 46 out of 52 weeks. In January of 1974 the young acting company began a tour which included extended engagements in Denver, Detroit and Washington, D.C., as well as shorter visits to universities and other theatres in the mid-west, south and east.

Finally, the City Center Acting Company is the dramatic arm of the Saratoga Performing Arts Center in the distinguished company of the New York City Ballet and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Following the 1974 spring tour the company returned to New York to prepare for its third summer season at Saratoga and also to rehearse a new repertory for the 1974-1975 national tour which will take it across the country, adding five more states to an already impressive list of twenty. The season includes eight weeks in California, extended runs in Los Angeles, New York and Washington, D.C., and a four-week residency at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, as well as one-night stands at such universities as the University of Vermont.

One of Shakespeare's sunniest comedies, and possibly his earliest work for theater, "Love's Labour's Lost has been staged by Gerald Freedman, former artistic director of the New York Shakespeare Festival's Public Theater. Mr. Freedman was the acting company's first director, with "The School for Scandal" which launced the group on the first of its successful, cross-country repertory tours.

"Love's Labour's Lost" is the story of a young king and three nobles who swear to lead a monastic, academic life for three years. But a princess and her three ladies-in-waiting wreak havoc with that vow. What begins as a game of love — replete with music, masks and clowning — turns into a charming reality.

Principal roles in the acting company production are played by Mary-Joan Negro, Mary Lou Rosato, Norman Snow and Sam Tsoutsouvas. The special music was composed by John Norris, and the dances were staged by Joyce Trisler. Douglas W. Schmidt designed the setting, Theoni V. Aldredge the costumes, And David F. Segal the lighting.

Tickets for both plays are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, at $3, $5, $6. Reservations may be made by calling 656-3418. Season tickets are also on sale.

The Lane Film Society Series will open its Truffaut Classic Movies with "Fahrenheit 451" on Friday, Oct. 4, with showings at 7:30 and 9:30 in Marsh Life Sciences Building Auditorim. Tickets are $1, season tickets for all six movies in the series are $5. They too are on sale in the Lane Office.

The next concert on the Lane Series will be the Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre, Oct. 9, the most exciting dance company in the world today.

"Ozone"

(continued from page six)

along, making it my favorite cut.

The greatest problem with the band is presented by the material they chose to work with. It's basically good, but fails to measure up to some of the classic work done by the members in their previous groups. The disc is an example of fine musicianship that transcends the material. Not that it isn't a good album, I'd take it over the latest excursions by the Eagles and Poco any day. I have strong anticipation that their upcoming appearance at Patrick Gym on October 18th will be one of the best concerts at UVM. They've been together a lot longer and will undoubtedly have some new material. So, until then, be satisfied with the record, and get psyched for October 18th – For those who attend; it will be a memorable evening.

"Gypsy"

(continued from page seven)

fifteen hundred). The Flynn's forty-by-sixty foot stage is needed since this production will include a cast of seventy, a stage crew of twenty and a thirty-piece orchestra. Secondly, Dr. Geno won't settle for just any auditorium as production casts total twelve thousand dollars.

Gypsy's music score was composed by Jules Stein in 1959. Steve Plumb, an excellent musician himself, will direct the musical aspect of the production. Choreography will be done by Polly Nulty. The musical will be presented from Nov. 14th to Nov. 17th including four evening performances and one matinee.

This is Dr. Geno's way of temporarily getting away from the university, relaxing from the strain of a professor's work and meeting new people.

Nuclear Power Debate

(continued from page one)

order to produce this form of energy.

Carl Hocevar is a leading nuclear power safety expert who just quit his job with the A.E.C. "in order to be free to tell the American people about the potentially dangerous conditions in the nation's nuclear power plants." Hocevar is joining the ranks of other scientists and concerned individuals who are offering an alternative outlook to the AEC's. Perhaps by watching this issue closely, drawing on the information offered by both pro and anti-nuclear factions, the public can raise their status from "uninformed and misled" to the point where we can begin to make intelligent decisions concerning the future of nuclear power; decisions that are of vital importance to every man, Ms. and child on our spaceship earth.

"Concert"

(continued from page six)

on Oct. 18. Tickets for the "Souther, Hillman, Furay Band" will be on sale early in the month at Bailey's and the UVM Bookstore. Prices include: $3.50 for students, $4.50 for non-students, and $4.50 for everyone at the door.

SLOW DOWN!!! if you're not riding
on E&E Retreads!
Complete line of new and retreaded winter tires
Front end alignments
All U.V.M. students get 10% discount with this ad.
E & E TIRE CO., INC. 864-7759
152 RIVERSIDE AVE.

Lafayette RADIO ELECTRONICS
STORE CLOSES SAT. 28th 1974
We've lost our lease, so we're moving to 157 Pearl St., Essex Junction
SAVE
CLOSE OUT SALE!
Pioneer — JVC — AR — TEAC
TV's — PANASONIC — PHILLIPS
GARRARD — KLH — BSR — SONY
— LAFAYETTE BASF - ADVENT - TEAC - REVOX - Scotch Tapes
Just a few of the Great Savings
Garrard 74-MS Turntable — Reg. $99, Now $75
JVC Receivers 35% Off
Garrard Zero-100's turntables $139.00. List $209
KLH 32 Speakers $84.00. List $119.95
All automatic test equipment 25% off
All Cassette tapes and reel-to-reel tapes 25% off
AR-XB Turntable $109.00
Panasonic 4-channel 8-track stereos 30% Off
12" B&W TV $89.95
Once in a lifetime savings!
Stereo, tapes, TV's and more!
LAST WEEK UP TO LAST WEEK
CLOSING SAT 28th
25% OFF
EVERYTHING IN THE STORE
Burlington Store Only

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 862-7686
FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS
INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES
• Fine work on American cars
• Firestone tires • Exide Batteries
• Front end alignment • Spin balancing
• Undercoating • Engine rebuilding
VW BRAKE JOB $49.95
Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 turn drums, rebuilt 4 wheel cylinders. Discs $10 additional.
Spin Balancing $3.50 per Wheel
Front End Alignment $12.00
VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

royal christy
BURLINGTON'S ONLY SPECIALTY SHOP
PRE-SEASON SKIERS TUNE-UP
Our Wet Belt Sander, the only one in Burlington, sharpens edges, repairs & waxes bottoms without the heat and friction buildup conventional sanders produce Ski refinishing that rivals a factory refinishing without spending $20 and 6 weeks. Brings your skis in & watch our Wet Belt work wonders!
ONLY $7.00
located within The Ski Shop royal christy 388 Shelburne Rd

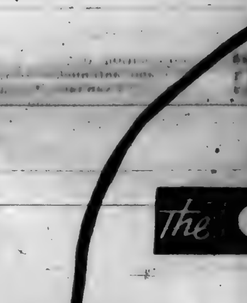
CLINQ
Women believe in it beca


THE FAMED CLINIQUE
MAKEUP BASE AND A NEW WAY TO POWDER
Balanced Makeup Base, so light, it feels as if it goes on by itself. Nine magnificent shades, 7.50 each. Brush on Transparent Buffing Powder, the first pressed powder compact with a brush instead of a puff, 5.00.
Exclusively at mayf
the store with the green door

...opin"

...on tickets ... season tickets for all six movies in the series are $5. They too are on sale in the Lane Office.

... Society ... Truffaut ... abandoned ... 4, with ... 10 in ... Building ... are $1.

The next concert on the Lane Series will be the Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre, Oct. 9, the most exciting dance company in the world today.

...zone"

...ge six) ... favorite ... problem with ... led by the ... to work ... good, but ... to some of ... me by the ... previous ... an example ... ship that ... ternal. Not ... album, I'd ...

take it over the latest excursions by the Eagles and Poco any day. I have strong anticipation that their upcoming appearance at Patrick Gym on October 18th will be one of the best concerts at UVM. They've been together a lot longer and will undoubtedly have some new material. So, until then, be satisfied with the record and get psyched for October 18th — For those who attend, it will be a memorable evening.

"Gypsy"

...ge seven) ... Flynn's ... stage is ... production ... seventy, a ... nty and ... orchestra ... won't settle ... torium as ... tal twelve ... re was ... Stein in ...

1939. Steve Plumb, an excellent musician himself, will direct the musical aspect of the production. Choreography will be done by Polly Nulty. The musical will be presented from Nov. 14th to Nov. 17th including four evening performances and one matinee.

This is Dr. Geno's way of temporarily getting away from the university, relaxing from the strain of a professor's work and meeting new people.

Power Debate

...ge one) ... his form of ... a leading ...

nuclear power safety expert who just quit his job with the A.E.C. "in order to be free to tell the American people about the potentially dangerous conditions in the nation's nuclear power plants." Hoevar is joining the ranks of other scientists and concerned individuals who are offering an alternative outlook to the AEC's. Perhaps by watching this issue closely, drawing on the information offered by both pro and anti-nuclear factions, the public can raise their status from "uninformed and misled" to the point where we can begin to make intelligent decisions concerning the future of nuclear power; decisions that are of vital importance to every man, Ms. and child on our spaceship earth.

"Concert"

(continued from page six)

on Oct. 18. Tickets for the "Souther, Hillman, Furay Band" will be on sale early in the month at Bailey's and the UVM Bookstore. Prices include: $3.50 for students, $4.50 for non-students, and $4.50 for everyone at the door.

...ristyy

...TY SHOP

...KIERS

... in Burlington, ...toms without the ...l sanders produce ...efinishing without ...ur skis in & watch ...ders!

388 Shelburne Rd

CLINIQUE Furay

Women believe in it because it Works.

100% Allergy Tested

100% Fragrance Free

THE FAMED CLINIQUE

MAKEUP BASE AND A NEW WAY TO POWDER

Balanced Makeup Base, so light, it feels as if it goes on by itself. Nine magnificent shades, 7.50 each. Brush on Transparent Buffing Powder, the first pressed powder compact with a brush instead of a puff, 5.00.

Exclusively at

mayfair

the store with the green door — Upper Church St. Burlington

«the doctor's bag»

Address letters to Dr. Aaron Weiner
Box 974, East Lansing, MI. 48823

QUESTION: My boyfriend (24 years old) has one undescended testicle. Since this condition was never corrected when he was a child he is now considering surgery.

If the undescended testicle is not removed, is there any chance that it would become cancerous? Also, is it possible to get some kind of artificial testicle implanted in the scrotum for appearance's sake?

ANSWER: The testes develop in the abdominal cavity and then descend in the scrotal sac before birth. A surprising number of adult men have undescended testicles. At times this is because they haven't received regular medical attention in childhood and at other times because the undescended testicle was just never noticed.

If the testicle is not brought down before adolescence it is permanently damaged and loses its capacity to produce sperm. In addition, there is a higher incidence of cancer in such undescended testicles. The preferred time of operation is in childhood when a testicle can be brought into place rather easily and normal function restored. In adulthood it is often simpler to remove the testicle since it serves no useful purpose. One testicle is enough for hormone production as well as for sperm production.

Sometimes, for cosmetic reasons, the adult testicle will be brought down into the scrotal sac. At other times an artificial testicle will be implanted in the scrotum.

A joke making the rounds involves a man who had a small onion implanted in his scrotal sac to replace a missing testicle. The appearance was fine, but he had a burning sensation when he urinated, his eyes teared when he ejaculated, and he got an erection every time he passed McDonald's.

xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

QUESTION: What constitutes a nervous breakdown? Can you have one without realizing it and recover from it without professional help?

Do you anticipate that in your lifetime most mental illness will be treated symptomatically with drugs in the same fashion that most physical illnesses are now treated?

ANSWER: A nervous breakdown is a popular, non-scientific term for a serious, acute emotional problem which results in an obvious inability to function. Such a condition is usually accompanied by a sense of personal distress. The term is sufficiently imprecise as to cover all of the major psychiatric illnesses and some minor ones.

People certainly do recover from serious emotional problems without professional help. However, a person with a serious problem may often suffer intense pain and discomfort, severe reduction in their ability to function and may behave in ways which are self destructive and destructive to interpersonal relations. Professional help can be of extraordinary value in reducing the duration and severity of the problem. In spite of the imprecise nature of the term nervous breakdown, a person who is self identified or identified by others as having such a condition almost always warrants professional attention.

The last 15 years have seen considerable advances in the treatment of certain psychiatric disorders, particularly those affecting mood. Hopefully, further understanding of the genetics and biochemistry of various mental illnesses will result in even more advances in the symptomatic treatment of these disorders. However, I do not anticipate that most mental illnesses, as we currently define them, will be treated by drugs.

Mental illness can be looked at as maladaptive behavior that has complex origins in which there are biologic, social and psychologic determinants. I anticipate that with increased sophistication people will be helped with emotional problems through educative procedures, behavorial modification, and interpersonal methods as well as by drugs.

I am quite unsure about how much of what is defined as physical illness is capable of being treated symptomatically with drugs. Physical illness is often the result of long term nutritional, behavioral and environmental factors combined with the person's immutable basic biology. This being the case, much of what we call physical illness is a normal dimension of human life.

Vice President Rollings Presents His Side Of "Enrollment Quota"...

(continued from page one)

is becoming a junior college for the non-Arts and Sciences students who take basic courses there.

Disagreement was evident at the Faculty Senate meeting.

"I can't lecture to students with a 479 verbal score!" one history professor protested. "They wouldn't know what I'm talking about!" This was a reference to the students in the College of Education.

Dr. Miles, of the Geography Department, wanted to know why the Administration had not taken into account the Faculty-Senate resolution regarding admissions policy. Miles introduced at the faculty meeting of Nov. 19, 1965, the following resolution:

"That the Senate go on record as favoring adoption of a policy of maintaining at least 40 per cent out-of-state component by class and by college."

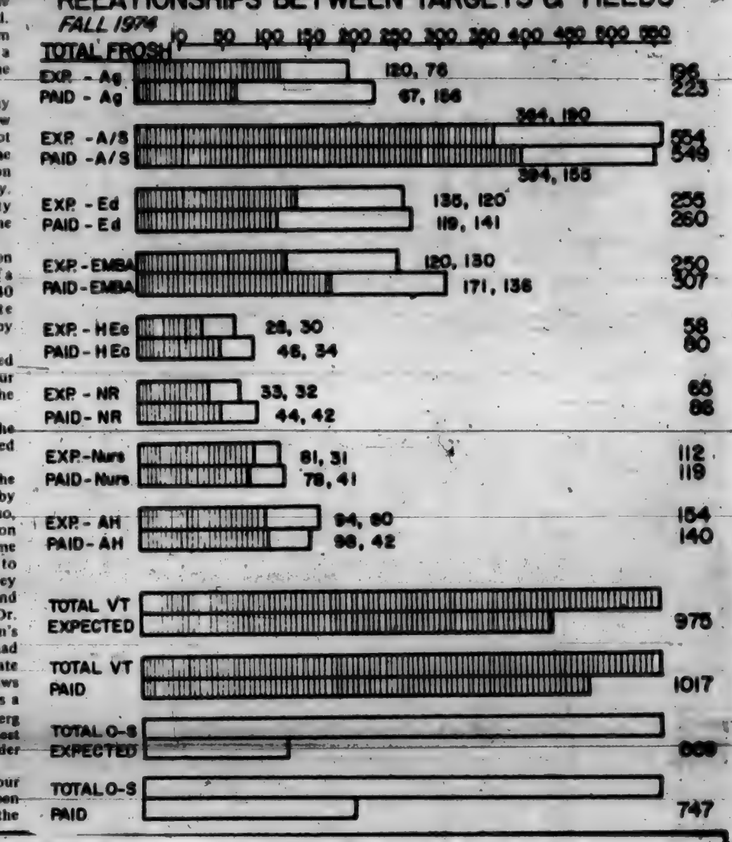
The resolution was passed and reaffirmed on four subsequent occasions by the Faculty Senate.

Miles stated later that the question had not been answered to his satisfaction.

"Are they ignoring the feeling of the Senate by resolution so passed, and if so, why didn't they say so? If, on the other hand, it has some weight, why did they choose to ignore it; and why didn't they come before the Senate... and explain their policy?" Dr. Hilberg, who called for Rollin's resignation two weeks ago, had plenty to say at the Senate meeting. When Dr. Andrews dismissed the controversy as a "tempest in a teapot", Hilberg retorted, "This is not a tempest in a teapot unless you consider me to be a teapot!"

Hilberg asked, "What is our future going to be? I have been here for 18 years. I believe in the education of Vermonters. I do not object to giving Vermonters a break. We have seen a distribution of out-of-state freshmen in a very peculiar way: to guarantee the sheer continuation of programs. Programs we do no want... I believe... we are entitled to the truth. We are also entitled to some insurance that such things will not be perpetuated again!"

But one professor didn't bother going to the meeting. "The Vice President has about as much to do with academic policy as the Ambassador of the United Nations has to do with initiating U.S. foreign policy," said Professor Samuel Hand.



TUNA FISH AT THE COMPANY STORE

The COMPANY STORE

★ Levis
★ Leather
★ Shoes
★ Skirts
★ Shirts
★ Apparrel For Men & Women
★ FREE Tuna Fish
★ Custom Leather Jackets, Skirts, Belts, Bags Pants, Vests,
★ Tuna Fish For The Discerning Shopper

COMPANY STORE
LOWER CHURCH STREET
BURLINGTON

Big Brother- Sister Program On Campus

by Randy Jansen

The Big Brother/Big Sister program, a part of the Office of Volunteer Programs (OVP), is currently searching for volunteers to be Big Brothers/Big Sisters. There are now 75 boys in Burlington who have requested a Big Brother, but because of the lack of volunteers, they desires go unfulfilled.

How does the Big Brother/Big Sister program work? First, a social agency makes a referral of someone who needs or wants a Big Brother/Big Sister. A social agency can include guidance counselors, teachers, or family who act on behalf of small children. The social agency requests a Big Brother/Big Sister for a child for various reasons. A child may be lonely and want companionship. Or he/she may need a strong authority figure for guidance. There are many other reasons, but basically it boils down to the fact that a child wants someone to whom he can relate or feel a strong emotional attachment.

Referrals are then sent to the Project Co-ordinating Committee, an eight member panel who try to match up volunteers and children. A volunteer looks through the referrals and attempts to find a child he feels he can help. At this time, the Project Co-ordinating Committee contacts the social agency who made the referral and has the social agency contact the family of the little brother/little sister. The agency is responsible for explaining the Big Brother/Sister program to the family and the volunteer. Also, the social agency must take responsibility in evaluating the relationship between the volunteer and child.

Once the volunteer makes a commitment, he/she is required to be a Big Brother/Sister for one year. This is because the relationship between Big Brother/Sister and little brother/sister can become involved after only a few months, and it is harmful to the child if the volunteer departs. Also the agency requires the volunteer to meet at least once a week with the child at a time convenient to both. However, it is common for Big Brothers/Sisters to visit their children more than once a week, often two or three times a week. Additionally, volunteers must meet with the social agency they have been working with at least twice in the first two months of the relationship.

Big Brother/Sisters perform many activities with their charges. They may go hiking, play ball or go to the movies. Visits to museums and other points of interest are also common activities. Big Brothers/Sisters and little brothers/sisters receive many charitable acts from both the college and Burlington community. For purposes of travel and visits they are allowed free bus tokens and sometimes taxi slips. Fred Smith, head of SAGA, has also allowed participants of the Big Brother/Sister program to eat at the dining halls twice a week for free with their little brother/sister.

At certain times during the year, such as Halloween and special picnics, all the Big Brothers/Sisters and their children come together to enjoy themselves. Often these events are on the UVM campus since the greater number of volunteers are UVM students.

Mark Palodinio, head of the Project Co-ordinating Committee, says that the Big Brother/Sister program, "exposes you to things you wouldn't be exposed to normally." He points out that volunteers often visit the homes of the children, many of which are in the northern section of Burlington. Since this low income area is not often visited by students, it offers the student an experience in another lifestyle.

At the end of the relationship (caused by the necessity of the volunteer moving, or by the social agency no longer feeling the child needs a Big Brother/Sister or for various other reasons), the volunteer is asked to submit an evaluation on the relationship. The social agency is also asked to write an evaluation on the volunteer and report the progress of the little brother/sister.

Right now, the Big Brother/Big Sister has a surplus of 75 boys. This has been the case since the project has started. OVP is desperately searching for more volunteers. All the referrals for girls have volunteers as there are plenty of Big Sister volunteers.

If you are anxious to give emotional support and companionship to a little brother/sister, contact the OVP office at the Mansfield House.

Claussen's Greenhouse
Rt. 2a Colchester

BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL
10% Student discount with ID
BURLINGTON'S WIDEST SELECTION OF PLANTS
★ house
★ terrarium
★ tropical
A COMPLETE HOUSEPLANT CENTER
★ terrarium's to order
★ Rx for sick plant
★ potting soil and fertilizer
★ clay and decorative pots
OPEN YEAR ROUND 8AM to 6PM
Call 878-2361
FRESH APPLE CIDER

Plans Are Made For Billings

by George Georgakis

2,500 to 3,000 people come to Billings each day to eat, study, find information or just to pass through. The building accommodates 70 organizations and is geared to fit the needs of UVM students. Billings officials claim that more has been done this year to serve students and improve the building structurally.

The information service, started last year, has been expanded. Its purpose is to receive any complaints or problems relating to the school in any way. You can call 656-2068 and someone will either look into it or refer you to a source. Also, information is now available concerning off-campus housing and the selective service.

In November, there will be an exhibit of "Man Living with Snow." This is a Canadian exhibit which will make its first debut in the U.S. at Billings Center.

Every Friday night there is entertainment in the Round Room. There might be singing, slide shows, jazz, folk and rock.

Bill Root, Director of Student Activities, made a survey asking students what they wanted most for Billings. This resulted in the plans for a concession stand where odd items such as newspapers, candy, cigarettes, pens, and notebooks will be sold. This will be open at night when the bookstore is closed.

In the future, Root would like to organize activities. People interested should ask for him at the main desk.

SAGA meal coupons are accepted at the Den from 7:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. As a result of this, long lines have developed, especially at peak hours. To alleviate the problem, a second food line has been set up which serves sandwiches, coffee, and soft drinks.

If Billings receives a rebate from UVM there will be a possibility of replacing some of the Den's furniture which is 10 to 15 years old.

Additionally, the Den will soon have commuter lockers for students. These lockers will be for anyone's use. They will be free and can be locked with a key.

The Billings Center Governing Board is in the process of purchasing a color T.V. which will be set up in the Den.

In the "apse" (round study room), the floor has been carpeted and the study space has been increased to hold 30 more people. This winter one will be able to enjoy the fireplace without asphyxiation. Architects will have improved the ventilation by then, so that the smoke will go up the chimney instead of into Billings.

There have been other small repairs to preserve the architectural structure of Billings. The building is not big enough to meet the needs of 7,300 undergraduates at UVM and, consequently, there is much wear and tear. Despite this, Governing Board officials feel the building is being used to its fullest extent.

Schwartz On Sports

(continued from page thirteen)

Angeles is pulling away again in the N.L. West. St. Louis and Pittsburgh are having a small battle in their division.

The hockey exhibition season has already started. I remember playing tennis in 80 degree weather a couple of days ago in May and rushing home to see the seventh game of the Stanley Cup.

And finally, somewhere in Africa a fight is still planned that will either keep Foreman on top, shut Ali up, or make the dictatorship of Mobutu in Zaire famous throughout the world.

Such is the world of sports this week.

Mallary Expresses Views On The Issues...

manufacturing milk in Minnesota-Wisconsin. The reason the manufacturing price out there is low is because we have large surpluses in storage of cheese, butter and dried skim milk powder.

"And the reason we have that surplus is because we have imported large amounts of cheese, butter and powder from the European Common Market last year, that were subsidized by the central treasuries of those countries. What should have happened a year ago was the imposition of countervailing duties as the law provides, on any subsidized imports."

There are milk-price hearings scheduled for next month. There are two conflicting interests in this situation: one is a consumer interest in paying lower prices, and the other is an interest in maintaining a viable dairy industry. Mallary has indicated that he's opted for the dairy farmers.

Other Points of View

Mallary expressed a number of other points of view on different issues:

On Act 250. Mallary was in the Vermont legislature when Act 250, the Land-Use Plan, was passed. He believes local decisions should be made at the local level, regional decisions at the regional level, and state decisions at the state level. Regarding the question of who makes the final decision, Mallary expects to see certain state standards implemented where state interests reign high, and that in other areas regional standards would have the final say over local decisions.

On Ford's Pardon of Nixon: Mallary disagreed with the pardon. "I think it was premature, I don't think it was a wise thing to do at the time. I think the decision should have been made by Leon Jaworski and the grand jury as to whether in fact there was to be any prosecution of former President Nixon."

Mallary thinks that "Ford made his decision... on the basis of his own conscientious belief that this was in the best interests of the nation. I think his motives were appropriate and without question..."

On the effect of the pardon upon Ford's relationship with Congress, the press, and the public. "Clearly he was hurt by it... But this was to be expected. The 'honeymoon' was bound to be over at some point; if it hadn't been the pardon, it would have been something else."

On whether there should be a Constitutional amendment preventing the President from pardoning anyone until after the person had been tried, convicted and sentenced.

"I've heard of it; it's typical of public reaction to something that's unpopular. That kind of provision would prevent the President from pardoning the draft evadors."

On the decision of the Vermont Young Lawyers to favor legalization of marijuana:

"It's not a congressional issue, but I don't think major criminal penalties for the use of marijuana is either sensible or desirable at this point. We are creating people with criminal records. I have no objection to the elimination of criminal penalties but I would not support encouragement of its distribution until we know more about it."

On the Equal Rights Amendment:

"It was passed by Congress before I got there, and it was ratified by the state legislature after I left, so it missed me both ways. I would have voted for it."

The congressman contends that he has a clear record on a number of issues, and the legislative record to prove it. As for Patrick Leahy, his Democratic challenger for the U.S. Senate, Mallary commented, "I don't know where he stands on issues... All I've heard is fairly broad general rhetoric."

The basic difference between them, according to Mallary, is a philosophical difference: "The difference between traditional principles of individual liberties, individual responsibility and limited government, versus the Democrat c principle of letting government solve all our problems. Their response to a problem is 'throw money at it and it will go away.'" for a variety of reasons. Most have a deep commitment to serve and help others as well as a desire to take steps in solving social and political problems. Students also receive valuable practical experience in either their major subject or career area. The pre-law student, for example, gets a taste of the legal profession by working for a year on Welfare rights law projects.

OVP

(continued from page twelve)

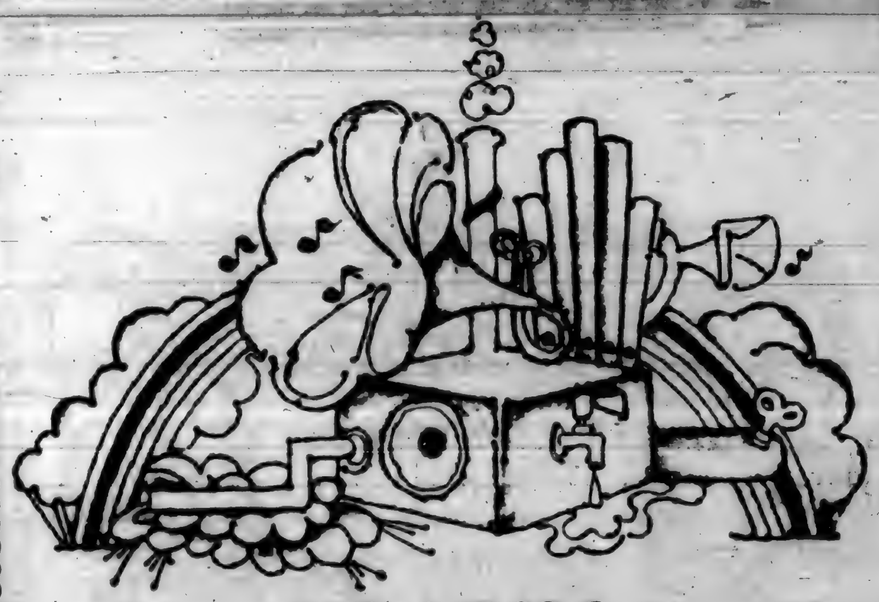
The Office of Volunteer Programs also has projects for student and community volunteers, not wishing to participate in the full-time action program. Big Brother Big Sister was designed to meet the needs of the less fortunate children in the Burlington area. Adopt-a-Grandparent is taking time to invest yourself in a meaningful relationship with a lonely older person. For more information contact: The Office of Volunteer Programs, Mansfield House, UVM, 656-2062.



HO HUM
Another major breakthrough

Oh No! Not Again! Yes it seems that every year someone "re-invent" one of the discarded speaker designs of the past. Or they purport to modify the laws of physics by miniaturizing a 32-foot wavelength. They may even write a "technical" article on their revolutionary discovery and succeed in getting it published.

We customarily make an optimistic estimate that these speakers will survive five years. Some make it. Some even get re-invented all over again after a subsequent five years. In the meantime they sell. Because they sound different. Different from all other speakers. Different from the live performance.

We'd sort of miss them if they failed to show up. After all, what would spring be without a new major breakthrough? And would it really be fall without the letter edged in black? Pity!

AUDIO DEN

[illegible] Church Street
Burlington, Vermont
[illegible]

50 E. Main Street
Middlebury, Vermont
Phone [illegible]

SWISS CHALET
The friendliest shop this side of Switzerland offers Special
Ski Savings & Quality Products

Head GK03 Downhill Skis
Reg. $120 NOW $60

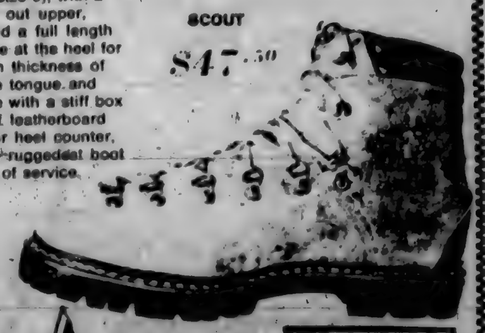
Head HRP Skis
Reg. $155 NOW $99

Allsop Downhill SkiBindings
Reg. $65 NOW $36

Good selection of junior [illegible] boots $27.00 up.

The Scout is the active backpacker's best buy. It weights 4 lbs. 5 oz. (size 9), with a one-piece, full grain, rough out upper, Vibram® Montagna sole, and a full length nylon shank; there is a hinge at the heel for flexibility, and a full ½ inch thickness of foam rubber padding in the tongue and around the ankle. It is made with a stiff box toe, side reinforcements of leatherboard and silastic, and an exterior heel counter, double stitched. This is the ruggedest boot in its range, built for years of service.

SCOUT
$47.50



Swiss Chalet
40 Pearl St., Essex Jct.
878-6901

Open Daily 9 A.M.-9 P.M. 9-6 Sat.

Placement Packe

Students are reminded to pick up a Placement Registration Packet in order to have credentials available for those interviews. Credentials include a personal resume, three or more references, and any other information you deem pertinent to your own particular career endeavors. Assistance will be provided in the Placement Office should you need help or have any questions with this procedure.

Those employers already having dates are listed below. As other employers schedule dates throughout the semester, special announcements will be sent out. These, then, are the employers:

Agway, Arthur Andersen, Camp, Dresser and McKee, Central Vermont Public Service, Ebasco Services, Ernst & Ernst, General Electric, Hamilton Standard, Koppers, Inc., Lummus Co., Mobil Oil, Monsanto, New England Electric System, Niagra Mohawk, Reynolds Metals, Smith, Butcheider & Rugg, GTE Sylvania, Trane Co., U.S. Gypsum Co., Union Carbide Corp. and [illegible] Federal employers: Engineers, Commissi[illegible] & Atmosp[illegible] National [illegible] Civilian [illegible] Hampshir[illegible] Public [illegible] ACTION

Gradu[illegible] to hold i[illegible] include: School [illegible] Managem[illegible] College [illegible] Admin[illegible] Universit[illegible] New Yor[illegible] School [illegible] Administ[illegible] Universit[illegible] Rochest[illegible] Manage[illegible] School [illegible] Economi[illegible] School [illegible] Washingt[illegible] Law Scho[illegible]

Gym Additions Di[illegible] at SA Meetin[illegible]

by Bruce Maddern

Proposals for a major gym additon were presented to the Student Association Senate at their weekly meeting last Tuesday. Estimated cost, which would come chiefly from student fees, is $5 million.

The proposed addition would include an Olympic size swimming pool, gymnastics area, six to eight indoor tennis courts, six paddleball courts, four squash courts, and extensive enlargements of the women's locker facility.

Larry Snyder, director of administrative resources, made the presentation in which he stressed the need for facilities for student recreation and the equality of men and women in athletics.

Snyder said the existing bond [illegible] $2.5 [illegible] necessa[illegible] Consequ[illegible] priority [illegible] be mad[illegible] project [illegible] addition [illegible] such a[illegible] bond [illegible] found.

Dur[illegible] meetin[illegible] informa[illegible] conduc[illegible] SA Pro[illegible] people [illegible] to bec[illegible] reminde[illegible] election[illegible] be held [illegible] Don[illegible] Treasur[illegible] nomina[illegible] Larry [illegible] Gabe [illegible] Commi[illegible]

S[illegible]
50[illegible]
STAR[illegible]
F[illegible]
AD[illegible]
PLASTIC ZI[illegible]
STRI[illegible]
S[illegible]
GIBSON [illegible]
BIC[illegible]
SPECIAL GR[illegible]
SPECIAL [illegible]
PLUS MA[illegible]
QUAN[illegible]
RING DAY
Representatives from[illegible] store to show & an[illegible] C[illegible]
Orders [illegible]

r Billings

...kind with a ... Center ...in in the ...g a color ...t up in the ...ional study ...has been ...udy space ...to hold 30 ...nutes one ...enjoy the ...phitration ...unnerved

the ventilation by them, so that the smoke will go up the chimney instead of into Billings.

There have been other small repairs to preserve the architectural structure of Billings. The building is not big enough to meet the needs of 7,300 undergraduates at UVM and, consequently, there is much wear and tear. Despite this, Governing Board officials feel the building is being used to its fullest extent.

...artz On Sports

...ntinued from page thirteen.

...owdy again in the N.L. West. St. Louis and ...g a small bottle in their dayroom.

...xhibition season has already started. I ...ennis in 80 degree weather a couple of days ...hing home to see the seventh game of the

...ewhere in Africa a fight is still planned that ...eman on top, shut All up, or make the ...uts in Zaire famous throughout the world. ...of sports this week.

...The Issues...

...llary was in ...ture when ...e Plan, was ...ves local ...made at the ...decisions at ...and state ...tate level ...ion of who ...decision, ...ee certain ...plemented ...reign high, ...as regional ...e the final ...n. ...of Nixon ...with the ...it was ...nk it was a ...he-time. I ...ould have ...Jaworski ...o whether ...o be any ...President without question..."

On the effect of the pardon upon Ford's relationship with Congress, the press, and the public. "Clearly he was hurt by it... But this was to be expected. The 'honeymoon' was bound to be over at some point; if it hadn't been the pardon, it would have been something else."

On whether there should be a Constitutional amendment preventing the President from pardoning anyone until after the person had been tried, convicted and sentenced.

"I've heard of it; it's typical of public reaction to something that's unpopular. That kind of provision would prevent the President from pardoning the draft evaders."

On the decision of the Vermont Young Lawyers to favor legalization of marijuana:

"It's not a congressional issue, but I don't think major criminal penalties for the use of marijuana is either sensible or desirable at this point. We are creating people with criminal records. I have no objection to the elimination of criminal penalties but I would not support encouragement of its distribution until we know more about it."

On the Equal Rights Amendment:

"It was passed by Congress before I got there, and it was ratified by the state legislature after I left, so it missed me both ways. I would have voted for it."

The congressman contends that he has a clear record on a number of issues, and the legislative record to prove it. As for Patrick Leahy, his Democratic challenger for the U.S. Senate, Mallary commented, "I don't know where he stands on issues... All I've heard is fairly broad general rhetoric."

The basic difference between them, according to Mallary, is a philosophical difference: "The difference between traditional principles of individual liberties, individual responsibility and limited government, versus the Democratic principle of letting government solve all our problems. Their response to a problem is 'throw money at it and it will go away.'" for a variety of reasons. Most have a deep commitment to serve and help others as well as a desire to take steps in solving social and political problems. Students also receive valuable practical experience in either their major subject or career area. The pre-law student, for example, gets a taste of the legal profession by working for a year on Welfare rights law projects.

OVP

(continued from page twelve)

The Office of Volunteer Programs also has projects for student and community volunteers, not wishing to participate in the full-time action program. Big Brother Big Sister was designed to meet the needs of the less fortunate children in the Burlington area. Adopt-a-Grandparent is taking time to invest yourself in a meaningful relationship with a lonely older person. For more information contact the Office of Volunteer Programs, Mansfield House, UVM, 656-2062.

Placement Packets Ready

Students are reminded to pick up a Placement Registration Packet in order to have credentials available for these interviews. Credentials include a personal resume, three or more references, and any other information you deem pertinent to your own particular career endeavors. Assistance will be provided in the Placement Office should you need help of have any questions with this procedure.

Those employers already having dates are listed below. As other employers schedule dates throughout the semester, special announcements will be sent out. These, then, are the employers:

Agway, Arthur Andersen, Camp Dresser and McKee, Central Vermont Public Service, Ebasco Services, Ernst & Ernst, General Electric, Hamilton Standard, Koppers, Inc., Lummus Co., Mobil Oil, Monsanto, New England Electric System, Niagra Mohawk, Reynolds Metals, Smith, Batchelder & Rugg, GTE Sylvania, Trane Co., U.S. Gypsum Co., Union Carbide Corp., and Westinghouse.

Federal and state employers: Army Corps of Engineers, Atomic Energy Commission, National Oceanic & Atmospheric Administration, National Security Agency, Civilian Manpower- Navy, New Hampshire Department of Public Works and Highway, ACTION

Graduate Schools scheduled to hold information interviews include: American Graduate School of International Management, Boston University College of Business Administration, Drew University Graduate Theology, New York University Graduate School of Business Administration, Northeastern University, University of Rochester School of Management, Whittemore School of Business and Economics, Syracuse University School of Management, and Washington and Lee University Law School.

Military Information Teams: Army Nurse Corps, U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Marines, U.S. Navy.

Gym Additions Discussed at SA Meeting

by Bruce Maddern

Proposals for a major gym additon were presented to the Student Association Senate at their weekly meeting last Tuesday. Estimated cost, which would come chiefly from student fees, is $5 million.

The proposed addition would include an Olympic size swimming pool, gymnastics area, six to eight indoor tennis courts, six paddleball courts, four squash courts, and extensive enlargements of the women's locker facility.

Larry Snyder, director of administrative resources, made the presentation in which he stressed the need for facilities for student recreation and the equality of men and women in athletics.

Snyder said the existing bond fee will generate about $2.5 million toward the necessary $5 million. Consequently, he said some priority decision would have to be made. Either parts of the project would be cut or else additional methods of funding such as an increased athletic bond fee, would have to be found.

Due to lack of quorum, the meeting was strictly informational. No business was conducted. Peter MacAusland, SA President, said that many people were taking out petitions to become Senators. He also reminded the Senate that elections are Oct. 1 and would be held during dining hall hours.

Donna Vershay, SA Treasurer, announced the nominations of Nancy Custer, Larry Abel, Meg Goering and Gabe Vicz to the Finance Committee.

Newman Center

(continued from page two)

BASIC CATHOLICISM: The second in a series of discussions on the fundamentals of Catholic belief will be held on Monday, September 30 at 7:00 p.m.

PEACE AND JUSTICE: Those interested in becoming involved in these vital issues are invited and encouraged to join the Justice and Peace Study-Action Group which meets at the Center every Monday evening at 9:00 p.m. under the direction of Fr. John Crowley.

SCRIPTURE STUDY: "A New Look at an Old Book" is a study-discussion series conducted by Fr. Crowley that is aimed primarily at a better understanding of the Old Testament. The sessions are held on Tuesday from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m. Freshmen: "Creative Evenings" provide an opportunity to get together, meet people, learn about the Center, participate in activities, initiate projects, programs and discussions. Any Freshman interested in being part of these bi-monthly meetings is asked to contact Sr. Lindora at the Center or come to the next meeting on Thursday, October 3 at 7:30 p.m.

CHOIR PRACTICE for the 4:15 Sunday Mass is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. every Tuesday. The choir is directed by Lori Routhier, a senior at UVM.

St. Anselm's Chaple

(continued from page two)

which arose were, "How good a teacher did I have?"; "How has my experience proved or disproved that which I was taught?", "Were my parents really very well-informed about prayer and meditation or did they only tell me what they thought was right?", "Can someone teach me about prayer if they themselves do not practice it and believe in it?", "Who do I pray to?". There seemed to be more questions than answers in the discussion, and people found that there were more varieties of prayer right here at UVM than they had expected.

The second topic is "Prayer in Various World Traditions". Chaplain Appleyard will introduce the topic with a few brief comments, but the bulk of the time will be devoted to the experiences of individuals with various forms of meditation. The focus will not be to try to claim which theory of meditation is good or bad, right or wrong. The focus will be to enable people to consider the importance and centrality of prayer and meditation for all human beings in every cultural setting. Chaplain Appleyard studied with a Bhuddist teacher in India several years ago and invites people from all traditions to share in this discussion. Come to St. Anselm's Chapel, 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

Student Awarded Scholarship

Edwin (Ted) J. Heffernan of Wells Beach, Maine, a first-year student in the University of Vermont College of Medicine, has been awarded the $300 John R. Musumeci Memorial Scholarship.

Dr. William H. Luginbuhl, dean of the College of Medicine, announced the award.

Heffernan is one of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Leo James Heffernan and his father operates a small grocery store. Ted is a graduate of Phillips Exeter and Amherst College, where he majored in religion. He has financed much of his own education, and at various times has been a paper boy, public library assistant, apprentice carpenter, bread truck driver, home painter and bus boy.

The scholarship was established in 1972 by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Musumeci of 10 Monroe St., Concord, N.H.

It honors their son John, who was a junior at the University and planned to study medicine, and who was killed in a highway accident in Burlington, Vt., Sept. 11, 1971. The terms of the scholarship stipulate that it be awarded annually to a first-year student. This is the second time it has been awarded.

UNIVERSITY STORE
ON THE CAMPUS
YOUR ON CAMPUS CALCULATOR HEADQUARTERS
$64.95

COMPARE OUR PRICE ! !
Texas Instruments
electronic slide rule calculator
SR-10
YOUR ON CAMPUS HEADQUARTERS

BOWMAR			LLOYD'S
MX25	$49.95	NOW $34.95	Accumatic 200	99.95	NOW 79.95
MX55	59.95	NOW 44.95
MX90	89.95	NOW 79.95	MELCOR
MX100		NOW 119.95	380		69.95
			400		79.95
CORVUS
Model 312		49.95	TEXAS INSTRUMENTS
Model 411		69.95	SR10	69.95	64.94
			SR11		79.95
HEWLETT PACKARD			TI2500		44.95
HP35		225.00	TI2550		69.95
HP45		325.00
HP65		795.00
HP80		395.00

COMPARE PRICES AND SERVICE AT THE UNIVERSITY STORE

SALE
50-70% OFF
STARTS TODAY
FELT HANGINGS
INCENSE
ADDRESS BOOKS
PLASTIC ZIP UP CLOTHES COVERS
WAX ART
STRING DESIGN KITS
SUNGLASSES
TIES
UMBRELLAS
GIBSON BOXED STATIONARY
BICYCLE CLOTHING
SPECIAL GROUP VAN HEUSAN SHIRTS
SPECIAL GROUP OF POSTERS
PLUS MANY OTHER ITEMS QUANTITIES LIMITED

SIGHT & SOUND SALE

SAVINGS OF UP TO 45% off suggested prices
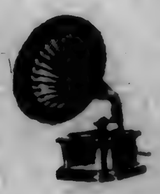
PANASONIC
SONY
HITACHI
SOUND DESIGN



STARTS OCTOBER 1 - (NEXT TUESDAY)
FOUR DAYS ONLY

RING DAY OCT. 3 - 4 Thurs & Fri
Representatives from John Roberts will be in the store to show & answer question about Siladium Class Rings.
Orders will also be taken.

UNIVERSITY STORE
ON THE CAMPUS

Watch for upcoming ads regarding week-long promotion starting October 28
Records, Posters, Prints, Murals & More

UYA Starts Another New Year's Program

by Jim Hutchinson

At August rolled to a close and students and faculty gathered to renew acquaintances and get back in the swing of college life, the Office of Volunteer Programs at the University of Vermont underwent some changes of their own. August 23 marked the termination date of the 1973-74 University Year for Action Volunteers, (UYA's) commitment and the beginning of a 12 month full-time commitment of '74-'75 volunteers.

People like Becky Burr, Communications Coordinator at OVP, Ken Provan, Winooski Mobile Classroom, Anne Spear, Coordinator at Horizons and Paul Cillo, Administrative Aide, Department of Corrections at Montpelier and other UYA's who have served with such dedication will be replaced with people like: Sharon Metz, Youth Outreach Coordinator at Planned Parenthood, Jose Santana, Media Education Coordinator, Department of Corrections, Sara Jane Gould, Court watcher at Children First VPIRG, and Joel Roberts, Counselor at VICI and many many more.

New UYA training and workshops took place in the Living/Learning Center from the 24th-28th of August, and were designed to create a greater understanding of the volunteers themselves as people serving the human needs of the community.

The activities of the five-day session included: A workshop on Cross Cultural Communications with special guest: Howard Higman, Professor of Sociology at the University of Colorado. A Power and Authority simulation workshop was conducted with the help of Louise Lindner, a private educational consultant, focusing on the personal and intergroup power issues.

Harold Woods, Director of the OVP/UYA Program gave an interesting overview on the history and future plans of the office. Dwelling briefly on the development of an Information and Referral Center in the office, involved with both the campus and the community.

Programs coordinates the federal University Year for Action program sponsored by the ACTION agency in Washington D.C. Through the UYA program full-time UVM and other state college students are placed in poverty-related projects in the Vermont community for a 12 month period. The UYA jobs are full-time and the volunteers receive academic credit through individual university departments for the work they do.

The UYA program brings together the enthusiasm, spirit, and talents of students, backed by the know-how and resources of the University and Vermont Colleges, to work on the problems of the poor through the medium of both government and private agencies.

Students volunteer for UYA

(continued on page ten)

L/L's Fall Foliage Bike Race

(continued from page one)

to the Living Learning Center parking lot and the finish of the race. The race which is on the roads of South Burlington is under the control of the S. Burlington Police Department. The field will be divided into five classes: Mens, Womens, Faculty, Dorm, and Three Speed. (For more Dorm info, see your RA).

The most important part of any contest is what you can lay your hands on should you win the race. Many of the prizes for the race have been donated by local merchants. The grand prize donated by the SKI RA' is a complete Odyssey Cross-Country Ski Outfit. Other prizes include a $25 gift certificate at VALUGA SPORTS, a meal for two at the RAMADA INN; EMS Backpack by EASTERN MOUNTAIN SPORT, a $10 gift certificate at BAILEY'S MUSIC ROOMS, and a gift certificate at the COMPANY STORE. We are also grateful to BIG BURGER, MERRILL THEATRES, McDONALDS, and DUNKIN DONUTS for prizes they have donated.

The first place prize in the Dorm Team catagory will be a trophy and reimbursement for two kegs of beer to help wash down the victory. Anyone thinking of entering for a team but fears he may not be eligible for individual honors need not worry. Team races can collect for their dorm without interfering with their eligibility for individual honors.

Setting up the race has involved a tremendous amount of work for the people in the Education-Recreation Program and in the Communications Program at the Living Learning Center. There are over twenty people in these two programs but the help of more people is needed the day of the race. If you would be interested in donating your time to officiate along the race route, please contact the ED-Rec. Program at 656-4266.

All interested persons may register at Billings or at the L/L Center main desk. We are asking a one dollar registration fee to help cover the cost of the race, since we have as of yet no other financial backing. Entries for the race must be turned in by Wednesday, October 2nd. The day of the race all riders must report to the starting line one hour before race time.

Rain or shine, get psyched; dust off your trike, three, or ten speed, and get yourself over to the FIRST ANNUAL LIVING LEARNING CENTER BIKE RACE. We don't care whether you enter for the prizes or for the fun, but we do need you to ride. Everyone has a chance of winning regardless of your ability or equipment. Come out and support us, come out and watch, help make this race possible every year.

Civil Engineering Dept. Plans Bike Paths

by Carol Dufault

The primary objective of bike paths on the university campus is to insure safe alternatives to walking or driving on campus. This will be accomplished by providing bicycle access to all major areas on campus, but at the same time preserve walking access to all areas. By creating separate bicycle paths, walking paths, and service roads by means of safe intersections and grade separation, conflicts between bicycles and other modes of transportation will be reduced.

During April of 1973, the Transportation Planning class in the Civil Engineering Department conducted a bicycle survey. Approximately 6.51 per cent of the student body returned questionnaires, and 38.36 per cent of these students indicated that they had bicycles on campus. At this time, nearly 37 per cent of the students rated bicycle facilities at UVM as being adequate, but at the same time approximately 35 per cent of the students rated the same facilities as being poor. These statistics compare favorably againts reactions to the facilities for bicycles in the city of Burlington as a whole. Almost 52 per cent of those surveyed rated facilities provided by the city of Burlington as being poor, and only 17 per cent thought the existing bicycle facilities in Burlington were "adequate."

Upon discovering that many UVM students were not satisfied with existing bicycle facilities at UVM, the civil engineering class began to formulate their opinions on how to better the situation. Dave Kelley, of the Financial Affairs Department, stressed that formulation of the bike paths was "100 per cent input!" He continued, "Students in the Civil Engineering Department under the direction of Dr. Oppenlander, came up with three schemes of campus bike paths." Last year, the better points of the three separate schemes were combined into one master plan, and all proposals were sent before the Physical Planning Commission for approval.

The bike path will be installed in two phases. The initial bike path, installed last spring, is completely contained on the University grounds, and does not require acquisition of private lands and/or the right of way. The exceptions include crossings on Main Street, South Prospect Street and the two on University Place. The Main Street crossing has been temporarily deterred until the pedestrian underpass has been completed.

Phase 2 is designed to accomodate the external bike traffic to campus, and parallels city sidewalks. In many places it takes the form of a four foot lane on one side of a paved street.

Construction near the gym and on Main Street has prevented the first phase of the bikepath from being constructed in its entirety. However, once it is completed the path will start on the north side of the WDW complex and parallel the walkway in front of Mason, Simpson, and Harris. Between Mason and Coolidge, the path branches with one path following the pedestrian walk to the east side of Patterson, past the horseshoe, and up the service road behind Harris-Millis. From there, the path travels through the Living/Learning Center area and meets Main Street at University Heights, where it parallels the sidewalk down to Redstone walk.

The other branch continues in a northerly direction in front of Redstone and Southwick and around behind the churches, where it intersects Redstone walk and Main Street.

The path crosses Main Street at Redstone walk, and, then branches. One branch heads west around Carrigan Dairy Science Building and the bookstore.

The other path drops over the hill in front of Terrill Hall and heads toward the library. Again it branches with one artery swinging over behind the CBW complex and following the Green up to the north side of Votey.

From the library the path also goes between the Bookstore and Royall Tyler Theater where it splits behind the Old Mill and connects on the North side of Votey.

Also initiating from the theater is a branch which crosses the Green to Waterman. From Waterman the path extends northeast, again intersecting the Green, and leads to the north end of Williams Science building.

There are three types of intersection encounters by the bike path; bike vs. bike, bike vs. pedestrian, and bike vs. automobile. In regard to bike vs. bike intersections, adequate turning radius is allowed to enable the bike to turn onto the intersecting path, and warning signs will be placed in advance of the intersection.

On a bike vs. pedestrian intersection, there will be a sign on the bike path 25 feet in advance, warning the bicyclist. Likewise, there will be a sign 10 feet in advance of the intersection of the pedestrian path, warning pedestrians of the upcoming hazard.

In places where bikes and automobiles intersect, adequate warning will be established for the automobile driver by establishing painted crossing. These bike crossings will take the form of painted white squares not less than 1.3 feet by 1.3 feet.

All signs on the campus bike paths will be standardized to provide maximum comprehension and minimum confusion by path users. These signs will include: BIKE CROSSING, BIKE ROUTE, NO MOTORIZED VEHICLES, NO PEDESTRIANS, BIKE RACKS, BIKE CROSSING, and PED CROSSING.

Much time and consideration has been taken in regard to the specifics of engineering a campus bike path system, and drainage, grades and surfacing procedures have been established by the civil engineering class.

Cross-slope drainage has been provided by crowning the center of the path at a slope of 1/4 inch per foot, and longitudinal drainage has been contained against the existing ground and edge of the pavement by raising the paved surface one inch above the ground.

Existing grades on campus vary from 0 to 10 per cent; however, the engineering students have found that it is desirable to keep the grade as short as possible and on the bike path, under 5 per cent. The only variance would be a 6 per cent grade near Terrill Hall, which can be avoided by going around by Carrigan Dairy Science Building, and then up Redstone walk.

In the May 10, 1973 report prepared by engineering students John Barnett, Paul Masten, Keith Rice, and Louise Stanton, titled "Bicycle System Design of the University of Vermont Campus", surfacing procedure was discussed. "The asphalt content should be 1.2 per cent higher than that used for roads because a bike way is subjected to lighter loadings...where good drainage exists, place 3 to 4 inches of an aggregate base of gravel, crushed stone, or slag on a sub-grade then lay 1 1/2 to 2 inches of asphalt over the base."

Thus, through dedicated research and work many civil engineering students and interns have designed and engineered approximately 15,000 feet of bike paths for the University of Vermont. Estimated costs by an outside contractor for gravel sub-base and asphalt paving of a 4 foot wide bike path is about $1.60 per foot, totaling nearly $16,000.

William Potter of Administration Support Services states that the university has been budgeted $5,000 annually for the next four years for the construction of bike paths on the university campus. However the rising cost of asphalt, expansion of the bikepaths may take the form of paved gravel until money for the appropriate asphalt surfacing can be obtained. In regard to future development of the bike path system, Potter sees "no major obstacles" to curtail bikepath development of the Vermont campus.

Director of Administrative Resources, Larry Snyder, states, "The city of Burlington has been delighted with the outcome of the proposed bike path system, and Assistant City Planner, Bill Bosher, has taken copies of the reports." They will be used as reference sources for the proposed bike path system within the city of Burlington.

Snyder concluded by urging all students to use the bike racks rather than hitching bikes to existing trees. When bikes are hitched to trees, the bark is torn and eventually the trees die.

Student ideas and time have gone into the "success" of bike paths at the University of Vermont.

BEST SELECTION OF SKI EQUIPMENT IN TOWN

NORDICA BOOTS $32.50 to $185 available in 3 models

Also — Boots by DOLOMITE, HANSON, LANGE

ROSSIGNOL SKIS $70 to $230 available in 11 models

Also— Skis by K2, KNEISSEL, OLIN, HEAD, DYNASTAR, DURAFIBER, YAMAHA, FISCHER, DYNAMIC, VOLKL

CROSS COUNTRY SKI PACKAGE
Skis $35.00
Boots $34.50
Poles $7.95
Bindings $7.95
Mounting $3.60
$88.40 complete
$59.95

DOWNHILL SKI PACKAGE
Skis $140.00
Bindings ..... $ 49.50
Mounting ..... $ 5.00
Engraving ..... $ 2.50
$196.00 complete
$139

LAST SEASON'S SKIS by Rossignol, Olin, Kneisel, Durafiber, Head, Yamaha.
up to 50% OFF

LAST SEASON'S SKI BOOTS by Nordica, Technica, Lange, Raiker, Humanic, Kofiach.

ALPINE SHOP
WILLISTON ROAD, SO. BURLINGTON
OPEN DAILY 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.

MAGRAMS

The Way In

Believes in the good earth and its type of clothes. Shop at the Way In for all your naturals in gauze shirts, skirts, shawls, hats and of course jeans and more jeans. In Downtown Burlington

FRANKLY SPEAKING... by phil frank

© COLLEGE MEDIA SERVICES-BOX 9411-BERKELEY CA 94709

BOTH SIDES NOW:

There's a shop in town that cater's to every taste.

Nate's Connection is the Place

Leather coats starting as low as $60.00; and for those more daring try our imported leathers & suedes.

At any style or price the leather stays as soft as a baby's toe.

No matter what your preference is to style: Levi Jeans & Cords are a must.

WE HAVE THEM ALL!!!

Nate's INC.
Vermont's Largest Men's Clothier
Burlington, Montpelier, St. Albans, St. Johnsbury

SEPTEMBER 26, 1974

UVM Horse

The UVM Horse Club, after twelve years of operation, experimented over the past summer by sponsoring a competitive team. The results were so satisfactory that the team may be provided with financial, as well as moral support from the University.

Members of the horse club who competed regularly were President Verne Batchelder on his thoroughbred, Indian Cat Call; Junior Debbie Powell on her thoroughbred Balancin; and former club president Jeanie Dahn on her quarter horse, Calamity Tink. Other competitors competing on and off throughout the summer were senior Lucy Dale with her horse Simplex, and Sue Rau on her appolloosa Timber S.

By sponsoring the summer team, the UVM Horse Club hopes to obtain formal recognition by the school. UVM is the only state university which does not have a school-sponsored riding team. Members who have shown interest and initiative by backing themselves to events at their own cost while riding under the name of UVM now hope that UVM will give some financial support to the team.

The team did very well, participating at such far flung

Rugby Team Loses

The Vermont Rugby Team suffered its first defeat of the season as they lost to Yankee Conference rival, New Hampshire by a score of 30 to 0. UVM was able to stay with more experienced Wildcats for the first 15 minutes, playing to a 0-0 score. Afterwards, the New Hampshire squad overpowered Vermont and worked the ball out for several quick scores by their wings. By halftime, the score was 18-0.

UVM was able to organize its defense better in the second period and prevented UNH from scoring until the last five minutes. The final scores made the end result, 30-0. UNH UVM's overall performance was erratic and was attributable to lack of experience, as many UNH performers had over three years experience to but one or

CLASSIFIED

NEW: triangle trading post — Furniture, antiques, books, camping equipment. We buy, sell, trade. 78 Archibald St. 862-4008. Open 9-6, Friday till 8.

For sale: Complete sound system Dynaco 7 watt amp and pre-amp. Sony tape deck & recorder. Two Dallas cabinet speakers. Garrard turntable. Set of tapes. $260.00 or will sell separately. 899-3600.

Ski Boots: 4 yr. old Lange Pro's in good cond. Yours for $30.00. Call Brian, 656-2809.

For Sale: Teak-Rattan Headboard, Box spring, bedspread — All queen. New set dishes for 8, 6x9 wool, gold-yellow shag rug. 865-2159.

Free: 1 pr. of Marker Rotomat bindings with the sale of 2 yr old Rossignol Strato 102, 207 cm. Bottoms in good condition. $80.00. Call Brian, 656-3809.

For Sale: Fabriano Hiking Boots. Women size 6½ very good condition $10.00, ($30.00 new). Please call Kacey 985-8575.

68 Volvo 1445 — needs engine work — $300. Send name and phone to VOLVO, 600 Pine St., Apt. 9B, Burlington.

Tennis Lessons Available — times are flexible — call Ted 864-2305.

Deadline for Classifieds is Mon Nite

RESEARCH

Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page

Send for your up to date, 166 page mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time = 1 to 2 days)

RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477 8474 or 477 5493

Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

Plans Bike Paths

...three types of ...mmuters by the ...e vs. bike, bike vs. ... and bike vs. ...n regard to bike vs. ...ctions, adequate ...e is allowed to ...e to turn into the ...ath, and warning ...placed in advance ...tion.

...e vs. pedestrian ...there will be a sign ... path 25 feet in ...ning the bicyclist. ...e will be a sign 10 ...dvance of the ...of the pedestrian ...pedestrians of the ...rd.

...where bikes and ...intersect, adequate ...e established for ...bile driver by ...peated crossing. ...rossings will take ... painted white ...n than 1.3 feet by ...

...the campus bike ... standardized to ... maximum ... and minimum ...path users. These ...include BIKE ...IKE ROUTE, NO ...VEHICLES, NO ...ANS, BIKE ...CROSSING, and ...

...time and ...as been taken in ... specifics of ...mpus bike path ...rainage, grades ...procedures have ...d by the civil ...

...drainage has ...y screening the ...th at a slope of ... foot, and ...nage has been ...of the existing ...dge of the ...sing the paved ...ch above the ...

...les on campus ... 10 per cent, ... engineering ...ound that it is ...p the grade as ...nd on the bike ...cent. The only ...be a 6 per cent ...ill Hall, which ...by going around ... Dairy Science ...en up Redstone ...

...ork.

In the May 10, 1973 report prepared by engineering students John Barnett, Paul Masten, Keith Rice, and Louise Stanton, titled "Bicycle System Design of the University of Vermont Campus", surfacing procedure was discussed. "The asphalt content should be 1.2 per cent higher than that used for roads because a bike way is subjected to lighter loadings...where good drainage exists, place 3 to 4 inches of an aggregate base of gravel, crushed stone, or slag on a sub-grade then lay 1 1/2 to 2 inches of asphalt over the base."

Thus, through dedicated research and work many civil engineering students and interns have designed and engineered approximately 15,000 feet of bike paths for the University of Vermont. Estimated costs by an outside contractor for gravel sub-base and asphalt paving of a 4 foot wide bike path is about $1.60 per foot, totaling nearly $16,000.

William Potter of Administration Support Services states that the university has been budgeted $5,000 annually for the next four years for the construction of bike paths on the university campus. However the rising cost of asphalt, expansion of the bikepaths may take the form of paved gravel until money for the appropriate asphalt surfacing can be obtained. In regard to future development of the bike path system, Potter sees "no major obstacles" to curtail bikepath development of the Vermont campus.

Director of Administrative ...esources, Larry Snyder, states, "The city of Burlington has been delighted with the outcome of the proposed bike path system, and Assistant City Planner, Bill Bosher, has taken copies of the reports." They will be used as reference sources for the proposed bike path system within the city of Burlington.

Snyder concluded by urging all students to use the bike racks rather than hitching bikes to existing trees. When bikes are hitched to trees, the bark is torn and eventually the trees die.

Student ideas and time have gone into the "success" of bike paths at the University of Vermont.

KLY SPEAKING....by phil frank

ORST THING ABOUT GOING AWAY
BIG SCHOOL FOR THE FIRST TIME
THOSE STRANGE FACES!'

MEDIA SERVICES-BOX 9411-BERKELEY, CA 94709

TH SIDES NOW:

There's a shop in town that cater's to every taste.

Nate's Connection is the Place

Leather coats starting as low as $60.00; and for those more daring try our imported leathers & suedes.

At any style or price the leather stays as soft as a baby's toe.

No matter what your preference is to style: Levi Jeans &Cords are a must.

WE HAVE THEM ALL!!!

te's INC.
Vermont's Largest Men's Clothier
Burlington, Montpelier, St. Albans
St. Johnsbury

UVM Horse Club Performs!

The UVM Horse Club, after twelve years of operation, experimented over the past summer by sponsoring a competitive team. The results were so satisfactory that the team may be provided with financial, as well as moral support from the University.

Members of the horse club who competed regularly were President Verne Batchelder on his thoroughbred, Indian Cat Call; Junior Debbie Powell on her thoroughbred Balancin, and former club president Jeanie Hahn on her quarter horse, Calamity Tink. Other competitors competing on and off throughout the summer were senior Lucy Dale with her Horse Simplex, and Sue Rau on her appolloosa Timber S.

By sponsoring the summer team, the UVM Horse Club hopes to obtain formal recognition by the school. UVM is the only state university which does not have a school-sponsored riding team. Members who have shown interest and initiative by trucking themselves to events at their own cost while riding under the name of UVM now hope that UVM will give some financial support to the team.

The team did very well, participating at such far flung Vermont events as the Hitching Post Horse Trials, the Dunham Quebec Horse Trials, the Doomed Horse Trials and the North Haverhill, N.H. Horse Show.

The horse trial, in an accumulative event based on a total score for three seperate competitions: Dressage, a programed ride judged on the obedience of the horse and the fluid performance of the horse/rider combination; Endurance - a rigorous cross country gallop, over trappy fences and against time; and Stadium jumping.

The first event of the season was in May. Competetors left directly from school and participated in their first competition at Hitching Post Farm in South Royalton. Placing for the team was Verne Batchelder, Debbie Powell and Lucy Dale.

The high point of the season was the July 7 Vershire Horse Trials. Verne and his mare won the senior training dressage competition. He retained his lead after cross-country; Debbie and Balancin had jumped themselves to second place. The tension proved too much as teammates battled it out for the lead, for Verne's knockdown in stadium jumping dropped him down to fourth place, while Debbie's perfect round captured the competition. Also competing for UVM in another division was Sue Rau on Tim.

All the horses turned in super rides at the Green Mountain Horse Association Horse Trails. Indian Cat Call and Calamity Tink both placed, the latter doing extremely well for a young inexperienced animal.

The North Haverhill Horse Show, a class B show, provided a good deal of sport. Jeanie and Debbie battled it out for the reserve championship in the open hunter division. With the cone and brick wall set at four feet, the horses had to use themselves a bit more than in previous competitions. Debbie and Bal again held the edge and rode away with the honors.

It was a terrific season. The club hopes to enlarge and improve its team this winter in preparation for next summer's events. Students interested in the Spear Street Stables and the UVM Horse Club or in the competitive team should contact Verne Batchelder at 863-5944 or watch the Cynic for further announcements. Weekly meetings are held at MAT lounge on Thursdays at 8 p.m. All sorts of riders are welcome.

Rugby Team Loses To Strong UNH Squad

The Vermont Rugby Team suffered its first defeat of the season as they lost to Yankee Conference rival, New Hampshire by a score of 30 to 0. UVM was able to stay with more experienced Wildcats for the first 15 minutes, playing to a 0-0 score. Afterwards, the New Hampshire squad overpowered Vermont and worked the ball out for several quick scores by their wings. By halftime, the score was 18-0.

UVM was able to organize its defense better in the second period, and prevented UNH from scoring until the last five minutes. The final scores made the end result, 30-0. UNH. UVM's overall performance was erratic and was attributable to lack of experience, as many UNH performers had over three years experience to but one or two for UVM.

The "B" team was also defeated by the UNH "B" team. The score was 6-4. The Wildcats were able to jump to a 6-0 lead in the first five minutes after converting on two penalty kicks.

UVM's score came late in the first half when wing James Cottrell raced 40 yards for a score with the point after attempt missed. Vermont outplayed UNH throughout most of the contest but could not score because of a series of costly penalties assessed against them. Late in the second period, center Dave Perkins crossed the UNH line with the go ahead try but it was called back on a questionable call by the official.

Vermont now opens a three game homestand with games against Norwich on Sept. 25, Keene State on the 28th, and Albany Law School on Oct. 5. All games begin at 2 p.m. and they are played at the Archie Post Field.

Girl's Tennis Team Expands Schedule

by Debi Bloom

The recent condition of the indoor tennis courts has caused inconveniences for not only the men 's and women's teams, but also for intramural matches and physical education classes. One court was out of service for the entire week of September 16-20. Scattered wooden benches and pipes hinder play in the backcourt areas.

During tennis class periods in the mornings and during afternoon team practices, a cacophony of machinery gears interrupt the players' concentration. Sparks from welding work have been a danger to those chasing for stray tennis balls, though players could don hardhats for the remainder of the work day.

The girls' varsity team must have clear courts, at least for their home match this week.

With the loss of only one senior, Debbie Kelly, the varsity squad is anxious to uphold last year's undefeated record of 6-0. This season the team will have ten matches, seven at home and three on the road at Green Mountain, Castleton, and Middlebury. Many newcomers will provide keen competition for the many returnees.

The 1974 season opener will be on Thursday, September 26, at home against Middlebury. All matches begin at 3:30 and if the construction workers have left any benches for spectators, all are welcome to support the UVM girls.

The schedule is as follows:
Sept. 26 – Middlebury – Home
Sept. 27 – Albany St. – Home
Oct. 1 – Castleton – Away
Oct. 2 – Green Mtn. – Home
Oct. 3 – Trinity – Home
Oct. 8 – Lyndon – Home
Oct. 10 – Plattsburgh – Home
Oct. 15 – Colby – Home
Oct. 16 – Green Mtn. – Away
Oct. 22 – Middlebury – Away

Soccer Team Loses Opener To UConn 3-2

The UVM Soccer team also took a trip to Storrs, Connecticut. They also wound up on the short end of the score, as the Cats lost their first game of the season, 3-2.

The Cats led by 1-0 and 2-1 before goals late in the game by UConn made the results change from victory to defeat. UVM goalie, Jim Taft had 13 saves as compared to his Connecticut counterpart Ted McSherry who had six.

UVM started the scoring early when with just two minutes gone by, Mark Heidrich headed a ball from midfield into the UConn end. Freshman, John Koerner picked up the ball and beat McSherry on the left side to give the Cats an early lead.

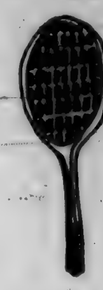
With less than seven minutes left in the half, UConn tied the score when Lloyd Grant's soft shot went past Taft.

Soon after, UVM almost went into the clubhouse with a first half lead as Gil Low converted a rebound of his own shot after retaking a pass from Dick Whidden. But Jimmy Evans scored an unassisted goal for the Huskies and the half ended at 2-2.

Evans then scored his second goal of the game as he headed in a corner kick with 41 minutes gone by in the second half. This goal gave the game to UConn by the final count of 3-2.

The key to the game was the superior experience of UConn as compared to a UVM team with but one senior. According to coach Don Soderberg, the Huskies were able to control the play at midfield. That UConn outshot UVM is another indication of more superior play by UConn.

The Cats now go to Plattsburgh State where the results of the game that took place yesterday are too late to be printed in this week's paper.



SCHWARTZ ON SPORTS

by Mike Schwartz

Around the nation there are many noteworthy sports items worth mentioning.

At the top of the list in football, both college and pro. As the season starts so have the upsets that make each weeks' results so interesting to analyse. At the college level, Penn State has lost to Navy. In their hopes to squeak out a victory to stay undefeated, State tried a two point conversion that failed. Instead they lost 7-6.

Among the other upsets were Arkansas over U.S.C. and Wisconsin over Nebraska. Of course, Notre Dame and Ohio State keep rolling along. On Saturday it was Notre Dame 49-3 over Northwestern and Ohio State routing Oregon St. 55-10.

At the pro level Buffalo beat Miami, San Diego downed Cincinnati, and St. Louis got by Washington. The N.F.L. despite all the union problems still is unpredictable from week to week as far as scores are concerned.

●●●●●●

Meanwhile, the W.F.L. is having problems. The Houston team is supposed to be moving to Louisiana but a court order is keeping them from going. The players have formed their own player's association. And in New York, where the team is stuck in an old run down stadium on an island between Manhattan and the Bronx, the coach is wondering where the fans have all gone.

Over in Europe a profession basketball team is forming which is supposed to be a step below the N.B.A. and A.B.A. Teams will be located in such places as Tel Aviv and Rome.

●●●●●●

There are even a few baseball races this year. By the time the season is over, there might be snow in Vermont. In the long season we find the Yankees leading Baltimore. New York is a team with the next Mickey Mantle playing right field and having only nine home runs, a new double play combo, and two of four starting pitchers who weren't even with the team at the beginning of the year.

Oakland seems to have it in the West of the A.L. and Los

(continued on page ten)

CLASSIFIED

NEW: triangle trading post – Furniture, antiques, books, camping equipment. We buy, sell, trade. 79 Archibald St. 862-4005. Open 9-6, Friday till 8.

For sale: Complete sound system Dynaco 7 watt amp and pre-amp. Sony tape deck & recorder. Two Dallas cabinet speakers. Garrard turntable. Set of tapes. $250.00. or will sell separately. 899-3690.

Ski Boots: 4 yr. old Lange Pro's in good cond. Yours for $30.00. Call Brian, 656-3809.

For Sale: Teak-Rattan Headboard, Box spring, bedspread – All queen. New set dishes for 8, 6x9 wool, gold-yellow shag rug. 655-2159.

Free: 1 pr. of Marker Rotomat bindings with the sale of 2 yr old Rossignol Strato 102, 207 cm. Bottoms in good condition. $80.00. Call Brian, 656-3809.

For Sale: Fabriano Hiking Boots. Women size 6½ very good condition $10.00, ($30.00 new). Please call Kacey 986-8675.

68 Volvo 144S – needs engine work – $300. Send name and phone to VOLVO, 500 Pine St., apt. 9B, Burlington.

Tennis Lessons Available – times are flexible – call Ted 656-3305.

Deadline for Classifieds is Mon Nite

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days)
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD. SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only

Lafayette RADIO ELECTRONICS
STORE CLOSES SAT. 28th 1974
We've lost our lease, so we're moving to 157 Pearl St., Essex Junction
SAVE
CLOSE OUT SALE!
Pioneer — JVC — AR — TEAC
TV's — PANASONIC — PHILLIPS
GARRARD — KLH — BSR — SONY
— LAFAYETTE BASF - ADVENT - TEAC
REVOX Scotch Tapes
Just a few of the Great Savings
Garrard 74-MS Turntable — Reg. $99, Now $75
JVC Receivers 35% Off
Garrard Zero-100's turntables $139.00. List $209
KLH 32 Speakers $84.00. List $119.95
All automatic test equipment 25% off
All Cassette tapes and reel-to-reel tapes 25% off
AR-XB Turntable $109.00
Panasonic 4-channel 8-track stereos 30% Off
12" B&W TV $80.00
Once in a lifetime savings! Stereo, tapes, TV's and more!
UP TO
LAST WEEK 25% OFF LAST WEEK
CLOSING SAT 28th
EVERYTHING IN THE STORE
Burlington Store Only

Visit the Spacious, New SKI RACK Now at 85 Main St. During Our GRAND OPENING
Today thru Oct. 5th
REGISTER FOR MORE THAN $400 IN PRIZES
DRAWING WILL BE HELD OCT. 5th
1st PRIZE ATOMIC CROSS COUNTRY PACKAGE $106 value
Includes Skis, Boots, Poles, Bindings, Mountings
2nd PRIZE FISCHER CROSS COUNTRY PACKAGE $94 value
Includes Skis, Boots, Poles, Bindings, Mountings
3rd PRIZE EHO BICYCLE $94 value
4th PRIZE CHOICE OF ONE SKI SWEATER $40 value
5th PRIZE AUTHENTIC GOOSEDOWN PARKA $38.50 value
6th PRIZE SKI RACK GIFT CERTIFICATE $30
EIGER X-C SKI PACKAGE
Includes Skis, Poles, Boots, Bindings, Mountings
$49.95 complete
JUST OF THE MANY PRESEASON SPECIALS OFFERED ON OPENING SALE
Now is the time to investigate the new Ski Rack.
Take some time to browse through our spacious new store and take some time to register in our Grand Opening Drawing Both will be time well spent!
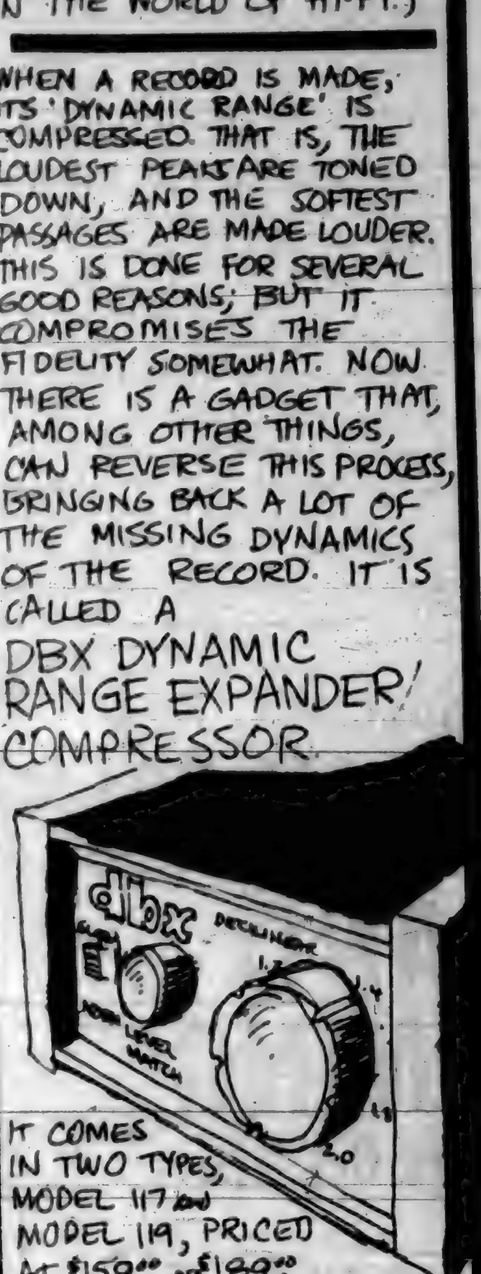
the Ski Rack
DOWNTOWN BURLINGTON'S ONLY SPECIALTY BICYCLE, APPAREL, and CROSS COUNTRY SHOP
PHONE 658-3313
85 Main St., Burlington
A Block Below The Howard Bank
Open Daily 9:30-6
Fridays till 9P.M.
Saturday 9-5

nifties:

(THIS IS THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF COLUMNS DEVOTED TO SOME OF THE MORE ESOTERIC ITEMS IN THE WORLD OF HI-FI.)

WHEN A RECORD IS MADE, ITS 'DYNAMIC RANGE' IS COMPRESSED. THAT IS, THE LOUDEST PEAKS ARE TONED DOWN, AND THE SOFTEST PASSAGES ARE MADE LOUDER. THIS IS DONE FOR SEVERAL GOOD REASONS; BUT IT COMPROMISES THE FIDELITY SOMEWHAT. NOW THERE IS A GADGET THAT, AMONG OTHER THINGS, CAN REVERSE THIS PROCESS, BRINGING BACK A LOT OF THE MISSING DYNAMICS OF THE RECORD. IT IS CALLED A DBX DYNAMIC RANGE EXPANDER/ COMPRESSOR.



IT COMES IN TWO TYPES, MODEL 117 AND MODEL 119, PRICED AT $159.00 OR $189.00. COME IN FOR A DEMONSTRATION.

THE Stadiocraft LOUDSPEAKERS ARE BECOMING FAMILIAR AROUND HERE; WE'VE SOLD HUNDREDS OF PAIRS, AND YOU PROBABLY KNOW SOMEONE WHO HAS THEM. THEY ARE VERY GOOD. KIND OF BY CHANCE A COUPLE OF WEEKS AGO WE TRIED CONNECTING A PAIR OF 220's AND A PAIR OF 330's IN PARALLEL TO THE SAME AMP. THE RESULTS WERE STARTLING. THE COMBINATION WAS BY ABOUT 3 or 4 dB THE MOST EFFICIENT SPEAKER IN THE STORE, YET IT HANDLED THE FULL 400 w. RMS OF A BOSE 1801 AMP (400 w. PER CHAN, THAT IS!) WITHOUT FLINCHING. THE TOTAL PRICE FOR THIS COMBO IS $430 — WE'LL BE GLAD TO HOOK IT UP FOR YOU ANY TIME WE'RE NOT TOO BUSY. IT MIGHT BE WHAT YOU'RE LOOKING FOR.

tech hifi
189 CHURCH ST., BURLINGTON, VT. 05401
PHONE 862-3458

PFG-Schedule

Men and Women's Varsity swim teams and synchronized swim practices will all be going, starting Sept. 30th. As a result, student recreation hours, in the pool, will be 8:30 - 10:30, starting on that date.

A PFG policy for the past few years has been to shut down all other activities in Patrick and Forbush whenever a varsity basketball game was going on in the gym. This will no longer be the policy. The pool and handball courts will be kept open for recreation this season during basketball games.

PATRICK–FORBUSH–GUTTERSON SCHEDULE
WEEKEND OF SEPTEMBER 27, 28, and 29

FRIDAY, Sept. 27
GYM – Students 8 a.m. – 12 noon, 1 – 5 p.m.; Faculty-Staff Recreation 12 – 1 p.m., 8 – 10:30 p.m. (7 – 8 p.m. children)
POOL – Students - none; Faculty-Staff Recreation 12:05 – 1:25 p.m.; 8 – 10:30 p.m. (7 – 8 children)
TENNIS – Students – none (Women's Tennis Match); Faculty-Staff Recreation 12 – 1 p.m., 8 – 10:30 p.m. (7 – 8 children)
TRACK – Students – 8 a.m. – noon, 1 – 5 p.m., Faculty-Staff Recreation 12 – 1 p.m., 8 – 10:30 p.m. (7 – 8 children)
SATURDAY, Sept. 28
GYM – Students 1 – 5, 7 – 10:30 p.m. Student Recreation.
POOL – Students 1 – 5, 7 – 10:30 p.m. Student Recreation.
TENNIS – Students 1 – 5, 7 – 10:30 p.m. Student Recreation.
TRACK – Students 1 – 5, 7 – 10:30 p.m. Student Recreation.
SUNDAY, Sept. 29
GYM – Students 3:30 – 5 p.m. (Actionfest till 3:30) Student Recreation
POOL – Students 3:30 – 5 p.m. (Actionfest till 3:30) Student Recreation
TENNIS – Students 1 – 5 p.m. Student Recreation
TRACK – Students 1 – 5 p.m. Student Recreation
HANDBALL AND SQUASH COURTS: By appointment only. Call 3069. Being repaired. Courts will be available as repaired.
MONDAY through THURSDAY
TENNIS – When not scheduled for intramurals after 8 p.m.
POOL – 8:30 – 10:30 p.m. Students
OTHER FACILITIES – 7 – 8 p.m. Students
These periods may be superseded by varsity activities or special events.

Racquetmen Place First

The UVM Tennis Team defended their Cardinal Classic title this past weekend in Plattsburgh, New York. The Cats first beat Oswego and then routed the host team from Plattsburgh State 9-0 in the finals.

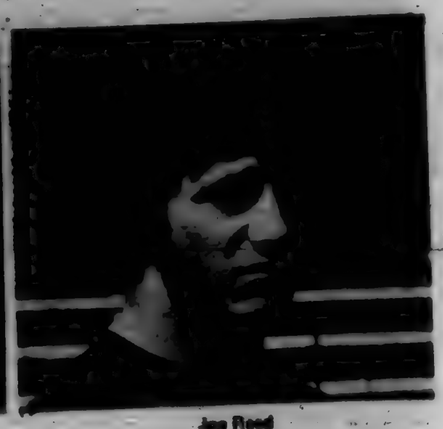
While UVM was defeating Oswego, Plattsburgh upended Middlebury to reach the final round. The Vermont victory in the final was led by number one singles player, Jay Moorhead. Moorhead defeated Craig Levy, 6-1, 6-0.

The top doubles team of Moorhead and Dick Hilmer also had an easy time as they beat Willy Mayo and Tom North, 6-3, 6-1.

The following are results of other matches:
Singles – Hilmer over Marty Silver 6-1, 6-0. Tom Lenci over Bob Birsky 6-2, 6-2. Kevin Delaney over Mayo 7-5, 6-0. Scott Turban over Brnie Germano 6-1, 6-0. Tag Carpenter over North 7-5, 6-1. Doubles – Lenci and Delaney over Kern and Green, 6-0, 6-1. Jeff Deluca and Turban over Burch and Gilson 6-2, 6-3.

UVM SPORTS

Bob Bateman



Joe Reed

UConn Downs Fumbling UVM On Late TD, 36-22

The Cats tried hard but wound up fumbling the game away as Connecticut defeated Vermont 36-22 at Storrs last Saturday. Despite another fine performance by Bob Bateman and good defense from the likes of Joe Reed and Gary Gotfried, the Cats could not muster enough poise and experience to upend the Huskies.

UVM trailed 22-7 but was able to tie it up at 22-22. But UConn proved too much, basically because of one man, Russell Clarke a sophomore fullback. He ran for 207 yards on 44 carries. The UConn team totaled 285 yards on the ground as once again the rushing defense gave up too many yards. Clarke scored three touchdowns on runs of 1, 1, and 8 yards. Bob Bateman proved the finest Catamount on offense as he passed for two touchdowns and 145 yards completing seven of 10 tosses.

UVM fumbled the opening kickoff on its own 20 and Kevin Carroll recovered for UConn. It wasn't long for Clarke to carry the ball in from the one and the extra point gave UConn a quick 7-0 lead.

The Cats came right back as Larry Lockwood took the kickoff to the UVM 45 and then Billy Looker hauled in a 57 yard pass from Bateman to tie the score at 7-7. Lockwood was to run for 32 yards on 11 carries for the day.

Later in the period the Huskies marched 60 yards in 11 plays with Clarke scoring his second touchdown on an eight yard run.

In the second period, a Bateman fumble, one of five the Cats lost during the afternoon led to the third UConn touchdown. Bateman lost the ball at the UVM 31. Eight plays later, Brad Rock, the UConn quarterback ran from the one. A pass to MacLellan from Rock gave UConn two more points and a 22-7 lead.

But the Cats came back to tie the score. The Cats drove 77 yards with Lockwood lugging the final 4. The kick made it 22-14.

On the ensuing kickoff, Mark Boland recovered a UConn fumble but the play was nullified. Vermont was called for a blocking below the waist penalty that made Vermont give up the ball and lose 15 yards with the penalty. This questionable call gave UConn the ball instead of Vermont having a chance to score again. At half time the score remained 22-14.

On their first drive from scrimmage in the second half, Bateman led another long scoring march down the field. This time, Paul Jarry caught the touchdown pass on a four yard toss. The Drive was 80 yards on 11 plays. Jarry then caught the two point pass and it was 22-22. A Bateman run of 25 yards was key in leading to the touchdown.

But in the fourth period, Clarke kept on coming and UConn won the game. Clarke ran for one touchdown climaxing a 62 yard drive. Bateman was injured and John Margarita took over. The Huskies recovered a fumble on the UVM 9 when Margarita lost the ball on a play that might have been called as an attempted forward pass. Two plays later Rock passed to Rick Hedgepeth on a five yard play. That did it for the Cats as the final score was 36-22.

Bateman's injury was not serious. He had a nerve contusion in his elbow but is expected to play on Saturday at Centennial Field against BU. Rocky Thompson has a sore knee but is also expected to play on Saturday. Chris Henry who hurt his leg against Norwich, was back in action as he snapped the ball back to Billy Looker on punts. For the defense, Joe Reed was the star with 14 unassisted tackles and four assists. Gottfried had nine unassisted plays and assisted on four others.

But in the end for the Cats, the fumbles that led to touchdowns and the failure to stop Clarke and his rushing spelled defeat. The Cats were competitive but just didn't have enough to beat the defending Yankee Conference Champions. This week they hope for more favorable results.

X-Country Routs Maine

The UVM Cross Country team took second through ninth places this past weekend as they routed Maine 20-43 in Orono. The win evens the teams record at 1-1.

Gerald LaFlamme won the race for Maine with a time of 23:35 on the 4.6 mile course but after LaFlamme, all the runners were from UVM. Bob Graves finished second in a time of 23:49 and Dave Milligan was next at 23:51. Lynn Capen was also under 24 minutes with a time of 23:56, good enough for fourth place.

The other UVM runners in the top ten were Mike Berry, Howdy Russell, Bob Stoehr, Pete Wieth, and Dave Elliot. The next race is at St. Lawrence this Saturday.

Away Game Information

The following is information on how to obtain tickets for away football games:

October 5 – at Amherst, Mass. vs. UMass, Public – $3.50 and Students with I.D. – $1.75.

November 2 – at Orono, Maine vs. Maine, Public – $3.50 and Students with I.D. – $2.00.

Tickets for the above two games are obtainable at the UVM ticket office.

October 12 – at Kingston, Rhode Island vs. URI. Present I.D. at box office at site of game for student ticket. Public may purchase ticket at box office.

November 16 – at Springfield, Mass. vs. AIC. Present I.D. at box office for student ticket. Public may purchase ticket at the box office. AIC Park, Roosevelt Avenue.

MAD-MAN MURRAY OFFERS STUDENTS!

1000's of RECORDS COUNTRY WESTERN, ROCK, JAZZ, EASY LISTENING

$1.99

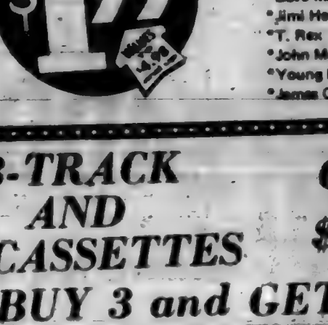
NAMES LIKE
*Steppen Wolf
*Beach Boys
*Deep Purple
*Chuck Berry
*Dave Mason
*Jimi Hendrix
*T. Rex
*John Mayall
*Young Bloods
*James Gang

8-TRACK AND CASSETTES ONLY $2.91
BUY 3 and GET THE 4th ONE FREE!!

STEREO EQUIPMENT HEADQUARTERS
Tenna 8 Track Car Stereo Only $49.95
Compact size. 12 watts stereo power
.Illuminated Channel Indicator
.Repeat Play Button

NEW BURLINGTON LOCATION–
CHURCH ST. and MECHANICS LANE

Use our FREE BULLENTIN BOARD. If you need a ride home for vacation or want to sell something. Put your message on our student bullentin board absolutely FREE.



HOW TO GET HERE

MADMAN MURRAY'S BARGAIN CENTER FOR RECORDS, TAPES and EQUIPMENT
Church Street & Mechanics Lane Burlington — Route 7 & Shirley Rd. Colchester

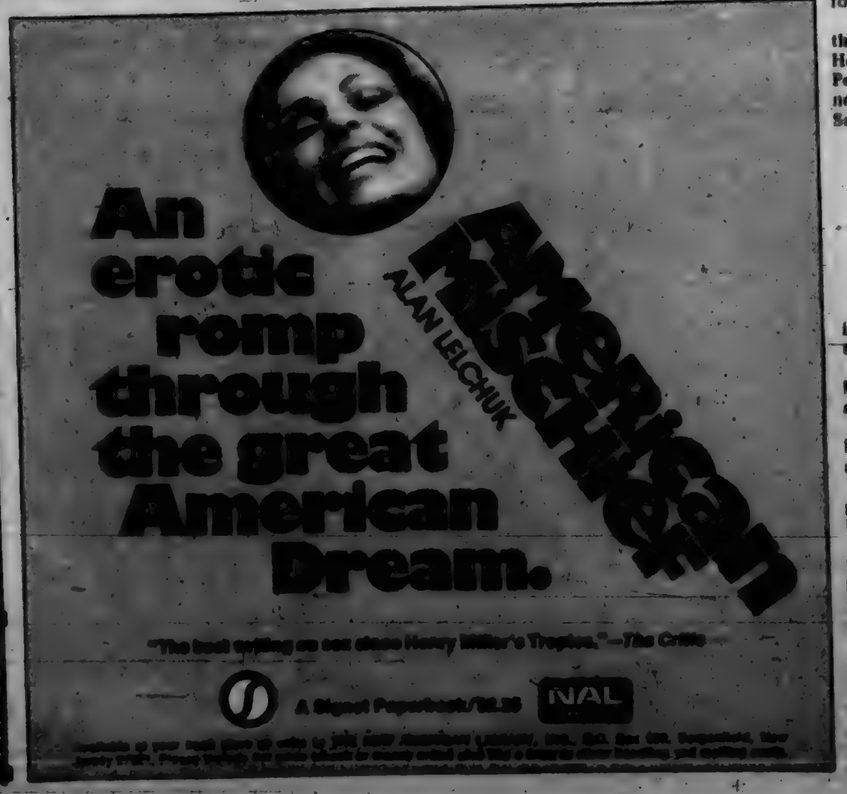
20,000 SWEATERS

Men's Traditional Crew-necks Starting At only 6.99

Wools, Acrylics, Blends, Many Colors

CHARLESTOWN MILL STORE
65 MAIN ST

VALUABLE COUPON
SPECIAL TO STUDENTS AND FACULTY MEMBERS
10% DISCOUNT
ON YOUR PURCHASES AT
CAMPUS PHARMACY
ACROSS FROM The Medical Center



VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 19

OCTOBER 3, 1974

VERMONT CYNIC

University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont

Three Congressional Candidates To Debate Tonight At Patrick

by Paul Cillo
S.A. Speakers

Vermont's three Congressional candidates, Francis Cain, James Jeffords and Michael Parenti will debate the issues of this year's campaign at the UVM Patrick Gym on October 3 at 7:30 p.m.

The debate is being sponsored by the Student Association Speakers Bureau and will consist of a brief presentation by each of the candidates, a period of debate and a period for questions from the audience. According to SA Speakers Chairman, Dick Cassidy, the event is in the Speakers Bureau tradition of presenting the UVM community with an opportunity to become better informed on current issues.

The race for the Vermont Congressional seat is wide open since incumbent Congressman Richard Mallory is presently seeking the U.S. Senate seat to be vacated by Senator George Aiken.

Two of the three candidates were victorious in their primaries on September 10. The third, Parenti, was nominated by the Liberty Union Party Convention in June. All the candidates are actively campaigning toward the November 5 general election.

The candidates are entering the Congressional race from a variety of backgrounds. Cain, who is running on the Democratic ticket, was mayor of Burlington from 1965 to 1971 and is presently Vice President of Hickok and Boardman insurance corporation.

Jeffords, Republican candidate, is a former Vermont Attorney General and now practices law in Montpelier.

Parenti is the former UVM Professor of Political Science who was fired in December of 1972. The effects of the controversy surrounding that event are still felt at UVM.

SA Speakers Bureau is attempting to set up similar debates between the candidates for Governor of Vermont and among the U.S. Senatorial candidates, Cassidy said.

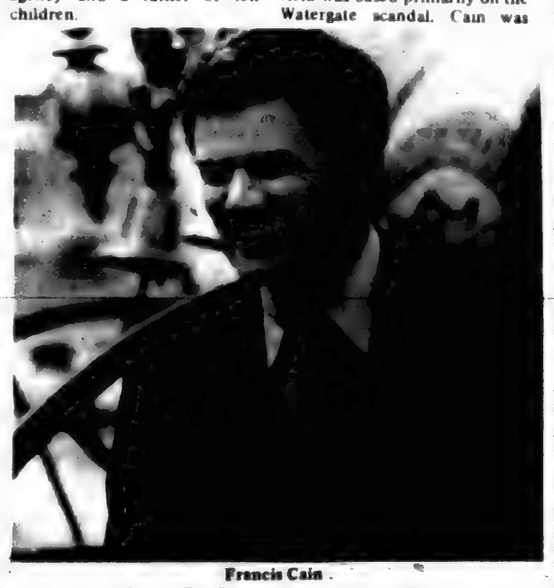
The debate should provide interested persons with an opportunity to compare the candidates in order to make informed decisions on election day.

President Ford Will Be Here Monday. For All Details, See Tomorrow's Special Edition Of The Cynic

Candidate Cain Claims He Can Bring Local Problems To Federal Attention

by Randy Jansen

Francis Cain is the Democratic Candidate for the lone Vermont House Seat. He is vice-president of Hickok and Boardman, Inc., an insurance agency and a father of ten children.



Francis Cain

Cain had previously expressed a desire to retire from politics after his last term as Burlington's mayor in 1971. His decision to reenter the political field was based primarily on the Watergate scandal. Cain was distressed at the arrogance of power and the "no accountability" in Washington. He feels that he can bring the Federal government a feeling of what the problems are on the local level.

The major issue of Ca. campaign is inflation. Cain sa, the leading economists can not agree on how to cope with inflation, but he is "not arrogant enough to say I have a solution." Cain does feel that Washington can work on three major aspects of inflation: fiscal policy, tax policy and government.

Cain emphasizes that just balancing the federal budget will not cure inflation. He thinks the 1975 budget has already been pared enough. The defense budget would be the "place to cut," according to Cain. However, he thinks Congress has done a pretty good job in reducing the Defense Budget to $82.5 billion.

Cain also points out that money is too tightly controlled, and should be relaxed to spur production and lower interest rates. The most important single element that President Ford must face, says Cain, is "if and how much release on money and credit should be initiated."

An increase in unemployment is expected as the fight against inflation continues. To offset this high unemployment, Cain proposes realistic unemployment benefits and better distribution. Additionally he would like to see a creation of public service jobs "where feasible." Funding this inflationary balance would come from an increase in revenues.

Revenues should come from tax reforms. There should be an even distribution of the tax burden, relates Cain. A minimum of taxation for the wealthy would be enacted so they could not benefit from the tax loopholes.. Cain supports the elimination of capital gains, which he claims, "cost the government a lot of revenue." Capital gains are beneficial only to people of high income.

Cain also feels that tax free state and municipal bonds violate tax equity by favoring the rich. Since municipal and state bonds are beneficial to both municipalities and states, Cain suggests a Federal grant money on bonds, spending only half what the Federal government loses in tax breaks for bonds.

Although not a position in his campaign, Cain says there is a move underfoot to give the middle class a tax break so the middle class could be able to retain more of the income. He is in agreement with this proposal.

Though not in favor of wage and price controls, Cain realizes there may be a possibility of such controls in the future. He expects the economy to stagnate for 9 to 10 months. The cure to inflation is to insure that inflation isn't higher than production. This will take two or three years, and Cain feels it can be accomplished despite hardship on the poor and middle class.

Another high priority of Cain is health insurance. There are several health insurance bills before congress, but Cain believes the Kennedy-Mills bill is the one which correlates with his own views. There would be an annual $1000 deduction for medical expenses. This would be eliminated for the poor. After a certain point (as yet undetermined) everything would be paid. The plan would be sponsored under independant insurance companies.

Cain supports money for medical students and medical school. In exchange for money for college, doctors will work two years where needed such as in urban areas and rural areas. Cain would also like to see the capacity of medical schools increased so there will be more doctors to alleviate the doctor shortage.

Cain is "squarely behind" Ford's amnesty program for war-resistors. Cain wanted to see some reconciliation on the part of the government and draft resistors.

However, Cain believes Ford's pardon of Nixon was a "mistake in judgment. He (Ford) let compassion and charity take preference over justice and moral order and that is wrong." No pardons for the other Watergate defendents is another stand of Francis Cain's.

On foreign affairs, Cain supports Israel. "We have a commitment and rightly so, that Israel does maintain its independence." He would prefer economic aid rather than military aid to Israel and the Arabs.

On the Cyprus crisis, Cain feels it is "hard to have a position on such a complex problem, with treaties with Turkey and Greece

(continued on page eight)

AFT President Shanker Urges Unionization

by Kathy Strassni

"Most of us wouldn't go to a doctor with a teacher's salary," said Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers. Shanker was a guest speaker at UVM on Sept. 30 for the Presentation of the State Charter for the Vermont Federation of Teachers.

Shanker's visit to Vermont highlights the beginning of an organizational effort " to bring Vermont teachers into the 20th century", as he characterized it. The powerful union leader urged that Vermont teachers catch up with nationwide salary increases. According to him, they are just beginning to awaken to "the world of possibilities."

Shanker believed that teachers have undergone brainwashing. They have been conditioned to believe that demanding for higher salaries and better working conditions is unprofessional. They have been denied the right to be interested in themselves. Shanker criticized these values as being discriminatory and unnecessary. He declared, "Teachers shouldn't make greater sacrifices than others. They shouldn't be the only ones to stand still."

Shanker painted a bleak picture for the future in order to emphasize the need for group cohesion and unionization. He stated that over two million students are preparing to become teachers. Thus, within the next few years, there may be one unemployed teacher for every teacher with a job. This will cause an untenable negotiating situation, since teachers will be at a disadvantage, their supply being greater than the demand.

There are solutions according to Shanker. He criticized the so-called "surplus" as underutilization. Teachers could be channeled into programs for universal early childhood education, and adult education. He viewed the intended budget cuts as a misallocation of resources, claiming that cutting back on education creates massive social expenditures of public welfare for those who have been inadequately educated.

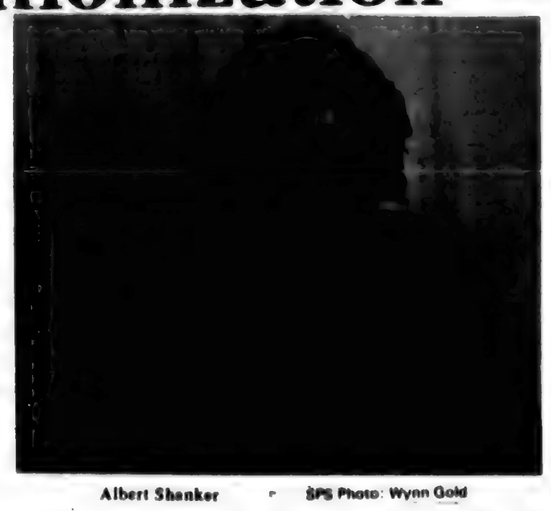
Since there are solutions, there must be change, and change will only occur through politics, power politics, commented Shanker. He cited some of the gains realized by New York City teachers: a $10,000 starting salary with scheduled raises and welfare funds.

He argued that the only way of determining salaries and working conditions is through the process of conflict. Missing school during a strike represents less of a loss than allowing unchallenged school systems to deteriorate, said Shanker. He did mention militancy had its drawbacks, in that teachers are confronted by politicians who formulate proposals which compel them to close down schools at their own expense.

However, teachers won't succeed in an organization which only directs itself toward teachers, warned the AFT president. They must organize to become part of the labor movement. By doing this, he feels, they will receive the support of 14 million other unionized people.

Others present at the meeting supported Shanker's appeal for unionism. Phillip Hoff, former governor of Vermont, felt that unions have been the primary vocalizing force in the fight for equitable distribution of income for labor. "I think they have done well, I think they could do better," he concluded.

John Buck, president of the Vermont Federation of Teachers, who accepted the charter felt that the Vermont union was "going to have to be a bit radical" in order to become a powerful force in state politics. To date, the University of Vermont, Goddard College, the Vermont State Colleges, the Williston Schools, West Rutland High School, and Hazen Union High School are members of the Vermont Federation.



Albert Shanker — SPS Photo: Wynn Gold

Background

Albert Shanker became nationally recognized as a result of his initiation of the 1968 Ocean Hill-Brownsville eruption. Speaking to support unionization at that time Shanker said, "One strike is worth a thousand settlements."

In 1968, New York City Schools were up for grabs, thus Shanker made his move, sensing that it was an optimal time to assert union power within formal school operations. Viewing decentralization as a threat to his emerging union, he called a city-wide teacher's strike which closed the schools to their 1,000,000 pupils for 35 days.

Though the 1968 incident marked Shanker's emergence as a powerful and dramatic personality, unionization had begun in the 1960's. Fourteen years ago, the United Federation of Teachers emerged from 106 teachers' groups in New York. School administrators were outraged as membership rocketed from 2400 to 90,000.

Albert Shanker was indoctrinated with union ideology at an early age, since his mother was a staunch member of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. As a Jew, a minority group member, he encountered discrimination during his years in school and consequently developed a strong social and political commitment to minority group radicalism.

In 1972, Shanker predicted that it would take five years for the 3,000,000 school and college teachers to form the largest union in the United States. Shanker has just recently become president of the American Federation of Teachers, formerly limited to New York State and now operative on a national level with 450,000 members.

Liberty Union's Michael Parenti Fights Corporate Capitalist Oppression

by Barbara Frankel

The following is an interview with Michael Parenti, Liberty Union candidate for the Vermont congressional seat. Parenti, a former political science professor at UVM, made headlines in 1972 when he was fired by the Board of Trustees for political reasons. Last year, after suing the University, Parenti settled out-of-court for $15,000. He has spent the past two years at the State University of New York at Albany. He is now on unpaid leave from Albany but hopes to find some means of staying in Vermont, "for example, being elected Congressman."

Cynic: In what way do you feel the liberty union party offers a viable alternative to the two major parties?

Parenti: The Liberty Union party is the only one of the three that's challenging the right of big corporations to own and control our resources, our land, our lives and our labor. Both major parties are financed by big donors. Both major parties have supported a multi-billion dollar federal program to subsidize the large corporations. Both major parties offer the giant corporations multi-billion dollar tax write-offs which pushes the tax burden on to working people. Both major parties support global interventionism, like Vietnam, to protect the interests of corporate overseas investments and markets. Both major parties (and maybe the Democrats a little bit more than the Republicans) offer cosmetic programs and tinkerings in human services areas to try to show that they're doing something for the people.

There are slight differences between the Democrats and the Republicans. The Democrat might want a $2 minimum wage and the Republican might want a $1.80 minimum wage. The point is, nobody can live off either $2 or $1.80...the differences between them don't really make a difference when it comes to solving the problems that are oppressing our lives.

Cynic: In view of your altercations with the University a few years ago, if you were elected Congressman, do you think there would be any problems?

Parenti: First of all, I would like to correct that and say that I didn't have an altercation with the University the University, which is the students, the faculty and the administration, supported me completely and nearly unanimously. It was a magnificent showing. It was a small group of trustees, who were made up of successful businessmen and hustling, careerist state legislators who voted me out for political reasons and political prejudices. That small group won't be giving me any more trouble than they have given me in the past. They're part of that whole establishment that we're trying to fight.

Cynic: Do you think the climate is different now on the campus than it was a few years ago?

Parenti: I think the climate in Burlington is different than three years ago. I'm not too sure about the campus. They're a lot more things happening. There are a lot more low income groups mobilizing, a lot more women's groups... Opinions, I think, have moved further to the left because... people are beginning to see how they are severely disadvantaged by corporate capitalism.

Cynic: How have you used the money awarded to you in that lawsuit against the University?

Parenti: I will be sending the Cynic a detailed statement in a few weeks, which breaks down exactly how the money was spent. In the meantime, I'd be happy to tell you that the money was spent in its entirety on political activity and political publications; and for the defense of other people who have been victimized by the government in various trials like the Attica Defense League, the Wounded Knee Defense League, etc.

Cynic: Has any of this been used by the Liberty Union party?

Parenti: A thousand dollars was contributed to the Liberty Union party and I used two thousand dollars of it for my own personal survival during the campaign to sustain me since I have no income now.

Cynic: Would you comment on the unionization movement among professors at UVM?

Parenti: I think it's a time that professors did protect their interest with unions and realize that there are only two classes in America -- one is the workers, the other is the owners...

However, I believe in the politics for all rather than the politics for self. It's not enough to become one more selfish little interest group. The professors' union really should be dedicated to speaking out and supporting social justice. If it becomes a union which only gets activated over the question of professors' salaries and not over the question of social injustices and the ghettos and poor education and government oppression, then it's a union which isn't worth much.

Cynic: One of the major issues of candidates this year seems to be limited campaign spending. How do you feel about this?

Parenti: For us in Liberty Union, that's not a problem because we don't have any big donors except me, because I had that money from the University. Our position is that the airwaves belong to the people, they are part of the public domain. They are licensed by the public to the networks and therefore the networks should supply more free time, large chunks of free prime time to candidates of all political persuasions. The more free time and the more public funding, the less need there is for having to spend so much. It's only when you make it more reasonable that people with more modest incomes can run for office.

Cynic: How much of an impact do you feel Liberty Union will have on this election?

Parenti: I think we will have a really tremendous impact. The two party system is based on the less of two evils psychology and it's time we stopped doing this and voted for someone we want. As Eugene Victor Debs, the great labor leader, once said, "I'd rather vote for someone I want and not get him or her, than vote for someone I don't want."

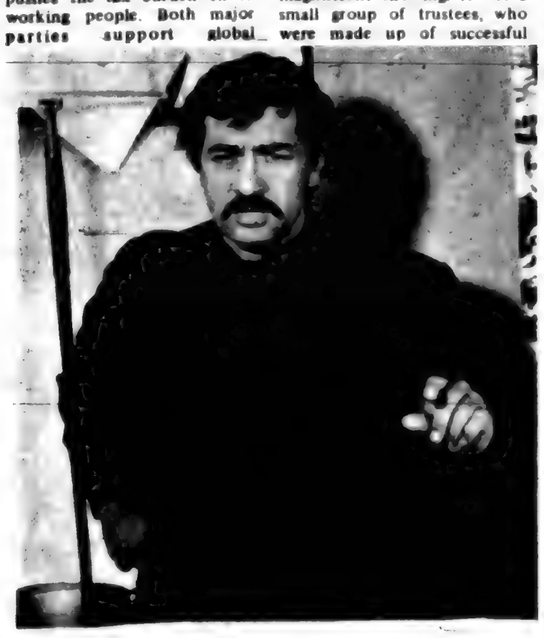
Cynic: Would you comment on decriminalization of marijuana?

Parenti: The real drug problem in America has to do with amphetamines, barbituates and patented drugs that respectable Americans are hooked on. The pushers are doctors and the drug companies. Marijuana is a mild stimulant and often an amusing thing. In excess it probably can be harmful like anything else. It is less harmful than the oppressive laws that exist to protect us from it. We should decriminalize marijuana.

Cynic: What do you think of President Ford's amnesty proposal and his pardon of former President Nixon?

Parenti: I'm for complete amnesty of all war resistors -- I don't consider them draft dodgers or draft evaders...

(continued on page eight)



Michael Parenti — SPS Photo: Lew Comenetz

Student Association Elects Senate

The following is a list of newly elected S.A. Senators. The first meeting of the new senate will be next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Marsh Lounge, Billings.

Chittenden - David Carlen; Buckham - Bill Dean; Wills - not yet determined; Jeanne Mance - Lorraine Gonzalez; McAuley - Janet Walsh; L&L A - Harold Booth; L&LB - Pam Weiss; L&L C - Valerie Murray; L&L D - Altagracia Evangelista; L&L E - Zip Farrell; Marsh - Tom DiCampo; Austin - Tim McGrath; Tupper - Denise Glasco; Coolidge - Dallas Sacher; Robinson - David Walker; Slade - Bill Drake; Millis - Cynthia Murphy; Patterson - Jane Pembroke; Christie - Bill Klipp; Wright - Keven Martin; Mason - Larry Abel; Wilks - Stephen Wilensky; Lavis - Holly Burgess; Wing - Jeryl Parade; Simpson - David Schwartz; Hamilton - Martin Kimiatek; Converse - Ernest Laird.

S.A. Town senators: Donald Adler, C. Earl Coggins, Rob Roy Macgregor, Artie Miller, Arthur Newcombe, - Lawrence A. Onley, Edward P. Pasqualin, Sheldon Roesch, Eric Tabas, Edward White.

Oktoberfest

Redstone Campus is currently in the midst of making plans for a gala seasonal celebration of German culture, "Oktoberfest." The event will take place in the Wing-Davis-Wilks lounge and the courtyard in front of the building on Sunday afternoon, October 20. Although the affair will take place on the Redstone Campus, it will be open to the entire UVM student body.

The celebration will include all types of representations of the German way of life. Special emphasis will be placed on a whole variety of German Foods and, of course, beer. Arts and crafts, as well as sporting goods such as skis and mountain climbing equipment will be on exhibit and sale. German music and folk dancing will also contribute to the Bavarian atmosphere of the day.

Organization and plans for "Oktoberfest" have been undertaken by the Residence Hall Staff up to this point. Students have become involved in the past few days and interested students are being encouraged to contact either Bill Flanagan at extension 2510

(continued on page three)

Trustees Meeting

The University of Vermont Board of Trustees will meet Oct. 5, starting at 8:30 a.m. in the Waterman Memorial Lounge.

Committee meetings of the Board are also scheduled as follows:

On Thursday, at 2 p.m. in the president's dining room, the Investment Committee.

On Friday, all in Waterman Memorial Lounge, the Buildings and Grounds Committee, at 9 a.m.; the Alumni, Development and External Affairs Committee at 10:30; and the Educational Policy Committee at 1 p.m.

The meetings are open to the public.

Table Of Contents

Open Season....p.5
Women's Sports News...p.11
Alvin Ailey Co. To Dance At UVM ...p.5

Featured This Week:

Arts & Entertainment . . . . . p. 6
Calendar/Announcements p.2
Crossword Puzzle . . . . . p. 5
Editorial . . . . . p. 4
Op.Ed . . . . . p. 5
Sports . . . . . p. 12

CALENDAR / ANNOUNCEMENTS

Photo ID's Ready

For those who had their Photo ID's taken at Registration check in the Registrar's Office. We have received some in the mail and more are coming in each day.

Advance Enrollment dates have been changed from the previously published October dates to November 18-22 in Billings Center.

All students should insure that the Registrar's Office has your current local mailing address. Vital information concerning your current schedule plus Advance Enrollment information will be mailed to you at that address. If you haven't turned it in yet, please do so at once.

On -Campus Recruiting Schedule

All seniors and graduate students interested in taking campus interviews with visiting employers and graduate schools may pick up a Fall On-Campus Recruiting Schedule in the Placement Office, 3rd floor Mansfield House.

Signing up will take place, October 7, 8, 9, for the first week of interviews on October 14 - 18. Company and graduate school brochures will be available at the time of sign-up.

Student Teachers Meeting

There will be a meeting for all students intending to do student teaching in the spring on October 9, 1974, at 4:30 in 413 Waterman. If you cannot attend the meeting, come to 237 Waterman and speak to Peter Kelman, Coordinator, Office of Professional Laboratory Experiences.

Folk Festival

On Wednesday, October 9, 1974 at 7:30 p.m. in the 2nd floor lounge of Simpson Hall, there will be an organizational meeting to plan a 2-day traditional folk festival.

There are numerous quality musicians interested in performing music for us, ranging from unaccompanied ballad singing to foot stompin' fiddlin' and banjo pickin'. Students interested in an alternative to rock 'n' roll and want to preserve traditional music at the university are urged to attend this important meeting. For more information call ... Wayne – 3307, Dave – 2034 or Debra – 3086.

Bike Club Meeting

All those interested in forming a UVM Bicycle Club won't want to miss a short meeting, after the L/L bicycle race, Saturday, Oct. 5.

This club will deal with racing, touring and the possibility of an intercollegiate team. If you can not make it to the meeting or if you want more information about the club, contact Geoffrey Rogers at rm. 424 Wilks, tel. 3448.

Health Care Meeting

The AAUW (Assoc. Amer. Univ. Women) is inviting the public to attend a special program concerning Health Care Legislation on Tuesday, October 8, 1974 at 8:30 p.m. in Memorial Lounge, Waterman Bldg. There will be a panel of 4 guest speakers: James A. Guest, Commissioner of Banking and Insurance; James B. Antell, President, Health Insurance of Vermont; Alan Charron, Health Planner for Vermont Services; Mrs. Jennifer Robbins, Member, Cooperative Health Information Center of Vermont.

There will be a business meeting at 8:00 p.m. for AAUW members prior to the program. The program and discussion will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Openings For UVM Veterans

The Project to Advance Veterans' Education (PAVE) still has openings for UVM veterans. Needed are: 1 outreach worker, 1 researcher (Higher Ed grad student?), 1 public relations position.

All jobs pay $3 / hr., 20 hrs. a week. Applicants should be unemployed or underemployed. Applicants should contact Barry Mansfield at the UVM Admissions office, ext. 4220.

Cotillion At Lambda

October 5, Lambda Iota is having a Garbage Collector's Cottilion; UVM's oldest and biggest single function to kick off the beginning of Greek Week festivities. This affair will commence at 9 p.m. and there will be beer and a band until 2 a.m.

The University of Vermont Band will hold its annual car wash October 5, to help support their sagging financial state. If you would like your car cleaned to perfection by the eager musicians of the UVM Band for only one dollar, just take it to either Ron's Sunoco at 6 North Street or the Dairy Building on Main Street.

Wanted: Newswriters

To Join The Vermont Cynic Staff.

Give Us A Call: 658-4911

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3

Dr. Julian J. Jaffe of UVM's Department of Pharmacology will speak at the Sheraton Motor Inn at 8 p.m. on the subject of "Empiricism and Logic in the Discovery of a New Anti-Schistosomal." The program is sponsored by the Vermont Chapter of the Society of the Sigma Xi. Contact them for additional information at the following number: 864-7414.

SA Films presents the musical "Babes on Broadway," starring Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland in Room 101 Votey. Showing time is 7:30 p.m.

U.S. Congressional candidates James Jeffords, Michael Parenti and Francis Cain will hold a debate open to the public at Patrick Gym at 7:30 p.m., sponsored by S.A. Speakers Bureau.

The Essex Junction Speed Skating Club – the Green Mountaineers – will hold its first meeting and skate at the Essex Junction Rink from 7:45 p.m. to 8:45 p.m. All interested people are welcomed. There will be an admission charge for skating. Membership will be available.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4

SKILLSHOP is sponsored by the Fleming Museum for those associated with a museum, historical society or community arts center. "Matting and Framing" will be discussed at the Castleton Fine Arts Building.

"Friday at Four" is a series of one-act plays presented each week at the Royall Tyler Theatre. Open to the general public, there is no admission.

SA Films presents "Monkey Business" and "Sons of the Desert" to be shown in 101 Votey. Admission is one dollar. Shows are at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

The Lane Series presents Francois Truffaut's "Fahrenheit 451" in Marsh Life Sciences Building Auditorium at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Admission is one dollar.

7:30 p.m. Baha'i Club of UVM will sponsor talks on the Baha'i faith. The talks will be held at 71 South Williams, right across from the Music Building. Everyone is welcome.

"Roundhouse", from 9 to 11 p.m., is informal entertainment in a coffee house atmosphere. Hosted by the Billings Center Governing Board, it will be held in the basement of Billings Center.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5

The "Oxbow Mountain Boys," a bluegrass band, will be playing at the starting area of the Living Learning Bike Race. The band will begin at 2 p.m.

Board of Trustees meeting at 8:30 in Memorial Lounge, Waterman building.

SA Films presents "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" starring Paul Newman. Admission is free! The movie will be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30 p.m.

Throughout the week, the following display can be seen at the Fleming Museum: "Recycled Buildings: Twelve Projects;" ways of giving a new life to old Vermont structures will be shown. Organized in cooperation with the Chittenden County committee for UNICEF and the Vermont Chapter of the A.I.A., look for it in the Front, Main and Lounge Galleries.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 7

9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Blood-drive in Billings Center. Come and donate the precious gift of life. Register first in Marsh Lounge. Through Thursday, October 10.

12 noon, Physiology seminar – Dr. William K. Chandler of Yale University will speak on "Excitation – Contraction coupling in Skeletal Muscle." Held in C-210 Given Bldg.

A program of poetry and song by Tim Brookes, Rob Sutnick, Ken Watson, and Bill Davis will be presented as the first of three English Major's Evening Seminars. The presentation is to be held in Dewey Lounge, Second Floor, Old Mill at 7 p.m.

7 p.m., UVM Modern Dance Workshop, Southwick Ballroom. For information, phone 656-3240.

7:30 p.m., SA Films presents "The Garden of the Finzi-Continis." Shown in Room 103 Rowell Hall. Admission is free.

7:45 p.m., Instruction in Scottish Country Dancing for beginners and intermediates. Room 107 Perkins Hall (Geology Bldg.), minimal fee required. Contact Dot or Ben Stein at 863-4105 for more information.

8 p.m., A Cross Cultural Communications slide-illustrated lecture will be given by Dr. Frederick Schmidt of the Sociology Dept. on "Life and Marriage in an Mallay Village. To be held in the Fireplace Lounge, Living/Learning Center.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8

7:30 p.m., SA Senate Meeting in Marsh Lounge.

7:30 p.m., The Lamplighters, a Pentecostal fellowship group, will meet in MAT Lounge to worship the Lord in song and word. All are welcome. More information from Sue Kukla, 656-2952.

7:30 p.m., God-Talk Series at St. Anselm's Chapel, Redstone campus. Open to all. Discussion of "Prayer as a Christian discipline in my present life" will be led by Chaplain John Appleyard.

8:30 p.m., The American Association of University Women invites the public to attend a program on Health Care Legislation in Waterman's Memorial Lounge. Guest speakers include James B. Antell, (President of Vermont Health Insurance), James A. Guest (Commissioner of Banking and Insurance), Alan Charron (Health Planner for Vermont Services), and Mrs. Jennifer Robbins (Member of Cooperative Health Information Center, Inc.).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9

12 noon, Mr. Ward O'Neil of the TIAA will discuss pension plans and anything relating to them in Memorial Lounge, Waterman. All are welcome to attend.

4 p.m., "Tertulia" is an informal gathering of anyone who wants to speak Spanish and meet the Spanish professors. It will meet at the Living/Learning Center, Bldg. D, Suite 350.

4:30 p.m., Senate meeting in B-106 Cook.

4:30 p.m., Meeting for all students intending to do Student Teaching in the Spring semester in Room 413 Waterman Lounge. If unable to attend, speak to Peter Kelman in Room 237 Waterman.

There will be a UVM Sailing Club meeting at 7:30 p.m. at 305 Lafayette.

8 p.m., The Lane Series presents the Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre at Memorial Auditorium. For tickets call 656-3418.

8 p.m., Films in conjunction with the Fleming Museum's "Recycled Buildings" exhibition, including "A Future for the Past" and "Stations". Open to the public in Room 101 Votey Bldg. (Johnson Auditorium). Coffee will be served following the films in the Museum.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10

9 a.m., Women of UVM hiking group meets in front of Gutterson Field House. For further information, call Shirley Sargent, 863-4107.

9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., The U.S. Coast Guard will be recruiting at Billings.

12 noon to 4 p.m., Counseling services available at Billings Center. Students are invited to see either Calvin Chappel or Roberto Rios in Conference Room C. This new service is being offered by the Counseling and Testing Center and it is hoped that, by placing student advisors in a more convenient location, more students will take advantage of available counseling services.

ASCE Meeting

The Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will hold a meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 209 Votey Building. There will be a short business meeting followed by a speaker of great interest to all. This week the featured speaker will be Bernard Eckelman, Chief Project Engineer of the St. Regis Paper Company of Deferiet, New York. Mr. Eckelman will speak on the vital role of the civil engineer in the paper making industry. This is a subject sure to be of interest to all civil engineering students and faculty. Naturally, all students whether members of ASCE or not are most welcome to attend. Refreshments will be served following the speaker.

On September 25 at their first business meeting, a very informative speech on professionalism and engineering ethics was presented by Joseph Lawler, President and Chairman of the Board of Camp, Dresser, and McKee. Mr. Lawler spoke on the importance of maintaining professional standards, and conducting

(continued on page nine)

Professional Announcement

Dr. Terrance D. O'Brien, O.D.

announces the opening of his office for

SOFT CONTACT LENS FITTING ONLY

177 Pearl Street

Burlington, Vermont

for appointment call 863-6241

PLANTASIA

Mostly ~ Plants Macrame' Pots Soils

Advice Which? What? Where? How?

107 St. Paul Street, Burlington 864-9537

DOMINO'S PIZZA

FREE DELIVERY

Fri. & Sat. till 2.00am

The Domino People are pizza people, Period.

864-7444 WILLISTON ROAD

658-3333 N. WINOOSKI AVE

SUPPER SPECIAL! MON.-THURS. 4.30-8.00 pm.

$1.00 off a LARGE PIZZA except large plain

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

PHONE _____

THE SILVER KEG

★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★

MONDAY-LADIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY - ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
WEDNESDAY
UVM NITE' ★FREE★ WITH UVM I.D.
(MUST BE 18 YEARS OF AGE)
THURSDAY- ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45

★ FEATURING ★
OCT. 1 - OCT. 6 - STONE CROSS
OCT. 7 - OCT. 13 - DJANGO

For less than $100, even a scientist can use a little mathematical genius.

Casio.

Solve problems like these in seconds:

- sin 12° 45' 9"
- log 2.3
- $2 \times \sqrt{2}$
- $e^{\frac{1}{2}}$
- ln 0.31
- $a = r \cdot \cos\theta$
- $4.56^{1.23}$
- 2.3^{7}
- $a = \pi r^2 \rightarrow r = \sqrt{\frac{a}{\pi}}$

Casio's new FX-10 is the math specialist's hand-held calculator. It answers practically every need of scientists, engineers, students and architects—anyone who works with complex formulas. And it operates on AC or battery.

Its independent, 10-function key system is unique to the Casio FX-10. One touch of the function key gives you instant answers to problems in trigonometry, common and natural logarithms, and exponentials, to name a few. There's also a π key.

Even when you're using the FX-10 for ordinary math problems, there are advantages. Such as constants in all four functions, an automatic floating decimal system, true credit balance readings and overflow check.

So why buy just a brain when Casio gives you mathematical genius? Try our FX-10.

LAFAYETTE

• 157 Pearl St., Essex Jct.

VVAW/WSO Amnesty

The Vietnam Veterans Against the War/Winter Soldier Organization (VVAW/WSO) will conduct a public program on the issues of Indochina and amnesty Oct. 3 at 7:30 in the North Lounge located at Billings Center at the UVM campus. The program is free and open to the public.

Two films "The Winter Soldier Investigation" and "Only The Beginning" will be shown. Both films provide background and insight into the nature of the continuing war in Indochina. The film will be followed by a short presentation explaining the current and why univer amnesty reunites discharg conclus presenta question those.

Infor VVAW and the table pe Indochi issues bumper informa be conta

Party For L

The UVM organization of "Voters for Leahy" will be kicking off the final week of voter registration with a keg party at Phi Delta Theta on October 5th. Leahy, the Chittenden County States Attorney, is the democratic contender in the U.S. Senate Race against Vermont's Congressman Richard Mallary. Leahy will be at the party at Phi Delta Theta to field questions from students.

The "Voters For Leahy" group has 31 students as its core of workers. There has been an extensive voter registration drive on the campus and notary publics will be available at the Phi Delt Party. Leahy has expres high vo the kn popular He has hero s because the Ec the U Associa is carry of the also, be of "spo classes as Prosecu arrest narcoti The begin contrib

Counseling Se

Effective October 1, counseling services will be available in Billings Center. Students are invited to see either Calvin Chappel or Roberto Rios in Conference Room C between 12 and 4 p.m. These two student advisors will be available to students in the Billings Center each Tuesday until th The offered progra and Te that be more a studen the availab

The Next Thing

The Next Thing, a human growth project, has completed its Fall Workshop Catalog with over 55 offerings for area residents and students.

The program includes workshops on value clarification, self-appreciation, creative thinking, basic hi-fi, drug pharmacology, counseling, yoga, hypnosis, biofeedback, alternatives in healing, issues in sex education, sensory awareness, TA, wilderness reckoning, psychodrama, theater games, dance, gestalt, general systems theory, and astrology.

To obtain a copy of the catalog, drop by THE NEXT THING at 73 Church St., Burlington, or call 862-2013. Copies also available at UVM's Counseling and Testing Center.

Smugglers Notch Di

In an effort to reach local skiers, Smugglers Notch will be selling discount passes through October. Representatives will set up at Champlain College from 4:30 Hall Cent 9 5

M.B.A. Recruitment - Sy

The School of Mangement of Syracuse, New York, wil interested applicants for Business Administratio DECEMBER 6, 1:30- For further information inqu of Career Counseling Of

HOW YOU CAN SE THE MESSAG OF LOVE... TH LOVE OF CH FOR ALL PEO

Have you ever considered the to serve people? The Paulist Fath community of American priests. young and energetic, they form a

A Paulist is a man of the Spirit He rejoices in the signs of hope a celebrates with the people he ser

Every Paulist is a missionary: house, on the campus, in the inn cates with the spoken word, the contemporary media. His missio His message is love; the love of C

For more information send for The P Write to: Father Don C. Campbell, Re

PAUL FATH 415 WEST 59TH ST.

...w life to old Vermont structures will be
...n cooperation with the Chittenden County
...CEF and the Vermont Chapter of the A.I.A.,
...et, Main and Lounge Galleries.

...MONDAY, OCTOBER 7

..., Blood-drive in Billings Center. Come and
... gift of life. Register first in Marsh Lounge.
...October 10.
...logy seminar) - Dr. William K. Chandler of
...ll speak on "Excitation – Contraction
...Muscle." Held in C-219 Given Bldg.
...try and song by Tim Brookes, Rob Sutnick,
...l Davis will be presented as the first of three
...ing Seminars. The presentation is to be held
...cond Floor, Old Mill at 7 p.m.
... Modern Dance Workshop, Southwick
...nation, phone 656-3240.
... Films presents "The Garden of the ...wn in Room 103 Rowell Hall. Admission is

...ruction in Scottish Country Dancing for ...mediates. Room 107 Perkins Hall (Geology
... required. Contact Dot or Ben Stein at
...nformation.
... Cultural Communications slide-illustrated
... by Dr. Frederick Schmidt of the Sociology
... Marriage in an Malay Village. To be held in ..., Living/Learning Center.

...UESDAY, OCTOBER 8

...nate Meeting in Marsh Lounge.
... Lamplighters, a Pentecostal fellowship
...MAT Lounge to worship the Lord in song and
...come. More information from Sue Kukla,

...Talk Series at St. Anselm's Chapel, Redstone
...all. Discussion of "Prayer as a Christian
...resent life" will be led by Chaplain John

...American Association of University Women
... attend a program on Health Care Legislation
...orial Lounge. Guest speakers include James
...t of Vermont Health Insurance), James A.
...er of Banking and Insurance), Alan Charron
...r Vermont Services), and Mrs. Jennifer
... of Cooperative Health Information Center,

...EDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9

...ard O'Neil of the TIAA will discuss pension
... relating to them in Memorial Lounge.
...elcome to attend.
..." is an informal gathering of anyone who
...ith and meet the Spanish professors. It will
..., earning Center, Bldg. D, Suite 350.
...s meeting in B-106 Cook.
...ing for all students intending to do Student
...pring semester in Room 413 Waterman
... attend, speak to Peter Kelman in Room 237

... UVM Sailing Club meeting at 7:30 p.m. at

...ance Series presents the Alvin Ailey Dance
...l Auditorium. For tickets call 656-3419.
... in conjunction with the Fleming Museum's
...gs" exhibition, including "A Future for the ...". Open to the public in Room 101 Votey
...ditorium); Coffee will be served following the

...HURSDAY, OCTOBER 10

...n of UVM hiking group meets in front of
...louse. For further information, call Shirley

... p.m., The U.S. Coast Guard will be recruiting

... p.m., Counseling services available at Billings
...are invited to see either Calvin Chappel or ...Conference Room C. This new service is being
...unseling and Testing Center and it is hoped
...udent advisors in a more convenient location.
...ill take advantage of available counseling

Professional Announcement
...rance D. O'Brien, O.D.
announces
...e opening of his office for
...ONTACT LENS FITTING ONLY
177 Pearl Street
Burlington, Vermont
...ppointment call 863-6241

THE SILVER KEG
OUR SPECIALS ★★
...DIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
... PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★★ WEDNESDAY ★★★★★★★★★
...E' ★FREE★ WITH UVM I.D.
...T BE 18 YEARS OF AGE)
★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★
... PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★ FEATURING ★
...- OCT. 6 - STONE CROSS
...7 - OCT. 13 - DJANGO

VVAW/WSO And Amnesty Issues

The Vietnam Veterans Against the War/Winter Soldier Organization (VVAW/WSO) will conduct a public program on the issues of Indochina and amnesty Oct. 3 at 7:30 in the North Lounge located at Billings Center at the UVM campus. The program is free and open to the public.

Two films "The Winter Soldier Investigation" and "Only The Beginning" will be shown. Both films provide background and insight into the nature of the continuing war in Indochina. The film will be followed by a short presentation explaining the current situation in Indochina and why the group is calling for universal, unconditional amnesty for Vietnam war resisters and single type discharge for all veterans. At the conclusion of the formal presentation, there will be a question and answer period for those wishing to stay. Information about VVAW/WSO will be available and there will be a literature table providing information on Indochina, amnesty, and other issues along with buttons and bumper stickers. For more information, VVAW/WSO can be contacted at 862-8175.

Party For Leahy

The UVM organization of "Voters for Leahy" will be kicking off the final week of voter registration with a keg party at Phi Delta Theta on October 5th. Leahy, the Chittenden County States Attorney, is the democratic contender in the U.S. Senate Race against Vermont's Congressman Richard Mallary. Leahy will be at the party at Phi Delta Theta to field questions from students.

The "Voters For Leahy" group has 31 students as its core of workers. There has been an extensive voter registration drive on the campus and notary publics will be available at the Phi Delt Party. Leahy has expressed a desire for a very high voter turnout at UVM with the knowledge that he is very popular with college students. He has become a kind of folk hero among college students because of his work as Head of the Economic Crime Division of the US District Attorney's Association which has been and is carrying out an investigation of the major oil companies. He also became popular as a result of speaking in many UVM classes during the last six years as Chittenden County's Prosecutor as well as for the arrest this past summer of narcotics agent Paul Lawrence.

The party is scheduled to begin at 8:00 and has a contribution of $1.00.

Counseling Services

Effective October 1, counseling services will be available in Billings Center. Students are invited to see either Calvin Chappel or Roberto Rios in Conference Room C between 12 and 4 p.m. These two student advisors will be available to students in the Billings Center each Tuesday until the end of the semester.

This new service is being offered as part of an outreach program within the Counseling and Testing Center. It is hoped that by placing counselors in a more convenient location, more students will take advantage of the counseling services available.

The Next Thing

The Next Thing, a human growth project, has completed its Fall Workshop Catalog with over 55 offerings for area residents and students.

The program includes workshops on value clarification, self-appreciation, creative thinking, basic birth, drug pharmacology, counseling, yoga, hypnosis, biofeedback, alternatives in healing, issues in sex education, sensory awareness, TA, wilderness reckoning, psychodrama, theater games, dance, gestalt, general systems theory, and astrology.

To obtain a copy of the catalog, drop by THE NEXT THING at 73 Church St., Burlington, or call 862-2013. Copies also available at UVM's Counseling and Testing Center.

Law School

There will be a meeting for all students interested in applying to law school on Thursday, Oct. 10 at 4:15 p.m. in the North Lounge of Billings Center. This is an important meeting for any and all students entertaining such notions.

...Oktoberfest

(continued from page one)

or Laurie Evans at extension 3088 or 4154. Since this festival is the only major campus activity thus far this year, it is hoped that many students will become involved. "Oktoberfest" has been scheduled for Homecoming in an effort to contribute to this major weekend of the semester.

Smugglers Notch Discount Passes

In an effort to reach local skiers, Smugglers Notch will be selling discount passes through October. Representatives will set up at Champlain College from 11–1:30 and from 4:30–6:30 at Hamrick Dining Hall. They will also be at Billings Center October 28, 30 from 9–5.

M.B.A. Recruitment - Syracuse University
The School of Mangement of Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York, wil be interviewing interested applicants for the Masters in Business Administration Programs on DECEMBER 6, 1:30-4:30 PM
For further information inquire at the Placement of Career Counseling Office on Campus

HOW
YOU CAN SPREAD THE MESSAGE OF LOVE... THE LOVE OF CHRIST FOR ALL PEOPLE.

Have you ever considered the priesthood as a way to serve people? The Paulist Fathers are a small community of American priests. Progressive, searching, young and energetic, they form a religious family.

A Paulist is a man of the Spirit, a man of his time. He rejoices in the signs of hope around him and celebrates with the people he serves.

Every Paulist is a missionary: in the pulpit, or parish house, on the campus, in the inner city. He communicates with the spoken word, the printed page, and with contemporary media. His mission is to all of America. His message is love; the love of Christ for all people.

For more information send for The Paulist Papers
Write to: Father Dan C. Campbell, Room 309
PAULIST FATHERS
415 WEST 59TH ST., NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019

Discussion On Carlos Casteneda

Carlos Castaneda and his "Don Juan" will be the subject of a talk October 8th, at 4:15, Living/Learning Center (Fireside Room). The presentation and discussion will be given by Daniel C. Noel, Professor of Mythology and Literature, Goddard College, and author of two forthcoming books on Castaneda. His title is "Catching Up With Castaneda: Seeing, Believing, and the Path into the Post-Modern."

The mysterious young anthropologist's three books on the teachings of a Mexican "man of knowledge" (Don Juan) have been best sellers: The Teachings of Don Juan, A Separate Reality, and Journey to Ixtlan. The fourth and final volume, Tales of Power, will appear this month. Castaneda's work describes his apprenticeship in attaining levels of perception of "non-ordinary reality," first through "allies" such as psychedelic plants, and later through spiritual discipline.

Some consider Castaneda's writings and his sorcerer hero to belong in the category of literary fiction. Noel will discuss this and focus on the "individual and cultural implications of the fact/fiction, reality/imagination ambiguity in and of the writings."

The event is sponsored by the UVM Religion Department.

We Stand Corrected

A story appearing in last week's issue of The Cynic left the erroneous impression that the Women's Center, opening soon at Blundell House on Redstone Campus, will operate under the aegis of the Human Development Program, of the School of Home Economics.

The Women's Center is the result of efforts of the UVM Women's Caucus, which is grateful to the School of Home Economics for allowing the Center use of space in Blundell House. However, the Center and its programs are not in any way administered by the Human Development Program.

The Women's Caucus will hold its annual meeting on Oct. 17, beginning at 4 p.m. with a panel on "Rape." A woman psychiatrist, a woman physician and women representing a number of organizations are currently scheduled for the panel. Mark your calendar for 4 p.m., Oct. 17, at Waterman Memorial Lounge.

Foreign Languages And Careers

If you're wondering what to do with all those irregular Spanish verbs, technical German terms, sophisticated French culture, melodious Chinese sounds, or other skills acquired in Russian, Serbo-Croatian, Italian, Japanese, Latin or Greek, plan to attend the "Foreign Languages and Careers Night" on Oct. 16, 8 p.m., Living/Learning Center, Commons 115.

Experts from the following fields of endeavor have been invited: 1) Business world; 2) Peace corps, Vista; 3) Education; 4) Law; 5) Library Science; 6) Television; 7) Science; 8) Social Service; 9) Social Sciences (Anthropology); 10) Travel and Tourism.

Each expert will give a short presentation on how a career in his field is enhanced by a good command of a foreign language and its culture. There will be plenty of time for questions. For those who are interested in exploring this matter before Oct. 16, the Dept. of Romance Languages, Waterman 520, has for sale at .25 a few copies of a booklet published by the Modern Language Association, entitled Foreign Languages and Careers.

Ford Foundation Transfer 3 Fellowships Funds

The Ford Foundation is pleased to announce the transfer of the administration of three of its graduate fellowships programs. Beginning September 1974, the Educational Testing Service will administer the following fellowships programs: Graduate Fellowships for Mexican Americans, Graduate Fellowships for Native Americans, and Graduate Fellowships for Puerto Ricans.

The National Fellowships Fund will continue to administer the Graduate Fellowships for Black Americans. These programs are made possible throught grants from the Ford Foundation.

The programs are aimed at increasing the number of doctorates among black Americans, native Americans, Mexican Americans, and Puerto Ricans to enhance their opportunities for careers in higher education. The fellowships are for one year only, but are renewable upon reapplication if satisfactory progress toward the doctorate is evidenced. Applicants are expected to study full time and complete the requirements for the doctorate as soon as possible.

Our immediate concern is to inform interested persons about the available fellowships and to encourage those who are eligible to apply. However, applicants must act quickly to meet the deadlines.

Should you require information, please address your requests directly to the Educational Testing Service, or the National Fellowships Fund.

Gould Lectures On Wall Street

The Business Administration Dept. is presenting a lecture by Mr. Edson Gould.

Although formally educated as an engineer, Edson Gould found his way to Wall Street at an early age. His association with John Moody (Moody's Investors Service) in the 1920's and 1930's afforded him valuable training as a security analyst, account executive, Editor of Moody's Stock Survey and Moody's Bond Survey and head of the Economics Department.

"As former Senior Research Partner at Arthur Wiesenberger & Company and Investment Committee Chairman of Nuveen Corporation, Mr. Gould is one of Wall Street's pioneer technical security analysts, having put together the first "glamour average" back in 1960, at that time encompassing such little or relatively unknown stocks as Xerox, Syntex, Polaroid and IBM.

Articles by, interviews with, and quotes from Mr. Gould recently appeared in such leading financial publications as The Wall Street Journal, Barron's, Business Week, The New York Times, Chicago Tribune, and Los Angeles Times, among others.

The lecture will be on Thursday, October 10, 8:00 p.m. at St. Paul's Cathedral, Cathedral Square, Burlington. Reservations will be required. There is a limit of 75 seats for students. Call Mrs. Doherty, 301 Votey, for free tickets.

Folk Singer Wanted

College Street Congregational Church is looking for a folk singer to perform two pieces at their Sunday service on November 3. The singer may be accompanied by any combination of instruments – guitar, flute, etc. There is no piano at the church. The selections should be of a philosophical nature rather than, for instance, a love song. There is a salary of $15.00. Anyone interested in auditioning should contact Jack Grebb (326 Millis, 656-3827), organist at the church, before October 20.

Newman Center

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Saturday 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday: 9:00 and 11:30 a.m., 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

WEEKDAY LITURGIES: Mondays: 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday through Friday: 4:15 p.m. Also, Tuesday 10:00 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: Every day at 7:30 a.m. Anyone interested in a daily prayer experience at some other time of day is asked to contact a member of the staff at the Center (862-8403), so that other prayer groups and times may be arranged.

CHOIR: The 4:15 Sunday Mass Choir under the direction of Lori Routhier, meets for practice every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Center. For those interested, welcome! It is not too late to join.

BASIC CATHOLICISM: A series of presentations and discussions on contemporary Catholic belief and practice. The group meets every Monday at 7:15 p.m.

The JUSTICE AND PEACE STUDY-ACTION GROUP meets at 9:00 p.m. with Fr. Crowley each Monday evening. Everyone is welcome.

OPPORTUNITY FOR FRESHMEN to get together, discuss, plan and take part in special projects and activities for a "creative" evening – every other Thursday at 7:30 p.m., with Sr. Lindora. Next meeting Thursday, October 3.

SCRIPTURE STUDY: with Fr. John Crowley every Tuesday evening from 7:00 to 8:00. Emphasis on the Old Testament.

Havadalah Ceremony

There will be a Havadalah Ceremony in Sukkoh October 5, at 7 p.m. Afterwards there will be a Sukkot party, Israeli folk singing and dancing, silent films, and refreshments. Donations $1.00. For more information, call Marty at 656-2613.

THE LAST CHANCE SALOON
OLD TIME MOVIES Sunday Night
HAPPY HOUR Fri. Afternoon Beer & Burger $1
60' SPECIALS Tuesday 7-10
25' ALE Wed. & Thurs.
147 MAIN ST.

IF YOU ARE NOT GETTING YOUR PRESCRIPTION FILLED HERE YOU SIMPLY ARE NOT INTERESTED IN SAVING MONEY
We are a discount pharmacy and we sell at discount prices.
Grandway Pharmacy
Grandway Shopping Center
Shelburne Road
864-6869

MEXICO NORTH
at the 8 corners Essex Jct., Vt.
Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont
Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more
Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.
10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

Bring us your favorite album.
You may never have really heard it before.

The difference between the live concert you went to and the "live" album you bought afterward may not be in the recording. It may be in your speakers. A little history explains why:

First, there was the tinny speaker: Awful.

Then came the boosted bass to cover up the tinny sound: Better. But boosted bass also covered up the freshness, the "liveness" of the sound.

Introducing Linear Sound: It's from EPI, and it's just beautiful. It's called "linear" because it corresponds almost exactly with the straight-line graph of true, uncolored, natural sound. With no boosted bass to impress the inincocent.

If you bring us your favorite album, we'll play it for you – through a pair of EPI Model 60 bookshelf speakers.

If you're like most people, the difference will delight you. And, at $69.95 apiece, so will the price.

THE LINEAR SOUND OF EPI EPI

AUDIO DEN
100 Dorset Street, Burlington, Vermont
50% Main Street, Middlebury, Vermont

SKI MAD RIVER GLEN for $70

1. Weekends – Special discount price of $8.00 all weekends and Christmas week.
2. Weekdays – Unlimited skiing all weekdays, all season except Dec. 26—Jan. 1.
3. Deadline – After October 15, the price goes up to $80.00, $90.00 after Dec. 1. To qualify for this special season pass, you must be a resident of Vermont or a student.

Do it!!!
MAD RIVER GLEN
The Ski Area for Skiers
WAITSFIELD, VERMONT 802-496-3551

VERMONT CYNIC

Foounded In 1883

Barbara Frankel '75, Editor-in-Chief
Rick Steinberg '75, Assistant Editor
Wyatt Kash '77, Managing Editor
Bruce Maddaro '76, News Editor
Randy Jansen '77, Assistant News Editor
Margo Howland '75, Feature Editor
Lisa Charles '75, Arts Editor
Peter Campbell '75, Assistant Arts Editor
Mike Schwartz '75, Sports Editor
Kathy Stannard '77, Copy Editor
Debbie Powell, '76, Advertising Manager

Editorial

The Plight Of The UFW

As we face an unprecedented food and energy crisis, America seems to be slipping away from any hopes for a better society that we shared in the past.

These hopes were actualized for many in Caesar Chavez and his United Farm Workers, who struggled for ten years in the vegetable and fruit fields of California for better pay and working conditions. Apparently successful, they would have never made it without the aid of sympathetic consumers all over the country, who organized effective boycotts against the supermarket produce that had not been picked by the United Farm Workers.

Chavez's victory was short-lived. In the past four years the Teamsters' Union has muscled in on Chavez's territory so completely that the U.F.W. have only a dozen of the 300 contracts they held two years ago.

How were the Teamsters able to decimate the U.F.W. in such a short time?

The issues are complex, but the root of it all is simple. The American disease of bigness. The 2.3 million strong Teamsters Union already had control of the vegetable trucks and the canning factories – it was a short step to the fields.

Unions can monopolize with the same detrimental effects of a corporate monopoly. Only, instead of artificial prices, the results will be poorer wages and working conditions for its members. Whether this actually happens to the Chicano workers remains to be seen.

For Chavez – an aging and ailing man – it means that he now has to fight both the growers and the Teamster Union. For the rest of us, it means that another hope has been sucked up by senseless corporate expediency and profits. Chavez, once a symbol of hope, has now become a symbol of despair.

P.C.

Anti-Government Art Unpopular

by Mark Seralnick

As the "Recycled Architecture" exhibit opened at the university on Sunday, another important show opened in another part of the world. As I reported last week, the First Fall Outdoor Art Show in Moscow met with destruction and violence through vigilantes and the Soviet authorities. However Western governments and newspapers apparently have affected the authorities' reluctant acceptance for a second art show.

In comparison to the show held two weeks ago, Sunday's exhibit was a major event for the Soviet Union. Over 10,000 people attended the second show even though it was not publicized except by word of mouth. On view were more than 200 paintings representing 65 non-conformist painters and graphic artists. This time the visitors were not met with street sweepers and ruffians, but polite and curious citizens eager to view the art that had generated so much controversy.

The relaxation of tensions between the authorities and the artists could perhaps be attributed to detente. Major newspapers in the West gave front page headlines to the first show and because several Western newsmen were injured by vigilantes, formal complaints were registered with the Soviet Government.

The only disturbing news of the show is that four members of the Union of Artists were given an ultimatum stating that they would be expelled if their painting were shown. There also was an absence of any art that dealt with anti-government themes.

As a result of the Soviet governments self reversal concerning its art policy, a great number of Soviet citizens have at least been exposed to subjects previously forbidden. The West should applaud the Soviet artists who made this second show possible through their heroism at the first show. I'm sure this incident will bring about increased freedom for the Soviet artists who have deserved better treatment than they have received in the past. I will even venture to say that the art the Soviet authorities have criticized and repressed for so long will become known to many Soviets in the near future (to the dislike of the Soviet government).

On Sunday, Oct. 29, the Fleming Museum opened a new exhibit entitled "Recycled Architecture". The show, arranged with UNICEF and the Vermont Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, exhibits how old buildings have found new uses. Capsuled histories of each building describe the original use and how the structure appears and is used today.

The buildings represented in the show were chosen for their uniqueness and diversity of form. Such examples as the Royal Tyler Theater, Fort Ethan Allen (Colchester), the Brattleboro Center for the Performing Arts, and McAuliffe's Office Products Center are interesting types of structures which have been renovated or adapted for new purposes.

The Royall Tyler Theater should be one structure with which UVM students are familiar. The theater was built in 1901 by the firm of Andrews, Jaques and Rantoul. These architects had studied under H.H. Richardson, the notable architect of Billings Center. One of their main goals was to relate the theater (originally a museum) to the Romanesque elements of Billings Center.

Colin Lindberg is the architect who redesigned the forecourt as both an entrance and an outdoor intermission lobby. The forecourt is also exciting because of the cobblestone, which gives a feeling of grand age.

The opening attracted many Burlingtonians and art faculty members. The visitors were enthusiastic and extremely pleased with the results.

If you would like to test your knowledge of Burlington architecture, visit the show and see how many structures you can name in the continuous slide series.

Director Richard Janson comments about the exhibit' "If it gets people to look at the things around them more closely, then the show has done a great deal."

Louise Roomet, responsible for much of the research and documentation in the selection of the exhibits, hopes it will arouse more interest in recycling buildings. She also found that in some cases you can get more quality for your money when you recycle. This also keeps a building's important context within a town intact.

All in all, the show is a huge success. However, I must inform you that it should be viewed several times. There is much material to digest and you could become bored by trying to absorb the whole show in one visit.

"Remember, the American people want our actions to fall within the middle ground . . ."

Letters To The Editor

Misplaced Benefits

To the Editor:

Are most of us subsidizing the privileged few?

There is a University policy which permits students of staff and faculty to attend the University with no tuition cost. Should this be reviewed as many financially privileged students benefit? A few examples:

1. The President with an estimated income of $70,000 (salary, housing, transportation). Do his children pay tuition?

2. Doctors with outstanding incomes for the area and many privileges (University salaries, practice and/or consultant salaries, income from affiliated businesses, and free medical care?) Why should their children receive benefits?

3. Faculty members with top salaries, private incomes and/or land holdings both in state and out-of-state and even abroad – Are their children receiving free tuition?

I do not suggest that low-income staff or faculty be deprived of this fringe benefit, but I do have four questions:

1. How much does this policy contribute to the increased tuition cost for most of us?

2. Are all the students under this policy top-notch calibre?

3. Are there any other privileges granted these students such as free access to textbooks and the benefit of receiving the few jobs available on campus in addition to free tuition?

4. Is this a type of welfare state for students whose parents could be considered to be wealthy?

Perhaps a review of the policy should be made. It is unlikely that this will be done by the Administration. Should a student inquiry such as Watergate in Waterman of last year be done?

A student

Prisoner Wants Mail

To the Editor:

y Since April 1970, I have been incarcerated at the Connecticut Correctional Institution, Somers and presently expect to remained confined for an additional three to four years. I receive a minimal amount of visits and little or no correspondence; this letter comes to you with the hopes of communicating with any interested person at the college, subsequent to the publication of this article in your school newspaper.

I am twenty-six years old, six feet tall, one hundred and ninety-four pounds, and have brown hair and brown eyes. Presently I work at the prison hospital and attend college evenings at the school facility here. My interests include leather work, reading, and participation in a wide variety of sports.

I am hopeful this letter will bring as favorable a response as similar letters written to various colleges throughout the country by other inmates at this institution.

Thank you for your kind consideration.

Sincerely yours,
John A. Durso

Would You Pay $50 For Dinner?

by Wayne Bayer

UVM students meeting on September 12 endorsed plans by the Coalition of Vermonters for Justice calling for a statewide demonstration against President Ford. Demonstration plans call for two scenarios: the first being a vocal reception with signs and banners at the airport; and the second being a free counter-rally outside of Patrick Gymnasium where the $50 a plate Republican fundraising dinner will be held on October 7. The free counter-rally will include speakers, theater, and entertainment as well as a cider and soup line to contrast with the exorbitant GOP prices for drinks and dinner. Besides local people, plans include a Vietnamese speaker, the Living Theatre from NYU and Utah Phillips – folksinger and union balladeer and organizer.

Student concern at the first organizing meeting centered on opposition to Ford's pardon of Nixon and support for universal, unconditional amnesty for war resisters. However, many UVM students will join with people throughout the state in expressing their additional concern over Ford's continuation of Nixon economics, his infatuation with the military's support of foreign dictatorships and his support of Kissinger's and the CIA's role in the overthrow of the democratically elected government of Chile.

Challenge to Students

The individuals and organizations that make up the Coalition of Vermonters for Justice will be presenting a special challenge to students in the Burlington community. The challenge will be whether the accusations of contemporary observers such as Time magazine are correct when they say this is a "self-centered generation of students" – the generation of dope-smoking, beer guzzling apolitical robotons. Those who cannot accept the challenge will be there Monday – they'll be seeking autographs, snapping their Instamatics at the motorcade and fighting with each other over the few tickets available to enter the gym and rub elbows with fat cat Republicans during the nationally televised speech. All this so they can impress their friends with the fact that they saw the President! Those who reject the observations of Time magazine know where they'll be. Where will you be???

What's A Good President??

The last eleven years of Johnson and Nixon have made us forget what a good President can be. As long as the man is neither a sneak thief nor a vengeful, secretive megalomaniac, we run to embrace him. There must be more to being a President than just going around cooking one's own breakfast, golfing, showing humility and joking with infatuated reporters.

Shouldn't we be concerned that Gerry Ford is a politician who voted on 4000 pieces of legislation and originated not one? His only independent action was the unsuccessful smear impeachment attempt against Supreme Court Justice William Douglas. Some would argue that the only real controversy that has ever raged around Ford's head is whether he had anything in it!! (LBJ attributed that to the fact "Gerry played football for too long without a helmet.")

Gerry "Nixon's Revenge" Ford is rapidly convincing Americans that he is "one Ford who is unsafe at any speed." In office only a month and a half, he is proving to be just as radical as his criminal predecessor – Richard "I'm not a crook" Nixon.

Nixon was radical in that he was a little worse than LBJ in war crimes and a lot worse in breaking domestic laws, ignoring the needs of poor people, subverting civil liberties and appealing to our worst instincts and fears. Ford is radical in his new concept of justice as exemplified by his pardon and phony amnesty. One standard for the rich and powerful and another for the poor and powerless.

His pardon of Nixon, preceding indictment, trial and conviction raises questions about a continuation of the coverup. This of course comes as no surprise to those who remember Ford as the ranking Republican on the greatest coverup ever – the Warren Commission.

One could go on to illustrate his anti-labor, anti-environment, anti-poor voting record. However, enough questions have been raised for you to decide what to do Monday.

Ford's an Edsel!! Support the Demonstration!!

Tequila Ads Corrupt

To the Editor:

The Cynic has chosen as its role the alerting of the UVM student body to those who would rip them off, and by and large we believe it has done this job well. It would appear, however, that the Cynic itself has now become a willing partner in such a ripoff.

For the past two or three years we have gotten help from about 3,000 UVM freshmen in studies of marihuana use and driving. Those studies now reveal that marihuana is a hazard to driving primarily when used in conjunction with alcohol. The major drug of abuse in the U.S. and in Vermont is not marihuana or heroin, or bennies, or quads, but alcohol.

Most students try to use alcohol in a responsible fashion. But by the end of the year, a few current members of this campus will have lost their lives, limbs, or brain power because of injuries involving use and abuse of alcohol. Even among the freshmen, some students will already have developed into early alcoholics by next June because statistics show that the rate of alcoholism is increasing much more rapidly among teenagers and young adults than among older persons and alcohol problems actually reach a peak among young men in their early and middle 20's. And here's the Cynic accepting blood money for full page ads for Montezuma Tequila. Do you think the Barton Distillers Import Co. gave you the money because the like the Cynic? Hardly! They want to sell liquor to a new market of unseasoned drinkers (and consequently known to be more prone to heavy use and misuse). It looks like you and the other Cynics have finally joined forces.

Sincerely yours,
Julian A. Waller, M.D.
Professor & Chairman
Ronald A. Steffenhagen, Ph.D.
Associate Professor
Dept. of Sociology

T·E·P· Is Not Dead

To the Editor:

I am the present President of Tau Epsilon Phi Fraternity. I was appalled upon reading last week's "Open Season" column: 'Death of a Fraternity.' The article states many grossly exaggerated facts and half truths that border on being slanderous. I am speaking for other serious and sober-minded brothers when I state the following facts about Tau Epsilon Phi and its destiny.

T.E.P. is not dead as alledgedly stated in "Open Season". We are very much together, alive and fully determined to carry on the traditions of a proud fraternity.

Our goals are to stress academics and community involvement as well as 'good times'. We would like to increase our brotherhood, with the eventual aim of procuring a new house, (hopefully cheaper to operate than the establishment at 383 College Street was). We are not a melting pot for the dregs of society. We are not a hotbed of drug-altered criminals or a home for the mentally unfit. We are, instead, well-oriented young men who know our roles in the community, either here at UVM or in the outside world. We do not deny that we have been undergoing some darn rough times, but the nameless fellow who decided to air our dirty laundry seems to have overlooked some pretty positive virtues.

Tau Epsilon Phi has for many years participated in the annual "Toys for Tots" drive with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and the Office of Volunteer Programs. We have always been active in the Greek community as well, organizing social functions and taking part in Fraternity Forum and Greek Coordinating Council.

In summary, I would like to say that we TEPers are proud of our fraternity and are working to better it. We can be a worthwhile organization, if we are but given the chance to prove it.

J. Fletcher Baltz
President
Tau Epsilon Phi

The Little Seed

by Jim Bennett

Once upon a time, during one of my visits to the garden, God gave me a little seed. "This is a relationship," said he. "Take this, find someone to share it with, and plant it."

On the first day I walked up to a girl on the street and asked her if perhaps she would like to plant my relationship with me. She punched me in the mouth promptly. As a matter of fact, every girl I approached that day did likewise so I went home and brushed my teeth.

On the second day I went to the country. The pig just oinked, the cow mooed me hysterically, the horse whinnied me to the ground, and the farmer chased me away from his daughter with a pitchfork. I guessed that they had too many seeds there anyway and didn't need any more.

When the third day rolled around, I had become weary of asking people stupid questions and being constantly harrassed for it. Then she came to me. It was as if God had decided that I were a bumbling idiot and intervened. It made no difference. I had someone to plant with.

At sunrise on the fourth day we found the choicest plot of earth and planted our little seed. We watered it and before our eyes it began to grow.

On the fifth day we once again added water to our relationship. It grew bigger and bigger. The leaves began to grow full and green. It was very nice. We rested and watched.

On the morn of the sixth day our plant was fully grown. It now sported an assortment of brightly colored flowers. The air was filled with aromatic delights and everybody smiled as they noticed our relationship.

On the seventh day there was no rest. We paid a visit to our tree which, by now was a beautiful specimen with bright red fruit. It looked so good that we chopped it down. We ate the fruit, smoked the leaves, and built a house from the lumber. We now had all the comforts of home, but our relationship was dead.

VERMONT CYNIC

NEWS: Vincent Arlen, George Georgaklis, Andy Morse, Audrey Rothstein
FEATURE: Paul Ajamain, Carol Dufalt, Amy-Catherine Fischer, Pam Hogarth
ARTS: Bari Bodi, Robert Domke, Amy Fisher, Barbara Freedman, Joe Kauffman, Adekeinde Murphy, Paul Prior, Marsha Woletz
COLUMNISTS: Debbie Adler, Tom McCormick, Scott McKay, Steve Rice, Elliott Freeman
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Lesley D'Elia, Eileen Driscoll, Joan Fornalth, Karen Hill, Beth Lepine, Daniel Mead, Judy Parker
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Gramcey, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Fern Gutman

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of the members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published yearly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and Business offices in the Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone: 656-4911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1883. Subscription rate $8.00 per year, single copy ten cents.

OPEN SEASON:

by Scott MacKay

Why is Gerry Ford coming to Vermont? Mountain state with his presidential presence retiring U.S. Senator George Aiken? Perhaps policy statement? To view the fall foliage?

Guess again. There is only one reason bothering to fuel up Air Force One for the long it's election year. And Gerry is on the stump candidates, hoping he can con enough voters ballots for GOP lackeys like Dick Mallary Kennedy and Jim Jeffords. His sole appearance be at a fifty-dollar-a-plate dinner, proceeds earmarked for Republican campaign coffers. "anti-inflation" Congress, Ford has ap Vermont's Senate race an important enough presence. Translate: "anti-inflation Congress pro-military industrial complex, anti-social

• • • • • • • • • • •

....And nobody at this post-adolescent pl care. College students have returned to the fi one could pen on the Camp Catamount camp entitled "All Quiet on the Campus Front." engendered by the anti-war movement of vanished, withered up like so many leaves in t

College kids are great liberals. Oh Yea demonstration – if it's a sunny day, and th rock music, good pot and unfettered you opposite sex floating around. And they're people – except those they come in contact they get their kicks by shitting all over the and making life miserable for the two-bu SAGA. Democracy? Oh Yeah, that's the ina the rat race for two cars, a home in surburbia If Camp Catamount exudes any aura at all, class self-indulgent mediocrity.

It reminds this writer of a comment Nor out while watching a Youth for Nixon R

The Aftermat

"There they stand now and propose to te expect them to set aside some of their di what can they teach us? We know life now have gained another 'knowledge- hars inexorable...."
Erich Maria Remarque, The Road Back

For nearly a decade Vietnam was the American Political circus. Crowds marched nation "Support our Boys" and even lar demanding "Bring them home, Now". Now crowds, no turmoil, and the men who we great concern have been largely ignored up the great mass of men who have found the caught up in the random juggernaut of his impersonality of social forces, most have the sacrifice had not really to do with their with "larger" issues and mechanical forces have come back home, those that survive

You Never

An Open Letter

by Elliot Freeman

Dear Jesus,

I was thinking about you the other nig would take this opportunity to drop you going to have a little trouble with the add and that is all that really matters... I guess.

You see I was wondering if you had a turn out like this, you know when they na well I guess that has to be considered the b in history.

Your know they started this big busine and named the whole goddamn outfit af were counting on the fact that you would the old box office. Don't worry none abou the operation, it is doing okay... I guess.

They are really trying hard to come up the cross-nailing, but these people these da imagination like folks used to. They are try Aren't you the fellow that said, "It don't the game as long as you try your best?"

I was thinking about you the other ni highway and listening to my radio when th don't care if it rains or freezes, as long as I k the dashboard of my car"... See? Not too i it does have a catchy beat to it. Anyway, on and says that the way that we will know again (if you got any sense you'd stay wh are) but he said we could tell that it was re the secret handshake. He said that everybo handshake. The Black Panthers and the handshake and good old Jesus H. Christ

Well, I really don't believe too much in are always trying to sell... but you see I perhaps... if you could tell me if you got and what exactly it is. You know, just in ca my turns out to be true... I guess I don't handed. Like the man said, "You in like Him some skin!"

Don't let the Holy Ghost spook

signed: Justin Case

Editor

uila Ads Corrupt

...freshmen, some students will ...already have developed into ...early alcoholics by next June ...because statistics show that the ...rate of alcoholism is increasing ...much more rapidly among ...teenagers and young adults than ...among older persons and ...alcohol problems actually reach ...a peak among young men in ...their early and middle 20's. And ...here's the Cynic accepting ...blood money for full page ads ...for Montezuma Tequila. Do you ...think the Barton Distillers ...Import Co. give you the money ...because the like the Cynic? ...Hardly! They want to sell liquor ...to a new market of unseasoned ...drinkers (and consequently ...known to be more prone to ...heavy use and misuse). It looks ...like you and the other Cynics ...have finally joined forces.

Sincerely yours,
Julian A. Waller, M.D.
Professor & Chairman
Ronald A. Steffenhagen, Ph.D.
Associate Professor
Dept. of Sociology

...P· Is Not Dead

...instead, well-oriented young men who know our roles in the community, either here at UVM or in the outside world. We do not deny that we have been undergoing some darn rough times, but the nameless fellow who decided to air our dirty laundry seems to have overlooked some pretty positive virtues.

Tau Epsilon Phi has for many years participated in the annual "Toys for Tots" drive with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and the Office of Volunteer Programs. We have always been active in the Greek community as well, organizing social functions and taking part in Fraternity Forum and Greek Coordinating Council.

In summary, I would like to say that we TEPers are proud of our fraternity and are working to better it. We can be a worthwhile organization, if we are but given the chance to prove it.

J. Fletcher Baltz
President
Tau Epsilon Phi

The Little Seed

by Jim Bennett

...me, during one of my visits to the garden, God ...d. "This is a relationship," said he. "Take this, ...are it with, and plant it."

...I walked up to a girl on the street and asked ...would like to plant my relationship with me. ...n the mouth promptly. As a matter of fact, ...shed that day did likewise so I went home and

...day I went to the country. The pig just ...ooed me hysterically, the horse whinnied me ...the farmer chased me away from his daughter ...guessed that they had too many seeds there ...need any more.

...day rolled around, I had become weary of ...d questions and being constantly harranged ...me to me. It was as if God had decided that I ...dnot and intervened. It made no difference. I ...nt with.

...he fourth day we found the choicest plot of ...our little seed. We watered it and before our ...w.

...day we once again added water to our ...w bigger and bigger. The leaves began to grow ...o very nice. We rested and watched.

...f the ninth day our plant was fully grown. It ...ortment of brightly colored flowers. The air ...matic delights and everybody smiled as they ...ship.

...day there was no rest. We paid a visit to our ...w was a beautiful specimen with bright red ...good that we chopped it down. We ate the ...eaves, and built a house from the lumber. We ...mforts of home, but our relationship was

MONT CYNIC

...rian, George ... Steve Rice Elliott Freeman
...rma, Audrey ... SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
...main, Carol ... PRODUCTION: Lesley D'Elia, Eileen Driscoll, Joan Foresith, Karen Hill, Beth Levine, Daniel Mead, Jodie Parker
...ine Fischer, ...
...bert Donike, ...
...o Freedman, ... ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Gramcoy, Debbie Powell
...die Murphy, ...
...rtz ...
...bbie Adler, ... BUSINESS MANAGER: Pam
...ott McKay, ... Gutman

...pressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in ...not necessarily reflect the opinions of the ...ministration, faculty, or staff, or the State of ...ions expressed by the columnists do not ...ect the opinion of the majority of the ...CYNIC Editorial Board.

...ished during the college year by the students ...y of Vermont and State Agricultural College. ...Business office is in the Billings Center, ...mont. Telephone: 656-4911. Deadline for ...ck prior to date of publication.

...1851. Subscription rate $8.00 per year, single ...

OPEN SEASON:

Apathy Plagues Us

by Scott MacKay

Why is Gerry Ford coming to Vermont? To honor the Green Mountain state with his presidential presence? To pay homage to retiring U.S. Senator George Aiken? Perhaps to make a major policy statement? To view the fall foliage?

Guess again. There is only one reason the president is bothering to fuel up Air Force One for the long trek to Vermont: it's election year. And Gerry is on the stump for Republican candidates, hoping he can con enough voters into casting their ballots for GOP lackeys like Dick Mallary, Walter "Peanut" Kennedy and Jim Jeffords. His sole appearance in the state will be at a fifty-dollar-a-plate dinner, proceeds from which are earmarked for Republican campaign coffers. In his quest for an "anti-inflation" Congress, Ford has apparently targeted Vermont's Senate race as important enough to warrant his presence. Translate: "anti-inflation Congress" means, naturally, pro-military industrial complex, anti-social program Congress.

••••••••••••

...And nobody at this post-adolescent playground seems to care. College students have returned to the fifties; the only novel one could pen on the Camp Catamount campus today would be entitled "All Quiet on the Campus Front." Even the naive hope engendered by the anti-war movement of the late sixties has vanished, withered up like so many leaves in the October sun.

College kids are great liberals. Oh Yeah, they'll attend a demonstration – if it's a sunny day, and there's plenty of free rock music, good pot and unfettered young members of the opposite sex floating around. And they're all for the working people – except those they come in contact with in Real Life. So they get their kicks by shitting all over the maids in the dorms and making life miserable for the two-buck-an-hour help at SAGA. Democracy? Oh Yeah, that's the inalienable right to join the rat race for two cars, a home in surburbia and a ski lift ticket. If Camp Catamount exudes any aura at all, it is of upper middle class self-indulgent mediocrity.

It reminds this writer of a comment Norman Mailer blurted out while watching a Youth for Nixon Rally. "America" he stated, "has been worried about the wrong kids for the last ten years." A walk around Easy Ed's Day Care Center easily confirms Mailer's worst suspicions.

••••••••••••

Now I rarely reply to criticism of "OPEN SEASON." Whether one agrees with me or not matters naught. Yet last week's account of the demise of TEP has provoked a firestorm of wrath unequalled in the short history of both "TBR" and "Open Season." And it so happens that I have a deep respect for many of these critics. However, all I can retort is that the TEP article, while embellished with my own depraved metaphors and allusions, adhered to the brutal truth.

••••••••••••

PARTING SHOTS: The Newman Center will never make it as a real Catholic Church... they don't have any Bingo games.

I've noticed that SAGA is worried that students are not spending enough meal coupons... the only cure for this malaise would be for them to work out a deal whereby Hannibul's would take them... the dining halls would be vacant by Nov. 15th.

The rumor mill has it that one Karl Marx applied to teach economics at UVM. After all, he has a reputation as a lecturer, and well, he sure has published a lot. But somebody on the Board of Trustees caught wind of it. He said that he met his wife at UVM, and that he goes to every Homecoming game. Mr. Bored of Trustees also reminded those present that Mr. Marx would object to sitting on the Board of the Chittenden bank and that despite his scholarly works, he isn't very well versed on the Problems of the Vermont Farmer. Easy Ed got up and mumbled something about making students safe for Ideas. He also launched into an encomium praising academic freedom. Action on Mr. Marx's application was tabled until the next meeting. The Economics department eventually lost Mr. Marx's application and said his services weren't really needed anyway, as there were plenty of other Ph.D.'s around...

••••••••••••

Next Week: TBR makes a Temporary Return.

Dick Warner Remembered

by Michael Parenti

My friend Dick Warner requested before his death that if any public statement was to be made about him, he wanted me to make it. Thus he afforded me the greatest honor of my life and the saddest and most painful task.

Often the homage which the living pay to the dead is little more than a convention and a ritual. But today we feel real bereavement, real grief and a real sense of loss because of the death of our beloved friend and comrade, Richard Warner.

Richard Warner was cut down in the fullness of life by a dread disease. He was forty-one. He leaves behind him a loving wife, who is a wonderful woman in her own right, and four fine children who would be the pride of any father.

Dick passed away in his sleep on the morning of September 23. In this day and age when most of us die among strangers in hospitals, it was a great comfort to him that he could spend his last days with his family. He mentioned that a number of times to me.

He suffered a great deal of physical and psychic pain in the months before his death as both his health and his hope ebbed away. But to the very end he kept his courage and his wit and his kind regard for others.

He did not believe that there was any great meaning to his impending death, no message from some "higher will," no grander design being manifested. He believed that what we call the spirit dies with the body and if we live after death it is only in the memories of friends and loved ones. Any immortality we achieve, he felt, is anchored only in the mortality of others.

If it is meaning we are looking for it must be found in his life, not in his death. And here the task is easier. In one of his last conversations with me he said that looking back over his adult life he could find nothing he did which he regretted, nothing that he was ashamed of. He had a lot of time to think about it and was scrupulously honest with himself so I believed him. And I believed him also because I knew what he was. And I wondered how many of us could really say the same about our own lives.

If he had to make one summary statement of his life, he said it would be as follows, and I quote him: "I tried to live the political life because the political life is the only moral life and the moral life is the only human life."

For him a life lived only in the pursuit of its own self-interest was not fully human, a life lived only for its own comforts, pleasures, or even only for its own personal salvation was only half a life. And while he did not deny himself the comforts of life, he did not make them the totality of his existence.

By the political life, Dick meant a life committed to the struggle for social justice. Dick Warner spoke out on unsafe subjects. He took unpopular positions. In his own way he moved with a quiet audacity.

In protest of the Vietnam war he sat down in front of a bus at an induction center, at a time when others found excuses not to act. He was one of the first to come to my defense when I was at UVM. He wanted to break up the UVM Board of Trustees meeting that fired me, an action that did not come off only because of the differences with others over tactics. He organized people against a number of injustices. And last spring, even while drained with his fatal illness, he talked about organizing a strike against an arbitrary administrative ruling. While others had elaborate rationales for their inactions and lack of commitment, Dick had his human concern, his love of justice and his disciplined instincts to bring him to his commitments.

It was a measure of his modesty and the way he underestimated himself that he said to me that he felt that he had lacked sufficient daring. I reviewed his actions with him and reminded him of the many things he had done and said that he did not impress me as having been a political or moral wallflower and that he had passed the test. And I have exacting standards – standards which I usually fail myself.

Dick was born in Kansas and came from a fundamentalist Protestant background. And I once jokingly said to him: "That's okay, Dick, I don't hold it against you." But his perspective in life was secular, universalist and humanistic. He believed in the human spirit because he was himself of such deep humanity. He knew who he was and did not get his definition of self from any organization or institution.

He wanted it known that he was a radical, a socialist, a supporter of democracy and he saw radicalism and socialism and democracy as inseparable components of the truly moral and human life.

His was the politics for all rather than the politics for self. He was concerned with oppression everywhere and had a clear and, I believe, correct analysis which linked these oppressions and he understood the interests behind them.

Yet in his personal relations he was a gentle man. Often he used skillful indirection and forebearance to save the feelings of others. He was always aware of the vulnerabilities of others and his first instinct was to protect the vulnerable and move to the side of the underdog.

He was as they say, "a really nice guy," but in truth he was the very nicest guy. He was a beautiful man both in his inner substance and in his immediate presence. He had a big ruddy cherub face that came straight from the Celtic islands and a hulking way of walking and moving about that made you feel reassured just to be in his presence.

The only sly thing about him was his humor and his wit. He would lead you with all innocent appearance into the middle of a thought or observation only to have it break into a trick of humor. Most usually he made it so that the joke was on himself, but he could deliver it upon others too. Many is the time he took me down with his humor, but he never put me down.

What more can I say except that I loved him and I wish he could hear me so I could tell him how much I miss him and how our lives will never be quite the same without him.

The Aftermath Of The American Political Circus

"There they stand now and propose to teach us again. But we expect them to set aside some of their dignity. For, after all, what can they teach us? We know life now better than they; we have gained another knowledge- harsh, bloody, cruel, inexorable...."
Erich Maria Remarque, The Road Back

For nearly a decade Vietnam was the center ring of the American Political circus. Crowds marched demanding that the nation "Support out Boys" and even larger crowds marched demanding "Bring them home, Now". Now they are home. No crowds, no turmoil, and the men who were the subject of this great concern have been largely ignored upon their return. Like the great mass of men who have found themselves at some time caught up in the random juggernaut of history and the massive impersonality of social forces, most have learned with time that the conflict had not really to do with their lives in particular, but with "larger" issues and mechanical forces. And so quietly they have come back home, those that survive, and live out, each in his own way, part of the war's unfinished history.

But those who approved sending troops to Vietnam cannot be allowed to ignore them after they have returned. And those who fought against the war need to demonstrate that they have never been against those who fought the war. It is a time not so much for guilt and shame or cynicism and apathy, but a time for genuine sorrow that such things ever happened to our people and to the people of Vietnam (and continue to happen), and for genuine determination that, so far as we can help it, they shall never happen again.

The scars of Vietnam go deeper than any set of programs can ever reach. There is a certain dishonesty even in using words like "compensation". There is, of course, never really any compensation for the loss of an arm or an eye, a husband, or a mind at rest. And with a war like Vietnam there will always be a sense of absurdity and uselessness that makes it all hard to put away, or, perhaps too easy for some, so that discussing benefits may seem at times like mistaking points of irritation for the deeper sources of distress. But we cannot forget the war or let others forget. Veterans must now educate themselves, each other, and their communities so that we can fully see what is going down and can effect meaningful changes at the levels that affect our lives.

The lessons we have learned at so much cost from our direct experience with the military and the war in Vietnam must now be applied to the problems we now face in our own back yards. We must act on the realization that beside veterans being unable to find jobs, there are many non-veterans here in Vermont who are finding it impossible to find meaningful work at a decent wage. Besides the VA failing to provide adequate medical care, all poor people are denied good health care. The same corporate profit interests that created the war are the interests that continue to dictate how Congress will act toward the GI Bill and toward poor people receiving welfare. The people who fought the war are the people who had no interests served by it, who made no profit from it and who continue to suffer with its scars. The government which suppressed the people of South East Asia with its military machine is now working to suppress the struggle for equality here at home.

In the future, this column will try to address itself to the specific ways in which the approximately 400 veterans here at UVM may help themselves by helping others to become involved in the issues that affect us all and to finding ways in which to direct whatever frustrations, anger, and energy we may feel into constructive programs made available within and outside the university community. Another goal is to help veterans through counseling, hot lines, community involvement, special programs and publications, and personal involvement in seeing others through the long trip back. We are still in it together. Join NOW!

U.S. Intervention In Chile

by Anne Urrutia

(IF) The complicity of the U.S. government and corporations is born out by the facts some of which were published just last weekend by The New York Times. The Times reported that from 1970 to 1973, the CIA furnished $8 million into Chile to undermine the Allende government. This information was presented by CIA Director William Colby in a secret session before a Congressional committee last spring. Other facts of U.S. intervention in Chile's internal affairs had come to light earlier.

On Sept. 4, 1970, Salvador Allende won the presidential elections with a 36.2 per cent of the votes. Because he did not have a majority, a special vote of the legislature was necessary to confirm him as president, which occurred Oct. 24. Before the vote the famous maneuverings of ITT to impede his confirmation began. That multinational corporation did indeed have something to guard; for a total investment of $30,050,000 it had taken out of Chile in profits of $357,290,000...

A second attack came from the copper companies. Copper is a critical element in Chile's economy: in 1970 it represented 78.5 per cent of Chile's exports. (New Chile, North Am. Congress on Latin Am., p. 90) After the copper mines were nationalized by an act of Congress, the U.S. copper companies, Braden, Kennecott, Anaconda moved to freeze funds of various Chilean companies in New York, and prohibited delivery of copper to France. The first and second actions made commerce with the U.S. virtually impossible and the third deprived Chile of badly needed funds.

According to an article which appeared in the Wall Street Journal Sept. 13, 1972, regarding Kennecott's actions: "The company was deliberately vague, but it made known yesterday that the choices it outlined could drive the wavering Chilean economy near disaster." All this was ostensibly an attempt to secure indemnity for the nationalized copper companies; but according to a Chilean tribunal specially constituted to deal with the question, the companies were owed nothing, due to the previous extraction of exorbitant profits. Kennecott alone had earned $2 billion from a total investment of $2.5 million. Anaconda had only 17 per cent of its investments in Chile, but it netted 80 per cent of its profits there. (New Chile)

Meanwhile, the U.S. government, while saying that it intended to maintain "normal" relations with Chile, acted to the contrary. John Connally, then Secretary of the Treasury, instructed all international financial organizations in which the U.S. had control to deny whatever applications for money or credit came from Chile until the question of indemnity for copper companies was solved. They followed the "orders from headquarter." The Export-Import Bank denied credit to the Chilean airlines, LAN, for the purchase of three Boeings. The credit had previously been approved and LAN had a perfect repayment record. (Time, Sept. 24, 1973) U.S. banks reduced credit from $250 million in November, 1970 to $25 million in January, 1972. The U. S. tried to sabotage the renegotiation of Chile's external debt in the "Paris Club" by linking those talks with the issue of compensation to U.S. copper companies. U.S. economic aid to Chile fell drastically, from $110.4 million in 1969, to $29.2 million in 1970 and in the budget approved in the U.S. Senate for 1972, to $8.3 million.

Once the military dictatorship was established, however, the U.S. government was quick to give its support. The U.S. recognized the military dictatorship on Sept. 24, although at this time, there were U.S. citizens being held prisoners in the National Soccer Stadium. This recognition was accompanied by a statement from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that "the U.S. deliberately assumed an attitude of maintaining itself strictly on the margin of events in Chile to avoid a repetition of what happened in Brazil in 1964." Which was that the U.S. recognized Brazil's military junta immediately and that led to rumors that Washington had supported the coup there.

As early as Sept. 26, the U.S. Department of Agriculture granted a $24 million credit for the purchase of wheat and later added a $28 million loan for the purchase of corn. The latter represents the largest credit it had ever given Chile. The Export-Import Bank and the Administration of International Development announced they were interested in giving aid to the junta.

The international financial organizations which the U.S. unquestionably manage have also resumed aid to Chile. On Sept. 19, Antonio Ortiz Mena, president of the International Development Bank, announced that a loan of $65 million for a hydroelectric project had been granted to Chile. Private U.S. banks announced the resumption of credits to Chile as early as the 25th of October.

However, despite the attempt by the U.S. to prop up the junta, inflation has soared to unprecedented heights. Prices of staple items have risen dramatically while salaries have increased only slightly. For example, sugar in the beginning of Sept. 1973 cost 24 Escudos per kilo. Now it costs 600 Escudos, or 25 times its previous price. In contrast, salaries of ordinary workers have risen approximately four times and many benefits which they formerly had, have been rescinded, thus diminishings their buying power considerably. Official government figures state the unemployment rate at 10%. It is, of course, much higher. Many people lost their jobs because of their alleged connection with the Unided Popular government of Allende. The sum total of all these facts is that life is very much worse for the majority of Chileans.

The U.S. continues to send vast military aid to Chile. The current plan is to send $21 million in military equipment and spend $800,000 in officer training, under the pretext of Chile's need to defend its border with Peru. However, the border dispute with Peru is not really the key issue. The reality is that U.S. aid is used to maintain the dictatorship in power and to continue the massive roundups, tortures, and summary executions.

Once again it appears that the U.S. is entering into a Vietnam. This time it is not sending its sons. But it is doing what it has no right to do, something which the people of this country believe in democratic ideals of the U.S. would not condone. The U.S. government is helping take away the right of the Chilean people to determine their form of government and insure their democratic rights.

You Never Know

An Open Letter To Jesus

by Elliot Freeman

Dear Jesus,

I was thinking about you the other night, so I figured that I would take this opportunity to drop you a line. I guess I am going to have a little trouble with the address, but I have faith and that is all that really matters... I guess.

You see I was wondering if you had any idea that it would turn out like this, you know when they nailed you to that cross, well I guess that has to be considered the biggest publicity stunt in history.

You know they started this big business called RELIGION and named the whole goddamn outfit after you! I guess they were counting on the fact that you would have a lot of draw at the old box office. Don't worry none about the business end of the operation, it is doing okay... I guess.

They are really trying hard to come up with something to top the cross-nailing, but these people these days just don't have the imagination like folks used to. They are trying real hard though. Aren't you the fellow that said, "It don't matter how you play the game as long as you try your best?"

I was thinking about you the other night, driving down the highway and listening to my radio when this song come on... "I don't care if it rains or freezes, as long as I got my Plastic Jesus on the dashboard of my car"... See? Not too much imagination but it does have a catchy beat to it. Anyway, some Reverand comes on and says that the way that we will know when you come back again (if you got any sense you'd stay where ever the hell you are) but he said we could tell that it was really you by giving you the secret handshake. He said that everybody got to have a secret handshake. The Black Panthers and the Hippies got secret handshake and good old Jesus H. Christ got a secret handshake.

Well, I really don't believe too much in the religion crap they are always trying to sell..."but you see I was just wondering if perhaps... if you could tell me if you got this secret handshake and what exactly it is. You know, just in case, some of what they say turns out to be true... I guess I don't want to be left empty handed. Like the man said, "You in like Flynn, when you give Him some skin!"

Don't let the Holy Ghost spook ya,
signed: Justin Case

"Fine. Hold it right there . . ."

Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre Appears Wednesday

The Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater, called the most sensational dance company in America today, appears in the Lane Series on October 9, at 8 p.m., in Memorial Auditorium.

Combining modern, jazz and classical techniques, and reflecting the American heritage, both black and white, Ailey's company was described by Clive Barnes of the N.Y. Times as "one of the authentically unique dance experiences in the world. There is nothing like it... the world has never seen a more powerful expression of sheer joy."

The Lane program includes "Blues Suite," set to traditional Black music and with choreography by Alvin Ailey. The dance grows out of the blues, songs of lost love, despair, protest and anger – hymns to the secular regions of the Southern Black's soul as he worked in the fields and barrelhouses.

The second dance is "Mass Brevis," with music by Zoltan Kodaly and choreography by Jose Limon. The first performance of Kodaly's score was given on the cellar of a bombed-out church in Budapest.

Next will be performed "A Song for You," with music and lyrics by Leon Russell and choreography by Alvin Ailey. The program will conclude with "The Wedding," with choreography by Pearl Primus, set to traditional African music and "Take Olivia" by Solomon Ilorin.

The Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater, now a company of more than twenty exciting young dancers, has thrilled audiences around the world and prompted critics to highest praise. When Alvin Ailey founded the company in 1958, he called it The Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, under this name it grew and expanded until 1972, when it became a constituent of New York's City Center of Music and Drama.

Right after their triumphant 1970 European tour – debuts in six Russian cities, a two-week London season at the Sadler's Wells Theatre and a guest engagement at the International Festival of the Dance in Paris – the company opened a two-week season at the ANTA Theatre. Sold-out houses at the Anta brought an invitation to the company for a two-week engagement at the City Center 55th Street Theater. This 3,000-seat theater also had sold-out houses with wildly cheering audiences, and it was after three successive engagements at this theater that the company became a constituent of City Center of Music and Drama.

The Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater is a multi-racial company – as one European critic remarked, "...a troupe of virtuoso artists, and they are in peak form." Alvin Ailey choreographs to communicate – with his audience and with his dancers, and they all respond completely. His art has universal appeal. In his own words, "There's no generation gap; audiences from children to age 90 can respond." He offers a wide ranging repertoire of his own creations (from satiric to the tragic) as well as works by other major choreographers, such as Talley Beatty, Geoffrey Holder, Joyce Trisler, Lucas Hoving, Donald McKayle, John Butler, Norman Walker, and by members of his own company.

Walter Terry, writing for the Saturday Review, called Alvin Ailey "one of America's most experienced, most successful and most honored dance leaders." When Mr. Ailey did the choreography for the staging of Leonard Bernstein's "Mass," which opened the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., the director, Gordon Davidson, found it "extraordinary working on the 'Mass' together with Alvin and his company." He said: "Alvin Ailey's development both as a choreographer and an artistic leader of a company made the collaborative experience unique. Alvin has a strong sense of drama, a strong passion to move and be moved through dance."

In Russia the company played to sell-out audiences and, although Tass, the Soviet press agency, made the quiet understatement that "the first performance of the American contemporary dancers (in Moscow) was a success," the audiences reacted with spontaneous enthusiasm. The New York Times reported from Moscow: "A vibrant American modern dance company tonight won the unrestrained approval of a theater full of Russians unaccustomed to the style of swinging innovation they saw on the stage of Moscow's Variety Theater."

Back on Broadway, preceded by reports of their triumphant tour of Russia, the company's performance made Emory Lewis exclaim in the Bergen Record: "But do we need the Russians to tell us what a national treasure we have in the Alvin Ailey troupe? Ailey is one of the most creative artists in America today, and he should be showered with foundation and government funds."

Tracing this success story back to its origin, Alvin Ailey received his first inspiration and basic training in dance at the Lester Horton Dance Theater in Los Angeles while he was studying romance languages at the University of California. After only a year of study, he joined the company in repertory in its own theatre. In 1953, after the death of Lester Horton, he headed the company as choreographer and artistic director.

The birth of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater was in March, 1958, at a small concert hall in New York City – a concert acclaimed by critics and audiences alike. Alvin Ailey appeared in this concert with a group of dancers from Broadway, his first company. The Dance Magazine critic called him "exceptional. He reminds one of a caged lion full of lashing power."

In 1962 the U.S. Department of State sponsored a 13-week tour of ten countries in Southeast Asia and the Far East and of Australia. It was a great success – in Sidney, Australia, for example, tickets were so in demand scalpers were getting $25 per ticket, and there were 20 curtain calls on opening night. Tours of colleges and universities followed, appearances in Arts Festivals throughout the United States, then yearly tours of Europe from 1964 to 1968.

For several seasons the company toured the United States, appearing at colleges and universities, besides regular engagements in New York at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. In the summer of 1970 the U.S. State Department sent the company to a North African tour – Morocco, Algiers and Tunisia – as "dancing ambassadors of America." The Russian tour later that year was also sponsored by the State Department as part of their cultural exchange program.

Good tickets (some in the balcony) are still available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, at $3, $5, and $6. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

The next Lane concert is the National Chinese Opera Theatre, Oct. 16.

Pippin Professional, But Lacking Pace

by Barbara Friedman

On Monday evening, September 30, the Memorial Auditorium was without a vacant seat in the house. The 1974-75 Lane Series commenced its season with the celebrated broadway musical comedy, Pippin.

This play, by Roger O. Hirson with music and lyrics composed by Stephen Schwartz, takes the audience on an enchanting journey full of magic, circus, comedy, vaudeville, dance, music, and illusion. Stephen Schwartz, the master of Pippin's sensational music, has written two other successful musicals which are currently playing in New York: Godspell, a triumphant hit around the world, and his most recent production, The Magic Show. Bob Fosse, the superb director and choreographer of Pippin, relates the decadent morals of medieval times to those of the present day through an interesting blend of erotic modern dances, vaudeville, softshoe, and contemporary rock.

The story is about Pippin, who is the son of Charlemagne, emperor of the Holy Roman Empire during the 8th century. He vows to never take after his tyrannical father, and sets out to establish some 'meaning' in his life, by avoiding and criticizing mundane pursuits.

The idealistic Pippin, however, is eventually confronted with a decision between everlasting fame or a married life. He decides upon the latter of the two alternatives, at which time the stage is stripped bare of illusion and Pippin is left alone with his future wife.

Although the performance was enjoyable, it seemed to lack a professional pace. There appeared to be a time lag that was easily perceptible in the dialogue. Thus, this temporal distinction gave the production a degree of sloppiness. Unfortunately the acoustical effects in the Memorial Auditorium detracted seriously from the enjoyment of the performance. Dialogue and singing were lost if the actors so much as turned their faces from the audience. This problem of projection was obviously not the fault of the company, but it certainly influenced the quality of the performance. It is due time that students and community considered the possibilities of improving the acoustics in Memorial Auditorium.

Guy Allen, who substituted for Irving Lee, did a good job of captivating his audience as leading player and M.C. for the show. His role was especially challenging since he was immediately compared to Ben Vereen, the established prototype on Broadway.

Dorthi Duckworth, who played Pippin's grandmother, was charming and lovable. Although her role was small in comparison to the others, it was thoroughly enjoyable and very well received by the audience. As Catherine, Carol Fox Press projected a strong articulate voice. Her interpretation of and enthusiasm for the role added a refreshing touch to the play.

Barry Williams, known for his role on the Brady Bunch, projected the exact same image on stage in his performance as Pippin. It was as if a high school student among professionals became overwhelmed, hence overshadowed, by the surrounding polished performances.

It was the chorus, however, that really gave Pippin its 'pazzaz' – so to speak. This musical depends upon the consistent mystical quality of a strong supporting cast. The players of this road production exhibited all the necessary bizarre and intriguing facial and body movements, all the while completing the exhilarating sound of the musical score.

Truffaut Series Starts On Friday

The Lane Film Society Series, Truffaut Classic Movies, opens on October 4 with Francois Truffaut's "Fahrenheit 451."

There will be two showings of the color movie in Marsh Life Sciences Building at 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Running time is 112 minutes. "Fahrenheit 451," Francois Truffaut's first motion picture in English (1966), has been acclaimed as a modern classic in the vein of "Brave New World" and "1984".

Based on the novel of the same name by Ray Bradbury, the movie is set in a future electronic age, but with a realistic society. In the story a fireman is portrayed in a country where all reading matter is forbidden, and the fire department's job is to police the citizens who try to keep the books in hiding. The department burns books instead of putting out fires.

But the fireman finally get a hankering for books and becomes a fire department dropout when he falls for a school teacher. The title, incidentally, means the heat at which paper ignites.

In the leading role of the fireman is Oskar Werner, with Julie Christie in the dual part of Linda, the fireman's wife, and Clarisse, the schoolteacher who interests him in the books he is ordered to burn.

In this movie, as in all his productions, Truffaut rejects any sort of mechanistic view of humanity. His films open to their viewers not only a recognition of the possibilities inherent in existence, but also its necessities – with an ever-present but indefinable fatalism lurking in the background.

In the Truffaut Classic Movies series, "Fahrenheit 451" will be followed by "The 400 Blows," Oct. 11; "Jules and Jim," Oct. 18; "Stolen Kisses," Oct. 25; "Bed and Board," Nov. 1; and "Shoot the Piano Player," Nov. 15.

Tickets for the series of six films are $5, while single film tickets are $1. They are on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door on each scheduled Friday night showing. For reservations telephone 656-3418.

Next Thing Workshops

(continued from page ten)

1 – Basic Carpentry (Monday, Oct. 14) – Introduction to tools and supplies, hinges, fasteners and shelves. If you have a specific problem, bring your plans.

2 – Basic Plumbing (Monday, Oct. 21) – Drips and Leaks

3 – Basic Electrical Work (Monday, Oct. 28) – Circuits and fuses, voltage, wiring, how to make a lamp!

4 – Basic Auto Repair and Maintenance (Friday, Oct. 1) – Changing a tire, plugs and points, oil change.

Unity Players Open Theater Workshop – with the Unity Players. Tuesday, October 15, 7:30 p.m.

This evening will be an open discussion about theater work in the community along with theater games and body exercises. Come in comfortable clothing; open to men and women.

Being Single – with Dan Meyer and Steve Cahill. Wednesday, Oct. 16, 7:30 – 10 p.m.

This is an evening for single people (whatever that means to you) to share feelings about being single – such as meeting needs for intimacy, needs for independance, couple pressure, levels of freindship, and so on.

Shaker Mtn: A Study in Alternative Education – with the Shaker Mtn. Staff and students. Wednesday, October 23, 7:30 p.m.

This will be a forum on free school and alternatives in education as we use them at Shaker Mtn.

Psychodrama – with Lois Parent. Thursday, October 24, 7 p.m.

An evening of playing with learning, growing, and self. An evening of fun.

SA FILMS PRESENTS

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3
BABES ON BROADWAY
101 Votey Hall – 7:30 P.M. – Free

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4
MONKEE BUSINESS &
SONS OF THE DESERT
101 Votey Hall, 7:30 & 9:30 P.M. – $1.00

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5
CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF
101 Votey Hall – 7:30 P.M. – Free

MONDAY, OCTOBER 7
THE GARDEN OF THE FINZI-CONTINIS
103 Rowell Hall – 7:30 P.M. – Free

Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS

Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
Williston Road
I Sting
Women in Love
II The Bank Dick
Never Give a Sucker an Even Break

State Theatre
Bank Street
Juggernaut

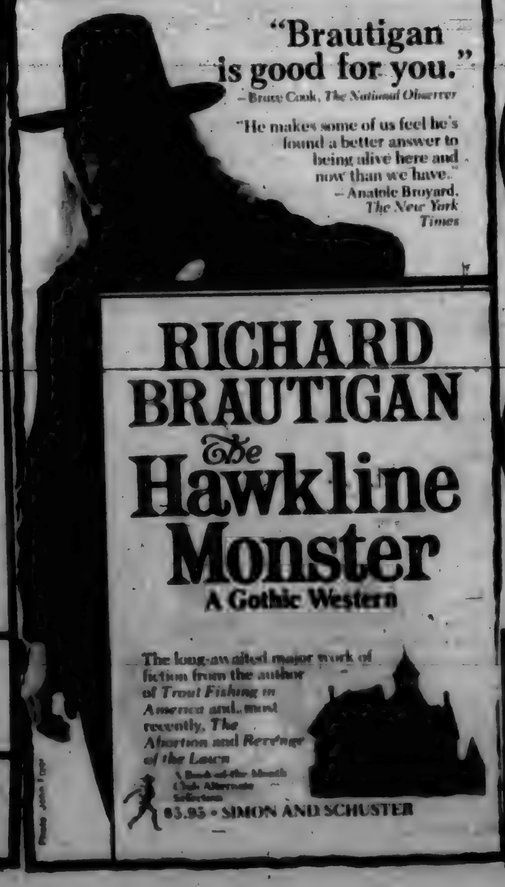
Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
Sleeper
All You Wanted Know About Sex
Chinatown

Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
Room Service
Escape To Nowhere

Flynn Theatre
Main Street
Jerimiah Johnson
11:30 Fri & Sat – Harder They Come

call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights
or special showings

DOLLAR SHOWING
Thurs. at 4:00 PM
THE HARDER THEY COME
shown at
Merrill's Showcase on Williston Road
TICKETS MAY BE OBTAINED FROM BILLINGS MAIN DESK OR AT THE THEATRE



"Brautigan is good for you."
– Bruce Cook, The National Observer
"He makes some of us feel he's found a better answer to being alive here and now than we have."
– Anatole Broyard, The New York Times
RICHARD BRAUTIGAN
The Hawkline Monster
A Gothic Western
The long-awaited major work of fiction from the author of Trout Fishing in America and, most recently, The Abortion and Revenge of the Lawn
A Book-of-the-Month Club Alternate Selection
$5.95 • SIMON AND SCHUSTER

Together for the first time on one program.
THE MARK BROS. in "Room Service"
7:00 & 9:15
W.C. Fields IN "THE FATAL GLASS OF BEER"
Charlie Chaplin IN "THE VAGABOND"
"HITCHCOCK HIMSELF IS FINALLY RIVALLED."
"THE SUSPENSE IS DEVASTATING. THIS MOVIE IS NO ORDINARY THRILLER. 'ESCAPE TO NOWHERE' IS A CELEBRATION OF BRILLIANTLY SWIFT WITS." – NEW YORK TIMES
7:00 & 9:15
"A THRILLER"
ESCAPE TO NOWHERE PG
BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2
PHONE 862-6070 ANYTIME!
"One of the year's best pictures!"
2001 a space odyssey
Starts WEDNESDAY

"Welcome to Georges"
corner of North St. & N. Winooski Ave.
THE BEST IN PIZZA PIES
Midgett $1.25
Small $1.75
Large $2.00
extras 25c
DELICIOUS!!!!!
Special every day
Homemade Meals
$1.95 and – UP
Homemade Soup
SUBS Antipasto
Beer-Wine-Liquor
Open 8am-12 am. STUDENTS WELCOME!!

New England Premiere
Dragon Aire Ltd. A SEABOARD AMERICAN COMPANY Presents LADIES & GENTLEMEN
the Rolling Stones
Jagger Explodes!
Jagger Dances!
Jagger Sings!
A Film Concert in Spectacular SURROUND Sound!
Tonite 8 & 10 PM
THE MOVIES
Adults $3.50
Stud. $2.50

That's Entertain

by Mike Schwartz

For the past few weeks there has been a movie in Burlington that offers a host of happy endings without the need to analyze hidden meanings and profound messages. That's Entertainment, the MGM movie musical retrospective, offers a potpourri of great moments on the wide screen for movies most people may catch on television.

About the only thing to talk of is the way things are put together and how the movie is presented. Despite two hours of continuous music and dancing, the visual spectacle is enough to capture the viewer's interest and make him want to see in total many of the movies presented.

Rotating hosts such as Frank Sinatra, Elizabeth Taylor and Mickey Rooney and other big names trace the MGM musical from the first 1929 stage show with a chorus line of fat girls on through the colorful beauty of Showboat and Gigi.

But probably the most beautiful moments are the features performers presents variety of with Ginge with a coat
the ceiling.

Another
the multifac
Kelly. One not only a but is also a choreograph from Singi
as one of footage fro

A third career of Ju musical sho years old,
Oz and into

Perhaps
how a caree way the M
Judy Garlan
the backyar grand stage from blac glorious similar plot names of

Music Thing: Ri

King Biscuit Boy
Richard Newell

Richard Newell is Canadian. Folks say he blows a mean harp, and it's true. Richard Newell has captured the best of boogie and soul from every nook and granny of our country and his, and his latest album, The King Biscuit Boy bears a particularly strong resemblance to products of late coming from Boston. The Mad Peck, associate editor of Boston's Fusion magazine, in his liner notes from the album, mentions one of those Bostonians, Magic Dick, from J.Geils roster, as being able to give Newell a run for his money. Well, if we're throwing names around, let us not forget Boston's James Montgomery, or Philadelphia's Duke Williams. Aside from these few, boogie has become a prostituted word in our musical vocabularies, and it's far past time that someone gave boogie a good slap in the face. It's only proper that we pay allegiance to our honest boogiemasters. Real boogie, in the tradition of Sonny Boy Williamson, John Lee Hooker, and Canned Heat, is a mighty rare and tasty treat. There are but a handful of musicians today with the maturity and musical ability, let alone any sense of musical heritage to get into the grit and soul and feel of a real boogie. Richard Newell is a welcome addition to that list. "King Biscuit Boy", a name dubbed upon Newell by Ronnie Hawkins, is extracted from the King Biscuit Time Radio show which featured Sonny Boy Williamson's fierce harp in the early fifties into blues his career
He hails
Ontario, wh
he found recordings
John Mayal
band, and Canadians ideas, or fo blues. He England, w was in the catch the lucrativ Enthusiasti favorable compensat
grueling sch
Keef Hartl
had the b and cut.
Clapton, a to emerge
Richard Ne rate band
The end re band head

Richard
Ronnie H received h pay, and among se band, Cro downs, to
Rick Bell
Tilt Boo crippling Hawkins stayed on up the pie solo albun favor, by p first of his
the Canad
Like his e teached an

LITTLE PR BOOK

Graphic Arts G
Original Graph
Limited Edition Pr
Fine Arts Print

100 Dorset Str
South Burlingt
Phone 862-61

Tilting At Windi

Professional, Lacking Pace

...evening, ...Memorial ...bout a ...m. The ...Series ...with the ...musical ...ger O ...d lyrics ...Stephen ...ormer on ...full of ...comedy), ...ic, and ...ertz. The ...national ...o other ...Rock an... ...w York ...cast. Bill ...first musi... ...he Magic ...e superb ...ighter of ...abundant ...times to ...ext day ...friend of ...dances, ...r, and ...l Pippin, ...Menagerie, ...r Roman ...century ...r AFIT has ...urns out ...aming in ...ing and ...results ...Pippin, ...eventually ...decision ...ame or a ...ides upon ...he two ...time the ...illusion ...with his ...formance ...d to lack ...There ...lag that ...in the ...temporal ...duction. ...ppiness ...coustical effects in the Memorial Auditorium detracted seriously from the enjoyment of the performance. Dialogue and singing were lost if the actors so much as turned their faces from the audience. This problem of projection was obviously not the fault of the company, but it certainly influenced the quality of the performance. It is due time that students and community considered the possibilities of improving the acoustics in Memorial Auditorium.

Guy Allen, who substituted for Irving Lee did a good job of captivating his audience as leading player and M.C. for the show. His role was especially challenging since he was immediately compared to Ben Vereen, the established prototype on Broadway.

Dortha Duckworth, who played Pippin's grandmother, was charming and lovable. Although her role was small in comparison to the others, it was thoroughly enjoyable and very well received by the audience. As Catherine, Carol Fox Press projected a strong articulate voice. Her interpretation of and enthusiasm for the role added a refreshing touch to the play.

Barry Williams, known for his role on the Brady Bunch, projected the exact same image on state in his performance as Pippin. It was as if a high school student among professionals became overwhelmed, hence overshadowed, by the surrounding polished performances.

It was the chorus, however, that really gave Pippin its 'pazzaz' — so to speak. This musical depends upon the consistent mystical quality of a strong supporting cast. The players of this road production exhibited all the necessary bizarre and intriguing facial and body movements, all the while completing the exhilarating sound of the musical score.

ing Workshops

...ge ten)

...arpentry ...14) ...ools and ...owers and ...n specific ...plans ... Flambing ...Drops and ...ical Work ... Circuits ...ering, how ...Repair and ...(Oct. 1) ...plugs and ...

...Theater ...the Unity ...tober 15. ...se or open ...ater work ...long with ...d body ...nfortable clothing; open to men and women.

Being Single — with Dan Meyer and Steve Cahill. Wednesday, Oct. 16, 7:30 - 10 p.m.

This is an evening for single people (whatever that means to you) to share feelings about being single — such as meeting needs for intimacy, needs for independence, couple pressure, levels of friendship, and so on.

Shaker Mtn: A Study in Alternative Education — with the Shaker Mtn. Staff and students. Wednesday, October 23, 7:30 p.m.

This will be a forum on free school and alternatives in education as we use them at Shaker Mtn.

Psychodrama — with Lois Parent. Thursday, October 24, 7 p.m. -

A evening of playing with learning, growing, and self. An evening of fun.

...ome to George!"
...North St. & N. Winooski Ave.
862-7449
...PIES ...5
Special every day
Homemade Meals
$1.95 and — UP
Homemade Soup
SUBS Antipasto
Beer-Wine-Liquor
...!!! ...am. STUDENTS WELCOME!!

...w England Premiere
...Ltd. ... Presents
...& GENTLEMEN
...the ...ing Stones
Jagger Explodes!
Jagger Dances!
Jagger Sings!
A Film Concert in Spectacular ...RROUND Sound!
...the Movies
Adults $3.50
Stud. $2.50

That's Entertainment-- That's Nostalgia

by Mike Schwartz

For the past few weeks there has been a movie in Burlington that offers a host of happy endings without the need to analyze hidden meanings and profound messages. That's Entertainment, the MGM movie musical retrospective, offers a potpourri of great moments on the wide screen for movies most people may catch on television.

About the only thing to talk of is the way things are put together and how the movie is presented. Despite two hours of continuous music and dancing, the visual spectacle is enough to capture the viewer's interest and make him want to see in total many of the movies presented.

Rotating hosts such as Frank Sinatra, Elizabeth Taylor and Mickey Rooney and other big names trace the MGM musical from the first 1929 stage show with a chorus line of fat girls on through the colorful beauty of Showboat and Gigi.

But probably the most beautiful moments are the features on the individual performers. One segment presents Fred Astaire in a variety of roles from dancing with Ginger Rogers to dancing with a coat rack and dancing on the ceiling.

Another segment presents the multifaceted talents of Gene Kelly. One realizes that Kelly is not only a tremendous dancer but is also a more than adequate choreographer. His solo number from Singing in the Rain ranks as one of the finest pieces of footage from an MGM musical.

A third solo feature is the career of Judy Garland from the musical shorts when she was 12 years old, on through Wizard of Oz and into the 1940's.

Perhaps the best way to see how a career can grow was the way the Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland movies went from the backyard of a house to the grand stage. The movies grow from black and white to glorious color. And despite similar plots that just change the names of the characters, two childhood stars built up a life long reputation. For the World War II audience, this was all the medicine they needed.

The maturity of the movie musical is also developed in the movie. The movie can adopt to on the scene location such as "On the Town" in New York City, to the sound stage where the location is recreated. One can see the largest staircase in the world, the improvements in costumes, special effects, and use of color. There is also the combined use of animation with a cartoon character such as Jerry of Tom and Jerry fame dancing a number with Gene Kelly.

The list of interesting and unusual scenes from great musicals is endless. No doubt many have seen this movie and it has probably closed down by now, but whenever it does come around, That's Entertainment is a welcome change from the usual bill of fare. In a word, it brings back more nostalgia from the good old days.

Music Thing: Richard Newell Is Good

King Biscuit Boy
Richard Newell

Richard Newell is Canadian. Folks say he blows a mean harp, and it's true. Richard Newell has captured the best of boogie and soul from every nook and cranny of our country, and his, and his latest album, The King Biscuit Boy bears a particularly strong resemblance to products of late coming from Boston. The Mad Peck, associate editor of Boston's Fusion magazine, in his liner notes from the album, mentions one of those Bostonians, Magic Dick, from J.Geils roster, as being able to give Newell a run for his money. Well, if we're throwing names around, let us not forget Boston's James Montgomery, or Philadelphia's Duke Williams. Aside from these few, boogie has become a prostituted word in our musical vocabularies, and it's far past time that someone gave boogie a good slap in the face. It's only proper that we pay allegiance to our honest boogiemasters. Real boogie, in the tradition of Sonny Boy Williamson, John Lee Hooker, and Canned Heat, is a mighty rare and tasty treat. There are but a handful of musicians today with the maturity and musical ability, let alone any sense of musical heritage to get into the grit and soul and feel of a real boogie. Richard Newell is a welcome addition to that list. "King Biscuit Boy", a name dubbed upon Newell by Ronnie Hawkins, is extracted from the King Biscuit Time Radio show which featured Sonny Boy Williamson's fierce harp in the early fifties. Newell has been into blues since the beginning of his career from the early sixties. He hails from Hamilton, Ontario, where, early in his life he found excitement in the recordings of Little Walter and John Mayall. He formed a blues band, and quickly found that Canadians weren't ready for his ideas, or for his primal electric blues. He took the band to England, where a blues revival was in the offing, hoping to catch the coattails of a new and lucrative movement. Enthusiastic crowds and favorable reviews failed to compensate for low pay and grueling schedules. At the time, Keef Hartley and John Mayall had the blues scene wrapped and cut. Jeff Beck, Eric Clapton, and Mike Taylor were to emerge from this movement. Richard Newell and his second rate band didn't have a chance. The end result was a disparate band heading back to Canada.

Richard went to work for Ronnie Hawkins, where he received his nickname, steady pay, and a healthy reputation among sessionmen. Hawkins' band, Crowbar, had its ups and downs, too. In 1970, the loss of Rick Bell to Janis Joplin's Full Tilt Boogie Band, was a crippling force. Crowbar and Hawkins split, and Newell stayed on to help the band pick up the pieces, and record a first solo album. They returned his favor, by playing back-up on the first of his two solo albums for the Canadian Daffodil label. Like his early band, the albums reached an enthusiastic press, to the tune of adjectives like master piece, perfection, and phemonenal, but they failed miserably as commercial entities.

Now Richard Newell has Allan Toussaint as his producer, and Toussaint has worked wonders both in his choices for studio sidemen and in getting King Biscuit's act together. The album was done in New Orleans, and it seems the musical atmosphere of old America was just the right complement to Newell's sessions. New Orleans has long been a haven for traditional American blues, Gulf Coast boogie, and bop, with black members of this musical society well indoctrinated into boogie and blues. Births, weddings, anniversaries, and even death carry with them the traditions of the south... traditions which feature down home, out-in-the-street, get down and cry blues and boogie favorites. Everybody sings and plays, whether they're nine or ninety. Not only is it moving, it's about as pure as you can get.

King Biscuit Boy is an album that's been inside of Richard Newell for most of his life. From those early Chicago roots, to England, back again, around to Boston and Philly, and finally recording in New Orleans, it's easy to see where his music has come from, and where he's taking it. Richard Newell has the guts it takes to belt out the blues.

The Story Of The Souther, Hillman, Furay Band (As Told By Their Press Agent)

When John David Souther, Chris Hillman and Richie Furay met to test the prospects of forming a band, each had already established himself as a writer and vocalist while helping fuel a succession of bands that included several of the most influential and popular American bands of the last decade – among them Poco and Manassas, and two of the greatest bands for rock and roll history, The Byrds and Buffalo Springfield. As seasoned players, they now sought something more ambitious. The new group would hopefully provide each with the flexibility and firepower a working band can offer; at the same time, Souther, Hillman and Furay would each maintain his separate musical identity.

Detroit-born and Texas-raised, J. D. Souther had formed Longbranch Pennywhistle as a duo with Glenn Frey before going solo; he recorded his first album for Asylum in 1972. Since then, and during the gestation for the new SHF band, Souther continued writing, on his own and in collaboration with Jackson Browne and Eagles Glenn Frey and Don Henley. He was also one of the producers for Linda Ronstadt's first Asylum album, Don't Cry Now.

As the original bassist for The Byrds, Chris Hillman developed rapidly both as a distinctive and inflential instrumentalist and as a writer and a vocalist. Hillman's impact on The Byrds repertoire, through his own songs and through a more general influence on the group's gradual exploration of country roots, became apparent from The Bryd's third LP on. When Chris departed to form a new band with the late Gram Parsons (another former Byrd), The Byrds lost a key member but the listeners gained the first full-throttle country rock bank – the Flying Burrito Bros. Hillman's vocals, bass, guitar and mandolin, as well as his writing, were focal to the Burritos for three years. Shortly after he left, the Burritos disbanded and Chris moved on to become one of the first members of Stephen Stills' Manassas.

Richie Furay's sweet vocal style and prolific writing first drew national attention when he helped form Buffalo Springfield with Stephen Stills. While Richie's tune ran a gamut of styles, his more melodic and directly country-flavored works (most notably "Kind Woman" and "A Child's Claim to Fame") became trademarks. After the Buffalo Springfield broke up, Richie's next project seemed to bear that direction out: with Springfield bassist and producer Jim Messina, Furay unveiled Poco as a distinctly ebullient young band that combined clear harmonies and shimmering guitar lines of country sources with the their visceral energy of overdrive rock'n'roll. Richie remained that band's key natural resource through six albums.

Following initial meetings in Los Angeles, J.D., Chris and Richie headed for Colorado where the Furay home was transformed into a rehearsal studio for the next three months. As each player began unveiling songs and playing them for his new partners, the basic trio coalesced. Other musicians living in Colorado, among them such transplanted talents as Al Perkins and Paul Harris, dropped by to play. Perkins, a pedal steel guitarist whose work with the Flying Burrito Bros. and Manassas had been balanced by session dates (for musicians including the Rolling Stones, Kenny Rogers, Joe Walsh), was now added to the band. In addition to pedal steel, Perkins brought formidable chops as a lead guitarist, bassist, and dobro player.

Paul Harris was also asked to join. A native New Yorker, Harris brought not only seasoned keyboard skills but the ears of a skilled arranger that would be able to contribute to the development of strong tunes. Most recently with Manassas, Harris has also played piano and organ and arranged dates for artists ranging from Tom Rush, John Sebastian, B. B. King and Richie Havens to his own earlier band with Peter Gallway, Ohio Knox. Jim Gordon is already familiar to most devotees of electric music. Apart from his role as drummer for Derek and the Dominoes and for Traffic, Jim has graced countless L.A. recording sessions. When he heard that Souther, Hillman and Furay were forming a band, he called seeking an audition – the call was a happy surprise and Gordon was immediately drummed into the band.

Now complete, the group finished their debut Asylum album.

S.A. Concerts to Present:

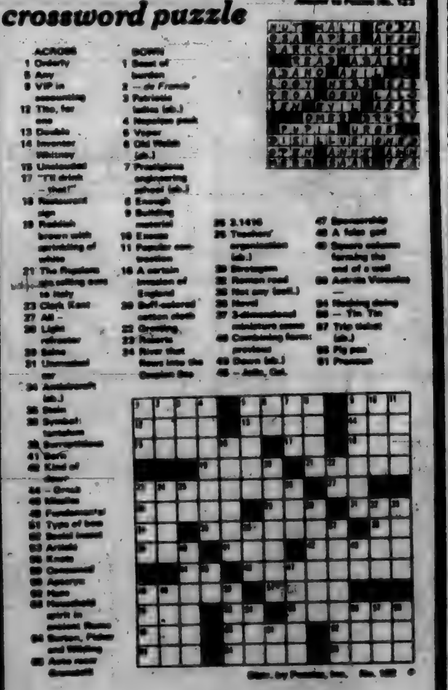
The Souther-Hillman–Furay Band plus Special Guest on Friday, October 18 at 8:30 p.m. in the Patrick Gymnasium of the University of Vermont. Tickets are $3.50 with a UVM ID

Claussen's Greenhouse
Rt. 2a Colchester
BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL
10% Student discount with ID
BURLINGTON'S WIDEST SELECTION OF PLANTS
★ house
★ terrarium
★ tropical
A COMPLETE HOUSEPLANT CENTER
★ terrarium's to order
★ Rx for sick plant
★ potting soil and fertilizer
★ clay and decorative pots
OPEN YEAR ROUND 8AM to 6PM
Call 878-2361
FRESH APPLE CIDER

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER®
Downtown Burlington
Essex Junction

Tilting At Windmills
Graphic Arts Gallery
Original Graphics
Limited Edition Posters
Fine Arts Prints
100 Dorset Street
South Burlington
Phone 862-6100

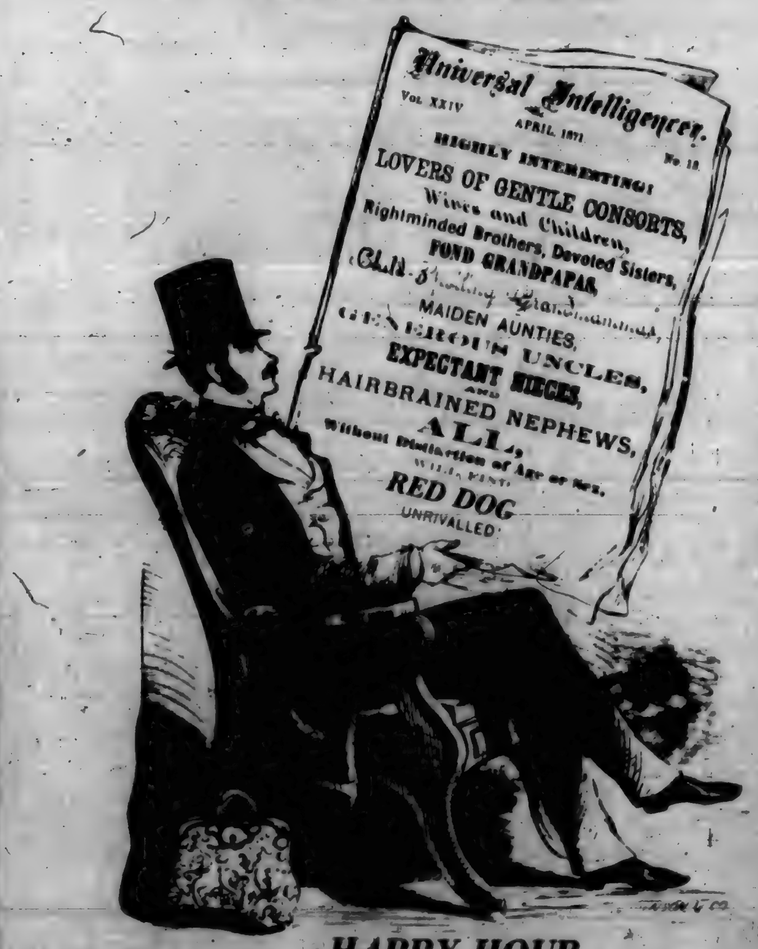
BIG BURGER crossword puzzle



Last week's winners:
1. Bob Benson
2. Dave Ring
3. Jeff McDonald
4. Midel Totaro
5. Al Dimick
6. Todd Quinlan
7. Ann Jones
8. John Armstrong
9. Scott Parry
10. Joe Meyer

Upon correct completion of the above crossword puzzle, BIG BURGER will award a free dinner. The meal will be given to the first 15 people who present the finished puzzle after 8:00 p.m. tonight. Winners will be announced in the next CYNIC.

RED DOG SALOON
Lower Church St.- 8649524



HAPPY HOUR
Friday 4-6:30
Every Sunday DOWNPOUR
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
Spirits Half Price
This Week VICE

... Candidate Cain Fights For Local Issues

(continued from page one)

complicating affairs." He is sorry to see the Greeks decline Secretary of State Kissinger to mediate in the Cyprus crisis. "With his (Kissinger) skill and prestige, he could bring about an agreement in Cyprus." Cain wants the U.S. to use its influence to bring a solution to the Cyprus crisis.

Aid for education is a high priority for Cain, but he doesn't support additional aid for education until the economy is better.

Talking about domestic affairs, Cain does not favor curbs on lobbyists, but wants detail reports on where and how the lobbyists spend their money.

When asked about busing to achieve racial intergration, Cain responded, it is "the law of the land. Busing is an unhappy solution to a grave problem." Cain feels the deep seated cause is housing. "Until there is an housing opportunity to move out of the ghetto area, the only solution is to accomplish intergration by transporting students to a neighborhood where this can be accomplished."

Cain is against increasing nuclear power plants in Vermont or in the U.S. "until we know more about safety." He does not support shut downs of nuclear plants, but thinks nuclear plants should be operated under the strictest precautions.

Cain is also against the sharing of technology and resources. "I can see no way in the world how you can separate war and peaceful methods. When our safety technology is advanced we can share our knowledge."

While personally against abortion, Cain does not advocate abortion laws as they "wouldn't accomplish any purpose."

In response to the question of whether he would push for reduction in Congress' pay, Cain responded that he doesn't think the salary is that great considering the double overhead of two households.

Cain will accept "modest sums from anyone I'm in sympathy with," for campaign expenses. As a "friend of the working man," Cain expects help from labor, as well as from education and business, especially insurance. "I don't think any of these groups want to own anybody."

Cain points out that his business background and government service as three term Burlington Mayor will be an asset as a congressman. He cites James Jeffords, the Republican candidate's campaign motto, "They aren't going to like me down there," as being unrealistic. Cain responded to this, saying he will not go into Congress as a maverick, but one who works within the system. "My proposal is, I will work in the system to be really effective for the people of Vermont and work with people who are concerned with opinions in the House."

Jennifer Cover--A Master Of Oral Interpretation

Two years ago a young woman arrived from Emerson College (in Boston) to teach Oral Interpretation of Literature at the Unive sity of Vermont. No one outside the Communications and Theatre Department knew what Oral Interp. really was, and not too many people cared. Shortly after this young woman began teaching, she presented a one-woman show at the Arena Theatre entitled "The Lady or The Tiger". It was this outstanding performance which brought to light an entirely new, innovative aspect of what was heretofore considered a 'stuffy, conventional' form of forensics at UVM. Jennifer Cover is the lady and the tiger who added this colorful dimension to the performing arts at the University, and contributed to the rising popularity of the Oral Interp. course in the Communications and Theatre Department.

Thanks to Ms. Cover's instruction and direction, four students in the Communications and Theatre Department have organized UVM's first "Innovative — Oral — Interp. Festival" to be presented Oct. 11 and 12, 1974. Working on this project for nearly four months, Karen Trott, Keith Gaylord, Lisa Charles and Melanie Donovan have arranged for six colleges to meet and share their performances and ideas about the experimental aspects of Oral Interpretation of Literature. These schools include: Ithaca College, University of Rhode Island, Clarion State College, St. Lawrence University, Emerson College and SUNY at Plattsburgh.

"The purpose of our festival is to encourage experimental oral interpretation and to elicit greater personal interaction among all participants. We feel that the atmosphere of a non-competitive festival will enhance the perceptive and broadening skills of the individual and group as a whole in a relaxed and conducive surrounding."

This was the opening paragraph of the letter sent to the participating schools. The emphasis on a 'non-competitive' atmosphere originated from previous experiences at regional and national speech tournaments where students were graded and evaluated according to the standard 'rules and regulations.' The end result of these regimented presentations was often uncreative, unsuccessful, or just plain boring. Consequently the festival committee, under the direction of Ms. Cover, proposed and planned a highly personal, purely enjoyable 'get-together' for students eager to present innovative, experimental variations of Oral Interp. Therefore each school was requested to prepare one unified program, whether it be individual readings or a group performance (usually no more than 5 students) fifteen minutes in length.

For those UVM students still confused about the nature of this performing art, Oral Interpretation of Literature was once considered to be a formal oral reading (from a script) of either prose or poetry. The reader could include vocal inflexion, facial expression and limited body movement. The new concept, however, does not require the use of script, allows for more body movement, encourages frequent facial expression, and promotes the use of any literary material. It may sound dull, but picture one person assuming the vocal, facial and physical expressions of three different characters within one short story.

Festival performances are in Room 115 Living/Learning Center on Friday, October 11 from 11:00 to 12:30 a.m. and 3:00 to 4:00 p.m. and Oct. 12 from 10:30 - 11:30 a.m. Admission is free.

... Michael Parenti

(continued from page one)

Nixon is very simply his attempt to cover up the entire mess and stop the investigation that is going on, not only of Watergate which is a small part of it, but the ITT scandal, the FHA scandal, the Dairy Lobby Fund and any other number of shady practices which if exposed to the American public can't discredit Nixon, he can't be further discredited, but to discredit the present Administration and those who are still in public. Most of them are criminals or crooks in one way or another.

Cynic: Do you think Ford's visit here next Monday will be enthusiastically met?

Parenti: Very enthusiastically, but not met necessarily with positive enthusiasm. There'll be a virorous protest at his presence and at the fact that he's just Nixon in disguise. I'll be speaking that evening at that demonstration.

Cynic: Do you think additional nuclear power plants should be constructed in Vermont?

Parenti: There should be a moratorium on all nuclear power plants and we should start deactivating the ones that already are in existence and move toward the use of alternate energy systems.

Cynic: Would you comment on the land-use plan?

Parenti: In general terms, large chunks of land are being bought up by these large corporations like ITT, and General Motors for the purpose of exercising direct control over the development of communities and jacking up the prices on land. What we need is a massive land-reform program which would take the land out of the hands of these corporations and give it back to the people.

Chittenden Chief Attorney Named Crime Committee Co-Chairman

Chittenden County State's Attorney Patrick J. Leahy has been reappointed co-chairman of the Economic Crime Committee of the National District Attorneys Association. The committee was begun three years ago by the association under Leahy's chairmanship.

The committee now has a regular membership of 15 cities ranging in size and geography from Burlington, Vt. to Los Angeles, Calif. It has handled consumer frauds ranging from fraudulent collection methods to price manipulations by major food chains.

Five prosecuting attorneys, some from the Economic Crime committee and some from the regular membership of the NDAA, were chosen to head a national investigation of the oil industry. State's Attorney Leahy was one of the five chosen.

Numerous grand juries and investigations have been taken jointly by the committee. Grand juries are now sitting in several parts of the country in conjunction with the oil investigation.

State's Attorney Leahy has invited representatives of the cities in the Committee, as well as other cities involved in the joint investigation, to meet with him for several days in Vermont. The meeting will:

1. Compare information on the oil investigation.
2. Plan national strategy in consumer fraud investigation.
3. Evaluate investigations and prosecutions under way including many in Vermont.

Leahy has invited members of the Vermont Attorney General's Consumer Fraud Division as well as other Vermont State's Attorneys to attend. His office has worked closely with the attorney general's office and state's attorneys in connection with several investigations.

On the agenda for the meeting will be specific discussions of FBI procedures, charity solicitation frauds, gas-saving device frauds and consumer legislation.

Leahy, who leave the Chittenden County State's Attorney's office in November, accepted reappointment as co-chairman until that time. He said he will encourage the National District Attorneys Association to continue the use of the Chittenden County State's Attorney's Office as a model pilot office for consumer fraud after he leaves office.

Patrick Forbush Gutterson

The recreational periods at the PFG Complex are for students, faculty, and staff with ID's. If guests are also permitted, UVM people will be unable to play because of the limited facilities.

Big Brother, Big Sister, and Special Passes will be honored, but in general, Sorry! No Guests!

The entire PFG Complex will be shut down on Monday, October 7, to prepare for the expected visit of President Ford at the dinner honoring retiring Vermont Senator George Aiken.

The Patrick Gym will also be closed on Sunday for the additional set-up work required in this area.

The pool, handball courts, track, and tennis courts will be open for the regular weekend recreation schedule, as indicated on the week-end outline.

PATRICK FORBUSH GUTTERSON SCHEDULE — Week End of Oct. 4, 5, & 6

FRIDAY, Oct. 4
GYM — Fac.-Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m. (7–8 children)
POOL — Synchronized Swim Meet; Fac.-Staff Recreation — none
TENNIS — Fac.-Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m. (7–8 Children)
TRACK — Fac.-Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m. (7–8 children)

SATURDAY, Oct. 5
GYM — Student Recreation 1–5 p.m., 7–10:30 p.m.
POOL — Synchronized Swim Meet; Student Recreation — none
TENNIS — Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.; 7–10:30 p.m.
TRACK — Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.; 7–10:30 p.m.

SUNDAY, Oct. 6
GYM — Closed in prep. of Aiken dinner; Student Recreation — none.
POOL — Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
TENNIS — Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
TRACK — Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
HANDBALL AND SQUASH COURTS: By appointment only. Call 3069. All courts repaired and playable.

TUESDAY through FRIDAY
TENNIS COURTS — outdoor courts only.
POOL — 8:30–10:30 p.m. Students
Other facilities 8–9 p.m. Students
These periods may be superseded by varsity activities or special events.

CLASSIFIED

NEW: triangle trading post — Furniture, antiques, books, camping equipment. We buy, sell, trade. 79 Archibald St. 862-4008. Open 9-6, Friday till 8.

For sale: Complete sound system Dynaco 7 watt amp and pre-amp. Sony tape deck & recorder. Two Dalles cabinet speakers. Garrard turntable. Set of tapes. $280.00 or will sell separately. 899-3990.

For Sale: 1968 Saab V4 — Mostly new or rebuilt everything — has Koni shocks, XAS Michelin steel radials, excellently maintained since birth, $1000 negotiable — call 434-2407 anytime.

Motorcycle & Bicycle storage, Pine St., Burlington. For information, call 864-0779 anytime.

For Sale: Authentic American Indian Jewelry. All handmade Navajo, Zuni, Hopi; turquoise, coral, obsidian. Prices extremely low. Call 862-1910, David.

I am looking for Belly dance lessons — if you teach or know of any, please contact Nancy, 93 Jackson Terrace Apts.

Classifieds are run free to all UVM students, faculty and staff. Classified deadline is the Monday night before publication.

Men — Women! JOBS ON SHIPS! No experience required. Excellent pay. Worldwide travel. Perfect summer job or career. Send $3.00 for information. SEAFAX, Dept. U-2 P.O. Box 2049, Port Angeles, Washington 98362.

Tennis Lessons Available — times are flexible — call Ted 658-2305.

For Sale: Fabriano Hiking Boots. Women size 6½ very good condition $10.00, ($30.00 new). Please call Kasey 985-8575.

Deadline for Classifieds is Mon Nite

Final End-of-Season Mobil Tire Clearance Sale

$17.00* +Tax
MOBIL CUSHION NYLON - 4 PLY
• 775x14 — 7 in stock • 735x15 — 2 in stock
• 825x14 — 12 in stock
• 650x13 — 1 in stock • 775x15 — 1 in stock
• 550x14 — 11 in stock

$21.00* +Tax
MOBIL CUSHION 78 BELTED, NYLON & FIBERGLASS
• E78x14 — 1 in stock
• G78x15 — 1 in stock
• C78x14 — 1 in stock

$25.00* +Tax
MOBIL PREMIER POLYESTER — 4 PLY. Dbl. w/w.
• 700x13 — 2 in stock
• 678x15 — 1 in stock • 885x14 — 1 in stock
• 650x13 — 1 in stock • 775x15 — 1 in stock

$29.00* +Tax
MOBIL PREMIER 78, FIBERGLASS BELTED. POLYESTER & FIBERGLASS
• G78x15 — 3 in stock
• J78x14 — 4 in stock
• F78x15 — 3 in stock
• F78x14 — 3 in stock

RADIALS- $39.00*
• GR 70x15 — 4 in stock
• HR 70x14 — 3 in stock

MOBIL CUSHION 78 Nylon
MOBIL STEEL BELTED RADIALS
MOBIL PREMIER BELTED
ALL 10% OFF

SNOW TIRES ARE ARRIVING DAILY
CHECK WITH US FOR PRICES ON YOUR SIZE

* These Tires must go to make room for new stock. Choose any Tire Listed and Pay the Price listed above it. Quantity limited.

Spillane's Servicenter
A FULL SERVICE Mobil STATION
NEXT TO GAYNES ON WILLISTON ROAD
862-2898 863-2898

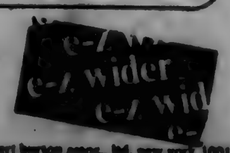
SERVICE IS LIVING TOTALLY THE GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST FOR OTHERS AS AN EDMUNDITE FATHER OR BROTHER. WE'RE DIFFERENT FROM THE SERVICE OF THE NAVY, AIR FORCE AND ARMY.

For free information contact:
Edmundite Admissions Office
Enders Island
Mystic, Connecticut 06355

Rolling 201: HOW TO ROLL BETTER

Required Textbooklet: e-z wider — Prof. E. Z. Jay

This course is open to both beginning and advanced students of hand-rolled cigarettes. Emphasis is on easier, better rolling via the use of E-Z Wider double-width rolling papers. The course exposes the disadvantages of conventional rolling practices such as sticking two regular papers together to roll one smoke. Students will learn that there is no better gummed paper made than E-Z Wider.



© robert burton assoc., ltd. new york 10010

ROTC En... Up Sharp...

Enrollment in UVM's ROTC program is up sharply from last year with the most pronounced gain in the freshman and junior classes.

Freshmen enrollment has increased substantially for the second year in a row, this year's class being one-third larger than last year's, and consisting of 29 men and 20 women.

The junior class increase is a result of several students completing a six-week summer camp at Fort Knox, Ky. This Basic Camp substitutes for the first two years of on-campus instruction.

Total enrollment in the entire ROTC ...more than 5... last fall.

Accordi... Safford, hi... graduate, ... Department ... the increase ... primarily d...

Last yea... opened to ... result that ... freshmen cl... of women, ... with op... leadership ... experiences ... for men, ... opportunity ... commission ...

UVM Grad Wi...

"The Old Red Mill," a 13 minute film made by Yudis Bennett about the old red mill in Jericho, has been awarded First Prize in the National Collegiate Film Competition sponsored by the National Trust for Historic Preservation. Ms. Bennett will receive a $1,300 cash award and will be a guest at the organization's annual meeting in Portland, Oregon, in October, where selected films from the competition will be shown.

The film is a recently

Garbage Collectors' Co...

Back in the annals of history, passerbys of Lambda Iota would notice a strange assortment of intriguing articles on the front lawn at the beginning of each school year. Hub caps to cars, washboards to refrigerators, stools to Castro Convertibles. Long ago, one might fancy an item and buy it.

Today these items of wonderment signal the biggest single social event, which is

... ASCE meeti...

(continued from page two)

oneself in a professional manner. A sizeable crowd was in attendance and all enjoyed the presentation.

On Wednesday, October 23, the parent chapter of ASCE is holding a dinner meeting at Norwich University. A business meeting will follow the steak dinner. Student price for the dinner is $2... business me... Zone Two V... ASCE, will... students int... this meeting... be posted o... second floo... information... Jerry Gor... Student Ch...

Named
tee Co-Chairman

...Leahy has ...of the ..., as well ...d in the ...ent with ...ays in ...will ...ation on ...

...rategy in ...stigation. ...stigations ...der way, ...ment.

...members ...Attorney ... Fraud ...s other ...rneys to ...n worked ...attorney ...d state's ...hon with ...

...for the ...specific ...cedures, ...frauds, ...uds and ...

...on

...ent Ford ...s retiring George ...

...ill also be ...for the ...required ...

...l courts, ...s will be ...weekend ...le, as ...week-end ...

...prep. of Student ...

Student

Student

Student

SQUASH ...ointment ...courts

FRIDAY ...RTS ... ...30 p.m. ...-9 p.m. ...may be ...activities

Leahy, who leave the Chittenden County State's Attorney's office in November, accepted reappointment as co-chairman until that time. He said he will encourage the National District Attorneys Association to continue the use of the Chittenden County State's Attorney's Office as a model pilot office for consumer fraud after he leaves office.

CLASSIFIED

NEW: triangle trading post — Furniture, antiques, books, camping equipment. We buy, sell, trade. 79 Archibald St. 862-4008. Open 9-6, Friday till 8.

For sale: Complete sound system Dynaco 7 watt amp and pre-amp. Sony tape deck & recorder. Two Dallas cabinet speakers. Garrard turntable. Set of tapes. $250.00 or will sell separately. 899-3890.

For Sale: 1968 Saab V4 — Mostly new or rebuilt everything — has Koni shocks, XAS Michelin steel radials, excellently maintained since birth, $1000 negotiable — call 434-2407 anytime.

Motorcycle & Bicycle storage, Pine St., Burlington. For information, call 864-0779 anytime.

For Sale: Authentic American Indian Jewelry. All handmade Navajo, Zuni, Hopi; turquoise, coral, obsidian. Prices extremely low. Call 862-1910, David.

I am looking for Belly dance lessons — if you teach or know of any, please contact Nancy, 93 Jackson Terrace Apts.

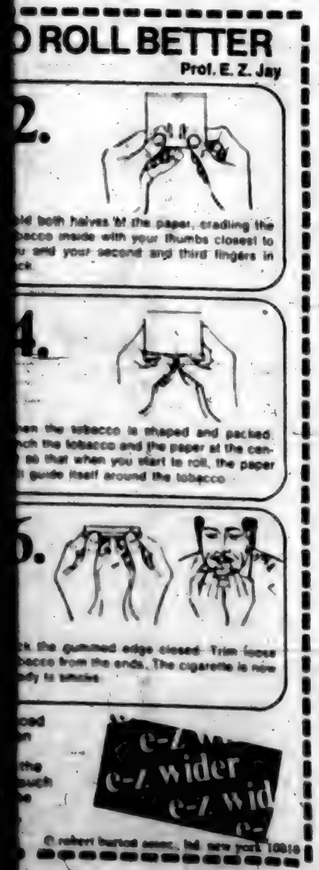
Classifieds are run free to all UVM students, faculty and staff. Classified deadline is the Monday night before publication.

Most — Women! JOBS ON SHIPS! No experience required. Excellent pay. Worldwide travel. Perfect summer job or career. Send $3.00 for information. SEAFAX, Dept. U-2 P.O. Box 2049, Port Angeles, Washington 98362.

Tennis Lessons Available — times are flexible — call Ted 864-3305.

For Sale: Fabriano Hiking Boots. Women size 6½ very good condition $10.00, ($30.00 new). Please call Kacey 985-8575.

Deadline for Classifieds is Mon Nite



ROTC Enrollment Up Sharply This Year

Enrollment in UVM's ROTC program is up sharply from last year with the most pronounced gain in the freshmen and junior classes.

Freshmen enrollment has increased substantially for the second year in a row, this year's class being one-third larger than last year's, and consisting of 29 men and 20 women.

The junior class increase is a result of several students completing a six-week summer camp at Fort Knox, Ky. This Basic Camp substitutes for the first two years of on-campus instruction.

Total enrollment in the entire ROTC program is now more than 50 per cent ahead of last fall.

According to Maj. Donald B. Safford, himself a UVM ROTC graduate, speaking for the Department of Military Studies, the increase in enrollment is primarily due to three factors.

Last year, the program was opened to both sexes with the result that 40 per cent of the freshman class is now composed of women, who were impressed with opportunities for leadership and management experiences formerly reserved for men, and with the opportunity to earn a commission in the Army, Major Safford said.

Secondly, under the leadership of Master Sergeant Eric Anderson, the scope of ROTC has been expanded to include outdoor adventure training. "This popular program includes military rappelling, hiking, rafting, and rock climbing as well as winter survival techniques," he said.

Finally, Major Safford said, "the academic challenge of the ROTC curriculum has continued to grow. As a result of these factors, the ROTC program has become better known and more popular among the University student body."

Dean Corrigan To Co-Head Education Profession Study

A detailed study of the education profession in the U.S., to be conducted under the auspices of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, will be headed by three Association officials and former officials including Dr. Dean C. Corrigan, dean of the University of Vermont College of Education and Social Services.

Dr. Corrigan is a member of the Association Board; he will share responsibility for the "Commission of the Education Profession" with the deans of Colleges of Education at the Universities of Kentucky and Houston.

The three man commission will prepare, by Oct. 1975, a detailed report on "The present situation in the teaching profession with respect to the education of teacher, the quality of teaching service, and the relation between the preparation offered and the service provided."

"The education profession today is a many splintered thing," says Dean Corrigan. "Working together on needed changes which require collaboration by all members of the profession in schools, colleges and local, state, and federal agencies, can produce a united profession."

Other points to be examined in the report include "governance issues" confronting the profession, and means by which the report's recommendations could be "translated into action."

The Association's charge to the commission calls on society either to "recommit itself to education and to schools....or to experience the end of public education as we have known it."

Award For Project At Sugarbush Ski Area

On Wednesday, Sept. 18, the Vermont Section of the American Society of Civil Engineers held its September meeting at the Phoenix Restaurant at the Sugarbush Ski Area.

The highlight of the evening was the awarding of the first annual Outstanding Vermont Civil Engineering Achievement to Sugarbush Ski area as the owner and to DuBois and King, Inc., as the engineer. The award was made for the tertiary waste-water treatment facility which serves the ski area.

The award was presented by the ASCE Board of Directors to recognize annually a civil engineering achievement within Vermont. This award is given for the achievement, not to an individual, so that many engineers who might have worked on the project are recognized as having contributed. The award will be made annually and only engineering and construction achievements within the confines of the state of Vermont are eligible. Only engineering and construction achievements performed by Vermont firms, organizations or agencies in Vermont are eligible. Basis for the award is "An engineering project which demonstrates outstanding engineering skills and represents positive contribution to engineering progress and mankind."

The tertiary treatment process at Sugarbush consists of a "super primary" aerated lagoon followed by phosphorus removal facilities, filter units and chlorination with ultimate disposal of effluent by subsurface disposal.

UVM Grad Wins Film Award

"The Old Red Mill," a 13 minute film made by Yudis Bennett about the old red mill in Jericho, has been awarded First Prize in the National Collegiate Film Competition sponsored by the National Trust for Historic Preservation. Ms. Bennett will receive a $1,300 cash award and will be a guest at the organization's annual meeting in Portland, Oregon, in October, where selected films from the competition will be shown.

The film is a recently completed master's thesis in the M.A. program of the Department of Communication and Theatre, University of Vermont. A Simmons College graduate from Swampscott, Mass., Ms. Bennett has been working on the film project for the past two years. Assisting her have been her thesis advisor Dr. Kim Worden; Dr. David Waire, and Dr. Norman London of the Department of Communication and Theatre; and Blair Williams, Neil Smith, and Dr. Alfred Andrea of the Jericho Historical Society.

"The Old Red Mill" has been shown at the annual conference of the Society for Industrial Archeology in Pittsburgh, Pa., and has been viewed locally on television and at public showings. Narrated by Roger Albright, with an original score by LaVoie and Henderson, the film colorfully portrays the history of the Jericho mill and depicts its unique role as the first grist mill in New England to use the modern roller process instead of the traditional millstone.

Garbage Collectors' Cotillion

Back in the annals of history, passerbys of Lambda Iota would notice a strange assortment of intriguing articles on the front lawn at the beginning of each school year. Hub caps to cars, washboards to refrigerators, stools to Castro Convertibles. Long ago, one might fancy an item and buy it.

Today these items of wonderment signal the biggest single social event, which is about to begin.

The profits of yesteryear's garbage went to the procurement of beer for the brotherhood.

Now they share their twenty-one year old party with everyone on campus providing a band and some beer.

This year become a part of UVM's heritage and visit Lambda Iota's Garbage Collector's Cotillion on October 5.

... ASCE meeting

(continued from page two)

oneself in a professional manner. A sizeable crowd was in attendance and all enjoyed the presentation.

On Wednesday, October 23, the parent chapter of ASCE is holding a dinner meeting at Norwich University. A business meeting will follow the steak dinner. Student price for the dinner is $2.25. Following the business meeting, Ivan Viest, Zone Two Vice-President of the ASCE, will speak. For any students interested in attending this meeting, a sign-up sheet will be posted on the bulletin board, second floor, Votey. For more information on this meeting, see Jerry Gomez, president of Student Chapter of ASCE.

Vermonters In Need Of Dental Care

Do you know how poor dental health is in Vermont?

—50,000 Vermonters have no teeth.

—40,000 are missing at least half of their teeth.

—only half of the schoolchildren see a dentist by their fifteenth birthday.

—over half of the school children have some form of pyorrhea (gum disease)

—forty per cent of inspected children are in urgent need of dental care

VPIRG has formed a project to help alleviate this situation, called the Dental Outreach Program. This program has two main purposes. First, they are informing lower income families about the "toothfairy" bill, which is designed to help those who can't afford the high cost of dental care. They are using many types of outreach: newspapers, public service announcements, door to door campaigning, working through low income groups, etc.

Their second purpose is to educate elementary children in dental health and nutrition, through puppet shows, movie presentations, brush-ins, etc. In order to run this program they need volunteers. If you are interested in improving Vermont's dental health, please call Bruce Schwartz at 863-9881 or 864-3435.

Concert Electronics Co
1161 Williston Road,
South Burlington, Vermont
Near the Ramada Inn
864-0115

ALTEC LANSING Model 710A Stereo Receiver
with a power output of 30 watts per channel.
Regularly priced at $375.00 Our price now $295.00

ALTEC LANSING Model 725A Stereo Receiver
With a power output of 60 watts per channel.
Regularly priced at $599.00 Our price now $450.00

The Scott S11D
Three-Way Speaker System with 10 in. woofer, 4½ in. mid and 1 in. dome tweeter.
Regularly priced at 149.95 each now 112.50 each

The Scott S-42 Two-Way
Speaker System
Were $79.95 each
Now $60.00 each

Mini Vertical
BARGAIN of the MONTH
12.95 VALUE
now 7.88
Automatic Corn Popper
Butter melts, drips down onto popping corn. No-stick inside, clear cover/-server. 4-qt. 25467
WOODBURRY LUMBER
Foot of King St.
862-9601

GIGI
Church St.
Burlington
The BIG Skirt Featured at GIGI only $14.00
Print Crepe de Chine Tops From $8.00
Try Us This Week
Where Only The Look Is Expensive

GREEK WEEK

OCT 6	Convocation
OCT 7	Exchange Dinners
OCT 8	All Pledge Party
OCT 9	Movie Night
OCT 10	Greek Spirit Day
OCT 11	Rotating Cocktail Parties
OCT 12	GREEK GAMES

Smuggler's Notch Ski Area and

FRIENDS OF UVM SKI TEAM

PRESENT

OKTOBERFEST

On Sunday, October 13, 1974

from 1p.m. on at the Village

with

DOWNPOUR

JOHN CASSEL

SASS

CHEAP BEER ON PREMISES

Admissions:

1.00 Friends of UVM Ski Team Raffle Ticket only

Tickets Available At:

Local Ski Shops
Rm. 201 Patrick Gym
Ski Team Members and
At The Door !!

MADONNA BASE LODGE
IN CASE OF RAIN

IRA, Residence Hall Government Works To Improve Dorm Life

by Pam Hagerth

IRA has been in existence for four to five years as a residence hall government which works closely with the office of Residence Halls.

The executive board of IRA is comprised of five people. This counsel has already met four times since the election which was held recently. The elected officers are Ken Bartlett – President, Ann Cassavant – Vice President for Financial Affairs, Karen Fleishel – Vice President for Social and Cultural Affairs, Rich Warner – Treasurer, and Candy Peck – Secretary.

In talking with President Ken Bartlett, he voiced his opinion that this would be "a strong year for IRA." He feels the newly elected representatives will be shown to be hard and forceful workers, and that the leadership possibilities seem better.

Bartlett outlined the financial position of IRA. The group has a budget of $12,000 with which to work, $8000 of which goes directly to dorms for social functions mainly. This leaves IRA $4000 to allocate for various projects and programs.

IRA has already accomplished some very notable projects so far this semester. Freshmen Week was one of these to which IRA allocated $2300. Many functions during this week, planned by IRA, were well attended and enjoyed by numerous freshmen.

IRA also assisted in planning the Outerspace Band concert which was held in early September on Redstone Green.

In the past, specifically last year, IRA gave the Rugby team $500 with which to purchase new jerseys and gave the lacrosse club $500 also. There is money existing which is for the asking by clubs and programs.

Weekly meetings of all IRA dorm representatives are held every Monday night. Paul Stonely is the faculty advisor for IRA. President Bartlett feels this is a plus for the group because of Stonely's close position with the Residence Hall staff. Hopefully, Bartlett feels, this will help alleviate last year's poor attendence problem. If the representative from a particular dorm does not attend a few meetings, Stonely can call the Resident Advisor and find out the reasons for the representative's absence. Action would then be taken accordingly.

An IRA dinner was held recently at which Bartlett outlined some of the goals of IRA this year. IRA is presently working with the Resident Advisors from the dorms on Octoberfest which will be held soon on Redstone Campus. IRA funds will be allocated for this function.

IRA also is working with SAGA to iron out questions concerning the new meal plan. They recently drew up a list of areas they felt were wrong with the new plan.

The "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" evening scheduled for October 27th is being jointly sponsored by IRA and the Women of UVM. This night provides an opportunity for the faculty and the students to get better acquainted. In the past this has been well supported by the faculty who invite students to their homes for dinner or share other activities.

IRA is considering working with the Student Association in organizing a Winter Week at UVM in the hopes of making it somewhat similar to Winter Week at Dartmouth. This function was not well supported last year, but there is hope for more success this winter.

IRA is also considering helping the Outing Club out with the popular Winooski Raft Race. Because of the large turnout at the race in the past, IRA may try to make a weekend of the affair, possibly having a dance, picnic, and a major concert. IRA also would like to assist the Outing Club in hurdling some legal problems surrounding the race.

President Bartlett outlined some overall goals for IRA this year. Already started are the major projects they are planning. IRA also will help smaller groups on campus, such as students wanting to start a pottery shop for instance, by allocating them funds.

The final hope of IRA is to become better known about on campus. Bartlett stated that IRA would like to improve residential living and establish more interaction among the various dorms.

Student Air Fares Still In Existence

Some student air fares to Europe are still in effect. Youth fares and other reduced air fares being sold in Canada and Mexico, and continued use of school charter flights all make Europe still very much available to travel minded college students even in the face of ever increasing international air fares. As always, students living in the eastern states have less to pay than students at western schools.

Also, lower winter rates offer skiers inexpensive trips to Austrian and Swiss slopes. One student ski trip is only $550 including the round flight ticket and accommodations during two weeks on the Austrian slopes. General American tourism to Europe was off somewhat this past summer. As a result, many Austrian ski resorts are dropping their rates for the winter ski crowd. Also, the steady climb of the U.S. dollar against falling European currencies further decreases the cost of a trip to Europe.

For students staying in Europe longer than a two-week ski fling, temporary jobs are available. Most jobs are in restaurants, hotels, and skill resorts. Standard wages are paid, but the big saving is the free room and board that goes with each job.

Any interested student may obtain free travel information and job application form by writing to SOS, 22 Ave. de la Liberte, Luxemborg, Europe. Job processing can be hastened by obtaining and holding 3 passport size photos and a letter of recommendation from a teacher or school official.

The Next Thing Presents October Workshops

The following October workshops will be presented by The Next Thing in conjunction with the Center for Human Potential and Mind Resources. Most of the sessions will be in their space at 73 Church St. and will cost $2 registration fee. For exceptions, general information, registrations, or complete catalogs, call, write or drop by THE NEXT THING at 73 Church St., 862-2013.

Our Bodies, Our Selves – A Workshop in Body Awareness for women with Nancy Koch. Tuesday, October 8, 7–11 p.m.

Through experiential exercises and group discussion, we will look at ways we think and feel about our bodies, how we feel about giving and receiving physical caring, and together rediscover our potential to be fully alive, healthy, joyful Selves.

Hypnosis and ASC – with Associates in Parapsychology. Wednesday, October 9, 7:30 p.m.

Ken Miller and Steve Rising will be your guides into the fascinating and rewarding world of hypnosis and auto-suggestion. Workshops will include presentations, demonstrations, discussions, experimentation, and total group exploration and participation in depth trance experiences. Emphasis will be placed on the practical aspects and utilization of hypnosis as a survival tool and instrument of creative change in every day life.

The Five Element Theory and The Unique Principle – with Lee Zepp. 4 Wednesdays, October 9, 16, 23, and 30, 6:30 – 9:30 p.m. at the Threshold space, 65 Main St., $2 per session if possible.

"It takes a great bonding force to balance the great expansion." It is due to this difficulty in maintaining equilibrium that all kinds of sickness arise. We will attempt to understand and relate to our own lives the Five Element Theory and The Unique Principle which are basic to all forms of eastern medicine. Included in the course will be an overview of their relation to diet, herbs, massage, exercise, environment, etc. This will be followed by a course on alternatives – in – healing in combination with Danny Mayer and The Well Body Course.

The Well Body Course – with Danny Mayer, MD. 4 Wednesdays, October 9, 16, 23, and 30, 6:30 – 9:30 p.m., at the Threshold space, 65 Main St., $2 per session.

Through a series of meditations and exercises, we will explore the healthy functioning of our bodies. We will contact an imaginary doctor within ourselves who will be an advisor for us on matters of our own health. This will be followed by a course on alternatives in healing.

Astrological Interpretation – with Marc Bregman. Thursdays, October 10th onward, 7:30 p.m., $2.00 per month, at Threshold space.

Includes: Humanistic and Esoteric levels which is inclusive of Jungian psychology and theosophical philosophy. This Class will attempt to explore the deeper regions of man's nature as well as the macro-cosmic reasons for it through the system of Astrology.

Exploring Personal Power in Everyday Life – with Steve Cahill. Thursday, October 10, 7:30 p.m.

Simple things, like asking to be alone when that's what we need, are expressions of our personal power. The more powerful we are the more ok we feel; and that's neat. An evening of exploring, sharing and working.

Potluck Supper – with The Next Thing. Friday, October 11, 6 p.m.

Good times, good food, good company! We'd like everyone to get together for an evening of fun and sharing our favorite foods. Bring your favorite dish (or a daring new one to try on other people).

Creative Risk-Taking – with John Perry. Friday and Saturday, October 11 and 12, 7 p.m. – 6 p.m. at The Center for Human Potential in East Monkton (30 mins. south of UVM) 453-3660, $5 deposit 1 week ahead, $5 for food due on arrival; please make checks for this workshop out to C.H.P.

Creative Risk-Taking – or the art of exercising Freedom and Dignity. Although we give lip-service to personal concepts of freedom, we often fail to exercise that freedom in daily life-decisions, resorting to our habits or the external demands of others. This workshop will explore opportunities to leave our old identities & habits behind, and risk new ways of being in the world.

This will be an overnight workshop; food and lodging will be provided; bring sleeping bags. Indicate any special dietary needs with application, also any transportation needs/offers. We will meet at 146 S. Williams St. at 6 p.m. (after dinner) to drive down together.

Yoga – with Phil Milgrom. Mondays, from October 14 onward. 4–6 p.m., donations only.

This on-going Yoga workshop will provide an opportunity for achieving a comfortable relaxed state near the end of the week, when it's very useful. We will combine proper breathing, some practices from Arica, and spiritual aspects of Yoga with the exercises. There will be at least 10 minutes of discussion each session. New People are welcome anytime.

Four Do-It-Yourself Workshops for Women – with the Women's Switchboard. 3 Mondays and Friday, Oct. 14, 21, & 28, & Nov. 1, 7:30 p.m.

Open to women only. Women skilled in these areas will conduct the workshops to further strengthen and support women

(continued on page six)

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE

INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 862-7686

FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS

- Fine work on American cars
- Firestone tires • Exide Batteries
- Front end alignment • Spin balancing
- Undercoating • Engine rebuilding

INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES

VW BRAKE JOB $49.95
Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 turn drums, rebuild 4 wheel cylinders. Discs $10 additional.

VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

UVM Goalie Jim Taft deflects a Bridgeport shot

Bridgeport UVM Socc

by Norm Robinson

The University of Vermont soccer squad was probably disappointed by the 4-1 loss to Bridgeport this past Saturday, but they need not be ashamed. The Cats went up against an excellent and impressive soccer team. Any of the teams who attended the contest could not help but notice the play of Kevin Welsh, who led the Knights with two goals.

Vermont controlled the early part of the first half, but with a stiff wind in their faces, could only manage three shots on goal. Jon Kosner had the only scoring bid, when he fired one across the goal mouth that Knight goalie, Eric Swallow deflected.

Bridgeport scored their first goal – actually were given their first goal – when UVM goalie Jim Taft went after the loose ball in front of the net and slipped. Don Downs got to the ball ahead of Taft and put it home.

Kevin Welsh put on a show soon after the first goal. At the twenty-six minute mark, he dribbled by several Vermont defenders and fired the ball past Taft and Vermont trailed 2-0 at the half.

Vermont had the wind in the second half but could do little with the advantage. Bridgeport made it 3-0 on a goal at the 11:11 mark. Hugh O'Neil tired one int past the outs just manage the ball.

Welsh Bridgeport picked up t own shot an home.

The Kn superb throu Vermont co sustained att game when talled with remaining. G Steve Rapia replaced Sw Rapiapiel m and could no stop Goodma Vermont latter part of too little, t totaled 15 sh 21, while Te Swallow fo three.

Te

(continued

Doubles

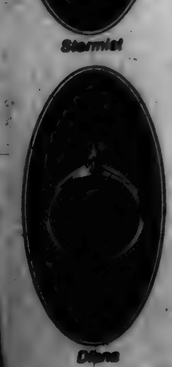
over Yous Lenci-E Peterson-Pe Scarlata-Gi Jeff Dubu 6-4.

PRESTON'S presents

Orange Blossom Diamond Rings

Symbol of a Dream

Fleurette



Starlet

Dijna

R.J. PRESTON & SON, Inc.

nment
e Dorm Life

ill be held mpus IRA ed for this king with questions

neral plan ng a list of rong with

's Coming to be aired ning jointly and the
This night
nity for the dents to get
In the past pported by ite students dance or ng working nentation in r Week at d making it to Winter outh. This ll supported is hope for more success this winter.

IRA is also considering helping the Outing Club out with the popular Winooski Raft Race. Because of the large turnout at the race in the past, IRA may try to make a weekend of the affair, possibly having a dance, picnic, and a major concert. IRA also would like to assist the Outing Club in handling some legal problems surrounding the race.

President Bartlett outlined some overall goals for IRA this year. Already started are the major projects they are planning. IRA also will help smaller groups on campus, such as students wishing to start a pottery shop for instance, by allocating them funds.

The final hope of IRA is to become better known about on campus. Bartlett stated that IRA would like to improve residential living and establish more interaction among the various dorms.

Still In Existence

only $550
flight ticket
ens during e Austrian
"American
e was off summer. As strian ski their rates rowd. Also,
of the U.S. n European creases the pe.
staying in a two-week
y jobs are available. Most jobs are in restaurants, hotels, and skill resorts. Standard wages are paid, but the big saving is the free room and board that goes with each job.

Any interested student may obtain free travel information and job application form by writing to SOS, 22 Ave. de la Liberte, Luxemborg, Europe. Job processing can be hastened by obtaining and holding 3 passport size photos and a letter of recommendation from a teacher or school official.

Workshops

ercises, we healthy bodies. We imaginary selves who for us on health. This a course on ol.
reation
Thursdays,
ward, 7:30
month, at antific and is inclusive ology and sophy. This explore the an's nature

acro-cosmic rough the Power in with Steve

October 10.

ho asking to
's what we ons of our
The more more ok we
An evening
aring" and

with The
. October

ood food.
We'd like ther for an sharing our aring your aring new f people).

g with day and
1 and 12, 7
Center for in East south of deposit I

week ahead. $5 for food due on arrival. please make checks for this workshop out to C.H.P.

Creative Risk-Taking — or the art of exercising Freedom and Dignity. Although we give lip-service to personal concepts of freedom, we often fail to exercise that freedom in daily life decisions, resorting to our habits or the external demands of others. This workshop will explore opportunities to leave our old identities & habits behind, and risk new ways of being in the world.

This will be an overnight workshop; food and lodging will be provided, bring sleeping bags. Indicate any special dietary needs with application, also any transportation needs/offers. We will meet at 146 S. Williams St. at 6 p.m. (after dinner) to drive down together.

Yoga — with Phil Milgrom. Mondays, from October 14 onward. 4 to 6 p.m., donations only.

This on-going Yoga workshop will provide an opportunity for achieving a comfortable relaxed state near the end of the week, when it's very useful. We will combine proper breathing, some practices from Arica, and spiritual aspects of Yoga with the exercises. There will be at least 10 minutes of discussion each session. New People are welcome anytime.

Four Do-It-Yourself Workshops for Women – with the Women's Switchboard. 3 Mondays and Friday, Oct. 14, 21, & 28, & Nov. 1. 7:30 p.m.

Open to women only. Women skilled in these areas will conduct the workshops to further strengthen and support women.

(continued on page six)

E'S
OTIVE
862-7686
INCLUDING
THE FINEST
IN SEMPERIT
RADIAL TIRES
REPAIR STS wheel balancing rebuilding
VW Beetle
Exhaust
Complete
$29.95

UVM Goalie Jim Taft deflects a Bridgeport shot. SPS Photo: Dick Low

Bridgeport Team Beats UVM Soccer Squad 4-1

by Norm Robinson

The University of Vermont soccer squad was probably disappointed by the 4-1 loss to Bridgeport this past Saturday, but they need not be ashamed. The Cats went up against an excellent and impressive soccer team. Any of the teams who attended the contest could not help but notice the play of Kevin Welsh, who led the Knights with two goals.

Vermont controlled the early part of the first half, but with a stiff wind in their faces, could only manage three shots on goal. Jon Koener had the only scoring bid, when he fired one across the goal mouth that Knight goalie, Eric Swallow deflected.

Bridgeport scored their first goal — actually were given their first goal — when UVM goalie Jim Taft went after the loose ball in front of the net and slipped. Don Downs got to the ball ahead of Taft and put it home.

Kevin Welsh put on a show soon after the first goal. At the twenty-six minute mark, he dribbled by several Vermont defenders and fired the ball past Taft and Vermont trailed 2-0 at the half.

Vermont had the wind in the second half but could do little with the advantage. Bridgeport made it 3-0 on a goal at the 11:11 mark. Hugh O'Neil fired one into the upper corner past the outstretched Taft who just managed to get a hand on the ball.

Welsh finished the Bridgeport scoring when he picked up the rebound of his own shot and rammed the ball home.

The Knight defense was superb throughout the contest. Vermont could not muster a sustained attack until late in the game when Scott Goodman tallied with nine minutes remaining. Goodman's goal beat Steve Rapispisi who had just replaced Swallow in the goal. Rapispisi missed a clearing pass and could not recover in time to stop Goodman's shot.

Vermont came on in the latter part of the game but it was too little, too late. The Cats totaled 15 shots to Bridgeport's 21, while Taft had eight saves, Swallow four, and Rapispisi three.

Bridgeport was definitely the better team Saturday. Their defense was outstanding and their passing just marvelous. With short crisp passes they moved through the Vermont defense almost at will. The ball was constantly in the Vermont end and the Knights pressure was too much for the UVM defense.

The contest was also very physical as the Knight's Bob Hogan will attest. UVM's Rick Taylor met heads with Hogan late in the game and Hogan went down. It was later reported that he received a gash in the head and was taken to the hospital by the UVM rescue squad.

Vermont is now 1-2 on the season and Bridgeport, ranked fourth in New England behind Brown, UConn, and Springfield is 2-1. The Cats next game is on Saturday against Boston University in Boston.

Tennis...

(continued from page twelve)

Doubles: Hilmer-Moorhead over Young-Mattran 6-2, 6-2. Lenci-Delaney over Peterson-Peterson 6-2, 6-4. Scarlats-Gary McGraff (C) over Jeff Duluca-Turban 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Schwartz On Sports...

(continued from page twelve)

elimination of the reserve clause and the rights to have legitimate unions.

But they also have gained financially. The average basketball player makes about $50,000. They have gained commercial endorsements, good fringe benefits, and substantial retirement plans.

The raiding of talent becomes more of a burden. Legal entanglements begin such as when Bill Bergey jumped leagues and jumped back. Another case is John Maruzak of the Houston Oilers who jumped to the Houston Texans-- Shreveport Steamer and had a court order handed to him at halftime during a game. Soon teams will be in the courts more than on the field. Not only is there the player raid case, but also the bankruptcy case.

In my view, such nonsense is not needed. It doesn't help create fan interest but hinders it. Teams start to exaggerate actual paid attendance figures to create a semblance of optimism. They try to hold on just a little longer so as to play in Yankee Stadium or get that one name player. And when that name player comes, what happens to the marginal player? He has been hurt already by his status in sports. Now he will go back further in anonymity as the publicity goes to Csonka, Kiick, and Randy Johnson.

Raiding keeps on going. Utah signs a high school player whose immaturity was evident from an article reported in the New York Times – when someone notified him that a recruiter from college was coming, he hid behind a couch in his house. This year he will be playing (or warming the bench) in the pros.

But if somehow the WFL exists, the public will have another chance to see if success can be built up correctly or through devious means. The WFL is somehow planning expansion into New York in 1976 when Yankee Stadium is available.

We'll just have to wait and see. I would rather see action on the field from viable opponents. I don't like to see more court cases and musical teams. Recent WFL and WHA experience just isn't worth it.

Rugby Victories ---

(continued from page twelve)

control the ball consistently and feed it out to the backs who were able to put the ball within scoring distance. With twenty minutes left in the game, Keene committed a series of costly errors which led to UVM converting on four of five penalty kicks.

UVM's scoring began when Jim Peckham kicked a 25-yard penalty kick for three points. In the next five minutes, Vermont was able to capitalize on three more penalties with Marcel Bergeron, the team's captain, converting on all three kicks from 20, 25, and 32 yards. All of Bergeron's kicks were drop kicks, a rarity in American rugby.

Saturday, UVM hosts Albany Law School at the Archie Post Field at 2:00.

Meanwhile, the UVM "B" team defeated the Norwich "B" team by a count of 12-6. All Vermont scoring was done in the first half with Jim Cottrill scoring a four point try with a 15-yard run with a two point conversion added by Jim Peckham. Peckham later added two penalty kicks for six points. Norwich came back with two penalty kicks in the second half.

A UVM "C" team defeated a Norwich freshman squad by a 24-0 score.

Women's Sports News This Week

In their season's opener against Middlebury College, the UVM girl's tennis team lost to Middlebury College 5-2. The result was an upset as the women had defeated Middlebury twice during the 1973 season.

Nancy Mullen, the number three singles player, and Kate Howard, the number five singles performer, brought in the only wins in this match.

The next day the girls came back for a 4-3 victory over Albany State. The following are the results of that match:

Singles: Debi Bloom (UVM) over Louise Lorvitt 6-2, 6-3. Terri Kerman over Shelley Hanafee (UVM), 6-3, 2-6, 7-5. Nancy Mullen (UVM) over Bonnie Rawitz 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Claire Goldner over Kate Howard (UVM) 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. Linda Hallowell (UVM) over Diane Goodstein 6-0, 6-4. Chris Capp (UVM) over Melissa Chiney 6-3, 6-3.

Doubles: Terry Genehan and Doris Burre over Sarah Graver and Diana Brandt (UVM) 7-5, 6-3.

●●●●●●●

The UVM Women's Field Hockey team was off to a soaring start this season as they defeated Castleton State College, 4-0.

The game was scoreless in the first half until Ann Margolis, center forward for the Catamounts, slid one past the Castleton goalie with five minutes to play in the half. Margolis scored another goal with a third score by Lynne LaRose, in the second half.

The defense held its ground throughout the game and kept the opposing team from scoring despite poor field conditions near the goal cages.

In a "B" team game the Cats again dominated with a 7-0 victory. Sally Frowley scored two goals along with two for Pat Titus. Other goal scorers were Sue Perne, Judy Ketchum and Ellie Cooke.

The junior varsity then won its second game in a row 6-3 against Green Mountain.

●●●●●●●

In their season opener, last Friday afternoon, the UVM girls Varsity soccer team soundly defeated Keene State, 3-1.

The first goal, in the first quarter, was made by center forward, Sue Durkee. Lynne DelBianco came through with the second goal in the third quarter. The scoring was concluded in the fourth quarter on a long shot from deep in the corner by wing Barb Pulling.

The team was able to play good offense with effective passing while the defense also played excellently. Fullbacks Jenny Raney and Meg Phillips along with halfbacks Cindy Roberts and Gail LeBaron held Keene scoreless until late in the fourth quarter.

THIS WEEK'S WOMEN'S SPORTS SCHEDULE

Field Hockey (all games at Redstone green)
October 4 — Bridgewater – Home 4:00 p.m.
October 8 — Lyndon State – Home 3:30 p.m.
October 10 — Plymouth State - Home 3:30 p.m.

Varsity Soccer
October 8 — Castleton – Aw

Varsity Tennis
October 8 — Lyndon State -Home 3:30 p.m.

BEVERAGE WAREHOUSE
FANTASTIC SELECTION OF BEERS, ALES, AND AMERICAN & IMPORTED WINES AT GREAT SAVINGS

Pants Plus
LEVI STRAUSS & CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
ORIGINAL RIVETED
QUALITY CLOTHING
XX
TRADE MARK
Lot S501XX WEC L3.
10% off with valid UVM Student ID
Trader's Way
12 N. WINOOSKI AVE.
864-0181

PRESTON'S presents
Orange Blossom Diamond Rings
Symbol of a Dream
Fleurette
Starmist
Diana
L.L. Preston & Sons

MAGRAMS
Announcing JEANS-IN
Magrams new jeanery!
JEANS
JEANS-IN THE NEW MAGRAMS EXPERIENCE.

UNIVERSITY STORE
ON THE CAMPUS
CURRENT BESTSELLERS
ONCE IS NOT ENOUGH
Jacqueline Susann
THE GULAG ARCHIPELAGO
Alexsandr I. Solzhenitsyn
SYBIL
Flora Rheta Shreiber
THE HOLLOW HILLS
Mary Stewart
THE ONION FIELD
Joseph Wambaugh
THE HONORARY CONSUL
Graham Greene
WORLD WITHOUT END, AMEN
Jimmy Breslin
THE WAY TO DUSTY DEATH
Alistar MacLean
THE BEGGARS ARE COMING
Mary Loos
UPSTAIRS AT THE WHITE HOUSE
J.B. West
GOWER STREET
Claire Rayner
THE TOWER
Richard Martin Stern
NORTH DALLAS FORTY
Peter Gent
SUNSHINE
Norman Klein
THE JOY OF SEX
Dr. Alex Comfort
BOOKS
NEW & NOTABLE
HOW TO BE YOUR OWN BEST FRIEND
Mildred Newman & Bernard Berkowitz
PLAIN SPEAKING
Merle Miller
BEULAH LAND
Lonnie Coleman
THE SECRET LIFE OF PLANTS
Peter Tompkins & Christopher Bird
COME NINEVEH, COME TYRE
Allen Drury
THE SALAMANDER
Morris West
POSTERN OF FATE
Agatha Christie
THE INTIMATE DIARY OF LINDA
Linda Lovelace with Carl Wallin
PERTIMENTO
THE WILDEST HEART
Rosemary Rogers
SHRINK!
Dr. Theodore Isaac Rubins
AFTER
Robert Anderson
THE CALIFORNIOS
Louis L'Amour
CALIFORNIA SPLIT
Lou Cameron
SHADOW OF A LADY
Joan Aiken Hodge
SIGHT & SOUND SALE
Ends Tomorrow
Panasonic Sony
Hitachi SoundDesign
RING DAY
Siladium Rings by JOHN ROBERTS
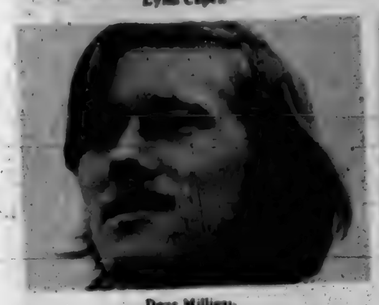
Representatives in the Store
TODAY & TOMORROW

Lynn Capen

Mike Berry



Dave Milligan

Bob Graves

X-Country Team Breaks Course Record; Rout SLU

by David J. Raneri

The UVM Cross Country team had a record breaking performance this weekend as they defeated St. Lawrence University, 15-50. Four UVM harriers, Bob Graves, Lynn Capen, Dave Milligan, and Mike Berry tied for first place and set a new course record of 24:49.8. The old record for the St. Lawrence 4.8 mile course was 24:54.

The placings behind these four were Bob Stoehr, Howdy Russell, Dave Elliott and Kevin McMahon. The key to the victory was the excellent grouping of the top eight runners.

The cross country team now 2-1 in dual meets. On Wednesday the team ran against Plattsburgh and Clarkson at Plattsburgh in a triangular meet. On Saturday, the Cats will host UConn at 11:00.

SCHWARTZ ON SPORTS

by Mike Schwartz

The economics of sports is a very interesting issue. At all levels of the sports hierarchy costs, salaries, and deals involving huge sums of money are beyond comprehension. When expansion enters the scene, these costs and deals wind up hurting more than helping those concerned whether it be the fan, the advertiser, the player, and the owner. It's almost like the status of politics where huge sums of money are necessary to run an adequate campaign.

There is now an effort to control campaign financing through legislation and voluntary limitations. There is also a need to stop ridiculous expansion policies in sport that do not serve the ultimate purpose of expanding the interest of sports.

Looking at the WFL in recent weeks is just a case in point. The New York Stars have just moved to Charlotte, North Carolina. They lost 2 million dollars in New York and could not establish a base of support. Hoping to move in Yankee Stadium after renovations are completed on that ballpark, the Stars could not exist on the fan support they received. In a city of 8 million people, the team averaged about 10,000 fans per game.

The team had to play in a small, antiquated ballpark on an island in the East River. This location despite the thousands of dollars on renovations to the stadium could not help the team survive. The effort failed and the team has moved. But it did point out the importance of the New York market to the sports expansionists.

New York has become the focal point of success of any league. It has the biggest television market and population base in the United States. When Joe Namath signed with the Jets and the team moved to Shea Stadium, the American Football League was on its way to merger and equity with the National Football League. The same goes for the New York Nets of basketball. After years of losing and moving from town to town in the metropolitan area, the team moved into the Nassau Coliseum. They have won the championship and finally have an adequate fan base of support.

But just like the Stars, another New York expansion team couldn't do it. The World Hockey Association Raider team could not attract fans to Madison Square Garden. This past year they became the Golden Blades under new owners. But by mid-season they were playing in New Jersey because they couldn't get the fans and pay the costs that go with playing in New York. This year they will play out of San Diego.

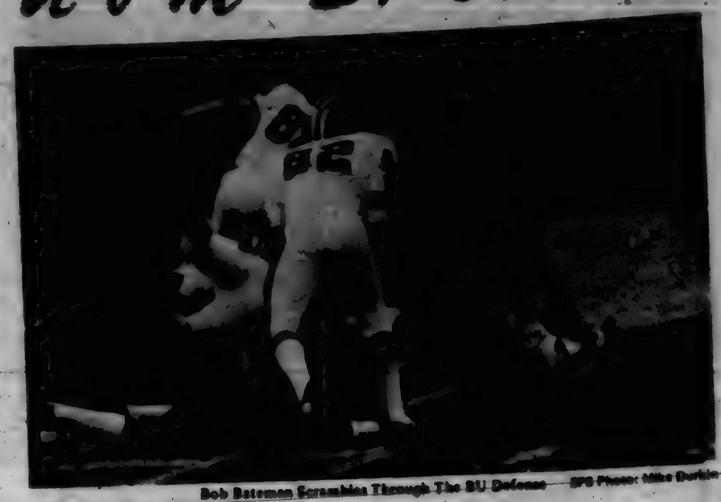
Back in the WFL, the plight of the expansion team goes beyond New York. The Houston franchise could not attract fans to the Astrodome and now play in Shreveport, Louisiana. The Detroit franchise has filed for bankruptcy and the Portland team is also on the verge of financial disaster. One of the Florida franchises seeks to move to Georgia and play in a large college stadium. After this year either a few teams will go, or musical teams will continue anew.

In the end, how do these teams hope to succeed? This is done with outrageous contracts to any player willing to play out an option. Thus the Team Canada playing for the WHA sounds like the NHL (Cheevers, Mahovolich, Howe, Hull, etc.) and next year the WFL hopes to sound like Csonka, Kiick, Warfield, Lamonica, and others.

Players deserve the freedom to negotiate. They deserve adequate compensation for their short careers. They deserve the

(continued on page eleven)

UVM SPORTS



Bob Bateman Scrambles Through The BU Defense — SPS Photos: Mike Durkin

BU Beats UVM 29-6 Behind Strong Running

by Gary Brooks

In front of 3950 fans Saturday at Centennial Field, the University of Boston Terriers, with a potent running attack and a tough defense beat the University of Vermont 29-6. Tailback Glen Murphy, with an outstanding performance of 203 yards rushing, carried the load for the Boston University offense. BU fullback George Katapodis chipped in with 83 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Katapodis scored his first touchdown from the BU two-yard line early into the second quarter after a 17-play 99 yard drive by the Terriers. Kicker Terry Ziritidis made the extra point good and the score was BU 7 and UVM 0.

Fullback Joe Driscall scored BU's second TD at 7:23 of the second quarter on a one yard plunge up the middle. This capped an 80 yard drive which took nine plays. The score stayed BU 14 and UVM 0 up to halftime.

At 1:31 of the third quarter, Rick Porter, BU's left linebacker, picked off one of the three interceptions the Terrier defense made off of Bateman. Porter took it in from the UVM 35 and with tailback George Strandberg rushing for the two points, the score was BU 22 and UVM 0.

UVM's only score of the day came on a blocked punt at 6:25 of the fourth quarter. Joe Reed blocked the punt on the BU 19 yard line and Duke Snodgrass recovered in the end zone for the tally. Bateman's pass for two points failed so the score stayed at 22-6 in favor of Boston.

The final score of the game came at 11:58 of the fourth quarter when Katapodis scored his second touchdown of the day. He ran it in from 52 yards out. The kick was good and made the score final at 29-6.

The tempo of the game for Vermont was set right up from the opening kickoff. After a 32 yard return by Larry Lockwood to the BU 45 and a first down run by Sam Blood to the 33, an intended pass by Bob Bateman for Billy Looker was intercepted by BU safety Al Ramos in the end zone.

Boston got possession on their twenty yard line, and with Glen Murphy running, got to the Vermont 47 when Murphy fumbled. Right tackle Fred Fournier recovered for Vermont.

From there, Vermont put together its first and only drive of the day, with fullback Mike McAllister running and QB Bateman hitting Blood coming out of the backfield, UVM found themselves on the BU 9 yard line with a first down. Three plays later, they were a yard away from a touchdown. On fourth and one, McAllister went straight into the line and was stopped. BU took control of the ball and marched to their first score of the game.

One problem the Cats had all day was the offensive line's inability to contain the persistant pass rush of the Terrier's. Bateman was sacked seven times behind the line of scrimmage for a total loss of 63 yards. This lack of time to set up also forced Bateman to hurry his passes and resulted in a poor percentage day for him, 7 completions in 19 attempts for a paltry 85 yards.

Two positive performances of the day for UVM came from Larry Lockwood and Billy Looker. Lockwood turned four kickoffs for 127 yards. He could have easily gone all the way on two of them. Also the punting of Looker was superb when he boomed two punts, one for 60 yards and another for 65 yards, both season highs for him.

Three Rugby Wins For Cats

The University of Vermont rugby team rebounded from last week's 30-0 loss to New Hampshire by defeating previously unbeaten Keene State by a 12-6 margin.

UVM played poorly in the beginning of the first half. Lack of organization was attributed to the loss of four experienced players to injuries in last week's game. Keene State gained a 6-0 lead within the first five minutes on two converted penalty kicks.

Afterwards, UVM's defense was able to contain Keene State and prevented any further scoring.

During the second half, UVM was able to take charge of the game and played most of the first half in Keene State's end of the field. Vermont forwards led by senior Jim Garnet was able to

(continued on page eleven)

Tennis Team Beats UConn

The UVM men's tennis team scored a convincing victory this past Friday, as they defeated Connecticut 7-2 at Storrs. The racquetmen now head to Princeton for the ECAC tournament.

The Cats won five of six singles matches and two of the three doubles contests. The top two singles players, Jay Moorehead and Dick Hilmer, set the pace as they both won straight set matches. They then teamed in doubles to defeat Pete Young and Don Mattran, 6-2, 6-2.

The scores of the match are as follows:

Singles: Moorhead (UVM) over Young 6-2, 6-4. Hilmer (UVM) over Ken Peterson 6-1, 6-2. Tom Lenci (UVM) over Rick Scarlata 6-2, 4-6, 6-0. Bruce Marks (C) over Kevin Delaney 1-6, 7-6, 6-3. Scott Turban (UVM) over Don Mattran 6-1, 6-2. Tag Carpenter (UVM) over Jim Peterson 7-5, 6-4.

(continued on page eleven)

KINGSLAND BAY RESTAURANT & LOUNGE Tel. 877-2929
5 miles west of Route 7 Ferrisburg - Follow signs to Ecole Champlain fri, sat, sun. Dining 6-9 Dancing 8-1
SPECIAL AUTMN EVENTS
PINE ISLAND STRING BAND OCT. 5
HARVEST DINNER SQUARE DANCING OCT. 12

THE NEW MADMAN MURRAY'S BARGAIN CENTER FOR RECORDS&TAPES
Come in and try our new SOUND BOOTH. Listen before you buy.
★—Each week, top 40 album will be given away.
★—Each week the NO .1 album on Billboard chart will be sold at $2.99 regardless of list price.
★—Each week we will have the same low,low, prices.
THOUSANDS OF $1.99 RECORDS
Thousands of tapes for only $2.91
Each week we will always find what you want BECAUSE YOU'RE OUR FAVORITE PEOPLE!!!
Come on down to MADMAN MURRAY'S and compare.
MADMAN MURRAY'S BARGAIN CENTER FOR RECORDS,TAPES and EQUIPMENT
7 Mechanics Lane ,Between Bessey's Bookstore and Gover's Appliance Store.
864-5719

LOVE IS
Love is a giving thing. so give the gift of love . . . a Keepsake diamond ring. Choose from perfect solitaires, beautiful matched sets and trios. Modern and traditional settings in precious 14K gold. Keepsake, there is no finer diamond ring.
Keepsake
HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING
KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, BOX 90, SYRACUSE, N.Y. 13201

VALUABLE COUPON
SPECIAL TO STUDENTS AND FACULTY MEMBERS
10% DISCOUNT
ON YOUR PURCHASES AT
CAMPUS PHARMACY
ACROSS FROM The Medical Center

Major De... T...

A coalition of organizations and individuals calling itself "Vermonters For Justice" today announced plans for a major demonstration on October 10 to protest President Gerald Ford's visit to Burlington. The coalition describes itself as non-partisan and a grass-roots organization whose goal is to provide a forum in which Vermonters can effectively express that they are no more willing to accept a double standard of justice under Ford than they were under the Nixon administration.

The demonstration is being called in response to what the group termed "widespread anger and disillusionment over the pardon of Nixon and the continued coverup of Watergate and the other events this action jentails as well as Ford's phony amnesty plan." The group also points to economic injustices and the continuing war in Indochina. A spokesman noted that "it's ludicrous to continue spending billions of dollars on a corrupt and lost cause when we can not even meet the needs of our own people here at home."

"This dinner clearly shows who Gerald Ford represents. The fatcat Republicans will be wining and dining for fifty dollars a drink and fifty dollars a Vermont's S...

by Knut Rostad

United States senior senator George Aiken, who has represented Vermont for 34 years, will be honored this Monday night, October 7, in Patrick Gymnasium. President Ford will be the guest speaker at the testimonial dinner.

Born in Dummerston, Vermont in 1892, Aiken grew up in Putney. It was in this Vermont village that his life-long interest in wildlife and wild flowers developed. This interest has prompted the senator to write three books on wild flowers. After graduating from high school, he borrowed $100 to raise raspberries. This endeavor eventually expanded into a 500 acre farm.

Aiken first entered public life in 1931 when he was elected to the Vermont House of Representatives. In 1933 he rose to house speaker, and served until he became

"The Chief wants to give yo... you were wrong and come t...

OCTOBER 3, 1974

ORTS

The BU Defense SPS Photo: Mike Durkin

29-6 g Running

...one for ...pass for ...he score ...ver of ... the game ...fourth ...scored ...of the ...32 yards, ...ood and ...9-6. ...ame for ...up from ...for a 32 ...kwood ...t down ...e 33, an ...Bateman ... was ...fety Al ...ion on ...nd with ...got to ...Murphy ...o Fred ...d for ...nt put ...nly drive ...ck Mike ...nd QB ...coming out of the backfield, UVM found themselves on the BU 9 yard line with a first down. Three plays later, they were a yard away from a touchdown. On fourth and one, McAllister went straight into the line and was stopped. BU took control of the ball and marched to their first score of the game.

One problem the Cats had all day was the offensive line's inability to contain the persistant pass rush of the Terrier's. Bateman was sacked seven times behind the line of scrimmage for a total loss of 63 yards. This lack of time to set up also forced Bateman to hurry his passes and resulted in a poor percentage day for him, 7 completions in 19 attempts for a paltry 85 yards.

Two positive performances of the day for UVM came from Larry Lockwood and Billy Looker. Lockwood turned four kickoffs for 127 yards. He could have easily gone all the way on two of them. Also the punting of Looker was superb when he boomed two punts, one for 60 yards and another for 65 yards, both season highs for him.

...eam Beats UConn

...nis team ...tory this ...defeated ...orrs. The ...head to Princeton for the ECAC tournament.

The Cats won five of six singles matches and two of the three doubles contests. The top two singles players, Jay Moorehead and Dick Hilmer, set the pace as they both won straight set matches. They then teamed in doubles to defeat Pete Young and Don Mattran, 6-2, 6-2.

The scores of the match are as follows:

Singles: Moorhead (UVM) over Young 6-2, 6-4. Hilmer (UVM) over Ken Peterson 6-1, 6-2. Tom Lonez (UVM) over Rick Sowiste 6-2, 4-6, 6-0. Bruce Marks (C) over Kevin Delaney 1-6, 7-6, 6-3. Scott Turban (UVM) over Don Mattran 6-1, 6-2. Tag Carpenter (UVM) over Jim Peterson 7-5, 6-4.

(continued on page eleven)

VERMONT CYNIC

OCTOBER 4 1974

SPECIAL EDITION

University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont

Major Demonstrations Planned To Protest Ford's Visit

A coalition of organizations and individuals calling itself "Vermonters for Justice" today announced plans for a major demonstration on October 7 to protest President Gerald Ford's visit to Burlington. The coalition describes itself as non-partisan and a grass-roots organization whose goal is to provide a forum in which Vermonters can effectively express that they are no more willing to accept a double standard of justice under Ford than they were under the Nixon administration.

The demonstration is being called in response to what the group termed "widespread anger and disillusionment over the pardon of Nixon and the continued coverup of Watergate and the other events this action entails as well as Ford's phony amnesty plan." The group also points to economic injustices and the continuing war in Indochina. A spokesman noted that "it's ludicrous to continue spending billions of dollars on a corrupt and lost cause when we can not even meet the needs of our own people here at home."

"This dinner clearly shows who Gerald Ford represents. The fatcat Republicans will be wining and dining for fifty dollars a drink and fifty dollars a plate at a time when Vermonters are having a hard time just putting food on the table with their meager weekly and monthly incomes."

Evidentally, the President of the United States only feels comfortable rubbing elbows with the wealthy people who can afford that outrageous dinner price," the spokesman said.

The coalition described two scenarios for the demonstration. The first calls for a vocal reception at the airport. The second calls for a free counter-rally outside the Patrick Gymnasium on the UVM campus in contrast to the "$50 a plate dinner." In addition to a limited number of short statements by community organizations, there will be a sing-along entertainment and short skits by theatre groups.

Spokespeople for the organization emphasized the fact that this will be a peaceful, orderly demonstration. In addition to many individuals, the coalition of Vermonters for Justice consists of Vietnam Veterans Against the War/Winter Soldier Organization, PACT – a low income group, the Student Organizing Committee, Peoples Bicentennial, and Indochina Peace Campaign. A number of additional endorsements are expected shortly.

For more information VVAW/WSO 862-8175, Vermonters for Justice c/o Jesse Clemens 864-4661 or Student Organizing Committee c/o Wayne Bayer 656-3307.

President Ford To Arrive Monday; UVM Officials See No Problems

by Paul Ajamian

The day of October 7 will mark the arrival of President Ford to the UVM campus.

There are no major problems anticipated during his brief stay in Burlington, with everything being conducted in a "business as usual" fashion. Ford will be attending a one hundred dollar a plate testimonial dinner honoring George Aiken, the Republican Senator from Vermont. The affair, which is being planned and run by the Republican State Committee, is for the purpose of general fundraising.

The President's visit is being treated in the same way as any other visiting dignitary, with the only sizeable disruption being the closing of Patrick Gymnasium. The gym will shut down around noon on Sunday to allow for the set-up of chairs and tables, and will be back in operation Tuesday morning. The entire gym complex will be searched before the dinner begins, but security will be restricted to this area. There will be no searches of surrounding dormitories such as MAT or Harris-Millis, and no blocking off of large areas of the campus. In short, no trouble is expected and no drastic measures will be taken.

An advance team consisting of Presidential staff members and a few Secret Service men met with Vice-President Wayne Patterson Monday afternoon for a few hours to look over the facilities and physical layout of the gym. They took with them blueprints of the building to determine what, if any, special arrangements need to be made. This includes press and camera organization, although this is chiefly a concern of the Republican State Committee. The full staff of the President, including a complement of Secret Service agents, is expected to arrive today.

When this team does arrive, they will meet with local and state police officials to work out further security measures. UVM security will handle internal crowd control, their major concern being the protection of university property. Acting Chief of Security F. Scott Smith said that his men will handle the event just as they would any concert or student function. They will have nothing to do with Ford's personal protection. The overflow parking problem will be handled by either UVM security or the state police.

University officials feel President Ford's visit should be a routine, smooth-running one, with a minimum of disruption and alterations in university activities.

Some Student Opinions Of President Ford

The following interviews are a random selection of student opinion on President Ford.

Bruce Usher '76

"Seems like he is an honest man that has made a very bad mistake in pardoning Nixon. He talked about ending Watergate; he just opened it further. He's done a great diservice to the concept of justice for all. He did an incredible job of amnesty considering all of the interest groups he had to satisfy. I don't agree with his position on amnesty, but I'm glad there is at least some amnesty. My reactions to Ford are mixed, but I'm going to wait to make a full judgment."

Janet Robinson '78

"I think he's an improvement over what we had, but I don't agree with him or the pardon of Nixon. I'm in favor of amnesty, and I don't think he should have pardoned Nixon and not the draft-resistors."

Dana Gallagher '78

I think basically he is honest and well inclined, however, I am disappointed in his pardoning Nixon. Domestically, I feel he's too cautious, especially concerning his views on amnesty and inflation.

Robin Adair '74

I'm not overwhelmingly political. I think considering the situation he inherited, especially political, he's done as well as can be expected. Well, I'm not really outraged about it (Nixon's pardon), but it set a bad precedent. For Nixon, I thought it was timely. As an individual, it was a very trying time.

Erika Reichert '78

I didn't know him before he came to be President. I'll give him a chance; I won't condemn him before he's done anything. I don't know, I go both ways on that. I'm for the amnesty.

Jane Dane '75

From his voting record, I think he's voted to uphold the ruling class and he is as much a racist, sexist, arrogant white Western male politician as Nixon or Johnson. It would be really sad if people wanted to believe in his policies. There's no president that is better or worse than the system that produces it. There are two things wrong now in the present administration. One, we have a president that isn't elected and two, we have a candidate for vice-president who is directly responsible for the genocide at Attica, etc., etc.

David Newcombe – Graduate

Well, I suppose in light of his predecessor, he's done a good job, but the pardon was too hasty. I think he's deluding himself if the thinks he can solve inflation. And I also disagree with him on wage and price controls. The amnesty issue is a lot of bullshit. I don't believe in amnesty. I think they should come back in the U.S. with no questions asked. They did nothing wrong.

Lisa Ringey '77

On the whole, I think that for the country at this time he's what the people needed; although I don't agree with a few of his policies such as the military budget and the pardon, most definitely. I think it's just good to see a more homey type family and you can relate to a man who cooks his own breakfast. He's not afraid to hold press conferences. He seems like a very open person. In the beginning, I was willing to give him a chance simply because he came into this thing with the idea of giving all he had and I was willing to follow him to the end of the earth. I was willing just to give him a chance, but the pardon strongly disappointed me.

Barb Parton '77

I heard from a friend of mine that her great-grandmother found out that Ford and her late husband went to the same prep school. She called the White House and spoke with Ford and told him that her husband and he went to the same school. She told him that she really wanted to meet him. So, Ford asked her to a tea at the White House next spring. The fact that he asked her gives me a favorable impression of him. On the other hand, I think the timing of the pardon was bad.

Vermont's Senator Aiken To Be Honored At Testimonial Dinner

by Knut Rostad

United States senior senator George Aiken, who has represented Vermont for 34 years, will be honored this Monday night, October 7, in Patrick Gymnasium. President Ford will be the guest speaker at the testimonial dinner.

Born in Dummerston, Vermont in 1892, Aiken grew up in Putney. It was in this Vermont village that his life-long interest in wildlife and wild flowers developed. This interest has prompted the senator to write three books on wild flowers. After graduating from high school, he borrowed $100 to raise raspberries. This endeavor eventually expanded into a 500 acre farm.

Aiken first entered public life in 1931 when he was elected to the Vermont House of Representatives. In 1933 he rose to house speaker, and served until he became lieutenant-governor in 1935. In 1937 he was elected to a two year term as governor, and then reelected to a full term two years later. Since then, Vermont voters have demonstrated their confidence in Aiken by returning him to Washington four times with at least 60 per cent of the vote. George Aiken's public support is epitomized by his $17.09 campaign expenditures in his 1968 reelection bid.

During the Johnson and Nixon administrations, Aiken spent a great deal of time over the war in Vietnam. His vote for the Tonkin Resolution in 1964 marked the last time that he supported the war effort. Since then, Aiken became increasingly skeptical of our policy in Southeast Asia. During the Johnson years, Aiken was both a critic and confident of the president. Though he constantly offered advice to the president, much to the dismay of the senator, it was rarely heeded. Aiken's frustration prompted this comment "If Mr. Johnson would do what I have told him to time and again... he would be the best president the United States ever had."

Aiken had supported many efforts to end the war in Vietnam. In 1966 he called for the United States to stop fighting, declare victory, and start withdrawing troops. Though not taken seriously, the proposal demonstrates Aiken's grave concern with our policy at a time when doubters were in the minority.

The Vermont Senator has also been against the general bombing of the North, except as a retaliatory move. When President Nixon announced plans to bomb Hanoi and Haiphong and mine Haiphong Harbor, Aiken did support the policy as the North was then launching an offensive.

Though he did want the war to end, Aiken realized that we could not simply suddenly withdraw, or even cut the defense budget, as the senator explains "It would be in effect disarming the people." The senator was one of the first to see this war as a unique confrontation which would not be settled on the battlefield, but could only be resolved through negotiations.

Aiken's disagreements with the Nixon administration over the handling of the war were not well known until he finally tired of the President's unwillingness to consult congress in any of his decisions. This feeling prompted this comment from Aiken: "It was in part the suspension of consultation that led me publically to disagree with the executive branch over the conduct of the Vietnam War."

Though worried about the level of independence now commonly practiced at the White House, and the failure of the chief executive to seek advice from congressional members, Aiken still feels the necessity for a strong executive branch, and its ability to freely pick its subordinates: "The President is the head of the executive branch of the government. To deny him the right to choose his principal aids or cabinet members would establish a precedent that would not only make it difficult for President Nixon, but for any future presidents as well."

Aiken has long been very much involved in international affairs, as he has served on the Foreign Relations Committee since 1954. His basic view on Foreign policy is that we should start decreasing our overall involvement around the world, in order to make the other nations more actively concerned in participating in their own affairs instead of having two super powers dominate world affairs. He wants to find a satisfactory medium between active interventionism and innocent isolationism.

Throughout his career, Aiken has practiced political independence such that he votes with his conscience and not necessarily his party. Although he rejects much of the New Deal, he did encourage Republicans to accept many of the views the Democrats were wise enough to adopt.

Though not officially the Republican leader in the Senate, Aiken has long been pressed for his ideas. Senate colleague Mike Mansfield has described Aiken as a "wise old owl" and concerning his views on foreign affairs, Mansfield continues, "His judgments are generally sound and uncluttered and show insight into the character of the nation."

The senator's candid and often unsophisticated approach to complicated problems has been an effective method in serving his constituents. During an Asian fact-finding mission for the Foreign Relations Committee, Mike Mansfield remembers: "He was the oldest man on the trip, but the most vigorous. At times our relations with foreign dignitaries would be a little strained, but George would go in and start talking trees and flowers and things, and the ice would be broken."

"The Chief wants to give you amnesty. All you have to do is admit you were wrong and come to work for us."

Vermont Army National Guard Will Drill For President

An air of expectancy pervades the campus and its environs as President Ford's visit is imminent. Though student and local demonstrators are poised for action on Monday, these "days before" have lacked the phrenetic preparations which often characterize the planning stages of a controversial figure's appearance.

It has been estimated that there will be 1,500 persons demonstrating from several groups: The Vietnam Veterans Against the War-Winter Soldier Organization, PACT (People Acting for Change Together), the People's Bicentennial, the Indochina Peace Campaign and the Student Organizing Committee. Impetus for the protest has been stimulated by Vermonters for Justice: Points of contention, disapproval of the Nixon Pardon and Ford's refusal to grant total amnesty to draft resisters come as no surprise.

Refusing to be outdone by the protesters, the Vermont Army National Guard has decided to switch its monthly drill from Saturday and Sunday to Sunday and Monday to pay homage to the arriving President. Though this change in schedule was also triggered by the anticipated demonstrations, no tangle between the two groups is expected.

The demonstrators have been meticulous in the arrangements to legitimize their activities. Students have received permission to use University "territory." Lines of communication have sprung open between Vermonters for Justice, the organizing coalition, and the South Burlington police.

It remains to be seen whether there will be unexpected surprises on Monday.

Ford Demonstration

An information table concerning last minute changes on the Ford Demonstration will be set up at Billings on Friday October 4 and Monday, October 7. Literature and news articles will be available for anyone to peruse who hasn't made up their mind on whether or not to demonstrate.

Editorial

Gerald Ford

The following mini-editorials are based on the majority viewpoint of the editorial board of the Vermont Cynic.

Ford on Economics

The United States' economy is in the middle of its worst post-World War II period. Inflation soars as consumer prices rise in two digit numbers. Recession looms as interest rates soar, the stock market plunges and economic indicators such as housing starts and real GNP have fallen.

To counteract this two-way attack, the Ford administration has yet to do anything of substance. The reinstatement of a Cost of Living Council that has no definitive power is useless to control rising costs. Leadership is lacking. People like William Simon and Alan Greenspan are just not creative. Our trade deficit is enlarging, oil prices are rising, and a growing need for public service jobs looms. But all Ford sets as a priority is a balanced budget.

Ford's Choice of a Vice-President

President Ford's choice of a vice-president was politically expedient. Nelson Rockefeller has the political sophistication that Ford lacks. He also has the liberal support the President so badly needs.

Rockefeller, however, is a poor choice for the people. As Governor of New York he did virtually nothing to help the poor hungry citizens, both in New York City's ghettos and in the rural communities upstate. Instead, Rockfeller directed his time, energy and budget toward such things as the most repressive drug law in the country and towards constructing ridiculous, useless buildings in the state capital.

Rockefeller is also an incredibly wealthy man. This is certainly no crime in itself. His vast holdings, however, could frequently create conflicts of interest with his position as vice-president.

Ford's Pardon of Nixon

President Ford's pardon of Nixon was a premature and unwise use of executive privilege. This action has destroyed the concept of equal justice for all Americans, and left a bitter taste for those who hold respect for the law.

While President Ford's promised to end the story of Watergate, a chapter goes untold, a mystery to the American public and historians. Due to the unconditional pardon, we may never discover the full extent of Nixon's involvement in the Watergate scandal.

A serious precedent has been set. A president who commits illegal acts can now be assured of immunity by making an agreement with the succeeding president for presidential pardon. Nixon, who has lied to the American public, Congress, and even to his own family, is now a free and wealthy man, while many of his former aids are financially and spiritually broken and imprisoned, because they followed the orders of Nixon.

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 20
OCTOBER 10, 1974

VERMONT CYNIC

Thirty-Seven Years of Vermont Journalism
'Tis a Privilege To Live in Vermont

Large Crowds Gather To Demonstrate Arrival Of Ford

by Stephen W. Tanner

SPS Photo: Wynn Gold

Demonstrators and spectators alike stood behind fences and inside the Burlington Airport Terminal watching President Gerald Ford in Air Force One touch down and taxi to the opposite side of the field at the Vermont Air National Guard hangar.

The plane landed at 6:45 and was greeted at the hangar by two groups. VANG servicemen and their families stood at a distance of 100 yards from the plane as the President stepped down the gangway. Another group stood 200 yards from Air Force One giving a distant greeting to the President who was whisked promptly away in his black limosine. Senator George Aiken, Senator Robert T. Stafford, and Congressman Richard T. Mallary, along with Governor Thomas Salmon, and others greeted Mr. Ford on his hasty arrival. The press was kept at a distance.

At the terminal, nearly 600 watched through the fences as the silver jet landed in the October sunset. A small group of protestors, led by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War of the Winter Soldiers Organization, distributed placecards in a small demonstration to build their ranks at the Ramada Inn welcome held while the $50-a-head cocktails were served to Republicans.

State Police, followed by President Ford's limosine and a black convertible replete with Secret Service agents riding on the running boards, rolled smoothly through the crowds on the east driveway of the Ramada Inn Monday evening. Demonstrators and spectators standing on the horseshoe green of the driveway expecting the President to enter the main entrance were surprised by the graceful back entry at 7:00.

Ford was hustled through the side wing of the inn, then out across the back patio between the pool and the main building, where he re-entered.

Lit by camera lights, Ford waved to the small group who had made it to the back in times to glimpse the walk.

From behind the barricades sealing off the pool area, Ford was cheered and heckled sporadically. Shouts of "No More, No War" met the President's waves.

Outside in front of the inn, members of the "Vermonters for Justice", a coalition of forces, including the People Acting for Change (PACT, a low-income activist group), Vietnam Veterans Against the War/Winter Soldier's Organization, Feminist Union, Indo-China Peace Campaign (an educational group), People's Bicentennial (a counter Bicentennial educational group), the Student Organizing Committee, and the Vermont Alliance, chanted, "Workers and students organize, no more sacrifice!"

Told to move back on the green before the inn by security officials, demonstrators observed a theatrical demonstration by the Living Theatre. Dancing and waving

(continued on page ten)

House Nominee Jeffords Tackles Inflation

by Margo Howland

Former Attorney General James Jeffords, Republican nominee for the U.S. House, said Friday that the main issue of his campaign is "inflation and what we can do about the economy." Jeffords was also very much concerned with the plight of the dairy farmer and with the issue of morality in government.

In a Cynic interview, Jeffords outlined some plans to tackle inflation. "First, I believe that it's time for Congress to realize that we can't spend forever without paying for that which we have been spending... We should keep a balanced budget.

"Secondly, you do have to control the money supply, and that is one of the most essential elements in inflationary control – and that is primarily the obligation of the Federal Reserve Board." Jeffords called for a restriction of the increase of "somewhere around 4% per year, as opposed to the past programs of 6–8 per cent."

Jeffords also emphasized that "the economic situation on a global nature has changed very drastically" and that it is important for the United States to recognize this. The Third World countries "suddenly realize that they can get together and charge for their resources...the types of military retaliation for economic reasons are gone."

The whole new atmosphere in economics that Jeffords describes will, in his estimation require "agreements by these countries with technology to get together with the resource rich countries and share." He noted that "this is what Secretary Kissinger and President Ford have been talking about."

Milk Price Floors

Jeffords suggests a floor on milk prices as a way to "make ends meet" in the dairy industry.

"I think what the farmers want, and ... what they may have to have, is a pricing floor somewhere around $7.50 a hundredweight...Either that, or they've got to change the whole pricing formula. But I think what they ought to do now is to establish a higher floor in the Minnesota-Wisconsin pricing formula, so that they will not go bankrupt in producing."

"You have had imports from principally Scandanavian countries, which come from farms that are subsidized, farms that produce milk under different health conditions." The farmers think it's unfair," Jeffords said, "and I agree with them. If this is continued, then in Congress I should look for countervailing duties to make them take these things into consideration," Jeffords declared. He would seek to enforce the countervailing duties that are now law.

Morality in Government

Jeffords indicated his position on campaign spending and campaign reform.

"I've been pushing for reforms in both areas, and reforms in the lobbying laws, which I think are just as important. "First, I believe that we have to refine our campaign spending laws. I agree with getting personal donations down to $1,000. I agree that donations should be limited from special pressure groups." Jeffords himself has indicated that he will not accept any money from special interest groups.

James Jeffords

However, "I've not gone so far as to propose a total ban for everyone. As long as everyone knows what my opponent is getting from special interest groups, and it's publicized, that's all I can ask for."

Francis Cain, his opponent, is widely acknowledged to be hoping for labor support.

While neither candidate is an incumbent, Jeffords had some suggestions to equalize the advantages an incumbent would

(continued on page thirteen)

Ford Addresses GOP At Testimonial For Aiken

by Barbara Frankel

President Ford's Monday night visit was greeted by large, antagonistic, but basically non-violent crowds. Ford and other Republican officials addressed 2,000 people at a $50-a-plate testimonial dinner held at Patrick Gymnasium, honoring George D. Aiken.

The President, following an introduction by Senator Aiken, spoke to the crowd for approximately 25 minutes. He remembered a similar function at UVM nine years ago when he was also a guest speaker. Ford reminisced about other trips to Vermont, proclaiming his "real pleasure to be here again". He did not mention the hostile groups outside.

A good portion of Ford's speech consisted of endorsement for the state's Republican candidates, Dick Mallary, Jim Jeffords and "Peanut" Walter Kennedy. Speaking of Kennedy, Ford called him "a Kennedy I can endorse." Ford also discussed the two-party system, stating that "...the future of America is directly tied to the politics of America. And the politics of America is bound to the two-party system."

The President's praise of Senator Aiken and his wife Lola received an enthusiastic reception from the Republican crowd. Ford complimented Senator Aiken on his independence of mind – "He has given the Nation the benefit of his down to earth wisdom, his leadership and his guidance on many areas - in education, electric power development, betterment of rural America, and foreign relations. These very different fields of endeavor only suggest the breadth and greatness of this man."

One of the highlights of Ford's address was his statement that he will not ask for any increase in the Federal gasoline tax. Many Vermonters had been extremely worried about this tax, probably because of the tourist trade and the lack of mass public transportation in this state.

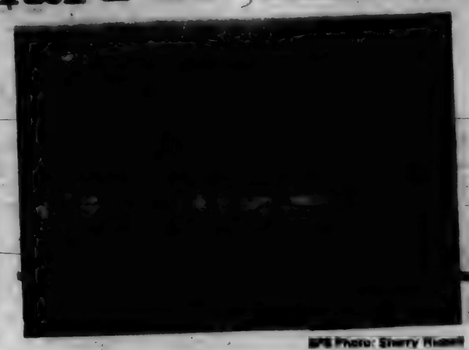
Ford called for a "two pronged undertaking" in dealing with inflation. His first step will be to "call for legislative action which is needed in government to do its part in whipping inflation". Ford's second step will "set forth actions in which everyone can participate." he added, "...if every citizen enlists in this effort, I am not only confident, I am certain that we will win this fight against America's Public Enemy Number One."

President Ford arrived at Burlington International Airport via Air Force One at approximately 6:15 p.m. He was met at the airport by Senator Aiken, Senator Robert Stafford, Congressman Mallary, Governor Thomas Salmon and Stewart Smith, Republican State Chairman.

The President and his entourage then attended a Patrons Reception held at the Ramada Inn. Ford arrived at Patrick Gymnasium at 7:42 p.m. As a result of the threatening crowd, the President was forced to enter through a back door. He did not appear disconcerted by this.

Speculation has varied about the number of demonstrators outside. Opinions range from the Press Pool's conservative estimate of some 500 to some students' claim of 2,000.

After a roast beef dinner, master of ceremonies Richard Snelling of Shelburne, introduced Walter Kennedy,



SPS Photo: Sherry Rhoad

James Jeffords, Congressman Richard Mallary, Senator Robert Stafford, Lola Aiken, and, Sterry R. Waterman, a U.S. Circuit of Appeals Judge. All the speakers made brief remarks honoring both Senator Aiken and the Republican party.

Senator Aiken, after receiving a standing ovation, gave a brief talk. Aiken praised fellow Republican Dick Mallary, but commented that "Vermonters are independent. They can make up their own minds." Citing President Ford as a 'self-made man', Aiken added that he felt Ford "has done more to restore good

(continued on page fourteen)

UVM Trustees Consider Drastic Fiscal Cutbacks

The specter of inflation loomed large during the recent Board of Trustees' Meeting. The Trustees convened this past Saturday to consider drastic fiscal cutbacks and the raising of student fees.

The impending financial crunch has provoked the need for secret meetings; the first have already taken place, in August, and the next are to be held during the weekend of December 6 and 7. Chittenden County's Attorney General Kimberly Cheney has filed a complaint against the meetings as being in violation of the state's right-to-know law. President Andrews defended these "private conferences" stating that the trustees couldn't meet in "a responsible fashion unless they were forwarned" of administrative proposals.

Staff and faculty cuts will figure prominently in the budget-slashing process. Andrews had already begun his evaluations by consulting with Deans of colleges and department heads. Final decisions must be reached before January 1 in order that faculty may be notified that they will be reappointed for the following year.

The major financial uncertainties have not discouraged administration's plans for continuing expenditures on the University's physical plant. The trustees unanimously voted to ask the state for $2,070,000 in fiscal 1976, and up to $6,110,000 in fiscal 1977 for capital projects, and to borrow $1.5 million this year to renovate Converse and Redstone residence halls. The request for this loan is indicative of the cycle of overenrollment and the consequent housing crisis.

Other capital requests which the Trustees approved without hesitation include a new $985,000 geology building, a $600,000 heating plant, a $410,000 Fleming Museum renovation, a $3 million to $6 million addition to the Bailey library, and a $100,000 renovation to the Old Mill.

These renovative costs will be partially offset by a $120 increase in room rates. There will also be a raise in the health fee from $24 to $32 per semester, effective next semester when the new infirmary is scheduled to open.

The Trustee's unanimity was severed as they voted 11-5 to continue a special consideration policy for applications from children of Medical College alumni. Medical College Dean Dr. William Luginbuhl maintained that a commitment has been made to alumni, many of whom generously supported funding of the new buildings. The policy was criticized as being a discriminatory barrier to those who aren't medical school alumni.

Ten Year Transportation Plan Nears Creation

by Wyatt Kash

Chittenden County had its final opportunity to address a bill which, if passed will dictate the provisions and policies of Vermont's transportation concerns for the next ten years. The September 30 public hearing was one of twelve of the final series of public hearings throughout the state to discuss final suggestions to the weighty proposal.

The enactment of House Bill 469, creating a Transportation Advisory Board early this year, was the response to the growing need for a more coordinated, comprehensive look at the state's transportation situation. The membership of the board included representatives from eight state agencies and three regional planning commisions.

The Transportation Advisory Board was asked to "review and analyze the present methods of funding transportation;" to "explore and analyze alternatives to existing traditional transportation systems, public and private;" and to" review and analyze all truck fees, interstate agreements, restictions and regulations controlling the trucking industry." From this review and analysis, the Board was to"prepare and submit... an overall state transportation plan for ten years commencing July 1, 1975."

The Board's research, which included a series of public hearings held in each regional planning and development district and a session with the major providers of transportation services, resulted in a preliminary round of public concer s to be further studied and discussed. Since early June, the Board has compiled its research and public inputs into the form of a preliminary report with statements of recommended policy and steps of action included.

The preliminary Ten Year Transportation Plan, released this past September 6, made the following proposals:

– A state Agency of Transportation should be created, assuming the present functions of the Dept. of Highways, the Vermont Aeronautics Board, the Dept. of Motor Vehicles and the transportation related functions of the Public Service Board and to be administered by a Governor-appointed Secretary.

– That it become the policy of the state of Vermont to protect and improve upon its transportation investment by betterment and maintainance; that spot improvements take precedence to relocation and reconstruction.

– No new corridors should be planned and that strip development on existing ones be discouraged. Ultimately, planning direction should head towards the concept of scenic roads in Vermont's presently paved natural areas.

– Avoid further abandonment of the Vermont Rail Network.

– In all modes of transportation, the role of the State of Vermont should be one of facilitating private transportation services, rather than competing with them.

– To continue to aid, through whatever means at the state's disposal, the alternative transportation for the elderly, those with physical or financial limitations, and for school children and adults who rely heavily upon public transportation services. Again, local level private transportation services are to be encouraged.

– That Vermont join the other 49 states in applying a tax on diesel fuel thereby reducing

(continued on page fourteen)

Congressional Candidates Debate At Patrick Gym

by Randy Jansen

Last Thursday, October 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Patrick Gym a debate was held between the candidates for the only Vermont House seat. Democratic nominee Francis Cain, Republican nominee James Jeffords and Liberty Union nominee Michael Parenti were the participants.

Frank Samson, Chairman of the debate laid the ground rules. Each candidate had ten minutes to give an opening statement and then five minutes rebuttal. Following this, questions were accepted from the audience.

Francis Cain was the first to speak. He began to speak about himself, saying that he was a native of Vermont and mayor of Burlington between 1965 and 1971. He was motivated to seek office by his reaction to Watergate. Arrogance of power in Washington was his primary reason for seeking a Federal office.

Cain was upset by voter apathy and poor turnout in the primary. "Many voters have the idea that their vote doesn't count," he commented.

Cain emphasized that "inflation is an issue that dwarfs all others." He urged a Federal control on spending and that the money supply be "freed up." He expects the economy to stagnate until 1975 and the longterm cure will take two, three, to four years.

"Programs must be ready to help low and middle income people," Cain said. Mentioned also were public service jobs, manpower stations and better job distribution. Another concern of Cain was tax reform. Cain related that "the tax burden does not fall evenly" and said that tax reform is long overdue in the U.S.

Michael Parenti began his opening statement cracking jokes about UVM's administration. "It's cozy to be back in UVM," said Parenti amongst widespread laughter. (Parenti was recently awarded $15,000 by UVM in an out-of-court suit settlement over his dismissal as a political science professor.)

Parenti's main theme was that there is little difference between Democrats and Republicans. Both parties, Parenti said, increase tax loopholes for the rich and corporations increasing the burden on the lower class. Both major parties represent the same interests: big companies, deficit spending, subsidizing large companies, agribusiness, soil subsidizes and a large military support.

Parenti also criticized bi-partisan support for a "wasteful and senseless space program, imperialistic programs, support for fascist governments and internal intervention in other countries."

Parenti, then speaking of his grandfather, related a story. He said that his grandfather once told him that "Politicans are all alike. Politicians are your friend before elections; afterwards, he works for the big boys." This is Parenti's view of the two major parties and their politicians.

"The Liberty Union Party," expressed Parenti, "is not a political party but a political movement." He then admonished his opponents for not reaching the poor people, going to PSB meetings or participating in demonstrations for support of the people.

Parenti ended his statement with a desire to "bring life back into political reality."

Jeffords also began his opening statement on a light note, commenting that five dsughters of Francis Cain were seated directly in front of him, creating somewhat of a distraction.

Jeffords gave a brief biography of himself stressing his term as Vermont Attorney

(continued on page fourteen)

James Jeffords, Michael Parenti, Frank Samsom Samson, Francis Cain

SPS Photo: Florence Isbey

Featured This Week:

Voices Inside The Walls Of Windsor....p.5

Delaware Senator To Speak At Trinity....p.9

Table Of Contents

Arts & Entertainment . . . . . p. 6
Calender/Announcements . . . . p. 2
Crossword Puzzle . . . . . p. 7
Editorial . . . . . p. 4
Op. Ed. . . . . p. 5
Sports . . . . . p. 16

CALENDAR / ANNOUNCEMENTS

Interact T.V.

Interact TV is a live, two-way television network connecting the major medical facilities in Vermont and New Hampshire as well as Windsor State Prison and New Hampshire Vocational-Technical College. Beginning on October 14th, Interact will be offering night courses from N.H. Vo-Tech. The courses include:

SUICIDOLOGY – Mondays, to begin October 14th and continuing for five weeks. $17.50

BASIC SIGN LANGUAGE – Tuesdays, to begin October 15th and continuing for ten weeks, $30.00

YOGA – Wednesdays, to begin October 16th and continuing for ten weeks. $30.00

EMERGENCY MEDICAL CARE FOR THE LAYPERSON – Mondays, to begin November 18th and continuing for five weeks. $17.50

New Hampshire Vo-Tech is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. Transfer credit is possible.

All classes will meet at Room 226A, Mary Fletcher Unit, MCHV. 7:00 – 9:00 p.m.

For more information, please call Jacques Marquis at 656-2173.

Student Advisory Committee

ATTENTION: All faculty and students in the College of Arts and Sciences.

As of Monday, Oct. 14, the Student Advisory Committee will make available preliminary copies of a course and teacher evaluation questionnaire. In the interests of improving and refining this questionnaire, your comments and criticisms would be welcomed. Copies of the questionnaire may be picked up at the SAC office, second floor Billings.

SPRING THYSELF

...to Europe for the spring term!

Opportunities now available for – LONDON: art, english, drama, history, fine arts, political science, communications. AMSTERDAM: social work, environmental arts, history, art history. FLORENCE: art history, italian, political science, history. MADRID: spanish language and literature, anthropology, liberal arts. STRASBOURG: french language and literature, religion, liberal arts.

Interested?? Write or call immediately for application and information –

Dir. of International Programs, 335 Comstock, Syracuse, NY 13210, (315) 423-3472.

'Open Circuit'

Beginning Monday, Oct. 14, WRUV-FM will present "Open Circuit" from 8:30-9:00 p.m. This half hour weekly program is designed to keep listeners up to date on issues of local concern. Deborah Janone, a graduate student in Mass Communications, will moderate the program each week on WRUV-FM 90.1 MHz.

Campus Interview

On-Campus Interview Program Period No. 2 will take place October 14, 15, 16 in Career Planning & Placement Office, 3rd floor, Mansfield House. The following representatives will be at the program:

GRADUATE SCHOOLS: To explain Graduate programs in a 30 minute personal interview. October 22 – Boston University, Graduate School of Business, Boston, Ma. 02215; October 23 – University of Rochester, Graduate School of Management, Rochester, New York 14627; October 23 – Drew University, Graduate School of Theology, Madison, New Jersey.

EMPLOYERS: October 23 – Army Corps of Engineers, Waltham, Ma. Seeks: BS/MS Civils For Rotational Training Program in Engineering, Construction, Operations; October 24 – Kopperi Company, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15219. Seeks: BS/CE, ME for Process Engineering, Project Engineering, Design, Manufacturing, Construction, Sales, Technical Services; October 25 – Atomic Energy Commission, Schenectady, New York 12301. Seeks: BS/MS EE, ME, Chem., Phys., Math., for

Plant and Soil Majors

Plant and soil science majors and other interested people are invited to the Ornamental Horticulture Advising Committee meeting. The possibility of getting practical experience with your education will be the topic of discussion. The Committee needs your opinion. The meeting will be held October 17 from 9:30-12. Come and go as you please. Place will be posted in Hills building.

Oral Interp Festival

The Communications and Theatre Department presents UVM's first 'Innovative Oral Interpretation Festival' on Friday, October 11, 1974. Visiting schools include: Clarion State College, University of Rhode Island, and Emerson College. Performances are in Room 115 Living/Learning Center from 10:00 to 11:30 a.m. and from 2:00 to 3:00 p.m. No admission charge.

Exceptional

The Council for Exceptional Children will hold its next meeting on Oct. 16 at 3:00 p.m. in the Marsh Lounge – Billings. The more the merrier for that many more kids... please come join us!

L'Alliance

L'Alliance Francaise invites you to its opening reunion. Francois Gaumont, French guitarist and singer, will play. Refreshments will be served. It is in Slade Hall, Oct. 10 at 8:00 p.m. Everyone is welcome!

MEXICO NORTH

at the 5 corners Essex Jct., Vt.

Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont

Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more

Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.

10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10

Seminar in "Interpolation and Approximation Theory," Prof. Burgmeier, 1 p.m., seminar room, Nicholson Mathematics Building.

Conference on "Mathematics of Large-Scale Simulation", today and tomorrow – at 3 p.m., B-104 Cook.

Western Vermont Section, American Chemical Society, presents Dr. Yeshayau Pocker, University of Washington, who will speak on "Metallo-enzymes, Structure and Function," 8 p.m., B-112 Cook Building.

Opening gathering of L'Alliance Francais Francaise, 8 p.m., Slade Hall, Redstone campus. Featured will be French guitarist and singer Francois Gaumont.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11

Department of Communications and Theatre presents, today and Saturday its first "Innovate Oral Interpretation Festival." Visiting schools include Clarion State College, University of Rhode Island, Ithaca College, St. Lawrence University, Emerson College, and SUNY, Plattsburgh. Public performances will be held at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. Friday at Living-Learning Center; on Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

"Friday at Four," open house, 4 p.m., Royal Tyler Theatre.

Amateur Chess Tournament, 7 p.m. Church Street Center for Community Education. Further information from 656-4221.

Lane Series presents the classic Truffault film, "The 400 Blows," 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. showings, Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building. Tickets from the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, or at the door.

SA films present "My Fair Lady" starring Audrey Hepburn and Rex Harrison, 7:30 and 10:30, 101 Votey Building.

UVM senior Jack A. Grebb will give an organ recital, 8 p.m., at the College Street Congregational Church. On the program are works by Bach, Hindemith, and Liszt.

"Roundhouse," informal entertainment in a coffee-house atmosphere, 9 to 11:30 p.m., basement, Billings Center.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12

SA films presents "The Hustler," starring Paul Newman, Jackie Gleason, George C. Scott, 7:30 p.m., 101 Votey Building.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 13

No calendar events listed.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 14

10 a.m., Oncology-Pharmacology seminar by Dr. James Wallace of Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N.Y. "Pharmacological Studies of Platinum Complexes with Anti-neoplastic activity."

10 a.m. to 5 p.m., The Christian Science Monitor will be selling subscriptions every day this week in Billings Center.

Lane Series tickets are still available for the Oct. 16 presentation by the Chinese Opera Theatre. Call 656-3418.

12 noon, Dr. Robert B. Low of the Dept. of Physiology and Biophysics here at UVM will speak on "structural and functional comparision of Myosin from rabbit and hibernator" during a seminar in Given C-219.

4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., The Cross Cultural Program of L/L Center sponsors "Ancient Maya Civilization" presented by Associate Professor of Anthropology, Dr. William A. Haviland. Commons 115.

4 p.m., Geology seminar by T. W. Donnelly of SUNY at Binghamton. Topic: "Deep Sea Sediments: A Clue to Earth's History", Room 200, Geology Hall.

7 p.m., UVM Modern Dance Workshop in Southwick Ballroom. Call 3240 for information.

7:30 p.m., SA Films present "The House on Forty Second Street" starring Lloyd Nolan and Gene Lockhart. Made in 1945, this is a factual account of German espionage broken up by the FBI during the development of the atomic bomb. Shown free in Room 103, Rowell.

7:45 p.m., Instruction in Scottish Country Dancing in Room 107 Perkins Hall, Geology Building, by Priscilla Burrage. For information, call 863-4105.

8 p.m., Illustrated talk by Mr. Ken Schwarz of Amoco Production, "Petroleum Geology As A Career– Is It For Me?" Room 200, Geology Hall.

8:30 p.m., WRUV presents "Open Circuit", designed to keep listeners up to date on issues of local concern. Moderated by Deborah Janone, a graduate student in Communications at UVM.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15

9 a.m. to 4 p.m., the federal program ACTION will be recruiting at Billings through Thursday.

12 noon to 4 p.m., A new counseling service is available at Billings. Need advice? Contact Calvin Chappel or Roberto Rios at 3440.

4:30 p.m., Special meeting of the faculty and faculty Senate in 101 Votey. President Andrews will present details of the biennial budget for fiscal 1976 and 1977.

7:30 p.m., The Lamplighters, a Pentecostal fellowship group, will meet to worship the Lord in word and song in MAT Lounge. Call Sue Kukla at 2952 for more information.

7:30 p.m., S.A. Senate meeting in North Lounge, Billings.

8 p.m., Panel discussion in conjunction with the Fleming Museum's "Recycled Building" display. Tonight: "Re-using Buildings: Public Action" chaired by Chester Liebs of Vermont Division of Historic Sites.

Today is the deadline for filing STET applications for STET study abroad under the Mutual Education Exchange Program (Fulbright-Hays). Application forms and further information from Dean Macmillan, Graduate College, 335 Waterman.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16

10 a.m., A lecture will be given in the Carpenter Auditorium of the Given Building, sponsored by the the Dept. of Pharmacology. Topic: Body temperature in fever: changes in our views during the last decade." The speaker is Professor W.S. Feldberg, M.D., Laboratory of Neuropharmacology, National Institute for Medical Research, London, England.

12 noon, Deadline for signing up for "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner". Sign up at Billings Center.

12 noon to 1 p.m., Nancy Koch will lead a workshop entitled "An hour of relaxation, centered in meditation" in Marsh Lounge. For more information, call Nancy at 3340.

3 p.m., Council for Exceptional Children meeting at Billings.

Dr. Dean Corrigan, Dean of the College of Education, will speak.

3:30 to 5:30 p.m., International Club of UVM weekly coffee hour at Area and International Studies Center, 479 Main St., and everyone's welcome.

4 to 6 p.m., Opening reception for art show by Lucy Evans at Royall Tyler Theatre. Show will be in conjunction with "Under Milkwood."

4 p.m., "Tertulia" is an informal gathering of anyone who wants to speak Spanish and meet the Spanish professors. Held in Bldg. D, Suite 350 of the L/L Center.

8 p.m., The Lane Series presents the Chinese Opera Theatre at Memorial Theatre. For tickets dial 3418.

8 p.m., Foreign Languages Night sponsored by the Romance Languages Dept; a meeting to inform foreign language students of career opportunities which demand their particular speaking skill. Held in 115 Commons of the L/L Center.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17

10:50 a.m., Prof. M.D. Rausch of the U. of Mass. will speak on "Organic Derivatives of Cobalt, Rhodium and Iridium" sponsored by UVM Chemistry Dept. Held in B-112, Cook Bldg.

You just can't stuff 100 musicians and a fat contralto into a wooden box.

Yet most speaker manufacturers are trying to do just that. And they're good at it. Catch every sound and tunnel it right out at you with range and strength.

But they've missed the main concept of sound:

When you're really there, live, the sound doesn't come from one place. It comes from all over the place – bouncing above you, beside you and behind you as well as right at you.

Interaudio speakers are designed not to bring you all the sounds, but to bring your room all the sounds.

Thanks to a unique design concept called Acousticouple®, the speakers are acoustically joined to the surrounding walls, to produce radiational as well as direct sound.

The kind you hear in a concert hall or a jazz club – but may never have heard before from a stereo system.

The kind you can hear at our place, all this week. We've got a system all revved up, and invite you to bring your ears in for a test drive.

Interaudio®

LAFAYETTE®

157 Pearl St. Essex Junction

HOW

YOU CAN SPREAD THE MESSAGE OF LOVE... THE LOVE OF CHRIST FOR ALL PEOPLE.

Have you ever considered the priesthood as a way to serve people? The Paulist Fathers are a small community of American priests. Progressive, searching, young and energetic, they form a religious family.

A Paulist is a man of the Spirit, a man of his time. He rejoices in the signs of hope around him and celebrates with the people he serves.

Every Paulist is a missionary: in the pulpit, or parish house, on the campus, in the inner-city. He communicates with the spoken word, the printed page, and with contemporary media. His mission is to all of America. His message is love; the love of Christ for all people.

For more information send for The Paulist Papers Write to: Father Don C. Campbell, Room 100

PAULIST FATHERS

415 WEST 59TH ST., NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019

Special Workshops Offered

Apart from the individual dorm workshops requested by various Resident Advisors and students, the Counseling and Testing Center in conjunction with the Next Thing will offer six special workshops, 2 weekly sessions and 2 daily meditation hours open to anyone who is interested.

They are as follows:

Weekly offerings for Relaxation Meditation and Centering will be held Monday Evenings, MAT Lounge 7:30-8:30 with Bert Butler (begins 10/14) and Wednesday Noons, Billings, Marsh Lounge, with Nancy Koch (begins Oct. 9).

These hours will be a place where people can come and relax, get focused and, we hope, leave with some renewed energy. (kind of like getting your battery recharged). Techniques taught for relaxation, meditation and centering will be useful in daily life to reduce psycho-physical stress. Various resources people skilled in different disciplines and techniques will be coming to sessions to share their ideas and skills.

Daily offerings: sitting meditation twice daily at 8–9 a.m., Living/Learning, A-101 and at 12-1 p.m., B-132 Living/Learning.

David Frye At UVM

Comedian David Frye will be appearing at the Patrick Gym on Thursday, October 24th at 7:30 p.m. Tickets will be on sale beginning Monday, October 14 at the Student Activities office in Billings Center. General admission is $2.00/ with UVM ID $1.00. SA Speakers is arranging the event.

BOOGIE YOUR BOARDS OFF!

at

Smugglers' Notch

$5.00 DISCOUNT PASS STILL ON SALE

$5.00 weekday (Reg. $10.00) $7.00 weekend (Reg. $11.00)

REPRESENTATIVE WILL BE AT CHAMPLAIN COLLEGE, HANNRICK HALL Oct. 14, 15, 16 11-6

AT BILLINGS CENTER Oct. 28, 29, 30 9-5

Cunningham

MASS SCHEDULE – Weekends: Saturday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday: 9:00 and 11:30 a.m.; 4:15 and 6:30 p.m. Weekdays: Monday 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday through Friday 4:15 p.m. Also, Tuesday 10:00 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: 7:30 Monday through Friday.

CHOIR PRACTICE: 7:30 p.m. every Tuesday. This choir, under the direction of Lori Routhier, sings at the 4:15 Mass on Sundays and is open to new members.

BASIC CATHOLICISM: Monday evenings at 7:15. A presentation/discussion series led by Sr. Jeannine and Fr. Holland, this course is meant to serve as an introduction to, or a review of, contemporary Catholic belief and practice.

SCRIPTURE STUDY: A new look

St. Ans

All are invited to share in these services in the name of the Lord at the St. Anselm's Chapel: Sunday morning Holy Eucharist at 9 a.m.; Monday through Friday morning Morning Prayer at 7:15 a.m.; Tuesday evening at 10 p.m. Holy Eucharist.

For those who enjoy singing there is a choir at St. Anselm's this year. Right now we are working on a John Dowland song for four voices, and are planning on singing a wide variety of styles. This is one choir you do not have to be a

Smugglers Notch

On Sunday, October 13 Smugglers Notch Ski Area and The Friends of UVM Ski Team will be presenting Oktoberfest '74. This is an outdoor concert (weather providing), with three bands. The boogie will be at the Village (base of Morse Mt.) starting at 1:00 p.m. and continuing till everybody drops. In case of rain, it'll get together at the Madonna Base Lodge.

The bands performing will

Why

Bang & Oluf

Look L

Cunningham-Newman Center

MASS SCHEDULE — Weekends: Saturday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday: 9:00 and 11:30 a.m.; 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.
Weekdays: Monday 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday through Friday 4:15 p.m. Also, Tuesday 10:00 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: 7:30 Monday through Friday.

CHOIR PRACTICE: 7:30 p.m. every Tuesday. This choir, under the direction of Lori Routhier, sings at the 4:15 Mass on Sundays and is open to new members.

BASIC CATHOLICISM: Monday evenings at 7:15. A presentation/discussion series led by Sr. Jeannine and Fr. Holland, this course is meant to serve as an introduction to, or a review of, contemporary Catholic belief and practice.

SCRIPTURE STUDY: A new look at the Old Testament with Fr. John Crowley — Tuesday evenings, 7:00-8:00 p.m.

JUSTICE AND PEACE STUDY-ACTION GROUP: Meetings on Monday evenings. If interested, please contact Fr. Crowley. (862-8403)

ALABAMA PROJECT: Anyone interested in participating in this January project is asked to contact Fr. Holland at the Center.

TWILIGHT RETREATS: Students and staff members from the Center will soon be conducting these evening retreats for high school students throughout the State. If you would like to be part of the team or wish to help in any way (music, audio-visuals, talks), please contact Fr. Holland or Sr. Jeannine.

LEAP PROGRAM: A spiritual renewal program for young men and women 18-25, the Leap weekend attempts to provide a real experience in Christian Community. The first weekend this school year is Nov. 1, 2, and 3. For further information, please contact Sr. Lindora.

FASHION SHOW: Friday, October 25 at 8:00 p.m. for the benefit of the Newman Center. Refreshments will be served. Tickets are available in the lobby at the Center. Donations $1.50.

The Great Pumpkin Contest Weigh-In will be held October 18th at 3:00 in the greenhouse. Come see your favorite pumpkin win.

The Plant and Soil Science Society is having a Peace Corps Representative speak on Wednesday, October 16th. He will be answering your questions in Room 17 Hill at 12 noon.

St. Anslem's Chapel

All are invited to share in these services in the name of the Lord at the St. Anselm's Chapel: Sunday morning: Holy Eucharist at 9 a.m.; Monday through Friday morning: Morning Prayer at 7:15 a.m.; Tuesday evening at 10 p.m.: Holy Eucharist.

For those who enjoy singing there is a choir at St. Anselm's this year. Right now we are working on a John Dowland song for four voices, and are planning on singing a wide variety of styles. This is one choir you do not have to be a professional in order to join.

If you are looking for a place to study and relax in front of a fire, or to be alone and think, there are both a comfortable lounge and a small chapel 24 hours a day.

Chaplain Appleyard is around most of the day, so feel free to stop by and talk. If you are in any need, he is available to help you find help. He does not have all the answers for he is asking questions just like you.

Hillel House

October 12, Hillel will sponser a brunch starting at 11:30 a.m. followed by Guest speaker, Avi Gilam, who is an Israeli Grad. student at UVM. His topic will be "Folklore in the Moroccan Population in Israel."

Tuesdays at 4 p.m., there will be a study group discussing "Jewish Customs and Ceremony," to be held at the Hillel House, 389 College St. Everyone is welcome.

Smugglers Notch Presents Oktoberfest '74

On Sunday, October 13 Smugglers Notch Ski Area and The Friends of UVM Ski Team will be presenting Oktoberfest '74. This is an outdoor concert (weather providing), with three bands. The boogie will be at the Village (base of Morse Mt.) starting at 1:00 p.m. and continuing till everybody drops. In case of rain, it'll get together at the Madonna Base Lodge.

The bands performing will be Downpour, John Cassel, and Sass. These groups have all been playing in local dives for several years, plus a few appearances on our campus.

Admissions will be a one dollar raffle ticket. This is for the benefit of the UVM Ski Team. The raffle drawing will be Nov. 12, and will be announced through this paper.

The prizes are: four Green and Gold seasons passes valid at Smuggler's Notch, Stowe, Mad River, and Bolton Valley. Seasons skiing for a dollar! One pair of Rossignol Strato 105 skis. A pair of Nordica GT ski boots. Worth over $150. Last but not least, is a Ski Week at Sugarbush. In all there are seven chances to win prizes of great value. Tickets are available at local ski shops, room 201 Patrick Gym, ski team members, and at the door.

Oktoberfest

"Oktoberfest" is just around the corner and plans for the festival of German life are presently at full throttle.

The campus-wide event is being held on the Redstone Campus, and is being co-sponsored by the Inter-residence Association (I.R.A.) and the Student Association (S.A.). The generous financial support of the two student organizations has enabled the committee to schedule an appealing variety of activities. Two German bands will provide continuous music, while such things as arts and crafts exhibits, games, a professional puppet show, and a movie are taking place. There will also be a giant coo-coo clock, shepherds and goats, mountainclimbing, a photography booth, and yodeling contest. Each of these events will contribute to the German atmosphere of the day.

The Sega food service will serve various German foods during the afternoon, and will also offer an appropriate Bavarian dinner at the supper hour.

The planning committee for "Oktoberfest" is still looking for interested students to take part in the planning and organizing of the festivities. "Oktoberfest" will be the only campus-wide event of the semester, and students are urged to contact Bill Flanagan at ext. 2510, or Laurie Evans at 4154, or 3088, if they would like to assist the committee.

Swami Speaks

The Religion Department will host Swami Sarvagatananda of the Ramakrishna Order of India, October 9 and 10. He is the Swami in charge of the Vedanta Societies of Boston and Providence, and the head of the Sarada Ashram in Marshfield, Massachusetts.

The Swami will speak in the Monasticism Seminar Wednesday afternoon October 9. He will be available for informal discussion at the religion building following the class from 5:30 to 6:00 p.m. and again Thursday morning from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. Persons interested should contact the secretary at the religion department, ext. 3080, or Prof. Gussner.

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER®
Downtown Burlington
+
Essex Junction

Peace Corps And Vista Interviews

ACTION is back. October 15-17 of next week there will be two ACTION representatives giving interviews to prospective Vista and Peace Corps applicants who are presently unsure.

The interviews which will be held in Mansfield House, will be informal, informational sessions, rather than final determinants of acceptance to a program.

Peace Corps and Vista are common knowledge, yet there have been changes in both programs, reported Frank Sendrowski, one of the ACTION recruiters who will be here next week. The Peace Corps is initiating an experimental recruiting program named LAPS. It is unique in that it specifically describes job opportunities in Latin America.

LAPS is designed to shorten the application process for those who have a definite interest. Applicants can apply for a specific job and have a final reply of acceptance or rejection shortly after. There is usually a three or four month time lag between submission of the application and final verdict.

The LAPS program has resulted in part from increasingly specialized demands from developing countries. The Peace Corps program has advanced to a stage where just sending volunteers to other countries isn't enough. Countries now need skilled people. In the past a general knowledge of "community development" may have been sufficient. However, today a greater degree of specialization is required. Knowledge of agriculture and rural farm skills are invaluable to developing countries. Ed Mclaughlin, one of the recruiters will be talking with backgrounds in agriculture when the recruiting team is at UVM.

Candidates with a liberal arts degree having a combination of talents are also being recruited. For instance, many developing countries need journalists to help promote a department of tourism, since tourist trade could potentially boost many undeveloped economies.

For those wishing to stay in the United States, Vista needs volunteers in both urban and rural areas. Vista programs offer the opportunity to gain job related experience in counseling, teaching law, and many other fields. The idea that all Vista volunteers end up in Appalachia or Arizona is a perpetrated myth. For work in New England about 96% of the volunteers are locally recruited.

Although interviews are limited to seniors, there will be an information booth in Billings while the ACTION recruiters are here.

Scandanavian Studies Abroad

Scandanavian Seminar is now accepting applications for its study abroad program in Denmark, Finland, Norway, or Sweden for the academic year 1976-76. This living and learning experience is designed for college students, graduates and other adults who want to become part of another culture while acquiring a second language.

An initial 3 weeks language course, followed by a family stay, will give the student opportunity to practice the language on a daily basis and to share in the life of the community. For the major part of the year he is separated from his fellow American students, living and studying among Scandanavians at a "People's College" (residential school for continuing adult education) or some other specialized institution.

All Seminar students participate in the Introductory, Midyear, and Final Sessions, where matters related to their studies, experiences and individual progress are reviewed and discussed. The focus of the Scandinavian Seminar program is an Independent Study project in the student's own field of interest. An increasing number of American college and universities are giving full or partial credit for the Seminar year.

The fee, covering tuition, room, board, one-way group transportation from New York and all course-connected travels in Scandinavia is $3,200. A limited number of scholarship loans are available.

For further information please write to: Scandanavian Seminar, 100 East 85th Street, New York, New York, 10028.

College Expenses High?
Save Money on your Prescription at Grandway Discount Pharmacy, Vermont's First Discount Pharmacy
LOW LOW LOW PRICES
Ask about us at University Infirmary
All your friends shop here, shouldn't you?
Grandway Pharmacy
Grandway Shopping Center
Shelburne Road
864-6869

Why Don't Bang & Olufsen Turntables Look Like This?

The answer is quite simple.
Our turntables are totally integrated.
Technical innovations are concealed within. Operation is simple and logical
In short, we design our products to create music, not confusion.

1 Pick-up cartridge
Most turntables are profiled by companies which do not manufacture pick-up cartridges. As Bang & Olufsen produces both turntable and pick-up cartridge, we can create a system in which the cartridge, pick-up arm and other mechanical systems are finely balanced and matched to one another. Our sensitive stylus unit, capable of registering even the smallest undulations, as small as 0.05μ (1μ=one millionth of a meter), ensures that every signal in the record groove will be traced. Its resilient suspension effectively helps neutralize disturbances caused by opposing forces. And the integration of cartridge and tone arm also eliminates unwanted resonances that cause distortion. While each component of the turntable represents a significant technical achievement, it is the complete integration of cartridge and tone arm into a single, functional unit, which guarantees all sound information in the record groove will be faithfully reproduced.

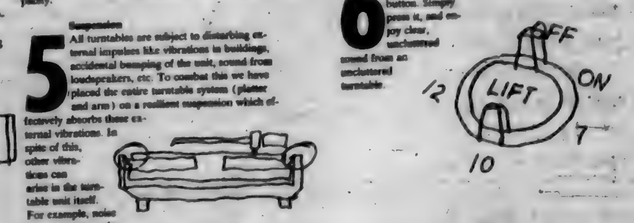
2 Stylus pressure
Optimum performance is attained only if the stylus tip of the cartridge makes precise contact with the walls of the record groove. To do this, the stylus must constantly maintain the correct pressure. In the integrated turntable, the cartridge and pick-up arm are so precisely matched that setting the stylus pressure is simple and problem-free. Once the stylus pressure has been set there is no need for future adjustments.

3 Balance
In principle, every pick-up arm can achieve the balance necessary for the cartridge to track the record correctly. But the heavier the arm, the greater its inertia, i.e. the greater the force required to move it. This means that when tracking even a slightly warped record—and what record is perfect?—instead of moving the arm up and down, the record groove will press the stylus and its cantilever (stylus arm) out of position, causing distortion of the music being played. This problem does not occur with the Bang & Olufsen pick-up arm and its cartridge. Balance is inherent in the design; the weight of the integrated pick-up arm has been scientifically calculated to insure minimum inertia. It is therefore possible to play warped records without fear of damaging your cartridge or losing contact with the groove.

4 Automatic anti-skating
Skating effect is the force which drags the pick-up arm towards the center of the record. The pressure exerted on the inner side of the groove walls by this force can cause serious damage to the record. Many turntables are equipped with an external system of weights and pulleys which attempt to counteract this skating force. At Bang & Olufsen, where technical achievement and functional design are of equal concern, we have concentrated our efforts on creating a simple system contained within the unit. Our system, the product of engineering innovation and a thorough knowledge of the forces affecting the cartridge and pick-up arm, offers a unique solution. Optimum skating force compensation is provided by locating the anti-skating device inside the bearing of the pick-up arm. The device itself consists of three small steel balls securely placed inside three slanted horizontal bearings. As the tone arm travels across the record, each bearing proportionally exerts exactly the amount of outward force necessary to counteract the skating tendency—a precise and reliable system praised by HIGH FIDELITY and STEREO REVIEW for its ingenuity and simplicity.

5 Suspension
All turntables are subject to disturbing external impulses like vibrations in buildings, accidental bumping of the unit, sound from loudspeakers, etc. To combat this we have replaced the entire turntable system (platter and arm) on a resilient suspension which effectively absorbs these external vibrations. In spite of this, other vibrations can arise in the turntable unit itself. For example, noise from the motor, the chassis, the pick-up arm, etc. However, through the precise matching of each system, Bang & Olufsen's integrated unit reduces all internal vibration to a negligible minimum.

6 Operation
Your only controls are ON, OFF, and choice of speed. And they are controlled by a single button. Simply press it, and enjoy clear, unadulterated sound from an uncluttered turntable.



Bang & Olufsen

AUDIO DEN
[illegible] Church Street
[illegible] Main Street

...and Gene Lockhart. Made in 1945, ...German espionage broken up by the ...t of the atomic bomb. Shown free in ...

...n Scottish Country Dancing in Room ...y Building, by Priscilla Barrage. For ...

...k by Mr. Ken Schwarz of Amoco ...ology As A Career— Is It For Me!"

...nis "Open Circuit", designed to keep ...ws of local concern. Moderated by ...ate student in Communications at ...

...AY, OCTOBER 15
...e federal program ACTION will be ...gh Thursday.
...new counseling service is available at ...ssoc Calvin Chappel or Roberto Rios
...ting of the faculty and faculty Senate ...Andrews will present details of the ...976 and 1977.
...nlighters, a Pentecostal fellowship ...p the Lord in word and song in MAT ...2952 for more information.
...meeting in North Lounge, Billings.
...on in conjunction with the Fleming ...ilding" display. Tonight: "Re-using ...chaired by Chester Liebs of Vermont
...ow filing STET applications for STET ...Mutual Education Exchange Program ...ation forms and further information ...duate College, 335 Waterman.

...DAY, OCTOBER 16
...be given in the Carpenter Auditorium ...sponsored by the the Dept. of ...dy temperature in fever: changes in ...Seconds." The speaker is Professor W.S. ...ory of Neuropharmacology, National ...earch, London, England.
...signing up for "Guess Who's Coming ...ings Center.
...ncy Koch will lead a workshop entitled ...centered in meditation" in Marsh ...ation, call Nancy at 3340.
...ceptional Children meeting at Billings. ...of the College of Education, will speak. ...ernational Club of UVM weekly coffee ...ional Studies Center, 479 Main St., and

...ception for art show by Lucy Evans at ...ow will be in conjunction with "Under

...an informal gathering of anyone who ...nd meet the Spanish professors. Held in ...L/L Center.
...es presents the Chinese Opera Theatre ...tickets dial 3418.
...ages Night sponsored by the Romance ...ing to inform foreign language students ...which demand their particular speaking ...ons of the L/L Center.
...SDAY, OCTOBER 17
...D. Rausch of the U. of Mass. will speak ...s of Cobalt, Rhodium and Iridium" ...istry Dept. Held in B-112, Cook Bldg.

...orkshops Offered

...dividual ...ted by ...ors and ...ing and ...unction ...ill offer ...2 weekly ...ditation ...who is ...n for ...on and ...Monday ...Lounge ...Butler ...dnesday ...Lounge, ...gins Oct.

These hours will be a place where people can come and relax, get focused and, we hope, leave with some renewed energy. (kind of like getting your battery recharged). Techniques taught for relaxation, meditation and centering will be useful in daily life to reduce psycho-physical stress. Various resources people skilled in different disciplines and techniques will be coming to sessions to share their ideas and skills.

Daily offerings: sitting meditation twice daily at 8–9 a.m., Living/Learning, A-101 and at 12-1 p.m., B-132 Living/Learning.

...id Frye At UVM

... Frye will ...trick Gym ...r 24th at ...l be on sale ...October 14 at the Student Activities office in Billings Center. General admission is $2.00/ with UVM ID $1.00. SA Speakers is arranging the event.

...OFF!
...ch
... ON SALE
...end (Reg. $11.00)
...T BILLINGS CENTER
...ct. 28, 29, 30 9-5

VERMONT CYNIC

Founded In 1883

Barbara Frankel '75, Editor-in-Chief
Ken Steinberg '75, Assistant Editor
Wyatt Kash '77, Managing Editor
Bruce Maddams '76, News Editor
Randy Jensen '77, Assistant News Editor
Margo Stoddard '75, Features Editor
Lisa Charles '75, Arts Editor
Peter Campbell '75, Assistant Arts Editor
Mike Schwartz '75, Sports Editor
Emily Stimmel '77, Copy Editor
Debbie Powell, '76, Advertising Manager

Editorial

The First And Last Protest ?

In recent years there have been many controversial issues affecting the university community. National issues such as the killings at Kent State and the bombings at Cambodia and university issues such as the political firing of Michael Parenti and the three philosophy professors are but a few. But despite the controversial nature of these incidents, the university community has rarely, if ever, organized effectively to register their protest.

There were attempts to organize a boycott of final exams following the firing of Parenti and the bombing of Cambodia. There also was picketing at President Andrews' house protesting the unwarranted removal of the three philosophy professors. But these efforts were virtual failures. They barely registered an effective protest.

Last Monday evening, UVM students finally gathered to voice their opinions. They came out in great numbers to protest President Ford's recent actions with regard to the pardon of Nixon, the amnesty issue, the economy, and the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller for vice president.

The demonstration was extremely well organized. It appeared to be the most effective political gathering at the university in several years.

Many individuals who are too apathetic to demonstrate or who feel demonstrating is a waste of time may claim that it had little effect. This is not the case. (It may not have had any concrete results, but it had symbolic significance.) It showed that there are still students left who will take the time to speak out. Maybe apathy has not stricken the entire student body.

It should not take the arrival of President Ford to bring students out to protest. They should take the initiative to voice their opinions on all issues they feel are unjust and not in their interest. At the present time there are many issues which have a direct bearing on the student body. The lack of an influential voice in determining university policy and the constantly increasing tuition are but two of the many issues that need to be challenged.

We hope that Monday night's action was not an isolated incident, but an indication of the growing concern of students. Student demonstrations will not cure our ills. But without an effective challenge to present day policies, our university and our country will constantly be subjected to corrupt leaders and ineffectual and socially unjust policies.

R.S.

Amnesty Not A Debatable Issue

by David Ross

"The issue of amnesty is not a question of 'leniency' or 'forgiveness.' It is nothing less than the question of who was 'right' and who was 'wrong' concerning America's military intervention in Indochina. The question of amnesty is not limited to the moral dimension, although the morality of our involvement in Indochina is an issue which cannot be easily escaped or simply swept under the rug. Amnesty is also a legal issue.

The cold legal facts are that America's imperialist war in Indochina was a 'war of agression' and as such, it violated the United Nations Charter. This Charter, having been ratified by the Congress and signed into law by the President, is Constitutionally binding... ie, 'the law of the land.' Our involvement also violated the SEATO Treaty — also Constitutionally binding. Therefore, the war was illegal and unconstitutional and as such, young Americans had no obligation to participate in it.

Additionally, both the strategies and tactics by which our government conducted the Indochina War constitutes a wholesale commission of war crimes as defined by domestic law and Constitutionally binding treaties. The legal principles tested at Nurenberg and Tokyo at the end of World War II upheld the individuals responsibility to refrain from committing or contributing to the commission of war crimes. It was impossible to participate in the Indochina War without contributing, directly or indirectly, to the commission of such crimes.

The 'free fire zones,' 'search and destroy missions,' the relocation of whole populations into concentration camps, the deliberate artillery and ariel bombardment of civilians, the deliberate targeting of medical facilities, the routine torture of prisoners, assassination programs, use of chemical agents and certain types of ordenance constitute but a partial listing of war crimes conducted as official policy by our government.

Those who resisted, and refused to participate in the war, upheld their legal obligations to refrain from participating in 'wars of agression' and the commission of war crimes. The war resisters upheld the law, plain and simple. The real criminals of the Indochina War are the politicians and generals in Washington — they are the ones who should be asking for amnesty.

Those responsible for planning and conducting this illegal and immoral war have never been brought to account for their crimes against humanity. They have been granted 'de facto' amnesty – to refuse amnesty for war resisters who upheld the law by refusing to participate in the barbarity called the 'Vietnam War' is a legal and moral travisty of the severest magnitude which only serves to further expose the hypocrisy of our system of imperialism.

The VVAW/WSO has close ties with war resisters both at home and abroad – they assure us that they can accept nothing less than a universal, unconditional, nonpunitive amnesty. Such an amnesty must include all persons currently in exile abroad, living 'underground' in the U.S. or in prison. It must also include the upgrading of all less-than-honorable discharges earned for resisting the war, racism and repression of the military, along with a retroactive clearing of all civil and military records for all categories of war resisters.

Perhaps the greatest travisty of all lies in the fact that our leaders are to this day continuing the Indochina War. As Ambassador Sullivan put it "only the color of the corpses have changed." With the exception of 1968 and 1971, more Indochinese died last year than during any other period of the War. To believe that Thieu's South Vietnamese Government is anything other than a puppet directly subordinate and subservient to American dictates requires the gravest ignorance. Through American advisors and logistics, the war in Asia continues unabated. We continue to bring dishonor on our nation by openly violating virtually every provision of the Paris Agreements and preventing the peace both peoples so greatly desire. VVAW/WSO demands strict implementation of the Paris Agreements and the immediate termination of all aid to the puppet governments we are underwriting in Indochina.

To refuse to prosecute those responsible for the Indochina War and the wholesale commission of crimes against humanity that resulted from it while refusing to grant universal, unconditional amnesty to all war resisters, to those who truly provided America with 'its finest hour' by refusing to participate, would be such a hypocrisy and a travesty against both the laws of this nation and the consciousness of mankind that it might well prevent us from ever reclaiming our place among the decent peoples of the world."

Kissinger On The Way Out

by Steve Levine

If anyone had asked me three months ago I'd have said that Henry Kissinger would be Secretary of State 10 years after he was dead. I'm now inclined to doubt that he'll still hold the office next month at this time.

The instrument of Henry's destruction is an unlikely one: his authorization of CIA intervention in the domestic affairs of Chile last year.

The U.S. intervenes in the internal operations of nations every day with varying degrees of involvement on the part of the Secretary. The atrocities conducted in Chile on our behalf, while of a grander scale, are no different from atrocities we sponsor elsewhere in the world.

But Chile is close enough to home for some elements of the domestic population to have heard of it and therefore if one wished to nail a higher official for wrongdoing there it would theoretically be possible.

The leaks connecting Kissinger to the Chilean affair have a most authoritive ring to them. They include names and dates and quotes from official documents. They are not the work of amateur leakers. The demise of Nixon has armed politicians with a powerful weapon to employ against one another in the form the newly revivified political journalism. There are times when it appears as though the missions of government are simply visiting the press on one another.

So I suspect it is with Henry Kissinger.

Kissinger is a popular figure and not one to be easily gotten rid of. Yet he is inextricably interwined with the odium of the last administration, in some ways which have not thus far become public. He is also an intransigent egotist who will not adapt to the new policies of the Ford regime very readily.

Thus he has to fade from the scene.

Kissinger's role in the destruction of the Allende government has been known around Washington for months, but while Nixon held office the matter was never pressed. Now it will provide leverage for prying Kissinger out of the Secretary's chair.

It is clear that heads are rolling back there and at long last it seems as if Henry's will be among them.

****

Has anyone noticed the alarming trend toward glamorizing the depression in this year's new TV shows?

Watching Paper Moon the other night, the perversity of the thing struck me hard. TV, which has for 30 years worked diligently to sell us the joys of affluence is now peddling the pleasures of poverty, how it stimulates the ingenuity and brings people together.

Don't you believe it, my friends. A depression is a bloody nightmare. The last one here marked a whole generation and begat the bloodiest war in history.

If the current trends continue the lower half of the American economic curve is going to be totally out of luck and it will take more than a slick Madison avenue media blitz to make them accept going hungry.

Letters To The Editor

Omnipotence Or Impotence

To the Editor:

I was stunned to read your recent editorial, "The Plight of the UFW;" a more cynical liberalism I have rarely seen. In your omnipotence (or should it read impotence?), you have judged ten years of struggle as a lost cause, piously lumped all unions in the same category as the corporate monopoly, and labeled Caesar Chavez, besides the rhetorical "aging and ailing man," which I doubt he is, a symbol of despair.

If there is despair, it is not in Boycott Offices across the nation, nor in the lives of UFW members from Delano to Coachella, but in the bleeding-heart "what-can-we-do- against - the - system" attitude, which has always been in this country a detriment to social change. I gather from the tone of this "enlightened" piece of journalism, that you would have hung your head, eyes misty, with crocodile tears, when the first marcher was attacked by dogs in Selma and Birmingham – emancipating the economic misery of many American, black, white, or Chicano, is a slow but continual process. Yes, at times you are St. George fighting ten dragons, but no, all hope is not lost.

Students will assume that with the introduction of the Teamsters, as the cornerstone of your argument, you must be well versed in the "facts." This I seriously question. In earlier talks I had with your Editorial Board, you admitted to a very basic understanding of not only the facts, but the issues involved. I maintain that state of affairs still exists. To say the "American disease of bigness," is at the root of the present UFW impass vis-a-vis the Western Conference of Teamsters and powerful Growers is at best an oversimplification; at worst, a deliberate stab-in-the-back at social reform.

Without question, the Teamsters for the last forty years have been the epitomy of the "bad" union, the corrupt union of Jimmy Hoffa and Frank Fitzsimmons. But what of the complete monopolization of power in the hands of a small clique of wealthy businessmen-growers in California, their control over the police, the border patrol, and the courts?

Is not the fact that farm laborers are covered by no national legislation, specifically the National Labor Relations Act and its two amendments, another aspect of the "issue?"

Do you fear the United Farm Workers will become "too big or do they ask for too much too soon?"

This "dragon," though by no means slain, has been wounded often – a successful three year boycott from '67 to '70, before the Teamsters, and labor's increasing solidarity behind 'La Cause,' as a result of the Teamster's stealing of contracts, can not just be written off as futile acts – there are three bills before the California State Legislature, one of which, House Bill 3750, will guarantee secret ballot elections with third party supervision, for all Farm Workers, at peak harvest.

Should we now hold our hands to the sky, and pray for a miracle, or work for the kind of necessary legislation, support the boycott and petitions such as the nation-wide attempt to provide proper enforcement of Border Immigration from Mexico. Is a cause not only lost when you give up hope?

Yes, bigness is part of the picture, but not the picture itself. Are aroused public can shake the Pharoahs, and they have not all folded their hands and rocked quietly on the porch swing, content with the "knowledge" there is nothing they can do. It would appear you have already taken passive seats on the swing, in a frustration which we all share, and though not yet knitting boots for the new baby, rock back and forth, wistfully sighing, "Ah, for the good old days." Let me add – the good old days are now.

Roby Colodny

Law Suit Contributions

To the Editor:

Last spring I won a $15,000 settlement from the UVM Board of Trustees in connection with a law suit I had brought against them for having fired me for political reasons.

In consultation with several other professors at UVM I distributed the money in its entirety as follows:

Contributions to the legal defense funds of individuals and organizations that are the object of the U.S. government's oppression; academic freedom cases; free speech cases (e.g., Wounded Knee Legal Defense, Martin Sostre, Center for Constitutional Rights, National Lawyers Guild, etc.) $4740

Contributions to groups engaged in emergency relief work for victims of political oppression (e.g. Spanish Refugee Fund, Chile Relief Fund, etc.) $1550

Contributions to democratic socialist and other anti-establishment publications (e.g. Monthly Review, Workers World, The Guardian, North Country Star, etc.) $1356

Remaining legal fees and other legal expenses $1342

Contributions to groups in organized political struggle against the abuses and related injustices of the corporate state (e.g. Vietnam Veterans, Liberty Union, PACT, Youth Against War and and Fascism, Women's Switchboard, etc.) $3800

Used for my personal survival expenses while running for U.S. Congress (June through September) $2000

Miscellaneous: telephone calls and, other operational expenses for distribution of funds. $64

Total $15,006

Funds that were left in the Thomas Jefferson Fund collected from various professional colleagues and friends which were not spent on legal fees remained on account with Professor Garrison Nelson of UVM and have recently been distributed to support other academic freedom cases and to the Richard Warner Memorial Fund. For further details on this, contact Professor Nelson.

Sincerely,

Michael Parenti

An Environmental Mistake

To the Editor:

I have some comments to make regarding your special edition of October 4. First of all, the content was not especially profound, witty or having any of the attributes which one expects of material necessitating a "Special Edition." Your comments and articles regarding Ford's appearance could have appeared in the regular edition of Oct. 3. Secondly, I am appalled that you, who hopefully are regarded as a spokesperson for student sentiment by the community at large, would print such special editions in such a shamelessly, wasteful format. The fact that you left the back side of the edition blank shows that you are not concerned about conservation and environmental issues. The special edition could have been printed on paper half the size and both paper, a valuable resource, and expense could have been saved.

Disrespectively yours,

David Lamb

Dick Warner Remembered

To the Editor:

The Equal Opportunities Committee of the University of Vermont Faculty Senate has been deeply saddened by the death of Professor Richard Warner, a past chairman of the Committee and one of the most forceful champions of social justice and equal rights on the University of Vermont campus. Dick Warner was a man of strength and courage who led our committee at a time when the University had only a few minority students and faculty. Largely through his leadership, minority representation has greatly increased and the University environment today is vastly richer and more exciting. We will always remember Dick for his great contributions to the UVM community. Most of all, we will remember him as a magnificent human being.

Equal Opportunities Committee

Starving Lawnmowers

To the Editor:

In the midst of potential massive food shortages and a global fertilizer shortage, it is encouraging to discover the prolific fertilization of UVM's lawns to feed the starving lawnmowers.

Sincerely yours,

Steve Wadsworth

Womanhood Must Be Recognized

by Linda Clayton

Women need to learn to enjoy themselves.

For some reason, claiming to like being a woman has come to be synonymous with professing satisfaction with the position of women in society.

That is a self-defeating assumption. A woman can't be free until she likes herself and enjoys being herself.

The first step toward self-love is self-knowledge.

The lie that women who are involved in changing their lives are acting out their own self-hatred has got to be put to rest. People involved in personal change will always reject the way they were before their awakened awareness. Dissatisfaction is the catalyst to change, but dissatisfaction evolves not from self-hatred, but from self-love. Most women approach positive change in their lives from a position of liking themselves and rewarding themselves with what they believe they deserve: the best society can give them.

We can't deal with men until we've dealt with ourselves. We have to believe we are worthy of the consideration we seek. We have to believe that our needs are real and deserve to be met.

One of the most destructive ways we supress ourselves is by being ashamed of our needs.

We have spent our lives learning what we are supposed to be. The lessons we have learned were false, in great part, but from them we have developed needs and feelings. Sometimes we ARE jealous. Sometimes we need security. Sometimes we are emotional.

We recognize the conditioning of our society within those needs, but we are wrong if we supress and deny them.

As women we should indulge the womanliness of our peculiar needs. They are, no matter where they come from, neither good nor bad; they are simply needs. We must recognize them if we are to know ourselves; we must have them met if we are to enjoy our womanhood.

We do not, in wanting equality with men, want to be men. Our movement is about many things, but mostly it is about celebrating what is a woman, not imitating what is a man.

We should never be ashamed to enjoy what it is that makes us women. Anger with ourselves is often necessary, but joy with being ourselves is always essential.

"The Golden Years"

by Jen Hutchinson

Depending on your point of view, they're the "Golden Years" or the "Empty Years" – a time of reaping the benefits of a lifetime's investment in living or a period of lonsliness stepped in the bitter knowledge that you are alone and forgotten.

Never is it as essential to come to terms with life as it is after 65. Never are the results of failure so devastating, or success so rewarding. We face crisis in our teens, once again as we enter middle age, but the final crisis is perhaps the worst of all.

Few drift gracefully into old age. Most do it unwillingly, back up in protest. After all, who wants to stop being "we" and start being "they?" And the process of acceptance and reestablishment of yet another lifestyle, at a time when the last thing we want is upheaval, is a tedious and painful process.

Not all are senile, they are not all in nursing homes. They are not all lonely... but they all have problems, unique adjustments to make... unique gifts to offer. Some, however, are helpless old people, in their eighties and nineties, who can't get out to do their shopping, or to cash their pension check, or go to the clinic by themselves without someone to help them. Yet with a little help of the kind you can offer, they can again become semi-self sufficient.

What we have to realize is that old people are very valuable and do have a worthwhile role in our society and this recognition must come because our social development is falling behind in an increasingly complex technological age.

"I hate being called a 'senior citizen.' For the first time in my life I know how a young person must feel when he's called a teenager. I'm me. I have seven grandchildren. I'm a widow. I'm president of my church women's group. I love poached salmon with egg sauce. I adore Agatha Christie and I am something of a hypochondriac. But what does all this have to do with my age, and the age of a million others. I am not old. I do not feel old and I really would appreciate it if society would stop assuming that because of a few extra years, I am a doddering old fool who can't be trusted to know the time of day."

They are unique.

They need to be listened to.

They need to be understood, Understand? Listen.

VERMONT CYNIC

NEWS: Vincent Arlas, George Georgakilis, Andy Morse, Audrey Rothstein, Steve Rice, Elliott Freeman

SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson

FEATURE: Paul Ajamian, Carol Dufalt, Amy-Catherine Fischer, Pam Hogarth

PRODUCTION: Joan Forsaith, Karen Hill, Beth LeVine, Mark Valley, Daniel Mead

ARTS: Sari Bodi, Robert Danke, Amy Fisher, Barbara Freedman, Joe Kauffman, Adelainde Murphy, Paul Prior, Martha Wolotz

ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowen, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Cesarov, Debbie Powell

COLUMNISTS: Debbie Adler, Tom McCormick, Scott McKay, Carmen

BUSINESS MANAGER: Fern

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of the members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published yearly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and Business offices in the Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone: 658-4911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1883. Subscription rate $8.00 per year, single copy ten cents.

You Never Know
The Voices

by Elliot Freeman

Sometimes I think this whole world is one b
Some of us are prisoners and some of us are g
Ru

In the United States of America a man is g rights. We are a nation obsessed with rules and of the most sacred of the laws of this land is th man regardless of his position or place in socie thought and speech.

On October 3, the inmates of the State P were notified of a decision by U.S. District Co Coffrin that ordered state officials to cease inmate newspaper and permit the circulation
Lazarus, among the residents as well as outside

Corrections Commissioner R. Kent Stone
Warden Julius Mosykens, who resigned a few responsible for the suppression of the p 1973, fearing that the contents were inflam personalities and might cause civil suits.

The judge stated in his decision. "The co the articles in question, and while it does not in of their tone and content, it does not find governmental interests..."

The same system of justice which confine Windsor Prison to serve time as retribution fo of the law has now reassured them of their ri speech. It would appear a gross denial of the justice under the law (a theory that still exi tries to defy it) if the prison authorities show full cooperation with the publication of the pa

Don Gilhooly, editor of the paper, i publication under way and is hopeful that appear in the near future, although the possibi the Corrections Commissioner Stoneman m

Mexico, A Re

by Steve Levine

Mexico City must be where bad people huge, ugly, squalid, and incomprehensible works out right either in technical or hum no possibility of getting a plausible expla countless screw ups one faces there dail difficult to get into, around in, or out of.

Mexico City has a current population a and almost all of them are poor. They live squalor behind crumbling painted walls of in square government sponsored housing p miles in every direction. The urban sprawl most profound I have ever seen.

Unlike the tourist-rich areas to the provides little access to the economic mai residents. They get by in the most imagina

But that does not mean that there through Mexico City. No indeed. All al are massive new sky scrapers built by ni banks and most of all by large North A concerns. Like most of the raw materials the western hemisphere, like Columbia, found itself in a very favorable balance
The agricultural and mineral wealth o tremendous influx of foreign capital bo hard currency over the last few years.

With this flood of cash has come a s perhaps as high as twenty per cent government figures acknowledge only has also brought rising expectations fo class, who now view a TV and an au within their reach.

At present it is as expensive to live i live in Los Angeles, where the per capita cent higher

All this adds up to incipient trouble.

Mexico is by tradition a revolution endured more different forms of go century than any other country except all of Mexico City's grand boulevard
Insurgentes are named after some revol

For some years the current republic relative stability by a curious coal marxists, and liberals called the PRI.

In the face of economic instability class dissatisfaction it appears as if the co

From Lafayette to the East and Ruth

Jenseits des fensters, zwischen den Ta
Nest conical wastes of order, and love,
Dug from the land, and deep, and unk Spread at the random, and wide, and
Two thousand mounts of effort, and Gone because the East, and none, and FRANKLY SPEAKING.

Contributions

$1243

Contributions to groups in organized political struggle against the abuses and related injustices of the corporate state (e.g. Vietnam Veterans, Liberty Union, PACT, Youth Against War and and Fascism, Women's Switchboard, etc.)

$7800

Used for my personal survival expenses while running for U.S. Congress (June through September)

$2000

Miscellaneous: telephone calls and other operational expenses for distribution of funds.

Total $15,006

Funds that were left in the Thomas Jefferson Fund collected from various professional colleagues and friends which were not spent on legal fees remained on account with Professor Garrison Nelson of UVM and have recently been distributed to support other academic freedom cases and to the Richard Warner Memorial Fund. For further details on this, contact Professor Nelson.

Sincerely,

Michael Parenti

nmental Mistake

community at large, would print such special editions in such a shamelessly wasteful format. The fact that you left the back side of the edition blank shows that you are not concerned about conservation and environmental issues. The special edition could have been printed on paper half the size and both paper, a valuable resource, and expense could have been saved.

Disrespectively yours,
David Lamb

olden Years"

Jen Hutchinson

point of view, they're the "Golden Years" — a time of reaping the benefits of in living or a period of loneliness stepped that you are alone and forgotten.

al to come to terms with life as it is after ts of failure so devastating, or success so ate in our teens, once again as we enter l crisis is perhaps the worst of all.

y into old age. Most do it unwillingly, er all, who wants to stop being "we" and And the process of acceptance and another lifestyle, at a time when the last val, is a tedious and painful process.

hey are not all in nursing homes. They are ey all have problems, unique adjustments to offer. Some, however, are helpless old es and nineties, who can't get out to do ash their pension check, or go to the clinic t someone to help them. Yet with a little on offer, they can again become semi-self ealise is that old people are very valuable ttle role in our society and this recognition r social development is falling behind in an technological age.

d a 'senior citizen.' For the first time in my oung person must feel when he's called a ve seven grandchildren. I'm a widow. I'm ch women's group. I love poached salmon e Agatha Christie and I am something of a what does all this have to do with my age, n others. I am not old. I do not feel old and state it if society would stop assuming that a years, I am a doddering old fool who can't e time of day."

stened to.
nderstood. Understand? Listen.

MONT CYNIC

Steve Rice, Elliott Freeman

SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Green, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson

PRODUCTION: Joan Foraith, Karen Hill, Beth LeVine, Mark Valley, Daniel Mead

ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowen, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Granger, Debbie Powell

BUSINESS MANAGER: Pam Quinlan

...expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in ...do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the ...administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of ...opinions expressed by the editorials do not ...reflect the opinion of the majority of the ...CYNIC Editorial Board.

...yearly during the college year by the students ...ship of Vermont and State Agricultural College. ...Business offices in the Billings Center, ...Vermont. Telephone: 656-4911. Deadline for ...week prior to date of publication. ...1865. Subscriptions cost $8.00 per year, single ...

You Never Know :

The Voices Inside The Walls Of Windsor

by Elliot Freeman

Sometimes I think this whole world is one big prison yard,
Some of us are prisoners and some of us are guards.
Robert Zimmerman

In the United States of America a man is guaranteed certain rights. We are a nation obsessed with rules and regulations. One of the most sacred of the laws of this land is that each and every man regardless of his position or place in society has freedom of thought and speech.

On October 3, the inmates of the State Prison at Windsor were notified of a decision by U.S. District Court Judge Albert Coffrin that ordered state officials to cease suppression of an inmate newspaper and permit the circulation of the paper, The Lupus, among the residents as well as outside the prison.

Corrections Commissioner R. Kent Stoneman and former Warden Julius Mosykens, who resigned a few months ago, were responsible for the suppression of the paper in January, 1973, fearing that the contents were inflammatory, attacked personalities and might cause civil suits.

The judge stated in his decision. "The court has examined the articles in question, and while it does not in any way approve of their tone and content, it does not find they threaten the governmental interests..."

The same system of justice which confined the inmates to Windsor Prison to serve time as retribution for their infractions of the law has now reassured them of their right of freedom of speech. It would appear a gross denial of the theory of equal justice under the law (a theory that still exists no matter who tries to defy it) if the prison authorities show anything less than full cooperation with the publication of the paper.

Don Gilhooly, editor of the paper, is anxious to get publication under way and is hopeful that the first issue will appear in the near future, although the possibility does exist that the Corrections Commissioner Stonesman might try and appeal the court decision. Don feels that the paper will serve as an extremely important tool in continuing the atmosphere of change that has been brought about by the new warden, Paul Dovallou, as well as unifying the residents and the prison employees toward the goal of more effective rehabilitation within the institution. The paper will also serve as a much needed communication link between the inmates and the outside community.

It is relatively easy to control a person's freedom of movement. Build a wall. Bar the windows. Lock the doors. Guard the hallways. In the history of this human race there has never been a wall, no matter how high or thick, there has never existed bars of steel so strong, there have been no locks or chains so secure, or guards who are tough enough to control what a man has in his mind. That fact has not stopped anyone from trying to do so. Again and again and time and again they have failed. And hopefully they always will. For the voice of a man's spirit when it wants to be heard is a thunderous roar so loud and intense that it can be muffled and muted and choaked and walled and barred and locked and guarded but never silenced. If that silence ever surrounds my ears, I will know in the deathlike emptiness of that moment that civilization has surely past on.

I hear coffstantly people talk about freedom. Free is what they say they want to be. I suggest that if you care at all about freedom, you listen to the voices from inside the penitentiary.

The Cynic has just learned of the unfortunate decision of Corrections Commissioner R. Kent Stoneman to appeal the court's decision not to interfere with publication of the inmate paper at Windsor Prison. Starting with next week's issue the Cynic will publish contributions by the residents of that institution and will continue to do so until the Department of Corrections ceases its policies of suppression and abuse of inmate rights.

Mexico, A Revolution Ridden Country

by Steve Levine

Mexico City must be where bad people go when they die. It is huge, ugly, squalid, and incomprehensible. Nothing there ever works out right either in technical or human terms and there is no possibility of getting a plausible explanation for any of the countless screw ups one faces there daily. It is a city that is difficult to get into, around in, or out of.

Mexico City has a current population approaching 10 million and almost all of them are poor. They live in varying degrees of squalor behind crumbling painted walls of clapboard or adobe or in square government sponsored housing projects extending four miles in every direction. The urban sprawl of Mexico City is the most profound I have ever seen.

Unlike the tourist-rich areas to the south, Mexico City provides little access to the economic mainstream for most of its residents. They get by in the most imaginative of ways.

But that does not mean that there is no money coming through Mexico City. No indeed. All along the Reforma there are massive new sky scrapers built by airlines and international banks and most of all by large North American manufacturing concerns. Like most of the raw materials producing countries of the western hemisphere, like Columbia, for instance, Mexico has found itself in a very favorable balance of payments situation. The agricultural and mineral wealth of Mexico has brought a tremendous influx of foreign capital both as investment and as hard currency over the last few years.

With this flood of cash has come a stunning rate of inflation, perhaps as high as twenty per cent per annum though the government figures acknowledge only about seven per cent. It has also brought rising expectations for the Mexican working class, who now view a TV and an automobile as realistically within their reach.

At present it is as expensive to live in Mexico City as it is to live in Los Angeles, where the per capita income is about 100 per cent higher

All this adds up to incipient trouble.

Mexico is by tradition a revolution-ridden country. It has endured more different forms of government over the last century than any other country except possibly Italy. Virtually all of Mexico City's grand boulevards, like the Reforma or Insurgentes are named after some revolutionary hero or action.

For some years the current republic has been maintained in relative stability by a curious coalition party of fascists, marxists, and liberals called the PRI.

In the face of economic instability and widespread working class dissatisfaction it appears as if the coalition is crumbling.

There is a general strike scheduled for next month that could immobilize the country for weeks. The university system has become a cauldron of intrigue involving radical bourgeois students and government agents. The kidnapping of President Luis Echeverria's father-in-law a few weeks ago, which was accomplished with peculiar ease by only four men, likely presages a wave of urban terrorism of the sort that has become common throughout Latin America in recent years.

There are also over larger numbers of full time guerilla fighters hiding out in Mexico's inaccessible mountain regions, and the new force of snazzily uniformed anti-guerillas the government has assembled to combat them have so far made a rather ludicrous showing. Twenty-two thousand federales and army troops, for instance, have been unable after two years of ceaseless labor to make significant inroads against the guerilla population in the Guerrero state alone.

Echeverria is regarded by elements both left and right as the source of much of the problem. Testy and slow to institute necessary reforms, he is believed by informed sources in the capital to be on the way out.

But no one knows what will follow.

One left-wing professor at the university in Mexico City, the one with big mural on the library wall, has hidden all the Marxist literature in his collection of scholarly books in anticipation of a right wing military coup of the sort the U.S. sponsored in Chile.

A long time American expatriot living in Mexico insists with equal conviction that there will soon be a Communist revolution.

As Independence Day approaches the atmosphere grows palpably more tense. There has been a disturbing increase in police activity around the capitol in recent weeks and rumors of planned uprisings abound.

As one North American put it, 'Everyone knows something is going to happen down here but they don't know what or when." The U.S. will decide much of what happens. It will probably not tolerate a banana republic on its border. Nor could U.S. planners accomodate themselves to a communist Mexico. Thus U.S. backing will probably swing as it has in several countries of late toward a left of center coalition possibly headed by members of the influential Medina family.

It is clear that the little Mexican flags for sale on every street corner are not the only preparations being made for this independence day.

OPEN SEASON :

On Top Of The World , But

by Scott MacKay

So you're Sally secretary. You've got a good job now, makin' enough to afford a two-hundred dollar a month apartment, and to keep up the payments on that '72 Camaro to boot. Your Magram's charge account keeps you dressed in the most alluring styles, and, yes, of course, you read COSMO every month. And you're learning to ski this winter, and according to the TeeVee commercials you're on top of the world...

But the damn college kids next door keep playing the stero 'till two in the morning. And the Camaro needs a tune-up. You're twenty-five, going on twenty-six and you catch yourself applying an extra dab of make-up every morning. You're sick of going to showers for your friends and you have to find a new roommate, now that Sharon has met Mr. Perfect. And you're the only one left down at the office whose third finger-left hand is not adorned with The Ring. Lately you've even taken to wistfully musing that you should have gone to stewardess school after all. And it's Saturday night again and ALL IN THE FAMILY is a rerun and there is no way you can stand to flip that John Denver album over. So you throw up your hands in deepair, put on that trappy new outfit and aim the Camaro... for the Old Board.

****

Warily, one opens the fourteen-foot, ersatz oak door to enter what is euphremistically dubbed "The Yankee Trader Room." Perhaps it is the only "Yankee Trader Room" in the world that can make Howard Johnson's resemble Trader Vic's. Or maybe they just want to redefine the epithet "Yankee" — we all know by now that our venerated forefathers were just a bunch of rowdy rum-runners, but historical research has yet to document that the American Revolution was financed with a little pandering on the side.

The "Yankee Trader Room" facade slides away rapidly as one is confronted with a gymnasium-sized drinking and dancing arena, the decor of which can only be described as Motel Chic, ever so slightly salted with Boston's pewter pot muffin shop — colonial. Band at one end, bar at the other, tables massed in the center with little regard for the girth of the patron. And all right out in the open, like the high-school dance floor, less intimacy than a fraternity keg blast.

Shuffle over to a table, and wait for the leggy waitress to bring the booze. Hope you like beer — the bartenders can't water down the Budweiser. Drinks are abysmally weak, and slightly overpriced for a college bum's pocketbook. But there is no cover charge and the service is more than adequate.

Once seated, you can readily observe Sally Secretary and a few of her friends saunter in. Like Trinity girls and sorority pledges, the single women at the Old Board often travel in packs, readying themselves to be preyed upon by Burlington's young men on the make. Nobody in the 'Board has any repose; everyone is tapping his fingers or high-heeled shoes to the music, nervously inhaling cigarettes, or scoping around, male eyelids moving from head to toe, sometimes halting on what's in-between.

****

The Old Board. (Our consultant inebriate terms it the Old Broad.) Burlington's swinging singles joint, for the above thirty crowd. No youthful, fraternity-house handsome faces here, e.g. What Ayles You and Hannibals. No white painters pantsed wonders filling you in on the latest football team gossip and bitching about English class. Few pink, marijuana glazed eyes to greet you on the dance floor, none of the eardrum-splitting hipster zaniness of the Silver Keg. The music often reminds one of the fare WQCR serves up in the wee hours. Unadulterated Musak.

Mr. Young Man On the Make cruises in, looking as though he keeps his electric hair styler-dryer plugged in to his cars cigarette lighter. Every styled-sprayed hair is in place. He's cloaked in the latest doubleknit fashion, often adorned with necktie. Strictly Robert Hall's take-me-home-for-forty-nine-ninety-five. He strides like the aging high school jock he probably is, reconnitering the women before he heads for the men's room — to comb his hair, naturally. He probably really believes he could get hired to pose for Brut magazine advertisements.

The paunchy bank teller he's interested in is similarly doffed up. And we hope this fellow is not allergic to perfume. Old Board women are hardly averse to cosmetics, and they'd most likely splash dishwater all over themselves, if it was packaged as Chanel No. 5. Or if it aided in attracting men. No doubt about it — the Old Board is one night spot in Burlington where the verity of the cliche, "You're either horney or you're a liar," is reaffirmed every evening. And you never can tell who is married and who isn't — TBR's perverted judgment leads him to believe that many of these cavorting couples are married — but not to each other.

Don't look for enlightening conversation at the Old Board. The loud thirties-rock music and the sheer sardine can tightness of the place prevents most quiet talk. Unless you're interested in who's sleazing who "Down the office," the great bargains at Woolworth's, cars, reliving ten-year-old Vermont high school football games or finding out whose sister is getting betrothed Saturday, you won't particularly enjoy the Old Board. Legend has it that the best sleazin' line to utilize when it is getting close to the last round at the 'Board is, "Hey, Honey, can I buy ya breakfast." And the poor girl will sit there lamenting that she completed the Ayds plan and sent away for all the Mark Eden self-helps and yet she still can't get a guy to "take her out." Knowing she's relegated to sleazin' at the Old Board for her excitement, she'll be only too eager to accept a Hitchin' Post breakfast.

Don't be too quick to dismiss our friend Sally and her male counterparts. The Old Board is an enormously popular drinking-sleazing establishment. The line waiting to gain entrance the last time yours truly paid a visit made one wonder — are they giving away the drinks for free? And, anyway, as Nathaniel West wrote, "It is hard to laugh at the need for beauty and romance, no matter how tasteless, even horrible, the results of that need are. But it is easy to sigh. Few things are sadder than the truly monstrous."

****

Parting Shots: Whoever invented the Burlington Previewer has done the town a great disservice. Burlington needs an "After Dark" guide, for sure. But not one that is simply a mouth-organ for its advertisers. We don't expect Michelin, but some more content and a little humor would certainly help the Previewer.

Cheap Shots: Wonder what will happen when Gerry and all those big-shot Republicans get the Green Death from that $50 per plate SAGA food.

Who is the Dean in the Arts college whose summer vacation eradicated his grey hair?

Potato Chip Month

by Neil A. Davis
Free Press Capital Bureau

MONTPELIER — From the governor who gave us Pickle Week and Frozen Food Month, now comes Potato Chip Month.

The diligent efforts of Potato Chip Institute International (no fooling) to build a better potato chip have prompted Gov. Salmon to dedicate October to those fat-fried disks of vegetable matter.

In an executive proclamation Wednesday, the governor said Americans eat an average of five pounds apiece each year of the "nutritious and tasty" potato chip.

Montpelier speculation Wednesday was running heavily against the Salmon Potato Chip Month Proclamation winning a place in the history books alongside, say, President Lincoln's 1863 Emanicipation Proclamation.

Mrs. Lorrie Acerbo, who processes proclamations for the governor, said, "We get about 125 requests for them a year and honer every one of them unless it's something crazy and I mean crazy, crazy, crazy.

"Most of them are done every year," she said. "You can look back through the files of the (Deane C.) Davis and (Philip) Hoff administrations and find the same ones."

There have been Leif Ericson Days, Baton Twirling Weeks, Johnny Appleseed Weeks and even an Automatic Screw Machine Products week — all equally memorable.

Last year, there was a "Peanut" Kennedy Day in honor of the birthday of Vermont House Speaker Walter Kennedy, R-Chelsea, but the speaker, who is running for governor against Salmon, hasn't rated a proclamation yet this year.

From Lafayette to the East and Ruth

Jenseits des fensters, zwischen dan Tagen, diesseits des Fensters
Nest conical wastes of order, and love, and thought,
Dug from the land, and deep, and unknown,
Spread at the random, and wide, and high.
Two thousand mounts of effort, and vision, and doubt,
Gone because the East, and none, and you.

C.A.B.

FRANKLY SPEAKING...by phil frank

"You Can't Take That Out Of Here"

by Robert DeNike

I was strolling through the exit of Waterman's dungeon-like cafeteria when I was halted by the watchman guarding the door.

"You can't take that out of here." He was referring to the tuna fish sandwich I had wrapped in a napkin and an apple which I was planning to devour later when the munchies unfailingly would make their nightly strike.

"And why can't I?" I retorted. "I pay the outrageous price of five coupons and feel most entitled to do whatever I please with the food I find available here." I pleaded while slowly edging closer towards the door. The checker noticed my movement and stepped from behind his table.

"It's against the rules," he contended.

"Well, I'm going to break the rules," I told him frankly in slow, quiet, calculated defiance.

With that, I bolted through the double doors and sped around the corner. I stopped in the hallway, pleased with myself for so easily fooling him and getting the better of Sega for once. But then I caught a fleeting glimpse of a tall figure approaching me rapidly from behind.

"Holy shit," I cried to myself. "I can't believe he wants to go through with this."

Adrenalin instantly circulated through my bloodstream. Soon I was sprinting down the long corridor with an ice cream cone in my mouth, a tuna fish sandwich in my left hand, an apple in my furiously pumping right hand and a Sega ticket-taker close at my heels.

I broke through another set of doors, rounded another corner and vaulted some steps. Throwing myself through yet another pair of doors, I jumped down more stairs and emerged outside the building, speeding past a crowd of bystanders. Heads turned in unison to follow me, then did a double-take when my pursuer flew by. I ran up a bank, across Prospect Street, heading towards the water fountain in the center of the green. The pursuer was gaining, my lungs were giving out, and my legs were slowing.

"I am finished." I realized and wondered what would happen next. "Will he beat the living daylights out of me? Will he take by the scruff of the neck and hauled into the managing staff of Sega? Would I be banished, forever deprived the privilege of eating in the Sega dining hall?"

No such luck.

As I threw my hands up high over my head in the traditional position of surrender, my two shoulders were gripped tightly from behind. I was abruptly spun around to face the triumphing enemy. He towered above me. I then understood how he had overtaken me: his legs alone were as long as my entire body.

"Why in hell did ya make me do this?" he thundered. "Don't ya know I'm not supposed to leave my post?" He was evidently quite pissed.

"I'm really sorry," I falsely conceded in a frightened mumble.

"C'mon, let's go a round right here. I'll take ya on," he challenged.

"No, uh, I really wouldn't want to do that at all." I managed to stutter. At that moment, a couple of my friends who had witnessed the entire occurrence arrived on the scene.

"Why'd ya chase him like that?" asked my buddy.

"Cause it's my job to. I could be fired for letting him get away. Do you know what it's like to go to school on Financial Aid, having to work your way through?" he demanded, fuming.

"Well, yes, as a matter of fact, I work at the Public Relations office." I interjected. "But I really don't see how that pertains to..."

"Shut up," the worker interrupted. "I'll take ya's on. I'll take all three of ya's on right now."

My friend chortled, turned and queried as he walked away, "Imagine...getting so worked up over a tuna fish sandwich. And a Sega sandwich, no less," he wondered in disbelief.

"Look, just don't make me run again," my opponent proclaimed, and with that, confiscated the sandwich and stomped off.

I laughed aloud all the way home. But I'll never understand why he let me keep the apple.

Parenti Not A Winner

by Robert P. Melcher

For those of you that did not come to the debate between Michael Parenti, James Jeffords, and Francis Cain, I am going to attempt to predict the outcome of the race for the House. Those of you who were there and are not blinded by high hopes for a particular candidate need read no further. It was all too obvious. It is the classical situation. There are three candidates, one on the left of the spectrum, and two candidates somewhere to the right of him.

The candidate to the left can be eliminated as a winner. He is successful if he causes the political spectrum to shift towards the left at all. This candidate is Michael Parenti, and though he will not be satisfied with his loss, he will have made some gain. Parenti will not win because he is appealing with a bitter intellectuality to voters who are not bitter and are going to avoid him because of his communist tendencies.

This leaves the other two candidates fighting for position in Parenti's game. Voters love the middle of the road and the man who will win will be the man who can take the center position. Jeffords has done this with some success. He takes a stand in the center on every issue, giving the voter the feeling that there is only one sane candidate somewhere between a paranoic and a dictator.

This leaves Francis Cain out at the end. The right end. A conservative. Sunk. He is the loser in the battle. Probably the best technician of the three, Cain seems to have great knowledge of technical data, and has the experience to have a good staff, but he is not a politician. He is not fluent, he is only able to communicate his conservatism to us.

There we have it. Left middle right, McGovern Nixon Wallace, Parenti Jeffords Cain.

One other subject of interest to me is the voting procedure at the Inter-Residence Association meetings. I recently helped to make a presentation to I.R.A. and I would like to relate the most interesting form of Parliamentary procedure that I have ever seen.

The meeting came to the time alloted for our request and the other person espousing my cause started to speak. He had not attended our latest strategy meeting and when he finished I was stuck answering questions about a point of view I did not hold. For this reason I had given up hope of winning any issue brought to a vote. My mistake. Then the IRA council started to debate. Then they got bored; no one was quite sure how to bring an issue to vote.

I asked if they might be willing to vote on the issue and even went so far as to suggest how they phrase the question. Then after a few sleepers were aroused they called a vote.

The method used to call the roll consisted of asking all in favor to raise their hands. The vote was six in favor. No one knew if that was a majority. They voted again, this time getting seven in favor. Then they took a voice vote allowing for votes for against, and abstentions. One for, four against, and no abstentions. This included only 5 of 15 members.

I WANT MY IRA FEE BACK UNTIL THEY LEARN TO VOTE!

UVM'S Lane Series Presents The National Chineese Opera Theatre

For the first time in its 39 year history, UVM's Lane Series will present a program of opera from the Orient: the National Chinese Opera Theater of the Republic of China of Taipei, Taiwan.

The 80-member company will perform at Memorial Auditorium on Wednesday, October 16, at 8 p.m.

The troupe, which presents the traditional and authentic operas of ancient Peking, is returning to the U.S. for a 30-city, cross country tour this fall for the second time in less than one year – virtually unprecedented for national touring companies of this kind. The itinerary, extending from November to December, includes leading universities and commercial locations in this country and Canada.

Chinese Opera Theater, a total theatre art which dates back some 2000 years, features acrobatics, dancing, pantomime, clowning, singing, instrumental music and the martial arts of Kung Fu, who is currently enjoying tremendous popularity in the U.S.

The Lane audience will be treated to highlights of six of the most famous operas currently being presented in Taiwan. One of the productions, in which Kung Fu plays a major part, titled "The Monkey King" concerns the legendary monkey warrior who can cover 36,000 miles with each somersault and whose sword weighs seven tons. He leads a group of demons against the Jade Emperor, ruler of Heaven.

The title role of the Monkey King is portrayed by acrobatic star Chang Fu-Chun. His mastery of leaps, tumbling, balancing and dance-like skills is a show in itself because of its exciting and precise timing.

Other productions on the Burlington program are "The Slaying of Yen Liang," "The Jade Bracelet," "The White Serpent," "The Crossroad Inn," and "Two Loyal Officials."

The orchestra, which is placed on the stage, includes percussion, wind and string instruments: the single-skin drum, wooden clapper, the two-stringed serpent-skin fiddle, the moon guitar, a bag-like instrument called sa-sui, cymbals, several types of gong, the hsiao (similar to a sweet voiced flageolet), and the ti-tze (an eight hole tranverse flute). There is no conductor or bandmaster.

In addition to acrobatics, singing and dancing, Chinese opera is noted for the lavishness and beauty of the costumes. Indeed, the elegant long silk gowns and stunning headwear worn by members of the cast will be a treat for Eastern eyes in this day when casual attire seems to be the norm.

Director of the National Chinese Opera Theatre is Chao Jung-Lai, who has spent a major part of his life in Chinese Opera. Ten years ago he was chosen to direct a Chinese opera troupe touring Europe, and from then on has served concurrently as actor and director of several Chinese opera companies.

For those seeing Chinese opera for the first time, it is well to keep some facts in mind. The stage sets are simple; the acting is mostly symbolic. On a virtually bare stage, a rug, a table, and two chairs are usually the only props. In different positions they represent a variety of objects.

Actors and actresses in ornately beautiful silk costumes saunter on stage. Some have elaborately painted faces designed to inform the audience as to the role they are playing.

Each actor introduces himself. After a few spoken words, the actor and actresses start to sing. They are accompanied by a small orchestra, which includes a clacker to keep time, and cymbals to mark climaxes. They would sound very noisy at first. The female voice is often in the coloratura range; the male register is also falsetto and throaty.

The hand gestures and the movements of the players should be watched carefully because they help you to understand the plot. Gait and gesture may be combined in riding a horse, climbing a mountain, or sailing a boat. Swords and lances, which hardly ever touch each other, are used in fighting scenes.

Always as an integral part of the opera are exciting acrobatics. Sometimes ten or more acrobats tumble and somersault together simultaneously, so that the stage is filled with figures darting and rolling toward, across, under or above one another.

One great difference between the Chinese and Western operas is that the former is seldom presented as a whole story, but the latter usually is. Chinese opera performances are mostly in excerpts, making the playbill even more important because the plot of each excerpt, though well known to most Chinese, would be simply incomprehensible to the uninitiated if he neglected first to go through the synopsis.

Tickets for the National Chinese Opera Theatre are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, at $3, $5 and $6. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

The next Lane attraction will be the Big Band Cavalcade, October 29.

"The 400 Blows" Scores Knock-Out

Francois Truffaut's masterful movie "The 400 Blows" will be presented as the second film in the Lane Film Society Series "Truffaut Classic Movies."

There will be two showings of the 1959 classic in Marsh Life Sciences Building at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. on Friday, October 11.

Critic Bosley Crowther of the New York Times called "The 400 Blows" a "cinema that brilliantly and strikingly reveals the explosion of a fresh creative talent. Here is a picture that encourages an exciting refreshment of faith in films."

With direction and screenplay by Truffaut, and musical score by Jean Constantin, the 98 minute movie won two important awards: New York Critics Award and Director's Prize at the 1959 Cannes Film Festival.

According to critic Crowther, the strong distinctions of the film are, "the clarity and honesty with which it presents a moving story of the troubles of a 12 year old boy. When previous films on similar subjects have been fictionalized with all sorts of adult misconceptions and sentimentality, this is a smashingly convincing demonstration on the level of the boy – cool, firm and realistic, without a false note or trace of goo."

The story presents 12 year old Antoine learning that his "father" married his mother only after his own illigitimate birth. He knows too, that his mother is unfaithful to his father and that neither is particularly interested in him.

After playing hookey from school with his friend, Rene, Antoine is afraid to return home and begins a life of hiding and thievery. Arrested for the theft of a typewriter, he is jailed with drunkards, thieves and prostitutes, and finally is sentenced to reform school.

Life at the reform school is regimented and lacking in human warmth. Attempting to escape, he is pursued to the edge of the sea, where he pauses, feet in the water, trapped.

Featured in the cast are Jean-Pierre Leaud as Antoine, Patrick Aufflay as Rene, Claire Maurier as Mme. Doinel, Albert Remy as M. Doinel, and Guy Decomble as the Teacher.

Tickets, $1 each, are available at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman and at the door. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

The next film on the Truffaut series is "Jules and Jim," October 18.

Experimental Film Maker To Show His Works

A leading experimental film maker, Ed Emshwiller of New York City, will be in Burlington Saturday, October 12th for afternoon and evening showings of his works. The programs, which will include both films and video-tapes will be offered at the Church Street Center for Community Education, 135 Church Street.

Once known by the name Emsh as a science fiction illustrator, Emschwiller has been making superb experimental films since the late 50's. He has generally been recognized as the best technician in the New American Cinema Group. His films abstract reality into time paintings, dance works, and poetic documentaries. He has received numerous film awards, is currently a director of the Film Makers Cooperative, has been a film maker in residence in Cornell University, and in recent years received film grants from the Guggenheim Foundation and the National Council on the Arts.

For a nominal entrance fee of $1, Emshwiller will show two films and a video-tape from 2 to 5 on Saturday afternoon and eight films from 7 to 11 on Saturday evening. The afternoon schedule includes Hallelujah the Hills (a Vermont comedy); Chrysalis (a film poem of the Nikolais Dance Group); and Philobolus and Joan (a video dance performed by the philobolus Dance Troupe). The evening schedule consists of Image, Flesh, and Voice; Film with Three Dancers; Lifelines; George Dumpson's Place; Thanatopsis; Relativity; Choice Chance Woman Dance; and Branches.

Emshwiller's presence in Vermont is the result of a personal invitation extended by Doreen Kraft and Robin Lloyd, local filmmakers and founders of the Orchid Film Society. The UVM Student Association is covering the cost of transportation and the Church Street Center is setting up the showings.

Emshwiller is bringing a broad selection of his films, an unusual opportunity for local film buffs and others interested in the technical and creative aspects of film making and video taping. For further information and for tickets, contact the Church Street Center, 656-4221.

SA FILMS PRESENTS

THURSDAY – OCTOBER 10
BITTERSWEET
101 Votey – 7:30 – Free

FRIDAY – OCTOBER 11
MY FAIR LADY
101 Votey – 7:30 & 10:30 – $1.00

SATURDAY – OCTOBER 12
THE HUSTLER
101 Votey – 7:30 – Free

MONDAY – OCTOBER 14
THE HOUSE ON 92ND STREET
103 Rowell – 7:30 – Free

PLEASE NOTE:
MY FAIR LADY REPLACES KING OF HEARTS, WHICH IS RESCHEDULED FOR NOVEMBER 8

DOLLAR SHOWING
Thurs. at 4:00 PM
ANIMAL CRACKERS
shown at
Merrill's Showcase on Williston Road
TICKETS MAY BE OBTAINED FROM BILLINGS MAIN DESK OR AT THE THEATRE

Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS

Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
Williston Road
I King of Hearts
II Animal Crackers

State Theatre
Bank Street
Gone With The Wind

Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
Tamarind Seed
Blazing Saddles
The Getaway

Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
2001: A Space Odessy
11 Harrow House

Flynn Theatre
Main Street
11:30 Fri & Sat Jerimiah Johnson
Cocaine Fiends Refer Madness

call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights or special showings

NOW SHOWING
The Original, Uncensored, Unrivaled, Classic of Comedy Classics!
the 4 MARX BROS.
"ANIMAL CRACKERS"
LILLIAN ROTH
Merrill's SHOWCASE 1 & 2
WILLISTON RD SO BURLINGTON 863-4494

THE KING AND HIS LOYAL SHORT SUBJECTS BAMBI MEETS GODZILLA
THANK YOU, MASK MAN
ALAN BATES in
KING OF HEARTS
Now At Merrill's SHOWCASE 1 & 2

THIS IS LIKE NO ROBBERY YOU'VE EVER IMAGINED.
CHARLES GRODIN
CANDICE BERGEN
JAMES MASON
TREVOR HOWARD
JOHN GIELGUD
7 & 9 PM Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2 P.M.
11 HARROWHOUSE
PG
the ultimate trip
2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY
7:00 9:30 & OTHER AD THIS PAGE
BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2
PHONE 862-5070 ANYTIME

An epic drama of adventure and exploration!
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2 PM
BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2
SPACE STATION ONE: The First Step In An Odyssey That Will Take You To Th ars and Beyond.
2001: a space odyssey
PHONE 862-5070 ANYTIME

Student Movie Discount Cards
are now available at the Cynic Office
They enable you to get $.50 off at any movie in our Movie Guide
WARNING: STUDENTS MUST PRESENT THE DISCOUNT CARD AND A VALID ID TO GET INTO THE MOVIES

Dylan's Un

by Sari Bodi

Under Milk Wood, the Theater Department's first fall production, will be presented at the Royall Tyler Theater from October 18 through 22.

As Dylan Thomas' final work, Under Milk Wood combines ideas and characters from his previous poetry and prose which approaches a complete showcase for his talent. Thomas drew upon his own experiences as a boy in a small Welsh village by the sea, to portay the unique and yet typical personalities of its townsfolk. The play opens with the last stars fading to dawn, runs through the usual course of one day, and completes the cycle with the receding rays of sunset. In this natural setting, Thomas illuminated the lighter side of human character by pinpointing specific universal qualities in each of the townsfolk. Each character, from old Captain Cat, the village blindman, to Mrs. Ogmore-Pritchard, the town grouch, explains his position in the village. The play's structure is similar to that of Spoon River Anthology except Thomas' characters are very much alive.

John Milligan, a guest professor this semester, is directing Under Milk Wood and enjoying it. "The play was written with such love. There is so much negative feeling in theater that it's a joy to work on something like that. If we do our jobs right, people should come away with a warm feeling." Mr. Milligan intends to present the Thomas m beings th village transpose perhaps i this town against doesn't s people frailties, everyday

S. A. Film

The S.A. Film Series is now into its fourth week and so far things have been running smoothly. There has been good attendance at all the movies and only one film has been cancelled (it did not arrive in time for the scheduled showing).

To help the students keep up with the schedule, a weekly list is being printed in the Cynic and weekly flyers will be posted around the campus. Also a list of the films has been printed up and is available at the Student Activities desk in Billings Center. So if you would like your own personal list of all the films, please pick one up (but please continue to check the Cynic for any changes in the schedule).

The film for tonight, October 10, is Bittersweet. This is a musical made in 1940 and starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, with George Sanders and Ian Hunter. It is the story of an English girl's love for her Viennese music teacher and of their elopement on the eve of her marriage to another man.

Their life in Vienna in the 1890's (enhanced by Noel Coward's music) ends with his death in a duel just as his operetta was due for a hearing.

The music includes I'll See You Again, Dear Little Cafe and Zigeuner. The film will be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30. Admission is free.

On Friday, October 11, My Fair Lady is scheduled (please note that this is a change from King of Hearts, which was originally scheduled and has been rescheduled for November 8). My Fair Lady was made in 1964 and stars Rex Harrison, Audrey Hepburn and Stanley Holloway. It was directed by George Cukor. This is an adaptation of the George Bernard Shaw play, Pygmalion, the classic story of the little flower seller, Eliza Doolittle, who is taken from the gutter and tutored into the ranks of gentility by Professor Henry Higgins. costume world's this film eight including Year. memor Grown Face, I Night Lover minute 7:30 Votey Friday one This of th quite P series The film Piper Glea footl chall coun Minn with since defea he every price exce girl wist extra mea Geo is ev hou in adm

Conquer the mighty yard at the BLACK CAT 100 Bank Street

...ores Knock-Out

...Antoine is afraid to return home and begins a life of hiding and thievery. Arrested for the theft of a typewriter, he is jailed with drunkards, thieves and prostitutes, and finally is sentenced to reform school.

Life at the reform school is regimented and lacking in human warmth. Attempting to escape, he is pursued to the edge of the sea, where he pauses, feet in the water, trapped.

Featured in the cast are Jean-Pierre Leaud as Antoine, Patrick Auffray as Rene, Claire Maurier as Mme. Doinel, Albert Remy as M. Doinel, and Guy Decomble as the Teacher.

Tickets, $1 each, are available at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

The next film on the Truffaut series is "Jules and Jim," October 18.

...To Show His Works

...m awards, ...or of the ...rative, has ...residence ...y, and in ...film grants ...uggenheim ...e National ...ntrance fee ...ll show two ...pe from 2 to ...rnoon and ...7 to 11 on ...ng. The ...ie includes ...(a Vermont ...ia (a film ...olais Dance ...rbolus and ...s performed ...lus Dance ...ng schedule ... Flesh, and ...uth Three

Dancers; "Lifelines"; George Dumpson's Place; Thanatopsis; Relativity; Choice Chance Woman Dance; and Branches.

Emshwiller's presence in Vermont is the result of a personal invitation extended by Doreen Kraft and Robin Lloyd, local filmmakers and founders of the Orchid Film Society. The UVM Student Association is covering the cost of transportation and the Church Street Center is setting up the showings.

Emshwiller is bringing a broad selection of his films, an unusual opportunity for local film buffs and others interested in the technical and creative aspects of film making and video taping. For further information and for tickets, contact the Church Street Center, 656-4221.

Student
...ie Discount Cards
...available at the Cynic Office
...nable you to get $8.50
...t any movie in our
Movie Guide
...: STUDENTS MUST PRESENT
...OUNT CARD AND A VALID ID
...GET INTO THE MOVIES

Dylan's Under Milkwood Is Next

by Sari Bodi

Under Milk Wood, the Theater Department's first fall production, will be presented at the Royall Tyler Theater from October 18 through 22.

As Dylan Thomas' final work, Under Milk Wood combines ideas and characters from his previous poetry and prose which approaches a complete showcase for his talent. Thomas drew upon his own experiences as a boy in a small Welsh village by the sea, to portray the unique and yet typical personalities of its townsfolk. The play opens with the last stars fading to dawn, runs through the usual course of one day, and completes the cycle with the receding rays of sunset. In this natural setting, Thomas illuminated the lighter side of human character by pinpointing specific universal qualities in each of the townsfolk. Each character, from old Captain Cat, the village blindman, to Mrs. Ogmore-Pritchard, the town grouch, explains his position in the village. The play's structure is similar to that of Spoon River Anthology except Thomas' characters are very much alive.

John Milligan, a guest professor this semester, is directing Under Milk Wood and enjoying it. "The play was written with such love. There is so much negative feeling in theater that it's a joy to work on something like that. If we do our jobs right, people should come away with a warm feeling." Mr. Milligan intends to present the characters as Dylan Thomas meant them; "...human beings that could be in any village anywhere. If you transpose the names and perhaps idioms, you might find this town in Vermont, nestled against a mountain. Thomas doesn't stop to comment on the people and their human frailties, he shows them in their everyday vitality with a tremendous amount of humor."

The sub-title for Under Milk Wood is "A Play for Voices." Thomas, interested in the rhythms in words, originally wrote this play for radio. John Milligan who began his career as a professional radio actor at the age of nine, realizes the importance of voice and will attempt to simplify the visual aspect so that Thomas' "musical English" will be evident. Mr. Milligan, who played major roles in the Champlain Shakespeare Festival this past season, is looking forward to the production of this play. "I hope it will be an experience of hearing one of the most musical and human poets of this century in what is undoubtedly his masterpiece —Under Milk Wood."

Hot Tuna Delicious, Songs Stand Out

by Paul Prior

Dateline: N.Y.C.

After a lengthly journey from Burlington to New York City, I am finally standing outside of the Academy of Music, waiting on line to be admitted inside.

All the marquis says is HOT TUNA, the bright lights illuminate the faces of several hundred crazed youths who are slowly but surely getting too incapacitated to stand, speak, or perform any bodily functions. Crys of "spare ticket" melt with "Get your Hot Tuna T-Shirts and Posters – right here! Right here!" Ah, the city never changes...Yes, a typical night outside of the Academy. But inside.....

The show opened with a group named Kansas, who probably should have stayed there, their set was excruciatingly loud, long, and uninspired. Thankfully, they were finished in 45 minutes. At exactly 1:00 a.m., the lights went down, and the Tuna-boys hit the stage, ready to rock. They launched right into I See The Light, a number from their last album, The Phosphorescent Rat.

The show built very slowly, they did some new material, some old bluesy-type material, including, Hesitation Blues which dates all the way back to their first acoustic album. Jorma Kaukonen switches guitars again (about 6 different types in all) and Smilin' Jack Casaday turned up his old bass, and they went into Rock Me Baby, a tune from the first Live Airplane LP. About halfway through, they started to really warm up to the crowd, and played some of their classics, Water Song, Easy Now, and Trial by Fire.

Still, I got the feeling they were holding back. The drummer, Bob Steeler, didn't have his licks and chops down too well. Sammy Piazza, their drummer for the last 3 or 4 years, had split after the last album, and his prescence was sorely missed throughout the night. Steeler didn't do justice to the excellence of Casady's bass work. Casady is truly a monster on bass, one of the few bassists in rock who plays it as a lead instrument rather than something to fill out the sound. Somehow he managed to spark a little life into the drummer in the last hour, because after that, it was all uphill.

They went into a long jam, and then, for their last number, they played Feel So Good, as done on the Jefferson Airplane's 30 Seconds Over Winterland disk. It was incredible, I still find myself lacking the proper superlatives for this song. It made me sad in a way, though. It doesn't look too good for the future of the J.A.

They still tour as Jefferson Starship, and do some Airplane material, but they tour without Jorma and Jack, who are unquestionably the guts of the band. We can only hope for a reunion of some sort. Last time they toured, the Winterland album was the result, and since then neither

Springfield Concert Series

The seventh season of the University of Vermont Lane Series in Springfield, opening Nov. 2 will present a varied schedule of four concerts ranging from symphony to New Orleans Jazz. The series is presented with the cooperation of the Southeast Council on the Arts.

The Vermont Symphony Orchestra under the baton of its new conducter Efrain Guigui will offer the opening concert the evening of Nov. 2, preceded by a free afternoon children's concert; units of the Symphony will present educational programs in area schools during the week preceding the concerts.

The second event will offer the "Manhattan Savoyards" returning for their third Gilbert and Sullivan performance Feb. 1 with "Pirates of Penzance".

On April 12 the University of Vermont Baroque Ensemble will perform authentic Baroque and Renaissance instruments, and the Series will conclude April 28 with the Preservation Hall Jazz Band performing the music that many of its members helped to create.

All concerts are at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Springfield High School; details of the Symphony Day program Nov. 2 will be released later.

Admissions on a season and single-concert basis are available at various stores and offices in the Springfield and Claremont area, and from Mrs. Eliot Buckingham of Springfield, telephone 885-2767.

The Springfield Lane Series is subsidized by grants from the Vermont Council on the Arts and the UVM Lane Series, and by gifts from local individuals and organizations.

Children's Film Schedule

The Fletcher Free Librar, Children's Film Program is a free service offered to area children on Thursdays from 10–noon and 1–2 p.m. The program lasts approximately 45 minutes, after which the children are encouraged to choose books to borrow. Many of the films are based on picture books found in the library. Please clip and save the film list for handy reference.

Following is the schedule of films from now until January 16th:

OCTOBER 10 – Hercules. Georgie. Madeline's Rescue.

OCTOBER 17 – Rapunzel. San Diego Zoo.

OCTOBER 31 – Stars in Stripes. Little Train. Little Train: Snooky: Adv. Black Bear Cub.

NOVEMBER 7 – Mike Mulligan and his Steam Shovel. This is only a Mouse. People Soup.

NOVEMBER 14 – Red Balloon. At your fingertips: Boxes.

NOVEMBER 21 – Tom Tit Tot. Swimmy. Circus Day.

DECEMBER 5 – Sunshine. Pigs. The Clowns.

DECEMBER 12 – Story about Ping. Blueberries for Sal. Night in the Pet Shop.

DECEMBER 19 – Great Train Robbery. Mike Mulligan and his Steam Shovel. Madeline.

JANUARY 2 – Little Red Lighthouse. A story, A story. Friendly Beasts.

JANUARY 9 – Airport in a Jet Age. Curious George Rides a Bike. Monkey and Organ Grinder.

JANUARY 16 – Emperor's Oblong Pancake; Story about Ping; Peter and the Wolf.

S. A. Film List

The S.A. Film Series is now into its fourth week and so far things have been running smoothly. There has been good attendance at all the movies and only one film has been cancelled (it did not arrive in time for the scheduled showing).

To help the students keep up with the schedule, a weekly list is being printed in the Cynic and weekly flyers will be posted around the campus. Also a list of the films has been printed up and is available at the Student Activities desk in Billings Center. If you would like your own personal list of all the films, please pick one up (but please continue to check the Cynic for any changes in the schedule).

The film for tonight, October 10, is Bitterswest. This is a musical made in 1940 and starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, with George Sanders and Ian Hunter. It is the story of an English girl's love for her Viennese music teacher and of their elopement on the eve of her marriage to another man.

Their life in Vienna in the 1890's (enhanced by Noel Coward's music) ends with his death in a duel just as his operetta was due for a hearing.

The music includes I'll See You Again, Dear Little Cafe and Zigeuner. The film will be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30. Admission is free.

On Friday, October 11, My Fair Lady is scheduled (please note that this is a change from King of Hearts, which was originally scheduled and has been rescheduled for November 8). My Fair Lady was made in 1964 and stars Rex Harrison, Audrey Hepburn and Stanley Holloway. It was directed by George Cukor. This is an adaptation of the George Bernard Shaw play, Pygmalion, the classic story of the little flower seller, Eliza Doolittle, who is taken from the gutter and tutored into the ranks of gentility by Professor Henry Higgins. The lavishly beautiful costumes and settings and the world's best loved music make this film a special treat. It won eight Academy awards, including Best Picture of the Year. Some of the most memorable songs are I've Grown Accustomed to Your Face, I Could Have Danced All Night and Wouldn't It Be Loverly? The film is 170 minutes and show times will be 7:30 and 10:30, again in 101 Votey. Admission is $1. The Friday night series is the only one with an admission charge. This charge is necessary as many of the films in this series are quite expensive.

Paul Newman continues his series on Saturday night with The Hustler, made in 1961. This film also stars George C. Scott, Piper Laurie and Jackie Gleason. Paul Newman, a rootless, itinerant pool player, challenges the best in the country, the formidable Minnesota Fats. He is obsessed with the desire to beat Fats since he was once badly defeated. In his struggle to win, he sacrifices everything and everyone until he realizes the price is too high. Newman is excellent as Fast Eddie and his girl friend, Piper Laurie, is a wistful figure. Jackie Gleason extracts an amazing amount of meaning from the Fats role, and George C. Scott as Eddie's agent is evil incarnate. The film is 2½ hours and will be shown at 7:30 in 101 Votey. There is no admission charge.

The War Film series continues on October 14 with The House on 92nd Street, starring Lloyd Nolan, Signe Hasso, and Gene Lockhart. This is a factual and exciting account of one of the FBI's greatest achievements, the break-up of a German espionage organization surrounding the development of the atomic bomb. This documentary-style feature integrates FBI and newsreel footage into the story. The film is 1½ hours and will be shown in 103 Rowell Hall at 7:30. Admission is free.

Music Thing

by Michael Thurston

Euphrates River

The Main Ingredient

The Main Ingredient have so many albums out that I've lost count! Euphrates River is the best, and the seventh, I think. In fact, Euphrates River could possibly become one of THE records of 1974. Production, instrumentals, vocals... total execution is superb and flawless. This 12 inch bit of recorded excellence is guaranteed to be the best 35 minutes of even the most exciting day.

The title track and a new rendition of Seals & Crofts' Summer Breeze are the best from the album, while the other six selections follow in rapid succession. Every cut could be drawn from the album as a potential single, and could reach top chart positions without the slightest of effort! The cover graphics, like the disc inside, are virtually perfect.

Euphrates River is tight, easy, and as professional as the word itself. It's an event that happens once a year or less.

Seldom can you find an album that exceeds all adjectives in our language. Listen to The Main Ingredient... this is one album that does.

Let Me In Your Life
Aretha Franklin

Aretha Franklin is one of those people I'd like to meet. She's someone with things to say musically, and personally. Her music is so much of her, and yet Aretha, as a human being, is still so much more. She's an artist of stature, permanence, and indelible vitality. Her name approaches the level of Nina Simone, Billie Holiday, and Bessie Smith. With each new recording, Aretha reaches a bit higher, and becomes a bit more universal. Let Me In Your Life is no exception.

The superstar musician and production staff on the album is unbelievable. Despite names as Arif Mardin, Jerry Wexler, Rick Marotta, David Spinozza, and Donny Hathaway, Aretha's new album is all her own. As usual, she can steal the entire show.

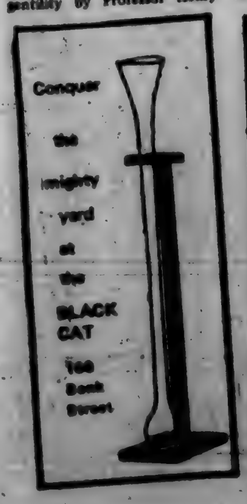
Bill Withers' tune, the title selection from the album, along with Bobby Goldsboro's With Pen In Hand and Bobby Womack's I'm In Love have never been done with the vivacity that Aretha incorporates. Oh Baby and If You Don't Think, two Franklin originals, demonstrate Aretha's poetic talents at their best... while the tragic flaw of Let Me In Your Life may be the lack of originals.

Aretha's business is music. Her life is tailored to fit the spindle of any phonograph.

Each time she plays on that turntable, it's her life she sings about, and ours, too. Believe it!

PEACE CORPS AND VISTA REPRESENTATIVES AT UNIV. OF VERMONT OCT. 15-17

Recruiters will be at BILLINGS HALL and the Placement Office in Mansfield House, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sign up now with Placement for an interview or stop and see us at our information table in Billings Hall.



Concert Electronics Co
1181 Williston Road,
South Burlington, Vermont
Near the Ramada Inn
864-0115

ALTEC LANSING Model 710A Stereo Receiver
with a power output of 30 watts per channel.
Regularly priced at $375.00 Our price now $295.00

ALTEC LANSING Model 725A Stereo Receiver
With a power output of 60 watts per channel.
Regularly priced at $599.00 Our price now $450.00

The Scott S11D Three-Way Speaker System with 10 in. woofer, 4½ in. mid and 1 in. dome tweeter. Regularly priced at 149.95 each now 112.50 each

The Scott S-42 Two-Way Speaker System Were $79.95 each Now $60.00 each

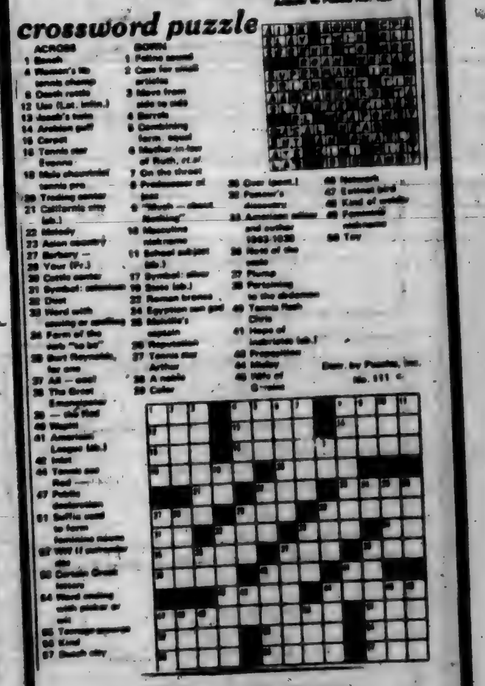
TONIGHT
Try a FLASHBACK
(discovered by an exhibitionist with his trenchcoat on backwards)

or one of the 90 other unbelievable combinations at CARBUR'S RESTAURANT
Live Entertainment Wed. Thru Sun.
119 St. Paul St. 862-4106

BEVERAGE WAREHOUSE
FANTASTIC SELECTION OF BEERS, ALES, AND AMERICAN & IMPORTED WINES AT GREAT SAVINGS
655-2620

TUT'S
248 North Street
Burlington, Vt. 05401
DAYS Thru 7:30
ALL NITE SUN.
20¢ DRAFTS
10¢ OFF LIQ.
"A NICE LITTLE JOINT"

THE SILVER KEG
★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★
MONDAY-LADIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY - ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
WEDNESDAY
UVM NITE ★FREE★ WITH UVM I.D.
(MUST BE 18 YEARS OF AGE)
THURSDAY- ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★ FEATURING ★
OCT. 7 - 13 DJ ENCO
OCT. 14 - 20 MOLLY McGREGOR

BIG BURGER
crossword puzzle


Last Week's Winners:
1. Mark Hendrich
2. Matthew Cole
3. Ben Bucsko
4. Jeff McDonald
5. Stephen Eddington
6. Roger Dunn
7. Michael Tolaro
8. Doris Baldassarre
9. Todd Quinlan
10. Bill Dillon
11. Al Dimick
12. Tony Covey
13. John Armstrong
14. David Ring
15. Ronald MacDonald
Upon correct completion of the above crossword puzzle, BIG BURGER will award a free dinner. The meal will be given to the first 15 people who present the finished puzzle after 8:00 p.m. tonight. Winners will be announced in the next CYNIC.

Smuggler's Notch Ski Area and

FRIENDS OF UVM SKI TEAM

PRESENT

OKTOBERFEST

On Sunday, October 13, 1974

from 1p.m. on at the Village

with

DOWNPOUR

JOHN CASSEL

SASS

CHEAP BEER ON PREMISES

Admissions:

1.00 Friends of UVM Ski Team Raffle Ticket only

Tickets Available At:

Local Ski Shops

Rm. 201 Patrick Gym

Ski Team Members and At The Door !!

MADONNA BASE LODGE

IN CASE OF RAIN

Mysterious Bug

What was a Volkswagon doing on the steps of Billings last Thursday? Daniel Flynn had been extremely frustrated with trying to settle a problem with residency status.

Last Thursday morning, according to Director of Student Activities Bill Root, Flynn came to the student activities desk "in a very emotional state, trying to find the answers to his questions."

According to Root, the student wanted to speak to someone "on a legal matter." Root was on the phone and the student was asked to wait. He left, then came back and said he would "take care of it himself".

In the afternoon, Flynn came back and drove his car on to the steps of Billings, locked it, and left. Root made a search for him. Flynn reappeared just as the campus police were about to tow his car away. The car was not towed, no fine was paid, and Flynn has not come to Root's office with any more questions.

Greek Week Comes To UVM

by Margo Howland

As the leaves on the trees turn red and gold and fall Rush comes to a close, UVM's Greeks have prepared for that special fraternity-sorority spectacular known as Greek Week.

The week of special Greek activities opened Sunday night when Dr. Maxwell McCormack, a brother of Sigma Nu, gave the Convocation address in Marsh Life Sciences. In a short and hard-hitting speech, McCormack urged Greeks to get out and work to keep the system viable. He warned of the dangers of apathy among Greeks.

"You must care about it or you wouldn't be here. So if someone asks 'Why should I join a fraternity or sorority?' you must be able to give them a meaningful answer," he insisted.

In a lighter vein, Dr. McCormack recounted an incident that occurred when he was a pledge at the University of Maine, back when Hell Week was in existence.

"I found out that if a brother drops a raw egg from a rooftop and you're supposed to catch it, you do better to try to get the whole thing, white and all, to slide down your throat. That way you don't get messed up," he said.

Monday night featured Greek exchange dinners. Numerous members from each house traveled to various other houses for dinner, drinks and a few hours of Greek fellowship.

On Tuesday night, at Lambda Iota, home of F.A.D.C., the new life of the Greek system, the pledges were honored at a keg party.

Wednesday night was Movie night. Greeks sponsored a special double feature, Bullitt and The Fatal Glass of Beer at MAT.

Today, the various components of the Greek alphabet are making themselves visible on campus. In honor of "Greek Spirit Day" fraternity and sorority members are wearing their Greek-letter T-shirts.

Tomorrow night features Rotational Cocktail Parties, first tried last year and brought back by popular demand. The parties will start promptly at 8 p.m. and will self-destruct at 1 a.m. Each sorority is to spend fifty minutes at each host fraternity, and is allowed ten minutes to get to the next party. Dress will be semi-formal. Check the schedule below:

The Greek Games on Saturday will bring Greek Week to a close. The games will begin at 12 noon at Lambda Iota with the beer relay. Team leaders at a signal must chug a beer and run to the next stop and tag their next team member. The route starts at Lambda and goes next to Sigma Nu, Acacia, SAE, Pi Beta Phi, Southwick and Archie Post Field. Other games will include a tug-of-war, three-legged races, wheelbarrow races, pyramid-building, a pie-eating contest and of course the famous Chariot Races.

LOCATION	GUEST FRATERNITIES	SORORITY ORDER
Sigma Nu	Sigma Phi and Tep	Gamma Pi and Tri-Delt/Theta/Pi Phi/AD Pi/Alpha Chi
Acacia	Fiji and ATO	Theta/Pi Phi/AD Pi/Alpha Chi/Gamma Phi and Tri Delta
Delta Psi	Theta Chi and AGR	Pi Phi/AD Pi/Alpha Chi/Gamma Phi and Tri Delta/Theta
Kappa Sigma	Sig Ep and Phi Delt	Alpha Chi/Gamma Phi and Tri Delta/Theta/Pi Phi/AD Pi
SAE	Lambda Iota and Phi Mu	AD Pi/Alpha Chi/Gamma Phi and Tri Delta/Theta/Pi Phi

...Hot Tuna And Airplanes

(continued from page seven)

the Starship or Hot Tuna have produced an album worthy enough to equal it. Alas, what

Well, they came back for an encore and played another 20 minutes, and by that time Jack had his bass turned up almost all the way. The concert ended at 4 a.m., and my companions (the original zoo crew) and I oozed ozone consciousness. In all, it was an enjoyable evening, but the highlights were numbers that had been done by the Airplane, and not Hot Tuna. For now one can only hope that the Airplane will eventually make another album, or even better, go on tour. Until then, we'll have to be satisfied with the upcoming new albums from The Tuna boys, and in a few weeks, Starship will release their second offering. Riders of the Rainbow – Let it Grow...

BEST BET, BEST BUY

Right from the start, you knew Tampax tampons were your best bet. They're the only tampons to come in three absorbency-sizes. Regular, Super and exclusive Junior – to help young girls get started.

Tampax tampons always keep you feeling fresh, clean and comfortable. And you always feel secure, too, because you know they're softly compressed for the best absorption. You like the assurance that nothing shows when you wear them and that you can't feel them. You carry them discreetly. You dispose of them easily. You know that they're your best bet when you're buying sanitary protection.

But did you know Tampax tampons were also your best buy? They come in economical packages of 10's and 40's, yet cost about the same as other brands that package 8's and 30's.

Tampax tampons are your best bet. And they're also your best buy.

Kado

SALE — CLOTHES

10 - 50% OFF

ALL WEEK

197 College St., Burl. 658-3538

SKI MAD RIVER GLEN for $70

1. Weekends — Special discount price of $8.00 all weekends and Christmas week.
2. Weekdays — Unlimited skiing all weekdays, all season except Dec. 26—Jan. 1st
3. Deadline — After October 15, the price goes up to $80.00, $90.00 after Dec. 1. To qualify for this special season pass, you must be a resident of Vermont or a student.

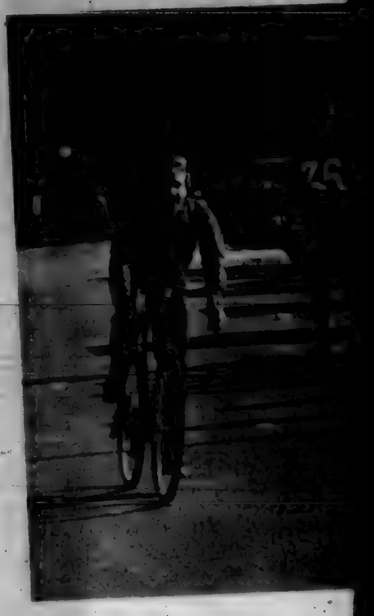
Do it!!!

MAD RIVER GLEN

The Ski Area for Skiers

WAITSFIELD, VERMONT 802-496-3551

Living/L



Gibson Refus

by Margo Howland

Assistant Secretary of State Robert H. Gibson has refuted a charge that the September 10 primary ballots used in Vermont were "illegal and unconstitutional," saying there is "no justification" for the statement.

In response to a Cynic inquiry, Gibson gave his interpretation of a press release issued by Harley Walter Kidder of Burlington. Kidder claimed that "the phraseology" of the ballots was "unconditionally fatal on two points."

Candidates were described as "candidates for the office of U.S. Senator, to be voted for on Tuesday, the tenth day of September, 1974."

According to Kidder, "the voted for o

September,
fifth day
1974."
Addition
that "there
United Stat
he filed for Kidder ide candidate nomination
Congres
Commonw
Kidder also

He cla highly terminolo
Consti
Common and is Fourteen
Constitu States of

SOUTHE

Featuring

★ John Dav

★ Chris Hill

★ Richie Fu

★ Jim Gaudr

★ Paul Hor

8:30 P.M.

TICKETS

AVAILABLE

To UVM

...of Beer ...various ...Greek ...maelves ...ance of ...ternity ...rs are ...k-letter

...features ...Parties, ...brought ...nd. The ...ptly at 9 ...uct at 1 ...to spend ...h host ...wed ten minutes to get to the next party. Dress will be semi-formal. Check the schedule below:

The Greek Games on Saturday will bring Greek Week to a close. The games will begin at 12 noon at Lambda Iota with the beer relay. Team leaders at a signal must chug a beer and run to the next stop and tag their next team member. The route starts at Lambda and goes next to Sigma Nu, Acacia, SAE, Pi Beta Phi, Southwick and Archie Post Field. Other games will include a tug-of-war, three-legged races, wheelbarrow races, pyramid-building, a pie-eating contest and of course the famous Chariot Races.

...Y ORDER
...and Tri-Delt/Theta/Pi Phi/AD Pi/Alpha
...Phi/AD Pi/Alpha Chi/Gamma Phi and Tri
...Pi/Alpha Chi/Gamma Phi and Tri Delta/
.../Gamma Phi and Tri Delta/Theta/Pi Phi/
...pha Chi/Gamma Phi and Tri Delta/Theta/

...d Airplanes

...back for an ...another 20 ...t time Jack ...p almost all the way. The concert ended at 4 a.m., and my companions (the original zoo crew) and I oozed ozone consciousness. In all, it was an enjoyable evening, but the highlights were numbers that had been done by the Airplane, and not Hot Tuna. For now one can only hope that the Airplane will eventually make another album, or even better, go on tour. Until then, we'll have to be satisfied with the upcoming new albums from The Tuna boys, and in a few weeks, Starship will release their second offering. Riders of the Rainbow – Let it Grow...

...ES
...3538

...XI
...RIVER
...EN
...$70

Special discount price of $8.00 all weekends and Christmas week.

Unlimited skiing all weekdays, all season except Dec. 26—Jan. 1.

After October 15, the price goes up to $80.00, $90.00 after Dec. 1. To qualify for this special season pass, you must be a resident of Vermont or a student.

...R GLEN
...for Skiers
...T 802-496-3551

Living/Learning Bike Race A Success

by Margo Howland

Over fifty people showed up Saturday to compete in the Living and Learning Center's first annual fall foliage bike race. Students and faculty alike enjoyed the bright October sunshine, the meadows and farms nestled along 10.3 miles of Burlington and South Burlington back roads.

Each participant entered in one of the following categories: Faculty, Men's Ten Speed, Women's Ten Speed, and Three Speed. After numbers were chosen the Dorm category was eliminated because there was only one entry. The race was staggered, with two minutes in between each heat of ten entries, containing all four categories.

The course outline was changed on the advice of the South Burlington police. Starting from the Living-Learning Center Parking Lot, the racers turned left, down by Harris-Millis and onto Spear Street. From Spear Street they took another left onto Swift Street, and continued down Swift until it intersected with Dorset Street. From Dorset Street they turned right onto Barstow Road and continued onto Spear Street again, returning at the Living-Learning Parking Lot.

There were no accidents or injuries along the course. Caution signs warned drivers of the oncoming cyclists, and UVM rescue people were at every major corner on the route, waving directions signs and shouting encouragements.

The traffic was relatively light, and the race itself low-key, with an emphasis on the idea that one was out enjoy the scenery and have a good time, and not necessarily break all kinds of speed records.

The results of the race were announced at a celebration keg party in the Living-Learning Commons Building. All prizes were donated.

Placing first in the faculty division was Stephen Rae of the Physics Department, with a time of 32 minutes, 28 seconds. Rae won a dinner for two at the Ramada Inn. Second and third-place times were 34 minutes, 24 seconds, and 35 minutes, 6 seconds, by Jacobwitz and Bye, respectively.

Placing first in the Men's ten-speed, with a time of 29 minutes, 40 seconds (best overall time) was Ken Bostick. Bostick won a complete cross-country ski outfit, compliments of the Ski Rack.

Second place, with a time of 31 minutes, 2 seconds, was Carl Vosburg, who won a $10 certificate at Bailey's Music Room.

Placing third, with a time of 31 minutes, 6 seconds, was Thomas Bird. Bird won a fifth of vodka.

In the Women's 10-speed division, placing first with a time of 35 minutes, 11 seconds, was Nancy Sherman. She won a $25 gift certificate at Valuga Sports. Second place finisher, with a time of 38 minutes, 35 seconds, was Cathy Worden, who won a fifth of vodka. Diane Ennis placed third with a time of 39 minutes, 35 seconds.

In the three-speed division, there were two prizes. The winner of an EMS Day Parka, donated by Eastern Mountain Sports, was James Skorsted, with a first place time of 36 minutes. Second place, with a time of 41 minutes, 39 seconds, went to John Swain. Swain won two theatre tickets to Merril's Showcase. James Schrieghein, with a time of 54 minutes, 10 seconds, placed third.

An award was also presented to the person who came in last of all. With an unequalled time of one hour, 26 minutes, and ten seconds, a prize of three dozen Dunkin donuts went to Margo Howland.

Dave Landry, spokesman for the sponsors of the race, the Education- Recreation Program and the Communications Program at the end said, "The race was a great success due to student interest and the generosity of local merchants. We all look forward to another great race next year."

Gibson Refuses "Illegal Ballot" Charges

by Margo Howland

Assistant Secretary of State Robert H. Gibson has refuted a charge that the September 10 primary ballots used in Vermont were "illegal and unconstitutional," saying there is "no justification" for the statement.

In response to a Cynic inquiry, Gibson gave his interpretation of a press release issued by Harley Walter Kidder of Burlington. Kidder claimed that "the phraseology" of the ballots was "unconditionally fatal on two points."

Candidates were described as "candidates for the office of U.S. Senator, to be voted for on Tuesday, the tenth day of September, 1974."

According to Kidder, "the office of Senator will never be voted for on the tenth day of September, in 1974, but on the fifth day of November, in 1974."

Additionally, Kidder alleges that "there is no such officer as United States Senator." When he filed for this office last July, Kidder identified himself as a candidate "for the Republican nomination for Senator in Congress, from the Commonwealth of Vermont." Kidder also filed as a Democrat.

He claims this "specific and highly restricted terminology...is found in the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Vermont, and in Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America..."

Gibson commented, "Amendment 14, Section 3, of the Constitution says that those involved in insurrection or rebellion cannot serve as a Senator or Representative in Congress.

"The primary petition language is not the best in the world," Gibson acknowledged adding that it would be "more accurate" to say 'nominated'. The substance of the amendment is to give due process in the states as well as the United States. In other sections, they do use the word 'Senators.'

"There is no doubt in our minds that the court would uphold the language that is used in the primary petition," Gibson concluded.

Kidder claimed his constitutional rights were "raped" because he was denied a place on the ballots. According to Gibson, Kidder had an insufficient number of signatures on his petitions.

Kidder referred to himself in his press release as a "magistrate," a "judge" and a "jurist". According to the Secretary of State's office, he holds none of these titles, nor has he ever been a legislator.

Pre Law Meeting Rescheduled

Attention: The Pre-Law meeting for undergraduates originally scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 10, 1974 at 4:15 p.m. in the North Lounge of the Billings Student Center has been moved to 104 Old Mill, same day, same time.

Findings

The U.S. Department of Labor's new 1974-75 Occupational Outlook Handbook states that "prospective teachers are likely to face keen competition for jobs." It also indicates that employers are looking for people with higher levels of education because so many jobs have become so complex. Even though eight out of ten jobs will not require a college degree, a holder of a baccalaureate degree can expect to earn approximately three times more than someone with an 8th grade education. For more information on future possibilities call 3340 or drop in at the Counseling and Testing Center, 146 Williams Street.

Vermont To Host Blind Travelers

Blind people from around the country are traveling across the state of Vermont this week talking with other blind Vermonters about the activities of the national Federation of the Blind (NFB). The NFB is an organization of blind people who are working on their own behalf to counteract the problems of blindness. The NFB carries on an extensive program to educate the public about blindness and the abilities of the blind.

On Tuesday, October 8, representatives of the National Federation of the Blind will be meeting in the office of Governor Salmon and receiving a proclamation declaring October 15th as White Cane Safety Day in the Green Mountain State.

This week's activities will conclude with a meeting at the Tavern Hotel in Montpelier on Saturday, October 12 at 9:00 a.m. This meeting will continue through the day with discussions on employment, agencies serving the blind, and vending stand programs as well as information on Social Security and a discussion of the services of the NFB.

"Welcome to George's"
147 North Winooski Ave.
THE BEST IN PIZZA PIES
Midgett $1.25
Small $1.75
Large $2.00
extras 25c
DELICIOUS!!!!!
862-7449
Special every day
Homemade Meals
$1.95 and — UP
Homemade Soup
SUBS Antipasto
Beer-Wine-Liquor
Open 8am-12 am. STUDENTS WELCOME!!

S.U. Concerts Presents
THE SOUTHER-HILLMAN-FURAY BAND
Featuring
★ John David Souther — Solo artist-producer and songwriter for the Eagles
★ Chris Hillman — From the Byrds and the Flying Burrito Brothers
★ Richie Furay — Formerly of Poco and Buffalo Springfield
★ Jim Gordon — Recorded with Derek and the Dominoes, George Harrison, Ringo Starr
★ Paul Harris and Al Perkins — from Manassas
★ PLUS SPECIAL GUEST ★
8:30 P.M. FRIDAY OCTOBER 18th

THE NAVY IS COMING

SOPHMORES! JUNIORS!

The Navy can give you the opportunity to earn two degrees and learn two careers at once. Be guaranteed of a commission as a naval Aviator or Surface Line Officer after graduation. Check out the Navy AVROC and ROC programs. See your Navy Information Team on campus on Oct. 22-24, 1974 at Billing Center or call518-472-4424 Today!

Be Someone Special
Go Navy

CLASSIFIED

Classifieds are run free to all UVM students, faculty and staff. Classified deadline is the Monday night before publication.

Wanted to Buy: 1 electric blanket for double bed. Call Jim, 425-3855, before 8 a.m. or at night until 12:00.

For Sale— 1969 Gibson EB—2 Bass Guitar. Good neck. $165. Box 358, Given Bldg. G, or give message ext. 2164. Bill Young.

For Sale— Lounge chairs, table end floor lamps, bed pillows, kitchen stool & serving cart, TV stand with record rack. 864-7786.

For Sale— Dynaco A—35 stereo amplifier. 17½ watts RMS per channel. Bought new for $120. Sell now for $160. Perfect condition. Call Mike, 862-4684.

Bindings for sale: 1 pr. used Marker Rotomat FD turntable and Simplex Toe Originally $55, plus $9. Geze Swingout anti-friction device. Now $20. Call Don, 862-5692.

For Sale— VW Sqback '67. 4 mo. old rebuilt engine. New brakes, clutch. AM—FM radio. No rust. 4 new tires (2 mows) Needs transmission work. Call 434-3549.

LOST— 5 month old black lab (male) Name- Perdie. Call Sharon- Liebowitz. 434-2335.

Classified. Artists, poets, submit your material to the new "Night Rider". This is a magazine of original art and literature edited by an inmate in a Virginia prison, and it contains prison literature. Contact Debbie, 862-2292.

Classified: Ride AVAILABLE— Leaving Friday, Oct 11 at 1:30 to NEWPORT, R.I. Call Mitch at 863-6277.

FOR SALE— 3 used Judo Gis Sizes 3,4,5. Asking $20. each. Leave message at 658-1228. Or write- John Williams, R.D.1, Oak Hill Mobile Park, Williston, 15495.

Motorcycle & Bicycle storage, Pine St., Burlington. For information, call 864-0779 anytime.

For Sale: Fabriano Hiking Boots. Women size 6½ very good condition $10.00, ($20.00 new). Please call Kasey 985-8675.

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD. SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

S.A. Senate Meeting Good Attendence

by Bryan Hubbard

Tuesday night's S.A. Senate meeting was marked by good attendance and a vote of confidence for S.A. President, Peter MacAuslan.

Most of the meeting was informational. Senators were acquainted with one another and also with meeting procedures.

Committee Reports

Peter MacAusland, S.A. President, told the Senate that United Way is conducting its campaign in Burlington now. He hopes students will contribute. He also mentioned that the National Student Association has asked UVM to join and that the Senate might want to look into the matter. Finally, several people in the S.A. office are Notary Publics who will help students to register to vote in Vermont.

Barry Abel of the Constitution Committee announced that he will make a recommendation for a revised constitution with the chief revision to be for a vice president who would handle the student representatives to the Board of Trustees committees. The change would offer greater communication and support between the two groups.

Old Business

The recognition of the Phi Chapter of Omicron Nu was tabled because no representative was present. S-85, the motion to add Meg Goering, Nancy Custer, Larry Abel and Gabe Vicks to the Finance Committee was passed.

S-86, a motion for the interim selection for student representatives to the Board of Trustees. Nominations to the seven committees will be presented to the senate and then voted on. Student reps will be voted on in the spring in a general election with the presidential election.

New Business

The Senate voted unanimously to reconfirm Peter MacAusland as SA president. Some questions were raised because MacAusland failed to pre-enroll last spring and found himself not a student for the semester. Discussion surrounded constitutional technicalities and implications. MacAusland is a continuing ed student and has paid his SA fee.

A special request for $620 was given to the Octoberfest to help it get moving. Planned for next weekend it will be a weekend with German customs and craft shows and with a little help from Budweiser -- free beer. Many senators were questioning the proposal from the standpoint that SA has had no input into the matter except financially. The rules were suspended and the money was awarded.

The Sailing Club asked for an additional $465 to its budget for entrance fees to races and travel expenses. The motion was tabled pending a Finance Committee recommendation.

The meeting was adjourned at 9:00.

Advance Enrollment dates have been changed from the previously published October dates to November 18-22 in Billings Center.

SPS Photo: Wynn Gold

As of Wednesday afternoon, the Red Cross had acquired 650 pints of blood and feels confident of establishing a new record high for UVM blood drives.

Crosscultural Program

The Cross Cultural Program of the Living/Learning Center of the University of Vermont is an interdisciplinary international approach to study and understanding of world cultures in their interrelatedness. Students in the program are selected from varying social cultural backgrounds and experiences which they share freely with their other colleagues in the Living/Learning Center.

This fall the program is presenting a series of lectures, slide shows and/or seminars by University of Vermont professors who will explore cross cultural dimensions of their various fields of study.

The Cross Cultural Program is directed by Pol Ndu, a Nigerian, who holds a Ph. D. in English from the State University of New York in Buffalo.

The presentations are open and free to the University and greater Burlington area.

These are the offerings:

--Monday, Oct. 14 from 4-5:30 p.m., Dr. William A. Haviland, Associate Professor of Anthropology, with his topic, "Ancient Maya Civilization," at 115 Commons, Living/Learning Center.

--Monday, Oct. 21, from 8-9:30 p.m., Dr. Dolores Stocker, Assistant to the President, with her topic, "Mixed Marriage from the European Perspective," at 115 Commons, Living/Learning Center.

--Monday, Nov. 4, from 8-9:30 p.m., Dr. Edward J. Miles, professor of geography, with his topic, "Geopolitics and National Identity" at 115 Commons, Living/Learning Center.

--Also at 115 Commons, Living/Learning Center, on Monday, Nov. 11, from 8-9:30 p.m., Dr. H. Lawrence McCrorey, Associate Vice President of Academic Affairs, will appear with his topic, "Competence and Minority Identity."

--Monday, Nov. 18, from 8-9:30 p.m., at 115 Commons, Living/Learning, Dr. Robert E. Gussner, assistant professor of religion, with his topic, "The Inner Logic of the Asian and Western Contexts of Meaning".

--At the fireplace lounge, Monday, Dec. 9, 8:00-9:30 p.m., Dr. Jeremy P. Felt, director of Area and International Studies, will speak on "Opportunities for Overseas Study."

These lectures are open and free to the UVM Community.

(continued from page one)

...Large Crowd Gathers At Ford's Arrival

during a long skit, the group threaded its way among the 300 protestors and 400 spectators.

Many demonstrators displayed posters reading "Contribute $50 to the Underprivileged" and "Amnesty Now."

From the Ramada Inn, members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War/Winter Soldiers Organization led the 300 protestors up the sidewalk of Williston Road toward Patrick Gym. The group waved their signs to the headlights of the oncoming traffic. "Eight thousand dollars a day to Nixon, eight dollars a day to the poor." Chanting "Free our Brothers, free our Sisters, Amnesty for War Resisters", the group turned at the jughandle.

At the front entrance to the gym they were greeted by a large crowd of over 1000 onlookers, who joined in the chant "2, 4, 6, 8, Ford's another Watergate."

Patrick Gym was partially roped off for the security of the President's entrance at the southewest door near the parking lot tennis courts. A tent had been installed near the main entrance to prepare the dinner. A small platform set up for the demonstration program was moved 50 yards back from its original spot on the open grass west of the gym to make more room for the greater number of demonstrators. Overlooking the gym, signs in the window of Harris Hall read "May the Lord Guide You in Running Our Nation," "Gerry Who?" and "Pardon Me, Gerry".

The Presidential motorcade arrived at the rear of the gym at 7:30. A smoke bomb was hurled in the direction of the President as well as an egg, but neither were near their target. No arrests were reported. Ford was quickly ushered up the back stairs and into the gym.

Demonstration was underway in front of the gym at 7:30. A group calling itself the People's Revolutionary Supergate set a soup line serving vegetarian soup "to demonstrate the "depressing times" and the "plight of the poor people's meal times" in contrast with the $50 a plate dinner within.

On the grassy field beside the gym folksongs began the counter rally. Student Organization Committee Coordinator Wayne Bayer served as moderator and spoke first emphasing the success of the various statewide groups in coming together and in forming a "unique coalition."

David Ross, coordinator for the Vietnam Veterans Against the War/ Winter Soldiers Organization spoke to the 1600 students and working people stressing the importance of people from all groups working together to effect change. Ross came down hard on Ford's amnesty plan, saying it did not affect "a few, disloyal Americans" but that some "60,000 to 70,000 draft resisters live in exile in Canada and Sweden and across the world" and that another two to three thousand live underground in the United States. He cited a recent poll taken in Chicago which indicated 60 percent of draft age people had not registered as proof of the injustices done to war resisters.

Helen Harvey, a spokeswoman for PACT took the podium and asked simply how Ford could "march our boys off to war and not come out here to tell us why."

Bruce "Utah" Phillips sang several union organizing songs. Telling a story about grocery shopping, he related, "I went to the market two weeks ago and eggs were 80 cents a dozen. Last week, I went into the market and they were 90 cents a dozen. Today I went in and the money was on the shelf and I saw the eggs in the cash register."

Both Liberty Union candidates for state representative -- Michael Parenti -- and governor Martha Abbott-- addressed the crowds. Abbott proclaimed "Vermonters have tightened their belts as far as they can go." She noted "$77 billion dollars escapes the federal tax system in loopholes every year," citing "that's what inflation is all about."

Parenti asked the crowd if they were "warm in their hearts with the struggle for justice," referring to the creeping cold of the clear, October night. "Yes!" the crowd responded overwhelmingly. He then continued by saying Ford was not really seeing Vermonters. He was not seeing the poor or the farmers. Parenti said that those people are discouraged by this, but that "a consciousness is developing in the common people" that will break their disillusionment with government and "take America away from the corporations and give it back to the people."

Following the speakers, the Vietnam Veterans Against the War/Winter Soldier Organization performed a short skit dramatizing the plight of the Vietnam Veteran. The play featured a Vet whose addiction was converted from heroin to Methodone, who wanted an education but was inadequately supported by the G.I. Bill, couldn't get a loan because he had no collateral, and couldn't get a job because he was dishonorably discharged.

The rally then officially disbanded at 9:30 as the cool October wind chilled those who now moved back to the rear of Patrick Gym. At 10:15 Ford, surrounded by Secret Service, walked down the stairs to his limosine. Fire crackers exploded amid jeers and heckling from onlookers as the motorcade glided swiftly back to the air base.

FOR A FORMAL RELATIONSHIP
The engagement ring marks the next stage in your love story. When you are ready to select your diamond and its mounting, please come in. Our collection of styles is large. Our prices will fit your budget.
PRICES START UNDER $100.00
YOU ARE INVITED TO OPEN A PRESTON'S CHARGE ACCOUNT
F.J. PRESTON & SON INC.
17 UPPER CHURCH STREET • BURLINGTON

862-0910 Chiott's 87 King Street
10% OFF ENTIRE TOP-SIDER LINE
WITH STUDENT OR FACULTY VALID I.D.
MENS & WOMENS:
MOCCASSINS
CANVAS & NYLON OXFORDS
FOUL WEATHER JACKETS & TROUSERS
WE WILL ORDER ANY TOP-SIDER ITEM NOT IN STOCK AND THE DISCOUNT WILL APPLY

BEST SELECTION of SKI EQUIPMENT in Vermont
Skis by: Rossignol, K-2, Kneissel, Olin, Dynamic-Yamaha, Northland, Dynastar, Head, Dursfiber, Volkl
Boots by: Nordica, Hanson, Dolomite, Caber, Technica, Lange
Ski Poles by: Scott, Rossignol, Head, Barnecrafter, A&T
Bindings by: Look-Nevada, Salomon, Besser, Cubco, Spademan
FREE CANTING CHECK on our new KENNEDY COMPUTER — proper boot canting can improve your skiing tremendously!
ALPINE SHOP
WILLISTON ROAD, SO. BURLINGTON
OPEN DAILY 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.

WOLFSCHMIDT SCHMILE #188-THE LIBERATED MAN
HI THERE
I KNOW YOUR TYPE. YOU THINK YOU CAN TURN ANY GUY'S HEAD WITH YOUR FEMALE CHAUVINIST SWEET TALK. YOU THINK A GUY WILL GO TO PIECES JUST BECAUSE YOU'RE BEAUTIFUL AND VOLUPTUOUS.
WELL, MISS SUPERIORITY, I HAVEN'T BEEN STANDING AROUND ALL MY LIFE JUST WAITING FOR YOU TO COME ALONG I'M A LIBERATED MAN
YOU'RE NOT ONLY HANDSOME YOU'VE GOT BRAINS TOO
YOU KNOW, I'VE BEEN WAITING ALL MY LIFE FOR SOMEONE LIKE YOU TO COME ALONG.
Start something with Wolfschmidt.
A vodka and tonic, a martini, a bloody mary, a screwdriver. Or anything else you have in mind.
Wolfschmidt Genuine Vodka
$3.68
FIFTH SIZE—CODE #6122
VODKA • DISTILLED FROM GRAIN • 80 AND 100 PROOF • SEAGRAM DISTILLERS CO., NEW YORK, N.Y.

FULL SCHOLARSHIP OPPORTUNITY.
Now, full scholarship assistance for your junior and senior years, plus chance to become a leader in the nuclear energy field.
Tuition, books and educational fees are all included in this new NROTC Nuclear Propulsion Candidate program. Along with $100 a month to help you with your living expenses. And on top of that you have an opportunity to build a rewarding career for yourself in the fast-growing nuclear energy field.
To qualify, you must have completed one semester each of calculus and physics, or two semesters of calculus and have a B- average or better.
Depending upon your performance, you will be interviewed during your senior year for the Navy's Nuclear Program and for training as a Navy Nuclear Officer.
If you can qualify for the demanding yet rewarding nuclear field you can anticipate five years of employment as a regular Navy officer.
For full details on this new NROTC Nuclear Propulsion Candidate program, phone or see your local Navy recruiter.
Be someone special in the Navy.
See your NAVY INFORMATION TEAM on campus at Bii on campus at Billing Center on Oct. 22-24, 1974 or call 518-472-4462 Today!

Program

...are open ...rsity and ...

...ge: ...14 from ...illiam A. ...

...fessor of ...his topic, ...ction," at ...Learning ...

...21, from ... Dolores ... to the ... topic, ...rom the ..." at 115 ...Learning ...

...4, from ...dward J. ...ography, ...olitics and ...at 115 ...Learning

...ival

...old beside ...began the ... Student ...ommittee ... Bayer ...and spoke ...uccess of ... groups in ...n forming ...

...dinator for ...ns Against ... Soldiers ...o the 1600 ...ng people ...rtance of ...e working ...ange. Ross ...on Ford's ... it did not ... disloyal ...hat some ...000 draft ... in Canada ...across the ...ther two to ...nd live ...the United ...recent poll ...go which ...nt of draft ...registered as ...ces done to ...

...rvey, a ...PACT took ...sked simply ..."march our ...nd not some ...try."

...Phillips sang ...nizing songs. ...hoot grocery ...d, "I went to ...weks ago and ...a dozen. Last ...the market ...cents a dozen. ...nd the money ...and I say the ...ister."

...ty Union ...for state ... Michael ...d governor

--Also at 115 Commons, Living/Learning Center, on Monday, Nov. 11, from 8-9:30 p.m., Dr. H. Lawrence McCrorey, Associate Vice President of Academic Affairs, will appear with his topic, "Competence and Minority Identity."

--Monday, Nov. 18, from 8-9:30 p.m., at 115 Commons, Living/Learning, Dr. Robert E. Gussner, assistant professor of religion, with his topic, "The Inner Logic of the Asian and Western Contexts of Meaning".

--At the fireplace lounge, Monday, Dec. 9, 8:00-9:30 p.m., Dr. Jeremy P. Felt, director of ...Area and International Studies, will speak on "Opportunities for Overseas Study."

These lectures are open and free to the UVM Community.

--Martha Abbott-- addressed the crowds. Abbott proclaimed "Vermonters have tightened their belts as far as they can go." She noted "177 billion dollars escapes the federal tax system in loopholes every year," citing "that's what inflation is all about."

Parenti asked the crowd if they were "warm in their hearts with the struggle for justice," referring to the creeping cold of the clear, October night. "Yes!" the crowd responded overwhelmingly. He then continued by saying Ford was not really seeing Vermonters. He was not seeing the poor or the farmers. Parenti said that those people are discouraged by this, but that "a consciousness is developing in the common people" that will break their disillusionment with government and "take America away from the corporations and give it back to the people."

Following the speakers, the Vietnam Veterans Against the War/Winter Soldier Organization performed a short skit dramatizing the plight of the Vietnam Veteran. The play featured a Vet whose addiction was converted from heroin to Methodone, who wanted an education but was inadequately supported by the G.I. Bill, couldn't get a loan because he had no collateral, and couldn't get a job because he was dishonorably discharged.

The rally then officially disbanded at 9:30 as the cool October wind chilled those who now moved back to the rear of Patrick Gym. At 10:15 Ford, surrounded by Secret Service, walked down the stairs to his limosine. Five crackers exploded amid jeers and heckling from onlookers as the motorcade glided swiftly back to the air base.

...L
...HOLARSHIP
...PORTUNITY.

...scholarship assistance
...junior and senior years,
...nce to become a leader in
...ear energy field.

...ks and educational fees are all included
...NROTC Nuclear Propulsion Candidate
...long with $100 a month to help you with
...xpenses. And on top of that you have
...ity to build a rewarding career for yourself
...rowing nuclear energy field.

...u must have completed one semester
...culus and physics, or two semesters
...nd have a B- average or better.

...upon your performance you will be inter-
...ng your senior year for the Navy's Nuclear
...d for training as a Navy Nuclear Officer.

...ualify for the demanding yet rewarding
...d you can anticipate five years of employ-
...egular Navy officer.

...te on this new NROTC Nuclear Propulsion
...program, phone or see your local Navy

...come special in the Navy.

See your
...AVY INFORMATION TEAM
...s at Bil on campus at Billing Center
...on Oct. 22-24, 1974
...call 518-472-4462 Today !

COME TO THE UNIVERSITY STORE ON THE CAMPUS AND SEE

Texas Instruments electronic calculators

SR-11
electronic slide rule calculator

79.95

- Pi, scientific notation, square roots, squares, reciprocals at the touch of a key – as well as addition, subtraction, multiplication and division.
- Constant, chain and mixed calculations.
- Range of nearly 200 decades – 8-digit mantissa and 2-digit exponent.
- Automatic (full floating) decimal placement.
- Rechargeable long-life batteries – or AC line operation.
- Pocket portability.
- Change sign key and standard arithmetic.
- Full year warranty.

Texas Instruments
electronic slide rule calculator
SR-10

64.95

- An extra-function calculator at an economical price.
- Special key functions: square roots, squares, reciprocals, change sign, scientific notation – as well as addition, subtraction, multiplication and division.
- Instant 8-place accuracy, from simple arithmetic to complex equations.
- Handles numbers as large as 9.9999999×10^{99}... or as small as $1.0000000 \times 10^{-99}$.
- Fast-recharge long-life batteries. AC adapter/charger included.
- Pocket portability. Weighs only 9 ounces.
- Automatic (full floating) decimal placement in answers.
- Bright red display shows 8-digit numbers, 2-digit exponents, minus signs, overflow sign and low-battery warning.
- Simple to operate.
- Guaranteed by TI to be free from defects in parts and workmanship for one full year.

Texas Instruments
slide rule calculator
SR-50

149.95

- Performs all classical slide rule functions – simple arithmetic, reciprocals, factorials, expotentiation, roots, trigonometric and logarithmic functions, all in free floating decimal point or in scientific notation.
- Features an algebraic keyboard with single function keys for easy problem solving.
- Most functions process displayed data only – allows separate processing of data before entry in a complex calculation.
- Memory allows storage and recall of numbers, features sum key for accumulation to memory.
- Calculates answers to 13 significant digits; uses all 13 digits in subsequent calculations for maximum accuracy.
- Computes and displays numbers as large as $\pm 9.999999999 \times 10^{99}$ and as small as $\pm 1.000000000 \times 10^{-99}$.
- Converts automatically to scientific notation when calculated answer is greater than 10^{10} or less than 10^{-10}.
- Performs operations in the order problem is stated.
- Features bright 14-character display – 10-digit mantissa, 2-digit exponent, 2 signs.
- Display provides overflow, underflow, and error indications.
- Features the following function keys:
  - Full floating decimal.
  - Lightweight, fully portable.
  - Rechargeable batteries or AC operation.
  - Full year manufacturers warranty.
  - AC Adapter/Charger included.

Texas Instruments
electronic calculator
with memory
TI-2550

69.95

- Live memory system – calculates and stores previous answers for later use.
- Full floating decimal plus 2-place or 4-place decimal.
- Calculates percentages instantly for taxes, discounts and similar problems.
- Weighs less than 10 ounces.
- Convenient portable size for use anywhere.
- Multiplies and divides by a constant – automatically.
- Multiplies, divides, adds and subtracts in seconds.
- Easy to operate – just press the keys as you say the problem.
- AC adapter/charger included to recharge batteries or operate unit from wall outlet.
- Bright, 8-digit display.
- Built-in precision and dependability backed up by one-year warranty.
- Solid state components and integrated circuits for long, trouble-free use.
- Automatic negative sign, calculation overflow and memory-in-use indications.

Texas Instruments
electronic calculator
TI-2500

44.95

- Easy to operate – just touch the numbers and function as you say the problem.
- Adds, subtracts, multiplies, divides; chain or constant operation; full floating decimal.
- AC adapter/charger included to recharge built-in batteries or operate directly from wall outlet.
- Quality vinyl carry case included.
- Weighs less than 12 ounces.
- Convenient portable size – use it anywhere.
- Fully guaranteed.
- 8-digit display.
- Add, subtract, multiply and divide in seconds.
- Finest quality from one of America's foremost electronic firms.
- For the businessman, student, housewife – anyone who works with numbers.

your on campus Calculator Headquarters

Supper Series

President Andrews will initiate on Oct. 16 the first in a series of informal "cross section" suppers which on each occasion will bring together about 30 faculty and staff members broadly representative of UVM's colleges and schools for the purpose of exchanging ideas about the university.

In a letter of invitation Dr. Andrews says, "There will be no speeches, but I hope the occasion will provide a congenial setting for spontaneous give-and-take on our professional challenges and concern in a way that may not be possible in formal meetings or communication."

The suppers are not an original idea. A similar series was conducted several years ago at the suggestion of the late Academic Vice President Clinton Cook. They were "very good" Dr. Andrews says – "not always entirely serene but stimulating for all concerned. I hope they will provide an added dimension to administrative-faculty relationships today."

PAVE Created To Assist Veterans

A new organization has been created to provide vocational and educational assistance to Vietnam era veterans of the Vietnam era. P.A.V.E. (Program to Advance Veterans Education) is a federally funded program initiated to provide access to benefits for veterans. At present only 13 percent of Vermont's Vietnam era veterans have used or are using the G.I. benefits available to them (the lowest use rate in the nation).

The P.A.V.E. organization used Vietnam vets as outreach and public service type workers to inform and assist other veterans in selecting or rejecting various options presently available to them. The three year P.A.V.E. goal is to identify and personally contact Vietnam vets through local P.A.V.E. offices so as to 1) make post-secondary education options available; 2) make vocational training and employment options available; 3) and to provide a milieu for growth and trust between Vermont veterans and service agencies.

Under the directorship of Rob Mullen in the Vermont State College Offices, five fulltime site coordinators are located at Vermont Technical College, Lyndon State, Johnson, Castleton, and Vermont Community College; three part-time veterans affairs coordinators are located at Champlain College, Goddard, and VICI; and 75 part-time outreach public relations workers at the various campuses selected from un-employed or under-employed applicants.

UVM presently has 12 of the 75 part-time job slots with 4 outreach workers in the office of Veterans Affairs and others with the Burlington Red Cross (GI benefits and discharge review), The Next Thing, the UVM placement office and various other positions involved with research and public relations.

Anyone desiring further information on the P.A.V.E. program should contact Rob Mullen at 864-0241 or Barry Mansfield at 656-4220.

Bicycle Racks

There are now bicycle racks situated around the Living/Learning Center for use by all. However, some bicycles are still being locked to the trees, which impairs their proper growth and can cause permanent damage.

The Operations Committee of L/LC requests that people please use these bicycle racks and not the trees, stairwells, or classrooms. The racks are just as convenient and safer.

Delaware's Senator Biden To Speak At Trinity

From the Vermont Democratic Party

Senator Joseph Biden of Delaware, the youngest member of the U.S. Senate, will be the main speaker at a fund-raising event sponsored by the Democratic State Committee on October 15, Philip Hoff announced today.

"Senator Biden is clearly one of the new up-and-coming members of the Senate; and I think we are very fortunate in having him come to Burlington for this event. He is rated as one of the best and most exciting political speakers in the country today," Hoff said.

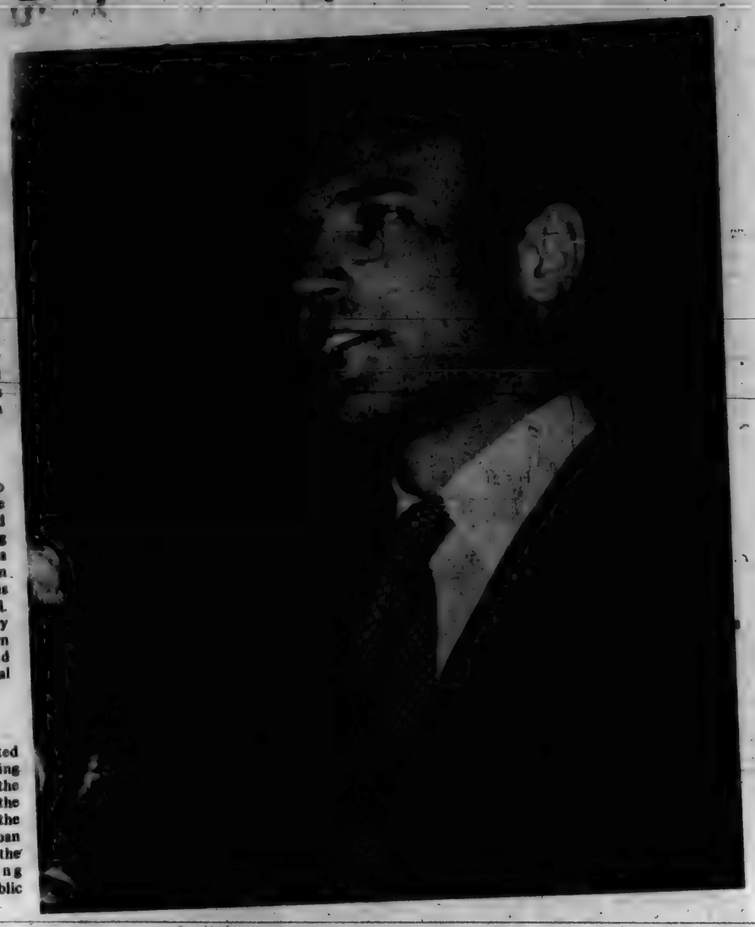
The fund-raising cocktail party will be held at Trinity College's McAuley Hall beginning at 8:00 p.m. on October 15. Tickets will cost $10 per person. The proceeds from the event will be shared equally by the Democratic candidates for Governor, Thomas Salmon, U.S. Senator, Patrick Leahy, and Congressman, Francis Cain, Hoff said.

Biden, who is 31, defeated Caleb Boggs in 1972 for one of Delaware's Senate seats. When the race began, Biden was unknown in Delaware politics. His state-wide recognition was just 18 per cent compared to Boggs' 93 per cent. Boggs had held state-wide office for many years, most recently serving two terms in the U.S. Senate. Biden, however, carried only two years experience as a county councilman into the race.

Like John F. Kennedy's 1952 race against Henry Cabot Lodge, the campaign seemed an impossible dream to everyone except Senator Biden's family. His sister Valerie was the campaign manager; his wife was the chief political strategist; and various members of the family filled other key positions on his campaign staff. In spite of the endorsements Boggs received from President Nixon, Vice President Agnew, Governor Nelson Rockefeller, and Delaware Senator Charles Mathias, the family campaign still won by 2,300 votes.

Biden had little time to savor his victory. Shortly before Christmas, his wife Neilia and their three children were driving home, and their car was hit by a hay truck. The car was thrown over an embankment, and his wife and daughter were killed. With proding from majority leader Mike Mansfield, Biden decided against resignation and was sworn in at the hospital bedsides of his two sons.

In 1974 Biden was selected as one of ten "Outstanding Young Men of the Year" by the U.S. National Jaycees. In the Senate he is a member of the Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, the Democratic Steering Committee and the Public Works Committee.



AACTE Appoints Committee To Re-examine Teacher Preparation

by Steven C. Rice

In 1976, America will celebrate its two-hundredth birthday, and the bicentennial will bring from our leaders new proposals for our nation to move ahead for the betterment of all Americans.

In the field of public education, The American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (AACTE) is already laying the groundwork for such a forward thrust. Directly responsible for teacher education programs on college and university campuses throughout America, AACTE urgently feels that the time is ripe for a thorough re-examination of teacher preparation. It has appointed a three person commission to prepare by October, 1975 an in-depth report which will encompass, among other things, the following:

The present situation in the teaching profession with respect to the education of teachers, the quality of teaching service, and the relation between the preparation offered and the service provided.

To examine the governance issues confronting the education profession by looking at the existing relationships between the various groups, agencies and organizations that shape and/or influence teacher education and to recommend a strategy for resolving the differences which exist.

To suggest an array of means by which the recommendations of the report could be translated into action. Spearheading the study, called simply the "Commission on the Education Profession," are Dr. Dean C. Corrigan, member of the AACTE Board and Dean of the College of Education and Social Services at the University of Vermont, Dr. George W. Denemark, former president of AACTE, and Dean of the College of Education at the University of Kentucky, and Dr. Robert B. Howsam, former member of the AACTE Board, and Dean of the College of Education at the University of Houston.

In its extensive list of rationale for the study, AACTE pulls no punches when it remarks: "Our society faces grim choices. Either it must recommit itself to education and to schools and do something adequate about these commitments or experience the end of public education as we have known it. There is no reason to expect that the public will continue to place its trust and its resources in a system which is suboptimal both in concept and execution."

The Commission's prospectus further declares: "For reasons that are complex and obscure, both the instructional processes of education and those of teacher education have retained large elements of conventional wisdom and of craft orientation. The failure of education to advance beyond this stage... is largely responsible for the failure of schools to meet the educational challenges of our times... Our teachers have never been prepared for such responsibility nor were the schools themselves designed to meet such challenges..."

It is to these challenges, primarily, that the AACTE's Commission on the Education Profession will address itself.

The AACTE proposes to attempt to fashion what they call "an intervention that might do for education and teacher education what the Flexner Report did for medicine and medical education in 1910 and subsequently."

The Commission has been authorized by the Association to designate a group of associated authors and researchers who will conduct related studies and provide materials for use in preparing the document. Also, it has been authorized to establish a panel of reactors from which review groups may be drawn as required. And following the identification of the components or elements of the study, the Commission will determine a set of critical issues that pertain to each component. Authors will then be identified who can address themselves to these issues. It is with this methodical process that the AACTE believes that the Commission will play what they term "an on-going and central role in formulating a set of directions for the writers to take, assuring compatibility of direction and focus."

The process of examination does not stop here, however. The utilization of a set of reactors will insure that all pertinent issues, examples and actionable alternatives are considered by the writers in their manuscripts. In order to encompass diversity, the Commission will encourage participation by a wide array of teachers and other school personnel, parents and teacher educators, and other institutions of higher education (IHE) based personnel. According to AACTE, such a thorough examination cannot be emphasized enough, noting "it views the participation of the entire higher education community as particularly important because of the campus wide responsibility for the preparation of school personnel."

What will be the result of this examination?

According to Dean Corrigan, "The education profession today is a 'many splintered thing'. Working together on needed changes which require collaboration by all members of the profession in schools, colleges and local state and federal agencies, can produce a united profession. Hopefully, the Bicentennial will stimulate this renewal process for the field of education. Certainly, a major shakeup is needed in the philosophy, organization, and substance of education at all levels of the system. If the colleges are to help initiate and develop them, reform must move in both directions."

KOREAN KARATE
DISCIPLINE
PHYSICAL FITNESS
SELF CONFIDENCE
SELF DEFENSE
DAY & EVENING CLASSES
MEN-WOMEN- CHILDREN
VERMONT TAE KWON DO, INC.
LAKESHORE DR
MALLETS BAY 864-0414
VISITORS WELCOME!

MAGRAMS

Announcing JEANS-IN
Magrams new jeanery!
JEANS
Where you'll discover all the right jean looks, including the fabulous authentic overalls in stripes and solids, plus tons of great jeans from Levi's, Lee, Landlubber, basic jeans and fashion jeans, with great go-together flannel shirts at soft easy prices. It's all happening in the Way-In,
JEANS-IN THE NEW MAGRAMS EXPERIENCE.

Lectures . . . Seminars . . . Lab Notes . . . Source Notes for Papers . . .
NOW YOU CAN GET IT ALL DOWN
WITH A BUILT-TO-LAST 3081 PORTABLE CASSETTE TAPE PLAYER/RECORDER.

by BELL & HOWELL
Also available in the 3080 model with no carrying case, no automatic/manual recording level control, no battery/record level meter, and no tone control.
ONLY $54.50 post paid
Regularly $59.95
CATCH UP ON WHAT'S GOING ON TODAY!
• Complete input jack panel
• Built-in microphone (remote control mike $3.75 extra)
• Automatic/manual recording level control
• Durable, high-impact polymer case
• Digital tape position counter
• Operates on batteries or AC (no adapter required)
• Battery/record level meter
• Automatic tape stop
• 6 month warranty
A TOP QUALITY UNIT NOT FOUND IN STORES
FOR A LIMITED TIME
ONLY $62.50 post paid
(including carrying case)
Regularly $69.95
We'll ship immediately when you send your choice and check to:
NORTHEAST AUDIO VISUAL, INC.
3 Chestnut Drive
Bedford Business Park
Bedford, New Hampshire 03102
IF IT'S FROM NORTHEAST IT'S RIGHT.

SHAKE 'EM UP WITH AN AZTEC EARTHQUAKE.

Montezuma® Tequila Earthquake
Montezuma Tequila, 1½ ounce. Strawberries, ¾ ounce sliced. Grenadine, 1 teaspoon. Orange bitters, ½ teaspoon. Lime, 1 slice. Strawberries, 1 unsliced. Blend strawberries and grenadine in blender. Add in other ingredients with cracked ice. Serve in tall glass over ice cubes. Garnish with lime slice and unsliced strawberry.
OLIN
(THE EARTHQUAKE) symbol for the 17th day of the ancient Aztec week
©1976 80 Proof Tequila Barton Distillers Import Co New York New York

Andrews, Rollin

by Bruce Maddern

In an informal meeting Tuesday afternoon, Administration and student leaders met to discuss various university problems and also hopefully to enhance communication between the two groups and to seek student input.

Among those attending were President Edward Andrews, Vice President Alfred Rollins and Vice President Wayne Patterson, Dean of Students Richard Powers, and student leaders Peter MacAusland, president of the Student Association, and Ken Bartlett, Inter-Residence Association president.

The main discussion centered on the impending financial crunch, particularly in the academic areas. According to Rollins, [illegible] state and federal inflation have pu[illegible] in the position o[illegible] academic outl[illegible] stated the cuts w[illegible] departments an[illegible] low student enro[illegible]

Rollins went[illegible] UVM has a very [illegible] electives for a [illegible] for a universit[illegible] concluded that [illegible] "trim the edges [illegible] in a little" but [illegible] leave the stude[illegible] number of optio[illegible]

Andrews [illegible] UVM is do[illegible] compared to o[illegible] of higher learn[illegible] public. Many s[illegible] forced to close[illegible] cut back very[illegible]

... House Nomin

have (continued from page one)

"I'm not so sure that I go along with total limits on spending. I think that's difficult unless you build into it some sort of a formula which recognizes that the incumbent has a tremendous advantage over the nonincumbent. I'm more concerned about insuring that money cannot come in of the size sufficient to buy a vote," Jeffords declared.

A second problem of campaign reform, Jeffords said, is enforcement:

"I think enforcement is the key to everything. I think you can have all the laws in the world, but if they're not enforced, all they do is hinder the honest man and give an advantage to the dishonest man."

Lobbying Reforms

Jeffords termed the present lobbying law, a statute enacted in 1946, "a farce." He explained why.

"It requires Common Cause to report all of its expenditures, but doesn't require Exxon to report any of its expenditures in lobbying. The reason for it is... the definition as interpreted by the United States Supreme Court is that 'only those organizations whose principal activity is lobbying have to report.'

"Well, [illegible] principal act[illegible] The fact tha[illegible] on the side, [illegible] devices or se[illegible] – that's 'n[illegible] Activity' so [illegible] report a thin[illegible]

"Commo[illegible] principal act[illegible] that people [illegible] where their[illegible] they have t[illegible] it's absurd.[illegible]

Jeffords [illegible] individual c[illegible] any signific[illegible] required [illegible] lobbying ac[illegible] any expens[illegible] anything [illegible] More i[illegible] Congressm[illegible] anything o[illegible] report it o[illegible]

Spen[illegible]

Jeffor[illegible] agreed to [illegible] spending [illegible] $25,000; [illegible] advertisin[illegible] cost of p[illegible] costs of $[illegible] $500 [illegible] contribut[illegible] agree to [illegible] specia[illegible]

DYNAMIC ATOMIC
BESSER
SCOTT
HOME OF " SALOMON
LOOK
located within
The Ski Shop

k At Trinity

aration

...signed to ... challenges, ... AACTE's ... Education ...es itself. ...proposes to ... what they ...n that might ...and teacher ...the Flexner ...edicine and ...in 1910 and

...on has been ... Association ... group of ...thors and ...will conduct ...and provide ...in preparing ...so, it has been ...blish a panel ...which review ... drawn as ...ollowing the ... of the ...pments of the ...mission will ...critical issues ...component. ...be identified ...themselves to ...is with this ...ss that the ... that the ...ay what they ...g and central ...ng a set of ...e writers to ...patibility of ...."

...examination ...re, however, ...of a set of

SHAKE 'EM UP WITH AN C EARTHQUAKE.

Montezuma® Tequila Earthquake

Montezuma Tequila, 1½ ounce Strawberries ½ ounce sliced Grenadine 1 teaspoon Orange bitters ½ teaspoon Lime, 1 slice Strawberries, 1 unsliced. Blend strawberries and grenadine in blender. Add in other ingredients with crushed ice. Serve in tall glass over ice cubes. Garnish with lime slice and unsliced strawberry.

OLIN
THE EARTHQUAKE symbol for the 17th day of the ancient Aztec month

Andrews, Rollins, Students Discuss Crunch

by Bruce Maddow

In an informal meeting Tuesday afternoon, Administration and student leaders met to discuss various university problems and also hopefully to enhance communication between the two groups and to seek student input.

Among those attending were President Edward Andrews, Vice President Alfred Rollins and Vice President Wayne Patterson, Dean of Students Richard Powers, and student leaders Peter MacAusland, president of the Student Association, and Ken Bartlett, Inter-Residence Association president.

The main discussion centered on the impending financial crunch, particularly in the academic areas. According to Rollins, budget cuts from state and federal sources and inflation have put the university in the position of making serious academic cutbacks. Rollins stated the cuts would be to slash departments and programs with low student enrollment.

Rollins went on to say that UVM has a very large number of electives for a student to enter for a university this size. He concluded these cuts would "trim the edges and pull the belt in a little" but it would still leave the student with a large number of options.

Andrews mentioned that UVM is doing very well compared to other institutions of higher learning, private and public. Many schools have been forced to close, or have had to cut back very seriously into academic offerings, he stated.

Rollins added that the university will maintain its standards and its quality of education.

Andrews hesitated in commenting on cuts to tenured faculty. He stated that non-academic cuts will be made also. He explained that many cuts have been made already, but more will have to be made. A few offices have already closed, he said.

A Ford Foundation grant of $250,000 was secured recently which will help alleviate some problems. However, the state government has impounded $300,000 of the state appropriation. Rollins and Andrews stressed that the financial picture is dark.

Cuts will be made this semester effective next semester. Andrews asked that the students become involved in the process. He added that the university is moving university planning to a more organized process, including student input. Rollins added that students are needed to help make tough decisions facing the university.

Larry McCrorey, assistant vice president for academic affairs, added in conclusion that teaching is the first priority of this university. He stated that both philosophically and legally teaching is the primary mission. He commented that in many institutions this is not the case.

The students were asked if they had any questions or comments. There were none of each.

...House Nominee Jeffords Fights Inflation

(continued from page one)

have.

"I'm not so sure that I go along with total limits on spending. I think that's difficult unless you build into it some sort of a formula which recognizes that the incumbent has a tremendous advantage over the nonincumbent. I'm more concerned about insuring that money cannot come in of the size sufficient to buy a vote," Jeffords declared.

A second problem of campaign reform, Jeffords said, is enforcement:

"I think enforcement is the key to everything. I think you can have all the laws in the world, but if they're not enforced, all they do is hinder the honest man and give an advantage to the dishonest man."

Lobbying Reforms

Jeffords termed the present lobbying law, a statute enacted in 1946, "a farce." He explained why.

"It requires Common Cause to report all of its expenditures, but doesn't require Exxon to report any of its expenditures in lobbying. The reason for it is... the definition as interpreted by the United States Supreme Court is that 'only those organizations whose principal activity is lobbying have to report.'

"Well, General Motors' principal activity is making cars. The fact that they do lobbying on the side, about air pollution devices or seat belts or whatever — that's 'not their principal activity' so they don't have to report a thing about lobbying."

"Common Cause, whose principal activity is trying to see that people obey the law and where their money's going — they have to report! It's a farce, it's absurd," Jeffords charged.

Jeffords wants to see every individual or business that does any significant lobbying to be required to report their lobbying activity, and to report any expenditures or delivery of anything in value over $50. More importantly, "any Congressman that receives anything of value over $50 must report it on his income."

Spending Limitations

Jeffords and Cain have agreed to total overall campaign spending limitations of $25,000; total spending on advertising media, including cost of production and agency costs of $10,000 and a limit of $500 from individual contributions. Cain would not agree to a ban on out-of-state or special-interest group contributions.

Labor

When asked about the importance of labor support in the campaign, Jeffords replied, "I think it's more important to Cain than it is to me. I think he needs labor's support because he needs labor's money... so I expect that he, obviously, will try very hard to get labor support."

Jeffords pointed to his own record for the working man. While in the legislature he wrote the State Labor Relations Act which "they hadn't been able to get through for several sessions. I was the Senate leader to increase the minimum wage at that time," he added.

"I have an excellent record for labor," Jeffords stated. "Mr. Cain doesn't; that's his problem. At the same time I was putting into the State Labor Relations Act the ability of municipal employees to bargain, Mr. Cain (former Mayor of Burlington) was fighting the attempts of the unions to organize municipal employment in Burlington. That's his problem in a nutshell."

I've campaigned on my experience in the area of government, my ability to deal with the Federal bureaucracy successfully as Attorney General, and my stand and my depth of knowledge and understanding of the issues," Jeffords concluded.

VPIRG Researches For Consumers

by Cecilia Vietzen

Six female students are presently working as a unit to disseminate information on consumer woes. Under the auspices of the "Living-Learning VPIRG Suite," Cathy Bulman, Becky Full, Judy Kelsher, Kathy Ryan, Kathy Sherman, and Susan Smith distribute pamphlets which pertain to recently completed studies. The girls' aim is to create greater student awareness of current consumer situations. Next week, they will conduct a study to measure the level of awareness of consumer problems, and they will do the same study again in the spring to see if knowledge of consumer problems has increased.

The students, who worked on various research group related projects last year, decided to suggest that a L/L program of this nature be introduced. In their proposal they stated that as group they would strive to make the UVM population more conscious of the VPIRG issues.

In certain instances, the girls may be able to relate their individual efforts for VPIRG to the courses they are taking. For example, Becky Full expects to do a study of nursing homes.

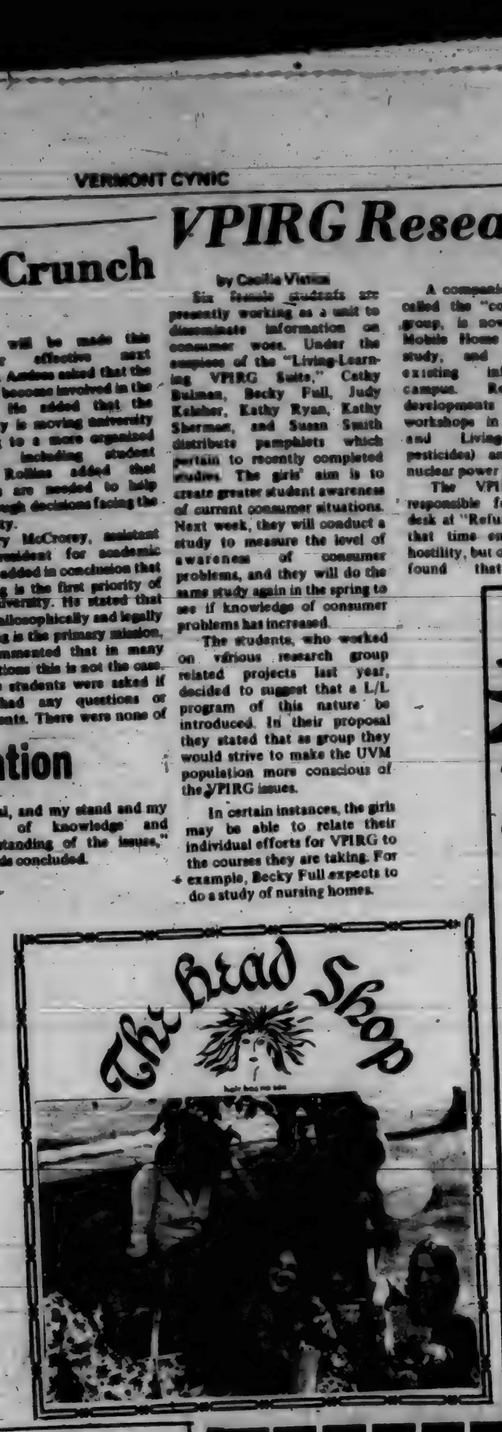
A companion suite of men, called the "consumer action" group, is now conducting a Mobile Home Owners Rights study, and spreading the existing information on campus. Recent campus developments have included workshops in Billings Center and Living-Learning (on pesticides) and a movie on nuclear power plants.

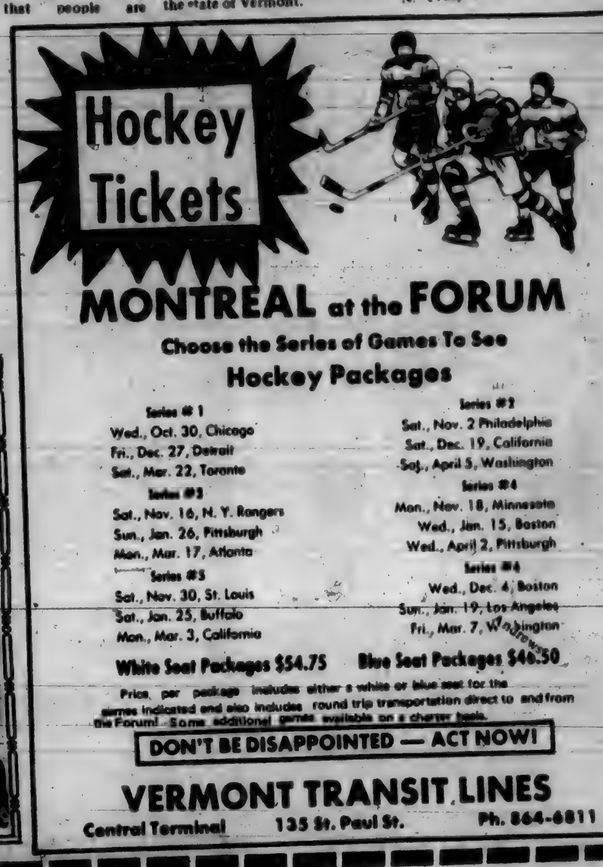
The VPIRG suite was responsible for manning the desk at "Refund Week", and at that time encountered some hostility, but on the whole, they found that people are sympathetic, and in some cases, eager to involve themselves with VPIRG.

Kathy Ryan has hopes of organizing students to undertake a toy store study on the safety of children's playthings. There will be another project on flammable garments. Volunteers will make the customers and stores aware of the issue, and initiate suits if necessary. Cathy Bulman has had the idea of doing a doctor to population ratio with an ambulance coverage study in the state of Vermont.

In the future, the VPIRG suite will continue to be arranging lectures and discussion groups on campus. They will be setting up a table in Living-Learning, which will have copies of the most current pamphlets and the results of the questionnaire.

Information on presently existing projects, such as the Tooth Fairy Bill, the Vermont Highway Extension of 91, the preventive medicine bill and nuclear expansion issues, can be found in the VPIRG office at 49 N. Prospect St.





MONTREAL at the FORUM

Choose the Series of Games To See

Hockey Packages

Series #1
Wed., Oct. 30, Chicago
Fri., Dec. 27, Detroit
Sat., Mar. 22, Toronto

Series #2
Sat., Nov. 2 Philadelphia
Sat., Dec. 19, California
Sat., April 5, Washington

Series #3
Sat., Nov. 16, N. Y. Rangers
Sun., Jan. 26, Pittsburgh
Mon., Mar. 17, Atlanta

Series #4
Mon., Nov. 18, Minnesota
Wed., Jan. 15, Boston
Wed., April 2, Pittsburgh

Series #5
Sat., Nov. 30, St. Louis
Sat., Jan. 25, Buffalo
Mon., Mar. 3, California

Series #6
Wed., Dec. 4, Boston
Sun., Jan. 19, Los Angeles
Fri., Mar. 7, Washington

White Seat Packages $54.75 Blue Seat Packages $46.50

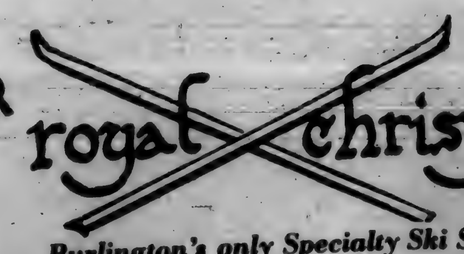
Price per package includes either a white or blue seat for the games indicated and also includes round trip transportation direct to and from the Forum. Some additional games available on a charter basis.

DON'T BE DISAPPOINTED — ACT NOW!

VERMONT TRANSIT LINES

Central Terminal 135 St. Paul St. Ph. 864-6811

DYNAMIC HESCHUNG DYNASTAR ATOMIC OLIN BESSER LANGE SCOTT



Burlington's only Specialty Ski Shop

HOME OF "THE SKI TUNER" SKI REFINISHING MACHINE

SALOMON RAICHLE NORDICA SKILOM LOOK LOVETT ELITE

Need We Say More!

located within The Ski Shop royal christy 388 Shelburne Rd

BOB'S SUB SHOP
24 MAIN ST., WINOOSKI
OPEN 6pm-to the wee hours!!!!!

MONDAY ONLY SPECIAL
40¢ OFF ON A ROAST BEEF SUB with this coupon
FREE DELIVERY 655-09777
GOOD THROUGH NOV.11,1974

TUESDAY ONLY SPECIAL
40¢ OFF ON A MEAT BALL SUB
with this coupon
FREE DELIVERY 655-0977
GOOD THROUGH NOV.12,1974.

WEDNESDAY ONLY SPECIAL
25¢ OFF ON A 12" PIZZA
OR 50¢ OFF ON A 16"PIZZA
WITH THIS COUPON
FREE DELIVERY 655-0977
GOOD THROUGH NOV.13,1974

... Congressional Candidates Debate At Gym

(continued from page one)

Gosztyl from 1969 to 1973. Among his accomplishments, Jeffords stated were the introduction of the Environmental Division, Act 250, introduction of water pollution laws and regulation of atomic plants. He also deemed the Vermont suit against New York over the dredge bed in Lake Champlain a success.

Presented next was what Jeffords thought of the important problems and workable solutions. On inflation he urged an end to deficit spending and balancing of the Federal budget. Jeffords also proposed controlling the monetary supply and an international solution to inflation especially with natural resources like oil and metals.

Another proposal of Jeffords was seeking additional revenues from companies.

Jeffords ended his opening remarks, urging support for the spirit of the New Campaign Law (limiting spending) and more women in government.

Cain's rebuttal stressed more money for education. Government reform especially in committee set-up is a high priority of Cain's. Also proposed were a phase out of oil depletion allowances and preferential use of capital gains. Cain urged that Congress take more of an administrative role as well as a legislative one in government.

Parenti criticized the backgrounds of his opponents which he termed as "self-congratulatory." He asked the other candidates why they weren't in picket lines for support of UFW, auto-workers, and poor people, etc.

Parenti also gave support to the other Liberty Union candidates and gave notice that two women were on the Liberty Union ticket, running for state offices.

Parenti also had criticism for the high military budget and "an economic system that provides no consideration for the people who work for the system." He advanced public ownership of utilities, a cut in Defense and "an humane anti-imperialist democratic society."

Jeffords gave no rebuttal, instead opening up the floor for questions.

(Questioners could question one, two, or all three of the candidates and that is the reason all the candidates didn't respond to certain questions.)

The first question dealt with CIA activities especially in Chile.

Jeffords responded, "I do not like current operations of CIA, except in very limited circumstances." He had no support for CIA involvement in Chile, but deemed CIA intervention might be justified if the national security was involved. He gave as examples the danger of an Atomic holocaust or overthrowing a minority government committing mass murders.

Cain disagreed with "outright intervention" of CIA in foreign countries. He felt, however, that it is important to have plenty of intelligence and information.

Jeffords responded to President Ford's pardon of Nixon as being premature. However, Jeffords related, "President Ford has agreed to come before a committee to express his reasons for Pardon."

Parenti neither condemns or congratulates the Pardon. He said it was the best thing that could be done. He explained this position in that now Nixon is pardoned, the secret tapes are in the possession of a judge and illegal acts of Nixon will now come out.

In response to the marijuana question, Cain said that "I don't want legalization of pot. We don't know enough about it."

Jeffords was "not convinced it was workable to legalize pot." He mentioned the difficulty to enforce the DWI with marijuana.

All the candidates agreed that the wheat sale to Russia was a mistake.

Cain termed the wheat deal was a "major error of the quarter century," and a major cause of inflation.

Jeffords felt the U.S. "government got taken in the wheat deal."

Parenti stated that the independent speculators sold wheat to Russia with the government subsidies and that agribusiness was greatly helped.

On the question of energy, Jeffords looked toward conservation as the best means to avoid a fuel crisis. He favored the development of coal, solar and thermal energy, etc., and fusion instead of fissionenergy.

Cain felt that the U.S. will continue to rely on coal for its energy needs. Cain is concerned about nuclear power, stating that even the scientific community is divided on the safety of nuclear power.

Parenti seemed to be the favorite of the debate in the student dominated audience. Parenti and Jeffords seem to have a cordial relationship, often joking with each other throughout the debate.

After the debate the candidates stayed to answer questions. Parenti was the first to leave, Cain stayed a while longer, while Jeffords was one of the last persons to leave Patrick Gymnasium.

U.S. Senate candidate Patrick Leahy and consumer advocate Ralph Nader hold a joint press conference at Sugarbush the first week in October. Nader pledged his support of district attorneys around the country in their effort to combat consumer fraud and white collar crime. Leahy is co-chairman of the Economic Crime committee of the National District Attorney's Association.

Legislative Interns

The Vermont Legislature is offering an opportunity for interested and qualified students to participate in a Legislative Intern Program. Internships will begin in January, 1975 and continue through the end of the 1975 legislative session.

Students from all disciplines and areas of study are invited to apply. Preference will be given to students who are able to commit full time to the program and who possess unique skills and abilities and a real interest in government. Candidates must be able to speak and write clearly, and to perform research and to work independently.

For more information on the program, contact Ms. Janet Ancel, Legislative Council, State House, Montpelier, Vermont (Tel. 828-2231).

...Ford

(continued from page one)

relations between the White House and the Capital than anyone has ever done in such a short time."

The members of the audience, elegantly clad in mink coats and formal dress, seemed to agree with George Aiken. The majority of protestors outside did not.

The President returned to Washington immediately after the dinner.

...Ten Year Transportation Plan

(continued from page one)

the high state registration fees for Diesel-powered vehicles, to a more comparable level to the other states.

– To merge the state highway fund to the general fund of the state of Vermont, and to press for less specific allocation of federal transportation funding to allow greater flexibility in the use of these funds.

– To provide information to the public on transportation design standards imposed federally and developed by the state.

– That all transportation planning for all modes and populations be subject to a comprehensive biennial report to the legislature.

Public Reaction

While the Ten Year Transportation Plan overall was received enthusiastically, the Monday evening hearing demonstrated several weak points in the proposal. Among the 150 interested citizens and organizations represented was Madeline Kunin, originator of the bill. Her reaction to the present state of the proposal included the need for defining terms such as "betterment" and "spot improvements."

The area of public transportation (rather the lack of) was also a concern. Expecting local areas to come up with some type of service without state help in locating funds and expertise, she felt, was a questionable expectation. Her reaction was shared by many.

One issue of repeated concern was the role of the secretarial responsibility for final recommendations to the Governor. This was questioned because the secretary would be chosen by the Governor himself. The question of such ultimate unchecked power and the lack of public recourse prevailed throughout the hearing.

Another controversial topic was the proposed merger of the highway and general funds. Carl Bohlen, who has done extensive research on various highway construction plans for VPIRG, pointed out that selective funding under such a merger would pose financial difficulties for highway projects still to be completed. Others queried the future quality of Vermont's roads if the highway fund were to be absorbed into the general fund.

The Board responded that not only would consolidating the funds tend to reduce administrative costs in the long run, but would also make the highway concern equal in consideration to other state problems and thereby be treated more accurately with state priorities.

A Charlotte resident, Peter Schofield, criticized the proposal's inability to provide information to the public on contracted highway construction plans. This limits public opportunity to scrutinize such plans. Schofield also requested that an additional series of public hearings be considered to allow the public to react to the final draft before it is to be brought to the legislature this December.

Dr. Julian Waller, professor and chairman of the UVM Dept. of Sociology and author of numerous articles on highway safety, submitted information sighting that the cost-effectiveness of safety provisions (i.e. providing guard rails at potentially hazardous obstacles) was on the average five times the cost-effectiveness of reconstruction and/or relocation.

Other concerns made public were for more provisions for bike paths in the state; the need for clarification on dry road/salt spraying policies; greater public education on energy conservation; and the suggestion that more time be given for additional considerations before the proposal is submitted to the legislature.

Nearly all those who spoke expressed that under the strain of time limitations, the Board was to be commended for preparing a plan of this magnitude as thoroughly and as conscienciously as they had.

The Ten Year Transportation Plan now enters its final stretch as the Transportation Advisory Board begins to draft the final plan. It is the hope of the many people who publicly voiced their reactions and suggestions that the final Ten Year Transportation Plan will accurately reflect the needs and desires of the people of the state. The December 1 deadline makes this no small task.

Schwartz On Sports

(continued from page fifteen)

someone to replace them.

The Cats depend on the performance of the returnees and also expect much from 6-7 freshman, Kevin Kelly. In the backcourt, Mark Cubit is the newcomer who is expected to help. One can also expect more confidence and improvement from Warren Prehmus. All this plus the return of Barry Cohen, Mario Macias, and Brian Donahue make the backcourt seem strong.

In the end, the team's success will rest on the battle off the boards where the Cats must perform effectively to win.

CLINQUE

Women believe in it because it Works.

100% Allergy Tested

100% Fragrance Free

THE FAMED CLINIQUE MAKEUP BASE AND A NEW WAY TO POWDER

Balanced Makeup Base, so light, it feels as if it goes on by itself. Nine magnificent shades, 7.50 each. Brush on Transparent Buffing Powder, the first pressed powder compact with a brush instead of a puff, 5.00.

Exclusively at mayfair

the store with the green door — Upper Church St. Burlington

Calling All ARTISTS

Come To Vermont's Great Art Store

You'll Find Most Everything You Need And At Fair Prices

Boutilier's Art Center 112 Church St.

KINGSLAND BAY RESTAURANT & LOUNGE Tel- 877-2929

5 miles west of Route 7 Ferrisburg – Follow signs to Ecole Champlain

fri, sat, sun Dining 6-9

Sat. Dancing 8-1

SPECIAL AUTMN EVENTS
HARVEST DINNER
PINE ISLAND STRING BAND
SQUARE DANCING OCT. 12

GET READY FOR THE WINTER SEASON

Let us tune the bottom of your skis for more fun and better performance. We fill all gouges with P-tex, grind and flatfile bottoms, sharpen edges and buff in wax. It's all done on our heavy duty refinishing machine by our trained shopman. Only $6.00 FOR NORMALLY WORN SKIS. AND THEY ARE LIKE NEW

SKI EQUIPMENT & CLOTHING SALE

OPEN 9 to 9 M-F SAT. 9-5

UP TO 50% OFF

1973-74 Skis by K-2 Rossignol, Olin, Head, A&T

Boots by Nordica, Caber, Trappeur, Hanson

50% OFF

Poles by Barrecrafter, Scott, Tomic, K-2

Groups of Parkas, Stretch Pants, & Warmup Pants

Valuga Sports

NATIVE FUNK & FLASH— An Emerging Folk Art

Alexandra Jacopetti with photographs by Jerry Wainwright

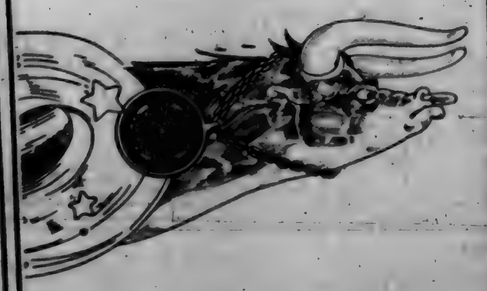
"This collection of contemporary folk art comes mainly from the San Francisco Bay Area, but it is representative of a much more generalized return to home-decorated functional objects. It comes from my own point of view—as an observer of its emergence and development as a folk artist, and as a participant in the culture from which it springs . . . My hope is to make the consciousness behind these folk expressions more understandable and accessible to others and to stimulate people to experience for themselves the joy and fulfillment of making their own art for themselves." (From the Introduction) 112 pages 200 color photos Softbound $7.50

the corner bookstore

"One-stop shopping for books, stationery and art supplies"

Church and College Streets

WHEN A HORNY BULL FEELS DULL, HE BECOMES A CRASHING BORE.



The Montezuma Horny Bull:
1 oz. Montezuma Tequila
5 oz. CONCENTRATED ORANGE BREAKFAST DRINK. Over ice.
It's sensational, and that's no bull.

Montezuma TEQUILA

©1974 88 Proof Tequila Boston Distillers Import Co., New York, New York

SCHWART ON SPORT

The Vermont football team has come up with upsets in the East this season. Credit again goes to Bob Bateman and his pass receivers in the 25-14 vic University of Massachusetts this past Saturday.

Bateman again proved his coolness as he took V 14-0 deficit to a 25-14 victory. Bateman complete 20 passes and has now completed over 60 per cen for the season. Billy Looker turned in his finest with seven receptions.

But there is still one facet lacking in the Vermo team can't run and it can't stop the run. By givin yards to the UMass rushers the team has now bee more than 1200 yards in four games.

Meanwhile the offense could muster only 14 Coach Pelivene might think that you can only win in the end the balanced attack will win day in and the rushing both on offense and defense improve UMass will remain upsets and not expected victor

It's upon us already. The UVM Hockey Tea formal practice in Essex Junction after worki informal basis at Leddy Rink. The games at Wisco days away.

No one should expect fantastic performances will be the season's first game and the compet strong. Wisconsin is the defending Big Ten Cham top performer in the Western College Hockey A Cats are also one of only two teams to play the B (RPI being the other).

The Cats will be playing this team before a 8,000 at the football homecoming weekend. It make the task even harder.

For this season, which will be the Cat's first in cannot expect a 28-5-0 record as in the past year Princeton, Harvard, Dartmouth, and now Hampshire are just some of the highlights.

But it is realistic to expect a position in playoffs. There is tremendous talent on the tea is perhaps the finest defenseman in the East. Ke very good and experienced defender. The return after his injury and the recruits led by Vermo Ross make the defense top notch.

On offense, the first line of O'Connell, Ko now playing together for the third year, will good. The return of Michel Lebeau, Bill Spence, Jack Clifford provide more offense. And, with highly rated Randy Koch, Coach Cross should to put together four effective lines. The Cats MacKinnon and Castle.

But it seems like goalie is the key to the s has graduated. This leaves the chores in t unproven though promising sophomores, To Peter Reynolds. How they ultimately perfo paralled the success or failure of the Catamoun

Hopefully not to be outdone is the bu everyone returning from last year's squad. T difficult buf also realistic. Last year, the extremely powerful teams with only a small This year the possibilities for victory in suc Teams like St. Joseph's, Lafayette, and Col on UVM's level of competition. Tennessee may pose problems, but these teams are not Carolina or North Carolina State.

The key to the season is depth. The Ca adequate height up front to battle most team Charlie Trapani get into foul trouble or get i

(continued on page four

W WES JACKETS only

By The Mos Company, Cottons Not Irregulars, Lab

CHARLESTO MILL STO 65 MAIN OPEN DAILY 9-9, SAT

Don't let the of a colle education sh your wo

The price of a college educatio Fortunately the Air Force has catch up with it. It has increased lege scholarships available to fly as well as for missile duty volunt math students. These cover full ment for textbooks, as well as fees. Not only that, but you monthly as a tax-free allowance. To cash in on all this, just apply in the Air Force ROTC at You'll be on your way to a free an Air Force officer's career, and sky's the limit.

UT IT ALL TOGETHER IN

advocate Ralph Nader held a joint ber. Nader pledged his support of combat consumer fraud and white Crime committee of the National tation Plan to the contracted highway oposal construction plans. This limits efining public opportunity to scrutinize t" and such plans. Schofield also requested that an additional public series of public hearings be e lack considered to allow the public ncern. to react to the final draft before come it is to be brought to the ervice legislature this December.

oating Dr. Julian Waller, professor e felt, and chairman of the UVM Dept.
tation. of Sociology and author of ed by numerous articles on highway safety, submitted information peated sighting that the of the cost-effectiveness of safety
y for provisions (i.e. providing guard to the rails at potentially hazardous tioned obstacles) was on the average ould be five times the cost-effectiveness overnor of reconstruction and/or f such relocation.
ver and Other concerns made public course were for more provisions for the bike paths in the state; the need for clarification on dry road/salt al topic spraying policies; greater public r of the education on energy ds. Carl conservation; and the tensive suggestion that more time be ighway given for additional VPIRG, considerations before the elective proposal is submitted to the merger legislature.
fficulties Nearly all those who spoke ill to be expressed that under the strain ried the of time limitations, the Board ermont's was to be commended for und were preparing a plan of this e general magnitude as thoroughly and as conscienciously as they had.
dded that The Ten Year
olidating Transportation Plan now enters reduce its final stretch as the
the long Transportation Advisory Board make the begins to draft the final plan. It qual in is the hope of the many people her state who publicly voiced their reby be reactions and suggestions that tely with the final Ten Year nt, Peter Transportation Plan will d the accurately reflect the needs and o provide desires of the people of the public on state. The December 1 deadline makes this no small task.

rtz On Sports

ntinued from page fifteen)

n them.
nd on the performance of the returnees and from 6-7 freshman, Kevin Kelly. In the Cubit is the newcomer who is expected to help.
ect more confidence and improvement from
All this plus the return of Barry Cohen, Mario Donahue make the backcourt seem strong.
e team's success will rest on the battle off the Cats must perform effectively to win.

N A HORNY BULL
DULL, HE BECOMES RASHING BORE.

Montezuma
TEQUILA

SCHWARTZ ON SPORTS

The Vermont football team has come up with one of the big upsets in the East this season. Credit again goes to quarterback Bob Bateman and his pass receivers in the 25-14 victory over the University of Massachusetts this past Saturday.

Bateman again proved his coolness as he took Vermont from a 14-0 deficit to a 25-14 victory. Bateman completed better than 20 passes and has now completed over 60 per cent of his tosses for the season. Billy Looker turned in his finest game as a Cat with seven receptions.

But there is still one facet flicking in the Vermont attack. The team can't run and it can't stop the run. By giving up over 300 yards to the UMass rushers the team has now been trampled for more than 1200 yards in four games.

Meanwhile the offense could muster only 16 yards rushing. Coach Felivene might think that you can only win by passing but in the end the balanced attack will win day in and day out. Until the rushing both on offense and defense improve, victories over UMass will remain upsets and not expected victories.

****

It's upon us already. The UVM Hockey Team has started formal practice in Essex Junction after working out on an informal basis at Leddy Rink. The games at Wisconsin are but 10 days away.

No one should expect fantastic performances right away. It will be the season's first game and the competition is quite strong. Wisconsin is the defending Big Ten Champions and is a top performer in the Western College Hockey Association. The Cats are also one of only two teams to play the Badgers this year (RPI being the other).

The Cats will be playing this team before a sellout of over 8,000 at the football homecoming weekend. Indeed, this will make the task even harder.

For this season, which will be the Cat's first in Division I, one cannot expect a 28-5-0 record as in the past year. Teams such as Princeton, Harvard, Dartmouth, and now two with New Hampshire are just some of the highlights.

But it is realistic to expect a position in the Division I playoffs. There is tremendous talent on the team. John Murphy is perhaps the finest defenseman in the East. Ken Yeates is also a very good and experienced defender. The return of John Glynne after his injury and the recruits led by Vermont grown Chuck Ross make the defense top notch.

On offense, the first line of O'Connell, Koch, and Mallette, now playing together for the third year, will make things look good. The return of Michel Lebeau, Bill Spence, Tom Colby, and Jack Clifford provide more offense. And with freshman such as highly rated Randy Koch, Coach Cross should once again be able to put together four effective lines. The Cats should not miss MacKinnon and Castle.

But it seems like goalie is the key to the season. John Kiely has graduated. This leaves the chores in the hands of two unproven though promising sophomores, Tom McNamara and Peter Reynolds. How they ultimately perform will probably parallel the success or failure of the Catamount hockey team.

****

Hopefully not to be outdone is the basketball team with everyone returning from last year's squad. The schedule is again difficult but also realistic. Last year, the team played four extremely powerful teams with only a small chance of winning. This year the possibilities for victory in such games are better. Teams like St. Joseph's, Lafayette, and Columbia are a bit more on UVM's level of competition. Tennessee and Virginia Tech may pose problems, but these teams are not in the class of North Carolina or North Carolina State.

The key to the season is depth. The Cats need to maintain adequate height up front to battle most teams. So if Joe Greco or Charlie Trapani get into foul trouble or get injured there must be

(continued on page fourteen)

UVM Hockey Schedule

October 18 – Wisconsin	Madison, Wisc. – 8:30
October 19 – Wisconsin	Madison, Wisc. – 8:30
November 1 – St. Louis	St. Louis, Mo. – 9:00
November 3 – St. Louis	St. Louis, Mo. – 8:00
November 15-16 – Bishop's University International Hockey Tournament (Vermont, Bishop's Univ., Norwich and Univ. of Quebec at Three Rivers)	Lennoxville, Que.
November 15 – Norwich vs. Univ. of Quebec	6:00
November 15 – Vermont vs. Bishop's	8:45
November 16 – Consolation	4:00
November 16 – Championship	7:00
November 23 – RPI	Troy, N. Y. – 8:00
December 2 – Princeton	Princeton, N. J. – 7:30
December 4 – St. Anselm's	Manchester, N. H. – 8:00
December 10 – Clarkson	Burlington – 7:30
December 11 – Hamilton	Burlington – 7:30
December 27, 28 – Syracuse Tourney (Colgate, St. Lawrence, Cornell)	Syracuse, N. Y.
January 4 – Pennsylvania	Burlington – 7:30
January 10 – Dartmouth	Hanover, N. H. – 7:30
January 14 – Middlebury	Middlebury – 7:30
January 15 – Boston Univ.	Boston, Mass. – 7:30
January 21 – Norwich	Burlington – 7:30
January 25 – RPI	Burlington – 7:30
January 29 – New Hampshire	Burlington – 7:30
January 31 – Boston Univ.	Burlington – 7:30
February 1 – Northeastern	Burlington – 7:30
February 4 – St. Lawrence	Burlington – 7:30
February 7 – Harvard	Cambridge, Mass. – 7:30
February 8 – Massachusetts	Amherst, Mass. – 8:00
February 12 – St. Lawrence	Canton, N. Y. – 7:30
February 14 – Connecticut	Storrs, Conn. – 7:30
February 17 – AIC	Springfield, Mass. – 7:30
February 19 – Middlebury	Burlington – 7:30
February 22 – Bowdoin	Burlington – 7:30
February 25 – New Hampshire	Durham, N. H. – 7:00
February 26 – Colby	Waterville, Me. – 7:00
March 1 – Clarkson	Potsdam, N. Y. – 7:30

Centennial Club Barbecue

Everyone who plans on attending the UVM Centennial Club Chicken Barbecue must purchase tickets in advance at the Athletic Ticket Office or at the Alumni Office, South Prospect Street, c/o Rusty Brink, Alumni Director. Tickets are $3. each. The barbecue will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., 30 minutes before the kick-off of the UVM-UNH football game. A big tent will be set up for the luncheon.

Albany Law-19 Vermont-3...

(continued from page sixteen

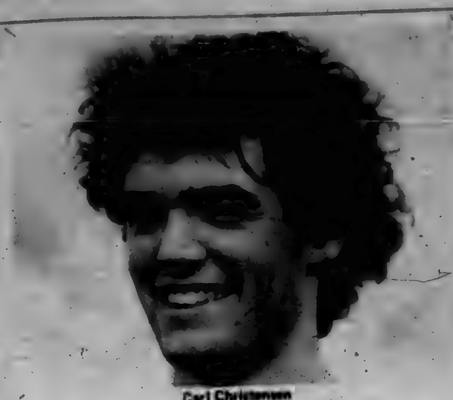
the forwards.

Vermont made its first score in the second half with a 27 foot penalty kick by Jim Beckman (who also played in the "A" game). Later in the period, Gary Sabourin converted on a four point try and Peckman added the two point conversion.

The rugby team has two games this week against Westmorin on Saturday and McGill University on Sunday.

Intramural Calendar

	ENTRIES OPEN	ENTRIES CLOSE	SCHEDULE BEGINS
Basketball Men	Oct. 1	Oct. 10	Oct. 15
Handball Men Doubles	Oct. 7	Oct. 15	Oct. 17
Ice Hockey Men	Oct. 15	Oct. 23	Oct. 31
Ice Hockey Women	Oct. 15	Oct. 23	Oct. 31
Indoor Track Men	Oct. 21	Oct. 29	Nov. 12, 14
Co-Ed Racquetball Doubles	Oct. 21	Oct. 30	Nov. 4



Carl Christensen

John Koerner

UVM Wins Over B.U. In Soccer

The Vermont soccer team posted its third victory against two losses for the season this past Saturday. They defeated Boston University 2-1 in Boston.

The victory evened the Cat's Yankee Conference record at 1-1 as they came from behind to post the victory.

Jeff Jonas proved a capable replacement for injured Jim Taft in the nets. Jonas made four saves all in the first half as the Cat defense played tough.

Allan Sale scored with 2:45 gone in the second half to give BU a 1-0 lead. Then Carl Christensen scored on a thirty yard direct kick to even the score at 22-55.

Less than three minutes later, John Koerner scored on an unassisted play as he dribbled past Terrier defenders and slammed a shot into the corner of the net.

For the game, Vermont outshot BU 17-12 with BU goalie Marinoff coming up with nine saves. The Cats proved capable on offense and came up with a fine defensive performance to win the game.

The team after playing St. Mike's yesterday travel down to Rhode Island for a game against the Rams this Saturday morning.

WORLD CAMPUS AFLOAT

JOIN US!

You'll sail in February, with the ship your classroom and the world your campus . . . combining accredited studies with fascinating visits to the fabled ports of the Orient, Africa, and the Americas. Over 10,000 students from 450 colleges have already sailed with WCA — join them! Financial aid available. Write today for free catalog.

WCA, Chapman College
Box F, Orange, CA 92666

Claussen's Greenhouse
Rt. 2a Colchester
BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL
10% Student discount with ID
BURLINGTON'S WIDEST SELECTION OF PLANTS
★ house
★ terrarium
★ tropical
A COMPLETE HOUSEPLANT CENTER
★ terrarium's to order
★ Rx for sick plant
★ potting soil and fertilizer
★ clay and decorative pots
OPEN YEAR ROUND 8AM to 6PM
Call 878-2361
FRESH APPLE CIDER

PLANTASIA
Mostly ~ Plants Macrame' Pots Soils
Advice Which? What? Where? How?

107 St. Paul Street Burlington 864-9537

WOMEN'S WESTERN CUT JACKETS AND SHIRTS
only $7.99
By The Most Famous Jeans Company, Cottons & Polyesters, Not Irregulars, Labels Removed CHARLESTOWN MILL STORE
65 MAIN ST
OPEN DAILY 9-9, SATURDAY 9-5

O'brien's
Beauty Memo:
Re: O'b's CUT & CARE SALON
Upstairs at O'Brien's
135 Main St., Salon, is o'b's!
o'b's has the know how--- with brush, hand dryer and a contempory cut. You have a care free hairstyle and you look PRETTIER!
Come see.
o'b's for GUYS&GALS. Phone: 658-2752

Becoming a physician is a tremendous satisfaction.
Let us give you the job satisfaction that should go with it.

Whether you're still in medical school with the rigors of three to five years of graduate medical education still to be faced, or are already a practicing physician, it's our opinion that the Air Force can offer both professional and personal satisfaction hard to duplicate in civilian life.

An overstatement? Not if you consider the specifics.

Take the problem of graduate medical education. It's a period of your life the Air Force can make considerably easier with comfortable salary and living conditions.

Creature comforts aside, the Air Force offers professional advantages. Besides receiving training in your own specialty, you'd be in contact with physicians in all of the medical specialties. You'd function in an environment which is intellectually stimulating and professionally challenging.

Not all physicians pursue post-residency fellowships. But if you are interested, the Air Force conducts them both in-house and at civilian institutions.

The physician already in practice can look forward to other things. If you foresee training in the practice of the medicine of the future, you'll find it in the Air Force. For example, there's emphasis on [illegible] and preventive medicine. And if you're pursuing specialty or sub-specialty [illegible] your interest, there are few specialties which are not being practiced in today's Air Force.

The physician starting his practice in civilian life has to take into account the cost of setting up an office. The physician commencing his practice in the Air Force does not. He finds his office established for him: Supplies and equipment readily available. He has many options available to him when treating patients. For example, he can consult with Air Force specialists. He also has referral to other Air Force facilities via aeromedical evacuation. Last, but not least, are the satisfactions that come with having the opportunity for regular follow-ups, and a missed appointment rate that is practically nil.

Whether you are already a physician, or soon to become one, you might find it extremely interesting to find out what the Air Force has to offer. We think it could be a real eye-opener. If you'll mail us the coupon, we'd be happy to send you detailed information.

Air Force Opportunities, 6A0A09
P.O. Box AF
Pueblo, Co. 81009

Please send me information on the Air Force Physician Program. I understand there is no obligation.

Name _____ Date Of Birth _____ SS# _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Phone _____
Soc. Sec. # _____ Date of Birth _____

Health Care at its best.
Air Force.

Don't let the price of a college education shake up your world.

The price of a college education is skyrocketing. Fortunately the Air Force has done something to catch up with it. It has increased the number of college scholarships available to flying qualified men, as well as for missile duty volunteers and advanced math students. These cover full tuition, reimbursement for textbooks, as well as lab and incidental fees. Not only that, but you can receive $100 monthly as a tax-free allowance.

To cash in on all this, just apply, qualify, and enroll in the Air Force ROTC at _____ You'll be on your way to a free college education, an Air Force officer's career, and a future where the sky's the limit.

PUT IT ALL TOGETHER IN AIR FORCE ROTC

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE
INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 862-7586
FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS
INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES
560 X 15 Snow Tires
FITS MOST BUGS & SAAB 95 and 96's
24.95 inc. FET & mounting
VW BRAKE JOB $49.95
Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 hub drums, rebuilt 4 wheel cylinders.
VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

Mike Berry heads to the finish line in X-Country win over UConn. SPS Photo: Dick Tew

Harriers Defeat UConn 24-33

by David J. Reneri

Recovering from their recent loss to Plattsburgh State, the UVM Harriers came back strong on Saturday to beat the University of Connecticut 24-33. Finishing first for the Vermont squad was captain Mike Berry. Berry toured the new home course (5.0 miles) in 25:25. The course will be used for the Yankee Conference Championships on November 2.

Capturing second place was UVM's Lynn Capen in 25:52. Also for the Cats, Dave Milligan was fifth, Peter Weith seventh, and Bob Graves was ninth.

The victory gave a good indication of how the teams stands in the Yankee Conference. UConn is one of the stronger teams in the conference. On Wednesday, October 9, the team hosted the Vermont State Meet at 3:00 p.m. On Saturday the team faces Southeastern Massachusetts at 11:00 a.m.

UVM Rugby Team Loses

The University of Vermont Rugby team lost to Albany Law School by a score of 19-3. Albany was able to score right from the start in the contest.

Albany Law scored within the first minute of play when UVM was called for offsides. Albany was able to convert on a three point penalty kick. They again scored when they forced Vermont into their own end zone. UVM fumbled the ball and Albany recovered for a four point try. The two point conversion was successful.

UVM's only score of the game came when Marcel Bergeron converted on a penalty kick. At half time the score was Albany Law – 9 and UVM – 3.

Albany continued to apply the pressure on UVM throughout the second half. Albany was able to capitalize on UVM miscues and score on two more tries. Any chance for a Vermont comeback were lost in the middle of the second half following the loss of fullback, Sam Weiner with a shoulder injury. As there is no substitution allowed in rugby, UVM was forced to play one man down and could not organize an effective attack for the rest of the game.

The "B" team was more successful as they defeated the Albany Law "B" team by 9-4. Albany scored first on a four point play early in the game. UVM was able to then take charge led by a strong attack by

(continued on page fifteen)

U.V.M. SPORTS

Billy Looker (right) and Rocky Thompson are two of the receivers Bob Bateman passed to in the upset victory over UMass.

The Big Upset:

Vermont Beats UMass 25-14

by Gary Brooks

Winning what could be their biggest game in half a century, the UVM Catamounts pulled off an upset last Saturday in Amherst by beating the University of Massachusetts Minutemen 25-14. The star of the game was quarterback Bob Bateman who connected 21 of 32 passes for 255 yards and three touchdown passes.

Other solid performances on offense were turned in by flanker Billy Looker, who caught seven passes for 124 yards and the offensive line, composed of guards Bob Weiler, Captain, and Joe Juscen, tackles Dave Iannone and Bob Neal, and center Pete Gursky, whose pass blocking gave Bateman time to set up to throw the football.

Starring defensively was Tony Kurnich with nine solo tackles and assists on eight others. Joe Reed had seven solo tackles and four assists. Freshman Mark Boland recovered two fumbles.

As has happened in past games, the Cats fell behind early, 14-0 mainly because of a UMass running attack which amassed 316 yards as compared to 16 for UVM. Rich Jessamy and QB Mark Tripuka each rushed for 119 yards apiece. The Catamount defense, however, shored up in the second half as Bateman took charge in the fourth quarter.

A Massachusetts interception early in the first quarter set up their first score. John Van Buren picked off the Bateman pass at the UVM 29 and from there UMass drove to the one-yard line where Jessamy took it in for six. The extra point made it UMass 7, UVM 0.

A pass interference call early in the second quarter gave UMass a first down on the UVM 3. Jim Torrance scored from there and Sprout kicked the extra point to make the score UMass 14, UVM 0.

An over the shoulder looking into the sun catch by Billy Looker that covered 44 yards set up the first UVM touchdown in the second period. Bateman climaxed the drive with a 14 yard pass to Paul Jerry in the end zone. The extra point attempt was blocked so the score was UMass 14, UVM 6.

UMass then got the ball and held for seven plays and was forced to punt. UVM got the ball on their 21 and marched 79 yards in 14 plays to the second score of the day. Though a fifteen-yard penalty for an illegal screen pass slowed down the drive, Bateman still connected with Rocky Thompson from the 18 with his second touchdown pass. The try for two points failed and UMass led 14-12 at halftime.

In the third period Sprout attempted a 30 yard field goal but missed. The score stayed 14-12 until the fourth quarter.

A UMass fumble midway in the final period gave the ball to the Cats on the Minutemen 35. The combination of Bateman to Looker was good twice for 28 yards. Bateman then hit Lockwood from the three yard line. Lookwood caught the pass just in front of the UMass linebackers. His momentum carried him in for the score to make it UVM 18, UMass 14.

Jessamy took the ensuing kickoff and returned 42 yards to midfield. He fumbled on the next play and Pat Duyer recovered for the Cats on the UVM 49. They punted four plays later.

UMass got the ball and completed a 10 yard pass play. The next play the attempted pass was picked off by UVM's Gary Gottfried at midfield and he took it for the score. George Brunst kicked the point after to close out the Minutemen 25-14.

The win was an impressive one for the Cats as they evened their record at 2-2 overall, 1-2 in the Yankee Conference. UVM's next opponent will be the Rhode Island Rams next Saturday. The game will be played at Kingston, R.I. at 1:30 p.m.

College Football Scores

Boston College 37 – Navy 0
Boston Univ. 33 – Northeastern 8
Connecticut 41 – New Hampshire 24
Holy Cross 14 – Dartmouth 3
Maine 29 – Rhode Island 19
North Carolina 45 – Pitt 29
Oklahoma 63 – Wake Forest 0
Rutgers 24 – Harvard 21
Williams 38 – Rochester 0
Worcester Tech 12 – Middlebury 7

Basketball Tryouts

Tryouts for the varsity basketball team will be held on Tuesday, October 15 at 4:30 p.m. All candidates should be dressed and on the gym floor at Patrick at that time, ready to play. The junior varsity squad will begin tryouts on Monday, November 4. Vermont will once again be having a junior varsity squad.

Girls Tennis Wins Three

The girl's varsity tennis team boosted their season's record last week to four wins and one loss with three winning matches. A successful trip to Castleton State College brought the UVM girls home with a 7-0 victory on October 1. In Thursday's match against Trinity, the "B" team won with another shut out victory of 7-0. To end up a full week of matches, the UVM girls met with Green Mt. Jr. College winning 6-0.

ICE-NINE
Leather Shop
&
Craft Parlor
Route 2 Jonesville, Vt
(3 miles past Richmond on Williston Rd)
Hours Noon - 7:30 Sun-Thurs
at the Farmer's Market Fri-Sat 9-6
Custom Leatherwork, Moccasins, Leatherclothing, Bags, Belts, etc., plus batik, Pottery, Photography, wooden toys, Needlepoint, Knitting, Woodwork, Jewelry

SNOW TIRES!!!
Complete line of SNOW TIRES
-new and retreads.
All UVM students get 10% discount with this ad.
E&E TIRE CO., INC.
152 RIVERSIDE AVE.
864-7759

VALUABLE COUPON
SAVE
SPECIAL TO STUDENTS AND FACULTY MEMBERS
10% DISCOUNT
ON YOUR PURCHASES AT
CAMPUS PHARMACY
ACROSS FROM
The Medical Center

would you buy a new record from these used people?

why not!
MADMAN MURRAY'S
BARGAIN CENTER FOR RECORDS, TAPES, EQUIPMENT
CHURCH ST. & MECHANICS LANE
864-5719
BETWEEN GOVER'S & BESSEY'S BOOK STORE

THE 1974 ARIEL
HAS ARRIVED!!!!
AVAILABLE TO ALL STUDENTS WHILE THEY LAST!!!!
PRICE $1.00
YOU WILL FIND THEM IN UPSTAIRS BILLINGS CENTER
FRIDAY OCTOBER 11 from 10am-3pm
NEXT WEEK MONDAY- FRIDAY 10am-3pm.
ALSO AVAILABLE IN ARIEL OFFICE IN THE EVENING
GET YOURS WHILE THE SUPPLY LASTS!!!!!

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 21
OCTOBER 17, 1974

Leahy Hop... First D...

by Barbara Frankel

If elected to the United States Senate, 34 year old Patrick Leahy will become one of two U.S. Senators under the age of 40. He will also be the first Democratic senator ever elected from the state of Vermont.

Leahy is optimistic about his chances against Republican Congressman Dick Mallary. Mallary recently criticized Leahy for not limiting contributions to his campaign. Leahy feels Mallary is not telling the whole story.

"Dick Mallary's calls for campaign financing reform is creditable only if they're based on past performance... When Mallary ran two years ago, it was the most expensive campaign in the state. He's never accounted for that. He's said he's not responsible under the law. That's just what Richard Nixon said," commented Leahy.

Leahy also pointed out that, as an incumbent Congressman, Mallary has funds and resources which are not available to his competitors. Pat Leahy added that, personally, he is "very much in favor of limiting national campaign spending but you have to watch the power of the incumbent."

Leahy has received hundreds of campaign contributions from Vermonters for sums of $100 or less. He also said he has refused to take contributions from organizations with which he does not agree, although he is now $17,000 in debt as a result of financing his senatorial campaign.

News Analysis:

Land Use P...

by Paul Cain

Vermont is currently try... to draw up a land use plan t... will guide the state's future la... management. Restriction... land use and the degree... property freedom landowne... in Vermont shall have will... determined by this p... Anyone who values and resp... Vermont's land should... deeply concerned with Act... and the Land Use Pla... requires. It will affect the... of state young Vermonters... see 20 years from now.

Opinions about any la... regulate land are bound... emotion. Many Vermo... who have invested in la... have held land owning th... generations strongly resen... intervention that will a... their use of that land. ... who see Vermont threa... with over-develop... advocate a strong, rest... plan. Before any opinio... expressed here, let's look... facts of Act 250 and the... Use Plan.

Back in the early... Vermont found herself a... land boom. In 1962 an... woodlot land would... approximately $20 an... acre with water, $50. ... more and more people... land in Vermont, pe... their land values ri... growing numb...

OCTOBER 10, 1974

ORTS

...ed to in the upset victory over UMass.

...lass 25-14

...tailed ued UMass ...time
... period Sprout ... yard field goal ... score stayed ... fourth quarter. ...mble midway in ... gave the ball to ... Minutemen 35. ...n of Bateman to ...ed twice for 28 ...an then hit ... the three yard ... caught the pass ... of the UMass ...is momentum ...for the score to ... UMass 14.

...ok the ensuing ...turned 42 yards ... fumbled on the ...d Pat Duyer ...the Cats on the ...y punted four

... the ball and ... yard pass play. ... the attempted ...d off by UVM's ... at midfield and ...he score. George ...the point after to ...inutemen 25-14.

...was an impressive ...ts as they evened ... 2-2 overall, 1-2 in ...nference. UVM's next opponent will be the Rhode Island Rams next Saturday. The game will be played at Kingston, R.I. at 1:30 p.m.

College Football Scores

Boston College 37 – Navy 0
Boston Univ. 33 – Northeastern 8
Connecticut 41 – New Hampshire 24
Holy Cross 14 – Dartmouth 3
Maine 29 – Rhode Island 19
North Carolina 45 – Pitt 29
Oklahoma 63 – Wake Forest 0
Rutgers 24 – Harvard 21
Williams 38 – Rochester 0
Worcester Tech 12 – Middlebury 7

Basketball Tryouts

Tryouts for the varsity basketball team will be held on Tuesday, October 15 at 4:30 p.m. All candidates should be dressed and on the gym floor at Patrick at that time, ready to play. The junior varsity squad will begin tryouts on Monday, November 4. Vermont will once again be having a junior varsity squad.

Girls Tennis Wins Three

The girl's varsity tennis team boosted their season's record last week to four wins and one loss with three winning matches. A successful trip to Castleton State College brought the UVM girls home with a 7-0 victory on October 1. In Thursday's match against Trinity, the "B" team won with another shut out victory of 7-0. To end up a full week of matches, the UVM girls met with Green Mt. Jr. College winning 6-0.

...ARIEL

...ZED!!!!

...WHILE THEY LAST!!!!

...D

...AIRS BILLINGS CENTER

...rom 10am-3pm

...FRIDAY 10am-3pm.

...ICE IN THE EVENING

...UPPLY LASTS!!!!!

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 21
OCTOBER 17, 1974

VERMONT CYNIC

University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont

"a Privilege to Live in Vermont"

Patrick Leahy

Leahy Hopes To Be Vermont's First Democratic Senator

by Barbara Frankel

If elected to the United States Senate, 34 year old Patrick Leahy will become one of two U.S. Senators under the age of 40. He will also be the first Democratic senator ever elected from the state of Vermont.

Leahy is optimistic about his chances against Republican Congressman Dick Mallary. Mallary recently criticized Leahy for not limiting contributions to his campaign. Leahy feels Mallary is not telling the whole story.

"Dick Mallary's calls for campaign financing reform is creditable only if they're based on past performance.... When Mallary ran two years ago, it was the most expensive campaign in the state. He's never accounted for that. He's said he's not responsible under the law. That's just what Richard Nixon said," commented Leahy.

Leahy also pointed out that, as an incumbent Congressman, Mallary has funds and resources which are not available to his competitors. Pat Leahy added that, personally, he is "very much in favor of limiting national campaign spending – but you have to watch the power of the incumbent."

Leahy has received hundreds of campaign contributions from Vermonters for sums of $100 or less. He also said he has refused to take contributions from organizations with which he does not agree, although he is now $17,000 in debt as a result of financing his senatorial campaign.

Pat Leahy believes that one of the primary differences between his opponent and himself is the issue of social legislation. "Unlike George Aiken or Bob Stafford, Dick Mallary has voted against almost all social legislation, such as the $2 minimum wage, price controls in gasoline and a decrease in military aid," he commented. Leahy added that he would have voted for all these things.

His solution to the inflation problem lies with "reordered priorities, balanced budgets, cutting out some of the $5-6 billion spent on space transportation and a substantial cut in the military budget."

Pat Leahy is especially proud of his record as Chittenden County State's Attorney, an office he has held since 1966. "Only North Dakota has less violent crime than the state of Vermont. The social climate is such that it inhibits crime," he stated.

Leahy feels that national prosecutors spend too much time in areas that are unnecessary, such a common drunks, pornography, consentual sex between adults and routine traffic matters.

He also noted that the penal system is "not rehabilitative. The courts take far too long."

Leahy commented on the recent Rodriguez case, involving a young, unarmed Puerto Rican who, while attempting to rob a store, was shot and killed by two policemen. Amid much controversy, Leahy ruled it justifiable homocide. He has been backed up on this decision by Governor Salmon.

"There was no criminal conduct on the part of the police officers. The news stories were terribly distorted," Leahy remarked. He stated that there had been a stakeout for two nights, as police were informed of a possible robbery attempt. When the two officers (news reports raised this number to four) finally cornered the boy in a dark, narrow alley, they mistakenly thought he was armed. Leahy added that he would not make the officers scapegoats in this matter.

Leahy made brief comments on other issues, ranging from the land use plan – "I would have voted for the federal land use plan. I agree with Dick Mallary on it... We've got too much bureaucracy involved in the state plan. You don't stop all growth, but you do it the best way possible to protect the environment" to nuclear power – "I would require the individual state legislature to decide whether or not to use nuclear power plants."

Leahy feels his strength in the senatorial race will be in heavily Democratic Chittenden County and in Washington County where he was born. He predicted: "It's going to be a close election, but I'll win." The groups that will make the difference, in Leahy's viewpoint, are senior citizens ("Mallary has consistently voted against them") and students ("They could turn the tide.").

"There are a lot of people who are turned off by the established way of electing people within Vermont... We need a Democratic senator," stated Senatorial hopeful Patrick Leahy.

News Analysis:

Land Use Plan Affects Vermont Today And Tomorrow

by Paul Cain

Vermont is currently trying to draw up a land use plan that will guide the state's future land management. Restriction on land use and the degree of property freedom landowners in Vermont shall have will be determined by this plan. Anyone who values and respects Vermont's land should be deeply concerned with Act 250 and the Land Use Plan it requires. It will affect the type of state young Vermonters will see 20 years from now.

Opinions about any law to regulate land are bound with emotion. Many Vermonters who have invested in land or have held land owning through generations strongly resent state intervention that will govern their use of that land. Others who see Vermont threatened with over-development advocate a strong, restrictive plan. Before any opinions are expressed here, let's look at the facts of Act 250 and the Land Use Plan.

Back in the early 60's Vermont found herself amidst a land boom. In 1962 an acre of woodlot land would sell for approximately $20 an acre, an acre with water, $50. Then, as more and more people bought land in Vermont, people saw their land values rise. The growing number of developments alerted many to the need for restrictions. In 1970 Governor Davis set up the Environmental Control Commission and Act 250 was passed by legislature to set in motion regulation of land development.

Act 250 created the State Environmental Board which has these three functions:

(1) To set up district commissioners to approve applications for development.

(2) The drawing up of a Land Capability and Development Plan to categorize Vermont land.

(3) The establishment of a Land Use Plan to provide guidelines and restrictions on land use.

The district commissions have been in operation since 1970. They review applications for development according to their effects on the environment.

The Land Capability and Development Plan was passed by legislature in 1973. This plan exerts no controls, only provides maps defining areas considered suitable for development. A copy of this plan can be obtained at the state's capitol in Montpelier.

A Land Use Plan failed to pass in the 1973 legislature. The joint legislative planning committee will present a rewrite of the plan in this coming legislative session.

Thus, the Land Use Plan is a piece of legislature required by Act 250. Whether this plan will be on a central or local basis is the heart of the present controversy.

A localized plan would leave land planning up to the local committees or governments. They would draw up their own plans to fit the needs of a given area. A centralized land use plan might restrict local use of one's own land.

Landowners have said that a state-wide Land Use Plan could render their landholding worthless. In effect, the state would be taking away their land. Such a plan would severely restrict independence and initiative in private land use.

Others believe a centralized plan is necessary to protect Vermont from increased land speculation and haphazard development. They argue the plan must be centralized to insure its effectiveness throughout the state. Plans drawn up by localities would be weak and easily influenced by special interests.

It is argued that without central guidelines the Land Use Plan would be too diverse to be effective. It would result in an assortment of land use plans without a general scheme or consistency. A large development could buy out one town though its effect would be felt regionally.

Vermont is the land. Laws affecting its usage must be judged with close scrutiny and with a bearing on the future. The type of state young Vermonters inherit tomorrow will be affected by the land use legislation of today.

Souther-Hillman-Fury Band

The Souther Hillman—Furay band will appear at the Patrick Gymnasium on Friday, October 18, at 8:30. Members of the all-star group include former members of Buffalo Springfield, Poco, The Byrds, Manassas, and The Flying Burrito Brothers. Tickets are on sale at the UVM Bookstore and at Bailey's. The price is $3.50 for UVM students and $4.50 general admission. Only general admission tickets will be available at the door. Their new album is available at the UVM Bookstore for the special price of $3.89.

Dean Of Students, Powers To Assume Post Of Assistant Executive Vice-President

by Bruce Maddern

Dean of Students, Richard Powers, will be assistant executive vice-president as a result of a recent administrative shuffling. Wayne Patterson, who is presently executive vice-president, has been anxious to share the financial responsibilities of the university.

Powers and Patterson explained that the actual switch has already taken place and that Powers has assumed some of the new duties of the office.

Changes will also take place in the Dean of Students office in a move from the Academic vice-president's office to the financial vice-president's office. Powers, Patterson, and President Andrews assured that the switch would not effect the philosophy or motivation in the office.

Athletics, admissions, financial aid and the infirmary will move from under the Dean of Students office to be directly responsible to the executive vice-president. Placement, Student Activities, Housing and Counseling and Testing will remain under the Dean of Student's Office.

The chief reason for the shuffling, Patterson explained, was his inability to handle the job alone. "I needed help," he said. Andrews agreed that Patterson could no longer handle all the financial problems of the university himself. He was spreading himself too thin said the president. When he went on vacation or was ill, the university was left without a financial officer, Andrews added.

In addition, the Dean of Students position was also becoming very large. Powers was spending alot of time with the four offices mentioned above. He had little time left for "strictly student services." Financial aid and athletics have become big business, Powers stated.

The new Dean of Students will be able to spend more time with student services on campus, Powers added. The split then serves two functions: to help relieve the financial officer and also to give the Dean of Students a chance to develop programming in the student services area.

Andrews notified Patterson in June that he could search for an assistant. This came after discussions between Andrews and Patterson as to the many and varied responsibilities of his position.

They decided also that the position should be limited to employees of the university. Andrews said that the position was critical and that "we just didn't have the time to organize an extensive search committee." He explained also that they were not going to compromise on the quality of the candidate should they find a less than satisfactory one inside the university.

Patterson made his decision accordingly six weeks ago. Andrews approved of the decision and proceeded to discuss the changes and the candidate with the Academic Council and Peter MacAusland, SA President. Approval was forthcoming from both.

Patterson and Powers discussed their new positions and also found general approval. Since the change is strictly administrative, President Andrews made the final decision, not the Board of Trustees.

The search for a new Dean of Students will begin shortly. In the meantime, Powers said, the state of affairs in the office is slightly disorganized. We have two alternatives, to appoint an

(continued on page eleven)

UVM Will Not Challenge Right-To-Know Law

by Margo Howland

Contrary to a Rutland Herald report, the University of Vermont does not plan to seek a court challenge of Attorney General Kimberly Cheney's opinion regarding the subjectivity of the University to the "Right-to-Know Law", Vice President for Development and External Affairs Barbara Snelling said Monday.

In the Saturday, October 12 Herald reporter Tom Slayton wrote, "Officials at the University of Vermont, informed early Friday morning that they were subject to the state's "Right-to-Know Law" governing secret sessions, served notice in the evening they will probably seek a court challenge of the attorney general's opinion." On Monday, Snelling and Dr. Wayne Patterson denied this report.

On Tuesday morning, the University of Vermont Board of Trustees voted not to go into executive session initially at their December 6 meeting.

Faculty, students, faculty committees, department chairmen and deans will all have contributed to the final decisions to be presented to the Board of Trustees.

The executive session was brought up for the portions of the two-day meeting which would involve discussion of individual personnel contracts.

On Friday, Cheney issued an opinion on whether the University comes under the "Right-to-Know Law." Cheney said, "...it is my opinion that the UVM Board of Trustees is a public agency within the meaning of the Vermont Right-to-Know Law.

"Title 1 V.S.A. Section 312 was amended in 1973 to include in the so-called Right-to-Know law: 'All meetings of any board or commission of any state agency or authority or any agency or authority of any town, county, municipal corporation, school district or any other political subdivision, or any committee of any of the foregoing boards or commissions...'

"These meetings are open to the public at all times except for those instances justifying executive sessions specified in Section 313."

Cheney then described the University of Vermont as "an instumentality of the state" adding:

"There is no meaningful distinction between an 'agency' and 'instrumentality,' the latter simply being a broader, more generic term than 'agency'. An 'instrumentality' has been said to be 'any commission, bureau, corporation or other organization, public in nature, created and wholly owned by the government for convenient prosecution of its governmental functions and existing at the will of its creator.' North Carolina v. Machovia Bank & Trust Company.

Cheney then quoted the section of the Vermont statute dealing with the Right-to-Know law, 1 V.S.A. Section 311:

"In enacting this subchapter, the legislature finds and declares that public commissions, boards and councils and other public agencies in this state exist to aid in the conduct of the people's business and are accountable to them pursuant to Article VI of the Vermont Constitution."

Article VI reads:

"That all power being originally inherent in and consequently derived from the people, therefore, all officers of government, whether legislative or executive, are their trustees and servants and at all times in a legal way, accountable to them."

Friday evening Vice-President Snelling issued a statement on behalf of the University. Snelling noted that Cheney "included in his opinion

(continued on page twelve)

"Peanut" Kennedy Advocates Tax And Government Reforms

by Randy Jansen

Walter "Peanut" Kennedy is the Republican candidate for the governship. He has been active in Vermont politics since 1960, lately as Speaker of the Vermont House. He is a life-long resident of Chelsea.

Kennedy's two major campaign themes are taxes and government. He feels that government "is not answering questions and thinking of implicating new taxes." Kennedy criticizes strongly the Salmon Administration. "This is an open government, and you can't find out anything. No way should that happen."

Kennedy advocates tax reform, but he emphasizes he will not ask for any increase in taxes and will veto any bill that asks for increases in taxes. He wants many tax cuts, especially the Vermont state income tax surcharge. Other taxes Kennedy would like to see cut are sales tax on home energy, abolition of old age assets, inventory tax and capital gains tax.

An important part of Kennedy's campaign is that the Vermont state government has grown too large for the needs of Vermont. Kennedy would strive for a five to six percent cut in state jobs, affecting 400-500 people. No one will be fired, says Kennedy. Instead, with the normal turnover rate (23.5%), some positions will not be filled from outside, but from within.

If elected, the Republican candidate will not propose any decrease in state aid to education. Kennedy would also propose an increase in allocation for social programs to the extent of 2½ million dollars. Said he, "It would be unrealistic that the social programs be reduced, because in this time of rising costs and inflation, the poor and those on fixed incomes are the hardest hit."

Kennedy offers UVM his assistance in seeking state aid for running the university. He wants UVM to "work with him to see what we can do about assistance." In regards to the university's financial troubles, Kennedy felt that "the university did a top-notch job in editing its own budget of ½ million dollars."

There are several programs that Kennedy advocates, which he feels will help the Vermont farmer. First, he would like to see a change in the tax structure so that it would be equalized in favor of the Vermont farmer. Secondly, he would consider abandonment of the Class I milk market in Boston. The result, says Kennedy, is that Vermont will proceed to manufacture milk within the state, saving freight both ways and utilization of the by-product.

Kennedy generally favors President Ford's approach in fighting inflation. Said the candidate, "It took courage and fortitude for the President to make the proposal." But he added, "At the income level at which the surcharge becomes effective, it adds an additional burden for Vermonters."

No large amount of out-of-state money has reached Kennedy's campaign budget. He has received no contributions over $1000 and the only special interest money he has received came from motel owners and other Vermont businesses. He will also receive money from the Vermont Republican Party. Kennedy is currently $30,000 in debt due to the primary costs.

"Governor Salmon has a couple of hundred thousand dollars for his campaign," contends Kennedy. "Salmon

(continued on page ten)

"Peanut" Kennedy

Democrats Hold Fund-Raiser; Delaware Senator Praises Ticket

by Barbara Frankel

"I think America is in a lot of trouble. For the first time in our history, a significant number of people have begun to lose faith in our institutions," commented Delaware's Senator Joseph R. Biden, Jr. Biden addressed a group of democrats at a well-attended fund raising cocktail party held at the Sheraton Motor Inn on Tuesday night.

Thirty-one year old Biden, who is the youngest senator ever elected, drew several correlations between Vermont's democratic senatorial candidate Patrick Leahy and himself. Leahy is 34 years old and, if elected, will be the next youngest member of the Senate. Calling himself the "only young person in the Senate," Biden said he would welcome Leahy's company.

The senator from Delaware complimented the Vermont Democratic party on its ticket. He teased Governor Tom Salmon on his "difficult" fight for reelection, adding humourously that "I was brought in to make it closer. We can't give the impression that Vermont is becoming too Democratic."

Biden also expressed his fear that growing numbers of citizens are losing faith with the political system, whether Republican or Democratic. "We've got to give them honest men and women who understand the needs of this country," he stated.

The speakers were introduced by Phil Hoff, Democratic Party Chairman and former Governor of Vermont. Hoff commended Governor Salmon, stating that, "Tom Salmon represents the future of this country. He has the openness and capacity to deal with today's problems."

Governor Salmon gave a brief speech in which he said his greatest honor had been his election as governor in 1972. "We've made some mistakes in the past two years – I hope we'll have the chance to make some more," the Governor remarked.

Congressional candidate Frank Cain noted that the press frequently finds reasons to criticize him. "However," he added, "They always say that I appear to be honest and that's all I ask."

In introducing senatorial hopeful Pat Leahy, Hoff stated, "You can judge a man by the people who surround him. Look at the people who work around Pat Leahy." Leahy announced that "We started this campaign

(continued on page ten)

Featured This Week:

Trustees Request More Funds....p.9
Greek Game Results...p.11

Table Of Contents

Arts & Entertainment . . . . . p. 6
Calendar/Announcements . . . . p. 2
Editorial . . . . . p. 4
Op.Ed. . . . . p. 5
Sports . . . . . p. 14

- CALENDAR and ANNOUNCEMENTS -

Parents Weekend

Several hundred parents are expected to be on campus this weekend for the annual Fall Parents Weekend sponsored by the UVM Family Associates.

The organization is open to all parents of UVM students and seeks to provide an opportunity for parents to become more closely associated with the life of the university, and most particularly, to help enrich student life.

Over their 12-year history, the Associates have annually made a variety of gifts to student and other organizations of the university, including such things as encyclopedias and magazine subscriptions, sewing machines and art work for the residence halls, and support for uniforms for the band, the Outing Club, and the Rescue Squad.

All the gifts are funded by income received from parents who elect to become dues paying members at $10 per family. The organization is separate from the Parents Fund Committee which seeks to enlist annual and special gifts from interested parents.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

Registration and a coffee hour for the weekend will be from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday at Fleming Museum, with parents invited to take lunch in the dining halls of their sons and daughters at $1.50 per person, or to take in the Centennial Club barbecue which will be served at Centennial Field from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

They are also invited to the Homecoming football game with the University of New Hampshire Wildcats which starts at 1:30.

The featured event of the weekend will be a 6:30 buffet at Wright Dining Hall where speakers will include Dean of Students Richard Powers and WCAX-TV News Director Richard Gallagher, who will advise on "What Every Parent Should Know About UVM."

Chairpersons for the weekend program are Mr. and Mrs. C. Howard Porter of Burlington.

NOW Chicken Dinner

The Northern Vermont chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) will meet October 18 at the Women's Center on the UVM Redstone campus. The meeting will begin at 6:00 with a fried chicken dinner. The agenda will include reports on the recent Northeastern Regional Conference in Hartford, Conn., talk force reports on current actions, and an evaluation of the information table at the VEA convention. The table will have been sponsored by the Education task force.

The cost of the dinner is $3.00. The business meeting will begin about 7:30. Anyone interested in the National Organization for Women is invited to attend one or both functions.

"To Kill A Mockingbird"

The Living/Learning Center Sunday Night at the Movies presents "To Kill a Mockingbird", October 20 in Room 115, Living/Learning Commons. This movie won three Academy Awards including the best actor, Gregory Peck. Showtime is 7:30 and 10:00. The cost is only $.75 in advance and $1.00 at the door. Tickets may be purchased at the Living/Learning Main Desk.

Liberty Union

A meeting will be held at 4:00 p.m. today in Marsh Lounge of Billings for all students wishing to help organize a fund-raising benefit for Liberty Union and to plan on campus election strategy.

For more information, contact Wayne at 656-3307.

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER
Downtown Burlington
Essex Junction

Educational Workshops

Beginning on October 18, the Church Street Center for Community Education will offer several full-day and half-day workshops and events. On Friday morning, Oct. 18, Mary Ellen Bushey will teach Macrame I. On Saturday, Oct. 19, Norman E. Hansen will teach motorcycle repair, safety and maintenance in the afternoon. Thursday morning, Oct. 24, Mary Ellen Bushey will teach Macrame II and on Friday afternoon, Oct. 25, Karen Kovacs will lead an acting workshop. All day Saturday, Oct. 26, Elsa Waller will teach non-loom weaving and the following Saturday, another all-day workshop will be taught by David Sokol on "What is Gestalt?"

The Center will also feature two special events. On Friday evening, R. Tinker Greene will lead an Open Poetry Reading and on Tuesday evening, Oct. 29, the "Women in Politics" course will sponsor a session with women candidates in Chittenden county running for public office.

To register for workshops, to receive a flyer or to find out further information, call the Church Street Center for Community Education, 135 Church Street, 656-4221.

"Women's Goals"

Information, referral, encouragement, and a place to discuss "Women's Goals" will be offered by the Women's Caucus of UVM at its Women's Center.

Trained personnel will be available Monday through Friday mornings from 9–12, beginning October 21st. The Women's Center is located at Blundell House on Redstone Campus.

For further information, please call 862-0902.

Quakers Pray And Hike

On Sunday, October 20, Burlington Friends Meeting (Quakers) plan to combine a meeting for the worship with a hike, climbing Mt. Abraham by the Battel Trail (2.9 miles). Friends will gather at 9:30 a.m. at 179 North Prospect Street, Burlington. Bring lunch and warm clothing. Meeting for worship will also be held as usual at 11 a.m. in the back of 179 North Prospect.

Robinson Offers Open House

Robinson Hall would like to invite you to its open house this Friday afternoon. While it should be a pleasant way to end the week – with cider and cheese – it might also be a good way to get acquainted with what goes on at UVM's Environmental Dorm. Stop in, 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., October 18.

Art Majors

There will be an important meeting for all art historian and studio majors with the faculty and Mr. Janson, October 22 at 4:30 p.m., second floor Williams Science Hall. There will also be discussions of the Art Club.

Poli Sci

There will be a meeting for all political science majors (or intended majors) on October 24 at 4:30 p.m. in the John Dewey Memorial Lounge, Old Mill. Please make every effort to attend as various issues currently facing the Political Science Dept. will be discussed.

Placement Office

On-Campus Interview Period No. 3.

Employers:

Oct. 29: Army Nurse Corps, 875 Central Avenue, Albany, N. Y. 12206 Seeks: BS/MS Nurses

Co., P.O. Box 500, Massena, N.Y. 13662 Seeks: Bachelors in Mec. E., Elec. E., Chem. E. for plant project and process engineering.

Sign up at the Career Planning and Placement Office, Mansfield House, 3rd floor.

Bicycle Club

All those who are interested in forming a UVM Bicycle Club, there will be a meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 22, in the WDW main lounge. This club will have both touring events this fall before it gets colder or snow falls. There is also the hope of forming a college team. If you can not make it, contact Geoffrey Rogers, 424 Wilks, Ext. 3448.

There is a meeting planned for the Children's Literature and Media Workshop on October 18, 4:00 p.m., in A162 Living/Learning. Anyone with interest and knowledge/skills in children's Literature, Media, Theatre, etc. are urged to attend.

Keg Party

Home Coming Fire Up! Friday, October 18th. 15 Kegs - Band 10-2. Tap time 4:00 p.m. Theta Chi Fraternity, 170 Spruce Street, just off South Willard Street. $1.00 donation.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17

Chemistry seminar, Dr. M. D. Rausch, University of Massachusetts, "Organic Derivatives of Cobalt, Rhodium and Iridium," 10:50 a.m. at B-112 Cook Building.

Mathematical sciences seminar, Dr. Philip Kitcher, UVM, "What are the Foundations of Mathematics?", 3 p.m., B-104 Cook Building.

East Asian cultural exchange presents the films "Father Pangeli," 7:30 p.m., 115 Commons Building, Living-Learning Center.

The UVM Baha'i Club is sponsoring a slide show entitled "Baha'i Houses of Worship" at 7:30 p.m. in Conference Room C of the Billings Center.

SA Films presents "South Pacific," 7:30 p.m., 101 Votey Building.

Concert by Prof. Malcolm Bilson, Cornell University, 8 p.m. at Marble Court, Fleming Museum. As a space is limited, it is advisable to reserve tickets in advance by calling the music department, 656-3040 or the museum, 656-2090.

Living-Learning Center interdisciplinary science program presents Gary Husted who will speak on "Beneficial Microbial Systems," 8 p.m., B-102 Living-Learning Center.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18

"Skillshop" at Fleming Museum on "Cataloguing." Details from Barbara Lewis at the museum, 656-2090.

Lane Series "Truffaut Classic" film, "Jules and Jim", 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. showings, Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building. Tickets at the door from the Lane Office, 234 Waterman Building.

10 a.m., Women of UVM Field Hockey Club practices at Redstone. Some equipment supplied: all are welcome to turn out in support of these athletic ladies. Phone Marion Morgan at 879-7677 for more information.

12 noon- 4 p.m., Apples fresh off the tree will be sold at UVM Horticultural Research Center off Spear St. (behind Nordic Ford). $2.00 for a peck of hand-picked and $1.00 per peck of drops and seconds. Making a pie? Stop on by.

4 p.m., "Friday at Four" open house at Royall Tyler Theatre. Open to one and all.

7:30 and 9:30 p.m., The Lane Series presents the film "Jules and Jim," a Truffaut classic starring Jeanne Moreau. Shown in Marsh Life Sciences Auditorium, admission is $1.

7:30 p.m., The Church Street Center presents an Open Poetry Reading with R. Tinker Greene of the Poets Mimeo Coop. No charge and B Y O Poetry.

7:30 p.m., The Bahai Club of UVM sponsors informal talks on the Bahai faith at 71 South Williams St. (right across from the Music Building). People of all races, creeds, colors and faiths are cordially welcome.

7:30 and 10:00 p.m., SA Films presents "Dracula", the original starring Bela Lugosi. PLUS... "The Mummy", also the original starring Boris Karloff. Shown in 101 Votey, admission is $1.

8 p.m., The Dept. of Communication and Theatre presents "Under Milkwood" at the Royall Tyler. An accompanying art exhibit by Lucy Evans opens the 16th in the Tyler Lobby.

8 p.m. to 11 p.m., International Folk Dancing at Southwick Ballroom. Beginners workshop tonight only starting at 7:30. Everyone welcomed.

8:30 p.m., SA Concert Bureau presents the country-rock band, "Souther, Hillman, and Furay" in Patrick Gym. Tickets are $3.50 for UVM students and $4.50 for the general public, and are available at the UVM Bookstore, Baileys and Mad Mad Murray's in Burlington, Colchester and Essex Jct.

9:00 p.m., Roundhouse, informal entertainment in a coffee house atmosphere. Held in Billings' basement. Sponsored by the Billings Center Governing Board.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19

Parent's Weekend and Homecoming 1974. Football vs. UNH begins at 1:30 at Centennial Field.

7:30 p.m., SA Films presents "Sweet Bird of Youth" starring the dynamic, inconquerable Paul Newman. Shown in 101 Votey, admission is free.

8:30 p.m., Dept. of Communication and Theatre presents "Under Milkwood" by Dylan Thomas. Royall Tyler Theatre.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20

Redstone Campus sponsors "Oktoberfest". Plenty of food, beverage and entertainment including German bands and folk dancing. Contact Bill Flanagan at ext. 2510 or Laurie Evans at ext. 4154.

11 a.m., UVM Horse Club demonstration of breeds, grooming, a display of tack and drill team. 15 horses, mostly Thoroughbreds, Morgans, and Appaloosas. Miller Animal Science Center.

2 p.m., Benefit project for Dylan and Dutch Elm disease. Music, poetry, and nature photography. A "tree problem" panel will discuss Dutch Elm disease and other municipal tree problems. Donations accepted gladly. Royall Tyler Theatre.

7 p.m., Old-time square and contra dance, plus pot-luck supper sponsored by the UVM Folkdance Club, with music and instant instruction by the Arm and Hammer Band. Admission is $1 and a pot of pot-luck. Student discount of 25 cents.

8 p.m., Dept. of Communication and Theatre presents "Under Milkwood" by Dylan Thomas. Royall Tyler Theatre.

8 p.m., The UVM Horse Club meets at MAT Lounge. All sorts of riders are welcome, further information may be obtained from Verne Barchelder at 863-5944.

8 p.m., Women of UVM Play Reading Group meets. Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" will be done. Guests and spouses are welcome. Call JoAnn or Bob Stanfield at 658-1499, or stop by their humble home at [illegible] Loomis St. if further information is needed.

8 p.m., Mr. Gary Husted will speak on "Beneficial Microbial Systems" for the Living-Learning interdisciplinary science program in B-102, Living-Learning.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 21

The Sociology Department will have a photo display up through Friday in the main lobby, Billings Center.

12 noon, Physiology and Biophysics Department Seminar, Dr. Burt B. Hamrell, "Comparison of the Mechanical Properties of Cardiac Papillary Muscle from the Rabbit, and the Hibernator," C-219 Given Building.

4 p.m. Home Economics Seminar, Mary Gerwig, advertising department, J.P. Stevens, "Advertising as a Career in Clothing and Textiles," 103 Rowell Building.

4:10 p.m., Botany-Biology Seminar, Dr. Edward J. Kiekowski Jr., botany, University of Massachusetts, "Mutational Load in Riparian Fern Population: Bioassay for Mutagenic Pollutants," 105 Marsh Life Sciences Building; coffee at 3:50 p.m. in Room 107.

5 p.m., weekly meeting of VPIRG, Conference Room C, Billings Center, open to all.

7 p.m., UVM Modern Dance Workshop, Southwick Ballroom, further information, Ext. 3240.

7:30 p.m., SA Films presents "The Nazi Strike: Night and Fog," 103 Rowell Building, free.

7:45 p.m., Scottish Country Dancing, 107 Perkins Geology Building. Further information from 863-4105.

8 p.m., Cross Cultural Program, Living-Learning Center, presents Dr. Dolores Stocker, assistant to the President, "Mixed Marriages from the European Perspective," Commons 115, Living-Learning Center.

8 p.m., Dept. of Communication and Theatre presents "Under Milk Wood," by Dylan Thomas, directed by John Milligan. Box office 656-2094.

8:30 p.m., "Open Circuit," a weekly half-hour program on WRUV, moderated by Deborah Janone, is designed to keep listeners up to date on issues of local concern. Tune in!

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22

9 a.m.-4 p.m., through Thursday, Navy recruiters will be at Billings Center.

12 noon-4 p.m., Counseling and Testing Center outreach program— advisors Roberto Rios and Calvin Chappel are at Conference Room C, Billings Center.

7:30 p.m., Lamplighters Meeting, Marsh-Austin-Tupper lounge, Pentecostal fellowship. More information from Sue Kulka, ext. 2952.

7:30 p.m., Student Association Senate meeting, North Lounge, Billings Center.

7:30 p.m., Counseling and Testing-The Next Thing present a special workshop on "Meditation, Relaxation, Centering," at Buckham Hall Lounge, with Bob Cox. Admission free.

8 p.m., concluding performance of the Communication and Theatre department's production of Dylan Thomas's "Under Milk Wood," at the Royall Tyler Theatre. Box office 656-2094.

8 p.m., Fleming Museum hosts a panel discussion of architects on "recycling buildings," in conjunction with their current show. "Reusing Buildings: The Design Process" will be chaired by Anthony Adams, chapter president, American Institute of Architects. On the panel, at the museum are Robert Burley, Colin Lindberg, and William Truex.

Also. Christian Scientists and any interested students are welcome to attend an inspirational and testimony meeting by the Christian Science College Organization at UVM. The meeting, conducted every Tuesday evening, will be at 6:30 in the Harris Rec. Room.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23

10 a.m.-6p.m., Billings Center Governing Board hosts a print show at Billings Center, Marsh Room. The sale continues, same hours, through Friday.

12 noon-1 p.m., Nancy Koch leads a workshop hour of relaxation, Marsh Room, Billings Center.

3:30-5p.m., International Club of UVM holds its weekly coffee hours at the Area and International Studies Center, 479 Main Str. All welcome. You need not be a foreign student to attend.

4 p.m., Tertulia, informal gathering of anyone who wants to speak Spanish and meet the Spanish professors, Building D, Suite 350, Living-Learning Center.

7 p.m., Fraternity Forum meets at North Lounge, Billings Center.

8 p.m., Living-Learning Center Interdisciplinary Science Program presents Dr. Milton Potash, Zoology, who will discuss "Water Pollution Problems: A Comparison—Lake Champlain, Lake Erie," 115 Commons, Living-Learning Center.

Conversations with The Genius has published Central Bulletin Volume 2. Manuscript one dollar. Remit to: Area 2, CWTG, Richmond, Vermont 05477.

MAZEL'S
Family Shoe Store
194 North St. Burlington
dunham
CONTINENTAL TYROLEANS®

Also Available In A 9" Boot For Men And Women
Tyroleans . . . the hiking, biking, camping, mountaineering or anywhere boots . . . You'll find 'em at Mazel's in Men's & Ladies' sizes . . . Comfort from first step to last . . . the boots for all outdoors and all seasons.
FREE PARKING OPEN DAILY 9 to 6 THURSDAY and FRIDAY 'til 9

DOMINO'S PIZZA
FREE DELIVERY
Fri. & Sat. till 2.00am
The Domino People are pizza people, Period.
864-7444 WILLISTON ROAD
658-3333 N. WINOOSKI AVE
SUPPER SPECIAL! DAILY!!!! 4.30-8.00 pm.
$1.00 off a LARGE PIZZA except large plain
NAME
ADDRESS
PHONE

DINNER BY CANDLELIGHT
Friday & Saturday Evening
Enjoy our specially featured
SHORE DINNER
without ever leaving Vermont!
Our Incomperable Clambake
LIVE MAINE LOBSTER
• Clam Chowder
• Drawn Butter
• Corn on the Cob
• Baked Idaho Potato
$5.95
TOGETHER SPECIAL
SURF 'N TURF Per Couple
• Half Baked Stuffed Lobster
• Top Sirloin Steak
• Clam Chowder
• Corn on the Cob
• Baked Idaho Potato
$11.90
Swinging Singles $5.95
The Black Cat
160 Bank St. 864-9723
Reservations Required

Cunningham

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Saturday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday 9:00 and 11:30 a.m., 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Monday: 5:30 p.m.; Tuesday through Friday 4:15 p.m. Also, Tuesday 10:00 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: Daily at 7:30 a.m. Those who wish to take part in group prayer at some other time of the day, are asked to call the Newman Center. Additional groups may be formed to meet at various times.

CHOIR: The 4:15 Sunday Mass Choir, under the direction of Lori [illegible] practice at [illegible] p.m. The [illegible] new mem[illegible]

BASIC: This lect[illegible] led by [illegible] Holland, [illegible] evening a[illegible]

JUST[illegible]: The Stud[illegible] with Fr [illegible] every M[illegible] interest[illegible] meeting [illegible] you, [illegible] Crowley [illegible]

"A [illegible] OLD DO[illegible] with [illegible]

Hillel Hous[illegible]

HILLEL

Open House - Saturday Oct. 19, 4-6 p.m. Students, parents, friends, alumni invited. Hillel House, 389 College St.

Sunday, Oct. 20, Brunch, 11:30 a.m. We will be asking 40 cents donations to cover food expenses.

Friday - Evening Dinner, 6:00 p.m. October 25. The menu will be cold cuts, sandwiches and soup. Come to Hillel and celebrate Shabbot with us. Food, singing, dancing and [illegible] $1.50 [illegible] expen[illegible] necessar[illegible] 1974, [illegible] 656-343[illegible] up res[illegible] House.

The [illegible] College [illegible] Friday [illegible] 10:00 [illegible] quiet, [illegible]

St. Anse[illegible]

Christian Volunteer Hospital Calling

On Thursday, October 17, at 2:00 p.m. there is a meeting of those people who are interested in visiting the hospital. This meeting will focus on the Biblical basis for this ministry, how it has changed since the first century AD, and what is the purpose of it. All are welcome to attend even if you are just curious. If you have missed the meeting and want to hear more, stop by St. Anselms and talk to Chaplain Appleyard. The meeting will be at St. Anselm's.

Morning Prayer in the Chapel

This past week our numbers grew to six or so a day. The group which meets at St. Anselm's consists of people who want to begin the day in fellowship in the Lord's name, to hear His Word and share praise and prayers. The tradition of Christians gathering together whether as a family or as a community goes back to our Jewish heritage and has [illegible] been [illegible] traditio[illegible] Co[illegible] This [illegible] import[illegible] discipl[illegible] There [illegible] wonde[illegible] is the [illegible] made, [illegible] in it." [illegible] Manuf[illegible] Choir [illegible] The [illegible] soprai[illegible] balan[illegible] anyo[illegible] if yo[illegible] to m[illegible] miss [illegible] by t[illegible] on W[illegible] the [illegible] are [illegible] Ana[illegible] Oct[illegible] invi[illegible] The[illegible]

UVM Gets [illegible]

The Veterans Administration in a new program is putting representatives on college and university campuses throughout the country.

The "Vet Rep" assigned to the University of Vermont is Russ Kell and he will have office hours at Clement House every Monday and Tuesday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. on Wednesday mornings. He has come to UVM to discuss not only V.A. education benefits with students but to counsel on any benefit administered by the [illegible] V[illegible] se[illegible] me[illegible] loa[illegible] edu[illegible] reh[illegible] tha[illegible] ex[illegible] edu[illegible] to [illegible] rec[illegible] an[illegible] the[illegible] at[illegible] to[illegible] aw[illegible] of[illegible]

New Redempt[illegible]

Wondering what to do with [illegible] all the empty returnable cans and bottles collecting in your [illegible] room or office?

Here's the answer: take [illegible] them to 591 Main Street, [illegible]

[illegible]amon[illegible] ensembl[illegible] for the [illegible] say[illegible]

PRICES START[illegible]

YOU ARE INV[illegible] PRESTON'S CH[illegible]

F.J. PRES[illegible]

*VM Horse Club meets at MAT Lounge. All e welcome, further information may be e Batchelder at 863-5944.
n of UVM Play Reading Group meets.
ning of the Shrew" will be done. Guests and
e. Call JoAnn or Bob Stanfield at 658-1499 emble home at 107 Loomis St. If further ed.
y Husted will speak on "Beneficial Microbial Living-Learning interdisciplinary science
Living-Learning*

MONDAY, OCTOBER 21

*Department will have a photo display up the main lobby, Billings Center.
ology and Biophysics Department Seminar,
H, "Comparison of the Mechanical Properties illary Muscle from the Rabbit and the Given Building.
Economics Seminar, Mary Gerwig, advertising
Stewart, "Advertising as a Career in Clothing
Rowell Building.
Botany-Biology Seminar, Dr. Edward J. botany, University of Massachusetts, d in Riparian Fern Population: Bioassay for nts." 105 Marsh Life Sciences Building; coffee om 107.
ly meeting of VPIRG, Conference Room C, en to all.
M Modern Dance Workshop, Southwick
information, Ext. 3240.
Films presents "The Nazi Strike: Night and Building, free.
ottish Country Dancing, 107 Perkins Geology information from 863-4705.
Cultural Program, Living-Learning Center,
ees Stocker, assistant to the President, "Mixed the European Perspective," Commons 115, Center.
of Communication and Theatre presents od," by Dylan Thomas, directed by John ce 656-2094.
Open Circuit," a weekly half-hour program on ed by Deborah Janone, is designed to keep on issues of local concern. Tune in!*

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22

*through Thursday, Navy recruiters will be at m., Counseling and Testing Center outreach rs Roberto Rios and Calvin Chappel are at C, Billings Center.

Lamplighters Meeting, Marsh-Austin-Tupper tal fellowship. More information from Sue

Student Association Senate meeting, North Center.
ounseling and Testing-The Next Thing present a on "Meditation, Relaxation, Centering," at Lounge, with Bob Cox. Admission free.
uding performance of the Communication and ment's production of Dylan Thomas's "Under the Royall Tyler Theatre. Box office 656-3084 eming Museum hosts a panel discussion of recycling buildings," in conjunction with their "Reusing Buildings: The Design Process" will be nthony Adams, chapter president, American hitects. On the panel, at the museum are Robert ndberg, and William Truex.
ian Scientists and any interested students are ted an inspirational and testimony meeting by Science College Organization at UVM. The cted every Tuesday evening, will be at 6:30 in Room.*

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23

*m., Billings Center Governing Board hosts a print Center, Marsh Room. The sale continues, same
Friday.
p.m., Nancy Koch leads a workshop hour of sh Room, Billings Center.
International Club of UVM holds its weekly the Area and International Studies Center, 479 welcome. You need not be a foreign student to tulia, informal gathering of anyone who wants to and meet the Spanish professors, Building D, ng-Learning Center.

eternity Forum meets at North Lounge, Billings*

Living-Learning Center Interdisciplinary Science nts Dr. Milton Potash, Zoology, who will discuss tion Problems: A Comparison—Lake Champlain, 15 Commons, Living-Learning Center.

ons with The Genius has published Central me 2. Manuscript one dollar. Remit to: Area 2, mond, Vermont 05477.

*NER BY CANDLELIGHT day & Saturday Evening
Enjoy our specially featured
SHORE DINNER
without ever leaving Vermont!
Incomparable Clambake
E MAINE LOBSTER
n Chowder
n Butter
n on the Cob
ed Idaho Potato
$5.95
-TOGETHER SPECIAL
RP 'N TURF Per Couple
Baked Stuffed Lobster
Sirloin Steak
n Chowder
n on the Cob
ed Idaho Potato
$11.90
Swinging Singles $5.95
e Black Cat
0 Bank St. ,864-9723
ervations Required*

Cunningham-Newman Center

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Saturday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday: 9:00 and 11:30 a.m.; 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Monday: 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday through Friday 4:15 p.m. Also, Tuesday 10:00 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: Daily at 7:30 a.m. Those who wish to take part in group prayer at some other time of the day, are asked to call the Newman Center. Additional groups may be formed to meet at various times.

CHOIR: The 4:15 Sunday Mass Choir, under the direction of Lori Routhier, meets for practice every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The Choir is still open to new members.

BASIC CATHOLICISM: This lecture-discussion series, led by Sr. Jeannine and Fr. Holland, is held each Monday evening at 7:15.

JUSTICE AND PEACE: The Study-Action Group meets with Fr. Crowley at 9:00 p.m. every Monday. If you are interested in this topic, but the meeting time is inconvenient for you, please contact Fr. Crowley.

"A NEW LOOK AT AN OLD BOOK": Scripture study with emphasis on the Old Testament is conducted by Fr. Crowley from 7:00 to 8:00 every Tuesday evening.

"VERMONTERS FOR CONGRESS": Political evening at the Cunningham Newman Center – Monday, October 21 at 8:00 p.m. Some of the Candidates and representatives for the Candidates, for the Senate and House of Representatives – from the Democratic, Republican and Liberty Union Parties – will be with us to share! Join us!

LEAP PROGRAM: A Leap weekend is a spiritual renewal weekend for young adults which attempts to provide an experience in Christian community. The first Leap of the year is scheduled for Nov. 1, 2, and 3. If you would like more information or an application, please contact Sr. Lindora.

TWILIGHT RETREAT EVENINGS for high school students are being planned. If you would like to work on a team or help in any way, please contact Fr. Holland.

ALABAMA PROJECT: A group from the Center will be traveling to Alabama to do volunteer work during Semester Break. If you would like to be part of this project, please contact Fr. Holland.

Hillel House

HILLEL

Open House – Saturday Oct. 19, 4-6 p.m. Students, parents, friends, alumni invited. Hillel House, 389 College St.

Sunday, Oct. 20, Brunch, 11:30 a.m. We will be asking 40 cents donations to cover food expenses.

Friday Evening Dinner, 6:00 p.m. October 25. The menu will be cold cuts, sandwiches and soup. Come to Hillel and celebrate Shabbot with us. Food, singing, dancing and companionship. Cost: $1.50 per plate to cover expenses. Reservations necessary by Sunday Oct. 20, 1974, either by phone to 656-3430 (Prof. Kahn) or pick up reservation slip at Hillel House.

The Hillel House, 389 College St., is open Sunday – Friday from 10:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. Comfortable and quiet, a great place to study.

St. Anselm's Chapel

Christian Volunteer Hospital Calling

On Thursday, October 17, at 2:00 p.m. there is a meeting of those people who are interested in visiting the hospital. This meeting will focus on the Biblical basis for this ministry, how it has changed since the first century AD, and what is the purpose of it. All are welcome to attend even if you are just curious. If you have missed the meeting and want to hear more, stop by St. Anselms and talk to Chaplain Appleyard. The meeting will be at St. Anselm's.

Morning Prayer in the Chapel

This past week our numbers grew to six or so a day. The group which meets at St. Anselm's consists of people who want to begin the day in fellowship in the Lord's name, to hear His Word and share praise and prayers. The tradition of Christians gathering together whether as a family or as a community goes back to our Jewish heritage and has been a constant part of our tradition.

Come by and experiment. This offering might be an important part of your discipline. All are welcome. There is something very wonderful about saying, "This is the day which the Lord has made; Let us rejoice and be glad in it," as the sun rises over Mt. Mansfield.

Choir

The choir needs a few good sopranos and tenor voices to balance parts, but it also needs anyone who enjoys singing. So, if you miss people with whom to make a joyful noise, or you miss hearing yourself, come on by to St. Anselm's at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday. We are in it for the sheer joy of singing.

The Associates in Ministry are offering a supper at St. Anselm's Chapel on Wednesday, October 23 at 6:00 p.m. All are invited to enjoy a meal together. The price is right. It is free.

Bill French will speak after dinner concerning his experience being both a businessman and a Christian. Bill's remarks will be directed at opening up a discussion in which people can share their own experience in trying to serve God in the context of everyday work and study. It's an important question when we consider the forces which pull and push us, demanding our time and energy day in and day out. In what do we get involved? How do we use our time?

The Associates, Bill French, Ted Strowash, Jean Reidel, and John Appleyard represent a wide assortment of denominations. They are looking for your ideas, so please come.

St. Anselm's Schedule:

Monday – Friday 7:15 a.m. Morning Prayer

Sunday 9:00 a.m. Holy Eucharist

Tuesday 10:00 p.m. Holy Eucharist

Wednesday 6:30 p.m. Choir

Women's Caucus Features Dicussion On "Rape"

"Rape: A Social Phenomenon" is the subject of a panel discussion to be held October 17 in Memorial Lounge, Waterman Building.

The meeting, sponsored by the UVM Women's Caucus, will start at 3:45 p.m. Featured on the panel, to be moderated by Helen Brink (founding president of the Caucus), are Meri Furnari of WAR (Women Against Rape), Peggy Luhrs of the Vermont Women's Health Center, Dr. Kay Schmucker of the UVM Counseling and Testing Center and College of Education and Social Services, and Dr. Johanna Shaw of the UVM Psychiatry Department, College of Medicine.

The panel will discuss what rape is socially as well as legally; how to avoid it; and medical, psychological and legal problems associated with rape.

Announcement will be made of a new rape counseling service – and the public is invited to attend.

A brief business meeting of the Women's Caucus will follow the panel.

Recycle Your Paper

Do a tree a favor, recycle your paper!

Beginning this week, Robinson Environmental Hall is initiating its paper recycling program. Up to now they have been collecting and bundling paper within their own dorm. They are now expanding to cover recyclable paper from Redstone Campus with eventual plans for recycling all the dorms at UVM. They're aiming for every bit of recyclable paper this campus can produce.

It's requested that the papers be brought in manageable bundles or in appropriate containers to the Hall where it will be transported each week to the Burlington Paper Stock Company.

They're asking that the papers be restricted to: magazines, newspapers, corrugated cardboard, computer paper, old paper back books, miscellaneous scrap paper (not crumbled, etc.), and the like. Sorry, we cannot take wax paper, kleenex, recycled cardboard, paper with scotch tape and/or stapled. (not yet, anyway).

If further information is needed pertaining to the recycling program, contact David Walker, at 656-3084 or Donna Blum at 656-3086. Thanks from Robinson and the trees!

UVM Horse Club Holds Weekend Demonstration

The UVM Horse Club is continuing with its student involvement by sponsoring a clinic and Parents Day Weekend Demonstration this coming Sunday, Oct. 20 at 11:00 a.m. at the Spear Street Stables.

Demonstrations by Horse Club members will include a Drill Team, preparing your horse for winter, braiding, lunging, dressage demonstrations and even a breed display. There are expected to be seven breeds present, ranging from Arabian to thoroughbred to quarter horse. All students are encouraged to come and bring their parents. It is expected to be a fun and educating morning. Donuts and coffee will be served.

Other activities have included sending Horse Club members to a show and a Competitive Trail ride over the past two week-ends. Riding and placing at the Horse Show in Jericho, Vt. were Fran Horn on her thoroughbread, Desert Rhythm, and Robin Severy on her Connemar pony, Irish Mist. Robin also competed in the trail ride, also in Jericho, doing extremely well and placing fifth. Also in the trail ride from the Horse Club were Kathy Raleigh, on her Morgan Glowgold, and advisor Malia Dean on Ledgemere Ethan.

Coming events that the Horse Club are looking forward to is a clinic by Edward Emerson of S. Strafford, Vermont. Emerson was recently in England, where he was a member of the U.S. Three Day World Championship Team. This year the U.S. won the 3-day World Championship at Burghley, England. The club is very fortunate in getting such an expert rider, and it should prove to be a very rewarding clinic. It is to be held on Nov. 3 at the Farm.

Also coming up is a film on eventing to be shown Thursday night at a weekly Horse Club meeting.

If there are any questions, interested students are urged to call President Verne Batchelder at 863-5944.

UVM Gets V.A. Representative

The Veterans Administration in a new program is putting representatives on college and university campuses throughout the country.

The "Vet Rep" assigned to the University of Vermont is Russ Kell and he will have office hours at Clement House every Monday and Tuesday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. on Wednesday mornings. He has come to UVM to discuss not only V.A. education benefits with students but to counsel on any benefit administered by the V.A. such as compensation for service connected disabilities, medical care for veterans, home loan guaranties, dependents education and vocational rehabilitation.

It is believed by the V.A. that this new program will expedite the payment of its educational assistance benefit to the approximately 450 recipients at UVM by locating and resolving problems before they become major. It is also an attempt by the Administration to make younger veterans more aware of the many benefits offered.

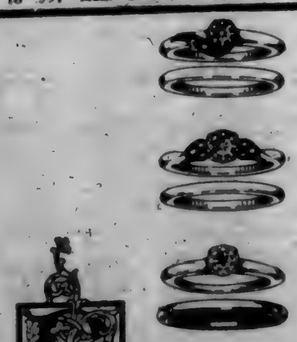
You need not have an appointment to visit with the Vet Rep here at the University of Vermont.

New Redemption Center

Wondering what to do with all the empty returnable cans and bottles collecting in your room or office?

Here's the answer: take them to 591 Main Street, behind the Burlington Dental Clinic, where a redemption center is now in operation.

Monday, 1-5 p.m., Wednesday, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., Friday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.



Diamond wedding ensembles—created for the girl who can't say "NO."
PRICES START UNDER $100.00
YOU ARE INVITED TO OPEN A PRESTON'S CHARGE ACCOUNT
E.J. PRESTON & SON INC.

karate 864-0414

Lectures . . . Seminars . . . Lab Notes . . . Source Notes for Papers . . .

NOW YOU CAN GET IT ALL DOWN

WITH A BUILT-TO-LAST 3081 PORTABLE CASSETTE TAPE PLAYER/RECORDER.

- Complete input jack panel
- Built-in microphone (remote control mike $3.75 extra)
- Automatic/manual recording level control
- Durable, high-impact polymer case
- Digital tape position counter
- Operates on batteries or AC (no adapter required)
- Battery/record level meter
- Automatic tape stop
- 6 month warranty

by BELL & HOWELL

A TOP QUALITY UNIT NOT FOUND IN STORES

FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY $62.50 post paid (including carrying case) Regularly $69.95

Also available in the 3080 model with no carrying case, no automatic manual recording level control, no battery record level meter, and no tone control. ONLY $54.50 post paid (remote control mike $3.75 extra) Regularly $59.95

We'll ship immediately when you send your choice and check to:

NORTHEAST AUDIO VISUAL, INC.
3 Chestnut Drive
Bedford Business Park
Bedford, New Hampshire 03102

CATCH UP ON WHAT'S GOING ON TODAY!

IF IT'S FROM NORTHEAST IT'S RIGHT.

OKTOBERFEST 74

The Gemutlichkeit Society of UVM's Redstone Campus is pleased to present the University of Vermont's 2nd annual German Festival – OKTOBERFEST '74. German cuisine, featuring strudel, sauerkraut, bratwurst, and sauerbraten, An Oompah Band and Beer Garden, Old world craftsmen and local artisans, Folk Dancing, Mountaineering exhibitions, Archery and yodeling contests, and in the evening the German Expressionist film The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari. OKTOBERFEST '74 promises a folksy afternoon of good feeling for all UVM students, parents, alumni, faculty and staff.

"OKTOBERFEST has become perhaps the largest universally observed ethnic celebration in America. Many people ask, why Oktoberfest? Why not Marchfest or Decemberfest? Thousands of this countries merriest Oktoberfest merrymakers haven't the slightest idea."

"The tradition dates back to 1810, the year the Crown Prince of Bavaria married Princess Therese Saxe-Hildburghausen. A soldier organized horse races and rifle competition in honor of the royal couple. The contests and festivities were so well received they were repeated on each of the couple's anniversaries."

Oktoberfest, co-sponsored by IRA & SA, will be held this Sunday, October 20, at 1:00 p.m. on the Redstone Green and W-D-W lounge.

Note schedule below.

OKTOBERFEST SCHEDULE

Jamming the Barrel: On the hour, starting at 1:00
Puppet Theater: On the hour, starting at 1:00
Chug-a-Mug Relay Race: To be held at 1:15
Mountaineering: On the half-hour, starting at 1:30
Tug of War: On the half-hour, starting at 1:30
Pie Eating: On the quarter-to-the-hour, starting at 1:45
Folk Dancing: To be held at 2:30
Yodeling: At 3:00 and again at 4:00

German Theme Dinner: From 4:30 to 6:30
Movie: To be held at 8:00

There will be Archery, Craft Booths, the German Beer Garden and the Oompah Band continuously throughout the afternoon. Come and enjoy the fun.

Heart Association Walk-A-Thon

Sigma Phi Epsilon is having a Walk-A-Thon for the Vermont Heart Association. This year's slogan will be "we walk a little longer so others can live a little longer."

The 20 mile walk through the towns of Burlington, Essex Junction, Williston, and Winooski will be on October 19. The walk will start from Sig Ep at 6 a.m. and end at the field sometime before the game.

Contributions accepted by phone anytime, 863-9881.

Contributions by checks can be made out to Vermont Heart Association sent in care of Stephen Emerson at Sigma Phi Epsilon, 371 Main St., Burlington, Vermont 05401.

Buy A Mum For Mom

Buy a Mum for Mom – Support your senior class. We will be selling mums Saturday, Oct. 19. Look for us at the football game. Supply is limited. To reserve a mum, call Judy or Sarah at 3890.

IF YOU ARE NOT GETTING YOUR PRESCRIPTION FILLED HERE YOU SIMPLY ARE NOT INTERESTED IN SAVING MONEY

We are a discount pharmacy and we sell at discount prices.

Grandway Pharmacy
Grandway Shopping Center
Shelburne Road
864-6869

MAGRAMS

1000 GAUZE SHIRTS Reg. $13-$16
SPECIAL $9.99
NEW PLAIDS
NEW STRIPES
SOLIDS– PATTERNS
WAY IN SHOP
HOME OF JEANS– IN

VERMONT CYNIC

Founded In 1883

Barbara Frankel '75, Editor-in-Chief
Rich Steinberg '75, Assistant Editor
Wyatt Koch '77, Managing Editor
Bruce Maddaro '76, News Editor
Randy Jansen '77, Assistant News Editor
Margo Howland '75, Feature Editor
Lissa Charles '75, Arts Editor
Peter Campbell '75, Assistant Arts Editor
Mike Schwartz '75, Sports Editor
Kathy Strauss '77, Copy Editor
Debbie Powell, '76, Advertising Manager

Editorials

A Troubled Economy

The problems of our troubled economy require more effective proposals than those offered by President Gerald Ford. His program does not directly attack the crucial problems. It merely nibbles at inflation and stagnation.

TAXES

The administration proposals on taxation should do more to equalize the tax burden. Ford calls for a five per cent surcharge on family incomes greater than $15,000. With double digit inflation, a $15,000 income does not go far in providing the necessities of living. This minimum level should be raised considerably so that the lower income groups do not lose even greater funds.

Ford neglected to close existing tax loopholes that allow the most wealthy to pay little, if any, taxes. If this is done, more than enough revenue would be raised for the other facets of his program.

OIL

The proposal calls for a reduction of imported oil by one million barrels a day and greater use of America's coal reserves. Although not calling for mandatory measures that control consumption levels, fortunately the President did not initiate higher gasoline taxes. This would have caused further inequities to lower income groups.

Solutions to the oil crisis call for greater international cooperation. Economic bargaining and less use of cartel-like political threats are needed to solve this world wide dilemma.

INVESTMENT

The President's new plan provides investment tax credits for depressed industries. The only specific industry that the government will take action to raise production is housing. Through mortgage purchases, this industry will be provided with three billion dollars for new construction.

The proposal does not attack the basic cause of stagnation – high interest rates. A policy aimed at lowering the prime interest rate is a more viable solution. This will make it easier for large and small business to acquire loans for investment.

The President also seeks to raise the penalties for anti-trust violators. This is a positive step to try to control monopolistic tendencies but stronger action is needed. Nationalization of certain large industries should be considered.

JOBS

Perhaps the area where most definitive action was taken is unemployment. The President will extend unemployment benefits and provide public service jobs to those who have run out of benefits when the unemployment rate is greater than six per cent.

This six per cent figure is too high. Public service jobs should be provided before unemployment reaches this level. At the current level of 5.4 per cent, there are still too many people suffering from the effects of unemployment. The administration should aim to cut the present rate and not have to alleviate the problems of even greater joblessness.

THE BUDGET

The President has again called for a balanced budget at a $3 billion level. However, he does not specify the areas in which the cuts would take place. Also, Ford does not direct his attack at the one area where excesses have been shown to exist. The defense budget has much waste that can be reduced through budget cuts.

The Ford proposals only provide a modest start at the world-wide and domestic economic problems. Indeed, stronger and more definitive action is needed to produce a healthier economy in the near future.

M.S. and R.S.

A Voice in Decisionmaking

The students at the University of Vermont need a voice in academic as well as financial decisions.

The UVM Administration has made it very clear that students as well as faculty, Department Chairpersons, will have an opportunity to be heard in the decision-making process of faculty and program cutbacks.

The Student Task Force on Financial Affairs has evolved from a meeting of student leaders with President Andrews. It is imperative that the students be heard in this important matter.

We are concerned with these dismissals and the processes of elimination of faculty and other personnel.

The so-called necessary evil of dismissing faculty for financial reasons must not be used as an opportunity to fire professors or instructors who are considered "radical" or who have openly disagreed with the Administration at some point.

The Student Task Force on Financial Affairs has the potential to be an effective sounding board for student concerns. We see, however, no mention of academics. We see no student representation on the Steering Committee. Why?

We again call for the immediate implementation of a Programs Standards Committee, containing both students and faculty (tenured and untenured), Deans and members of the Administration, to go over all academic areas in which a cutback in programs and faculty will be considered. The chairperson of the Programs Standards Committee should be a member of the Steering Committee as well.

M.M.H.

More Letters...

Low Caliber People

To the Editor:

The College of Education at the University of Vermont has been accused of accepting low caliber people into their program.

Low caliber by whose standards? Constapated history professors who have been eating too much status quo?

Teaching skills? to be a professor at a university teaching skills are unnecessary.

We students aren't paying to have the doors of liberation opened in our minds – we are paying to be fed credits and to feed the egos of those professional in verbal masterbation.

If the College of Education creates a haven for deviants to grow and learn – Right on College of Education and I'll always fight for that space.

Signed
Susan Lindkey
Deviant
Student in the College of Education

Pep Talk

To the Editor:

I understand, on good authority, that the remarks below are those made by Coach Falivene to the football squad at the close of his pep talk between the halves of the Vermont-Massachusetts game. Their effect on the players is reflected in the final score.

Your readers, I know, will be interested in them, and those who have taken courses in Shakespeare will notice the influence of this author on Mr. Falivene. His remarks, somewhat abbreviated and with expletives deleted, follow

"Once more into the fray, dear friends, once more,
Or strew the field with our courageous dead.
In class there's nothing so becomes a man
As modest stillness and humility.
But when the sounds of football strike the ear
Then imitate the cat whose name you bear.
Stiffen the sinews; summon up the blood;
Disguise fair nature with ill-favored rage
Let growls and snarls combine in fearsome noise
To terrorize the foe who seeks your ill.
Remember now the teams of old which fought
And won great victories for UVM.
No less than they can you a triumph win
For alma mater, students, and alums.
I see you strain like bulldogs on the leash.
Leap forward then and on the charge you make

Cry "God for Vermont, Andrews, and Coach Carl."

Sincerely,
George Dykhuizen
Professor Emeritus of Philosophy

The Cynic welcomes letters and columns from students, faculty, or any other readers. Materials for publication must be signed, but names will be withheld upon request.

Letters To The Editor

Amnesty

To the Editor:

The recent visit of President Gerald Ford on campus has aroused some political discussion among students. It encourages me that some have been shaken from their political apathy to voice opinions concerning government policies, even if I don't always agree with these opinions. I would like to refute an odd logic that I have recently heard expressed by many people. It runs approximately as follows: If those people who were drafted and went to Vietnam participated in the war and suffered the consequences, then those who evaded the draft should be compelled to perform some form of compensation for their non-participation as the veterans suffered and the resisters did not.

First, resisters did, and do, suffer. Many resisters faced internal battles and external prejudices as they decided to resist the draft. Some claim that these decisions were the result of cowardice, or of a lack of patriotism, or of "subversive" communistic leanings. Many resisters objected morally to the war or did not believe that participation in the Vietnam war could be termed as "serving the country." The welfare of the United States was not threatened, unless you believe in the Domino Theory of a Communist threat; rather it was Vietnam's welfare which was at stake. I will discuss the war's "aid" to Vietnam's welfare later. The act of resisting the draft caused many to forsake their education, jobs, and family as they were obliged to leave the country or to face trial and possibly jail. Even those who were excused as conscientious objectors often had to endure the labellings of neighbors as "Communists" or "cowards."

Second, stories by returning veterans bear witness to the immorality of this war. Many innocent civilians were bombed or tortured, ruining their bodies, properties, or psychological well-being – perhaps all three. The country of Vietnam was used as a chess board by government powers who rival one another using human pawns and sophisticated weapons of destruction to prove their superiority, in total disregard for the welfare of human beings or of natural resources.

Soldiers, civilians, officers, animals, crops, homes, and countryside have all been victims of the scourge. Results of the war include millions dead, children born deformed, paralyzed or crippled humans, disrupted families; lack of ample food or housing, drug addicts, and people demoralized by participating in this destruction, corruption, and destitution. It is difficult for people living in America to comprehend this idea; can we imagine our physical, mental and moral lives being threatened daily by the ravages of war? We have our bodies and homes intact plus many physical luxuries; we can remain secure while others suffer, due in large part to our tax money that our government has invested in this war.

Also, can you imagine shooting the stranger next to you because a man in a uniform calls him enemy and orders you to destroy him?

Most people already have become aware of the horrors caused by this war. In view of this realization, could you possibly wish one other person to have been subjected to the hell others have suffered? I feel tremendous sympathy for returning veterans, they have existed through a terrible degradation of humanity, a degradation of themselves and of all living that surrounded them. I could not wish that experience on anyone else, and I feel that the draft resisters' lives have been disrupted enough already by evading this war that never should have taken place.

Human life, welfare and happiness should be placed above power status struggles between rival governments. Resisters were obeying as many put it, a higher moral order, which is more important than obeying an order from institutionalized authority which you know to be morally wrong.

I would urge immediate unconditional amnesty for all draft resisters in addition to a shifting of the national budget's priority to focus on human welfare concerns, including education, medical aid, and social welfare.

Sincerely
Kathy Williams
234 Millis

Ford's Visit

To the Editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to comment on issues relating to the recent visit of Jerry 'Nixon's Revenge' Ford.

First, I want to criticize the editorial board of the Cynic for not printing David Ross' articulate and convincing article (see last week's Cynic.) on universal, unconditional amnesty with either your regular or special edition preceding Ford's visit. My understanding is that David's article was submitted way before the deadline and could have enlightened many people on the reasons we opposed Ford's phony amnesty plan. It's also my understanding that at least two other people (Roby Colodny and Jaimie Baum) who had background information on the reasons for the demonstration did not have their pieces published. When I saw the mediocrity of the special edition – with its white-wash of Senator Aiken's support-the-war role, with its lack of investigative reporting on the reasons for the demonstrations, and its wishy-washy high-schoolish editorials, I couldn't help but think that Richard "Capital Punishment" Snelling's free tickets to the dinner for the Cynic may have influenced your objectivity, if not your political awareness and conscience.

Second, Rick Steinberg's editorial in last week's Cynic left the impression that the demonstrators were all students. Representatives and members of PACT (People Acting for Change Together) the Vermont Alliance, and People's Bicentennial Commision, to say nothing of Veterans, might take exception to that implication. I argue that a good percentage of the people there were students, but by no means all.

Thirdly, some letters to the local newspaper by UVM students have been critical of the hostility and vulgarity of some demonstrators. My concern here is not to apologize or condone those actions other than to say they were not organized or encouraged by the coalition of Vermonters for Justice, the organizers for the demonstration. To lump all demonstrators together is similar to calling all Republican liars, tax cheats and war criminals because of Nixon, and racists because of Agnew and Reagan, and idiots because of Franklin B. Smiths. (Smith is editorial page editor for Fruit Press).

If I have any criticism of any demonstrators it's one that I have had of all sunny day, four-times-a-year-radicals, and (that is their lack of involvement and commitment to social issues on anything other than a very limited short term basis. My hope would be that many of the hundreds of people who were involved Oct. 7 (Joe Hill's birthday) would continue their involvement and channel their energies and efforts into building a political movement in Vermont by supporting and working for the Liberty Union Party this fall. In my opinion, this is the most meaningful and influential involvement for any social activist in Vermont. Some of us will be meeting in Billings Marsh Lounge at 4 p.m. today to see how we can help.

Wayne Bayer
111 Simpson

"The Law"

To the Editor:

I am an inmate at the Windsor State Correctional Facility.

I want to ask everyone to watch the NBC Tuesday night movie, on Oct. 22. The title of the movie is "The Law." It will show part of what people face in the courts.

It will show how many of us got here. This problem is nationwide, not just the state of Vermont or New York, but the whole country.

I am trying to do a survey on the pleadings, decisions, and sentencing in the Vermont Courts. I would like to hear from anyone that has any ideas or can offer any help on this subject.

Gary Pike
Box 26
Windsor, Vt.

Research Lacking

To the Editor:

Your editorial in the Special Edition of the Cynic was very interesting. I'd just like to point out a few discrepancies in your opinions.

First, I agree that President Ford, in his "long" seven weeks in the presidency, "has yet to do anything of substance." You might not realize this, but change-over from one administration to another can be a bit time consuming. The change of bureaucracy and presidential advisors is a slow and muddled process.

The problems of this country were not caused by Ford, but the buffets of these problems are on his shoulders. You seem to have been lacking in research. It was not mentioned that Ford has held a number of economic "summit" conferences and will announce his economic policy this week.

Your opinion of V.P. nominee Nelson Rockefeller also seems to indicate a lack of information. In your paragraph on Ford's economic policy, you say that the "need for public service jobs" is looming. In light of that argument, "Rocky" would have been a good man to have.

I'm from upstate New York and I know that Rockefeller's efforts at "constructing ridiculous, useless buildings in the state capital" was his answer at trying to satisfy the "need for public service jobs." Thousands of "poor hungry citizens" in upstate New York were employed in the construction of state roads and state buildings. It might not have been the best solution, but it kept a lot of construction workers off the "break-line." Instead, you contradict yourself by saying that a man who had tried, and, to some extent, successfully solved one of your economic problems is not fit for the V.P. position.

Finally, I agree that Ford did make "unwise use of executive privilege." In your next statement, however, you seem to nullify the fact that Ford had exercised a legal constitutional power vested to the president. His decision was a legal one. Why not, instead of bitching about the decision Ford made, suggest to UVM students to write or contact their Congressional representatives to make reformations on the limits of presidential pardons. Yes, you are working within the System. Changes, however, cannot be made from radicals on the outside, but can be made with working from the inside with progressive steps of reformation.

I hope that those who write the editorials will carefully review all information and points of view before bringing their opinions forward. The people who don't read editorials critically or forget to "put their hip boot on," could be easily swayed by opinions of others who don't have a view of all the facts.

Sincerely,
Jack Graham
420 Austin

"Starving Lawnmowers"

To the Editor:

Steve Wadsworth's remarks about feeding "starving lawnmowers" in last week's Cynic were more than just a clever marriage of the droll and the indignant with which to cap off the "Letters to the Editor" column. Wadsworth's disapproval of the application of lawn fertilizer is a perfect example of one of the uglier attitudes to have grown out of the psychology of shortages.

The reasoning goes like this: As long as anyone in the world lacks necessities such as food or shelter, it is positively immoral to expend resources on anything that does not directly alleviate their hardship. Such an argument is particularly powerful, and particularly odious, because it carries with it the "instant condemnation upon disagreement" factor. Its adherents can, with very little mental effort, transpose disbelievers into bloated monsters fertilizing orchids with human bone meal.

Allow me, Steve Wadsworth, to run the risk of that transposition. The ethics which see me through situations such as these are simple, like yours, and also like yours are based upon a reverence for life. You, however, wish to protect life in quantitative terms. I opt for qualitative preservation.

I would like to see a world as fine, as pleasant, and as beautiful as is possible for everyone who lives in it. As you may have guessed by now, fields of dead grass do not fit the picture. Neither do fields of apartment houses. Don't you see – as the quantity of human beings upon the earth increases, the expenditures of finances and resources allowable for non-necessities in accordance with your ethic decreases. As there is no limit to the first part of the equation, there is likewise no depth that cannot be plumbed by the latter.

First it is immoral to fertilize grass; later it will be immoral to grow grass. First it is immoral to graze meat animals; later it will be immoral to grow cauliflowers because perhaps they are a less energy-efficient vegetable than lima beans.

This is a world of grass, of trees, yes, even of orchids; it is also a world in which men may use their delightful powers of artifice to create buildings, art, music, literature. All of these things require energy, money, and food; all of them are luxuries and frills to the ethic proposed by Mr. Wadsworth. Yet to strip them away one by one in order to give the appearance of moral commitment to the winning of a losing battle against geometric population growth is to starve men beyond the powers of the worst African drought. It is to make them beasts, to deny them beauty, to make them servants of a gaping maw that will never shut.

Sincerely,
William G. Scheller

Be Frugal

To the Editor:

During a time of rampant inflation and academic financial emergency, it is more important than ever that members of the university community be frugal. One way to save money, forests, and specious faculty and student time is to call a halt to the wasteful, mass distribution of notices, requesting a reading in all classes or a general response.

Because many faculty members and students disgard these notices as nuisance mail, their originators would be wiser and more provident if they used the existing university-wide publications, such as This Week and the Vermont Cynic.

Paul Magnarella

VERMONT CYNIC

NEWS: Vincent Arias, George Georgaklis, Andy Morse, Audrey Rothstein
FEATURE: Paul Ajamian, Carol Dufalt, Amy-Catherine Fischer, Pam Hogarth
ARTS: Sari Bodi, Robert Deaike, Amy Fisher, Barbara Freedman, Joe Kauffman, Adelaide Murphy, Paul Price, Martha Woletz
COLUMNISTS: Debbie Adler, Tom McCormick, Scott McKay, Steve Rice, Elliott Freeman
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Joan Forsith, Karen Hill, Beth LeVine, Mark Valle, Daniel Mead ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Grancev, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Pam Gatman

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of the members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published yearly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and Business offices in the Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone: 656-0911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1883. Subscription rate: $8.00 per year, single copy ten cents.

Fore

by Paul Ferue

(CPS) – Each year at Indiana Uni 800 to 1,000 freshmen list pre-med as year only 300 to 400 of these students and from these few, only 3 out of 10 are Nationwide 40,000 students will ap openings in American medical schools.

than an A- average have little chan minority students with less than a B-admissions committee.

In the fact of this overwhelmingly 500 students yearly are leaving the c difficult task of attending a foreign accepted is not much easier at mos addition students encounter a raft of o
30 to 50 percent attrition rate during t
5 percent in the United States.

If the student survives the first ye entire medical course improve conside schools require a 6 to 12 month peri and advisors recommend that a U.S. should be to return to the U.S. at the transfer on advanced standing into an

Problems in Transf

The transferring procedure, ho transfer application test, securing le and making more admissions applica percent of 676 Americans successfull from a foreign to a U.S. medical school

TRUE LUST

interfused with actuality
the reality
the way we live now

the battered door
the zero moves
the string jumps taut
hieroglyphic stairs

your eyes go immediately to what the stain on the w who knows what now at last I am a m sweeping the valley with flame

the words keep coming condemned

A train is a dream. a dream is a t

solid houses

created right back at you and then I'm astonished in st

ALWAYS SOMETHING BI

the heart rises into the sky
and the petals unfold

what do I mean by
that?

the air falls away, the scal
tip, something is given off, a wave, vibrat invisible feeling

what
I was thinking of was a pe sensation that occurred in the middle of my

–like air, it was one of
I was breathing, & I re something was "m important than something between 2 things, I w

& now, I woke up, in an image. I tho

it was my life
that was more importa
than the image

of a heart rising into the and thus my heart ro

Wild Ki

(A view from the Ro

After many weeks of ob
Review Board of the Bench is re
Study of the area was co one-half hours per day, with lunch hour. It was unanimously the best views are to be had. T added attraction of the midd prime times for those in a hur
1. Of course, there is the risk period. For ingenious people can be an exciting challenge.

We have viewed a tremend unidentified sophomore. His his bicycle from the books pedestrians as a slalom cour sharp turn on the new fake co and people scattering, he pull true moto-cross fashion an forward motion. The noon-t for more. Rumor has it that t doing a repeat performance w

The short history of the and go. The halter top and warmer days. Those shor (thankfully). The boys on t weather hit and drive the ski tells us that the girls will Whew!

People are now startin
looking jackets and parkas, sitters.

We are confident that Spring. A warm front is re bringing with it some more
We have received news placed over the beach. The them as well as X-ray views views.

Good searching beach

...or

...esearch Lacking

...n the Special ...ar was very ...ike to point ...ers in your ...

...st President ...seven weeks ...has yet to do ...ance." You ...e this, but ...from one ...another can ...ssuming. The ...uracy and ...rs is a slow ...es.

...n of this ...caused by ...den of these ...se shoulders. ...een lacking in ...t mentioned ...a number of ..."summit" ...ill announce ...y this week. ...n of V.P. ...Rockefeller ...ate a lack of ...ur paragraph ...c policy, you ...d for public ...ming. In light ...t, "Rocky" ...good man to ...

...te New York ...Rockefeller's ..."constructing ...buildings in ...as his answer ...the "need for ..." Thousands ...citizens" in ...York were ...onstruction of ...ate buildings.

It might not have been the best solution, but it kept a lot of construction workers off the "break-line." Instead, you contradict yourself by saying that a man who had tried, and, to some extent, successfully solved one of your economic problems is not fit for the V.P. position.

Finally, I agree that Ford did make "unwise use of executive privilege." In your next statement, however, you seem to nullify the fact that Ford had exercised a legal constitutional power vested to the president: his decision was a legal one. Why not, instead of bitching about the decision Ford made, suggest to UVM students to write or contact their Congressional representatives to make reformations on the limits of presidential pardons. Yes, you are working within the System. Changes, however, cannot be made from radicals on the outside, but can be made with working from the inside with progressive steps of reformation.

I hope that those who write the editorials will carefully review all information and points of view before bringing their opinions forward. The people who don't read editorials critically or forget to "put their hip boot on," could be easily swayed by opinions of others who don't have a view of all the facts.

Sincerely,
Jack Graham
420 Austin

...rving Lawnmowers"

...orth's remarks ...6 "starving ...last week's ...e than just a ...of the drull and ...h which to cap ...to the Editor" ...adsworth's ...he application ...r is a perfect ...of the uglier ...e grown out of ...of shortages.

...e goes like this: ...one in the world ...such as food or ...atively immoral ...resources on ...ses not directly ...rdship. Such an ...particularly ...particularly ...it carries with it ...condemnation ...ent" factor. Its ...with very little ...f, " transpose ...into bloated ...lizing orchids ...e meal.

...me, ... Steve ...run the risk of ...ion. The ethics ...rough situations ...are simple, like ...like yours are ...verence for life. ...wish to protect ...tive terms I opt ...reservation.

...to see a world as ...eant, and as ...n possible for ...ves in it. As you ...d by now, fields ...do not fit the picture. Neither do fields of apartment houses. Don't you see – as the quantity of human beings upon the earth increases, the expenditures of finances and resources allowable for non-necessities in accordance with your ethic decreases. As there is no limit to the first part of the equation, there is likewise no depth that cannot be plumbed by the latter.

First it is immoral to fertilize grass; later it will be immoral to grow grass. First it is immoral to graze meat animals; later it will be immoral to grow cauliflowers because perhaps they are a less energy-efficient vegetable than lima beans.

This is a world of grass, of trees, yes, even of orchids; it is also a world in which men may use their delightful powers of artifice to create buildings, art, music, literature. All of these things require energy, money, and food; all of them are luxuries and frills to the ethic proposed by Mr. Wadsworth. Yet to strip them away one by one in order to give the appearance of moral commitment to the winning of a losing battle against geometric population growth is to starve men beyond the powers of the worst African drought. It is to make them beasts, to deny them beauty, to make them servants of a gaping maw that will never shut.

Sincerely,
William G. Scheller

Be Frugal

...time of rampant ...academic financial ...shore important ...members of the ...munity be frugal. ...e money, forests, ... faculty and ...s to call a halt to ...mass distribution ...uesting a reading ... or a general response.

Because many faculty members and students disgard these notices as nuisance mail, their originators would be wiser and more provident if they used the existing university-wide publications, such as This Week and the Vermont Cynic.

Paul Magnarella

...RMONT CYNIC

...ul Arias, George ...dy Morse, Audrey ...

...el Ajamian, Carol ...Catherine Fischer, ...

...di, Robert Dardia, ...Barbara Freedman, ..., Adelaide Murphy), ...ohn Wolett

... Debbie Adler, ...ick, Scott McKay, ...

Steve Rice Elliott Freeman
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Joan Fornilli, Karen Hill, Beth LeVine, Mark Vella, Daniel Mead
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Grancey, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Pam Gutman

...ions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in ...NIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the ...y administration, faculty, or staff, or the Board of ...d. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not ...ily reflect the opinion of the majority of the ...rs of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

...ished yearly during the college year by the students ... University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. ...d and Business offices in the Billings Center, ..., Vermont, Telephone: 658-0914. Deadline for ... is one week prior to date of publication.

...scribed in 1883. Subscription rate $8.00 per year, single ... cents.

Foreign Medical Schools

by Paul Foran

(CPS) – Each year at Indiana University – Bloomington, 800 to 1,000 freshmen list pre-med as a major. By their senior year only 300 to 400 of these students apply to medical school and from those few, only 3 out of 10 are accepted.

Nationwide 40,000 students will apply for 14,000 available openings in American medical schools. White students with less than an A- average have little chance of acceptance, as do minority students with less than a B- average, according to one admissions committee.

In the fact of this overwhelmingly stiff competition about 500 students yearly are leaving the country to undertake the difficult task of attending a foreign medical school. Getting accepted is not much easier at most foreign schools and in addition students encounter a raft of obstacles as evidenced by a 30 to 50 percent attrition rate during the first year, compared to 5 percent in the United States.

If the student survives the first year, chances of lasting the entire medical course improve considerably. But certain medical schools require a 6 to 12 month period of government service and advisors recommend that a U.S. citizen's principal goal should be to return to the U.S. at the earliest possible time via transfer on advanced standing into an accredited medical school.

Problems in Transferring

The transferring procedure, however, requires taking a transfer application test, securing letters of recommendation and making more admissions applications. In 1972 only 31.8 percent of 676 Americans successfully completed the transfer from a foreign to a U.S. medical school.

As there is almost no chance for students to attend an English-speaking medical school (Australia, Canada, Great Britain, South Africa) the language handicap becomes the biggest stumbling block for first year students. Advisors warn that those learning the language will need English editions of foreign textbooks to assist study and that students must be adaptable, self-disciplined, highly motivated and prepared to take yearly make-or-break oral examinations covering a lot of ground. In addition European professors are typically inaccessible and may permit no questions during or after class.

Some guidance is available for the interested pre-med student in the booklet Guide to Foreign Medical Schools, obtainable for $4 from the Institute of International Education, Publications Department, 809 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017. The booklet reviews application procedures for schools in 15 countries and includes comments and suggestions from American students who attended foreign schools.

In the booklet students are also warned to attend only those schools listed in the 1974 edition of the World Health Organization's World Directory of Medical Schools, available from the World Health Organization, 1211 Geneva 27, Switzerland. All schools listed in the World Directory are accredited by their own national accrediting organizations of their governments.

Because the many language and cultural problems seem insurmountable, the prospective foreign student has been the victim recently of a new system of enterpreneurs who promise students intensive courses of language study, orientation and a "placement" in a medical school. The Journal of Medical Education warns that "while most of the 'arrangements' appear on the surface to be helpful, the catch is in the large size of the fee levied by the arranger" – anywhere from 400 to several thousand dollars.

After Graduation

Once a student earns a degree at a foreign school he still must pass the Education Council for Foreign Medical Graduates test (ECFMG) before being allowed to practice in the U.S. or even take an internship or residency in a U.S. hospital. This test is given twice-yearly throughout the world and there is no limit to the number of times a physician is permitted to take it.

Recently, however, that test has come under fire by a task force of the Association of American Medical Colleges as being too easy. The AAMC task force charged that the present system for accepting the foreign medical graduate (FMG) into the U.S. has led to the creation of "a category of second-class physicians."

The report points out that the U.S. medical system has become increasingly reliant on FMG's who now make up about one fifth of the nation's 356,000 doctors. (American nationals make up only a small percentage of the total FMG's.) In 1972 more graduates of foreign medical schools entered the U.S. than physicians were graduated within the country.

In order to stem the flow of FMG's into the U.S. the task force recommended: a tougher medical exam to replace the ECFMG; limiting the number of internships and residencies made available to FMG's; the establishment of a pilot project to give foreign students remedial undergraduate medical education to bring them up to American standards, and more funding of U.S. medical schools to provide space for more American students.

The AAMC task force admitted that there might be a shortage of house staff at some hospitals during an intermediary period if its proposals were adopted but said it seems "inappropriate" that the U.S. with its existing resources should "depend to any significant degree on physicians supplied by education systems of other countries."

The clear message from foreign medical school advisors is that unless a student is extremely dedicated and willing to endure substantial red tape and language problems, he is better off considering another occupation.

TRUE LUST

interfused with actuality
the reality
the way we live now

the battered door
the zero moves
the string jumps taut
hieroglyphic stairs

your eyes go immediately to what you want to see attention

the stain on the wall
who knows what we know

now at last I am a man
sweeping the valley with flame

the words keep coming condemned like all of us to relative obscurity

A train is a dream. a dream is a train shooting stars

solid houses
created right back at you breasts darkening

and then I'm astonished in streams

ALWAYS SOMETHING BIGGER TO

the heart rises into the sky
and the petals unfold

what do I mean by
that?

the air falls away, the scales
tip, something is given off, a wave, vibration invisible feeling

what
I was thinking of was a particular sensation that occurred to me in the middle of my life

–like air, it was one afternoon
I was breathing, & I realized something was "more" important than something else: poetry the relation between 2 things, I was dreaming, then & now, I woke up, I can relate this in an image. I thought it was my life

that was more important than the image

of a heart rising into the sky, and thus my heart rose.

3/17/74
tinker greene

Wild Kingdom

(A view from the Royall Tyler Theatre bench)

After many weeks of observation and heated debate, the Review Board of the Bench is ready to reveal its findings.

Study of the area was confined to an average of two and one-half hours per day, with the bulk of it during the popular lunch hour. It was unanimously agreed that from 11:45 to 1:15, the best views are to be had. There are many fine sights with the added attraction of the midday sun at one's back. The very prime times for those in a hurry are between classes at 12 and at 1. Of course, there is the risk of not obtaining a seat during this period. For ingenious people it is a minor setback and at times can be an exciting challenge.

We have viewed a tremendous crowd pleaser executed by an unidentified sophomore. His trick occurred while he was riding his bicycle from the bookstore to the Green. While using pedestrians as a slalom course, he was forced to make a very sharp turn on the new fake cobblestones. With tires screeching and people scattering, he pulled out of his sure elbow-scraper in true moto-cross fashion and rode away with no stop in his forward motion. The noon-time crowd responded with cheers for more. Rumor has it that the UVM Evel Knieval is considering doing a repeat performance while streaking!

The short history of the Bench has seen various trends come and go. The halter top and the muscle shirt have seen their warmer days. Those short skirts are still in abundance (thankfully). The boys on the bench will be sorry to see cold weather hit and drive the skirts into storage. Our female advisor tells us that the girls will miss the guys in their neat shorts. Whew!

People are now starting to cover up, revealing some nice looking jackets and parkas, but disappointing the die hard bench sitters.

We are confident that this won't be the final view until Spring. A warm front is reported to be coming in next week bringing with it some more stimulating sights.

We have received news that new buildings will be built to be placed over the bench. These will have lots of glass and heaters in them as well as X-ray viewers for those who want summer type views.

Good searching bench sitters.

A View Of "F Day"

by Knut Rostad

"F Day" has come and gone and critics can no longer accuse college students of political apathy. Contrary to Scott Mackay's "Oppo Season", which depicted student attitudes towards the upcoming Presidential visit as "...and nobody at this post-adolescent playground seems to care," and a recent Time magazine article, which summarized the absence of political interest and activism as "... the overwhelming majority of students are far more intent on using their college education as a means of entering the American system than as a preparation for reforming it," there is obviously some degree of political interest at UVM. The amount of preparation undertaken to produce the demonstration and other related activities clearly display a genuine concern for the past, present, and future policies of the Ford administration. But is there a real interest in conscientiously working for the betterment of the system?

The disgusting and juvenile production that the vocal segment of the UVM student body presented at the Ramada Inn and Patrick Gymnasium epitomizes the results of over five years with a President who supported an irrational and controversial policy in Southeast Asia, and five and one half years with a President unable to maintain a balanced perspective of his role as President. Extreme skepticism and certain disappointment in our national leaders has produced a populace largely disillusioned with the system. They are often blindly and immaturely critical of its leaders, while simultaneously ignoring positive elements in government. Furthermore, they do not acknowledge responsible and effective leadership. Student response to "F Day" exemplified this unfortunate state.

The October 7 demonstration was primarily fueled by President Ford's pardon of former President Nixon. The justification for this pardon is best understood in the light of certain characteristics of the Nixon administration.

Soon after taking office, Mr. Nixon formed his famed "Palace Guard" which severely limited a workable relationship between the oval office and Capitol Hill. This action allowed the usurpation of congressional power without direct confrontation with party leaders. Nixon's newly acquired power coupled with the excessive pressure inherent in the office further deformed a realistic or rational self appraisal. From personally making most of the decisions involved in the conflict in Vietnam, to the impoundment of congressionally directed funds, the decline of Richard Nixon became more likely as his consistent questionable abuse of Presidential power became the rule of the administration.

The June 23, 1972 discussion with H. R. Halderman sealed Nixon's fate. His inability to handle the vast power of the Presidency eventually led to his irrational decisions during the two year Watergate mess. The Presidential pardon was not a 'perversion of justice' but a display of genuine empathy for a contempory who, once the dynamic leader of his party, now may be troubled with determining reality. This can be seen in his stubborn conviction of innocence until the last hour. Excusing a man who sincerely believes in his purity amidst such tremendous evidence to the contrary is nothing more than an act of humane benevolence.

Rather than protesting the pardon, why don't these concerned campus leaders organize effective measures to insure the disclosure of the tapes, and prevent them from being locked up in some vault in San Clemente to be destroyed by 1984? The destruction of these tapes, and not the prevention of the certain conviction of a sick ex-President, would be the "perversion of justice."

Yet, the nature of campus political concern, though seen in the ugly protests of President Ford's controversial act of compassion, is better exhibited by the student body's complete neglect of any acknowledgement of appreciation for the exceptionally fine manner in which George Aiken has served his home for 34 years, as a representative in Washington. Instead of displaying a positive feeling for a genuinely concerned public servant who is a leader in his field, apparently, UVM students would rather yell obscenities at the President of the United States.

In a time when so few states can boast such a universally admired man who still has a dirt road running outside his home after 40 years in public office, the absence of any official or unofficial exhibition of appreciation by the student body is at best a distressing and curious situation. George Aiken deserves so much more.

The past two administrations have imbedded into many Americans a skepticism in government which has aroused their most Puritan characteristic of self criticism. The result of this is perception distortion such that human compassion is lost in the frustrations with the bureaucratic and political jungle. It is a definite shame than any expression of positive feeling towards government is rejected as foolhardy and naive.

Thoughts that ramble prevent me from thinking.
Memories that persist drop me cold into warm pools of ecstasy.
The past with its tangible qualities frighten me from the future.
Lingering love drifts farther from my mind –
but sunk heavily in my heart.
Experiences day to day I allow to thrash at these heartcords;
Then sink back to rambling thoughts and gather up yesterdays' joys.

Danelle Travers
October 1, 1974

A Violation Of Our Laws

by John B. Wentworth

The following is quoted from Senate Document 92-82, The Constitution of the United States of America, Analysis and Interpretation, prepared by the Congressional Research Service:

Chief Justice Marshall: "...A pardon is an act of grace, proceeding from the power entrusted with the execution of the laws, which exempts the individual, on whom it is bestowed, from the punishment the law inflicts for a crime he has committed."

Justice McKenna, in Burdick v. United States: "Circumstances may be made to bring innocence under the penalties of the law. If so brought, escape by confession of guilt implied in the acceptance of a pardon may be rejected..."

Supreme Court opinion, 1927: "... (a pardon) is part of the constitutional scheme. When granted it is the determination of the ultimate authority that the public welfare will be better served by inflicting less than what the judgment fixed." And "a President can always have his way in such matters, provided the substituted penalty is authorized by law and does not in common understanding exceed the original penalty."

And again, the (pardon) power embraces all "offenses against the United States, except cases of impeachment. The power to commute sentences, which, as seen above, is effective without the convict's consent. It has been held, moreover... that indefinite suspension of sentence by a court of the United States is an invasion of the presidential prerogative, amounting as it does to a condonation of the offense."

"Offenses Against the United States: Contempt of Court. In the first place, such offenses are not offenses against the United States. In the second place, they are completed offenses. The President cannot pardon by anticipation, otherwise he would be invested with the power to dispense with the laws..."

Thoughtful perusal of the above and of the whole documentation from which the above has been excerpted must confirm entirely the conviction that Ford has violated our laws. He must be impeached forthwith for the High Crime committed in office in attempting to pardon Nixon in violation of Supreme Court dicta and in violation of our Constitution.

"The President cannot pardon by anticipation, otherwise he would be invested with the power to dispense with the laws." This statement is the crux of the matter. Ford can not be permitted to get away with pardoning Nixon by anticipation and to unconstitutionally dispense with our laws.

In all cases cited from Supreme Court record, the person pardoned was convicted first. There was a conviction to pardon. When no conviction exists, a pardon is entirely empty and invalid.

Furthermore, if "indefinite suspension of sentence by a court of the United States is an invasion of the presidential prerogative, amounting, as it does, to condonation of the offense," then it must be equally true that pardon by anticipation is a flagrant invasion of the prerogatives of the United States courts on the part of the president. Such invasion of our Supreme Court's prerogatives is a frontal, flagrant violation of the practice and principle of the vital separation of powers of our Government. This cannot be tolerated without damage to that separation of powers, with consequent damage to the whole structure and system of our Government itself.

Ford's high crime is no small thing. In view of the fact that his assent to the presidency is flawed to begin with, and in view of the heavy personal odor of his misuse of our Constitution, it must be incumbent upon the House and Senate to vigorously defend the prerogatives of the Judiciary Branch by immediate application of the impeachment process against the offender.

In all the cases cited a crime has been adjudicated in a court and punishment determined before the pardon power could legally be exercised. In the Burdick case President Wilson offered a pardon to an unconvicted person, but the pardon was refused. The reason advanced for the refusal was that acceptance of the pardon was tantamount to confession of guilt, which, in turn, is tantamount to conviction of a crime.

The establishment of the crime legally and by trial in court is essential to the preconditions of any pardon. Ford seeks to flout this central requirement of our criminal law. We cannot permit it, and the only satisfactory and entirely definitive remedy for Ford's contempt of our laws is his immediate impeachment by the House of Representatives and his prompt trial in the Senate.

Colchester Blackmailed

by Mark Sawyer

The Vermont Highway Department continues to exhibit disdain for local control of highway construction. The latest episode occurred Oct. 3 at the Colchester Selectmen's meeting where Highway Department spokesmen tacitly blackmailed the Selectmen into approving a project local citizens vigorously opposed.

The meeting was held to discuss a Highway Department project proposing replacement of the dilapidated bridge crossing the Lamoille River and the construction of a 3.2 mile Colchester bypass. A majority of the 60 people in attendance urged immediate replacement of the unsafe bridge but deemed the bypass unnecessary and wasteful.

The department spokesman cited the existing road's low sufficiency rating, a grading of its structural, safety, and service features, as the primary reason for the proposed bypass. They claimed the bypass would speed up traffic, reduce congestion, and lower an above average accident rate.

Many in the audience were unimpressed with spokesmen's arguments and several objections were raised. The project's $3,700,000 price-tag disturbed many people who considered construction of the bridge alone a preferable alternative, reducing construction costs by 60 percent or more.

Also questioned were the spokesmen's cost, accident rate, and traffic volume figures and the sensibility of such enormous costs for a few seconds in saved travelling time when the existing road was safe and uncongested except near the bridge. One individual doubted the project's compatibility with the Transportation Advisory Board's policy recommendation that "Priority will be given to spot improvements such as resurfacing and bridge replacement rather than relocation and reconstruction."

The public's queries were given vague replies or not answered at all. Instead, one spokesman inferred that forcing the Highway Department to plan an acceptable alternative would delay replacement of the bridge for at least six years whereas the project's approval would insure a new bridge's construction within one to two years. This appeared to most people as an ultimatum to accept the bypass with the bridge or not have a bridge built within the near future. The word "blackmail" circulated throughout the room and one selectman rose to voice his sympathy with the popular sentiment. The Selectmen, however, approved the project by a 2-1 vote.

The unfortunate situation in Colchester could have been avoided if the Highway Department had previously investigated the popular alternative to their proposed project. The most frustrating aspect of the problem however, is that the six-year delay involved in developing the popular alternative is due to the procedures of the Highway Department's Action Plan, a process allowing local community input in the decision making process.

Paradoxically, in Colchester's case, implementation of the Action Plan would delay construction of a needed bridge, forcing the town to accept an unneeded and unwanted project. One woman lamented openly, commenting "This isn't democracy, it's bureaucracy."

"... Just stocking up before the hoarders get here ..."

Alvin Ailey Captures And Penetrates Spirit Of The Audience

by Lissa Charles

When Alvin Ailey appeared with his dance company at a small concert hall in New York City for the first time in 1958, Dance Magazine called him "exceptional".

Other periodicals and newspapers have since described The Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater as "one of America's most experienced, most successful and most honored dance companies" (Saturday Review), and as "one of the authentically unique dance experiences in the world" (New York Times).

Anyone who attended the Lane Series presentation of this outstanding dance company last Wednesday evening could easily confirm these appropriate words of praise. For this group of twenty dancers captured and penetrated the spirit of its audience, and left them standing, clapping, roaring, begging for more.

Words like 'exceptional', 'unique', and 'vibrant' seem almost cliche or inadequate when used to describe the quality and execution of Alvin Ailey's innovative choreography. His multi-racial troupe of dancers exhibit and communicate depth and sensation with every movement as they interpret the genius of Ailey's art.

The program on Wednesday consisted of three fifteen minute compositions which incorporated modern, jazz, and classical choreography. "Blues Suite", arranged with a traditional series of blues tunes, expressed protest, despair, love, lust, and anger as a product of southern persecution. Through dynamic body contortions and contractions, the dancers related the agony of individual despair as well as the strength of their collective struggle. "Mass Brevis" a religious piece with choreography by Jose Limon, reflected the hypocrisy of medieval catholicism. The music, by Zoltan Kodaly, was written in Tempore Belli, at the end of World War II and was first performed in the cellar of a bombed out church in Budapest. The combination of this musical composition, dismal lighting, and rigid movement helped to revive the overwhelming state of superstition and oppression of the time.

Perhaps the most simple, but prominent performance was of Ailey's modern dance interpretation of "A Song For You". This composition, with music and lyrics by Leon Russell, was sung by Donny Hathaway, while Clive Thompson communicated this beautiful melody through an unending sequence of body waves, turns and extension. Thompson's every move was mastered by an invisible gauge of control as he melted into contractions and filled the stage with lasting impressions of grace and flow.

This was followed and concluded by "The Wedding", an African piece choreographed by Pearl Primus. Born in Trinidad, this woman is a celebrated dancer, choreographer, and anthropologist who has been honored by the Liberian Government for her authentic interpretation of African cultures through the dance". Set to traditional African drums and chanting, this dance tells the story of a bride who is being escorted to the home of her husband. On the way the party is attacked by the Demon of Fear who attempts to kill the bride. She is rescued, however, by the Healer and her Assistants.

This drama between the power of good and the forces of evil allowed for authentic ethnic dancing as well as variation and modern adaptation of ancientt movements. Mari Kajimara (the bride), Dudley Williams (Demon of Evil), Masazumi Chaya (his assistant), and Donna Wood (the Healer) did a superb job of executing these complex torso, head and arm movements, which together with colorful costumes, lighting and music, induced a state of fascination and awe within the audience.

What 'brought the house down' however, was not the finale, nor the solo performance of any one dancer, nor the whole of one single composition, but the total vibration and overwhelming sensation which these dancers emanated throughout the evening. The Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater did not merely 'perform' three dances, but employed the choreography as a medium through which the audience could journey from the deep south, to church, to Africa. Thus it achieved the ultimate in dance theater; the creation of a total experience in sensory perception.

After attending the Alvin Ailey Dance concert and feeling glory in the beauty of the human being, I drove on campus the following morning to be reminded again of human ugliness. A work of art created by David Dobson over a period of two months and placed on the green for all to enjoy had been desecrated again; the second time in two weeks.

One wonders why some beings are so unfortunate that they commit such miserable acts.

Please return the stolen pieces to the sculpture. If not, I hope Dave leaves the sculpture as it is even if finally only the supporting pipe is left standing.

Truffaut's "Jules And Jim" To Distinguish Lane Films

Jules and Jim, hailed by critic Pauline Kael as one of "the great lyric achievements of the screen," will be presented by the Lane Film Society on Friday evening, Oct. 18, in the Truffaut Classic Movies series.

There will be two showings of the 1961 French classic: at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m., in Marsh Life Sciences Building Auditorium. The movie is in black and white, is subtitled, and runs for 104 minutes.

The distinguished French director Francois Truffaut both directed the film and adapted the story, with the assistance of Jean Grualt, from the novel by Henri-Pierre Roche.

Featured in the cast are Jeanne Moreau as Kathe, Oskar Werner as Jules, and Henri Serre as Jim. Portraying lesser roles are Marie Dubois and Vanno

(continued on page seven)

Oral Interpretation Festival Encourages Creativity

by Lissa Charles

Last Friday, the Communications and Theatre Department welcomed three schools to UVM's first "Innovative Oral Interpretation Festival." Coordinated by four C & T students, the festival hosted representatives from Emerson College, University of Rhode Island, and Clarion State College.

"This was just the right number of schools for a one-day festival," commented Dr. Wynn Caldwell, the faculty sponsor from U.R.I. "Sometimes it gets so hectic and dehumanizing when too many schools get together at once."

The purpose of the festival was to encourage creativity, experimentation, and innovation within the performing art of Oral Interpretation of Literature. The coordinators, under the sponsorship of Jennifer Cover, were also concerned about creating and maintaining a relaxed, personal environment where students could not only perform their recitations, but also discuss them in an informal manner. Visiting schools were encouraged to prepare one fifteen minute program using any type of literature, music, dance, or mime.

The first group to perform was from Emerson College. Comprised of four students, this group presented two student-directed programs which demonstrated the technique of counterpoint projection. The first was a humorous presentation which incorporated segments of several literary works written in old English. The theme, which was very well executed, revolved around the trials and tribulations of courtship. The second program combined music, singing and a recitation from Tennessee William's A Streetcar Named Desire – all centered around the theme of loneliness.

The University of Vermont was represented by two groups of students: one from the advanced Oral Interpretation class, and one from "Living/Literature." The first group of seven students presented readings which focused on the theme of women's roles in society, while the second group of eleven students performed a series of ancient ritualistic and tribal ceremonies.

Both the University of Rhode Island and Clarion State College entertained their audiences with full-length stories. The former incorporated mime, dance, drums, and flute music to illustrate an old Indian tale which was narrated verbatim by two of the eleven students. Clarion State, however, told two very humorous children's stories, using costumes, props and piano music.

In addition to sharing these programs with one another, students and faculty sponsors met in the commons of the Living/Learning Center to discuss and critique individual performances, as well as exchange ideas on innovative Oral Interpretation. After the day's activities, everyone met again for a social gathering with wine and cheese. Later in the evening, students and faculty attended the festival banquet, and a complimentary run-through rehearsal of Under Milkwood at the Royall Tyler Theatre.

"I loved meeting the people," exclaimed one studer from C.S.C. "And I loved seeing them perform. Everyone was so personal and friendly – it made the whole festival a pure delight. I really learned a lot about my own performing technique and what kinds of innovative ideas work in Oral Interp."

To my the least, UVM's first 'Innovative Oral Interpretation Festival" was a success. This was due not necessarily to the high quality performances, or smooth-running schedule, but to the relaxed, non-competitive, friendly environment where students could create, perform, and exchange ideas about Oral Interpretation of Literature.

Liberty Union Famed

Bonnie Raitt, once the exclusive singing pride of Cambridge and Boston, and now the entire country's, will be at Burlington Memorial Auditorium Friday, October 25, for an exclusive New England performance to benefit the Liberty Union.

Bonnie will be backed by a full band for her Burlington concert which is expected to include a number of musical dignitaries. Her back-up band will be one especially assembled for her Burlington engagement due to the fact that she is presently on tour with Jackson Browne and sharing some of his Backing personnel. Freebo, Bonnie's bass player, will naturally be present in Burlington.

Bonnie Raitt has been compared often to Janis Joplin for her gutsy delivery and to Joni Mitchell for her soothing qualities.

Bonnie, in her mid-twenties, is the daughter of John Raitt, and is currently soaring up the charts with the best-selling album Streetlights just released on Warner Brothers.

Native Verm

by Robert DeNike

Tinker Greene is a 33 year old native Vermont poet who directs and moderates monthly poetry readings in downtown Burlington. He is currently one of four Creative Writing Instructors under the Experimental Program and manager of personnel for the Little Professor Book Center on Church Street.

Tinker came to UVM in 1969 after working six years for a New York publishing company and graduated with the class of '72, earning a B.A. degree in English.

During his years of study, he helped create the literary magazine The News and Weather, still published today. Through Tinker's efforts, the magazine took shape from the English department's previous unsuccessful and unpopular ventures in publishing a collection of students' poems. In 1972, the periodical was awarded second prize (ranking alongside the Columbia Review) in a contest sponsored by the Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines. Tinker was also awarded at that time recognition as "outstanding senior" for his contributions in reviving the literary scene at UVM and as editor of The News and Weather.

With the $200 second prize, Tinker founded the Poets Mimeo Cooperative which sponsors monthly poetry readings at the Church Street Center for Community Education (in the old firehouse). "I originally founded the organization", said Tinker, "as a means of obtaining feedback and reaction from the public on my work as a poet. This is an important

Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS

PLAZA I & II
DORSET ST
Flesh Gordon
Mixed Company

Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
Williston Road
I King of Hearts
II Animal Crackers

State Theatre
Bank Street
Gone With The Wind

Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
That's Entertainment
Juggernaut

Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
2001: A Space Odessy
The Longest Yard

Flynn Theatre
Main Street
11:30 Fri & Sat Jerimiah Johnson
Andy Warhol's Trash

call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights
or special showings

STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS ARE NOW GOOD AT
PLAZA I & II
ON DORSET ST

SA FILMS PRESENTS
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17
SOUTH PACIFIC
7:30 – 101 Votey – Free
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18
DRACULA
THE MUMMY
7:30 & 10:00 – 101 Votey – $1
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19
SWEET BIRD OF YOUTH
7:30 – 101 Votey – Free
MONDAY, OCTOBER 21
THE NAZIS STRIKE
NIGHT AND FOG
7:30 – 103 Rowell – Free

DOLLAR SHOWING
Thurs. at 4:00 PM
GONE WITH THE WIND
shown at
Merrill's Showcase on Williston Road
TICKETS MAY BE OBTAINED FROM BILLINGS OR AT THE THEATRE

THE SILVER KEG
★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★
MONDAY-LADIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY - ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
WEDNESDAY
UVM NITE ★FREE★ WITH UVM I.D.
(MUST BE 18 YEARS OF AGE)
THURSDAY - ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★ FEATURING ★
OCT. 14 - 20 MOLLY McGREGOR
OCT. 21 - 27 SPOON FEATHER

FRESH GROUND
Coffee House
The International food and a casual Atmosphere at prices you can afford.
Mon-Thurs - 11:30 - 10p.m
Fri-Sat-Noon - midnight

THE SOUTHER-HILLMAN-FURAY BAND
Featuring
John David Souther - Solo Artist, producer, and songwriter for the Eagles.
Chris Hillman - From the Byrds
Richie Furay - Formerly of Poco and Buffalo Springfield.
Paul Harris and Al Perkins - from Manassas.
8.30 PM. FRIDAY OCTOBER 18th
UVM Patrick Gym

the ultimate trip
A JOURNEY THROUGH OUTER SPACE OF SIGHT AND SOUND. IT IS THE MAXIMUM VISUAL EXPERIENCE THROUGH A MASSIVE WALL OF SOUND. THE VOYAGE IS MENTAL PHYSICAL EMOTIONAL AND UNUSUAL
7 & 9:45
2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY
IT'S SURVIVAL OF THE FIERCEST, AND THE FUNNIEST.
BURT REYNOLDS
THE LONGEST YARD
EDDIE ALBERT
7 & 9:15
BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2
PHONE 862 5070 ANYTIME

"Jules And Jim" stinguish Lane Films

hailed by as one of ievements of presented Society on 18, in the ovies series. o showings h classic at ., in Marsh Building movie is in subtitled, and runs for 104 minutes.

The distinguished French director Francois Truffaut both directed the film and adapted the story, with the assistance of Jean Gruult, from the novel by Henri-Pierre Roche.

Featured in the cast are Jeanne Moreau as Kathe, Oskar Werner as Jules, and Henri Serre as Jim. Portraying lesser roles are Marie Dubois and Vanno

(continued on page seven)

ourages Creativity

on College, students, this ted two programs rated the counterpoint first was a tation which egments of rks written in theme, which ll executed, the trials and courtship. The m combined nd a recitation William's A Desire – all the theme of y of Vermont by two groups ne from the Interpretation one from

S ★★

ALES FREE 5 ★★★★★★ UVM I.D. ★ ★★★★★★ 45

OR R

"Living/Literature." The first group of seven students presented readings which focused on the theme of women's roles in society, while the second group of eleven students performed a series of ancient ritualistic and tribal ceremonies.

Both the University of Rhode Island and Clarion State College entertained their audiences with full-length stories. The former incorporated mime, dance, drums, and flute music to illustrate an old Indian tale which was narrated verbatim by two of the eleven students. Clarion State, however, told two very humorous children's stories, using costumes, props and piano music.

In addition to sharing these programs with one another, students and faculty sponsors met in the commons of the Living/Learning Center to discuss and critique individual performances, as well as exchange ideas on innovative Oral Interpretation. After the day's activities, everyone met again for a social gathering with wine and cheese. Later in the evening, students and faculty attended the festival banquet, and a complimentary run-through rehearsal of Under Milkwood at the Royall Tyler Theatre.

"I loved meeting the people," exclaimed one studer from C.S.C. "And I loved seeing them perform. Everyone was so personal and friendly – it made the whole festival a pure delight. I really learned a lot about my own performing technique – and what kinds of innovative ideas work in Oral Interp."

To say the least, UVM's first "Innovative Oral Interpretation Festival" was a success. This was due not necessarily to the high quality performances, or smooth-running schedule, but to the relaxed, non-competitive, friendly environment where students could create, perform, and exchange ideas about Oral Interpretation of Literature.

HILLMAN-FURAY
ND

Solo Artist, producer, and he Eagles.

the Byrds rly of Poco and Springfield.
erkins - from Manassas.
Y OCTOBER 18th
Patrick Gym

Liberty Union To Present Famed Singer Bonnie Raitt

Bonnie Raitt, once the exclusive singing pride of Cambridge and Boston, and now the entire country's, will be at Burlington Memorial Auditorium Friday, October 25, for an exclusive New England performance to benefit the Liberty Union.

Bonnie will be backed by a full band for her Burlington concert which is expected to include a number of musical dignitaries. Her back-up band will be one especially assembled for her Burlington engagement due to the fact that she is presently on tour with Jackson Browne and sharing some of his backing personnel. Fresbo, Bonnie's bass player, will naturally be present in Burlington.

Bonnie Raitt has been compared often to Janis Joplin for her gutsy delivery and to Joni Mitchell for her soothing qualities.

Bonnie, in her mid-twenties, is the daughter of John Raitt, and is currently soaring up the charts with the best-selling album Streetlights just released on Warner Brothers.

Opening act for "An Evening with Bonnie Raitt" will be the six piece Windy Mountain Band.

Tickets are only $3.50 in advance, and are available at Bailey's Music Rooms.

Impressionist David Frye To Humor UVM Audience

Richard Nixon, Nelson Rockefeller, Marlon Brando, Billy Graham and more will be appearing at UVM in the form of comic impressionist, David Frye. "An Evening with David Frye", Thursday, October 24th at 7:30 p.m., is being presented by the SA Speakers Bureau at the UVM Patrick Gym.

Frye performed before an enthusiastic crowd of 5,500 people at the University of Florida last Thursday where he did a series of impressions including Gerry Ford, which Frye said that he hasn't perfected yet. He also showed a film consisting of shots of Nixon in humorous situations. Reportedly Frye has a running commentary that goes with this film and is expected to make this part of his performance next Thursday.

The impression for which Frye is most noted and the one that has been the mainstay of his act in the past is that of Richard Nixon. Nixon's resignation from office has changed Frye's act some but apparently has not changed his fascination with the man. In January 28, 1974 issue of Newsweek, Frye said, "Frankly, I would prefer him to stay in office. He's the most effective impression I've ever had." Nixon impressions are expected to occupy some of Frye's evening here.

The response to Frye's act has not always been favorable, however; some people have felt personally affronted by what he does. One man is reported to have approached Frye after one of his performances and said, "You don't offend me, you offend my country." Commercials for his latest album were banned from stations in New York City on all three networks.

Frye rehearses his characters constantly and rewrites his act to keep in touch with current events. He has been performing in nightclubs and has recently begun a tour of colleges and universities.

Tickets for the show may be purchased at the Student Activities office in Billings Center. The price is $2 general admission, and $1. with UVM ID.

..."Jules And Jim"

(continued from page six)

Urbino.

The film tells the story of a friendship between Jules, who is German, and Jim, who is French, and their twenty-year love for the same woman, Kathe. With a mysterious smile, she becomes the symbol of all women to the two men: for both of them she is sensuous, capricious, exhuberant, full of life.

The plot involves the relationship between the two men and the one woman, revealing in the full the character of a modern woman, who believes that no commitment is forever and only death is final.

Critics have highly praised this movie, which established Truffaut as the leader of French New Wave directors. Pauline Kael said that Jules and Jim is "the best movie ever made about what most of us think of as the F. Scott Fitzgerald period."

The movie critic of the New Yorker said that he was "so taken with the beauty and novelty and wit and loving high spirits" of Francois Truffaut's Jules and Jim that he "scarcely knew where to begin in singing its praises." "I shall look forward," he continued; "to seeing this picture at least once or twice a year for years to come."

And the New York Post reviewer wrote that Jules and Jim is "devoted to breaking new emotional ground – Truffaut's unique tale. He is truly a creator of the world he sees and knows. This one is a beautiful thing."

The emotional content of the film is largely carried in the musical score, which composer Georges Delarue has constructed as a dominant element in the film.

Tickets for Jules and Jim, $1 each, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, or at the door. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

The next film in the Truffaut Classic Movies series is Stolen Kisses, Oct. 25.

Music Thing

Jorma Takes Off

Quah
Jorma Kaukonen with Tom Hobson
Grunt BFLI – 0209

Jorma Kaukonen is best known as a charter member of Jefferson Airplane, and guitarist for Airplane spin-off, Hot Tuna. In 1972, between Airplane and Tuna tours, Jorma spent his free hours at Wally Heider's San Francisco studios, laying down the basic tracks for his 'acoustic' album. That time was spent with friend and fellow guitarist, Tom Hobson. Producer Jack Casady (also from Tuna and Airplane) added his suggestions and comments. Stories of the album began to appear in October, 1972 RCA press releases. The title, quite simply put, is Quah.

This, by far, is Jorma's finest album. It opens with Genesis, a simple song with double-acoustic guitars, like most of the album. It's a song of short, almost chopped sentences, delivered in Jethro Tull fashion. The guitar work consists of unfinished chords, abruptly disturbed by tasty picking. The only studio addition to the basic track is a subtle string section, adding depth to Jorma's limited but intoxicating vocals. I'll Be All Right is simple blues, leaning more heavily on dueling guitar than on vocal or lyrical content. Song For The North Star is the highlight from Quah. Jorma's voice is just right for this one, and is broadened by echo and overdubbing. The use of strings, again, is subtle and welcome. Its overall impact on the listener is "hauntingly mystical. The resonance of the song at full volume on even the cheapest of hi-fis will send shivers down the spine. Flying Clouds, another cut from the album, is quite similar. The 'A' side closes with a gutsy blues, Another Man Done Gone, which features Hobson with simple yet elite slide guitar.

The 'B' side opens with that same intimate grace and solitude. It also gives the listener a taste of Tom Hobson's vocals as he performs Blue Prelude and Hawaiin Sunshine. Hobson's voice is deeper, and flatter than Kaukonen's, serving to both break up and add diversity to Quah. There is a series of double acoustic leads on Blue Prelude

(continued on page eight)

Native Vermont Poet

by Robert DeNike

Tinker Greene is a 33 year old native Vermont poet who directs and moderates monthly poetry readings in downtown Burlington. He is currently one of four Creative Writing Instructors under the Experimental Program and manager of personnel for the Little Professor Book Center on Church Street.

Tinker came to UVM in 1969 after working six years for a New York publishing company and graduated with the class of '72, earning a B.A. degree in English.

During his years of study, he helped create the literary magazine The News and Weather, still published today. Through Tinker's efforts, the magazine took shape from the English department's previous unsuccessful and unpopular ventures in publishing a collection of students' poems. In 1972, the periodical was awarded second prize (ranking alongside the Columbia Review) in a contest sponsored by the Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines. Tinker was also awarded at that time recognition as "outstanding senior" for his contributions in reviving the literary scene at UVM and as editor of The News and Weather.

With the $200. second prize, Tinker founded the Poets Mimeo Cooperative which sponsors monthly poetry readings at the Church Street Center for Community Education (in the old firehouse). "I originally founded the organization", said Tinker, "as a means of obtaining feedback and reaction from the public on my work as a poet. This is an important source of inspiration and a way of keeping up my morale as a writer. Also, I wanted to expose and focus specifically upon local Burlington poets and their work."

The publications of Tinker Greene can be found in a variety of magazines, pamphlets and broadsides. Poems of his appear in David Wilkes' Truck magazine, an anthology of works by Burlington poets and in Tinker's sole efforts, "Sleepwalking", "Visual Purple", and "The Billy Kid Variations".

The monthly seminars present readings of original poetry and/or poetry with relevance to one's original work. Tinker emphasizes the factor of originality. "Our purpose is to discover, accomplished yet unknown poets and to give them a chance to express their talent. The readings are open to students and Burlington citizens alike who possess poetic proficiency ranging from the beginning to the advanced.

Readings are scheduled for the following Friday nights (from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.) October 18, November 8 and November 29.

Turn to page five for samples of Tinker's work.

Contemporary And Late Classical Music To Be Performed By UVM Faculty Members

Music for flute and piano from two distinct periods, the contemporary and the late classical – early romantic, will be performed Friday, Oct. 25, in a concert by Jane Ambrose and Elizabeth Metcalfe of the University of Vermont music faculty.

Their recital at 8 p.m. in the Marble Court, Fleming Museum, will feature sonatinas by Franz Danzi and Gaetano Donizetti, and a Rondo by Franz Xavier Mozart, the younger son of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, representing the late classical–early romantic idiom. These pieces, all of which have been published for the first time during the past five years, will be first performances in Burlington.

Works representing the diversity in recent composition for flute will also be a feature of the recital, and will include sonatas by Heiden and Lennox Berkeley, a "Soliloquy" by Canadian composer Harry Freedman, and a prize-winning quintet by David Diamond.

Thomas Read, Roger Gumm and Bettina Roulier of the Con Brio Chamber Ensemble will join Ms. Ambrose and Mr. Metcalfe for the Diamond quintet.

Ms. Ambrose, a former student of James Pappoutsakis, holds degrees from Skidmore College and UVM. She is an assistant professor on the UVM music faculty.

Mr. Metcalfe is a graduate of the University of Toronto and an Associate of the Royal Conservatory of Music there. She has been an instructor of piano and harpsichord at UVM since 1967. Both performers are familiar to Vermont audiences for their regular performances with the UVM Baroque Ensemble and the Con Brio Chamber Ensemble.

The Friday recital is free and open to the public.

"Those who have heard his performance on this instrument," says UVM music chairman Dr. William Metcalfe, "know that Bilson's formidable technique coupled with the authentic sounds of an instrument of Mozart's period is nothing short of a sonic revelation."

Admission to the 8 p.m. concert in the Marble Court, Fleming Museum, will be by donation. Reservations are available both from the University music department and the front desk at the Fleming Museum.

TONIGHT
Try a "SWINGER'S CLUB"
(Please bare with us)

FAMOUS SINCE 1974

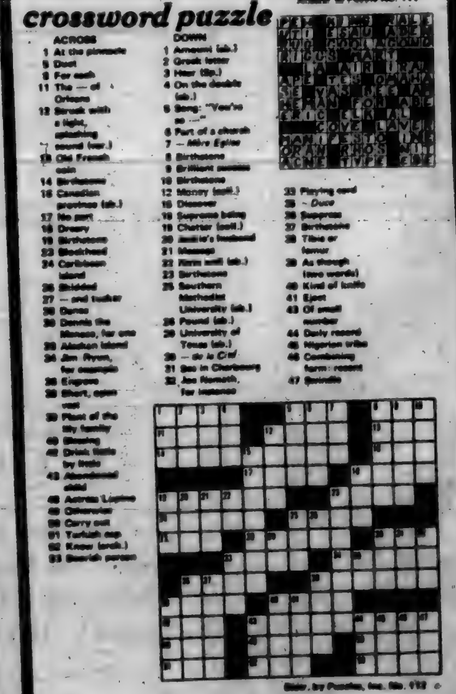
or one of the 90 other unbeliebable combinations at CARBUR'S RESTAURANT
Live Entertainment Wed. Thru Sun.
119 St. Paul St. 862-4106

karate 864-0414

TUT'S
248 North Street
Burlington, Vt. 05401
"A NICE LITTLE JOINT"
DAYS Till 7:30
ALL NITE SUN.
20¢ DRAFTS
10¢ OFF LIQ.

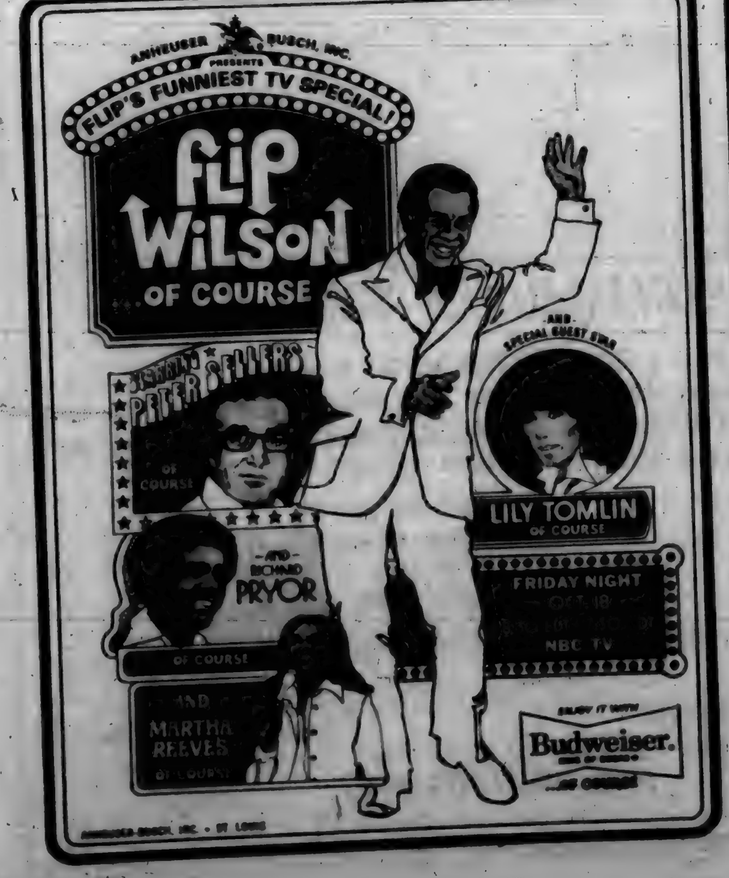
BIG BURGER

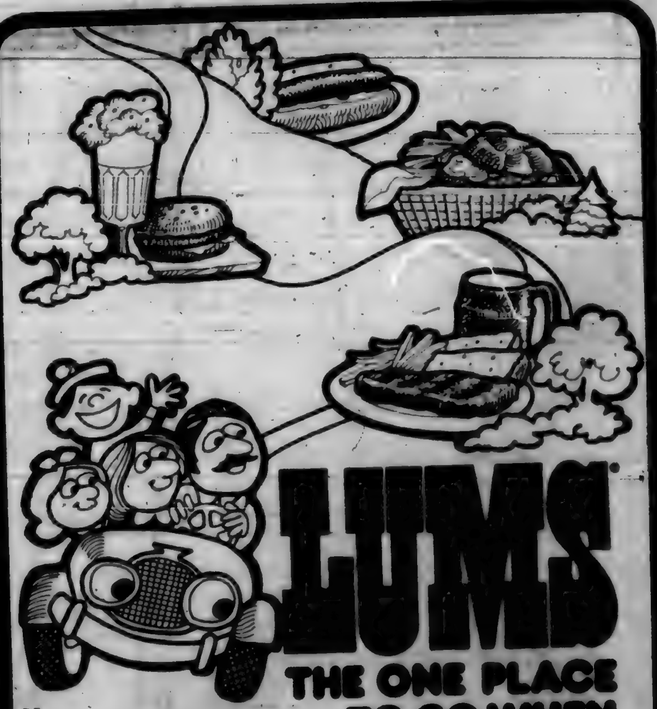
crossword puzzle



This week's winners:
1. Louis Upside
2. Ann Smith
3. Al Dimmick
4. Fred Logger
5. Jumbo Chicago
6. Hale Bell
7. Bill Dillon
8. John Ferguson
9. John Slade
10. Frank Anthony

Upon correct completion of the above crossword puzzle, BIG BURGER will award a free dinner. The meal will be given to the first 15 people who present the finished puzzle after 8:00 p.m. tonight. Winners will be announced in the next CYNIC.





LUMS
THE ONE PLACE TO GO WHEN EVERYBODY WANTS TO GO TO A DIFFERENT PLACE.

Everybody on Campus has their own taste, which usually finds you driving off in all directions in search of many restaurants to please many tastes.

Don't get into a hassle. And don't drive far. Drive near, to your nearby Lums. We've got the all-foods menu. Great burgers and steaks. Roast beef. Shrimp. All kinds of sandwiches. Beers and wines. More? A special, low-priced menu for the kiddies (it's more than a menu, it's a take-home, play-games-on-it souvenir of your visit).

Don't get into a hassle about where to go. Get into your nearby Lums.

LUMS No one else will give you more. more. more.

Music Thing

White Rhythm Finally Swings

by Michael Thurston

AWB
Average White Band
Atlantic

White rhythm and blues isn't always successful. That's probably why "Average White Band" is such a clever name for a white R&B group. It's almost a self-acknowledged confession of 'jus doun' the best we can. Well, surprise! The best we can is better than average musicianship, and an excellent selection of original material. The only non-original is a new rendition of the Isley Brothers' Work To Do, which comes off comfortably and clean. Alan Gorrie, Hamish Stuart, Roger Ball, Onnie McIntyre, Malcolm (Molly) Duncan, and Robbie McIntosh, all Scottish, have assembled an uncluttered and honest white R&B band, that plays to the best of its capabilities without any hype, hard-sell, or gimmickry.

AWB is concerned about their music, and about the way they play. Each group member depends on the others for musical, as well as moral support. None wants to be superstars, but each is more concerned about building the reputation of the band as an entire unit. After a relatively sloppy first album, Show Your Hand on MCA, it isn't difficult to understand these inspirations. They have a new record label behind them, but more dramatically, they have a new producer, Arif Mardin. Mardin's production credits include The Rascals, Aretha Franklin, Bette Midler, and Daryl Hall and John Oates. Mardin is one of those few producers who, without molding a band in his own direction, has the ability to draw the artists, both collectively and individually, outside of their music to observe objectively and ordinary wants a guiding ear on the tracks. His ability to induce self-direction and discipline is more than audible on AWB.

Average White Band, admittedly influenced by New Orleans jazz and bayou blues, extend themselves musically, giving their new album reflections of rhythm and blues trends, as well as jazz trends, from a far wider spectrum than those limited beginnings. It is here that the first album falls short, and where the second album excels. It is here Arif Mardin's talents as producer surface. Average White Band has matured and diversified, but maintained a calculated interaction that lends crisp, tight flavorings to their R&B basics. It's a move that lends credibility to their claim of improving AWB'S musical reputation. Average White Band is quite comfortable sounding black. Much of the music, such as You Got It, Person To Person, and Nothing You Can Do sounds as though it comes from the repertoire of The Hues Corporation, The Spinners, or perhaps the O'Jays. Beyond the Soulful vocals, AWB master their instruments. Each number is punctuated with fine percussion and bass. Lead guitar, most noticeably a white characteristic is cutting and sharp. The rhythm section is a fine coterie of keyboards, vocals, and sax, all of which add body and continuity, not only to each individual selection, but to the album as a package, as well.

AWB is a pure album. All the instrumentation and arrangements are at the hands of 'Average White Band. They're smooth, controlled, and depite the black influence, there are no indications of a contrived 'soul sound'. Average White Band is just the way they are...and it's better than average.

a plant is a friend.

A healthy attractive plant would look great in your room. We have many types of house plants, cactus, and terrarium plants. Come in and choose from our wide selection. The quality is excellent and the prices are reasonable. We also have indoor growing systems if the sunlight is inadequate where you are.

You'll find our store interesting.
It's different GIVE A PLANT TO A FRIEND

GARDEN WAY LIVING CENTER
1186 Williston Road, South Burlington
(Next to the Alpine Shop)
We specialize in Self-sufficient Living

Bonnie Koloc's Just Nice But B.B.'s Really Got It

by Michael Thurston

You're Gonna Love Yourself In The Morning
Bonnie Koloc
Ovation OVQD/1438

Somehow, when lists of female folk artists are compiled, those lists contain names like Joan Baez, Joni Mitchell, Judy Collins, and Rita Coolidge. One name has been missing from that list for years. Bonnie Koloc. You're Gonna Love Yourself In The Morning is the name of both her new album and single. It's her fourth album. She records for Ovation Records, a relatively small company, and part of her problem is one of identity and marketing.

Bonnie has a sound that's all her own, and yet she borrows generously from the bigger names, sounding more often than not like Baez or Coolidge. She has a talent for collecting superstars for sidemen, such as Trevor Veitch, sidekick to Tom Rush for years, who finally ventured out onto his own, and did most of the acoustical work on Bonnie Koloc's second album, Hold On To Me. Her new album? Names like Reggie Young, Kenny Malone, Mike Leech, and Steve Goodman frequent her liner notes. All seasoned Nashville studio musicians extraordinaire. Add to this the talented keyboard work of David Briggs, the album's producer. You're Gonna Love Yourself In The Morning is Koloc's most energetic, and best effort. Her cross-section of studio wizards is only one factor in her continued growth and development as a recording artist.

Bonnie Koloc has had problems in the past of getting body into both her songs and her music. She had a pretty voice, some nice material, but her interpretations were flat and uneventful. It's not unlikely that she had producers bent on molding her after Baez or Collins, limiting Koloc both as an artist, and an individual. Her compressed delivery became pallid and stale after a point, sounding, at times, squelched by the instrumentation and an ill-suited studio. You're Gonna Love Yourself has more sense of direction, and greater accessibility than her previous albums. The new album is paced well, with the side one opener, the title tune, a catchy, commercial mover. The next two numbers tone things down, with delicate vocals accompanied by soft strings and gentle, acoustic guitar. The closing cut is juxtaposed with a white blues, Children's Blues, with side one ending on a rock note, Guilty of Rock and Roll, which is as loud as the album gets. This sandwich effect, utilizing commercial riffs, tranquil folk numbers, tasty blues, and rock, combined with a refreshing display of self-confidence, capture and maintain the listener's interest.

Side two is weaker, but does have some nice moments. Unfortunately, Bonnie's version of Jim Croce's I'll Have to Say I Love You In A Song is not one of them. The song has just been overworked. 25th of December is a mournful ballad about giving everything away. The allusion to Christmas provides nice images, but suggests a contrived stab at deeper meaning. Subtlety is not one of Koloc's fortes, and this flaw makes her work appear trite on more than one occasion. Highlights from the album include Crazy Mary, the tale of a child-scorned old maid, broken from unkept loves and promises, and Mother Country, in the Guthrie genre boasting 'God Bless America' dynamics. Both have the impact to humble and surround the listener on both emotional and physical levels; few songs give or demand so much.

As an artist, Bonnie Koloc has matured. She began four albums ago, with standard delivery and a typecast role. She has, through her own determination and that of her studio friends, broken the mold, and continues to write more and better material, and she has widened her grasp, both vocally and musically. Her coming of age, as an individual, as a professional; not only puts her in the running for a permanent place on 'the' list, but demands that a new list be forthcoming.

Friends
B.B. King
ABC-ABCD-825

B. B. King has embarked on a fling of diversity and broadness. King, in a majority of past products, depended heavily on his guitar to lead and command his music. Friends, his new album, is another story. Set primarily at Sigma Sound in Philadelphia, this album's a rocker, and one of the most sophisticated studio endeavors King has ever achieved. After the basic tracks were down, the masters were sent to TMI Studios in Memphis, for the addition of horns, and then on to the Las Vegas Recording Studio for the final dub of vocals. Producer Dave Crawford, who also wrote much of the album's material, must be credited with an acute ability to put together the new King sound, while still holding onto our familiar blues master.

Friends is an interesting musical statement. It successfully bridges the gap between today's pop-soul, and yet holds onto the roots of the old blues-jazz influences, from which B. B. King is a charter member. The album's closing cut, My Song might serve as a partial explanation for the experiment. The opening line reads: 'My song, usually a blues song, but I like this song'. It's a line that can be read as an acknowledgement of the new 'soul', the Philly sound that has become popularized by Van McCoy, Barry White, and Billy Paul, or it can be read as a statement of policy. My roots are the blues, but I wanted a change, and decided to give these rockers a go. Either way, the statement fits, and the music is excellent.

For King, Friends is a metropolitan approach, but there are no indications that he's selling out. Purists might find the album repulsive, but there's really no need for that. Friends is too good for that. King has become the master of just about anything he takes on, and his new album is no exception. His talent and capabilities give him the base to pull this stunt off, and give his fans some good music in the bargain. It's the heaviest collection he's ever done, but it would be a mistake to say or even hint that this is where B.B. King will stay musically. A man who's been in the business and garnered as much respect and following as King carries with him the deserved right to do just about as he pleases.

Friends is a far cry from The Thrill Is Gone, and his old Kent recordings. But the man wants to move around... try different things. He knows where the roots are, and he won't cut them off. But King also realizes careful attention must be given to the branches... lest the roots fail. It's B.B. King with a new side to show. And it sounds real good.

Avant-Garde Living Theatre To Experience UVM

The Living Theatre Collective which, according to the Boston Globe, "... has practically defined the avant-garde experimental theatre style in this country..." will be performing the Seven Meditations on Political Sado-Masochism at UVM. The Performance will be on Monday, October 21 at 7:30 p.m. in 113 Commons at the Living/Learning Center.

The Living Theatre was founded by Judith Malina and Julian Beck in 1947. The first theatre they played in was actually no theatre at all but the Beck's apartment. Later they moved to several theatres for short runs of plays by artists such as Stein, Brecht, Picasso, and Eliot. During the 50's and 60's, they became involved in the Peace Movement and saw that the separation of art and politics was needless.

Financial difficulties during the early 60's caused the closing of their theatre in New York and the Living Theatre went into exile in Europe. They returned to the United States in 1968 for a tour and then returned to Europe. They are back now and have been on tour performing a cycle of plays that they had been working on while in Europe, South America, and the U.S. called The Legacy of Cain which includes Seven Meditations. Seven Meditations was designed to be performed for student audiences in places other than conventional theatres. Domination, Authority, Property, Money, Violence, Death, and a plea for the future are themes included in this criticism of the modern state.

The Group has been living at Mt. Philo through the summer and have wanted to perform at UVM before leaving the area. Their performance will be open to the public with no admission charge. The event is being presented by SA Speakers.

...Jorma Takes Off

(continued from page seven)

which are outstanding. Police Dog Blues features the finest guitar work on the album. It's a rarity to find two excellent musicians who know each other intimately. That kind of relationship is relayed to the listener through the music...those guitars really do talk with each other.

Hamar Promenade closes the disc, with blues-oriented, double track vocal over full chords and fine, double lead interludes. In comparison with the opening track, Jorma sounds at ease, and thoroughly developed. It may be more than coincidence, in light of the fact that two years have passed, and Quah may well be a chronicle of those years.

Jorma Kaukonen and Tom Hobson are two very dear friends. Quah is a simple, straight-forward statement of musical ideas and exchanges. Personal and intimate is just about the most you can possibly say for any album... especially this one.

Levi's SMILE at the COMPANY STORE
Lower Church St.
STRAIGHT LEGGED DENIM

THE NAVY IS COMING

TAKE COMMAND OF YOUR FUTURE

The Opportunity to be a COMMISSIONED OFFICER is available to all qualified students. The Navy is currently accepting applications for a variety of interesting and challenging OFFICER positions for COLLEGE STUDENTS with different academic backgrounds. YOU may have it what it takes to qualify for:

NUCLEAR POWER
NAVAL AVIATION
NAVY LINE OFFICER
NAVY NURSE CORPS

SEE YOUR NAVY INFORMATION TEAM ON CAMPUS

Date: Oct. 22-24, 1974 Location: Billing Center or call 518-472-4424 TODAY

Trustees For As A

by Margo Howland

The University of Vermont Board of Trustees have voted to ask the state legislature for an additional $365,000 over their original request of $12.8 million for fiscal year '76, and $111,000 for fiscal year '77.

UVM President Dr. Edward Andrews, Executive Vice-President Dr. Wayne Patterson, Academic Vice-President Dr. Alfred B. Rollins Jr. came before the Faculty Senate Tuesday afternoon to explain various aspects of the University's economic condition and the budget cutbacks.

Vice-President Patterson presented a number of transparencies outlining changes in the FY '75 budget. Those changes were not present last April when the budget was first drawn up, but President Andrews emphasized, "For better than a year now, we have known that Fiscal year '76 would be very difficult... By August it had become clear that the state's revenue situation was in very bad shape."

One result of this has been Governor Salmon's impoundment of $300,000 of UVM's legislative appropriations for FY '75. Another unexpected economic problem is a tuition loss of $100,000 due to a shift in the projected "mix" of in-state and out-of-state students. There are about 100 more Vermont students and about 75 fewer out-of-staters then had been expected.

"We have fewer freshmen this year because of a conscious decision," Andrews said. "We also have from 70 to 100 out-of-state students convert into in-state status each year.

"Instead of $510,000 surplus we will have a zero balance. The budget balances only because of money we had earlier," he explained.

Andrews also allowed he had considered withholding a 1% increase in fringe bensfits, but "we finally decided to go ahead with it."

A projected salary increase of 8% would also remain in effect.

The proposed budget cuts amount to $1,200,000 involving faculty and academic programs. The plan to retrench programs and personnel won out over two other possibilities: raising the tuition beyond the $95 in-state and $215 out-of-state increase already written into the FY '76 budget; or increasing enrollment, which was ruled out by Vice President Rollins a few weeks ago.

There is a distinct possibility that the University would receive "level funding" from the legislature, which means no increase in the appropriations of

Z
THE LARGE
PIPES INCENSE
SCREENS BURNER
PAPERS JOKES
97 (Abov

BOO
$5.00 D
$5.00 weekd
AT BILLING

s Really Got It

...es master
...an interesting
...tatement. It
...idges the gap
...'s pop-soul, and
... the roots of the
...influences, from
...ing is a charter
...album's closing
...might serve as a
...nation for the
...he opening line
...s, usually a bliss
... this song' It's a
... be read as an
...ort of the new
...y sound that has
...tarized by Van
...White, and Billy
...n be read as a
...olicy. My roots
... but I wanted a
...decided to give
...a go. Either way,
...' fits, and the
...nt.

Friends is a
... approach, but
...indications that
...t. Purists might
...n repulsive, but there's really no need for that. Friends is too good for that. King has become the master of just about anything he takes on, and his new album is no exception. His talent and capabilities give him the base to pull this stunt off, and give his fans some good music in the bargain. It's the heaviest collection he's ever done, but it would be a mistake to say or even hint that this is where B.B. King will stay musically. A man who's been in the business and garnered as much respect and following as King carries with him the deserved right to do just about as he pleases.

Friends is a far cry from The Thrill Is Gone, and his old Kent recordings. But the man wants to move around... try different things. He knows where the roots are, and he won't cut them off. But King also realizes careful attention must be given to the braggbes... lest the roots fail. It's B.B. King with a new side to show. And it sounds real good.

atre To Experience UVM

...ng Theatre was
... Judith Malina and
... in 1947. The first
... played in was
...heatre at all but the
...ment. Later they
...veral theatres for
...of plays by artists
..., Brecht, Picasso,
...uring the 50's and
...ecame involved in
...dovement and saw

...g track, Jorma
...es, and thoroughly
...d may be more than
... in light of the fact
...rs have passed, and
...ell be a chronicle of

...Kaukonen and Tom
...e two very dear
...ush is a simple,
...ward statement of
...eas and exchanges.
...nd intimate is just
...most you can possibly
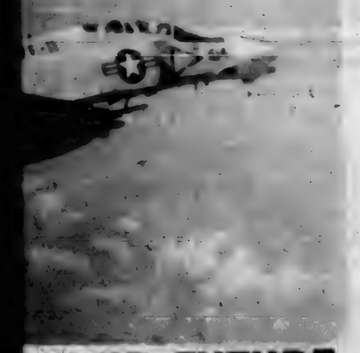
...y album... especially that the separation of art and politics was needless.

Financial difficulties during the early 60's caused the closing of their theatre in New York and the Living Theatre went into exile in Europe. They returned to the United States in 1968 for a tour and then returned to Europe. They are back now and have been on tour performing a cycle of plays that they had been working on while in Europe, South America, and the U.S. called The Legacy of Cain which includes Seven Meditations. Seven Meditations was designed to be performed for student audiences in places other than conventional theatres: Domination, Authority, Property, Money, Violence, Death, and a plea for the future are themes included in this criticism of the modern state.

The Group has been living at Mt. Philo through the summer and have wanted to perform at UVM before leaving the area. Their performance will be open to the public with no admission charge. The event is being presented by SA Speakers.

COMING



YOUR FUTURE

...FICER is available to all qualified
...lications for a variety of interesting
... STUDENTS with different academic
...o qualify for:

...EAR POWER
... AVIATION
... LINE OFFICER
... NURSE CORPS

...N TEAM ON CAMPUS

Location: Billing Center

... TODAY

Trustees Ask State Legislature For As Additional $365,000

by [illegible] Moulding

The University of Vermont Board of Trustees have voted to ask the state legislature for an additional $365,000 over their original request of $12.8 million for fiscal year '76, and $111,000 for fiscal year '77.

UVM President Dr. Edward Andrews, Executive Vice-President Dr. Wayne Patterson, Academic Vice-President Dr. Alfred B. Rollins Jr. came before the Faculty Senate Tuesday afternoon to explain various aspects of the University's economic condition and the budget cutbacks.

Vice-President Patterson presented a number of transparencies outlining changes in the FY '75 budget. Those changes were not present last April when the budget was first drawn up, but President Andrews emphasized, "For better than a year now, we have known that Fiscal year '76 would be very difficult... By August it had become clear that the state's revenue situation was in very bad shape."

One result of this has been Governor Salmon's impoundment of $300,000 of UVM's legislative appropriations for FY '75. Another unexpected economic problem is a tuition loss of $100,000 due to a shift in the projected "mix" of in-state and out-of-state students. There are about 100 more Vermont students and about 75 fewer out-of-staters than had been expected.

"We have fewer freshmen this year because of a conscious decision," Andrews said. "We also have from 70 to 100 out-of-state students convert into in-state status each year.

"Instead of $510,000 surplus we will have a zero balance. The budget balances only because of money we had earlier," he explained.

Andrews also allowed he had considered withholding a 1% increase in fringe benefits, but "we finally decided to go ahead with it."

A projected salary increase of 8% would also remain in effect.

The proposed budget cuts amount to $1,200,000 involving faculty and academic programs. The plan to retrench programs and personnel won out over two other possibilities: raising the tuition beyond the $95 in-state and $215 out-of-state increase already written into the FY '76 budget; or increasing enrollment, which was ruled out by Vice President Rollins a few weeks ago.

There is a distinct possibility that the University would receive "level funding" from the legislature, which means no increase in the appropriations of the previous year. That would result in $1.7 million in unrealized revenue from the state, and could be as much as $3 million debt, Patterson said.

Professor Nadworny asked why the university is following a policy that will "put us in debt", commenting "This is a terrific sacrifice for zero growth policy."

Andrews announced that "few people disagreed with the proposal," and that if enrollment continued to go up, the university would have to build more dormitories and hire more personnel.

Projections show that "there will be no way to fill the forms by the 1980's," Andrews declared.

Rollins outlined the deadlines for the program-trimming recommendations.

The fiscal year '76 budget cuts must be made before January for the faculty to have six-months notice. Decisions involving admissions must be made so that high-school applicants and guidance counselors will know what is going on, Rollins remarked.

The final recommendations must be made by Nov. 15 in order for the trustees to consider them at their Dec. 6 meeting. And, as an exercise in determining priorities, Rollins asked the deans and program directors to suggest a 95% budget level.

Rollins asserted, "We will not cut salary raises, sabaticals or needed improvements. We have to make the decision; the size of the university will be smaller, the scope smaller, the faculty smaller."

The budget cuts presented to the trustees will have been reviewed by a faculty steering committee, consisting of Dr. George Albee, Dr. Richard Tanner, Judith Andersen, Dr. Roy Whitmore, Dr. Robert Godin, and Dr. Wilfred Roth.

Students will be represented by a Student Task Force on Financial Affairs. Student leaders met with President Andrews Tuesday afternoon, then went into an executive session of their own to produce the Student Task Force.

This group will consist of one representative from the Student Association, the Inter-Residence Association, Fraternity Forum, PanHellenic Council, and Third World; also, the student representatives to the board of trustees and two representatives at large appointed by the chairman of the task force.

Rollins warned that the cutbacks in personnel and faculty would not be "across the board" but that some areas would be affected to a greater extent than others.

Senator Robert V. Daniels, (D-Cattenden), professor of history, asked if tenured faculty would be included in the cutback proposals.

Andrews quipped, "No, not really... I don't have any on my list." Rollins quickly disagreed, saying "I don't know! ... It's silly to say that a tenured faculty member has a life-time guarantee." Andrews solemnly agreed.

Questions were raised on the representation of non-tenured faculty members on the decision-making process. There is a non-tenured faculty member, Judith Andersen, on the Steering Committee.

Rollins encourages deans and department chairmen to consult with faculty members on the recommendation processes.

Senate Forms Task Force

by Bruce Maddern

At Tuesday night's S.A. Senate meeting, President Peter MacAusland told the senate of the formation of a Student Task Force on financial affairs. The group will act as spokesman and liason between the students and administration during the $1.2 million in cutbacks that are anticipated.

MacAusland urged support for the group which will represent six different student organizations including S.A., IRA, PanHell, Third World and Fraternity Forum. The Senate passed a motion endorsing the Task Force unanimously. A representative from S.A. will be elected next week, and three interim candidates were appointed until then.

The Task Force, MacAusland explained, comes in response to a request by the administration to have students give input, strictly advice, on the budget cuts. The $1.2 million in cuts will be made by the middle of November so it was necessary to organize a student group immediately.

The Task Force was produced at a Tuesday meeting of student leaders with the president and Dean Powers in which they explained the budget cuts process and where students could fit into the student leader.

Old Business

S. 84, recognition of Omicron Nu, an honorary society for home economics students was passed. The purpose of the organization is to stimulate scholarship and leadership toward the well-being of individuals and families throughout the world.

Discussion raised at several points. Ed Pasqualin, town senator, termed the group "elitist" because of its honorary and exclusive nature. However it was determined to be neither. Another senator asked when does striving for academic excellence become eliticism. He said it is open to all students who strive for that goal.

S. 6, recognition of the Judo Club was passed. Its purpose is to promote Judo on campus. Likewise S. 7, recognition of the Gymnastics Club was passed. This group is seeking money particularly travelling expenses because the Athletic Dept. failed to fund them. Discussion turned to problems of funding athletic clubs, the failure of the Athletic Dept. to do so, and whether or not SA would fund for traveling expenses for any organization.

S. 3, a motion to call for disrecognitin of an organziation if the group collects mandatory dues. Arguments centered on double taxation on one side and additional funding on the other. Many senators felt this was double taxation and that the fact that students pay an SA fee means no further dues should be collected. However, because many organizations need additional funds to exist, such as the LaCrosse Club, they feel they must collect mandatory dues. The dues they feel also narrows the club down to working members because those who pay them will want to participate. The motion was

(continued on page twelve)

Men's LONDON FOG JEANS

only 5.99

100% cotton

LIGHT BLUE AND NAVY

NOT IRREGULARS

FACTORY PRE-TICKETED $13 and $15

save on FACTORY PRICES

CHARLESTOWN MILL STORE

65 Main St.

OPEN DAILY 9-9, SATURDAY 9-6

ZIGGY'S

THE LARGEST HEAD SHOP IN VERMONT

PIPES, SCREENS, PAPERS, INCENSE, BURNERS, JOKES, KEY RING CLIPS, T-SHIRTS, LEATHER GOODS, PIPE GIFT SETS, CLOTHES, BONGS, ROLLERS

97½ CHURCH STREET

(Above Burlington Shoe Repair)

BOOGIE YOUR BOARDS OFF!

at

Smugglers' Notch

$5.00 DISCOUNT PASS STILL ON SALE

$5.00 weekday (Reg. $10.00) $7.00 weekend (Reg. $11.00)

REPRESENTATIVE WILL BE AT

AT BILLINGS CENTER Oct. 28, 29, 30 9 am. - 5 pm.

SKI EQUIPMENT SALE

FINAL CLEANUP OF ALL LAST SEASONS EQUIPMENT

SKIS	REG.	Sale
Volki Derby	35.00	17.00
Fischer Alpine Deluxe	35.00	17.00
Rossignol Concorde	120.00	79.00
Head Killy 606	165.00	82.00
Kneissel Magic 1200	125.00	99.00
Kneissel Blue Star	175.00	99.00
Rossignol ROC 520	165.00	99.00
Hart Competition	175.00	99.00
Yamaha AR III	140.00	99.00
Yamaha Hi Flex	150.00	99.00
Kneissel White Star	210.00	105.00
Olin Mark I	155.00	119.00
Head HRP	155.00	124.00
Kneissel Red Star	185.00	129.00
Kneissel Racing Team	210.00	159.00
Durafiber	240.00	169.00

ASST. SKI BINDINGS up to 50% OFF

SKI BOOTS	REG.	SALE
Koflach Racer	45.00	22.00
Reiker K500	50.00	25.00
Nordica Velox	70.00	35.00
Humanic 526	75.00	37.00
Koflach Lady	75.00	37.00
Nordica Alpina	50.00	40.00
Reiker M500	50.00	40.00
Nordica Elegance	60.00	48.00
Lange Swinger	120.00	60.00
Technus Fast	145.00	72.00
Lange Pro	150.00	75.00
Technus Lady Foam	170.00	85.00
Lange Competition	180.00	90.00
Nordica Astral Pro	120.00	96.00
Nordica Astral Slalom	165.00	132.00
Nordica Astral Olympic	185.00	148.00

SKIS ENGRAVING

TERRIFIC SKI PACKAGES BINDINGS MOUNTING POLES

as low as $49.00 complete

SKI PARKAS Many Down Filled up to 50% off

SKI SWEATERS Men's Ladies' Children's up to 50% off

ALPINE SHOP

WILLISTON ROAD, SO. BURLINGTON

OPEN DAILY 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.

Greek Community Upset By TEP Article

by Randy Jensen

Several weeks ago, Scott McKay wrote an article on TEP entitled Death of a Fraternity. In the article, McKay made some statements which some Greeks felt were not quite valid. Don Clark (Rush Chairman of Fraternity Forum), Fletcher Baltz (President of TEP) and Dave Platka (President of Fraternity Forum) in an interview, commented on the article.

They were upset since it has been pointed out that TEP isn't dead and is active at UVM. They felt that McKay's article overstated the negative aspects of TEP. While agreeing that there is "some truth to that," the Greeks said it was a "bad stigma on TEP brothers who are trying."

Platka felt a couple of points in the article were destructive, and Clark emphasized that TEP has rid itself of bad brothers. Clark also mentioned that there are now three brothers and three pledges and TEP is trying to establish a new organization.

Clark explained that although TEP was originally a Jewish Fraternity, it will accept all religions, races, ethnics, etc. TEP strives for academic excellence and a "desire to aspire."

Fletcher pointed out that TEP is not dead, the brothers are not scattered. He also didn't know anyone from TEP that was in jail. Clark emphasized that apathy in TEP (as well as other fraternities) was due to the demise of Kake Walk rather than the war, as stated in McKay's article.

Baltz, the president of TEP, stated that the last paragraph of McKay's article was "wrong." He mentioned that the Greek community was upset. The Greeks were also surprised that a fellow Greek would write about TEP like McKay did.

Baltz then expressed what TEP is, and where it is headed. He said that TEP brothers are encouraged, to strive for excellence, especially, in academics. He hopes the membership will increase to about 20 to 30 brothers. Baltz also expressed a desire to attain a new house, suitable for fraternal activities, which will be cheaper to maintain than the last one TEP owned. He wants to "reestablish TEP in its traditional manner. But," he added, "not tradition for tradition's sake. Instead, tradition that is intended to bind the brotherhood, a tradition that grows with the times. We want to extend the idea of brother."

Baltz ended the interview, saying, "I enjoy the life of a fraternity and I want to extend the aspects of fraternity life to others. That's one basic idea of TEP, to make it open to anyone that has an open mind, that will become a part of this organization. I want to create Kappa Chapter, a living monument to TEP. Lastly he said, "I simply wanted to restate what TEP is."

Study in Europe this spring.

Plan now to spend the spring semester studying in Austria, France, Germany, Spain, or England. The Institute of European Studies programs will provide a good background for careers in international business and post-graduate professional education.

Study opportunities include a broad range of subjects in the humanities and the social sciences. Independent study, traineeships in business firms, student teaching and area studies programs are available.

Live with families or in student dorms. Full integration into the student community.

Learn or improve your language ability. English language program in Vienna. All programs include intensive orientation.

Financial aid is available.

See your study abroad advisor and write us today:

Office of Admissions
The Institute of European Studies
875 North Michigan Avenue
Chicago, Illinois 60611

The Institute of European Studies

Enrollment In ROTC Rises Sharply This Year

Enrollment in the ROTC program at the University of Vermont is up sharply from last year with the most pronounced gain in the freshman and junior classes.

Freshman enrollment has increased substantially for the second year in a row, this year's class being one-third larger than last year's, and consisting of 29 men and 20 women.

Total enrollment in the entire ROTC program is now more than 50 percent ahead of last year.

According to Major Donald B. Safford, himself a UVM ROTC graduate, speaking for the Department of Military Studies, the increase in enrollment is primarily due to three factors.

Last year, the program was opened to both sexes with the result that 40 percent of the freshman class is now composed of women, who were impressed with opportunities for leadership and management experiences formerly reserved for men, and with the opportunity to earn a commission in the Army, Major Safford said.

Secondly, under the leadership of Master Sergeant Eric Anderson, the scope of ROTC has been expanded to include outdoor adventure training. "This popular program includes military rappelling, hiking, rafting, and rock climbing as well as winter survival techniques," he said.

Finally, Major Safford said, "the academic challenges of the ROTC curriculum has continued to grow. As a result of these factors, the ROTC program has become better known and more popular among the University student body."

BEVERAGE WAREHOUSE
Retail outlet
FANTASTIC SELECTION OF BEERS, ALES AND AMERICAN & IMPORTED WINES AT GREAT SAVINGS

...Democratic Fund-Raiser

(continued from page one)

thinking it was a longshot. That longshot has become an even shot."

The Democrats seemed optimistic about the outcome next month. As one party official remarked, "A couple of years ago, the people in this room would have been all the Democrats in the state of Vermont. Now we're finally beginning to feel that this state really does have a two party system."

S.A. Films Presents:

The SA Film schedule for this week includes a Rogers and Hammerstein musical, two classic horror films, a Tennessee Williams play, and a Frank Capra film on World War II.

South Pacific, made in 1954 and starring Rossnao Brazzi and Mitzi Gaynor, will be shown Thursday night in 101 Votey at 7:30. This tells the story of a nurse who falls in love with a French plantation owner on an island in the South Pacific during World War II. It is a beautiful and colorful film and includes Rogers and Hammerstein songs as "Some Enchanted Evening," "I'm In Love With a Wonderful Guy," and "Happy Talk."

On Friday night, in honor of Halloween, Dracula and The Mummy will be shown. Dracula was made in 1931 and stars Bela Lugosi, David Manners, Helen Chandler and Dwight Frye. This classic version of the Bram Stoker novel, supported by Tod Browning's gloomy poetry and Bela Lugosi's famous performance, still remains one of the archetypal horror films. The Transylvanian travels to the foggy streets of London in search of new blood. The Mummy was made in 1932 and stars Boris Karloff, Zita Johann and David Manners. It tells of a 3000 year old Egyptian priest brought back to life who stalks through Cairo in search of his reincarnated love. The awakening of the mummy, a triumph of make-up and special effects, is one of the high points of the horror genre. These films will be shown at 7:30 and 10:00 in 101 Votey. Both movies will be presented at each showing. Admission is $1.

The Mummy

On Saturday night, Paul Newman continues his series in Sweet Bird of Youth. This also stars Geraldine Page, Shirley Knight, and Ed Begley and is directed by Richard Brooks. A venal young man returns to his Southern home town to impress the community and collect his girl, daughter of a crooked political boss who had run him out of town some years before. In an attempt to get a movie contract, Newman uses a former movie star (Geraldine Page) who lives in a haze of alcohol and narcotics to blot out her panic-stricken sense of failure. Time commented on the movie, saying "Newman creates a memorable portrait of a phony, but the picture belongs to Actress Paige. She is a mascaraed monument to the era of the superstar." The film is to be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30.

On Monday night the Frank Capra film, The Nazis Strike, made in 1943, is to be seen in 103 Rowell at 7:30. This was one of seven films made by Capra during World War II to illustrate "Why We Fight." It is a 41 minute look at scenes of Germany's early belligerence including the invasion of Czechoslovakia, Austria and Poland.

..."Peanut" Kennedy Advocates Reforms

(continued from page one)

has unlimited mail and telephone use. He has vehicles and drivers at his disposal and a panel of research assistants. He also has ready access to news media for free." Kennedy supports a campaign law in which the incumbent is allowed less money than the non-incumbents.

Kennedy is in favor of some decriminalization of marijuana. He said, "...only to the extent that I think it's unjust that the first offense of smoking a joint be considered a crime and forever on the record. I would suggest it might be well not to consider the first offense a crime. However, repeated offenses and involvement with selling should be made a felony."

He feels that utility rates will inevitably rise. When the federal government gives a 9-10 percent profit on bonds, it "is not unrealistic to expect the 8 percent profit for Vermont is unrealistic for utilities," he noted.

A mass transit system and no more highway construction are urged by Kennedy. He also is opposed to increasing the mileage of four-lane highways, including Route 7. He does favor improvement of existing corridors with truck lanes and emergency stops."

In response to Vermont's censorship of the Windsor State Prison newspaper, Kennedy supports the prisoners right to the press. "I say what I want to say, why the hell can't they?" He supports Commissioner Stoneman, however, criticizing those who are above him. "If he didn't have so many people over him, he could do a good job."

Another of Kennedy's objectives is to extend the term of governor from two to four years. He mentions several advantages. The governor could implement a program and see it through, which he is unable to do in a two-year term. The governor also would not be campaigning for re-election as soon as he is elected.

The disadvantages according to Kennedy are that, "The executive is accountable for his actions or as in the case now, the inactions." Commenting on the two year term, Kennedy says, "This is at once an expensive and wasteful operation of government because of lack of continuity."

Kennedy is highly in favor of control of lobbyists with full disclosure of expenditures. He also proposes that the lobbyist pay a fee for every interest he/she is lobbying for.

Discussing the Liberty Union Party, Kennedy states, "The Liberty Union Party represents a philosophy that is far too liberal for me to accept. Their proposal for state subsidies and its controls derail the private enterprise system. Ms. Abbott's confiscatory tax recommendations on business will kill the goose that lays the golden egg."

When asked about his qualifications, Kennedy listed experience, knowledge of state government, and knowledge of the business world.

O'brien's Beauty Salons Inc.
"THE BEAUTY PLACE"

(3) Three locations on Main Street. 135, 247 and o'b's UPSTAIRS at 135.
Superior hair cuts, restyling, hair painting, frosting, support waves.
From France: LANCOME skin treatments and cosmetics, FIDJA&COBOCHARD fragrances. VITA BATH, NEUTROGENA AND MUCH, MUCH MORE!!
We have TESTERS for trying, samplers to sample, experts to advise.
BUY WHERE YOU CAN TRY! FREE MAKE-UP CONSULTATION!!!!!

MEXICO NORTH
at the 5 corners Essex Jct., Vt.
Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont
Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more
Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.
10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE
INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 862-7686
FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS
INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES
560 X 15 Snow Tires
FITS MOST BUGS & SAAB 95 and 96's
24.95 inc. FET & mounting
VW BRAKE JOB $49.95
Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 turned drums, rebuilt 4 wheel cylinders.
VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

Sigma N

by Dan Haslam

The hockey jocks and assorted athletes of Sigma Nu fraternity easily yanked and gulped their way to a first place victory in the men's events for the Greek Games this past week-end.

Sigma Nu, which retrieved the fraternity trophy from last year's winner Sigma Phi Epsilon by an 18-point spread, won first place in each of the five events, scoring a total of 25 points.

This year's closest fraternity competitor, Sigma Phi Epsilon, polled only a distant second place with seven points, having placed third in the chariot races, second in the tug-of-war, and second in the wheelbarrow race.

Tying for third in men's competition were Acacia and Sigma Phi, each with four points.

The Greek Games were the climatic point in this year's Greek Week, and an estimated four hundred Greeks turned out for the events, which were held under misty skies and cool winds.

In the sorority competition, Pi Beta Phi marched home with a decisive victory over her closest competitors, Alpha Chi Omega and Kappa Alpha Theta. Pi Phi scored a total of 17 points in 5 events and placed first in both the pyramid-building contest and wheelbarrow race. It was Gamma Phi Beta, however, which delighted the crowd in dragging the other sororities to the ground and walking away with a first place victory in the tug-of-war. Second place Alpha Chi Omega reeled in a first place for the girls' beer relay, a third place in pyramid building, and a second place standing in the wheelbarrow race.

Results for the 1974 Greek Games are as follows:

Beer Relay:
1st place: Sigma Nu
2nd place: Sigma Phi
3rd place: Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Pyramid Building:
1st place: Sigma Nu
2nd place: Alpha Tau Omega
3rd place: Theta Chi

Tug-of-War:
1st place: Sigma Nu

Presents:

...ny night, Paul ...ews his series in Youth. This also ...Page, Shirley ...d Begley and is ...chard Brooks. A ...an returns to his ...town to impress ...and collect his ...of a crooked ...who had run him ...

...ne years before. ...to get a movie ...an uses a former ...aldine Page) who ...of alcohol and ...blot out her ...ense of failure. ...ed on the movie, saying, "Newman creates a memorable portrait of a phony, but the picture belongs to Actress Paige. She is a mascarad monument to the era of the superstar." The film is to be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30.

On Monday night the Frank Capra film, The Nazis Strike, made in 1943, is to be seen in 103 Rowell at 7:30. This was one of seven films made by Capra during World War II to illustrate "Why We Fight." It is a 41 minute look at scenes of Germany's early belligerence including the invasion of Czechoslovakia, Austria and Poland.

...Advocates Reforms

...way construction ...ennedy. He also is ...increasing the ...r-lane highways, ...ute 7. He does ...ment of existing ...truck lanes and ...ps."

...e to Vermont's ...the Windsor State ...paper, Kennedy ...prisoners right to ...ay what I want to ...hell can't they!"

...ts Commissioner ...owever, criticizing ...e above him. "If he ...o many people over ...d do a good job."

...of Kennedy's ...to extend the term ...from two to four ...mentions several ...The governor could ...program and see it ...ich he is unable to ...wo-year term. The ...do would not be ...for re-election as ...elected.

...dvantages according ...y are that, "The executive is accountable for his actions, or as in the case now, the inactions." Commenting on the two year term, Kennedy says, "This is at once an expensive and wasteful operation of government because of lack of continuity."

Kennedy is highly in favor of control of lobbyists with full disclosure of expenditures. He also proposes that the lobbyist pay a fee for every interest he/she is lobbying for.

Discussing the Liberty Union Party, Kennedy states, "The Liberty Union Party represents a philosophy that is far too liberal for me to accept. Their proposal for state subsidies and its controls derail the private enterprise system. Ms. Abbott's confiscatory tax recommendations on business will kill the goose that lays the golden egg."

When asked about his qualifications, Kennedy listed experience, knowledge of state government, and knowledge of the business world.

...NORTH

...x Jct., Vt.

...rican Indian ... Vermont

...can clothing, leather goods, ...rpipes, furniture, stained glass, ...s more

...on-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.

...o UVM Students with this ad

...VE'S MOTIVE

...INC. ...Vt. 863-7686

...CAR REPAIR ...CIALISTS

INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES

...AAB 95 and 96's ... FET & mounting

...08 ...9.95

VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

...$13.00

Sigma Nu Sweeps Greek Games

by Dan Haslam

The hockey jocks and assorted athletes of Sigma Nu fraternity easily yanked and pulped their way to a first place victory in the men's events for the Greek Games this past week-end.

Sigma Nu, which retrieved the fraternity trophy from last year's winner Sigma Phi Epsilon by an 18-point spread, won first place in each of the five events, scoring a total of 25 points.

This year's closest fraternity competitor, Sigma Phi Epsilon, polled only a distant second place with seven points, having placed third in the chariot races, second in the tug-of-war, and second in the wheelbarrow race.

Tying for third in men's competition were Acacia and Sigma Phi, each with four points.

The Greek Games were the climatic point in this year's Greek Week, and an estimated four hundred Greeks turned out for the events, which were held under misty skies and cool winds.

In the sorority competition, Pi Beta Phi marched home with a decisive victory over her closest competitors, Alpha Chi Omega and Kappa Alpha Theta. Pi Phi scored a total of 17 points in 5 events and placed first in both the pyramid-building contest and wheelbarrow race. It was Gamma Phi Beta, however, which delighted the crowd in dragging the other sororities to the ground and walking away with a first place victory in the tug-of-war. Second place Alpha Chi Omega reeled in a first place for the girls' beer relay, a third place in pyramid building, and a second place standing in the wheelbarrow race.

Results for the 1974 Greek Games are as follows:

Beer Relay:
1st place: Sigma Nu
2nd place: Sigma Phi
3rd place: Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Pyramid Building:
1st place: Sigma Nu
2nd place: Alpha Tau Omega
3rd place: Theta Chi

Tug-of-War:
1st place: Sigma Nu
2nd place: Sigma Phi Epsilon
3rd place: Acacia

Wheelbarrow Race
1st place: Sigma Nu
2nd place: Sigma Phi Epsilon
3rd place: Acacia

Fraternities

Chariot Races
1st place: Sigma Nu
2nd place: Acacia
3rd place: Sigma Phi Epsilon

Beer Relay
1st place: Alpha Chi Omega
2nd place: no contest

Pyramid Building
1st place: Pi Beta Phi
2nd place: Alpha Delta Pi
3rd place: Alpha Chi Omega

Tug-of-War:
1st place: Gamma Phi Beta
2nd place: Pi Beta Phi
3rd place: Alpha Chi Omega

Egg Relay:
1st place: Kappa Alpha Theta
2nd place: Delta Delta Delta
3rd place: Pi Beta Phi

Wheelbarrow Race
1st place: Pi Beta Phi
2nd place: Alpha Chi Omega
3rd place: Delta Delta Delta

Total Points:
Sigma Nu: 25 points
Sigma Phi Epsilon: 7 points
Acacia, Sigma Phi: 4 points each
Pi Beta Phi: 17 points
Alpha Chi Omega: 10 points
Kappa Alpha Theta: 5 points

Blood ... Nets 887 ...nits

by T. Perry Landry

University of Vermont students and staff, aided by a few area residents, donated 887 pints of blood at the Billings Center on campus in a four-day drawing concluded Thursday.

The drawing was sponsored by the University of Vermont Army ROTC Battalion. Some 120 student volunteers and the Women of UVM helped the Red Cross Staff and other Red Cross volunteers process the donors.

The cumulative total of blood donations at UVM dating back to 1950 stands at 20,462 pints.

Red Cross officials noted that this four-day drawing produced 107 pints more than the previous UVM drawing. Commented one Red Cross spokesman, "An outstanding job on the part of the students and staff —and the sponsors."

Perry Landry was the project chairman, aided by Major Duane Barber of the Military Studies Department at the university. Several individuals also contributed their time to this worthy cause, and they were Michael Fitzgerald, Edward Thornton, Miriam McCarthy, and Carey Ames. They all belong to the UVM Army ROTC Battalion.

At each drawing, a trophy is awarded to the best fraternity, sorority, and dormitory for participation in the blood drawing itself. This trophy is in recognition of percentage of donors within their organizatons as well as their overall participation in the drawing itself. This semester the dorm trophy goes to Davis Hall, with participation of 22.3 percent donations from their hall. The sorority trophy goes once again to Gamma Phi Beta, who had 100 percent showing, in the form of donations or volunteers, and in some instances, members who gave blood and worked at the drawing as well.

In the fraternity category, there was a strong showing from both ATO and Theta Chi, both had 100 percent donations. However, Theta Chi also aided the drawing with 100 percent attendance as volunteers.

Trophies will be awarded, then, to Gamma Phi Beta, Theta Chi, and Davis Hall in individual presentations this week.

Through 59 blood centers throughout the country, the Red Cross recruits donors, collects blood, processes it, stores it, and distributes the whole blood, blood components, and plasma protein fractions to hospitals and physicians, who in turn administer them to patients.

The program is licensed by the U.S. government and maintains standards for biological products established by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The next blood drawing is this spring from March 10-March 13.

...Powers To Assume Post

(continued from page one)

interim dean or to split the office into its component department under its individual chairman.

The search will differ from the other in that it will not limit itself to the university. Furthermore, there will be an official search committee to sort out the applicants.

The change has drawn both negative and positive comments. Dr. Keith Miser, director of residential life, said one of the positive structural change would be to bring together some departments. Dr. Miser pointed to the recent amalgamation of his office, buildings and grounds, department. There had been problems with communication, however, now both departments will be reporting to the same office.

Some of the criticisms are philosophical. Despite reassurances from the upper administration that the administrative switches are structural, it could result in changes in the student services area.

Finally, the questions have been raised as to the process of the selection, the quickness of the choice for such a high level of administration and the limited communication on the part of all the parties involved; administrative, student, and faculty.

S.A Concerts Present:

THE SOUTHER-HILLMAN-FURAY BAND

★ PLUS SPECIAL GUEST ★

FRIDAY OCTOBER 18th

8.30 PM.

UVM PATRICK GYM

TICKETS: $3.50 with UVM ID.
$4.50 General Admission

AVAILABLE: UVM Bookstore
Bailey's Music Room
Tape City-Colchester and at the DOOR.

$259.*

UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT

SKIS

ASPEN

JANUARY 4th-11th

- Round trip charter via TWA 707 to Denver.
- Charter bus transfers to and from Aspen.
- 7 Nights accomodations at the Continental Inn...located in the heart of Aspen within 2 minute walk to major lift... Heated Pool...Saunas...Lounge.
- Wine and Cheese Picnic on the mountain.
- Professionally supervised ski races for your group.

ASPEN-SNOWMASS generally regarded as the world's greatest ski complex. Over 200 miles of trails. Four separate mountains on one lift ticket. World's most reliable snow conditions.
BEAT THE ICE...SKI COLORADO.

$279. Two to a room
*$259. Three to a room
$243. Four to a room
$315. Single

Lift Ticket Option: (all area) $60.
6 DAYS. Be smart. Don't wait in line each day to purchase a lift ticket. Do it now and we will have your ticket at your hotel upon your arrival.

Robert Kornfield
343 College St.
Burlington, Vt. 05401

MAKE CHECK PAYABLE TO: UNIV. VERMONT SKI CLUB

Univ. of Vermont Ski Club

Enclosed is $_____ ($50. per person) as deposit for _____ reservation(s) subject to the terms and conditions stated in this flyer.

NAME: (last) _____ (first) _____ HOME PHONE: _____
ADDRESS: _____ BUSINESS PHONE: _____
(State) _____ (Zip) _____ MALE ☐ FEMALE ☐

ROOM PREFERENCE: ☐ Double $279. plus $7.75 tax-service ☐ Triple $259. plus $6.75 tax-service ☐ Quad. $243. plus $6.00 tax-service ☐ Single $315. plus $11.25 tax-service

☐ I desire to purchase in advance a 6 day all area lift ticket $60.

$50. per person deposit is due no later than Nov. 11, 1974. Reservations are taken on a first-come, first-serve basis. After allotment is filled all reservations are on a waitlist basis. To ensure a reservation we suggest deposit be sent immediately.

Full refunds will be made on cancellations received on or before Dec. 3, 1974
No refunds will be permitted on cancellations received after Dec. 3, 1974. . unless applicant can find a qualified replacement.

Signature _____

CONTACT: Rob Kornfield - 862-6119
Ed Sall - 656-4266

Meeting of those Interested Oct. 24
at 8:00PM
in LIVING & LEARNING CENTER Room B 102

TRIP IS LIMITED THIS YEAR TO 40 PEOPLE!

The Survival Of The American Elm

Keep the Green Clean

A program entitled "Dylan and Dutch Elm Disease" will be presented this Sunday, Oct. 20 in the Royall Tyler Theater at 2 p.m. Though the title seems incongruous, the program, planned promises to be a very harmonious occasion. Project Elm and the UVM Theater Department, cosponsors of the program, encourage students, homeowners, and all interested community members to enjoy an afternoon of music, poetry and native photography.

The festivities will include a multi-media interpretation of Dylan Thomas' "Fern Hill." Dr. Samuel Bagenal will read and slides by Susan Morse will be shown to the music of Aaron Copeland's "Appalachian Spring." Following the Dylan Thomas presentation, the award-winning film The American Elm - A Plan for Survival, provided by the Elm Research Institute of New Hampshire will be shown.

Refreshments will be served while a special "Tree Problem Panel" addresses themselves to audience questions on Dutch Elm Disease and any other municipal tree problems. The panel will feature Lloyd Chadwick (Rutland Tree Service) Dr. Gordon Neilsen (UVM Entomologist), Dr. Alan Gottlieb (UVM Plant Pathologist), Dr. Samuel Wiggans (UVM Plant and Soil Science Department), Richard Streeter (UVM Arboriculturalist) and Susan Morse (UVM Project Elm Coordinator).

Project Elm is a student-faculty group started in 1972 by Dr. Gordon Neilsen and Susan Morse. The goals of the group are two-fold: first, to establish a control program of Dutch Elm Disease on the UVM Green and secondly to sponsor Arbor Day activities including tree planting at local schools in the Burlington Community and surrounding areas. The group now consists of UVM students living at Robinson Hall, the UVM Environmental Dormitory and students from schools in the community. To date, Project Elm has planted over 400 trees in the Chittenden Valley.

Project Elm has sponsored fund-raising campaigns and Arbor Day activities in the past. Such events as the "Elm Bark Beetle Beer Bashes" at local fraternities Sigma Phi Epsilon and Delta Psi helped raise funds for the group as well as selling the Elm Tree buttons. Arbor Day activities have included a teaching session at elementary schools and high schools accompanied by tree planting demonstrations.

Project Elm has generated most of the attention given to the UVM Green. They have paid for most of the tree sanitation (tree trimming and fertilizing of all the trees on the Green). They have also maintained treatment for the diseased Elms in the form of Vapan treatment (a process by which the disease is prevented from spreading by roots grafted together. Finally, they have encouraged tree planting activity through the UVM Tree Committee and the Department of Buildings and Grounds.

At the show on Sunday October 20, there will be requests for donations to support 1975 treatment, using the Benlate injection method to control the disease. Project Elm asks that you support their effort to 'Keep the Green Green,' so that their action may serve as a model for similar community-wide action.

... Senate Forum ...

(continued from page nine)

passed by a division of the house.

S. 4 and S. 2 were tabled pending a recommendation by the Finance Committee on what Financial Policy for this year should be. S. 4 is a motion to adopt a financial policy of not funding SA groups for travelling expenses, uniforms or equipment. The intent is to force some of the burden SA is incurring back onto the Athletic Dept.

S. 2 is a motion to allocate $465 to the Sailing Club for races in Massachusetts. The total includes $300 for travelling expenses. It will be tabled until a policy on travelling expenses is drawn up.

New Business

The motion to endorse the Student Task Force on Financial Affairs was made.

A suspension of the rules was approved and the motion was passed.

Entertainment At Redstone

Aardvark Coffee House

Productions opens its second season tonight at 8:30 p.m. in Simpson Hall. Featured tonight will be the folksinger and songwriter who started off last year's series of entertainment, Jim Ringer.

Jim, who is a regular on the national coffee house and folk's festival circuit, has recorded on Bay Records and Folk Legacy before hooking up with the newest and fastest growing small recording label in the country, Philo Records, here in Vermont. His second album on Philo, to be released this winter, features Dave Bromberg and his road band.

Born in the Ozarks, Jim moved with his family to California and worked out west as a construction bum, operating heavy equipment on dam jobs and highway projects, filling in the dry spells with some timber cutting in the logging camps of northern California and Oregon. His life experiences have sharpened his talent for singing the songs of working people with a kind of authority that's rarely heard in the folksong revival.

Jim, a good friend of Kenny Hall (Jim played with the Sweets Mill String Band on Bay Records) and Bruce U. Utah Phillips, travels a lot with his good friend Mary McCaslin who has done harmony, and played guitar on Jim's albums.

Mary McCaslin is from outside of Los Angeles and is also a regular on the national coffee house and folk festival circuit. Her recent album on Philo Records received a very favorable review from Rolling Stone magazine last month.

If you're interested in two to three hours of quality folk music for only 75 cents consider dropping in on Simpson's opening coffee house folk concert tonight at 8:30.

...Right To Know Law

(continued from page one)

that this is an area where reasonable men may differ..."

Additionally, there has been no decision on what should be included in the budget cut recommendations. After the process of decisions on recommendations has been completed, Snelling said, "it will be possible to prepare an agenda... and determine which, if any, portions of the discussion will deal directly with individual personnel contracts and therefore should be held in executive session...

"The law specifically allows such discussions to take place in private in an executive session," Snelling concluded.

University lawyer Matthew Katz outlined for the Cynic the conditions under which such an executive session could take place:

1. Two thirds of the members have to vote for it, in a public meeting.

2. The executive session may take binding action only on certain subjects. Those are contracts, civil actions at law, and criminal prosecutions, where premature public knowledge would place the agency at a disadvantage, real estate transactions, and the appointment or employment of public officers and employees.

3. Discussion of the confirmation of an executive appointee shall be open if the appointee so requests.

4. A disciplinary or dismissal action against a public officer or employee is to be done in private.

5. A clear and imminent peril to the public safety constitutes a condition for an executive session.

Section 313, Executive Sessions

Ch. II, Section 8, of the Vermont Constitution.

Schwartz On Sports

(continued from page thirteen)

In general, this idea stretches down to the college level. I do not feel that most athletes seek to be singled out at the fraternity party or act as a big man on campus. The few that do are definitely known and have developed that image. It is the wrong image and probably hurts the person's character in the long run.

The majority of athletes realize that their competitive athletic career will end when they graduate, especially at a Division II school like Vermont. These people may like to see their picture in the Cynic or the Free Press for an excellent performance. Publicity for a superior performance is good on occasion.

But these individuals are students and not athletes. They want to have a good relationship with their teammates and their coaches. They must look to the future and where their life will lead them. The professional athletic ranks do not call out but the world of medicine, business, social services, and other careers do.

Athletics enter our conversations on a regular basis. Trivia quizzes are big with the guys and girls just love to compare who the handsomest athlete is on the hockey team. But beyond this image is the real image. These are people with superior talents on the athletic field. Someone else is superior when it comes to working with a retarded child, a child from a broken home, writing a movie review, or voicing a political opinion.

After the initial publicity, it's important to be people. For the athlete, in general, he is a person too. It's something we should all remember.

Please be patient.
Our shoes are being made as fast as possible.

We always knew the EARTH* negative heel shoe was a great invention. We knew you'd love them. What we didn't know was that you'd want them faster than it takes to make them.

But it takes time to make a good shoe. And if it was made any faster, if just one detail was left out, it wouldn't be the Earth* brand shoe.

There's a lot more to the Earth shoe than making the heel lower than the toe. The entire sole is specially designed to help you walk naturally and comfortably.

So please be patient. If we're out of your style or size, we'll have it soon.

But remember, just because a shoe looks like ours doesn't mean it works like ours. To be sure you're getting the Earth brand shoe, look on the sole for our Earth trademark and U.S. Patent #3309947.

And believe us, when you do try them, you'll see, they were worth waiting for.

Shoes, sandals, sabots and boots for men and women. From $23.50 to $42.50.

*EARTH is a registered trademark of Kalso Systemet, Inc.
©1974 Kalso Systemet, Inc.

earth shoe

139 BANK STREET

PUT ON THE DOG.
AZTEC STYLE.

Montezuma® Tequila Pup

Montezuma Gold Tequila, 1½ ounces. Honey, 1 teaspoon. Lime juice, 1 lime. Bitters, 1 dash. Mix in shaker with crocked ice. Strain into chilled cocktail glass.

ITZCUINTLI (THE DOG) symbol for the 10th day of the ancient Aztec month

©1974 80 Proof Tequila Barton Distillers Import Co. New York New York

LEVI'S
Pants Plus

12 N. WINOOSKI AVE.
BURLINGTON, VT.
05401
802 • 864-0181

10% OFF WITH VALID UVM ID.

PRE-SEASON SALE!!!!!
This Week at The SWISS CHALET
All Backpacking Equipment in stock
Reduced 20-50%
All Richmore Dehydrated Food
50% off

Downhill Ski Tune up! Cross Country Ski Tune Up!!

Edges Sharpened
Bottoms Flat Filed
Gouges, Scratches Filled
Edges Deburred
Bottoms Waxed
Binding Maintenance Check

$5.95

Remove all excess wax & tar from skis
Sand Bottoms Smooth
Pine tar bottoms (burning tar deep into pores)
Binding Check

(CHECK OUR COMPETITION'S PRICES)

★ 2 Cross Country Ski Packages ★
$55.95 & $74.95
Hickory Soule With Lignastone

NEW!!!! Tecnica Ski Boots From $85.00 to $145.00

We take trade-in Boots on new merchandise

Swiss Chalet
878-8901

Open Daily 9 A.M.-9 P.M.
9-6 Sat.

ATTENTION: You could earn over $500 per month during your senior year, with GUARENTEED Nuclear Power Training.

Be a commissioned Officer aboard a Nuclear Sub or a Nuclear Surface Craft.

Please send me information on the NUCLEAR POWER PROGRAM

SEND TO THE
NAVY INFORMATION TEAM
111 Washington Ave.
Albany, New York 12210

Name _____
Address _____
Phone _____
Grad Date _____
Major _____

See your NAVY INFORMATION TEAM on campus.
Oct. 22-24, 1974 at Billings Center or
call 518-472-4462 TODAY!

Catamount runners round a bend in the eventual winner, is second from the righ

Harriers W

by David J. Roneri

The UVM Harriers defeated Southeastern Massachusetts University, 18-40, in their last dual meet of the season. Mike Berry made another record-breaking run as he clipped one second off his own time on the new home course. Berry ran the course in 25:24.

Bob Graves, another strong runner, placed second in 25:34 and Dave Milligan placed third. Other top finishers for Vermont were Pete Weith and Lynn Capen, who were fifth and seventh respectively.

On Wednesday, Oct. 9, the

College Football Scores

Princeton 14 – Dartmouth 7
Boston College 31 – William and Mary 16
Massachusetts 21 – Boston U. 14
Maine 23 – New Hampshire 9
Delaware 15 – Connecticut 6
Northeastern 23 – A.I.C. 20
Middlebury 25 – Williams 20
Norwich 10 – Tufts 7
Penn. State 55 – Wake Forest 0
Alabama 8 – Florida St. 7
Vanderbilt 24 – Florida 10
Michigan 21 – Michigan St. 7
Notre Dame 10 – Rice 3
Oklahoma 16 – Texas 13
Stanford 13 – UCLA 13

ANNOUNCEMENT: The Gym and the pool will be closed on Friday, October 18, for the S.A. Concert.

Save on Store Demos

New Scott SI
KLH-32
SAE-MKXI
Ultralinear
Ultralinear
AR 4XA - De
ESS-AM T-5
AR2 AX 2 pr

Sony SQO-20
4 Cha
Sony TC824
with Craig 8 Trac
Home

At Redstone

band arks, Jim family to d out west
on burn, tpment on
y projects.
apella with g in the northern
no. His life xpressed his he songs of h a kind of
ly heard in d of Keany

with the land on Bay

ow Law

ds of the ote for it, in a ive session ation only on Those are sons at law, prosecutions,

e public place the vantage, real e, and the ployment of employees
of the n executive appointment shall be open if the appointee so requests.

4. A disciplinary or dismissal action against a public officer or employee is to be done in private.

5. A clear and imminent peril to the public safety constitutes a condition for an executive session.

Section 313. Executive Sessions

Ch. II, Section 8, of the Vermont Constitution.

SP

Schwartz On Sports

(continued from page thirteen)

his idea stretches down to the college level. I do t athletes seek to be singled out at the fraternity a big man on campus. The few that do are and have developed that image. It is the wrong bly hurts the person's character in the long run.
y of athletes realize that their competitive will end when they graduate, especially at a ol like Vermont. These people may like to see the Cynic or the Free Press for an excellent blicity for a superior performance is good on dividuals are students and not athletes. They ood relationship with their teammates and their ust look to the future and where their life will rofessional athletic ranks do not call out but the e, business, social services, and other careers do.

ter our conversations on a regular basis. Trivia with the guys and girls just love to compare who athlete is on the hockey team. But beyond this image. These are people with superior talents on ld. Someone else is superior when it comes to a retarded child, a child from a broken movie review, or voicing a political opinion.
itial publicity, it's important to be people. For general, he is a person too. It's something we mber.

month during your Nuclear Power Training.

or a Nuclear Surface Craft.

SEND TO THE VY INFORMATION TEAM
111 Washington Ave.
Albany, New York 12210

AM on campus.
Center or DAY!

Catamount runners round a bend in the course in the victory over S.E. Mass. Mike Berry, the eventual winner, is second from the right. Photo by Rich Rollins

Harriers Win Two Meets

by David J. Raneri

The UVM Harriers defeated Southeastern Massachusetts University, 18-40, in their last dual meet of the season. Mike Berry made another record-breaking run as he clipped one second off his own time on the new home course. Berry ran the course in 25:24.

Bob Graves, another strong runner, placed second in 25:34 and Dave Milligan placed third. Other top finishers for Vermont were Pete Weith and Lynn Capen, who were fifth and seventh respectively.

On Wednesday, Oct. 9, the Cross Country team hosted the annual Vermont State meet. On the shorter 4.4 mile course, Mike Berry led his team to victory with an excellent performance that shattered the course record by 38 seconds. His time was 21:44.5. The old mark was held by Gerald LaFlamme of Maine with a time of 22:22.4.

Bob Graves placed second in 21:58 while Dave Milligan and Lynn Capen tied for third in 22:50. Howdy Russell finished in seventh place.

The final score was Vermont 17, Middlebury 45, Norwich 88, Castleton 130, and St. Michael's 146.

The team will travel to Troy, N.Y. for a tri-meet with RPI and Williams on Wednesday, Oct. 16. On Saturday they will participate in the Cod Fish Bowl Invitational at Franklin Park in Boston.

College Football Scores

Princeton 14 – Dartmouth 7
Boston College 31 – William and Mary 16
Massachusetts 21 – Boston U. 14
Maine 23 – New Hampshire 9
Delaware 15 – Connecticut 6
Northeastern 23 – A.I.C. 20
Middlebury 25 – Williams 20
Norwich 10 – Tufts 7
Penn. State 55 – Wake Forest 0
Alabama 8 – Florida St. 7
Vanderbilt 24 – Florida 10
Michigan 21 – Michigan St. 7
Notre Dame 10 – Rice 3
Oklahoma 16 – Texas 13
Stanford 13 – UCLA 13

ANNOUNCEMENT: The Gym and the pool will be closed on Friday, October 18, for the S.A. Concert.

Hall Of Fame

Tickets for the sixth annual University of Vermont Athletic Hall of Fame Dinner are now on sale at the UVM Ticket Office, Room 206, Roy L. Patrick Gymnasium, c/o Ed Bartlett, Athletic Business Manager. Set for induction this year are: J. Edward Donnelly, athletic director for 21 years at UVM; Jack Conway, ('28), Carroll Gooch ('29); Arthur Harms ('26); Kiki Price ('28); Enos Ramon ('35); and Clyde Lord ('59). The dinner is open to everyone at $7.50 each. The dinner is set for the University's Simpson Dining Hall, located on the Redstone campus, and will begin at 6 p.m. with a reception followed by the dinner at 7 p.m.

Rams Shutout Cats; Team Record Now 2-3...

(continued from page fourteen)

on the Ram 12-yard line.

In those first two periods, Vermont overshadowed R.I. with a 162-62 edge in total yards. The second half looked like a different game on the field as well as on paper. The Ram gridders took complete charge of the game both offensively and defensively to the delight of most fans. Vermont only ran 11 plays in that half to URI's 41.

The Rhode Island offense had been rearranged at the half and displayed an awesome attack which spelled "good night" for Carl Falevesie's Cats. Led by Rich Remondino and Dan Witaker, both backs, the Rams pounded out two T.D.'s and 180 yards rushing in the second half.

A fine defensive effort by Rhode Island took care of Bateman's passing attack and forced Vermont runners to the sidelines in the second half. Vermont had 41 net yards in that half.

Perhaps Vermont signal caller Bob Bateman and wide receiver Billy Looker summed up the game best. Bateman remarked, "I just didn't read the defenses as well nor did I throw as well as I normally do." Looker added, "I wasn't double covered, but they defend as well and obviously knew what we were doing."

Tony Kurnick

Catamount player of the week was freshman middle guard on defense, Tony Kurnick.

Women's Soccer Team Remains Undefeated

The UVM Women's Soccer team continued its winning ways, chalking up two more victories to bring the season record to 4-0.

On Friday, October 4, the team travelled to Keene, New Hampshire to play Keene State. The girls won 4-0 on goals by Felicia Carpenter, Lynn DelBianco, Susan Durkee, and Barbara Pulling. Excellent defensive play held the Keene team to two shots on goal.

On October 8, they travelled to Castleton for what may be the best match of the season. The team won 4-3 on goals by DelBianco, Durkee, Pulling, and Gail LeBaron. The defense held the potent and usually high scoring Castleton team to three goals, all by their star right inner L. Cheny.

SCHWARTZ ON SPORTS

The image of the athlete is one that can be blown out of proportion. He may be like Joe Namath and build up a public image day in and day out. But this is not the real athlete.

Most athletes both in the pros or at the University are private individuals. Like us they think about life and what they want to achieve. Publicity and recognition are honors that one likes to receive from time to time but there is a limit to recognition.

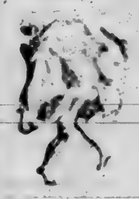
It's like being a newspaper reporter here for the Cynic. You may see your name in print but hope readers want to read the article rather than marvel over your name.

And the same is true of the athlete. For instance, there is the case of Vida Blue of the Oakland Athletics. In the recent playoffs, Blue pitched a brilliant two-hit shutout, perhaps his finest effort as a major leaguer. After the game he did not seek the publicity. He instead mentioned about his search just to be Vida Blue and not Vida Blue, number 14, pitcher. He wants some dignity that his owner, Charles Finley will not let him have. Winning the important playoff game was not of primary importance.

The image an athlete portrays may be like Lou Brock or Claude Humphrey of the football Atlanta Falcons. They work with the community to help enrich the lives of poor and needy children. Their athletic gifts are used for sharing with others and not seeking publicity for their own selfish purposes.

(continued on page twelve)

THE LAST CHANCE SALOON



- OLD TIME MOVIES Sunday Night
- HAPPY HOUR Fri. Afternoon Beer & Burger $1
- 60' SPECIALS Tuesday 7-10

147 MAIN ST.

BEST BUYS IN TOWN

$52.50 Cross Country Ski Package

Package Includes skis, boots, poles, bindings, heelplate heel plate, mounting

The Ski Rack

$38.50 GOOSE DOWN Parka

A Block Below The Howard Bank

658-3313
81-85 Main St.

Bank Americard
Master Charge
Diners Club

Open Daily 9:30-6
Fridays till 9P.M
Saturday 9-5

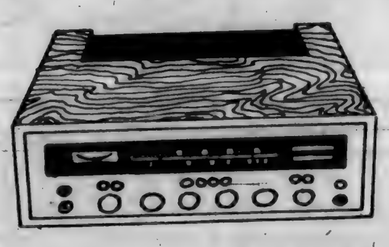
NEW & USED STEREOS

Available at Burlington Store Only

MOVING OUT OF SHELBURNE ROAD STORE

Save on Store Demos

Save on Store Demos



SPEAKERS	Reg.	NOW
New Scott SII	139.00	90.00
KLH-32	119.00 pr.	80.00
SAE-MKXI 100 Watt Speakers	300.00 ea.	150.00
Ultralinear 150A	129.95	60.00
Ultralinear 100A	80.00 ea.	49.00
AR 4XA - Demos	75.00	40.00
ESS-AM T-5 Demos	190.00 ea.	142.00
AR2 AX 2 pr. Demo	140.00	80.00

MISCELLANEOUS	Reg.	NOW
Sony SQO-2050 Adapter 4 Channel	99.00	49.00
Sony TC824tc-8 Track Player with 4 Speakers	300.00	150.00
Craig 8 Track Player Home Unit with 2 Speakers	79.95	60.00

AMPS-RECIEVERS-TUNERS	Reg.	NOW
Lafayette LR-221 - 4-Channel Reciever	359.95	269.00
Technic-SA6000-4 Channel Reciever 70 Watts RMS	429.95	300.00
Technics-SA5400 2-4 Channel 20 Watts RMS	290.00	205.00
Lafayette LR220-4 Channel Reciever 44 Watts RMS	289.95	203.00
Dokorker (used) SX8000 Reciever 50 Watts RMS	399.95	260.00
JVC-5436 Reciever 4 Channel 85 Watts RMS	579.95	434.50
Sony TC-824 TC 20 Watts Used 300 20 Watts	300.00	150.00
Kenwood Tuner-KT6005	289.95	217.50
Kenwood-KA4006 Demo	269.95	202.50
Lafayette LA950 Amplifier 50 Watts RMS	129.95	97.50
Lafayette LR200 AM-FM Reciever 20 Watts RMS	199.00	150.00
Lafayette Tuner AM-FM Dolby	230.00	180.00
Lafayette 4 Channel Reciever 220 Watts RMS	569.95	427.00
Sherwood SEL-300 Tuner	499.00	375.00
Scott-R75-Reciever AM-FM 50-50 RMS	499.00	375.00
Sony ST-5055 AM-FM Tuner	189.95	141.75

TURNTABLES	Reg.	NOW
Garrard Model 70 with Shure M75E Base and Dust Cover	129.00	59.00
Garrard Model 62 with Shure M55E Base & Dust Cover	89.00	62.00
Garrard X10 with Base & Dust Cover	59.95	45.00
Garrard 74 M/S with M91ED Base & Dust Cover	129.00	75.00
Miricord- 650 Turntable with Shure M55E Base & Dust Cover	189.00
JVC– Manual with Base & Dust Cover Shure M55E	170.00	139.00
BSR - 310X Turntable Demo		30.00

TAPE DECKS
Sony Cassette - TC129	149.95	120.00
JVC - Cassette	149.95	120.00
JVC - Cassette 1668	300.00	200.00
TEAC - TC160	259.00	200.00
Dokorder - 7100	499.95	350.00
'Reel to Reel Reversing Technics RS-714US - 7" 3 Motors Reel Reel	479.00	350.00

LAFAYETTE®

370 Shelburne Rd. Burlington
157 Pearl St. Essex Junction

Soccer Team Shutout By URI 3-0

The Catamount Soccer team had a three game winning streak broken as the Rhode Island Rams defeated the UVM Booters 3-0. The game took place last Saturday morning in Kingston, Rhode Island.

Early goals in both halves provided the edge for the Rams as the Vermont attack was contained throughout the contest. John Koerner had scored four goals in a 4-0 rout of St. Michael's earlier in the week but against URI he and his teammates could not put the ball in the net.

Mike Stricklin, a junior forward, scored the Rams first goal with but 30 seconds gone in the game. Stricklin had received a lead pass from Dan McCrudden and broke in on goal unmolested. The shot easily beat UVM goalie, Jim Taft.

McCrudden then tallied the second score at 25:08 of the half. He converted an unassisted play after a scramble in front of the UVM goal.

McCrudden was the nemesis again at 30 seconds into the second half. He set up Vic Gospel in front of the UVM net who beat Taft to the ball. This final tally made the score URI-3 and UVM-0.

For the rest of the game, the Cats could not play catchup. The domination of the Rams is apparent in the final shots on goal statistics. The URI team had 28 shots to the Cats 13. Taft had 10 saves and URI goalie, Kevin Daley had 6.

The Cats are now 4-3 on the season and the URI team 2-2-2. In Yankee Conference action, UVM is 1-2. After a game on Wednesday at Norwich, the Cats play UNH at home on Friday afternoon at 3:00.

Rugby Club Is Beaten

The UVM Rugby Club suffered a loss at the hands of the McGill Rugby Club 26-14 in Montreal's Moslon Stadium on Sunday. McGill with a good offense, wasted no time in scoring as they built a 14-0 lead in the opening minutes of play. Led by their forwards, the McGill team scored three four point tries but only made one two point conversion.

UVM then scored when Tracy Hauseman crossed the goal line. The conversion made the score McGill 14, UVM 6 at the half.

In the beginning of the second half, UVM lost the services of Steve Farrar, who injured his shoulder. With Vermont a man down, McGill took advantage and scored two more times and added conversions after both scores. UVM capped the scoring when Marcel Bereron picked up a bouncing ball on the McGill five yard line and brought it in for the score. The conversion was good. The next home game for the Rugby Club will be this Saturday at 1:00 p.m. when they host the Rhode Island Rugby Club at the Archy Post Field.

U.V.M. SPORTS

Chuck Casella Beats the URI defense and catches a Bob Bateman pass in the game last Saturday. Photo: R. Low

Rhode Island Downs Vermont 14-0

by Charlie Grace

The University of Vermont football squad fell victim to the lost Rhode Island Rams 14-0 at Kingston, R.I. Saturday in a Yankee Conference match.

It was homecoming weekend there and Rhode Island's coach, Jack Gregor, who has had good luck against the Cats in the last five years (4-1), gave the partisan crowd something to cheer about. His revamped offense shrugged off first half inconsistency and scored the game's only points, two touchdowns, in the final period.

The Catamounts, now 2-3 on the season, looked far from the well-drilled and superb team they can be. This was to be a "key" game for Vermont, and a win would have boosted their record to above .500. Moreover, they needed to prove the U.Mass. upset the week before was no fluke. Well, that will just have to wait a few more days until Saturday's 1:30 clash with New Hampshire.

Inconsistency was the mark of the on-again, off-again Cats, who played their game only in spurts Saturday. Vermont controlled the tempo during most of the first half, but when it came time to score, nothing seemed to go their way.

For instance, two plays after the opening kickoff, Vermont recovered a fumble on the URI 43. The backfield took charge and drove to the 32 for a first down. Larry Lockwood got the next two calls and netted nine. On third and fourth downs, Sam Blood and Lockwood were both racked at the line – and so URI took over possession deep in their own territory.

Several other chances to score in the first half went by the boards: the Catamount had three drives inside the 15-yard line halted; one touchdown was called back on a clip and a long gainer to the five-yard line was brought back because of a holding call.

A knee injury sustained previously by George Brunst, Vermont's place kicker, negated the kicking game and a number of possible field goals. This forced Vermont to go for yardage on fourth downs when a field goal would have sufficed.

The one play in the first half that could have doomed the Rams instead cast a foreboding shadow upon the Cats. Toward the end of the second period, Vermont received a Rhode Island punt and put the ball in play at the Ram 42 in good field position.

Quickly quarterback Bob Bateman connected for a first down to end Chuck Casella at the Rhode Island 23; the Cat attack was rolling on. A couple of plays later Bateman scrambled out of the pocket and fired to a lonesome Casella again and he danced to the end zone for an apparent T.D. However, a clipping infraction on the play nullified the effort and the six points. UVM came close again only to have the half end scoreless, with the ball resting

(continued on page thirteen)

Women's Volleyball

The UVM Women's Volleyball team will have an organizational meeting tonight at 7:15 p.m. in the North Lounge of the Southwick Gymnasium. All interested undergraduate women are invited to attend. If you want to play but cannot attend this important meeting, call Coach Schiller at 656-3240 or see her at Southwick, third floor. The meeting will be brief and will cover physicals (required), practices, schedule of games, travel, etc.

CLASSIFIED

Motorcycle & Bicycle storage. Pine St., Burlington. For information, call 864-0779 anytime.

Judy, who drove a carload of rock climbers to Bolton Sunday, did you find a watch in your car? If so, please call Ellen, 3203. Thanks.

Ride available Ithaca, N.Y., Oct. 17, 1:30 p.m. Call Debbie, 863-1413.

Room to Rent, private bath, shared kitchen, 10 min. walk from campus. $80/month + utilities. Call Lauren 24 Russell St., 863-3374.

Riders wanted to D.C. – Leaving Wednesday morning. Call Lauren, 863-3374.

Violin for sale (includes bow) – asking $70 or best offer. Call 862-6832. Ask for Craig.

For sale: Leather pocketbooks made to order. $15. Call 862-6832. Ask for Craig.

Head 360's/Look Nevada 204 cm $50. Lange Pros size 10½ $50. Nordica Boots size 10 $20. Scott 878-8631.

For Sale: 1962 Volkswagon. New rebuilt engine. Brakes, shocks: body, electrical needs little work: $300. Call Bill Spina 434-2821 or Box 365 UVM Med School.

Hiking boots, men's size 7. $20. Good 735-14 tire mounted, balanced on Pontiac rim, with wheel cover, $12. Bumper jack, $2. New Buck hunting knife, $12. Antique engraved shotgun, $65. 655-2631 after 6 p.m.

Good Car: '63 Ford 6cyl. Standard, rebuilt engine, 2 new tires, new battery, rebuilt front end, good interior and exterior. $125. Also 2 excellent snow tires on Ford rims, $30 separately or 420 with car. 655-2631 after 6 p.m.

Tired of staying in the kitchen during your own party? And facing the pile of dishes afterwards? Let us do the work. Call 655-3279.

Bike Stolen: Atalia Grand Prix; Silver; w/rack. (Kruesi stamped on handle bar.) Reward. Vicinity Austin Hall, Rm. 401.

1969 Volvo, good running condition. $700 or best offer. Call Steve, 863-9257.

Earn up to $1200 a school year hanging posters on campus in spare time. Send name, address, phone and school to: Coordinator of Campus Representatives, P.O. Box 1384, Ann Arbor, Mi. 48106.

Ride needed from Shelburne (Long Meadow area) to UVM on Mondays & Wednesdays for an 8:00 class. Call Debi, 985-8550.

For Sale – Dynaco A-35 Stereo amplifier. 17½ watts RMS per channel. Bought new for $120.00. Sell now for $60.00. Excellent condition. Call Mike 862-4684.

LEARNING TO SKI ? READ THIS AD !

Equipment does not have to be expensive to be of quality, especially at a DISCOUNT HOUSE !

WE HAVE:
Dunham & Rosemount Ski Boots
19.95 – 34.00
Hagen & Fiberstar Skis For 49.95

Womens Ski Pants sizes 8-18 – 9.95
★ THIS IS FOR REAL ★

WAREHOUSE 12 SPORTS ANNEX LTD.
372 DORSET STREET
S. BURLINGTON 864-5843

UNIVERSITY STORE ON THE CAMPUS
SALE!
One Week Only!!
Don't Miss it!!
Savings of up to 60% off regular prices on
POSTERS, ART PRINTS & REPRODUCTIONS
Reduced prices on special group of records
Savings on many other items

THE 1974 ARIEL HAS ARRIVED!!!!
AVAILABLE TO ALL STUDENTS WHILE THEY LAST!!!!
PRICE $1.00
YOU WILL FIND THEM IN UPSTAIRS BILLINGS CENTER
THURSDAY & FRIDAY 10 am. - 3 pm.
ALSO AVAILABLE IN ARIEL OFFICE IN THE EVENING
GET YOURS WHILE THE SUPPLY LASTS!!!!!

VALUABLE COUPON
SAVE
SPECIAL TO STUDENTS AND FACULTY MEMBERS
10% DISCOUNT
ON YOUR PURCHASES AT
CAMPUS PHARMACY
ACROSS FROM
The Medical Center

REILLY TIRE COMPANY
FROM RECAPS TO RADIALS
WE HAVE IT
BE PSYCHED AND SET FOR THE SNOW !
Inverno etna
PIRELLI
Mohawk Storm Trac
• 4 ply nylon - 78 series
• Exclusive Zero-Flex tread – provides pull at below-zero temperatures.
• Deep wide sidewalls
• Tough, deep tread
• Priced – ready for that application
ACCOMPANIED BY A COPY OF THIS AD
ACCESSIBLE TO UVM
31 San Remo Drive
So. Burlington

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days)
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD. SUITE 412
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only

OCTOBER 24, 1974
VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 22

Salmon F... Is Ke...

by Barbara Frankel

Governor Salmon, currently campaigning for reelection, has some strong ideas on inflation, campaign reforms, the state land-use plan and nuclear power plants. The Governor feels his two-year term has given him the needed experience to continue providing "effective leadership" to the people of Vermont.

The Governor contends that the main difference between his opponent, House Speaker "Peanut" Kennedy and himself is their respective experience. Kennedy's background is solidly in the legislative end of the political spectrum. Salmon has been a lawyer, legislator, judge, prosecutor and governor. "Leadership requires a little bit more today than political speeches and promises," Salmon stated.

Salmon believes that President Ford's performance, with one exception, has been good so far. Although the two politicians have great ideological differences, Salmon feels Ford is trying to do the right thing. "Compared to the last man who held this office, he is a breath of air," commented Salmon. He strongly disapproves, however, of Ford's pardon of former president Richard Nixon. "I think he was trying to do what's best, but with his fundamental, conservative old time religion and the people surrounding him, he may not be able to do the right thing..." Salmon noted.

Salmon views effective control of prices and wages as the two major ways to fight inflation. He is hopeful for the country, especially for Vermont. In his own campaign, Salmon feels economic issues are overwhelmingly important. "Understanding the national and international ramifications of economic issues is important. I think I've got the background to help Vermont," the Governor stated.

Salmon criticize... Kennedy's tax plan... commenting that House

Women's ... Focuses ...

by Debbie Adler

The Women's Caucus of UVM sponsored a symposium on rape last Thursday in the Memorial Lounge of Waterman.

A panel of six women discussed the medical, legal, and psychological aspects of rape. Helen Brink, an administrative associate at the College of Medicine and founding president of the UVM's Women's Caucus, was the moderator of the discussion. An audience of approximately one hundred people attended.

Maureen Dewan, who is presently working at the state attorney's office, spoke on the legal problems concerning rape. Having tried and convicted two rapists this past year, she presented facutal information on what to do after the crime occurs.

She said the first thing a would should do after she has been raped is to report it immediately, telling the first person she sees that she has been raped. This fulfills Vermont's requirement for corroboration, which is necessary for prosecution. This witness can then testify as to victim's appearance and state of mind immediately after the crime. The woman should not bathe, change her clothes or douche since the physical examination after the act is most important in obtaining evidence. In the emergency room of any hospital, Mary Fletcher included, vaginal, vulva, and cervical smears are taken. Through the sperm content in these smears, it is possible to determine the blood type of the rapist about eighty percent of the time.

The next important move is to make a statement to the police. Dewan has found that the Chittenden County police are often embarrassed but have a lot of respect for the victim. Usually she or a policewoman is contacted and is present at the first police questioning.

Dewan advises women, attacked, to make a conscious effort to remember any distinguishing features of the rapist. Even if her case is unsuccessful, this identifica...

OCTOBER 17, 1974

...RTS

...me last Saturday. Photo: R. Law

...ermont 14-0

...o plays after ...off, Vermont ...e on the URI ...took charge ...32 for a first ...wood got the ...d netted nine. ...h downs, Sam ...od were both ...—and so URI ...sion deep in ...y.

...r chances to ...half went by ...Catamount had ...de the 15-yard ...touchdown was ...clip and a long ...-yard line was ...because of a ...

...jury sustained ...George Brunst, ...kicker, negated ...e and a number ...id goals. This ...nt to go for yardage on fourth downs when a field goal would have sufficed.

The one play in the first half that could have doomed the Rams instead cast a foreboding shadow upon the Cats. Toward the end of the second period, Vermont received a Rhode Island punt and put the ball in play at the Ram 42 in good field position.

Quickly quarterback Bob Bateman connected for a first down to end Chuck Casella at the Rhode Island 23; the Cat attack was rolling on. A couple of plays later Bateman scrambled out of the pocket and fired to a lonesome Casella again and he danced to the end zone for an apparent T.D. However, a clipping infraction on the play nullified the effort and the six points. UVM came close again only to have the half end scoreless, with the ball resting

(continued on page thirteen)

...LE COUPON

...STUDENTS
...TY MEMBERS

...COUNT
...URCHASES AT
...PHARMACY
...S FROM
...ical Center

...RE COMPANY
...PS TO RADIALS
...AVE IT

...vernio etna

...RELLI

Mohawk Storm Trac

- 4 ply nylon - 78 series
- Exclusive Zero-Flex tread — provides soft or hollow-core temperature.
- Dual white sidewalls
- Tough, deep tread
- Plowed—ready for sled application

...CCESSIBLE TO UVM
31 San Remo Drive
So. Burlington
(Behind Burlington Rent-All)

OCTOBER 24, 1974
VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 22

VERMONT CYNIC

University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont

'Tis a Privilege to Live in Vermont

Salmon Feels Experience Is Key To Leadership

by Barbara Frankel

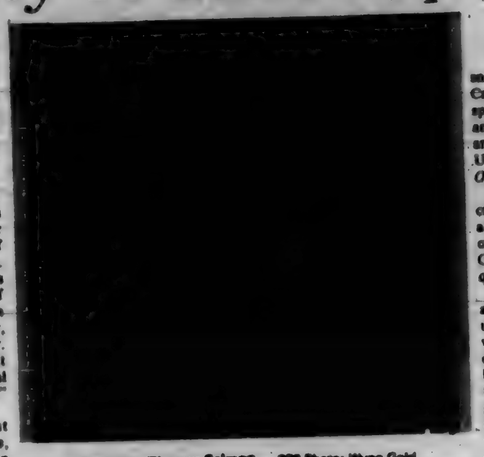
Governor Salmon, currently campaigning for reelection, has some strong ideas on inflation, campaign reforms, the state land-use plan and nuclear power plants. The Governor feels his two-year term has given him the needed experience to continue providing "effective leadership" to the people of Vermont.

The Governor contends that the main difference between his opponent, House Speaker "Peanut" Kennedy and himself is their respective experience. Kennedy's background is solidly in the legislative end of the political spectrum. Salmon has been a lawyer, legislator, judge, prosecutor and governor. "Leadership requires a little bit more today than political speeches and promises," Salmon stated.

Salmon believes that President Ford's performance, with one exception, has been good so far. Although the two politicians have great ideological differences, Salmon feels Ford is trying to do the right thing. "Compared to the last man who held this office, he is a breath of air," commented Salmon. He strongly disapproves, however, of Ford's pardon of former president Richard Nixon. "I think he was trying to do what's best, but with his fundamental, conservative old time religion and the people surrounding him, he may not be able to do the right thing...." Salmon noted.

Salmon views effective control of prices and wages as the two major ways to fight inflation. He is hopeful for the country, especially for Vermont. In his own campaign, Salmon feels economic issues are overwhelmingly important. "Understanding the national and international ramifications of economic issues is important. I think I've got the background to help Vermont," the Governor stated.

Salmon criticize Kennedy's tax plans, commenting that House



Governor Thomas Salmon SPS Photo: Wynn Gold

Speaker Kennedy does not understand the budget. Calling Kennedy's proposed budget a "promise them anything" approach, Salmon added that his opponent's cuts were quite impractical. He cited, for example, Kennedy's plan to dismantle the state's environmental plan. "This would send the state back to the Dark Ages," Salmon commented.

Governor Salmon believes the $40,000 maximum campaign spending rule for Vermont gubernatorial candidates is "just about the right sum." Answering the many charges that incumbents are highly advantaged in an election, Salmon noted, "There are advantages and disadvantages. One advantage is the high recognition factor. One disadvantage, if you adhere to the Harry Truman philosophy of 'The buck stops here' is that any incumbent may make adversaries through unpopular decisions."

"I'd like to see campaign reform," Salmon added. He remarked that the Republican party made $70,000 on President Ford's recent visit. No one knows, according to Salmon, where that money will go. "I'd like to see strict accountability, requiring every source known, whether directly or indirectly," stated Governor Salmon. When asked if the Democratic party does this, he replied, "Tom Salmon does this. I account for 100 cents of every dollar."

The Governor feels the battle ban has been an overwhelming success. "It's been a rip-roaring success in terms of cleaning up our roadsides and streamsides," he noted. He believes the American people must get the message across to the soft-drink manufacturers and brewers that the people want refillable containers. Once this is done, in Salmon's opinion, the bottle plan will no longer be needed. Salmon feels Kennedy has been extremely ambiguous in his criticism of the bottle ban. "I'm convinced that an overwhelming number of Vermonters support this legislature despite its faults and

(continued on page eight)

2,000 Say "Danke Schoen" To UVM's Second Oktoberfest

by Margo Howland

The whirl of autumn's first snowflakes over Redstone Campus did little to chill the spirits of hundreds of students and townsfolk from miles around as they celebrated UVM's second annual Oktoberfest Sunday afternoon.

Some 2000 persons crowded the WDW lounge, admiring the numerous displays of arts and crafts, feasting on German-style cuisine, and quaffing mugs of beer.

Over 40 crafts people arrived for the occasion, setting up displays of silversmithing, woodworking, pottery and ceramics, sand candles, herbs, batik, rug-hooking, stuffed toys, quilts, leather hats and gloves, dolls, homespun wool articles, stained glass decorations and photography exhibits. One man had a number of small, attractive terrariums, complete with moss, lichens and colorful partridge-berries.

A German-style band, "Wendell Cook's Band" from Burlington, played catchy dance music. In one corner, a puppet show attracted dozens of small children. Apples and cider were on sale at one table, and a Germanized Barbara Schenk, outfitted in lederhosen, announced events periodically from the depths of a giant cuckoo clock.

Outside, hardy alpinists braved the brick facade of Mason Hall in a rapelling exhibition, and by the WDW patio, scores of persons watched a pie-eating contest -- with Bavarian cream pie.

By Simpson Hall, another event attracted passers-by. For a quarter, one had the privilege of shooting arrows at an apple on William Tell's head. (Mr. Tell was constructed of straw bales and a pumpkin.)

Successful marksmen received an apple (but not the one they shot at.)

Bill Flanagan, supervisor of the festivities and an RA from Wilks Hall, talked about the planning involved.

"The Redstone Residence Hall staff were the ones that got it off the ground. We did most of the planning and the students carried it out. They are the ones that got it going."

Most of the craft people were invited by letter to participate, according to Flanagan. Some said they heard about it through friends.

Flanagan said that all money made by the Oktobetfest would go back to the Inter-Residence Association and the Student Association, which funded the event. SAGA provided the food.

"We're not making any money on this: what we're trying to do is break even," he said.

The freezing temperatures forced the festival to be held indoors rather than on the Redstone Green. This raised a few problems.

There were so many craft exhibits that two or three had to be moved to adjoining rooms. One silversmith was rather annoyed, claiming he wasn't getting much attention because nobody knew about his exhibit.

"Next year we'll have the craft people pay a fee," decided Flanagan.

One front table had been set aside for thirsty patrons to sit down with their beers, but before it could be marked as such, it was used for another purpose.

A local Liberty Union candidate and a number of party faithful arrived unexpectedly, and, spying an apparently empty table, appropriated it for their campaign literature. This caused a few ruffled feelings.

The only other noticeable problem was caused by space limitations. The WDW lounge, large as it is, was filled to overflowing with the sightseers. This made walking around considerably difficult, especially by the refreshment stands. The crowd was orderly, however.

The craft people were evidently enjoying the opportunity to display their wares.

"I'm having a lot of fun," said a woodcarver, displaying an array of hand-carved wooden clocks and carving on a board as he spoke.

Many of the craft people came from the Farmers Market on Church Street. Others had shops of their own, and others sold from their homes.

One such woman was Louise Maynard, of Milton, who had an array of stuffed toys and dolls and crocheted items. Next to her was Mitzi Gowand, who displayed several hooked rugs in natural "earth" colors. She dyes the wool yarn herself and creates her own designs. She has exhibited her work at Frog Hollow and The Women's Exchange in New York.

One husband-and-wife team had two displays side-by-side. The woman, Blanche, had a collection of dolls -- Raggedy Anns, cloth dolls with china heads, granny dolls with apple faces, and corn husk dolls -- all handmade.

She was asked about the china dolls with cloth bodies: did she order the parts?

Blanche indicated her husband, standing behind a table of ceramic figurines. "He makes them," she said.

One woman had a novel approach to making patchwork quilts, tablecloths and pillows. An interior designer from Hanover, New Hampshire, Joanne Astor, said "Each one is designed with something in mind. This one has a Valentine motif. All are designed with a color scheme in mind as well as fabric coordination." She pointed out several pieces of a tie in one quilt.

Although most craft people answered questions readily, a few appeared to be uneasy at the sight of a pencil and paper. "I hope this doesn't get to the police," ventured a Middlebury potter. When asked why, he rather lamely passed off the remark as a "joke."

One busy spot was the German cuisine counter. German chocolate cake, strudel, and frosted fruit turnovers, made by Saga, were selling like -- well, hotcakes!

In the span of two years, the UVM Oktoberfest has grown from a small folk day to a phenomenally successful campus-wide event.

Bill Flanagan was optimistic about the future of Oktoberfest.

"We hope students will look forward to this weekend as one of the biggest weekends of the year. We want to build tradition. I hope it can replace Kake Walk. I am of the personal opinion that traditions are important. And with a little luck it'll catch on and be a big thing."

Oktoberfest Eats SPS Photo: Wynn Gold

Women's Caucus Symposium Focuses On Rape Problem

by Debbie Adler

The Women's Caucus of UVM sponsored a symposium on rape last Thursday in the Memorial Lounge of Waterman.

A panel of six women discussed the medical, legal, and psychological aspects of rape. Helen Brink, an administrative associate at the College of Medicine and founding president of the UVM's Women's Caucus, was the moderator of the discussion. An audience of approximately one hundred people attended.

Maureen Dewan, who is presently working at the state attorney's office, spoke on the legal problems concerning rape. Having tried and convicted two rapists this past year, she presented facutal information on what to do after the crime occurs.

She said the first thing a would should do after she has been raped is to report it immediately, telling the first person she sees that she has been raped. This fulfills Vermont's requirement for corroboration, which is necessary for prosecution. This witness can then testify as to victim's appearance and state of mind immediately after the crime. The woman should not bathe, change her clothes or douche, since the physical examination after the act is most important in obtaining evidence. In the emergency room of any hospital, Mary Fletcher included, vaginal, vulva, and cervical smears are taken. Through the sperm content in these smears, it is possible to determine the blood type of the rapist about eighty percent of the time.

The next important move is to make a statement to the police. Dewan has found that the Chittenden County police are often embarrassed but have a lot of respect for the victim. Usually she or a policewoman is contacted and is present at the first police questioning.

Dewan advises women, if attacked, to make a conscious effort to remember any distinguishing features of the rapist. Even if her case is not successful, this identification can be instrumental in another woman's case as most rapists attack more than once.

Dr. Joanna Shaw, the next speaker, an assistant professor of psychiatry at the College of Medicine, spoke on the medical and psychological aspects of rape. She presented the typical circumstances that apply to rape on a college campus.

The girl is usually twenty years of age. The crime is most likely to occur over a weekend during the evening hours in the women's dorm or house. The majority of rapists in the college-age group are either drunk or on drugs. The man will force his way into the woman's room and threaten her with physical violence possibly using a weapon. Statistically women do not resist rape.

The victim's first reaction is one of disbelief but soon the feelings of terror and confusion set in. She begins to wonder what her parents will think of her. After the crime, if not brutally raped, the woman is greatly relieved that the whole thing is over and has a need to wipe the whole incident out of her mind: destroy her clothing, and take a long shower. Instead, the police should be notified, and she should go to the hospital for a physical examination. The Emergency Room, however, is presently set up to treat physical trauma only, not psychological trauma. This is in the process of being changed to accomodate the emotional after-effects of rape.

Several decisions face the victim in the next few hours: should she let her family know? Should she prosecute? If she is not on contraceptives and there is a possibility of pregnancy, should she take the "morning after pill", or consider abortion? Should penicillin be taken to prevent venereal disease?

After this initial state of confusion abates, the woman tends to change her room, her boyfriend, her job, go on vacation -- all to forget what has happened. She truly thinks she has overcome her fears and shame until she experiences nightmares, flashbacks, and sexual troubles. Dr. Shaw feels counselling can help prepare a victim for these delayed psychological effects.

The aspect of guilt as a result

(continued on page eight)

Pro-Abortion Cohen Fights Uphill Battle

Rep. Esther H. Cohen, Veteran legislator from Burlington, who represents more than half of the University of Vermont campus, is facing an uphill fight for reelection this November.

Because Esther Cohen was defeated by 45 votes in the Democratic Primary by J. Randall Niquette of Winooski, she is running as an Independent-Democrat in the November 5 election. Cohen, noted for her long-time support of liberal issues, said, "With strong Burlington support, I feel confident that I can be reelected."

Rep. Esther Cohen's new district, 4-2, includes 1200 voters from Burlington and 600 voters from Winooski. UVM residences igher district include the Living Learning Center, Harris-Millis, Tupper Hall, Austin Hall, Marsh Hall, Converse, Buckham Hall, Chittenden Hall, and Willis Hall.

In the primary election Niquette accused his opponent of being the co-sponsor of "anti-life liberal abortion legislation." Rep. Esther Cohen responded that abortion "is a false issue which has been decided by the courts and it is no longer a state matter. Anybody who is against it for any reason shouldn't have an abortion, but people who don't feel that way should have that option."

Rep. Esther Cohen was one of nine legislators who had a 100 per cent VPIRG voting record which was based on support of such bills as the bottle ban, the Equal Rights Amendment, Act 250, and the Lifeline bill.

Representative Esther Cohen

The Burlington legislator stressed that voter participation is vital to the health of our political system. "I realize that many students are disillusioned with our government because of recent events. But in Vermont things are different. In a local race such as this, one vote does make a difference," she said.

Rep. Cohen said she will work for stemming off an increase in UVM tuition and for increased funding for the Vermont Student Assistance Corporation. She said that residency requirements for in-state tuition "should be more clearly defined so that all students are treated fairly."

She plans to support the landlord-tenant bill in the next legislative session and will work for plugging loopholes in the Vermont income tax. As a member of the New England Board of Higher Education, Rep. Esther Cohen supports the establishment of a New England veterinary school.

Esther Cohen received the 1971 Distinguished Community Service Award of the Greater Burlington Community and has

(continued on page thirteen)

Liberty Union's Sanders Fights Controlling Interests

by Randy Jansen

Bernard Sanders is the Liberty Union Candidate for Senator. He ran unsuccessfully for Governor in the last election, but is "running to win" in the current election.

Sanders' basic theme is that "a very small handful of the population, about two per cent, control the economic and political life of this country, and if any amount of change is going to come about, working people, the elderly and the young are going to have to join together and fight back."

A redistribution of money is a major part of Sanders' campaign. Speaking along this line, he said, "I find it intolerable that there are people in this country that have millions of dollars in wealth, like Rockefeller, who can control hundreds of millions of dollars in our economic life. I would push and fight for fundamental changes in our tax system which will limit the assets and amount of money an individual can have."

Sanders feels that a million dollars in assets would be a comfortable limit. To accomplish that goal, he would institute taxes on excess wealth.

Wealth and power are synonymous with Sanders. He pointed this out, claiming that the Rockefeller family controls Exxon, Mobil, Standard Oil of California, Standard Oil of Indiana, Northern Oil, three of six largest banks in the U.S., and three of the four largest life insurance companies in the U.S.

"If democracy is to be preserved, wealth and power have to be broken up," said Sanders.

Commenting on corporate disclosures by Senator Muskie and Senator Metcalf, Sanders said that the Chase Manhattan Bank, (which is controlled by the Rockefellers) controls ATT, CBS, NBC, Union Carbide, General Electric, Western Airline, Northwestern Airline, National Airline, American Airline and Safeway Stores. Sanders thinks that multi-billion banks exert a dangerous and inaccurate impact on the entire country.

Sanders would like to see many cuts in the Federal budget. Foremost of these would be substantial cuts in the Defense budget: "I would like to see an end to all military aid to military dictatorships." Included in this proposal would be elimination of the CIA. Sanders feels the CIA is a dangerous institution which receives ten million dollars anfiually. "The CIA have intervened in Chile, Iran, Guatamala, Indonesia, Greece, Cambodia, Bolivia, etc."

Senatorial Debate

The candidates for U.S. Senate from Vermont will debate at the Patrick Gym on Monday, October 28th at 7:30 p.m.

Patrick Leahy, Democratic candidate; Richard Mallary, Republican candidate; and Bernard Sanders, Liberty Union candidate are seeking the seat in the U.S. Senate to be vacated by Senator George Aiken who is retiring after serving in the Senate for 34 years.

The candidates have been actively campaigning toward the general election in November which is now less than two weeks away. They were recently involved in a debate at Johnson State College.

Leahy was appointed as Chittenden County State's Attorney in 1966 and was the first full-time state's attorney in Vermont. He is presently serving in this position.

Mallary is Vermont's representative in the U.S. House of Representatives, a position that he was originally elected to in the January 1972 Special Election. Prior to that election, he had been Secretary of Administration in Vermont under Governor Davis.

Sanders has been working with the Liberty Union Party since October 1971. He ran for U.S. Senate in the Special Election of November 1971, but lost that election to Senator Robert Stafford. Sanders ran for Governor on the Liberty Union ticket in 1972. Salmon won that race. He is presently working with the Bread and Law Task Force and has been since 1972.

The candidates will be together, probably for the last time before the November 5th election, for the debate next Monday evening. The debate is being sponsored by the UVM Student Association Speakers Bureau and according to Speakers' Bureau Chairman, Dick Cassidy, the format for the evening will be similar to the October 3rd Congressional candidates debate.

The candidates will each have a period for an opening statement followed by a period for rebuttal followed by questions from the audience which will conclude the program.

"This format worked well at the October 3rd debate," Cassidy said. "The people in the audience had an opportunity to get their questions answered by all of the candidates and to compare them. This is really the intent behind these programs."

Featured This Week
Vermonters For Congress Debate...p.3

Open Season Attacks Again...p.5

Table Of Contents

Arts & Entertainment . . . . . p. 6
Calendar/Announcements . . . . . p. 2
Crossword Puzzle . . . . . p. 7
Editorial . . . . . p. 4
Op. Ed. . . . . p. 6
Sports . . . . . p. 14

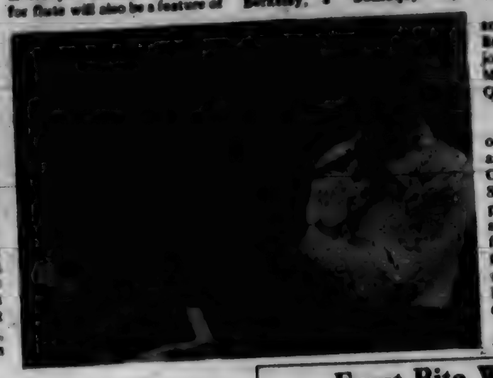
- CALENDAR and ANNOUNCEMENTS -

Classical Concert To Be Performed At Fleming

Music for flute and piano from two distinct periods, the contemporary and the late classical-early romantic, will be performed Friday, October 25 in a concert by Jane Ambrose and Elizabeth Metcalfe of the University of Vermont music faculty.

Their recital at 8 p.m. in the Marble Court, Fleming Museum, will feature sonatinas by Franz Danzi and Gaetano Donizetti, and a Rondo by Franz Xaver Mozart, the youngest son of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, representing the late classical-early romantic idiom. These pieces, all of which have been published for the first time during the past five years, will be first performances in Burlington.

Works representing the diversity in recent composition for flute will also be a feature of the recital, and will include sonatas by Heiden and Lennox Berkeley, a "Soliloquy" by Canadian composer Harry Freedman, and a prize-winning quintet by David Diamond.



Thomas Read, Roger Gillim and Bettina Roulier of the Con Brio Chamber Ensemble will join Mrs. Ambrose and Mrs. Metcalfe for the Diamond Quintet.

Mrs. Ambrose is a graduate of the University of Toronto and an Associate of the Royal Conservatory of Music there. She has been an instructor of piano and harpsichord at UVM since 1967. Both performers are familiar to Vermont audiences for their regular performances with the UVM Baroque Ensemble and the Con Brio Chamber Ensemble.

The Friday recital is free and open to the public.

"Play Strindberg" At Billings

Live theatre returns to Billings in November with a production of Friederich Durrenmatt's Play Strindberg, sponsored by the Billings Center Governing Board.

In the past, the Governing Board has presented The Boys in the Band, The Man Who Came to Dinner, Happy Birthday, Wanda June, three one-act plays by Yeats and The Glass Menagerie.

Play Strindberg will run in the spac (round room) at Billings November 7 – 10 at 8:00 p.m., and will be the first production there to be performed completely in the round. Two rows of seats will encircle the acting area, preserving the space's intimate atmosphere and limiting each night's audience to about 100 persons.

Play Strindberg is a witty, fast-paced re-working of August Strindberg's Dance of Death. "Out of an actor's play I made a play for acting," says Herr Durrenmatt of his work. "Out of a bourgeois marriage tragedy developed a comedy about bourgeois marriage tragedies."

Tickets for Play Strindberg will be on sale in the main lobby at Billings October 30 November 6 from 10:30 to 2:30 daily. Tickets are $1.00 and all are urged to buy them in advance.

Economics Meetings

There will be an important meeting of all economics majors and prospective majors on October 31, 1974, at 3:00 p.m.

The meeting will be held in The John Dewey Lounge, Old Mill. Come meet your chairman and student representatives. Refreshments served.

A Solution For To Much To Do

The time has come, the professor said, to think of many things: Of term papers and hourlies and final kinds of exams. How can I, yelped the undergrad, when I have too much to do? The counselor spoke up and said where there's a will there's a way. Call the Counseling Center at 3340, or drop in today. Study guides are available here, both published and personal. We have groups, a slide show, and programmed instruction, geared to your particular persuasion.

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER®

Downtown Burlington

Essex Junction

Frost Bite Weekend

November 1 – 3 the whole campus is invited to challenge "Frost Bite." Yes this is a "low key" trip. What about those people on Billings lately? Where will they be? How about the bickers, the hanggliders, the campers, the hikers, and canoeists? By Admissions statistics that only leaves about 13 per cent of you back in the dorms.

Don't be left out in the cold; grab a friend, get on an already posted trip, or better yet meet someone new by posting your own activity. That means you too Faculty!

Saturday night "Better Days" will be playing free for Outing Clubbers (with a free card) at the Salty Dog. That night, we'll warm up in front of the Fireplace or better yet on the dance floor. Special "deals" on burgs and fries that night for Clubbers, too. (For your safety we suggest bringing a tent and crashing next to the Salty Dog in the field rather than on the way home.)

For more details check the bulletin board in Billings Center or come to the meetings in 305 Votey at 7:30 any Wednesday night.

Living/ Learning Presents Medieval Renaissance Program

The Medieval-Renaissance Program will sponsor a multi-media show on the theme of pilgrimage and its varied manifestations during the Middle Ages, ranging from St. Augustine, the Irish monastics and the inner pilgrimage of St. Bernard, through the 14th century and Chaucer. Beginning at 8:30 p.m. on October 31 in 115 Commons, Living/Learning, it will be presented by Profs. William Cook and Ronald Herzman, of the departments of history and English, respectively, at the State University of New York at Geneseo. All those interested in the subject itself, and in techniques of multi-media presentation, are cordially invited. Refreshments will be served.

Fencing Meeting

There will be a meeting of all persons interested in starting a fencing club. All interested are encouraged to attend the meeting on Thursday, Oct. 24 at Southwick North Lounge at 7:15 p.m.

Placement Office Announcements

EMPLOYERS:

November 4 – Westinghouse Electric Corp. Seeks: BS/MS in EE, ME for Engineering, Marketing, and Manufacturing. Citizenship required.

November 4 – Pratt & Whitney Aircraft. Seeks: BS/MS in ME, applied math, CE for Design, Development and application of gas turbine engines, fuel cells and other energy conver- devices. Citizenship required.

November 5 – Pratt and Whitney – Second day.

November 5 – Camp Dresser & McKee – BS and MS, CE for engineering in relation to investigations and design of waterworks, waste water disposal and solid waste disposal.

November 5 – United States Gypsum Co. Seeks: BS/ME, BS/Mfg – Mgmt E for project engineering. Citizenship required.

November 7 – U.S. Dept. of Commerce. Seeks: BS or higher in engineering, phys. Sci. with 1 yr. phys and 1 yr calculus. Citizen/excellent health. Only for Commission Officers. Not civilian employment.

GRADUATE SCHOOL:

November 4 – University of New Hampshire; Whittemore School of Business & Economics. For Liberal Arts Majors. Offers MBA, MA, Ph.D.

Lectures . . . Seminars . . . Lab Notes . . . Source Notes for Papers . . .

NOW YOU CAN GET IT ALL DOWN

WITH A BUILT-TO-LAST 3081 PORTABLE CASSETTE TAPE PLAYER/RECORDER.

by BELL & HOWELL

- Complete input jack panel
- Built-in microphone (remote control mike $3.75 extra)
- Automatic/manual recording level control
- Durable, high-impact polymer case
- Digital tape position counter
- Operates on batteries or AC (no adapter required)
- Battery/record level meter
- Automatic tape stop
- 6 month warranty

A TOP QUALITY UNIT NOT FOUND IN STORES

FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY $62.50 post paid (including carrying case) Regularly $69.95

Also available in the 3080 model with no carrying case, no automatic/manual recording level control, no battery record level meter, and no tone control. ONLY $54.50 post paid Regularly $59.95

CATCH UP ON WHAT'S GOING ON TODAY!

We'll ship immediately when you send your choice and check to: NORTHEAST AUDIO VISUAL, INC. 3 Chestnut Drive Bedford Business Park Bedford, New Hampshire 03102

IF IT'S FROM NORTHEAST IT'S RIGHT.

WORLD CAMPUS AFLOAT

JOIN US!

You'll sail in February, with the ship your classroom and the world your campus . . . combining accredited studies with fascinating visits to the fabled ports of the Orient, Africa, and the Americas. Over 10,000 students from 450 colleges have already sailed with WCA — join them! Financial aid available. Write today for free catalog.

WCA, Chapman College Box F, Orange, CA 92666

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24

"Macrame II Workshop" at the Church Street Center for Community Education, 133 Church St., from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Mary Ellen Bushey will instruct. Registration fee is required. Call 656-4221 for further information and to register.

A mathematical sciences seminar will be held at 3 p.m. in B-104 Cook Building. Dr. James Burgmeier of the department of mathematics speaks on the subject of "Polynomial Calculus with D-like Operators."

SA Films presents "Call Me Madam", starring Ethel Merman and Donald O'Connor. Shown in 101 Votey Building, at 7:30 p.m., and admission is free.

The English majors evening seminar series present Prof. Mary Jane Dickerson, who will discuss William Faulkner's "The Magician's Wand: The Compson Appendix, 1699-1945". Starting at 7:30 p.m., the meeting will be held on second floor Dewey in Old Mill and coffee will be served.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25

The Fleming Museum is administering a series of "Skillshops" throughout Vermont this fall. For details of the Oct. 25 program, "Exhibit Techniques", to be held at the Vermont Historical Society in Montpelier, call Barbara Lewis, 656-2090.

UVM Plant and Soil Science will be selling apples from 12:30 to 4 p.m. in the breezeway between the greenhouse and Hills Building. A variety of apples will be sold, including Macs and Cortlands. Part of the profits will go towards a Plant and Soil Science Society field trip.

Karen Kovacs will direct the "Acting Workshop" at the Church Street Center. A registration fee is required. Call 656-4221 for details or to register. The workshop will last from 1 to 4 p.m.

At 4 p.m., a medicine-pharmacology seminar will be held in E-210 Given Building. Prof. G.P. Lewis, Ph. D., of the department of Pharmacology at the Royal College of Surgeons of England in London will speak on "Prostaglandins and Functional Vasodilation of Adipose Tissue".

The Lane Film Series presents another Truffaut classic – "Stolen Kisses". There is an admission charge and tickets are available at the door. The film is shown at 7:30 and at 9:30.

SA Films presents "Walking Tall" starring Joe Don Baker and Elizabeth Hartman. The movie is shown at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

At 8 p.m., the music department presents a concert with Jane Ambrose on flute and Elizabeth Metcalfe at the piano. The concert is held at Marble Court in the Fleming Museum.

From 8 to 11 p.m., experience International Folk Dancing at Southwick Ballroom. This event is sponsored by the Billings Center Governing Board.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 26

From 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., there will be a workshop on "Non-Loom Weaving", with Elsa Waller at the Church Street Center. Call 656-4221 for details or to register.

A conference entitled "Vermont 2000" will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon and again at 1 p.m. and ending at 4 p.m. Held at Benedict Auditorium in Marsh Life Sciences Building, the program is sponsored by UVM's environmental program, the department of sociology and Planned Parenthood of Vermont.

SA Films presents Paul Newman in "Hud" at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free at 101 Votey Building.

The Annual Halloween Dance featuring Boston's "Stone Cross," will be held at MAT from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. A $10,000 light show and quadraphonic sound system should prove to make this more than just a dance. Donations: Costume) $.75; No Costume – $1; Naked – Free. Come wake up the devil.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 27

At 3 p.m., there is a theatre game workshop and at 8 p.m., a production of "Touchpoint" with the Unity Players at Fireplace Lounge in the Living-Learning Center. Sponsored by Living-Learning Centers Education Cluster B, there is no admission fee.

There will be a rummage sale at Delta Delta Delta from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. You'll find the rummage at 143 South Willard St., Burlington.

From 7 to 10 p.m., there will be a jazz concert at the Fleming Museum to benefit UNICEF. The four principal musicians will be John Hanagan, piano; John Dahl, double bass, Phil Stacy on drums and Sam Armstrong, vocals. This is a "jam" so bring along your instrument if you're a jazz musician.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 28

12 noon, Dr. Michael Mulvany of the Dept. of Physiology and Biophysics in UVM's College of Medicine will speak at a seminar in Given C-219 on the subject of "The Effect of Calcium on the Mechanical Properties of Rigor Frog Muscles."

4:10 p.m., Dr. Gerald Klippenstein of the University of New Hempshire's Dept. of Biochemistry will speak in Room 105 Marsh Life Science Building on the subject of "Hemerythrin: Primary Structure and Oxygen Binding Site." Coffee served at 3:50 p.m. in Room 107.

VPIRG Local Board Meeting, to discuss projects and goings on at UVM. All are welcome to attend, every Monday, 5 p.m. in Conference Room C in Billings Center.

7 p.m., UVM Modern Dance Workshop in Southwick Ballroom. Call Ext. 3240 for more information.

7:30 p.m., SA Films presents "The Longest Day" with John Wayne, Robert Mitchum, Henry Fonda and Richard Burton. Admission is free in Room 103 Rowell.

7:45 p.m., Scottish Country Dancing for beginners and intermediates in Room 107 of Perkins Geology Building. Priscilla Burrage instructs and a minimal fee is required. Phone Ben or Dot Stein at 863-4105 for further information.

8:30 p.m., WRUV's "Open Circuit", a half hour program designed to keep listeners up to date on issues of local concern. Moderated by Deborah Janone, a graduate student in Communications at UVM.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29

4 p.m., Reading of Anne Sexton's poetry sponsored by the English Department. Seven readers will recite at this one hour program held in Dewey Lounge, second floor of Old Mill.

Christian Scientists and any interested students are welcome to attend an inspirational and testimony meeting held by the Christian Science College Organization at UVM. The meeting, held every Tuesday evening, will be in the Harris Rec Room at 6:30 p.m.

7:30 p.m., SA Senate meets, North Lounge, Billings Center.

7:30 p.m., Introductory lecture by SIMS (Students International Meditation Society) in 120 Commons of the Living-Learning Center.

7:30 p.m., The Lamplighter's , a Pentecostal fellowship group, will meet in MAT Lounge to worship the Lord in song and word. All are welcome. Call Sue Kukla at Ext. 2952 for more information.

8 p.m., "Candidates-Women in Chittenden County", sponsored by the Women in Politics class, will provide an opportunity to meet women candidates running for public office at the Church Street Center for Community Education, 135 Church St.

8 p.m., The Lane Series presents "Big Band Calvacade" at Memorial Auditorium. For ticket reservations, call Ext. 3418.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30

12 noon, free relaxation workshop, Billings Center.

3:30 to 5:30 p.m., International Club of UVM weekly coffee hour at Area and International Studies Center, 479 Main St. and everyone's welcome.

4 p.m., "Tertulia" is an informal gathering for those interested in speaking Spanish and meeting the Spanish professors. Held in Building D, Suite 350 of the L/L Center.

The Outing Club of UVM will be presenting a slide show "Climbing in Columbia." The presentation is part of the club's efforts to bring slides and speakers from many areas of the outdoors to supplement their weekly meetings. Meetings are held each Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in 305 Votey.

8 p.m., The Living-Learning Interdisciplinary Science Program will be presenting Dr. Ian Worley on "Alaska: Mining and Ecological Problems" Dr. Worley will show his slides. All are welcome to attend at A-161, Living-Learning.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31

10:50 a.m., Prof. F. E. Ziegler of Yale University's Chemistry Dept. will speak in Room B-112 Cook Bldg. on "The Total Synthesis of Eremophilone."

Graduate Preregistration

Graduate Student Preregistration will be November 4th to November 22nd.

Graduate Students are to pick up their Preregistration Forms in the Graduate College Office, Room 335, Waterman Building, beginning November 4th.

They should see their advisor concerning course selections, and return the completed forms, with advisor's signature, to the Graduate College Office, 335 Waterman Building, before November 22nd.

Spring Student Teaching

ANNOUNCEMENT: Students in the College of Education and Social Services and Arts and Science who intend to do Spring Student Teaching and who missed the meeting of October 9, MUST come to the Office of Professional Laboratory Experiences, 237 Waterman, for information and to register for student teaching.

Scandanavian Studies Abroad

"Students interested in the possibility of spending the academic year 1975-76 in one of the four Scandinavian countries should consider the study abroad program Scandinavian Seminar. A number of UVM students have participated in this program in the last three years with good results. It is possible to receive a full year's credit for the work, subject to evaluation by UVM. Interested students are urged to attend an informational meeting about the Scandinavian Seminar on October 30, at 7:30 p.m. at the Center for Area and International Studies – 479 Main Street. Students who recently returned from Scandinavia will be there to answer questions and describe their study abroad experience."

Sunday Night At The Movies

"It Happened One Night," winner of six Academy Awards, including Best Actor Clark Gable, Best Actress Claudette Colbert and Best Picture, will be shown at the Living-Learning Center, 115 Commons Building, on Sunday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. and again at 9:30 p.m. Admission is $1.

BOOGIE YOUR BOARDS OFF!

at

Smugglers' Notch

$5.00 DISCOUNT PASS STILL ON SALE

$5.00 weekday (Reg. $10.00) $7.00 weekend (Reg. $11.00)

REPRESENTATIVE WILL BE AT

AT BILLINGS CENTER Oct. 28, 29, 30 9 am. - 5 pm.

THIS IS YOUR LAST POSSIBLE CHANCE ! ! ! !

Cunningha

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Saturday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m. Sunday: 9:00 and 11:30 a.m., 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

WEEKDAY LITURGIES: Monday: 3:30 p.m., Tuesday 4:15 p.m. and 10:00 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday 4:15 p.m.; Friday, October 25: 1:00 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: Every day at 7:30 a.m. If you would like to participate in group prayer at a different time during the day, please call the Center.

CHOIR PRACTICE: Every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The choir, directed by Lori Routhier, sings at the 4:15 Mass on Sundays and is open to new members.

LITURGY MEETING: The Staff at the Center meets on Mondays at 4:00 p.m. To plan the weekend liturgies. Should any student be interested in joining the group, please contact Fr Holland.

"SOMETHING TO LIVE FOR": A series of discussions

Hillel

Every Tuesday at 4:00 p.m. there will be a study group on Jewish Customs and Ceremonies. Until further notice, the meetings will be held in 420 Waterman.

On October 25, there will be a Friday evening dinner at Hillel House, by reservation only.

Here's an opportunity for all those who enjoy dancing and mixing with people in an energetic way. St. Anselm's is offering a square dance, free of charge on Oct. 26, starting at 7 pm. Regardless of your talent, there is a place for you on this occasion. The dances will begin slowly and simply early in the evening and increase in activity and complexity as the night goes on.

Ben Stein who has helped in making this a free evening, will be the caller. The dance, to be held in the Southwick Ballroom, will last until 10 pm. After that, everyone is invited to St. Anselm's for some hot mulled cider, homemade cookies, and a roaring fire.

VPIRG

The Vermont Public Interest Research Group has charged that the Secretary of State, Richard Thomas should be held responsible for "widespread and total unnecessary confusion among candidates to the state campaign financing laws."

According to VPIRG student researcher Bart

S.A.

The S.A. Film schedule continues with a 50's musical starring Ethel Merman, an early 60's Paul Newman story (with Paul as a "fast-driving hard-drinking, woman chaser), a war film portraying the dramatic re-enactment of D-Day, and the highly acclaimed drama of two years ago, Walking Tall.

Thursday night in Votey at 7:30 Call Me Madam will be presented. This stars Ethel Merman, Donald O'Connor, George Sanders and Billy De Wolfe in the Irving Berlin musical based on Leland Hayward's stage production. It tells the story of an unintentional Washington hostess who is appointed Ambassadress to the picturesque Grand Duchy of "Lichtenburg." The film, which is 2 hours long, received several Academy Award nominations.

On Friday Walking Tall, one of the most popular movies to be presented this semester, will be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30 and 9:45. Admission is $.

Save Money
Pharmacy
Ask
All your

Cunningham -Newman Center

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Saturday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday: 9:00 and 11:30 a.m., 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

WEEKDAY LITURGIES: Monday: 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday: 4:15 p.m. and 10:00 p.m.; Wednesday and Thursday: 4:15 p.m.; Friday, October 25: 1:00 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: Every day at 7:30 a.m. If you would like to participate in group prayer at a different time during the day, please call the Center.

CHOIRPRACTICE: Every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The choir, directed by Lori Routhier, sings at the 4:15 Mass on Sundays and is open to new members.

LITURGY MEETING: The Staff at the Center meets on Mondays at 4:00 p.m. to plan the weekend liturgies. Should any student be interested in joining the group, please contact Fr. Holland.

"SOMETHING TO LIVE FOR": A series of discussions on Basic Catholic Belief and Practices held on Monday evenings at 7:15 p.m.

"A NEW LOOK AT AN OLD BOOK": Scripture Study with emphasis on the Old Testament – every Tuesday at 7:00 p.m.

JUSTICE AND PEACE Study-Action Group meets on Monday evenings at 9:00. If you are interested in joining the group but find the scheduled time inconvenient, please get in touch with Fr. Crowley.

TWILIGHT RETREATS: Students and staff members at the Center are preparing to provide a series of evening retreats for high school students. The evening involves talks, discussions, A-V presentations and a closing Liturgy. If you would like to be on one of the teams or help in some way, please contact Fr. Holland or Sr. Jeannine.

PRE-CANA SERIES: The next marriage preparation series will be held in November at St. Anthony's Parish in the Inter-Parish Center. Topics and Speakers are as follows: Nov. 3 – Communications, M/M Herb Frazen, Nov. 10 – Sexuality, Dr. John J. Murray; Nov. 17 – Finance, M/M Joseph Doppman; Nov. 24 – Theology, M/M Ted Stronach. For further information, please call 864-0478.

COMING EVENTS AND ACTIVITIES:

LEAP PROGRAM: Leap is a weekend experience in Christian community and spiritual renewal for young adults 18 to 25. The first Leap of the year will be held November 1, 2, and 3. For more information; please contact Sr. Lindora.

DAY OF AWARENESS and insight into issues of social justice to be held at Trinity College on November 14. Fr. Bryan Hehir will be the main speaker.

HOLY YEAR CELEBRATION: In an effort to share in the preparation for and celebration of the Holy Year with its themes of Peace and Reconciliation, there will be an Inter-College Celebration of a Liturgy of Reconciliation, with participation by UVM, Champlain, St. Michael's and Trinity. The liturgy is scheduled for 10:00 p.m. November 12.

ALABAMA PROJECT: Plans are under way for a project which will involve students and Newman staff members in various types of social work with the underprivileged in Alabama, for a 10-day period during Semester Break. If you would like to be part of the project, please contact Fr. Holland.

Hillel House

Every Tuesday at 4:00 p.m. there will be a study group on Jewish Customs and Ceremonies. Until further notice, the meetings will be held in 420 Waterman.

On October 25, there will be a Friday evening dinner at Hillel House, by reservation only.

Sunday, October 27, there will be a Brunch at 11:30. Avi Gilam will speak about the "Social Solution to the Absorption Problem in Israel."

The Hillel House is on 389 College St. and is open daily, Sunday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Comfortable and quiet, a great place to study.

St. Anslem's Chapel

Here's an opportunity for all those who enjoy dancing and mixing with people in an energetic way. St. Anselm's is offering a square dance, free of charge on Oct. 26, starting at 7 pm. Regardless of your talent, there is a place for you on this occasion. The dances will begin slowly and simply early in the evening and increase in activity and complexity as the night goes on.

Ben Stein who has helped in making this a free evening, will be the caller. The dance, to be held in the Southwick Ballroom, will last until 10 pm. After that, everyone is invited to St. Anselm's for some hot, mulled [illegible], homemade cookies, and a roaring fire (if Chaplain Appleyard can start one?). It does sound quite domestic, but come along with your own joy and spice up the party.

Schedule:

Morning Prayer: Monday through Friday at 7:15 am.

Holy Eucharist: Sunday 9:00 am.

Holy Eucharist: Tuesday 10:00 pm.

Tuesday night Eucharist - The word 'Eucharist' comes from a Greek word meaning 'to give thanks'. The Tuesday evening service is an informal and quite personal service in which our thanks are lifted up to the Lord. Within it is a short selection from Scripture, sometimes a selection which someone brings in and wants to share, and a dialogue sermon in which everyone present has an opportunity to share his/her thoughts on what has been read or whatever is important at that moment.

This section of the service is followed by a celebration of Holy Communion. The people gather around the altar to share in mystery and thanksgiving God's presence among us. All are welcome to attend this service whether it is to worship or to find out what is happening in the Eucharist. If you come to watch and seek, please respect the time and space as being very serious and joyful for those who worship.

VPIRG Criticises Secretary Of State

The Vermont Public Interest Research Group has charged that the Secretary of State, Richard Thomas should be held responsible for "widespread and totally unnecessary confusion among candidates to the state's campaign financing laws."

According to VPIRG student researcher Barry Steinhardt, 17 candidates had failed to fully file by the legal deadline ten days after the primary election as required by law.

"There is no question that the law is confusing and needs to be improved," said VPIRG Director Scott Skinner. "But a confusing law is all the more reason why the Secretary of State should take an active role in seeing that the law is understood."

VPIRG also critized Thomas for granting a "needlessly long" grace period for the candidates to comply with the law. "This means that voters will have very little time before the election to consider campaign financing information," Skinner said.

S.A. Films Presents...

The S.A. Film schedule continues with a 50's musical starring Ethel Merman, an early 60's Paul Newman story (with Paul as a "fast-driving, hard-drinking, woman chaser"), a war film portraying the dramatic re-enactment of D-Day, and the highly acclaimed drama of two years ago, Walking Tall.

Thursday night in 101 Votey at 7:30 Call Me Madam will be presented. This stars Ethel Merman, Donald O'Connor, George Sanders and Billy De Wolfe in the Irving Berlin musical based on Leland Hayward's stage production. It tells the story of an uninhibited Washington hostess who is appointed Ambassadress to the picturesque Grand Duchy of "Lichtenburg." The film, which is 2 hours long, received several Academy Award nominations.

On Friday Walking Tall, one of the most popular movies to be presented this semester, will be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30 and 9:45. Admission is $1.00. This movie, starring Joe Don Baker and Elizabeth Hartman, was called the "best American movie of the year" by Rolling Stone. It is based on the real life tragedy and punishment visited upon a progressive Tennessee county sheriff. The sheriff takes on an organized crime network which is linked to the state capital and threatens to overrun the county with corrupt officials and lawmen. Few films in recent times have generated the thunderous reaction that Walking Tall consistently receives.

On Saturday night Paul Newman, Melvyn Douglas, Patricia Neal, and Brandon de Wilde come together in Hud. This finds Newman in a typically Newman role as the cocky rebel. He is in revolt against the principles of his highly moral father (played by Douglas), a man of strong character and gentleness. Patricia Neal is the worldly-wise housekeeper, old enough to be disillusioned but young enough to be desirable. All of them are caught up in the surging bitterness of the generation gap in a family conflict. This film received a New York Critics' Award and Patricia Neal won an Academy Award for her role.

On Monday night an all star cast (John Wayne, Robert Mitchum, Henry Fonda, Richard Burton, Peter Lawford, and Edmond O'Brien) will come together in the war drama, The Longest Day. This is a dramatic re-enactment of D-Day, from dawn to dusk – composed of bravery, bloodshed, blunders, fateful decisions and unforeseen tricks of fate. It presents the frustrating reverses of the Allies, the arrogant underestimation by the Nazis of the Allied force and strategy and occasional funny incidents which emphasize the horrible waste and futility of war. It is a memorable film, concentrating on the actual personal heroics of the many fighting men involved. It is 3 hours long and will be presented in 103 Rowell at 7:30 p.m.

Atheletic Tickets Exchange Program

The Student Athletic Ticket Book, available to students for $22.00 from the Intercollegiate Athletic Office has grown to its most popular level ever this year with 2300 student books sold (up from 1700 last year and 900 the year before). The book admits the holder to all home UVM football, basketball, and hockey games.

Very often, however, students do not use all 25 tickets in the book. As a service to these students S.A., in conjunction with the Intramural Athletic Office, is coordinating a "Ticket Exchange" program. Any student who does not anticipate using a ticket from the book can drop the ticket off to the "Ticket Exchange" while another student may purchase the ticket at the regular admission charge of $1.50, which is returned to the original student.

The "Ticket Exchange" is located in the S.A. Office in Billings. (Office hours are 8:30 – 5:00) Students are urged to use this service.

Fleming Museum Sponsors Jazz Concert For UNICEF

A jazz concert to benefit UNICEF will be held in the Marble Court of the Fleming Museum on Oct. 27 from 7 to 9 p.m. Admission will be a $2 donation. The concert is one of the special events of the current Fleming show, "Recycled Buildings: 12 Projects."

A core group of 4 musicians will play... piano, drum and double bass... while Sam Armstrong, currently appearing at the Ramada Inn in S. Burlington, sings. After the intermission others who wish to join may jam with these four.

Ed Bemis who teaches Jazz at the university is hosting the event. He believes that, unlike two years ago when a Vermonter had to head for Montreal, New York, or Boston to hear good jazz, many excellent musicians are now in the Burlington area. Sam Armstrong is a prime example. Others playing Sunday night will be John Hennigan, dept. of philosophy, St. Michael's College, on the piano, John Dahl on double bass and Phil Stescy on drums.

These four men comprise the core group of the concert. Larry McCrorey, UVM Vice President, hopes to join in, playing sax. Others, professional and student, are also welcome to join after the intermission.

Ed helped organize this concert as part of his continuing efforts to make good jazz available in this area. His Sunday night program on WRUV-FM (90.1) offers two hours of jazz weekly. He teaches at the University, and lectures in the area. He will start a 6 week extension course at the Fire House on Church St. beginning Nov. 8 at 7:30 p.m. Students interested in a non-credit jazz course may attend.

For Those Long Cold Nights

by William Dorman

I remember the cold long nights I spent cramming for tests and feeling hunger pains while fighting off sleep. The best pick-up I discovered was fussing over a hot plate making myself and my roommate an Italian omelette and opening a chilled bottle of Italian white wine.

It may sound difficult to make an Italian omelette, but it is quite easy and very rewarding. Nothing will give you more satisfaction than creating a gourmet late night snack with a glass or two of wine on the side. Why not try this recipe and see if it doesn't bring your spirits back and help you through the pain of study.

DORMAN'S ROMANO OMELETTE

3 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
dash ground pepper
1 tablespoon seasoned breadcrumbs
2 tablespoons grated Dorman Romano
2 tablespoons butter

In a bowl, beat the eggs, salt and add the crumbs, cheese and cream. In a skillet, heat the butter and pour in the egg mixture over a low heat. When the omelette begins to firm, rotate the pan slightly and lift the omelette up to allow the moist eggs to run under it. When browned on the bottom, and moist on the top, fold the omelette over and slide onto a warm plate. Makes two good servings. For the wine, I suggest an Italian Verdicchio, Soave or a white Chianti. These are the best of the Italian white as they are dry and fruity, and generally inexpensive.

Bon Appetit!

Limits To Growth Author To Discuss Vermont's Future

"Vermont 2000" is the title of a conference to be held at the University of Vermont on Saturday, October 26. Dr. Donella Meadows, senior author of Limits to Growth, will give the main address, in which she will outline various futures which are possible for Vermont and the kinds of decision making and planning that will lead to each one. Her address will be followed by reactions from a panel of respondents representing various interest groups in the state. The respondents will be Armand Belveau, member, Executive Committee, Chittenden County Regional Planning Commission; Dr. Signe Betsinger, Director, School of Home Economics, UVM; Murray Bookchin, former director, Goddard College Social Ecology Program; Al Misuilon, President, Quechee Lakes Landowners' Association; and Patti O'Brien, Chairperson, VPIRG Board of Trustees.

The conference will be held in Benedict Auditorium in Marsh Life Sciences Building. The morning program, from 10:30 to 12:00, will be devoted to audio-visual presentations: The Future of Us All, a new film on world population; Freedom 2000, a Chamber of Commerce production on the U.S. economic system; Back to the Land, on farming in Vermont. Dr. Meadows' address will open the afternoon session, which will run from 1:00 to 4:00.

"Vermont 2000" is planned as an observance of the United Nations World Population Year, an opportunity for Vermonters to think about the implications of future growth in their state. The conference is free and open to the public. It is sponsored by the Environmental Program and the Department of Sociology at UVM and Planned Parenthood of Vermont.

VPIRG Asks For Pesticide Ban

The Vermont Public Interest Research Group has asked Agricultural Commissioner Leo O'Brien to ban the use of 2, 4, 5, –T and related pesticides in Vermont.

"Our Basic position," said Assistant Director Peter Franchot in a letter to O'Brien, "is that the dioxin contaminant (TCDD)in these chemicals poses an unacceptable risk to the health and safety of Vermonters."

Considering that TCDD is an inevitable (byproduct of the manufacturing process of 2, 4, 5 –T, VPIRG argues that until the degree of the hazard can be absolutely ascertained, all direct or indirect exposure of pregnant women in Vermont should be avoided.

Franchot also requested that the Department of Agriculture publish a public warning and notice in all areas that are sprayed with 2, 4, 5 -T so that persons gathering wild food can avoid the potential dangerous places.

According to the testimony of Dr. Diane Courtney of the Environmental Protection Agency's Environmental Research Center on August 9, 1974, EPA experiments indicate fetal damage occurred in laboratory animals from the use of the pesticide.

Franchot added that the economic implications of withdrawing the use of 2, 4, 5, –T are slight in comparison to the hazards it presents to the public health and to the environment. Also economically viable alternatives exist according to Franchot particularly 2, 4-D which is used for brush control in Vermont.

UVM Seniors Appointed ROTC Leaders

Two seniors have been appointed leaders in the University of Vermont's ROTC corps, it was recently announced by Colonel Haponski, Professor of Military Science at UVM.

Named UVM's Cadet Battalion Commander with the rank of Lt. Colonel for the fall semester is Jack G. Schmidt, a senior from Norwood, Mass. Appointed Executive and Operations Officer for the cadet battalion with the rank of Major was senior Maurice J. Morey, a senior from Cabot, Vt.

Schmidt, in addition to his new duties, is the training officer for the UVM Rescue Squad, a non-profit emergency medical care ambulance service that Schmidt was involved with its initial year in 1972. Majoring in psychology, he is a pre-med student. Schmidt is also a member of the Ethan Allen Rifles and currently enrolled in the ROTC flight program.

Morey, a wildlife management major, is also the commander of Pershing Rifles company L-12.

Additional battalion staff positions assigned were: Recruiting and Information Officer, Dane Shortsleeve of Essex Junction, with the rank of Major; Commander of Company B – Stephen Emerson of Seneca Falls, N.Y., Captain; Commander of Company A - Donald Laramore of Lowell, Vt. Captain; Intelligence Officer, William St. Amour of Jericho, Vt., First Lieutenant; Company A Executive Officer and Platoon Leader – Francis McVeigh of Hartford, Conn., First Lieutenant; Company B Executive Officer and Platoon Leader – Brett Hoffman of Northfield, First Lieutenant; Platoon Leader – Craig Robinson of Burlington, Second Lieutenant and the other Platoon leader – Paul Restine of Bennington, also a Second Lieutenant. All are seniors enrolled in the Advanced ROTC program at UVM.

Named as Executive Officer and Operations Officer for the cadet battalion with the rank of major was senior Maurice J.

karate 864-0414

CONVERSATIONS WITH THE GENIUS has published Central Bulletin Volume 2. Manuscript one dollar. Area 2 CWTG, Richmond, Vermont 05477.

FOR A FORMAL RELATIONSHIP
The engagement ring marks the next stage in your love story. When you are ready to select your diamond and its mounting, please come in. Our collection of styles is large. Our prices will fit your budget.
PRICES START UNDER $100.00
YOU ARE INVITED TO OPEN A PRESTON'S CHARGE ACCOUNT
F.J. PRESTON & SON INC.

College Expenses High?
Save Money on your Prescription at Grandway Discount Pharmacy, Vermont's First Discount Pharmacy
LOW LOW LOW PRICES
Ask about us at University Infirmary
All your friends shop here, shouldn't you?
Grandway Pharmacy
Grandway Shopping Center
Shelburne Road
864-6862

Osmiroid Pens make great gifts.
United Way
Ask any artist!
Osmiroid Pens are beautifully balanced and proportioned for fluid writing ease. Easy to fill. A pleasure to use. The ultimate tool for any artist who does hand lettering. Pens from $2.50. Sets from $7.50. Nibs from $1.25.
Art Shop — Lower Level
Corner Church & College Sts.
Downtown Burlington
658-4554
the corner bookstore
"One-stop shopping for books, stationery and art supplies"
The CORNER BOOKSTORE

OCTOBER 24, 1974

...e, John Dahl, double bass, Phil Stacy on ...ong, vocals. This is a "jam" so bring along ...re's a sax musician.

...NDAY, OCTOBER 28
...ael Mulvany of the Dept. of Physiology ...VM's College of Medicine will speak at a ...9 on the subject of "The Effect of Calcium ...perties of Rigor Frog Muscles."
...ald Klappenstein of the University of New ... Biochemistry will speak in Room 105 ...building on the subject of "Hemerythrin: ...d Oxygen Binding Site." Coffee served at ...7.
...ard Meeting, to discuss projects and goings ...welcome to attend, every Monday, 5 p.m. in ...in Billings Center.
...Modern Dance Workshop in Southwick ...240 for more information.
...ms presents "The Longest Day" with John ...hum, Henry Fonda and Richard Burton. ...oom 103 Rowell.
...ish Country Dancing for beginners and ...oom 107 of Perkins Geology Building. ...rects and a minimal fee is required. Phone ...63-4105 for further information.
...V's "Open Circuit", a half hour program ...ners up to date on issues of local concern. ...borah Janone, a graduate student in ...UVM.

...UESDAY, OCTOBER 29
...of Anne Sexton's poetry sponsored by the ... Seven readers will recite at this one hour ...ay Lounge, second floor of Old Mill.
...ts and any interested students are welcome ...tional and testimony meeting held by the ...ollege Organization at UVM. The meeting, ...evening, will be in the Harris Rec Room at ...
...Senate meets, North Lounge, Billings Center.
...troductory lecture by SIMS (Students ...tation Society) in 120 Commons of the ...ter.
... Lamplighter's, a Pentecostal fellowship ...MAT Lounge to worship the Lord in song and ...me. Call Sue Kukla at Ext. 2952 for more ...
...didates-Women in Chittenden County", ... Women in Politics class, will provide an ...eet women candidates running for public ...h Street Center for Community Education, ...
...ne Series presents "Big Band Cavacade" at ...m. For ticket reservations, call Ext. 3418.

...EDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30
...elaxation workshop, Billings Center.
...m., International Club of UVM weekly coffee ... International Studies Center, 479 Main St. and ...ne.
..."tertulia" is an informal gathering for those ...peaking Spanish and meeting the Spanish ... Building D, Suite 350 of the L/L Center.
...Club of UVM will be presenting a slide show ...mbia." The presentation is part of the club's ...slides and speakers from many areas of the ...plement their weekly meetings. Meetings are ...day at 7:30 p.m. in 305 Votey.
...e Living-Learning Interdisciplinary Science ... presenting Dr. Ian Worley on "Alaska: Mining ...Problems" Dr. Worley will show his slides. All are ...nd at A-161, Living-Learning.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31
... Prof. F. E. Ziegler of Yale University's ... will speak in Room B-112 Cook Bldg. on "The ...of Eremophilone."

ndanavian Studies Abroad

...rested in the ...pending the ...75-76 in one ...Scandinavian ...consider the ...d program ...Seminar. A ...students have ...in program in ...rs with good ...ble to receive a ...for the work.

...ay Night At The Movies

...One Night," ...demy Awards, ...Actor Clark ...ress Claudette ...Picture, will be shown at the Living-Learning Center, 115 Commons Building, on Sunday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. and again at 9:30 p.m. Admission is $1.

subject to evaluation by UVM. Interested students are urged to attend an informational meeting about the Scandinavian Seminar on October 30, at 7:30 p.m. at the Center for Area and International Studies – 479 Main Street. Students who recently returned from Scandinavia will be there to answer questions and describe their study abroad experience."

DS OFF!
otch
LL ON SALE
eekend (Reg. $11.00)
T
, 30 9 am. - 5 pm.
LE CHANCE!!!!

VERMONT CYNIC

Founded In 1883

Barbara Fraenkel '75, Editor-in-Chief
Rick Steinberg '75, Assistant Editor
Wyatt Kaldy '77, Managing Editor
Bruce Hoblitzell '76, News Editor
Randy Jensen '77, Assistant News Editor
Margo Woodward '75, Features Editor
Linus Chartier '75, Arts Editor
Peter Campbell '75, Assistant Arts Editor
Mike Schwartz '75, Sports Editor
Kathy Simonsen '77, Copy Editor
Debbie Powell, '76, Advertising Manager

Editorials

Women Fight Back

The recent Women's Caucus symposium on rape was one more indication of the growing concern of women about their health and their rights.

A woman's body is no longer thought of, at least by most women, as merely a desirable object for men. A woman's body is hers alone, hers to give or deny, and hers to protect.

Women today are no longer buying the old adage "If a man comes up to you on an isolated streetcorner and starts to rape you, give in and enjoy it." The myth that a woman cannot have sex against her will is a lot of crap fostered on the female population by men who cannot believe a woman could be repulsed by one of them. Women can be raped and they know it.

That is why the Women's Caucus should be so highly recommended for its efforts to make the problem public. The Women's Rape Center, which encourages women to press charges against assailants, is a remarkable organization. For the first time in our judicial history, assaulted women are beginning to win rape cases, instead of becoming victims of verbal abuse in court.

The University of Vermont has been rather slow in noticing the growth of concern for women's rights. Led by the Women's Caucus, UVM is finally offering women counseling and help in an area where it is sorely needed. The increasing awareness of a woman's right to protect her own body is one aspect of the sexual revolution which has, at long last, come to UVM. Let's hope that the others are soon to follow.

B.F.

A Waste Of Money

Last week during parents weekend the university revealed the utter stupidity of its policies. In a time of financial difficulties, the university was wasting money and resources filling in the speed dips on Redstone Campus and subsequently digging them out. This action reveals a senseless and irresponsible financial policy.

Despite the financial waste, the university must be assuming that students are reckless drivers in need of speed dips, whereas parents are more cautious and need no controls. Or perhaps they are assuming that our parents' cars are more fragile and can not withstand the hazardous dips.

With the university experiencing monetary problems greater conservation is needed. Filling in holes and digging them out is for children, not responsible policy-makers.

R.S.

Letters To The Editor

University Wisdom

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to compliment the wisdom of the University of Vermont, especially your security and grounds departments.

In these days of tight money and limited resources, it's good to see UVM doing its part to alleviate some of the pressing problems of our times.

Specifically, I refer to the recent filling in and subsequent digging out of the speed dips over Parent's Weekend. As a student of Economics here at the University, I can easily see that this act served several socially responsible purposes simultaneously.

Namely, it helped to get money flowing again in this depressed economy by creating needed work, not just for the people who did the actual digging but for all the bureaucrats in the security department. Now they have all sorts of work trying to explain why they filled in and emptied the speed dips.

It is also clear that the school has a mind to preserve resources. Since UVM's main economic resource is the money coming from parents who pay tuition for their sons and daughters, it would have been foolish to risk losing those resources just for the sake of having people drive slowly on one weekend. That's what I call real conservation!

All those calls from government officials about everybody doing their own part to preserve resources make more sense to me now. I guess I just needed an example to follow.

The last thing I want to compliment UVM on almost requires an apology on my part. While I always thought the administration at this school was Republican and Big-Business oriented, I see now I was just blind to the facts. Clearly, it is secretly trying its own form of income redistribution.

It was brilliant the way the administration raised the tuition of every out-of-state student one-hundred dollars last year (since they can obviously afford it) telling these students it was to pay for a superior education when really it was to help the income redistribution program.

They then gave meaningful jobs to people, such as digging and filling in holes, rather than funneling the money in the form of better education, back to the people who pay it. It's a sort of "rob from the rich and give to the poor" philosophy.

I have even read that they plan to extend this program next year by raising tuition again and cutting back on extra faculty members. Maybe then they can finance filling in the swimming pool and digging it out to do things on a really grand scale.

Promotions are in order for all this fine thinking. One can only hope that the same wisdom goes into all the University's major decisions.

Signed,
Jim Schubert

A Monoply

To the Editor:

The Den is here to provide a service! It is a monopoly which appears to me to provide insufficient service, at what seems to be higher prices than should be considered worthwhile. Any monopoly should provide excellent prices and especially excellent service. The Den does not! It does not even come close.

I've spoken with the manager and his only reasoning has been that his hands are tied and that he's doing all he can. The fact that I've stood on the "grill line" for ten to fifteen minutes without moving while one person works the grill and three people who, one would assume, are employed there are talking with each other, appears to me to be a sign of inefficiency as well as abuse of a paycheck.

I've tried to feel compassion for the people involved with the operation of the Den but can no longer.

One major cause of its inefficiency seems to be Saga's food stamp program which makes acquiring food and drink by people who do not have them more time consuming as well as more expensive. Since it is a monopoly it should offer lower prices to all.

Elimination of the stamps use in the Den would eliminate the long lines at the register. Perhaps redesign of the physical locations of apparatus within the service area could be an advantageous way of improving efficiency of the Den's operation.

Another question is why does Saga have exclusive rights to Billings Center? Why isn't there an alternative? Why does one especially one who has only a short time to eat between classes or jobs have to spend one's time waiting on a line that has no reason to exist?

If necessary Saga should hire more labor and reduce its profit. Mind you I'm all for business and profit but a monopoly such as this only causes frustration and anger. I certainly am willing to donate my time and effort to make the Den a reasonable place to eat.

Ted Tiger
Starksboro, Vt.

On T.E.P.

To the Editor:

This letter concerns the articles written about T.E.P. I was a member of that hallowed brotherhood for four years, '70-'74. After reading both Open Season, and President Fletcher Baltz's reply, I have come to the conclusion that both of the articles are a joke.

T.E.P. was no goody-two-shoes, but they were people who did care — sometimes. What I mean by the prior statement is that T.E.P. was like a schizophrenic. Sometimes the people in the house seemed divorced from reality. Other times we were very much on top of things ('70–'71 we held the highest fraternity scholastic average). Through '71-'74, the scizoid tendencies got worse. This was basically due to the pressure or lack of help that outside forces were having upon us. T.E.P. National kept on threatening to foreclose. This didn't help since the banks, and everyone else were threatened also. For the people who lived in T.E.P., the effort to survive seemed useless. $30,000.00 in the red to 12 members in the house were the odds — we should have bought a bunch of lottery tickets. In these circumstances the only thing to do was to go out partying. If you had terminal cancer would you try to cure the pain? That was what a few of the patron's attitudes were, and still there were the other part of T.E.P.'s personalities which maintained hope. Maybe now that T.E.P.'s catatonic state has been relieved through an operation (the selling of the house), the body and mind of T.E.P. can become one again.

Stephen Birk
Class of '74

More Letters...

Driver's Reducing Overpopulation?

To the Editor:

You know it is amazing how much good the simple asphalt road has brought to the United States.

Not only do roads provide huge profits for our oil companies through extravagant fuel consumption, and a fair amount of income for funeral homes (aren't highway accidents the highest cause of death in the U.S.?) but also roads save conservationists the trouble of having to reduce overpopulation in different species of animals (I am thinking of deer, skunks, dogs cats, rabbits, and other assorted carcasses that dot the sides and often times the middle of roads.)

Of course I am being facetious, it is the driver who really hits these "unseen" obstacle's in his galvanized coffin(excuse me caskets) with "enough paint to cover the outside of a two story house," not the roads.

Walking home from campus at about 10:15 p.m. on Oct. 15I had almost reached the Dept. of Public Health building on Colchester Ave. when I turned to see a car just finish running over a small brown dog. I suppose that the driver, wanting another to have the same luck, left the dog in the middle of the street so he ran over a second or third time. He neither stopped nor apparently looked in his mirror, just kept on driving.

This is the highest goal that all drivers should try and transcend to. Permit me to humbly suggest a good starting place for this path to par-exallance (which some of you have already found.)

The yellow traffic light should be a time to push that gas pedal to the floor in order to try and beat that nasty red light. If everyone else is going faster than the speed limit, then so should you. After all, why should you be the only odd-ball in the race?

But truly you have found the path when you have learned to be inconsiderate of others. The pedestrian is an object to be avoided, but to be herded along as fast as possible. The turn signal should never be used as that gives the other drivers a head start (many of us have already learned this trick of the trade.) Try and pass another car with only inches to spare...

I am sorry that I can only point to you the starting place of the path. The rest must be learned through experience. It is a tough journey but as I was fortunate enough to have seen a successful traveler of that path the other night, I can say with complete honesty that it is worth taking.

Sincerely,
Tom Peltz

The Ariel

To the Editor:

Greetings from Guadalajara:

By the time this letter is received the 1974 Ariel, UVM's yearbook, should be in your hands.

This book is meant to pertain to all students of the University of Vermont, not just the seniors of 1974. The yearbook receives a large portion of support from the Student Association. For the nominal price of one dollar, the book is yours. It may be attained in the Ariel Office, lower Billings Center. You are cheating yourself if you don't have a 1974 Ariel.

Asthetically, this yearbook will surely appreciate in value throughout the years. If you have a book, and don't take the time to sit down and read it, study it, digest it, perhaps regurgitate parts of it, you are cheating yourself for it is a very subtle and diverse account of the 1973-74 academic year.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank any and everyone who contributes to the 1974 Ariel for their support in creating what I believe to be the finest of UVM yearbooks.

In closing, I would like to wish the students of UVM the best of luck in whatever they might pursue in these hard times.

Yours in service.
Leonard Fieber
1974 Ariel
Editor-in-Chief

The Supreme Court

by Linda Cayton

Three cases will be before the U.S. Supreme Court in its current session, the results of which will indicate the manner in which the highest court in the land intends to deal with the rights of women.

The three related cases involve a Tennessee law barring women from jury duty, a Louisiana law excluding women from juries unless they request such service in writing, and a Florida statute excluding pregnant women and those with children under 18 from juries.

Frankly, I am not optimistic about the outcome.

First of all, the current Court has shown no particular interest in being a pioneer in matters of women's rights.

Second, even if it does rule in favor of women in the cases now before it, the Burger Court has established a reputation for defining its decisions in the narrowest terms, with the least possible social effect.

Where the Warren Court took a decidedly activist stance, the Burger Court has taken pains to limit the application of its decisions so severely that the effects beyond the bounds of the specific cases have been minimal.

In its busing decisions, for instance, the Burger court has ruled only on the most specific facts of individual cases rather than leaping into the controversy and taking a guiding role in the methodology of integration.

It would be reasonable to assume in the women's jury cases, therefore, that even a positive decision would be a Pyrrhic victory.

Finally, we should recognize from the Warren years that even the most far-reaching decisions have little practical effect. The court has no powers of enforcement.

Twenty years after Brown vs. The Board of Education, we are having integration riots in Boston.

Judicial relief is never as good as legislative relief, and women, if we want to see immediate results, have to affect changes in local laws. This means lobbying, arm-twisting and ear-bending, forcing referendums, bringing local suits, making a lot of trouble. In short, it means unremitting local activism. Change occurs when laws are mandated from the bottom up rather than imposed from the top down.

We encourage the Supreme Court to recognize its responsibility to help create equality in our society, but we realize that nothing it does will be as effective as what we can do and should do ourselves.

Meat And Cancer

To the Editor:

The practice of eating animals is causing suffering and death to animals, to us through meat-related disease, to the planet through the accumulation of insecticides, and to the twenty million who will starve to death this year.

Vegetarians Leonardo da Vinci, Leo Tolstoy, G. B. Shaw, Francis of Assisi, Gandhi, Thoreau, and millions of others have refrained from eating meat because it is an innocent slaughtered animal, unjustly raised only to be butchered and eaten. Ethical vegetarians believe that the eating of meat violates reverence for life, nonviolence, and the spark of soul in everything that creeps and crawls.

Every pound of meat represents twenty one pounds of grain and grass fed to the animal. Cows, pigs, and sheep are protein factories in reverse.

Henry Kissinger, Edward Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey, the New York Times, the Washington Post, and churches everywhere are asking Americans to cut down on meat out of the concept of feed the hungry. The world has only twenty seven days of grain stored.

The American Cancer Society has labeled meat the number one cause of intestinal cancer. The American Heart Association has linked animal fat to America's soaring rate of cariovascular disease, since meateaters' heartbeats are 72 per minute on average, while vegetarians' are 58. Vegetarians get life insurance discounts from British life insurance companies.

Sincerely,
Patterson, Shriver, Laman, Tultz, Klein Post, Yost, Adams, Woodford

Support For Mallary

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter because I support Congressman Dick Mallary's election to the U.S. Senate on November 5th and because I feel that a lot of people, both here on campus and around the state, have formed the wrong impression of Dick Mallary due to some careless and inaccurate reporting of his voting record by his Democratic opponent, Patrick Leahy.

In fairness to Dick Mallary and to the voters of Vermont, I would like to point out some areas in which the Democrat from Chittenden county has unfairly represented the Congressman's voting record.

In a political advertisement by Mr. Leahy, Dick Mallary was accused of not supporting a minimum wage of $2.30 an hour. This is absolutely false. As Vermont's Congressman, Dick Mallary not only voted once but he voted twice in favor of the Fair Labor Standards Act which sets a minimum wage of $2.30! How can the Democratic Opponent make such a statement in light of the facts?

On another occasion the Democratic Candidate stated that Dick Mallary voted against housing for the elderly. It is true that Dick Mallary voted against one amendment which would have provided thousands of units of housing for the elderly at high interest rates, but the Democratic Candidate completely omitted the fact that the Congressman voted for several thousand housing units at lower subsidized interest rates. Mallary has not only supported housing for the elderly but he has also voted in favor of increasing supplemental security income, increasing social security benefits, increasing veterans pensions, increasing railroad retirement benefits and providing more funds for the nutrition programs for the elderly! To represent the Congressman's voting record on the basis of one vote is to misrepresent it entirely.

Let me cite one more example of Dick Mallary's voting record being distorted. In a letter sent to Vermonters (with presumably the Democratic candidates' approval) by the Council for a Livable World based in Washington, D. C., there is a statement which accuses Mallary of voting for an additional $20 billion of military aid for South Vietnam and Laos. May I be so bold as to ask, "Where did the researcher find that one?" The simple fact is Mallary voted in favor of cutting back an Administration request for aid to South Vietnam by $600 million!

I am sure Mallary does not mind his voting record being challenged, as long as it is challenged fairly. If you don't want to take my word on the information I have given, check the Congressional Record. I believe that the truth would be in the best interest of all Vermonters. I call on you to demand better reporting of the facts, whether you are a Democrat, a Republican, a Liberty Unionist, or have no party preference at all.

David A. Pitonyak

The Cynic welcomes letters and columns from students, faculty, or any other readers. Materials for publication should be signed, but names will be withheld upon request.

No More Justice

To the Editor:

I am presently serving time at the State Correctional Facility at Windsor, Vermont. I am not a resident of Vermont. I am from the South.

When I first came to Vermont back in April of this year, I had some faith in the court system and some idea you could get JUSTICE in them. But not anymore. A poor man has little or no chance of getting a fair trial in Vermont's court system. If you have no friends or connections locally, it's even worse.

The state Public Defender system is poor at best. A Public Defender tells his Client to plead guilty and he will get off easier. The Public Defender and the Court do not want to go to trial. But if the defendant wants a trial, he has a good chance of being found guilty and getting a longer sentence, than if he pleads guilty.

A man has to have some knowledge of the law in order to get the Public Defender to do anything for him. The Public Defender very seldom advises the defendant of the pre-trial motions that can be filed to help his case.

The Bail system is almost non-existant, if the defendant cannot post bail, which is usually set beyond his financial means. He has a problem getting a bailbondsman to go the bail. The setting of bail beyond the financial means of the defendant is a direct violation of The Federal Bail Reform Act of 1966. It clearly states: bail will be set within the financial means of the defendant.

Again the Public Defender seldom files a motion for reduction of bail unless the defendant requests it.

While a person awaits trial, he is usually held in a local jail or a Correctional Center. He is then subjected to very strange types of pressure. While waiting for trial one man can see a second man come to the center on a similar charge, plead guilty, get sentenced, programed and go on work release and go home on weekend passes. When the first man goes to court, he is found guilty, and gets a longer sentence than the second man, who by this time is up for parole.

I think judges have too much power and use it badly.

According to the law as I understand it, a man is innocent until proven guilty. But I find it to be a man is guilty unless he can prove his innocence.

I find appeals take a very long time.

In my own case, the Vermont Attorney General and Governor decided my guilt before I ever went to court. The Governor even gave the police officer who arrested me "A Special Governor's Award" before I even went to trial. HELP!!!

Gary Pike
Box 26
Windsor, Vt.
05089

VERMONT CYNIC

NEWS: Vincent Arlan, George Georgaklis, Andy Morse, Audrey Rothstein
FEATURE: Paul Ajamian, Carol Dufalt, Amy-Catherine Fischer, Pam Hogarth
ARTS: Sari Bodi, Robert Denike, Amy Fisher, Barbara Freedman, Joe Kauffman, Adelaide Murphy, Paul Prior, Marsha Woleta
COLUMNISTS: Debbie Adler, Tom McCormick, Scott McKay, Steve Rice Elliott Freeman
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Chudik Grass, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Joan Forsaith, Karen Hill, Beth LeVine, Mark Volk, Daniel Mead
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Grancey, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Fern Gutman

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of the members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published yearly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and Business offices in the Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone: 658-4911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1883. Subscription rate $8.00 per year, single copy ten cents.

FRANKLY SPEAKING....by phil frank

litor

A Monoply

...provide a ...poly which ...provide ...at what ...prices than ...considered ...monopoly ...lent prices ...ent service. ...t does not ...with the ...reasoning ...do are tied ...all he can. ...ood on the ...to fifteen ...rving while ...he grill and ...one would ...d there are ...her, appears ...inefficiency ...paycheck. ...compassion ...ved with the ...but can no ...use of its ...to be Saga's ...em which ...d and drink ...not have them more time consuming as well as more expensive. Since it is a monopoly it should offer lower prices to all.

Elimination of the stamps use in the Den would eliminate the long lines at the register. Perhaps redesign of the physical locations of apparatus within the service area could be an advantageous way of improving efficiency of the Den's operation.

Another question is why does Saga have exclusive rights to Billings Center? Why isn't there an alternative? Why does one especially one who has only a short time to eat between classes or jobs have to spend one's time waiting on a line that has no reason to exist?

If necessary Saga should hire more labor and reduce its profit. Mind you I'm all for business and profit but a monopoly such as this only causes frustration and anger. I certainly am willing to donate my time and effort to make the Den a reasonable place to eat.

Ted Tiger
Starksboro, Vt.

On T.E.P.

...concerns the ...bout T.E.P. I ...that hallowed ...four years, ...reading both ...nd President ...reply, I have ...clusion that ...are a joke. ...was no ...but they were ...d care – ...mean by the ...s that T.E.P. ...chizophrenic. ...people in the ...ivorced from ...nes we were ...op of things ...the highest ...tic average). ...the schizoid ...rom. This was ...he pressure of ...outside forces ...on us. T.E.P.

National kept on threatening to foreclose. This didn't help since the banks, and everyone else were threatened also. For the people who lived in T.E.P., the effort to survive seemed useless. $30,000.00 in the red to 12 members in the house were the odds – we should have bought a bunch of lottery tickets. In these circumstances the only thing to do was to go out partying. If you had terminal cancer would you try to cure the pain? That was what a few of the patron's attitudes were, and still there were the other part of T.E.P.'s personalities which maintained hope. Maybe now that T.E.P.'s catatonic state has been relieved through an operation (the selling of the house), the body and mind of T.E.P. can become one again.

Stephen Birk
Class of '74

No More Justice

...y serving time ...Correctional ...r, Vermont. I ...of Vermont. I ...t came to ...April of this ...faith in the ...ome idea you ...t in them. But ...poor man has ...e of getting a ...mont's court ...ave no friends ...cally, it's even ...blic Defender ...best. A Public ...his Client to ...he will get off ...Defender and ...want to go to ...fendant wants ...ood chance of ...y and getting a ...than if he ...to have some ...law in order to ...efender to do ...s. The Public ...eldom advises ...f the pre-trial ...be filed to help ...tem is almost ...the defendant ...ail, which in ...nd his financial ...problem getting ...to go the bail ...ail beyond the ...ns of the ...rect violation of ...l Reform Act of 1966. It clearly states: Bail will be set within the financial means of the defendant.

Again the Public Defender seldom files a motion for reduction of bail unless the defendant requests it.

While a person awaits trial, he is usually held in a local jail or a Correctional Center. He is then subjected to very strange types of pressure. While waiting for trial one man can see a second man come to the center on a similar charge, plead guilty, get sentenced, programed and go on work release and go home on weekend passes. When the first man goes to court, he is found guilty, and gets a longer sentence than the second man, who by this time is up for parole.

I think judges have too much power and use it badly.

According to the law as I understand it, a man is innocent until proven guilty. But I find it to be a man is guilty unless he can prove his innocence.

I find appeals take a very long time.

In my own case, the Vermont Attorney General and Governor decided my guilt before I ever went to court. The Governor even gave the police officer who arrested me "A Special Governor's Award" before I even went to trial. HELP!!!

Gary Pike
Box 26
Windsor, Vt.
05089

RMONT CYNIC

...t Arias, George ...dy Morse, Audrey ...l Ajemian, Carol ...Catherine Fischer, ...h, Robert Dresker, ...arbara Fryxdyman, ...Adelaide Murphy, ...ha Wolfe

Steve Rice, Elliott Freeman
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
PRODUCTION: Joan Forsaith, Karen Hill, Beth LeVine, Mark Valle, Daniel Mead
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Dee Brown, Sherry Grancsay, Debbie Powell
BUSINESS MANAGER: Tom Gutman

...ions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in ...YC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the ...y administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of ... Opinions expressed by the columnists do not ...ily reflect the opinion of the majority of the ... of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

...shed yearly during the college year by the students ...niversity of Vermont and State Agricultural College. ... and Business offices in the Billings Center, ..., Vermont. Telephone 658-4911. Deadline for ... one week prior to date of publication.

...ded in 1913. Subscription rate $8.00 per year, single ...cents.

Open Season: The Bussing Issue

by Scott Mackay

As Howard Zinn has written, "You can't fight City Hall; all you can do is shit on the steps and run." Zinn never mentions who is left to clean up the shit, but I'd wager two brooms, a dustpan, and a can of lysol that it's not the mayor or the city council.

There exists in this country an ever widening gulf between the people who do all society's dirty work and the people who live off their efforts. Its an issue that Camp Catamount students seldom confront, as college has a way of blurring socio-economic class borders so that ostensibly, students are one, big, happy middle-class family. But outside the cloister of the university, animosity between uneducated, working-class people and their supposedly educated, white-shirted counterparts has reached the boiling point.

This phenomenon cannot be dismissed on purely economic grounds, as the Marxism model of the "haves" versus the "have nots" struggle that has plagued humanity for centuries. For in the post-sixties America, we have evolved a social hierarchy that is not merely based upon economics, but also places heavy emphasis upon education and lifestyle. And recent social forces have ordained that this bitter, festering class resentment could get worse.

Consider the havoc that the issue of "Busing" schoolchildren outside their neighborhoods for the purpose of achieving racial integration is creating in one of America's few remaining livable cities, Boston. That cradle of liberty and geopolitical center of American liberalism, is literally being torn asunder by racial tensions emanating from federally mandated busing. Reading the Boston Globe recently has become a trying experience for all except Patriot fans, as it has become brutally clear that much of the resentment that busing has engendered is purely class inspired. It has not been lost on the inner city working class individual that the Federal Judge who issued the busing edict lives in suburban Wellesley, where black means the color of hockey pucks. Or that they are being required to bear the burden of a massive social engineering scheme imposed by liberal whites who escaped to the suburbs, or send their kids to private schools.

Given this context, it becomes easier to comprehend and empathize with otherwise deplorable acts, such as the recent civil disobedience committed by South Boston parents in an effort to prevent delivery of the pro-busing Sunday edition of the Globe, and the rude, tomato and rotten egg shower Senator Kennedy received on his last foray into Southie. Ted Kennedy, though Irish as St. Patrick's Day, is seen by a South Boston factory worker in 1974 as just another "Limosine Liberal" who is all for busing everybody's kids but his own. The whole issue of busing is bringing to the surface blatent, upper middle class liberal hypocrisy.

And busing is only the tip of the iceberg. Does anyone still remember whose sons received deferments from the armed services during the Vietnam era and whose sons came home from that conflict in flag drapped coffins? Or who benefits from tax loopholes and zoning laws? Working people in America in 1974 are all too aware that all the things they have lived for are constantly being torn from under their feet. Religion? Now the priest tells them not to buy grapes, and supports the Berrigan brothers. The Family? One every three marriages ends in divorce these days, and ZPG liberals maintain we should all "stop at two."

Worst perhaps is the torrent of criticism the educated elite has rained down upon the lifestyle of the blue-collar worker. It is easy for college students and educated professionals to rant against the bloated defense budget, for the worker, being against defense expenditures could mean the loss of his job. There is a pervasive, pernicious tendency of liberal intellectuals to mock the worker – indeed yours truly has often railed against the "red-neck, white-socks, blue ribbon beer" crew and mused that they could all live under a benevolent dictator so long as they were furnished with the accoutrements of a philistine, middle-class existence, symbolized by beer, color TV sets, shotguns and Winnebagos.

But the ultimate contradiction of our society today if that the well-educated people who derive huge personal and financial benefits from society do not believe in its tenets and mores at all; while those working class individuals who derive the least rewards from American society believe in its values almost blindly.

This division between working people and educated professionals has dire consequences for all of us. At the very least, the lack of communication between these social groups is a massive barrier to peaceful social change. At its ugliest, this working class contempt for "pointy heads" could manifest itself in a Wallaceite, fascist trend. There is no divine oracle that insists that the legacy of the social reform movements of the 1960's must be an open, more decent society. Rather, with the economy in the midst of a decline and dark prophecies of impending crisis for the Western world on the horizon, reaction from the right could become our terrible hangover from the drunken liberalism of the 1960's era.

••••••••••

PARTING SHOTS: If the above has any campus significance at all, it perhaps points out the need for a professor to recognize that he or she has more in common with the person punching a time clock than with the "educated" bureaucrats in Waterman, and those "better sort" of individuals who grace UVM's Board of Trustees.

It appears that some Greeks insist on making a mountain out of a mole hill– i.e. the continued criticism our TEP article has fostered. Perhaps they figure bad press is better than no press at all. The most waterheaded statement was one in last week's Cynic, which concluded that apathy in fraternities and sororities is a direct result of the demise of Kake Walk. Mind you, I'm all in favor of bringing Kake Walk back, except that this time we should put Jews, Italians, WASPS, and Irish on stage and let the Black people drink beer and laugh at the spectacle....

...and while we are on the subject of Greeks, one of our consultants has informed us that Gamma Phi has gone irretrievably reputable. It seems this fall's crop is intent on ridding the campus of the epithet "Gamma Hog" forever...".

CHEAP SHOTS: Nelson A. (Attica?) Rockefeller is really just a very religious man...he takes the invitation to "forgive his debtors" seriously.

Wilbur Mills apparently was not to be outdone by Richard "Watergate" Nixon and Ted "Chappiquiddick" Kennedy. First, he accepted illegal campaign funds from the Milk Producers in an effort to catch up with Tricky. Not to be outdone by some young whippersnapper from Massachusetts, 'ole Wilbur figured it was about time he had his own try at some sweet thing.....To SALLY SECRETARY....I enjoyed your well-written letter....but what the hell are you doing at the Old Board?

Inside State Prisons

by Gabriel Bazzisy

The following is a review of the prison story which appeared in the Friday morning edition of The Rutland Herald, Oct. 18, 1974: IN STATE PRISON, ANYTHING GOES: WEAPONS, DOPE, MORALE.

At best, this is an overstatement of the facts, as the reporter Mr. Robert Kaplan has put together a string of isolated incidents that have occurred over a period of three or four years. He leads one to believe that these incidents are a regular day-to-day thing.

In order to correct the erroneous impression the aforementioned article leaves, we feel that it would be best to respond more-or-less, item by item:

A. No one, inmate or correctional officer, carries a gun within the main institution. Due to an incident involving a pistol in the not too distant past, Mr. Kaplan would have you believe this was an everyday occurrence. It has never been determined that; in fact, the weapon was ever inside the facility.

B. We are not about to contend that dope never finds its way inside the prison. However, we do deny, without reservation, that it exists as Mr. Kaplan would have you believe. The residents of this facility are not going around in a drugged state. They are, for the most part, aware of their surroundings, and what is going on about them.

C. To correct the impression left by Mr. Kaplan that just anybody can walk in off the streets and visit, allow us to offer the policy we understand as it pertains to this matter here at the prison:

–There is an electronic searching device, similar to those found at airports. It is impossible to pass through this machine with a pack of cigarettes, let alone a weapon of some kind, without its registering. In addition, there is a portable, hand-held device for screening purposes that is used.

–If there is suspicion that a party is carrying some form of organic substance it is left to the discretion of the correctional officer; much like it is to the local police in a similar circumstance, as to the course of action it might take, i.e.: a. refuse entrance b. require the party to submit to a strip search c. refer the matter to his immediate supervisor.

In addition, the facility has a female deputy sheriff on duty during all visiting periods. She can follow the same course of action as previously outlined with reference to female visitors.

D. We agree with Mr. Kaplan's evaluation of the physical comforts of the visiting lounge. However, the Liason Committee in cooperation with the administration is in the process of renovating this area.

We do however take exception to his assessment of the degree of physical contact he indicated occurs. Our own observations has on one or two occasions in years past noticed questionable behavior. In recent months, the general conduct of all residents has been acceptable under prevailing conditions.

Mr. Kaplan seems to be concerned that residents and their wives and/or girl friends are sitting close together. He indicates that this is a weakness in the sytem, and that it would be easy to pass contraband.

For his information, and the information of the general public, all one has to do is check back to the era when visiting was behind a glass wall, using a telephone to communicate; and they will find that even with measures such as this, it was impossible to completely control the introduction of questionable material.

What Mr. Kaplan fails to allow for is human error. Whenever one is dealing with human beings there remains and always will, the possibility of error – maybe Mr. Kaplan feels that he is infallible. Even God does not take this lofty position.

For almost 200 years people have been attempting to evaluate prisons and the operation of them. People far more experienced and qualified than Mr. Kaplan. If Mr. Kaplan would care to look more fully and hopefully, more objectively into the areas he has referred to in his article, we would welcome his participation. Possibly then, he would write as it is, and not as he apparently thinks or wishes it to be.

LSAT's And The Bureaucratic Machine

by Gregory S. Hertz

Upon becoming a member of a large academic community one quickly learns not to waste time trying to move the bureaucratic machinery of the administration. University administrators are typically not service – oriented.

Consequently, it is not unusual to find certain methods in use which ignore or minimize the importance of the student and seek to maximize administrative efficiency. These were most definitely the motives behind the administration of the Law School Admission Test last Oct. 12, 1974.

The Law School Admission Test is a 215-minute examination designed to measure one's ability in the following four areas: reading comprehension, data interpretation, logical reasoning, and writing ability. It is published by the Educational Testing Service in Princeton, New Jersey. The examination is offered five times a year and is administered by many colleges. The University of Vermont offers the examination on only two of the possible five dates, once in October, and again in December. If a person wished to participate in the exam at any of the other three times, he or she would have to travel to a different testing center.

Anyone who is familiar with the competitive nature of applying to law schools knows that the two most important criteria are, firstly, the LSAT score, and secondly, the cumulative grade point average (GPA).

Consequently, anyone with a relatively low GPA, below 3.2, had better hope to score well into the upper percentiles on the LSAT. At any rate it is quite easy to see why so many students get nervous about the LSAT. If your grades are low the LSAT can save you, but don't count on it.

Therefore, it seems quite obvious to this writer, that if a university is to best serve its students, it should take great care in making certain that the atmosphere in which the test is administered is conducive to test taking. This emphatically was not the case when the examination was conducted last Oct. 12.

The particular problems involved with the administration of the exam have various sources. However, if the problems, and proposed remedies, regarding the examination could be dealt with by a single group seeking to maximize student success some of the necessary changes might come about.

Several problems arose when efforts were made to have the examination moved from Marsh Life Sciences to Waterman Dining Hall. Among these were such things as time restrictions, communication problems, lighting conditions, insufficient numbers of proctors, ETS regulations, and UVM regulations. Some of these excuses were simply not justifications for refusing to move the exam, others perhaps had validity. At any rate, the fact remains that Counseling and Testing really lacks the motivation to move the exam. As long as they fulfill ETS regulations why should they go to the trouble of maximizing student success? Such efforts require time, manpower, and financial assistance.

However, if responsibility for administering the exam was placed in the hands of those most interested in having student success maximized, the faculty pre-law advisors, the conditions under which the test is given would be quite different.

After all, they freely devote their time to counselling those of us interested in pursuing law as a carrier and certainly have no desire to see any of us denied admission to law school because of low LSAT scores. A second consideration is that some of these advisors have attended summer seminars on the LSAT. Such seminars must certainly provide them with relevant information not possessed by those at Counselling and Testing.

Presently, efforts are underway to form a student pre-law committee to work in close coordination with the faculty pre-law committee on substantive issues. There are several other areas which require attention and the committee need only be limited by its desire to effectuate change.

The first meeting of this school year was held last Thursday night. It was attended by twelve students, all of whom volunteered their services. A second meeting will be held on Sunday, Oct. 27, at 7 p.m., and all interested students are urged to attend.

The organization, although previously inactive, is recognized by the Student Association and the Student Pre-Law Association.

The required officers will be elected at the Oct. 27 meeting.

Nominations are encouraged for the positions of vice-president, secretary, and treasurer.

Interested persons unable to attend the meeting may contact Prof. Peter Grabowsky in the Political Science Office on the second floor of Old Mill, extension 2050.

"Oh, they've just changed the package. Inside, it's the same old stuff."

When The Axe Falls

by Steven Rice

For better or worse a student comes to the University of Vermont to gain an education. It's a wonder that applications from out-of-state reached an all-time high last year, and thousands were turned away as a result.

Indeed, a wonder when one considers that the university is ranked among the highest in tuition. And amazing when one considers the caliber of education a student receives is certainly questionable, with cutbacks in the budget forcing professors to teach in overcrowded classrooms with lack of adequate materials, and in some instances, lack of substance.

Now the word from Waterman is that come December 6 more cuts will have to be made – drastic cuts, and some professors will receive the axe, it seems, and the classrooms will become even more crowded and the students, once again, the victims. Quality education will become more of a meaningless phrase, uttered every year by the university president.

But kindly enough, the administration, after appointing another executive vice-president, has asked faculty and students to assist in this painful process of elimination. It also continues to insist that parts of the December 6 meeting of the board of trustees will be conducted behind closed doors. Predictably, that's where the axe will come down.

Who will go? Who will suffer?

Undoubtedly, those who go will suffer, and the students will again too. The memories of political science professor Michael Perretti and the philosophy four, along with others who went away quietly, cannot easily escape this writer. During the years 1970-74, when I was a student, academic freedom also became another meaningless phrase.

Granted, cuts have to be made to preserve the university's financial equilibrium. Hopefully, the administration will exercise common sense in removing people who will suffer least financially, which means the trimming should begin from the top instead of the bottom.

Again, adding another vice-president to assist executive vice president Wayne C. Patterson, as well-intentioned as it seemed, wasn't a very good beginning for the administration in attempting to gain the confidence it sorely needs in this budgetary crisis.

And declaring that the Dec. 6 meeting at Waterman will play hide-and-seek with the public's right to know can only foster skepticism.

These are tough times for anyone who isn't rich, and that means the majority – a majority which is often ruled in the name of democracy by the affluent, sometimes arrogant minority. Even at the University of Vermont.

A challenge, then, to my alma mater.

How about opening up the entire proceedings of the Dec. 6 meeting in the name of democracy? Somehow, before UVM became a business, sometime ago, democracy was the premise for establishing an institution of higher learning.

The Virtue Of Virtue

by Dan Turner

An "anonymous coed," writing in the June, 1938 number of Mencken's American Mercury, argued lucidly and perhaps defensively in an article entitled, "Chastity on the Campus." Her point: there was, at that time, virtually no chastity to be found on campus. Everybody was getting in on the fun with permission notes from Dr. Freud: "We do not believe that he overemphasized sex," she said, "for his contemporaries in other schools also say that inadequate sex life is the most important cause for neurosis."

"If we give this argument to our parents, they reply that only those a little weak mentally succumb under the strain of unsatisfactory sex life. But we feel that the line between sanity and insanity is a tenuous one, and the best way to avoid crossing over is by the healthiest, soundest living, mental and physical, that we can achieve."

The rest of the argument offered is as densely knit as a cheerleader's sweater. The author has sought to make an impenetrable (so to speak) case for greater sexual freedom. Why the self-described "sorority girl... undergraduate ... at one of the largest universities in the United States" was not out "misbehaving," instead of cramped up indoors, alone, hampering out the manifesto raises several questions.

Was the article written by an older, more professional writer who, needing the work, cackled over obscene possibilities, but settled down and developed a composite student from statistical information, research and interviews? If the "co-ed" did indeed write it, why did she feel the need to do so, to formulate the morality of her... position, rather than merely exercising it?

Was she a forerunner of the school of "philosophy" which would later find its greatest success with the ruminations and ramblings of Hugh Hefner? The prime mover of this school is guilt. Hefner, in essence, is a mid-Western Methodist who really wants to get wicked as can be, but cannot move for shackles of fundamentalism constraining his limbs. Did our "co-ed," unable to writhe in ecstasy, choose rather to write about those untroubled by guilt?

What does any of it concern us? How kind of you to ask. Every generation seems to find in itself a need to overturn the tables of belief of foregoing generations, chairs and all. We seem to be acting on an assumption that what has gone before must necessarily be the product of ignorant and addled brains: sheer folly, barely worth the time it takes to be laughed at uproariously. We think we need to remain contemporaneous with our time regarding our thoughts, words and deeds.

The trend of succeeding generations in the Twentieth century has been toward increased freedom from guilt and fear, regarding sex. Yet we do not have an infinite capacity for love-making. Our freedom has grown tyrannical, and made our pleasure impersonal. Updike, the man who sold pornography to the suburbs, had a character in Rabbit Redux illustrate the previous generation of college students thusly:

"...That's what I do like about these kids: they're trying to kill it. Even if they kill themselves in the process."

"Kill what?"

"The softness. Sex, love; me, mine. They're doing it in. I have no playmates under thirty, believe it. They're burning it out with dope. They're going to make themselves hard clean through. Like, oh, cockroaches. That's the way to live in the desert. Be a cockroach. It's too late for you, and a little late for me, but once these kids get it together, they'll be no killing them. They'll live on poison."

If this generation of students seek to uphold the tradition of spitting on tradition, then, it has but one choice Chastity. Within the state of Chastity there are several choices to be had, virginity, celibacy, and impotence.

Virginity we can discard immediately as extinct. Everybody knows that no person may remain a virgin past the age of twelve, it simply isn't done. There are no laws against it, strictly speaking, but anyone who happens to find themselves in such a state may do one of two things. Those troubled by guilt over their condition may present themselves at any of the clinics set up at fraternity and sorority houses on campus for treatment. There the victim will find a cheerful staff eager to cure the condition, even without prior appointment.

Those able to endure the shame, the fear of exposure, censure, loss of status, or job and the threat of blackmail which accompany virginity have one compensation: anticipation, a whole lifetime of it. For those who think the act an absurd one, like the Englishman who found "the position ridiculous, the pleasure altogether brief," anticipation is ideal. While virgins alone do not have sole rights to the pleasures of anticipation, only they have access to the domain of infinite possibility which the imagination creates when it lacks true experience.

Impotence recommends itself most to those who enjoy capping anticipation with anguish. The sort of person who habitually shows up for a flight to buy a ticket, but finds himself thirty dollars short will enjoy impotence. So will the person who habitually runs out of gas on the freeway, the student who runs out of ink while completing a final, or the guitarist who breaks a string just prior to a grand crescendo.

Celibacy itself, while plain in terms of special thrills, has numerous advantages. Those who abstain totally will find great savings arising in the following areas of personal budget: laundry, medical expenses, entertainment, and toilette. All that marvelous money and libido can then be channeled into study, sports, taking drugs, hiking or any number of possibilities. Many will wish to employ themselves in fashioning a theology of celibacy and call it virtue. Such persons could begin by stating that celibacy does not contribute to overpopulation. And by restoring virtue to "virtue," this generation will make it possible for succeeding generations to rediscover promiscuity, and start the whole silly business all over again.

British Pop Singer Cleo Laine To End U.S. Tour At UVM

Pop and jazz singer Cleo Laine, hailed by the critics as "Britain's Empress of Song," performs in the University of Vermont's Lane Series on Saturday, Nov. 2.

Cleo Laine's live concert, which will begin at 8 p.m. at Memorial Auditorium in Burlington, Vermont, will be the last in her current American tour.

Appearing with Miss Laine will be composer-conductor John Dankworth, husband of the singer, who plays the saxophone. Other musicians in the Dankworth Ensemble are Paul Hart, piano, Rudy Collins, drums, and Bryan Torff, bass.

The Lane program will be the same as the one she presented at Carnegie Hall, New York City, on Oct. 2 to a capacity audience.

That program includes five songs from her latest (RCA) record titled "A Beautiful Thing": The Summer Knows (Legrand), I Loves You, Porgy (Gershwin), The Least You Can Do Is the Best You Can (Daryl Runswick), All in Love is Fair (Stevie Wonder), and Send in the Clowns (Sondheim – from the Broadway musical "A Little Night Music").

Other songs on her program are "Shall I Compare Thee" (Shakespeare), London Ride (Coward), Bad Times Are Just Around the Corner (Coward), Fascinating Rhythm (Gershwin), Unlucky Woman (Feather), Come Back to Me (Burton) and more.

As these titles indicate, Cleo Laine is a multi-faceted entertainer, with a wide vocal range, versatile stage presence and sophisticated program. As the critic of the London Sunday Times wrote, she may indeed be "quite simply the best singer in the world."

Cleo Laine, well known in England and Europe, is now being introduced into the United States as a "superstar on the threshold of superstardom" (Cue Magazine).

Last fall, at the Hopkins Center in Dartmouth, where she appeared before an over-flow audience, a representative of the UVM Lane Committee was completely enthralled by her voice and stage presence. She was immediately booked for the 74/75 season.

A story teller as well as a singer, she dramatizes her songs in a manner unequalled by any other singer on the American scene. Her enunciation is magnificent – one hears every word. Her hands, mouth and arms (in Bill from "Show Boat") tell one that Bill might be just an ordinary guy but ever so special.

Cleo Laine was born Clementina Dinah Campbell in Southall, Middlesex, England, and made her singing debut when she was 3 at a community function, warbling "Let's All Sing the Bar Maid Song." By the time she was 18 she had been a hairdresser, trainee milliner, pawnshop clerk, and cobbler. Cleo entered show business professionally in 1952 as a singer with the Dankworth Seven and a year later sang with the John Dankworth Orchestra. Dankworth, whom she married in 1958, was a front runner in the late forties to propagate the message of the new "bop" jazz art form. By the end of the forties he had garnered such accolades as Musician of the Year, Top Composer, Top Arranger and Top Alto Saxophonist in the British music magazine polls.

In addition to singing, Cleo Laine has had a distinguished acting career. She made her theatrical debut in the Tony Richardson production of "Flesh To A Tiger," and has since played the title role in Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," starred with Robert Morley in "A Time to Laugh," and played both Hippolyta and Titania in the West End production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

At the Edinburgh Festival, she took over from Lotte Lenya the starring role in Brecht–Weill's "Seven Deadly Sins," which she subsequently repeated at the Sadler's Wells Opera. At the same time she had a top selling hit in England with "You'll Answer to Me."

Until the spring of 1973, Cleo played the lead role Julie in the revival of "Showboat." She also starred in "Valmouth," and played both Ellen Terry and Mrs. Patrick Campbell in the musical play based on the life of George Bernard Shaw. The singer with "the quick-silver sensitivity" has won jazz polls as well as gained acclaim as a lieder recitalist. Under the baton of Pierre Boulez, she sang the role of Eve in George Newson's opera "Arena." Add to this numerous television appearances in England and you have a total musician-performer – one at home in any of the media.

Cleo Laine made her American singing debut at New York's Lincoln Center in 1972 and received rave reviews. Her first RCA album, "I Am A Song" (LPL1-5000) won the Dutch Edison Award, one of Europe's most important and prestigious record awards, for 1973. The release of "I Am A Song" coincided with a sensational fall tour of the United States. One of the highlights of the tour was an October 17 appearance at Carnegie Hall which RCA recorded and released in March, 1974, as "Cleo Laine Live at Carnegie Hall" (LPL1-5015). Upon seeing and hearing Cleo, jazz writer Leonard Feather wrote that Cleo is "...The greatest all around singer in the world."

Tickets to the Cleo Laine concert, $3, $5, and $6, are on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

Under Milkwood Defies Negative Reports

by Barbara Freedman

Any previous skepticism that I had had concerning the performance of Under Milkwood ceased to exist shortly after "curtain rise." Only moments after the play commenced, it became evident that any negative reports which had been circulating via grapevine were unjustified and inexact.

Under Milkwood, written by Dylan Thomas and directed by John Milligan (visiting lecturer in communication and theatre and a former actor in this past season at Champlain Shakespeare festival) is a play for voices. It depicts the residents of a small Welsh town by the sea from the middle of one night to the middle of the next. Each character is dead and has come back to give an account on his life.

Thomas was born in Swansea, Wales, which he described bitterly as "the smug darkness of a provincial town." Under Milkwood is to some degree an extension of the author's attitude towards his home town. The cast containing 14 players, captivated and permeated the humerous and on the other hand, humorless existances of these individuals. This group of actors were effective in creating and projecting the appropriate mood and setting for Dylan's play.

However, there were moments during the play that warranted more emphasis and feeling than the actor provided. Consequently, some of the valuable imagery and vivid description were lost or not as dynamic as they might have been. It is hard to say whether this sporadic flaw was an oversight of Milligan's directing, or the actors inopportune spurt of energy for his role, forgetting to focus on the literature.

Milligan was perceptive in role assignments, since some of the roles seemed extremely well suited to certain individuals who were portraying them. Especially enjoyable were Darl Johnson and Paul Rivenberg. Both displayed a great deal of vocal variety, an essential ingredient in this play, as each actor had to assume several different roles. It would be easy to list and credit every player since each one individually gave a good performance and left his special mark on the play.

The cast in its entirety conveyed a strong feeling of continuity. Everyone seemed in tune to what the other was doing. This awareness enhanced the fluid pace of the performance. Due to Under Milkwood's rapid tempochange and the fact that each actor portrayed several different characters, it was at times difficult to keep up with which character was playing what role. This, though, was not an obstacle and did not detract from the content of the play. Having all the characters on stage for the entire length of the production worked extremely well and it is hard to visualize Under Milkwood performed in any other way. This stage technique was undoubtedly tedious for the first and second voices in particular, since they were unable to sit down at any time during the performance. (Keith Gaylord and Karen Trott, how are you feet?)

From a literary viewpoint, it is the full throated rhetoric and the utilization of every lang. device that distinguishes Under Milkwood as a beautiful piece of literature. Thomas once said, "I use everything and anything to make my poems work and move in the directions I want them to, old tricks, new tricks, puns, port manteau words, paradox, allusion, paranomasia, paragram, catachresis, slang, assnotal rhymes, vowel rhymes, and sprung rhythm." It is these constituents together that formed the vibrant language that was heard in Under Milkwood. Even though the average audience member might not have an indepth understanding of poetic technique, he could still appreciate and enjoy the priceless humor, delicate imagery, and the brilliant use of description in Under Milkwood.

It is the reviewer's conclusion that director and actors combined, by giving sustenance to dialogue and characters, created a satisfying experience.

Comedian David Frye To Perform Tonight

David Frye to appear at Patrick Gym, 7:30 this evening. Tickets will be available at the door. $2.00 general admission and $1 with UVM I.D.

Souther Hillman Furay Band Lined Up The Talent

by Paul Prior

The Souther Hillman Furay Band has a lot of talent in its line-up; they proved this more than adequately at their concert in Patrick Gym this past Friday evening.

The concert began pleasantly enough with a half-hour set by Tom Willitz. Being the opening act for any rock band is a difficult chore, especially if the music is like Willitz's, charming acoustic guitar work. Tom has a fine voice, and it was to his credit that he held the attention of the audience, with a song about Oreo cookies being the highlight of his set.

At 9:30 the lights dimmed once again, and the S.H.F. band swung into "Safe at Home" from their recent (and only) album. Richie Furay was as exuberant as ever; he sang "Good Feelin' to Know" from one of his albums with Poco. Later in the concert he did another Poco tune, "Let's Dance."

Chris Hillman was in the forefront for a couple numbers, including some very well-received bluegrass material. J.D. Souther did the only solo tune of the evening; though the tune was sad, his between-song banter was amusing. The group drew mostly from their album; they didn't premiere much in the line of new material.

The evening had additional highlights; Al Perkins was playing some outrageous licks; he was consistant throughout the show, throwing in tasty slide and pedal steel guitar lines. Keyboard player Paul Harris was almost inaudible, but did some nice piano work on "Heartbreaker." Jimmy Gordon was excellent on drums.

I don't think he's ever turned in a bad performance. He was highlighted on the bluegrass tunes, playing a mean box, and on "Bordertown," which is a showcase for his distinct style.

There were some negative factors involved in the concert, however. The first factor was of course the sound – Patrick Gym is an acoustical nightmare; as I said before, the keyboard work was virtually inaudible. And then the lighting – either the light crew is made up of morons of hopelessly incurable ineptitude, or they ingested gargantuan amounts of some psychodelic drug – there was no excuse for such poor work. The last matter was the volume. I was sitting in the front, perhaps ten to 15 feet away, and these boys were loud! I moved around a bit and found little difference anywhere else in the gym; again, it could be the gym is no longer suitable for concerts.

I realize there isn't any other choice when it comes down to holding a concert in Burlington; one needs to sell at least two to three thousand seats to break even, and the gym and Memorial Auditorium are the only venues in the area with such capacity.

My only suggestion would be an outdoor concert in late April or early May. In the meantime, we'll have to be satisfied with first-rate groups and third-rate facilities at UVM.

In all though, it was an enjoyable evening, if not a little short. Still, it was a better show than any of the concerts put on last year.

Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS

PLAZA I & II
DORSET ST
Flesh Gordon
Fri & Sat Sneak Preview Groove Tube
Summer of '42
Class of '44

Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
Williston Road
King of Hearts
Animal Crackers
Anne of Thousand Days

State Theatre
Bank Street
Gone With The Wind

Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
Harrid Summer
Castaway Cowboy
Son of Flubber

Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
The Seduction of Mimi
The Longest Yard

Flynn Theatre
Main Street
Jerimiah Johnson

call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights
or special showings

STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS ARE NOW GOOD AT
PLAZA I & II
ON DORSET ST

SA FILMS PRESENTS
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24
CALL ME MADAM – Ethel Merman
101 Votey – 7:30 – Free
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25
WALKING TALL – Joe Don Baker
101 Votey – 7:30 & 9:45 – $1.00
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 26
HUD – Paul Newman, Patricia Neal
101 Votey – 7:30 – Free
MONDAY, OCTOBER 28
THE LONGEST DAY – John Wayne
103 Rowell – 7:30 – Free

WATCH FOR THE WITCHING HOUR SALE
BEWITCHING BARGAINS
COMING HALLOWEEN NITE
tech hifi
159 CHURCH ST., BURLINGTON, VT 05401

Student
Movie Discount Cards
are now available at the Cynic Office
They enable you to get $.50 off at any movie in our Movie Guide
WARNING: STUDENTS MUST PRESENT THE DISCOUNT CARD AND A VALID ID TO GET INTO THE MOVIES

"ACHINGLY... SIDE-SPLITTINGLY FUNNY!" Bernard Drew, Gannett News Service
"ROLLICKING FUN!" –Judith Crist
"A FURIOUS FARCE." –Nora Sayre, N.Y. Times
"EPISODES OF DEEP, WILD HUMOR..." –Jay Cocks, Time Magazine
The Seduction of Mimi
7 & 9 P.M. R
Evgs. 7 and 9:15 p.m.
IT'S SURVIVAL OF THE FIERCEST, AND THE FUNNIEST.
BURT REYNOLDS
THE LONGEST YARD
EDDIE ALBERT R
BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2
RT 7 AT I 189 SO. BURLINGTON
PHONE 862-5070 ANYTIME!

DOLLAR SHOWING
Thurs. at 4:00 PM
TRASH
shown at
Merrill's Showcase on Williston Road
TICKETS MAY BE OBTAINED FROM BILLINGS OR AT THE THEATRE

THE BEACH BOYS
Wednesday Nov. 20th
TICKETS: $5.00 with UVM Student ID
NOV. 4th - Student ticket sales begin
$6.00 - General admission sales begin Nov. 11th

durham
Headquarters for
CONTINENTAL TYROLEANS
MAZEL'S
194 North St.

World's Fas Demonstra

Kolisch has been described as the world's fastest hypnotist. Born in Vienna, he first became interested in psyco-phenomena of hypnosis and E.S.P. while he was a student of psychology at the University of Vienna. He has twenty-five years of experience as a lecturer, entertainer, and profesional consultant. He has a unique audience participation program.

Kolisch has appeared as a guest on radio and television programs such as Tonight Show, I've Got a Secret, Merv Griffin Show. He has also appeared at clubs, resorts, hotels, such as the Concord, the Playboy Club, The Chateau, The Fountainbleu, The Sands. He has also appeared in hundreds of colleges and universities in the United States and Canada.

He presents a three hour stage performance that includes audience participation in practical demonstrations of hypnosis, mass-hypnosis, post-hypnotic suggestions, extra sensory perception, and mentalism. He will invite 20 or more people on stage to demonstrate his unsurpassed feats. Kolisch has been praised for his amusing yet sophisticated handling of his on stage hypnotic subjects.

Kolisch is a certified member of the American Institute of Hypnosis, and an

National Brings D

by Robert DeNike

The National Chinese Opera from Taipei, the Republic of China, sponsored and presented by UVM's Lane Series, was nothing less than a visually dazzling and awesome spectacle of exquisitely combined with the illusory, delightful music of the Far East. Colorful costumes, choreographical precision and deft, flowing physical movement were closely correlated with the music, making the production one of the most well-received at Memorial Auditorium this year.

An introductory demonstration prepared the audience for the basic ye symbolic method of acting ou plot used in Chinese opera. Props were limited and simp but their arrangement was th key to interpreting what the represented. A table might serv as a bed; by placing a chair o top, a mountain is formed. banner could stand fo thousands of soldiers. Yet onl a small amount of imagination required of the audience: ar and hand movements, faci expressions and voice inflectio (since the actors spoke and su in their native language) clear communicate a variety actions and emotions.

The costumes compensat for what the scenery and pro lacked in complexity. They themselves were enough capture the audience's attenti and induce a fixat hypnotized stare. One ac wore a blue shirt, orange jac and green and yellow pa Others wore elaborate intricately detailed full-le robes. Embroidered in ev imaginable pastel, gold

American F Opens

The American Film T has retained rbc films Angeles to act as its representative in pro season ticket sales on campuses in the United and Canada for The Am Film Theatre's Second S Started in 1973, rbc the exclusive 16mm and distributor for college

TRY "TH
(If he can' or one combinations
Live Entertain
119 St. Paul St

...ative Reports

...description in Under Milkwood.

It is the reviewer's conclusion that director and actors combined, by giving sustenance to dialogue and characters, created a satisfying experience.

...edian David Frye Perform Tonight

...to appear at Patrick Gym, 7:30 this evening. ...available at the door. $2.00 general admission ...VM I.D.

...Hillman Furay Band ...Lined Up The Talent

...Prior

...Hillman Furay ...of talent in its ...roved this more ...y at their concert ...this past Friday

...ncert began ...ough with a ...by Tom Willitz. ...ning act for any ...difficult chore. ...he music is like ...rming acoustic ...Tom has a fine ...was to his credit ...e attention of the ...h a song about ...eing the highlight

...he lights dimmed ...d the S.H.F. band ..."Safe at Home" ...cent (and only) ...e Furay was as ...ever; he sang ..." to Know" from ...bums with Poco. ...concert he did ...o tune, "Let's

...liman was in the ...a couple numbers, ...some very ...bluegrass material. ...did the only solo ...vening, though the ..., his between-song ...nfusing. The group drew mostly from their album; they didn't premiere much in the line of new material.

The evening had additional highlights; Al Perkins was playing some outrageous licks; he was consistent throughout the show, throwing in tasty slide and pedal steel guitar lines. Keyboard player Paul Harris was almost inaudible, but did some nice piano work on "Heartbreaker." Jimmy Gordon was excellent on drums; I don't think he's ever turned in a bad performance. He was highlighted on the bluegrass tunes, playing a mean box, and on "Bordertown," which is a showcase for his distinct style.

There were some negative factors involved in the concert, however. The first factor was of course the sound -- Patrick Gym is an acoustical nightmare; as I said before, the keyboard work was virtually inaudible. And then the lighting -- either the light crew is made up of morons of -- hopelessly -- incurable ineptitude, or they ingested gargantuan amounts of some psychodelic drug -- there was no excuse for such poor work. The last matter was the volume. I was sitting in the front, perhaps ten to 15 feet away, and these boys were loud! I moved around a bit and found little difference anywhere else in the gym; again, it could be the gym is no longer suitable for concerts.

I realize there isn't any other choice when it comes down to holding a concert in Burlington; one needs to sell at least two to three thousand seats to break even, and the gym and Memorial Auditorium are the only venues in the area with such capacity.

My only suggestion would be an outdoor concert in late April or early May. In the meantime, we'll have to be satisfied with first-rate groups and third-rate facilities at UVM.

In all though, it was an enjoyable evening, if not a little short. Still, it was a better show than any of the concerts put on last year.

...INGS

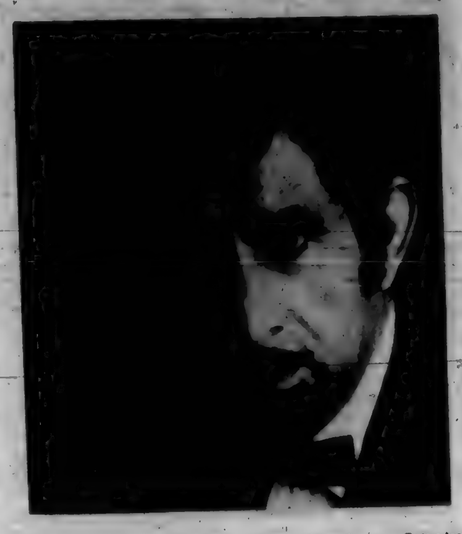
...ID

...gin

...Nov. 11th

dunham
Headquarters for CONTINENTAL TYROLEANS
MAZEL'S
194 North St.

World's Fastest Hypnotist Demonstrate Powers Nov. 2



Kolisch has been described as the world's fastest hypnotist. Born in Vienna, he first became interested in psyco-phenomena of hypnosis and E.S.P. while he was a student of psychology at the University of Vienna. He has twenty-five years of experience as a lecturer, entertainer, and professional consultant. He has a unique audience participation program.

Kolisch has appeared as a guest on radio and television programs such as Tonight Show, I've Got a Secret, Merv Griffin Show. He has also appeared at clubs, resorts, hotels, such as the Concord, the Playboy Club, The Chateau, The Fountainbleu, The Sands. He has also appeared in hundreds of colleges and universities in the United States and Canada.

He presents a three hour stage performance that includes audience participation in practical demonstrations of hypnosis, mass-hypnosis, post-hypnotic suggestions, extra sensory perception, and mentalism. He will invite 20 or more people on stage to demonstrate his unsurpassed feats. Kolisch has been praised for his amusing yet sophisticated handling of his on stage hypnotic subjects.

Kolisch is a certified member of the American Institute of Hypnosis, and an active member of the Association to Advance Ethical Hypnosis. He has served as a consultant to physicians in the treatment of psychosomatic ailments and aided dentists in the use of hypnosis for painless dental work.

He will be appearing at Ira Allen Chapel on Saturday November 2. Tickets will be on sale in Billings and at the door. Don't miss this unique demonstration of Kolisch's mental powers. You have to see it to believe it. This program is presented by the Billings Governing Board.

National Chinese Opera Brings Dazzling Eastern Spectacle

by Robert DeNike

The National Chinese Opera from Taipei, the Republic of China, sponsored and presented by UVM's Lane Series, was nothing less than a visually dazzling and awesome spectacle exquisitely combined with the illusory, delightful music of the Far East. Colorful costumes, choreographical precision and deft, flowing physical movement were closely correlated with the music, making the production one of the most well-received at Memorial Auditorium this year.

An introductory demonstration prepared the audience for the basic yet symbolic method of acting out plot used in Chinese opera. Props were limited and simple but their arrangement was the key to interpreting what they represented. A table might serve as a bed, by placing a chair on top, a mountain is formed. A banner could stand for thousands of soldiers. Yet only a small amount of imagination is required of the audience: arm and hand movements, facial expressions and voice inflection (since the actors spoke and sung in their native language) clearly communicate a variety of actions and emotions.

The costumes compensated for what the scenery and props lacked in complexity. They in themselves were enough to capture the audience's attention and induce a fixated, hypnotized stare. One actor wore a blue shirt, orange jacket and green and yellow pants. Others wore elaborate and intricately detailed full-length robes. Embroidered in every imaginable pastel, gold and silver ran through them, sparkling and outlining mazes of geometric patterns. Caps, crowns and all forms of head-dress were proudly sported, decorated with long feathers, bouncing pom-poms and shimmering jewels. Even the ladies' faces were rouged to a shade of rosy pink seen only in rare sunsets and dawns.

When the contrasting hues came to life with motion and began to flash between and around each other about the stage, cries of "How!" (meaning "Good!" in Chinese) erupted amidst a loud round of applause. A battle scene included acrobatic and gymnastic feats of skill comparable to those displayed in Olympic tournaments or black belt karate matches.

A gentle swaying of bodies developed into individual turns and twirls: cart-wheels, handsprings, flips, vaults, tumbles, dives and kicks ensued. A mightly warrior made his entrance by "head-springing" onstage: flipping his heels over head in rapid succession, the acrobat left the ground from his feet, landed on them with each jump, only to leap once again into the air upon landing and to continue along his somersaulting path. Swords were then brandished by the fighters (one in each hand of the individual) and whirled, tossed and juggled about, while an opponent would avoid the deadly slashes by jumping over the swinging weapon or ducking below it.

The ten-piece orchestra was versatile in its musical talent. Each musician played several instruments, some of which are unknown in this hemisphere. The tone was typically Indian: tinny and dissonant, yet nonetheless enjoyable. Listeners heard cymbals, gongs, a wood block, tom-tom, bongos, recorder, (an odd-looking arrangement of) pipes, something resembling a lute or mandolin, a banjo-like instrument, a soprano and bass "violin" (the resonating box of which was shaped in an octagon cylinder) and various "snake-charming" horns. Percussion was emphasized; tempo changes, to keep with the pace of dramatic action, were frequent. Soprano, tenor and baritone vocal solos were included (though not emphasized as in the Italian mode) and sounded similar to Middle Age religious chants. Like the Indian music in general, the voices were dissonant and unfamiliar to the American ear.

The company was truly talented in all aspects of opera: drama, costumes, action and music. The excellence and extensive training of the actors, gymnasts and musicians were evident. This performance was a visual feast I long had been starving for, from which I would have stuffed myself to the bursting point, had the curtain never fallen.

American Film Theatre Opens Second Season

The American Film Theatre has retained rbc films of Los Angeles to act as its special representative in promoting season ticket sales on college campuses in the United States and Canada for The American Film Theatre's Second Season.

Started in 1973, rbc films is the exclusive 16mm and 35 mm distributor to college film markets of the feature classics of Charles Chaplin and the films of BBS Productions ("Easy Rider," "Five Easy Pieces," "The Last Picture Show," etc.). Rbc films has enjoyed tremendous success in re-introducing the comic genius of Chaplin to the campus community.

Big Band Music Revived By Lane Series Cavalcade

The The big band music of the 1930's and 1940's will be revived by the Lane Series when it presents Bob Crosby, Freddy Martin, Helen Forrest and Red Norvo in their 'Big Band Cavalcade' on Tuesday, Oct. 29, in Memorial Auditorium. The concert begins at 8 p.m.

The four stars will be augmented by a fifth performer in the person of pianist-composer Joe Harnell, and the five artists will be supported by 15 band musicians recruited from the ranks of earlier big bands for this twelve-week national tour.

Each artist will take turns in offering a generous supply of modern classics with which each star name is associated. The latent interest in big band sounds, which musical historians had sealed off in the period between 1935 and 1946, surfaced initially with a resurgence of popularity in the recordings of the great stars of the period. Presently, these records are rivalling rock for places on the sales charts. Among the stars who are not only represented in this revival but who have maintained their followings throughout the intervening years, Crosby, Martin, Miss Forrest, Norvo and Harnell were selected for 'Big Band Cavalcade.'

The 'Big Band Cavalcade' production was inspired by Martin. He suggested that the current resurgence of national interest in the recordings of the 30's and 40's dictated in-person performances of the big band sounds, as well!

Martin, who became the leader of his first big band in 1931, is the veteran of the line-up. Through all the trends in popular music styles since then, Martin's special brand of music has never been out of demand. Often called the most melodic of the sweet bands, Martin's musicians produced such lasting hits as 'Warsaw Concerto,' 'Why Don't We Do This More Often' and the 'Hut Sut Song,' all featuring the leader's 'silvertone' saxophone.

Crosby, after serving his apprenticeship as vocalist with such leaders as Anson Weeks and the Dorsey Brothers, took over leadership of the old Ben Pollack Band in 1935. The Crosby crew made its lasting imprint on the big band era with its unique Dixieland Swing style, which brought fame, as well, to the band within the band, the Bob-Cats.

Helen Forrest's name has appeared on over ten million recordings which she made since her career first came into prominence. She is known to millions who have seen her appearances with such stars as Jackie Gleason, Johnny Carson, Joey Bishop and many others. Miss Forrest fills the always popular spot on the program as vocalist.

Red Norvo made his name on the vibes, xylophone and as a band leader. In Chicago at 17 he established himself as the leader of a marimba group called The Collegians. In the 30's and 40's his name was closely associated with such other celebrities as Victor Young, Paul Whiteman, singer Mildred Bailey (who was later Mrs. Norvo), Benny Goodman (NBC--TV, European tour, recordings, etc.) Aside from many early recordings on which he was featured - discs which have become collectors' items - Red Norvo also collaborated with many other name artists; among them: Artie Shaw, Teddy Wilson, Bunny Berigan, Jack Jenney Johnny Mince, Chu Berry, Gene Krupa et al.

Joe Harnell for five years has been the musical director and musical producer of the Mike Douglas Show. Just as impressive is his accomplishment as a recording star. 'Fly Me to the Moon,' one of his singles, sold over two million copies and won four Grammy Awards. He can also add to his credit fourteen record albums on Kapp, Jubilee, Epic, Columbia and Motown.

Some of the numbers which Bob Crosby will lead are "Big Noise from Winnetka," "Muskrat Ramble," "March of the Bobcats," "Honky Tonk Blues," "Summertime," "South Rampart Street Parade" and "Scott Joplin's "The Entertainer."

Freddy Martin will do the lead songs from "Cabaret" and "Hello Dolly", as well as "Dr. Zhivago Theme," "Begin the Beguine," "To Each His Own," and "Tonight We Love." He will also do a salute to contemporary band leaders, including "Sugar Blues," "Let's Dance," "Ciri, Ciri, Bin," "Take the "A" Train," and "One O'Clock Jump".

Red Norvo will perform such hits as "But Beautiful," "Two for Two," "Avalon," "Sweet Georgia Brown," "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To," "Ida," "When You're Smiling," and "The One I Love Belongs To Someone Else."

Helen Forrest, accompanied by the band, will sing "Taking a Chance on Love," "Bill," "September Song," "I Can't Stop Loving You," "I Cried For You," "My Melancholy Baby," "I'm in the Mood for Love," "My Man," "You Made Me Love You," "I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate," and "Falling in Love with Love."

It has been estimated that by 1940 there were some 200 dance orchestras touring the United States. Only a handful of that number who gained fame are still practicing their special art in occasional concert and dance dates. "Big Band Cavalcade" however, is the one production which will offer stars in a truly retrospective view of that 1935-1946 era of music.

Tickets for "Bag Band Cavalcade" $3, $5, and $6 are available in the Lane office, 234 Waterman. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

Truffaut's "Stolen Kisses" Steals The Show

The Lane Film Society Series "Truffaut Classic Movies" continues this week with the distinguished French film director's "Stolen Kisses."

There will be two showings of the 1969 Truffaut classic in Marsh Life Sciences Building on Friday, Oct. 25, at 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

Although the lead in "Stolen Kisses" is played by Jean-Pierre Leaud, who undertook the part of Antoine Doinel in "The 400 Blows," it is a mistake to see "Stolen Kisses" as anything like a narrative sequel to the earlier film.

"Stolen Kisses," which follows Antoine through a series of adventures as a hotel night clerk and private detective, is so different from "The 400 Blows" as to be almost in another medium. It looks looser in structure than "The 400 Blows," but it is dense with detail -- of character and moviemaking technique -- and so light of touch as to seem, at first, casual.

Writing in the Los Angeles Times, critic Charles Champlin called "Stolen Kisses" as "warmly enjoyable a movie as the new year has given us, very genuinely funny, very honestly gentle and affecting. 'Stolen Kisses' also serves to make clear the unique and special quality of Francois Truffaut: he is a romantic who is in touch with reality."

The 90-minute color film in French with English subtitles, features, in addition to Leaud, Delphine Seyrig, Claude Jade and Michael Lonsdale. The screenplay is also by Truffaut, and the photography by Denis Clerval.

Tickets, $1 each, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

"Bed and Board," November 1, will be the next Truffaut film in the Truffaut Classic Movies series.

Music Thing Reviews Albums

by Michael Thurston

Mighty Love
The Spinners
Atlantic SD 7296

A multitude of musical treats have been emitted from Philadelphia, and the new Spinners' album, Mighty Love is the latest addition. Thom Bell, pop veteran from the initial verbal acknowledgement of rock, takes the production credits in an album of perfection, commercialism, and energy.

For many years, The Spinners were camouflaged by Motown's desire for pop singles. The Spinners were dealt with as a hit-making group, geared to soul markets like Chicago, New York, and L.A. Atlantic has been intelligent enough to permit musical growth and expansion within the group, a natural process which has brought The Spinners to the forefront of both American and European audiences. This universatality has been a welcome addition to the world of music, as well as a positive step for these fine vocalists.

Mighty Love is a package much in the standard format for a vocal R&B act, but transgresses such tunnel-vision category through lyricism, and the self-contained ability to project lyrical fragments into coherent, audial and visual images. The Spinners do not detach themselves from their material and the difference is best described by that prostituted word, soul.

And All That Jazzzz

London Underground
Herbie Mann
Atlantic SD 1648

Herbie Mann is an album machine. Every time you turn around, another one is at the local shop. London Underground is a welcome addition to the collection, with the fickle-fingered flutist performing numbers by Lennon-McCartney, Mick Jagger, Donovan, Eric Clapton, Stevie Winwood, and John Keen. Mann's rendition of the Reed-Brooker classic, A Whiter Shade of Pale, is pure bliss.

London Underground is an instrumental collection of some of England's finest exports. Sidemen on the album include Mick Taylor, Aynsley Dunbar, and Fuzzy Samuels. The ole component system will purr to this album... one of the best anthologics of British rock, in jazz form, to be found. All I can say is, hey Mann!

BEVERAGE WAREHOUSE
Retail outlet
FANTASTIC SELECTION OF BEERS, ALES, AND AMERICAN & IMPORTED WINES AT GREAT SAVINGS
145 EAST ALLEN ST.
WINOOSKI, VT.
655-2620

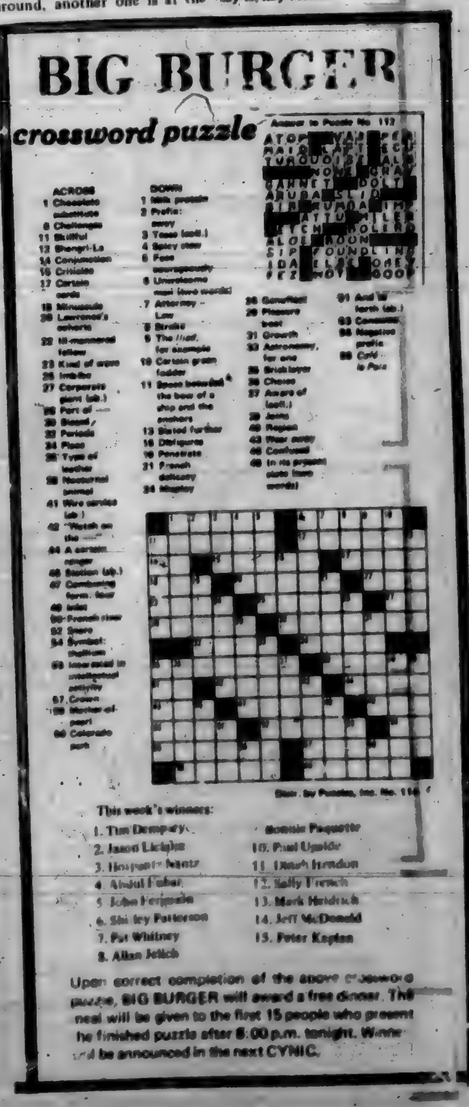
TUT'S
248 North Street
Burlington, Vt. 05401
DAYS Till 7:30
ALL NITE SUN.
20¢ DRAFTS
10¢ OFF L/Q.
"A NICE LITTLE JOINT"

TONIGHT
TRY "THE BUFFALO BILL"
(If he can't eat it his sister will)
FAMOUS SINCE 1904
or one of the 90 other unbelievable combinations at CARBUR'S RESTAURANT
Live Entertainment Wed. Thru Sun.
119 St. Paul St. 862-4106

ICE-NINE
Leather Shop
&
Craft Parlor
Route 2 Jonesville, Vt.
(3 miles past Richmond on Williston Rd)
Hours Noon - 7:30 Sun-Thurs
e Farmer's Market Fri-Sat 9-6
Custom Leatherwork. Moccasins. Leatherclothing. Bags. Belts, etc. plus batik. Pottery. Photography. wooden toys. Needlepoint. Knitting. Woodwork. Jewelry

THE SILVER KEG
★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★
MONDAY-LADIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY - ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
WEDNESDAY
UVM NITE ★FREE★ WITH UVM I.D.
(MUST BE 18 YEARS OF AGE)
THURSDAY- ½ PRICE NITE TILL 10:45
★ FEATURING ★
THE BEST ROCK GROUPS IN THE EAST
OCT. 21-27 SPOON FEATHER

BIG BURGER crossword puzzle



Answer to Puzzle No. 112

ACROSS
1 Chocolate substitute
6 Chickens
11 Skillful
12 Shangri-La
14 Conjunction 15 Cellists
17 Certain cards
18 Minnesota
20 Lawrence's exploits
22 Ill-mannered fellow
23 Kind of worm
25 Inside
27 Corporate giant (abbr.)
28 Port of ...
29 Bread
32 Periods
34 Plant
36 Type of leather
38 Nonsense
41 Wire service (abbr.)
42 "Watch on the ..."
44 A person
46 Station (abbr.)
47 Commotions
48 Tennis star
49 Inlet
50 Peruvian river
52 Sharp
54 Symbol: Thallium
55 Interested in intelligent society
57 Cretin
58 Mother of ... pearl
60 Colorado park

DOWN
1 Milk protein
2 Prefix: ...
3 Yeses (coll.)
4 Spicy stew
6 Fuss
7 Unpleasantly loud (two words)
8 Unwholesome meat (two words)
9 Attorney -- Law
10 Bridle
11 The Third, for example
13 Carbon grain holder
14 Speed between the bow of a ship and the anchors
15 Stated further
16 Disfigures
19 Penetrate
21 French ... delicacy
24 Mystery
26 Gumshoes
29 Pleasure boat
31 Growth
33 Astronomy, for one
35 Brick layer
36 Chorus
37 Amens of (coll.)
39 Jams
40 Pagan
43 Hair curler
45 Confused
48 In its present state (two words)
51 And so forth (abbr.)
53 Carpenter
55 Negative prefix
56 Cuts in Paris

This week's winners:
1. Tim Dempsey
2. Jason Lichjhe
3. Benjamin Bentz
4. Abdul Fabar
5. John Fergusson
6. Shirley Patterson
7. Pat Whitney
8. Allan Jelich
9. Bonnie Paquette
10. Paul Upside
11. Dinah Davidson
12. Sally French
13. Mark Hindrich
14. Jeff McDonald
15. Peter Kaplan

Upon correct completion of the above crossword puzzle, BIG BURGER will award a free dinner. The meal will be given to the first 15 people who present the finished puzzle after 6:00 p.m. tonight. Winners will be announced in the next CYNIC.

...Salmon Commends Experience

(continued from page one)

it does contain many items, said Salmon.

The Governor supports the state land-use plan. "We need a state presence in planning that requires that we have stated goals and objectives of what we are and hope to do... We begin to define what the truly high resources are in terms of land... The nitty-gritty of the problem should be done at local and regional levels, with state help," Salmon commented.

Salmon feels Vermont's problems with nuclear power plants have been manifold. The Vermont Yankee Power Plant at Vernon is currently shut down for eight weeks in order to make some corrections. Salmon believes that, if these projected corrections meet expectations Vermonters should have a safe plant without serious problems or endangering the public. He has looked into other possibilities, including hydrogen electric power, and is hopeful for the future.

Salmon complimented the University on its raised enrollment, excellent medical school and good budget. "I think Dr. Andrews has performed quite well in a difficult period," he stated. He criticized Kennedy's mass media techniques, remarking that his own low-key campaign worked before and, Tom Salmon hopes, will work again.

discussed the $300,000 of state legislative funds for UVM which was impounded. "That was a tough decision, but... we have to finish the year in black. We must balance the budget... We have to cut spending to the maximum. The University has done a good job of managing its budget. However, there can be no sacred cows."

Salmon made additional remarks about a variety of subjects ranging from decriminalization of marijuana — "We have de facto decriminalization now, no one is busted for small quantities... We're pretty progressive, remarkably more than our neighbors to the West" to comments about the Windsor state prison "There are some tremendous concerns about conditions there. It is the oldest maximum security prison in the U.S."

Salmon has not received any financial support from the Democratic party, due to the party's limited funds.

1974 Ariel, The Revitalization Of A Tradition

by Barbara Frankel

The yearbook may be going out of style in other places, but at the University of Vermont it has reached a new high level.

The 1974 Ariel is a remarkably refreshing change from the stuffy, traditional yearbooks that have been seen in recent years. Featuring such innovative items as an application for undergraduate admission by Thirsty Skier, easy meals for males and females and the BS/BA game, made by Waterman Bros., the book is creative, original and fun.

Ariel not only captures the humorous aspects of college life, but succeeds in making a valuable commentary on our time. Through the effective use of satire, "VPURGE Goes to the Bathroom," "The Ghost Of Converse Hall" and some serious thoughtful writing "An Open Letter From Michael Parenti," Ariel '74 presents both the cynical and the idealistic side of today's youth.

Ariel '74 is also a beautifully laid-out book. The photography is excellent, especially Lew Comenetz's color shots. The spirit and beauty of Vermont is captured here in a permanent recollection of some gorgeous moments.

A yearbook is supposed to be a testimonial to one's college years. It is supposed to be a remembrance that can be kept forever. Ideally, a yearbook should bring more joy and pleasant memories each time it is viewed. For the first time in many years, UVM has such a yearbook. The '74 Ariel is much, much more. It is a creative, unique endeavor. It is not a whitewash of the good times had by all. It takes a stand, supporting campus-wide controversial figures such as the Philosophy Four and Michael Parenti. The student of the seventies is not the typical rah-rah type of the fifties. Neither is he/she the political activist of the sixties. Exactly what the seventies student is has not yet been defined. Perhaps this book comes the closest to capturing that definition.

Dylan And Dutch Elm Disease United

by Stephen W. Tanner

The program entitled "Dylan and Dutch Elm Disease" was presented Sunday October 20 in the Royall Tyler Theater at UVM.

Some 80 students, homeowners, specialists, and other interested community members gathered to enjoy an afternoon of poetry, music, and native photography that effectively linked Dylan Thomas with the disease that is decimating the American Elm population in the United States at a rate of one million elms per year.

A multi-media presentation of Dylan Thomas' "Fern Hill" featured reading by Dr. Sam Bogorad (UVM English Department) and music, "Appalachian Spring," by Aaron Copeland. In conjunction with the slide presentation, a film entitled "The American Elm – A Plan for Survival" was shown. Finally, a "Tree Problem Panel" addressed itself to municipal tree problems.

Participants arrived in the upper lobby of the theater around 2 p.m. to see displays of diseased tree branches and means of controlling the disease. There were also samples of the beetle that carries the fungus which clogs the water-carrying vessels of the tree. Distinguished guests included John Scott, Director of the Plant and Pest Control Division of the Vermont Department of Agriculture, and Dr. and Mrs. Phair, coordinators of the Harvard Elm Project, which is very similar in nature to UVM's Project Elm.

From the lobby, the singing and guitar work of Kathy Hebert (Miss Vermont 1972) drew the audience to their seats in the theater.

Ms. Hebert had been playing at the Holiday Inn the night before the program and Susan Morse, hearing her, had asked Ms. Hebert to come and play a special song by Joni Mitchell called "Big Yellow Taxi." The chorus, "Don't it always seem to go that you don't know what got 'til it's gone..." struck directly at the dilemma facing the American Elm.

The program was sponsored by the UVM Theater Department in conjunction with Project Elm. Project Elm is a student-faculty group which was created by Susan Morse (UVM English Dept.) and Dr. Gordon Neilsen (UVM Entomologist). The goals of the group are twofold: firstly to establish a control program of Dutch Elm Disease on the UVM Green, and secondly to sponsor Arbor Day activities including tree planting at local schools in Burlington and surrounding areas. To date Project Elm has planted over 400 trees in the Chittenden Valley.

Following the folk songs, Betty Bandel (UVM English Dept.) introduced Susan Morse, the program coordinator. Professor Bandel called Ms. Morse a "Renaissance woman" stressing her "breadth of interest" as coordinator of UVM's Project Elm.

Bandel said kiddingly that when "Susan Morse walks across the UVM Green, the trees bow and Susan curtsies." Morse's studies in both English and forestry are a testimony to the relation between Dylan and Dutch Elm disease.

The film, "The American Elm – A Plan for Survival" was provided by the Elm Research Institute of Harrisville, New Hampshire, which is the largest research institution in the country.

The film depicted the variety of methods now being pursued by researchers for controlling Dutch Elm disease.

It stressed a sound maintenance program for elm owners including fertilization, sanitation (trimming of all dead wood from healthy trees and removal, debarking or burning of all diseased or dying trees), dormant spraying and vanaming treatments (a process by which the disease is prevented from spreading by roots grafted together). All these actions, except spraying, have been instituted on the UVM Green by the efforts of Project Elm and the Dept. of Buildings and Grounds.

After the film Susan Morse read a letter sent by Governor Thomas Salmon expressing his regrets that he could not appear in person. He wrote that the efforts of Project Elm have been "highly commendable" and conveyed his "best wishes" to all who were present.

Morse took the opportunity to announce the 1975-76 Bicentennial Tree Planting Commission whose goal would be to organize and plant 2000-3000 trees in the Chittenden Valley.

Richard Streeter described the program now being implemented on the UVM Green. He said a total of $9,000 had been invested in the Green which was a minor sum when compared to the real value of the Green which he estimated at 1.7 million dollars with all the present trees standing.

A major problem facing the Green is the privately owned elms nearby. Streeter told the audience that if those trees are not maintained they may become a breeding ground for disease which could infect those trees on the Green. He now expects 7 or 8 of the 31 elms on the Green to die next year. Plans now are to begin a Benlate injection treatment of the elms to help prevent the fungus from entering the water carrying vessels of the trees.

The panel ended discussion at 5 p.m. and the audience departed in twos and threes out the door of the theater. Several walked across the Green as the chilly Sunday wind blew the fallen leaves of the maples and elms across their paths. Dylan Thomas probably remained in their minds as they saw the elms in the barren fall dusk.

Roquefort And Nuts, A Picnic On A Lazy Day

by William Dorman

Sandwiches and wine make for great entertaining, and for good conversation. It really is easy to become a celebrated sandwich maker by following these simple recipes.

First, let's consider the breads for your sandwiches. There are many possibilities in bread selection and you may choose from the heartier types such as French, pumpernickle, rye and caraway. A little imagination and you can create great sandwiches to compete against the originator, the Earl of Sandwich.

To make a zesty Croque Monsieur, France's most popular sandwich creation, place a slice of Dorman's Swiss cheese on a slice of bread and cover it with a piece of boiled ham. Butter the outside of each slice of bread, put the sandwich in a skillet and cover with a plate to weight it down. Now, brown on each side. It's delicious when served with a hearty Burgundy wine, either domestic or imported.

Another Dorman special is made with Danish Blue spread on a slice of rye bread, toasted lightly. Serve with a Chablis. Another tasty sandwich is made with strips of crisp bacon and slices of Dorman's Babybel served with a Greek wine like Demestica red.

Roquefort and nuts make a tasty open sandwich. Butter slices of French bread and lay on a slice of Roquefort cheese, dust with cayenne pepper and top with crushed walnuts and/or almonds. Serve with an inexpensive California red.

An egg sandwich takes on new dimensions when covered with a thin slice of Dorman's Provolone cheese and crumbled fried bacon. Serve with a full-bodied red wine.

What to do on a lazy sunny day? Go on a "wine and cheese" picnic. It's fun and congenial, and very appetizing. Load up your car or bicycle with a picnic basket filled with French bread, three different cheeses and two types of wine. Cheese and wine make the most enjoyable gastronomic marriage of our time.

First step is to shop for the cheeses. I suggest you visit the cheese counter of your local supermarket. Today, the supermarkets carry a large assortment of domestic and imported cheeses. The ones to select are: Edam, firm, golden hue and a very mellow cheese; Monterey Jack, semi-firm, mild and creamy and Babybel, semi-soft, mild, yet tangy.

Now that you have selected your cheeses, try and purchase some fine California wine. The prices are modest, about $1.50 to $1.75, and you are usually assured of top quality.

Now don't forget the equipment needed for your picnic. Choose a sharp knife for your cheese and a bottle opener for your wine. Pick a secluded spot under the shade of a tree and spread the blanket. To add to the fun, drink the wine straight from the bottle, like the French on their picnics. Spread the cheese out on the blanket with some ripe fruit and you're ready to eat.

Bon appetit!

Caucus Symposium Focuses On Rape

of rape was discussed by Peggy Luhrs, counselor at the Vermont Women's Health Center. Our society usually sees the rape victim as having provoked her attacker. This problem is furthered by the myth that "nice girls don't get raped," and therefore, the woman feels guilt whether or not she actually provoked the rapist.

Luhrs mentioned two motives behind rape: sexual gratification and the drive to humiliate women, which is the more prevalent of the two. She added that these motives must say something about our society and its sex roles, since rape is the fastest-rising crime in the country.

Dr. Kay Schmucker, counselor at Counseling and Testing, and faculty member at UVM, concentrated on the different viewpoints of men and women towards rape. Men tend to view the crime as a purely sexual act; they think it is the result of provocation by a woman or frustrated sexuality.

In addition, most men insist that if a woman shows resistance, the attacker will stop. On the other hand, women view rape as an assaultive act, and they feel the woman is an innocent victim and if she resists, she faces potential physical disfiguration and possible death. Dr. Schmucker concluded with a warning that men tend to rape women who are not ashamed to show their strength.

WAR (Women Against Rape) was represented by Abby Hale who discussed what issues this organization is working on. They have started self-defense classes to help prevent rape. WAR is also trying to dispel certain myths about the crime and to change the current rape laws in Vermont.

This organization has set up an advocate counselling service, which informs women of their rights. This service also provides help and assistance for the victim immediately following the rape.

Lynne McLaughlin is the chairperson of the National Organization of Women's Task Force on Rape. She was involved in a rape crisis training session. Locally, N.O.W. is trying to establish rape crisis hot-lines in the community. They are currently distributing pamphlets concerning rape. On the national level, N.O.W. is devising a model rape law that will hopefully be adopted in the future.

A question and answer period followed the panel discussion in which the importance of reporting a rape and prosecuting the rapist was emphasized. The symposium concluded with the hope that women will be aware of the possibility of rape. Every woman is a possible victim.

Bromley Ski Special Prices

Officials of the Bromley Ski Area in Southern Vermont announced today a special price policy aimed at college students.

"We're going to provide students with a free Bromley College Card this year," says GM Bob Farley, which will entitle them to substantial savings on lift tickets weekends, weekdays and holidays. Savings of $3 per ticket are available.

The Bromley College ID Card itself, is free until November 15th. After this, a token fee of $3 will be charged. To get the card, students write to: Ms. Kit Cooper at Bromley, Manchester, Vt. 05255. In addition to name, they should include school affiliation and address plus student ID card number if appropriate.

★ selling out! ★

2,000 RECORD ALBUMS

$1.00 EACH

50% OFF All equipment

MADMAN MURRAY'S

BARGAIN CENTER FOR RECORDS, TAPES, EQUIPMENT

CHURCH ST. & MECHANICS LANE 864-5719

BETWEEN GOYER'S & BESSEY'S BOOK STORE

Start something with Wolfschmidt.

A gimlet, a bloody mary, a martini, a screwdriver. Or anything else you have in mind.

Wolfschmidt Genuine Vodka

$3.40

½ Gal $8.30 FIFTH SIZE—CODE # 0122

VODKA • DISTILLED FROM GRAIN • 86 AND 100 PROOF • BRADDAM DISTILLERS CO., NEW YORK, N.Y.

LOOK FOR

INDIA IMPORTS

Just in

Long Sleeve

JERSEYS

$4.99

100 % Cotton

SIZES S-M-L

Many Colors, Patterns

CHARLESTOWN MILL STORE

66 Main St.

Open Daily 9-9

Saturday 9-5

Newma... Se...

by Margo Howland

On Monday night, the Newman Center of UVM featured its second biannual Candidates' Forum, billed as "Vermonters for Congress."

The forum was friendly and low-keyed. About 25 or 30 people gathered around a cozy fire to hear the candidates or their representatives. Of the House candidates, former attorney general James Jeffords, a Republican, and professor Michael Parenti, Liberty Union, appeared in person. Charles Novotny spoke for Democratic candidate Francis Cain.

The forum opened with introductions, and Novotny read a prepared statement from Cain.

Cain expressed his apologies for not attending, and outlined a number of concerns he has been hearing from Vermonters in the campaign. The statement emphasized the "double standard" in "our courts," in our tax system, in our economy." He included the following examples:

–The United States using influence to overthrow democratically elected governments;

–The prosperity of oil companies "while government tells us to tighten our belts";

–Congressional delay on national health insurance but increasing expense accounts by "thousands of dollars";

–President Ford talking about new policies but still surrounding himself "with the same old Nixon economic advisors";

–the people are confused: "They ask for direction and they get WIN buttons." Cain's statement suggested "We need leaders we can believe in"; that "the American people want to believe President Ford, but I am not yet convinced that they believe in him."

Liberty Union candidate Parenti spoke next, deciding to talk about law and corruption in personal conduct. He spoke of the time he was on the Jack Barry show, and that Barry had asked if it weren't "all a problem of morality."

Parenti had answered that that morality is not exclusive

Save on Sto... Dem...

New Sco...
KLH-32
SAE-MK...
~~Ultralin...~~
~~Ultralin...~~
AR 4XA
ESS-AM...
AR2 AX

Sony SQ...
Sony T...
Craig ...

ALL R...

LAST 10 D...

Newman Center Features Second Biannual Candidates Forum

by Margo Howland

On Monday night, the Newman Center of UVM featured its second biannual Candidates' Forum, billed as "Vermonters for Congress."

The forum was friendly and low-keyed. About 25 or 30 people gathered around a cozy fire to hear the candidates or their representatives. Of the House candidates, former attorney general James Jeffords, a Republican, and professor Michael Parenti, Liberty Union, appeared in person. Charles Novotny spoke for Democratic candidate Francis Cain.

The forum opened with introductions, and Novotny read a prepared statement from Cain.

Cain expressed his apologies for not attending, and outlined a number of concerns he has been hearing from Vermonters in the campaign. The statement emphasized the "double standard" in "our courts," in our tax system, in our economy." He included the following examples:

–The United States using influence to overthrow democratically elected governments;

–The prosperity of oil companies "while government tells us to tighten our belts";

–Congressional delay on national health insurance but increasing expense accounts by "thousands of dollars";

–President Ford talking about new policies but still surrounding himself "with the same old Nixon economic advisors";

–the people are confused; "They ask for direction and they get WIN buttons." Cain's statement suggested "We need leaders we can believe in": that "the American people want to believe President Ford, but I am not yet convinced that they believe in him."

Liberty Union candidate Parenti spoke next, deciding to talk about law and corruption in personal conduct. He spoke of the time he was on the Jack Barry show, and that Barry had asked if it weren't "all a problem of morality."

Parenti had answered then that morality is not exclusively a matter of personal liability. The example of police "on the take" was explained by the "conditioning of the corporate capitalist system."

"Police are perfect products of their environment; they're taught to think vertically," said Parenti.

He explained "thinking vertically" in terms of a football analogy: you're running down the field towards your goal and anybody else had better look out.

"It's a war of all against all. You're taught that the person next to you isn't your brother, he's an enemy ... a competitor. The Liberty Union doesn't buy that ethic," Parenti declared.

Marcelle Leahy spoke next. "I won't touch on the issues, because I feel that most of you have come in contact with Patrick or have read about him, and where he stands. Instead I'll talk about his qualifications," she said.

Leahy is one of five members of the National District Attorney's Association on the Economic Crime Committee. They have been investigating the oil companies for eight months.

Leahy has also been Chittenden County's State's Attorney for eight years.

Mallary's representative, Dick Richie III read a statement from the Republican candidate, outlining some of his key votes in his three years in Congress:

–$15 million to deal with the problems of child abuse;

–Solar energy research;

–$2.30 minimum wage;

–Taxes on windfall oil profits;

–Decreases in military spending.

Richie added a few comments on his own, noting the number of young people working for Mallary (only two are over 30) and the input of young people in the campaign. He added that "Mallary has not been a down-the-line Republican, but has voted on a lot of issues independently."

Richie indicated that the Congressman has been rated very favorably by Common Cause and The League of Women Voters. Common Cause gave Mallary an 80% rate on issues, while the LWV rated him 83%.

Jeffords arrived late and out of breath, explaining his car broke down. He started on a jovial note, joking about the neck brace he has worn since he suffered a whiplash injury in a car accident two weeks ago. He called it his "clerical collar."

"I am running for the U.S. House because I believe that it's important for people to get involved in politics, to come up with solutions to the critical problems that this society faces," the candidate began.

He spoke on one area of concern: "the role of women in society."

He called for the class of "male chauvinist pigs who have gained supremacy and superiority" to "gracefully give up some of these things– to respect women, who want a fair shake in society."

Jeffords noted that as Attorney General, he had hired "the first female assistant attorney general the state's had." He has women on his campaign staff, and Helen Burbank is his campaign treasurer.

"What we must do is insure equal quality for women," declared Jeffords.

Novotny, Cain's representative, spoke up:

"My wife is doing quite nicely." (Patricia Novotny is on the Burlington board of aldermen.) Novotny said the rules were on the books and that they just had to be enforced. Jeffords appeared to believe that if a law can't be enforced, there's something wrong with it. "Legal changes have to be made; no law is any good unless it is enforced properly."

Parenti commented that he was glad the Republicans were finally seeing the light. "We've got two women on the statewide ticket (Martha Abbott and Nancy Kaufman). About 40% of our candidates are women."

A sizeable proportion of questions following the initial talks were aimed at Parenti, who had been looking tired all evening. Some questions came from his opponents.

Richie criticized him about his attack on big companies, asking "How do you do a job on the companies without hurting the workers?"

Parenti suggested legislation to turn the companies over to the public, "eliminating the conditions which necessitate evil."

Jeffords challenged Parenti's foreign policy statement, charging: "You're saying to do away with foreign aid. You want our country to take care of our own, and tell the rest of the world to go to hell!"

Parenti objected, "I'm not against foreign aid. The money goes from the ruling elite in one country to the ruling elite in another; it never gets to the peasants."

After the question and answer period, coffee and doughnuts were served, and Parenti, Jeffords, and M Leahy stayed chatting with students and visitors late into the evening.

Tales From The Ozone

by Paul Prior

This past summer marked the tenth anniversary of one of rock's finest bands, The Who. The boys celebrated in true form, playing a week's worth of dates at the Madison Square Garden in New York. Primarily a "greatest hits" concert, the group drew from close to all of their albums. As a gift to their fans, they have released Odds and Sods, a montage of songs that were never included on their albums.

Three of the tracks were taken from what is known in England as an E.P., standing for "extended play". This means that four songs were recorded and released on an eight inch disk. It's a bit larger and more expensive than American 45's. The tracks include bassist John Entwistle's "Post Card", reminiscent of his solo work with the group Rigor Mortis. Peter Townsend contributes "Now I'm a Farmer" and "Glow Girl", the latter includes the chorus "It's a girl, Mrs. Walker, It's a girl." This indicates the song was recorded sometime before "Tommy."

Several more of the songs were recorded before their masterpiece "Tommy." "Little Billy" was recorded around the time of their Sell Out album, and was an anti-smoking commercial intended for use by the Cancer Society. It was never used, however, apparently too long or too good. The earliest piece on the LP is "I'm the Face," the Who's first single release in England. There are some real standouts among the material most recently recorded. "Pure and Easy" was recorded in 1971 by the Who and is also included on Pete Townsend's solo effort, "Who Came First." I prefer Townshend's version the best, somehow the Who's version fails to equal Townsend's in intensity. "Naked Eye" is fine, distinguished by singer Roger Daltry's vocal work. You might recognize part of the song as being one of the riffs from "My Generation" on the Live at Leeds album. "Long Live Rock" is a humorous tune containing quite a bit of the band's history. They play a melody similar to "Johnny B. Goode" and couple it with lyrics such as "We were the first band to vomit in the bar and find the distance to the stage too far."

There are several other tracks, some good, some only average. However, one of the average cuts by the Who would put some recent efforts by many rock bands to shame. There is always merit in the work of the Who. Whether it be Entwhistle's outlandish bass, or the explosive drumming of madman Keith Moon, or the excellence of Daltry and Townshend, it will always mean something above and beyond any accolades – The Who!

Freedom Of Sexual Expression

On Sunday, October 6th, the first program of Burlington After Dark, a show concerned with the facilitation of Gay consciousness throughout the Burlington area was aired. Designed to aid in the community's recognition and acceptance of the various local organizations involved with Gay Liberation, the hourly program, heard twice monthly also aims to instill a sense of continuity and Gay pride among local homosexual people.

The issue of freedom of sexual expression was introduced by the theme of social conformity versus non-conformity; examining the traditionally defined roles of men and women, explored through the lyrics of songs. Among the choices were included: Janis Joplin's "I Need A Man to Love," (herself an alleged bisexual woman, although her vocals never contained suggestive implications, as this probably would have confused and aided in disseptation of her 'Mother Earth' imagery,) joined with various cuts by Bob Dylan, (Just Like A Woman), Billie Holiday, (All of Me), all which clearly illustrated the point of dominant-subservient stereotypical relationships among men and women.

To further exemplify the seriousness of confused sexual identities, a selection by the Kinks was utilized, entitled "Lola," perhaps the most blatent and viciously stereotypical piece of musical literature ever written concerning homosexual relationships during the Sixties.

In contrast to the concepts of social conformity, as seen through these stereotypical roles, was noted the energies of dissent, evident in the Sixties, with the eruption and gradual growth of such pioneer liberation forces as war protesters, Blacks, Women, and the Poor. Stressed was the fact that Gay liberation has found its place among the ranks in quest for Human liberation, directing its energies towards a sense of universal Gay awareness.

In this social evolution, Gays, it was stated, are striving to break prefabricated stereotypes of 'looking' and/or 'acting' Gay. Gay men and women are found in all socio-economic, political and religious orders. Encouraged in the broadcast was the importance of a Gay Pride from those individuals from the various echelons of the social spectrum, resulting in the prime factor of unification.

Musical selections chosen to correlate these political ideas included Bob Dylan's "The Times They Are A-Changin'," and David Bowie's "Changes."

Following was presented a short, effective poetry reading, consisting of a brief, but sensual and definitive work by Walt Whitman concerning the freedom of adolescent love, followed by a work dedicated to Burlington, Vermont, entitled "In the Monotonous Village."

Also commented upon was the lack of sexual ease, i.e., the low degree of enlightened sexual consciousness to be found in the Burlington area, in contrast to that found in any urban area, which accurately attests to the restrictive provincialism reflective of Burlington, Vermont.

The next grouping of musical selections consisted of cuts from the Broadway musical Hair, ("Sodomy" and "My Conviction"), and a song from a Gay group from the Seattle, Washington area, identified as Lavender Country, featuring "Back In the Closet Again."

A regular portion of the program will be dedicated to the Lavender Calendar, consisting of area Gay news and announcements of interest to the Gay community.

Following the News announcements was an editorial marking the history of the development of the Gay community, beginning with the Gay dances held at the Next Thing, initiated over one year ago. Other developments mentioned were the institution of open houses, rap groups for both Gay men and women, Gay individuals serving on high school and medical school panel discussions concerning the subject of homosexuality, as well as a heated debate within the St. Paul's lecture series, considering the question: "Should sanctions against homosexuality be abolished?"

A note of criticism was sounded nearing the end of the program, concerning the lack of support from Gay students and the comment that there is no sense of Gay awareness on what must be one of the straightest campuses in New England. People interested in contacting the Gay community should consider the various supportive organizations listed as follows:

Prospective Gay Student Union – those interested in organizing, contact 658-3830

Gay Men's Switchboard – Sundays, 7-10 p.m., contact 658-3830

Women's Switchboard – contact 862-5504

Vermont Women's Health Center – contact 863-1386

Gay in Vermont – contact 658-3830 or 862-2397

Alibi Bookshop, which stock such Gay periodicals as Gay Community News, Gay Sunshine Fag Rag, Off Our Backs, in addition to a wide range of other Gay literature, are the Little Professor, Church Street, and the Vermont Bookshop, Dorset Street.

Projections were made that future shows might provoke some controversial dialogue, in addition to being generally entertaining. Also, special shows would attempt to deal with topics such as the pros and cons of electroshock therapy, Gay people in history, Gay life in urban areas, and interviews with responsible, vocal Gay, Bisexual, and Straight individuals.

In closing the program, music consisted of Martha and the Vandellas' "Dancing in the Street," and Carole King's "Beautiful," dedicated to the Burlington Gay community.

The next show is scheduled from 7-8 p.m., Sunday, November 3. Those individuals interested in working on, or contributing to the program may dial 658-3830 for further information.

NEW & USED STEREOS

Available at Burlington Store Only

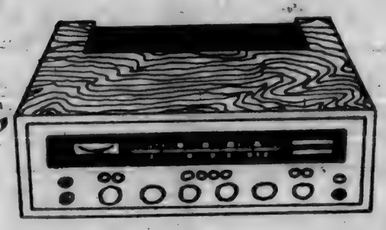
MOVING OUT OF SHELBURNE ROAD STORE

Save on Store Demos

Save on Store Demos

SAVE 25% on ALL RECORDING TAPE

ALL RECORDING TAPE 25% OFF



SPEAKERS	Reg.	NOW
New Scott SII New	139.00	90.00
KLH-32	119.00 pr.	80.00
SAE-MKXI 100 Watt Speakers	300.00 ea.	150.00
~~Ultralinear 150A~~	~~129.95~~	~~60.00~~
~~Ultralinear 100A~~	~~80.00 ea.~~	~~49.00~~
AR 4XA - Demos	75.00	40.00
ESS-AM T-5 Demos	190.00 ea.	142.00
AR2 AX 2 pr. Demo	140.00	80.00

MISCELLANEOUS	Reg.	NOW
Sony SQO-2050 Adapter 4 Channel	99.00	49.00
Sony TC824tc-8 Track Player with 4 Speakers	300.00	150.00
Craig 8 Track Player Home Unit with 2 Speakers	79.95	60.00

ALL RECORDING TAPE 25% OFF

AMPS-RECIEVERS-TUNERS	Reg.	NOW
Lafayette LR-221 - 4-Channel Reciever New	359.95	269.00
Technic-SA6000-4 Channel Reciever 70 Watts RMS	429.95	300.00
Technics-SA5400 2-4 Channel 20 Watts RMS New	290.00	205.00
Lafayette LR220-4 Channel Reciever 44 Watts RMS	289.95	203.00
Dokorker (used) SX8000 Reciever 50 Watts RMS	399.95	260.00
JVC-5436 Reciever 4 Channel 85 Watts RMS New	579.95	434.50
Sony TC-824 TC 20 Watts Used 300 20 Watts NEW	300.00	150.00
~~Kenwood Tuner KTC005~~	~~289.95~~	~~217.50~~
Kenwood-KA4006 Demo	269.95	202.50
Lafayette LA950 Amplifier 50 Watts RMS New	129.95	97.50
Lafayette LR200 AM-FM Reciever 20 Watts RMS New	199.00	150.00
Lafayette Tuner AM-FM Dolby New	230.00	180.00
Lafayette 4 Channel Reciever 220 Watts RMS New	569.95	427.00
Sherwood SEL-300 Tuner New	499.00	375.00
~~Scott R75 Reciever AM-FM 50-50 RMS~~	~~499.00~~	~~375.00~~
Sony ST-5055 AM-FM Tuner New in Box	189.95	141.75

TURNTABLES	Reg.	NOW
Garrard Model 70 with Shure M75E Base and Dust Cover New	129.00	59.00
Garrard Model 62 with Shure M55E Base & Dust Cover New	89.00	62.00
Garrard X10 with Base & Dust Cover	59.95	45.00
Garrard 74 M/S with M91ED Base & Dust Cover	129.00	75.00
Miricord 650 Turntable with New Shure M55E Base & Dust Cover	189.00	139.00
JVC– Manual with Base & Dust Cover Shure M55E	170.00	139.00
BSR - 310X Turntable Demo New		30.00

TAPE DECKS
Sony Cassette - TC129	149.95	120.00
JVC - Cassette	149.95	120.00
JVC - Cassette 1668	300.00	200.00
TEAC - TC160	259.00	200.00
Dokorder - 7100 - Reel to Reel Reversing	499.95	350.00
Technics RS-714US - 7" - 3 Motors Reel-Reel	479.00	350.00

LAST 10 DAYS Store closing (Sat) 11-2-74

LAFAYETTE®

370 Shelburne Rd. Burlington
157 Pearl St. Essex Junction

LAST 10 DAYS Store closing (Sat) 11-2-74

OCTOBER 24, 1974

sease United coordinator of Film.

Kellogg that
Morse walks
Green, the trees
green curtains"
in both English
re a testimony to tween Dylan and me.
"The American
for Survival" was the Elm Research
Harrisville, New
which is the largest titution in the depicted the hoods now being researchers for tch Elm disease.
ed a sound
program for elm
ding fertilization,
oming of all dead
ealthy trees and rking or burning
d or dying trees),
ing and vaccining
process by which prevented from roots grafted
these actions,
ying, have been
he UVM Green by Project Elm and Buildings and Glenn Susan Morse
sent by Governor om expressing his could not appear wrote that the ect Elm have been mendable" and
conveyed his "best wishes" to all who were present.

Morse took the opportunity to announce the 1975-76 Bicentennial Tree Planting Commission whose goal would be to organize and plant 2000-3000 trees in the Chittenden Valley.

Richard Streeter described the program now being implemented on the UVM Green. He said a total of $9,000 had been invested in the Green which was a minor sum when compared to the real value of the Green which he estimated at 1.7 million dollars with all the present trees standing.

A major problem facing the Green is the privately owned elms nearby. Streeter told the audience that if those trees are not maintained they may become a breeding ground for disease which could infect those trees on the Green. He now expects 7 or 8 of the 31 elms on the Green to die next year. Plans now are to begin a Benlate injection treatment of the elms to help prevent the fungus from entering the water carried vessels of the trees.

The panel ended discussion at 5 p.m. and the audience departed in twos and threes out the door of the theater. Several walked across the Green as the chilly Sunday wind blew the fallen leaves of the maples and elms across their paths. Dylan Thomas probably remained in their minds as they saw the elms in the barren fall dusk.

es On Rape

the current rape
ent.
ization has set up counselling service,
n women of their
This service also and assistance for immediately
rape.
McLaughlin is the
of the National
of Women's Task Rape. She was rape crisis training
cently, NOW is establish rape crisis
the community
rrently distributing concerning rape. On al level, NOW is model rape law that ly be adopted in the tion and answer
lowed the panel
in which the
of reporting a rape and prosecuting the rapist was emphasized. The symposium concluded with the hope that women will be aware of the possibility of rape. Every woman is a possible victim.

Bromley Ski Special Prices

Officials of the Bromley Ski Area in Southern Vermont announced today a special pricing policy aimed at college students.

"We're going to provide students with a free Bromley College Card this year," says GM Bob Paton, which will entitle them to substantial savings on lift tickets weekends, weekdays and holidays. Savings of $3 per ticket are available.

The Bromley College ID Card itself, is free until November 15th. After this, a token fee of $3 will be charged. To get the card, students write to: Ms. Kit Cooper at Bromley, Manchester, Vt. 05255. In addition to name, they should include school affiliation and address plus student ID card number if appropriate.

LOOK FOR INDIA IMPORTS

Just In

Long Sleeve

JERSEYS

$4.99

100 % Cotton

SIZES S- M- L

Many Colors, Patterns

CHARLESTOWN MALL STORE

65 Main St.

Open Daily 9-9

Saturday 9-5

ing
nidt.

...Salmon Commends Experience

(continued from page one)

it does contain many points, said Salmon.

The Governor supports the state land-use plan. "We need a state presence in planning that requires that we have stated goals and objectives of what we are and hope to do.. We begin to define what the truly high resources are in terms of land... The nitty-gritty of the problem should be done at local and regional levels, with state help," Salmon commented.

Salmon feels Vermont's problems with nuclear power plants have been manifold. The Vermont Yankee Power Plant at Vernon is currently shut down for eight weeks in order to make some corrections. Salmon believes that, if these projected corrections meet expectations Vermonters should have a safe plant without serious problems or endangering the public. He has looked into other possibilities, including hydrogen electric power, and is hopeful for the future.

Salmon complimented the University on its raised enrollment, excellent medical school and good budget. "I think Dr. Andrews has performed quite well in a difficult period," he stated. He criticized Kennedy's mass media techniques, remarking that his own low-key campaign worked before and, Tom Salmon hopes, will work again.

Salmon discussed the $300,000 of state legislative funds for UVM which was impounded. "That was a tough decision, but... we have to finish the year in black. We must balance the budget... We have to cut spending to the maximum. The University has done a good job of managing its budget. However, there can be no sacred cows."

Salmon made additional remarks about a variety of subjects ranging from decriminalization of marijuana — "We have de facto decriminalization now, no one is busted for small quantities... We're pretty progressive, remarkably more than our neighbors to the West" to comments about the Windsor state prison "There are some tremendous concerns about conditions there. It is the oldest maximum security prison in the U.S."

Salmon has not received any financial support from the Democratic party, due to the party's limited funds.

1974 Ariel, The Revitalization Of A Tradition

by Barbara Frankel

The yearbook may be going out of style in other places, but at the University of Vermont it has reached a new high level.

The 1974 Ariel is a remarkably refreshing change from the stuffy, traditional yearbooks that have been seen in recent years. Featuring such innovative items as an application for undergraduate admission by Thirsty Skier, easy meals for males and females and the BS/BA game, made by Waterman Bros., the book is creative, original and fun.

Ariel not only captures the humorous aspects of college life, but succeeds in making a valuable commentary on our time. Through the effective use of satire, "VPURGE Goes to the Bathroom," "The Ghost Of Converse Hall" and some serious thoughtful writing "An Open Letter From Michael Parenti," Ariel '74 presents both the cynical and the idealistic side of today's youth.

Ariel '74 is also a beautifully laid-out book. The photography is excellent, especially Lew Comenetz's color shots. The spirit and beauty of Vermont is captured here in a permanent recollection of some gorgeous moments.

A yearbook is supposed to be a testimonial to one's college years. It is supposed to be a remembrance that can be kept forever. Ideally, a yearbook should bring more joy and pleasant memories each time it is viewed. For the first time in many years, UVM has such a yearbook. The '74 Ariel is much, much more. It is a creative, unique endeavor. It is not a whitewash of the good times had by all. It takes a stand, supporting campus-wide controversial figures such as the Philosophy Four and Michael Parenti. The student of the seventies is not the typical rah-rah type of the fifties. Neither is he/she the political activist of the sixties. Exactly what the seventies student is has not yet been defined. Perhaps this book comes the closest to capturing that definition.

Dylan And Dutch Elm Disease United

by Stephen W. Tanner

The program entitled "Dylan and Dutch Elm Disease" was presented Sunday October 20 in the Royall Tyler Theater at UVM.

Some 80 students, homeowners, specialists, and other interested community members gathered to enjoy an afternoon of poetry, music, and native photography that effectively linked Dylan Thomas with the disease that is decimating the American Elm population in the United States at a rate of one million elms per year.

A multi-media presentation of Dylan Thomas' "Fern Hill" featured reading by Dr. Sam Bogorad (UVM English Department) and music, "Appalachian Spring," by Aaron Copeland. In conjunction with the slide presentation, a film entitled "The American Elm – A Plan for Survival" was shown. Finally, a "Tree Problem Panel" addressed itself to municipal tree problems.

Participants arrived in the upper lobby of the theater around 2 p.m. to see displays of diseased tree branches and means of controlling the disease. There were also samples of the beetle that carries the fungus which clogs the water-carrying vessels of the tree. Distinguished guests included John Scott, Director of the Plant and Pest Control Division of the Vermont Department of Agriculture, and Dr. and Mrs. Phair, coordinators of the Harvard Elm Project, which is very similar in nature to UVM's Project Elm.

From the lobby, the singing and guitar work of Kathy Hebert (Miss Vermont 1972) drew the audience to their seats in the theater.

Ms. Hebert had been playing at the Holiday Inn the night before the program and Susan Morse, hearing her, had asked Ms. Hebert to come and play a special song by Joni Mitchell called "Big Yellow Taxi." The chorus, "Don't it always seem to go that you don't know what got 'till it's gone..." struck directly at the dilemma facing the American Elm.

The program was sponsored by the UVM Theater Department in conjunction with Project Elm. Project Elm is a student-faculty group which was created by Susan Morse (UVM English Dept.) and Dr. Gordon Neilsen (UVM Entomologist). The goals of the group are twofold: firstly to establish a control program of Dutch Elm Disease on the UVM Green, and secondly to sponsor Arbor Day activities including tree planting at local schools in Burlington and surrounding areas. To date Project Elm has planted over 400 trees in the Chittenden Valley.

Following the folk songs, Betty Bandel '(UVM English Dept.) introduced Susan Morse, the program coordinator. Professor Bandel called Ms. Morse a "Renaissance woman" stressing her "breadth of interest" as coordinator of UVM's Project Elm.

Bandel said kiddingly that when "Susan Morse walks across the UVM Green, the trees bow and flowers curtsey." Morse's studies in both English and forestry are a testimony to the relation between Dylan and Dutch Elm disease.

The film, "The American Elm – A Plan for Survival" was provided by the Elm Research Institute of Harrisville, New Hampshire, which is the largest research institution in the country.

The film depicted the variety of methods now being pursued by researchers for controlling Dutch Elm disease.

It stressed a sound maintenance program for elm owners including fertilization, sanitation (trimming of all dead wood from healthy trees and removal, debarking or burning of all diseased or dying trees), dormant spraying and vanaming treatments (a process by which the disease is prevented from spreading by roots grafted together). All these actions, except spraying, have been instituted on the UVM Green by the efforts of Project Elm and the Dept. of Buildings and Grounds.

After the film Susan Morse read a letter sent by Governor Thomas Salmon expressing his regrets that he could not appear in person. He wrote that the efforts of Project Elm have been "highly commendable" and conveyed his "best wishes" to all who were present.

Morse took the opportunity to announce the 1975-76 Bicentennial Tree Planting Commission whose goal would be to organize and plant 2000-3000 trees in the Chittenden Valley.

Richard Streeter described the program now being implemented on the UVM Green. He said a total of $9,000 had been invested in the Green which was a minor sum when compared to the real value of the Green which he estimated at 1.7 million dollars with all the present trees standing.

A major problem facing the Green is the privately owned elms nearby. Streeter told the audience that if those trees are not maintained they may become a breeding ground for disease which could infect those trees on the Green. He now expects 7 or 8 of the 31 elms on the Green to die next year. Plans now are to begin a Benlate injection treatment of the elms to help prevent the fungus from entering the water carried vessels of the trees.

The panel ended discussion at 5 p.m. and the audience departed in twos and threes out the door of the theater. Several walked across the Green as the chilly Sunday wind blew the fallen leaves of the maples and elms across their paths. Dylan Thomas probably remained in their minds as they saw the elms in the barren fall dusk.

Roquefort And Nuts, A Picnic On A Lazy Day

by William Dorman

Sandwiches and wine make for great entertaining, and for good conversation. It really is easy to become a celebrated sandwich maker by following these simple recipes.

First, let's consider the breads for your sandwiches. There are many possibilities in bread selection and you may choose from the heartier types such as French, pumpernickle, rye and caraway. A little imagination and you can create great sandwiches to compete against the originator, the Earl of Sandwich.

To make a zesty Croque Monsieur, France's most popular sandwich creation, place a slice of Dorman's Swiss cheese on a slice of bread and cover it with a piece of boiled ham. Butter the outside of each slice of bread, put the sandwich in a skillet and cover with a plate to weight it down. Now, brown on each side. It's delicious when served with a hearty Burgundy wine, either domestic or imported.

Another Dorman special is made with Danish Blue spread on a slice of rye bread, toasted slightly. Serve with a Chablis. Another tasty sandwich is made with strips of crisp bacon and slices of Dorman's Babybel served with a Greek wine like Demestica red.

Roquefort and nuts make a tasty open sandwich. Butter slices of French bread and lay on a slice of Roquefort cheese, dust with cayenne pepper and top with crushed walnuts and/or almonds. Serve with an inexpensive California red.

An egg sandwich takes on new dimensions when covered with a thin slice of Dorman's Provolone cheese and crumbled fried bacon. Serve with a full-bodied red wine.

What to do on a lazy sunny day? Go on a "wine and cheese" picnic. It's fun and congenial, and very appetizing. Load up your car or bicycle with a picnic basket filled with French bread, three different cheeses and two types of wine. Cheese and wine make the most enjoyable gastronomic marriage of our time.

First step is to shop for the cheeses. I suggest you visit the cheese counter of your local supermarket. Today, the supermarkets carry a large assortment of domestic and imported cheeses. The ones to select are: Edam, firm, golden hue and a very mellow cheese; Monterey Jack, semi-firm, mild and creamy and Babybel, semi-soft, mild, yet tangy.

Now that you have selected your cheeses, try and purchase some fine California wine. The prices are modest, about $1.50 to $1.75, and you are usually assured of top quality.

Now don't forget the equipment needed for your picnic. Choose a sharp knife for your cheese and a bottle opener for your wine. Pick a secluded spot under the shade of a tree and spread the blanket. To add to the fun, drink the wine straight from the bottle, like the French on their picnics. Spread the cheese out on the blanket with some ripe fruit and you're ready to eat.

Bon appetit!

Caucus Symposium Focuses On Rape

of rape was discussed by Peggy Luhrs, counselor at the Vermont Women's Health Center. Our society usually sees the rape victim as having provoked her attacker. This problem is furthered by the myth that "nice girls don't get raped," and therefore, the woman feels guilt whether or not she actually provoked the rapist.

Luhrs mentioned two motives behind rape: sexual gratification and the drive to humiliate women, which is the more prevalent of the two. She added that these motives must say something about our society and its sex roles, since rape is the fastest-rising crime in the country.

Dr. Kay Schmucker, counselor at Counseling and Testing, and faculty member at UVM, concentrated on the different viewpoints of men and women towards rape. Men tend to view the crime as a purely sexual act; they think it is the result of provocation by a woman or frustrated sexuality.

In addition, most men insist that if a woman shows resistance, the attacker will stop. On the other hand, women view rape as an assaultive act, and they feel the woman is an innocent victim and if she resists, she faces potential physical disfiguration and possible death. Dr. Schmucker concluded with a warning that men tend to rape women who are not ashamed to show their strength.

WAR (Women Against Rape) was represented by Abby Hale who discussed what issues this organization is working on. They have started self-defense classes to help prevent rape. WAR is also trying to dispel certain myths about the crime and to change the current rape laws in Vermont.

This organization has set up an advocate counselling service, which informs women of their rights. This service also provides help and assistance for the victim immediately following the rape.

Lynne McLaughlin is the chairperson of the National Organization of Women's Task Force on Rape. She was involved in a rape crisis training session. Locally, N.O.W. is trying to establish rape crisis hot-lines in the community. They are currently distributing pamphlets concerning rape. On the national level, N.O.W. is devising a model rape law that will hopefully be adopted in the future.

A question and answer period followed the panel discussion in which the importance of reporting a rape and prosecuting the rapist was emphasized. The symposium concluded with the hope that women will be aware of the possibility of rape. Every woman is a possible victim.

Bromley Ski Special Prices

Officials of the Bromley Ski Area in Southern Vermont announced today a special price policy aimed at college students.

"We're going to provide students with a free [illegible] College Card this year," says GM Rob [illegible] entitle them to substantial savings on lift tickets weekends, weekdays and holidays. Savings of $3 per ticket are available.

The Bromley College ID Card itself, is free until November 15th. After this a token fee of $3 will be charged. To get the card, students write to: Ms. Kit Cooper at Bromley, Manchester, Vt. 05255. In addition to name, they should include school affiliation and address plus student ID card number if appropriate.

★ selling out! ★

2,000 RECORD ALBUMS

$1.00 EACH

50% OFF All equipment

MADMAN MURRAY'S

BARGAIN CENTER FOR RECORDS, TAPES, EQUIPMENT

CHURCH ST. & MECHANICS LANE 864-5719

BETWEEN GOVER'S & BESSEY'S BOOK STORE

WOLFSCHMIDT SCHMILE #281-BLIND DATE

Start something with Wolfschmidt.

A gimlet, a bloody mary, a martini, a screwdriver. Or anything else you have in mind.

Wolfschmidt Genuine Vodka

$3.40

FIFTH SIZE—CODE #6122

½ Gal $8.30

VODKA • DISTILLED FROM GRAIN • 80 AND 100 PROOF • SEAGRAM DISTILLERS CO., NEW YORK, N.Y.

LOOK FOR

INDIA IMPORTS

Just In

Long Sleeve

JERSEYS

$4.99

100 % Cotton

SIZES S-M-L

Many Colors, Patterns

CHARLESTOWN MILL STORE

46 Main St.

Open Daily 9-9

Saturday 9-5

sease United

...coordinator of ...film.
...d jokingly that ...Morse walks ...Korea, the term ...mean manure." ...in both English ...e a testimony to ...Bowen Dylan and ...ame.
"The American ...for Survival" was ...by Film Research ...Harrisville, New ...ock is the largest ...station in the ...
...depicted the ...thods now being ...researchers for ...atch Elm disease.
...ed a broad ...program for elm ...ding fertilization, ...mming of all dead ...ealthy trees and ...rking or burning ...d or dying trees). ...ing and removing ...process by which ...prevented from ...routs grafted ...these actions, ...ing, have been ...the UVM Green by ...Project Elm and ...Buildings and ...
...film Susan Morse ...sent by Governor ...on expressing his ...could not appear ...wrote that the ...ect Elm have been ...mendable" and ...

es On Rape

...the current rape ...ont. ...nization has set up ...counselling service, ...s women of their ... This service also ...and assistance for ...m immediately ...rape.
...cLaughlin is the ...of the National ...of Women's Task ...Rape. She was ...rape crisis training ...cally, N.O.W. is ...tablish rape crisis ...the community. ...rrently distributing ...concerning rape. On ...al" level, N.O.W. is ...model rape law that ...ly be adopted in the ...
...tion and answer ...lowed the panel ...in which the ...of reporting a rape ...and prosecuting the rapist was emphasized. The symposium concluded with the hope that women will be aware of the possibility of rape. Every woman is a possible victim.

conveyed his "best wishes" to all who were present.

Morse took the opportunity to announce the 1975-76 Bicentennial Tree Planting Commission whose goal would be: to organize and plant 2000-3000 trees in the Cluttenden Valley.

Richard Streeter described the program now being implemented on the UVM Green. He said a total of $9,000 had been invested in the Green which was a minor sum when compared to the real value of the Green which he estimated at 1.7 million dollars with all the present trees standing.

A major problem facing the Green is the privately owned elms nearby. Streeter told the audience that if those trees are not maintained they may become a breeding ground for disease which could infect those trees on the Green. He now expects 7 or 8 of the 31 elms on the Green to die next year. Plans now are to begin a Benlate injection treatment of the elms to help prevent the fungus from entering the water carrying vessels of the trees.

The panel ended discussion at 5 p.m. and the audience departed in twos and threes out the door of the theater. Several walked across the Green as the chilly Sunday wind blew the fallen leaves of the maples and elms across their paths. Dylan Thomas probably remained in their minds as they saw the elms in the barren fall dusk.

Bromley Ski Special Prices

Officials of the Bromley Ski Area in Southern Vermont announced today a special price policy aimed at college students.

"We're going to provide students with a free Bromley College Card this year," says GM Bob Paine, which will entitle them to substantial savings on lift tickets weekends, weekdays, and holidays. Savings of $3 per ticket are available.

The Bromley College ID Card itself, is free until November 15th. After this, a token fee of $3 will be charged. To get the card, students write to: Md. Kit Cooper at Bromley, Manchester, Vt. 05255. In addition to name, they should include school affiliation and address plus student ID card number if appropriate.

LOOK FOR INDIA IMPORTS
Jantin
Long Sleeve
JERSEYS
$4.99
100 % Cotton
SIZES S- M- L
Many Colors, Patterns
CHARLESTOWN MALL STORE
65 Main St.
Open Daily 9-9
Saturday 9-5

ing
nidt.

Newman Center Features Second Biannual Candidates Forum

by Margo Howland

On Monday night, the Newman Center of UVM featured its second biannual Candidates' Forum, billed as "Vermonters for Congress."

The forum was friendly and low-keyed. About 25 or 30 people gathered around a cozy fire to hear the candidates or their representatives. Of the House candidates, former attorney general James Jeffords, a Republican, and professor Michael Parenti, Liberty Union, appeared in person. Charles Novotny spoke for Democratic candidate Francis Cain.

The forum opened with introductions, and Novotny read a prepared statement from Cain.

Cain expressed his apologies for not attending, and outlined a number of concerns he has been hearing from Vermonters in the campaign. The statement emphasized the "double standard" in "our courts," in our tax system, in our economy." He included the following examples:

–The United States using influence to overthrow democratically elected governments;

–The prosperity of oil companies "while government tells us to tighten our belts";

–Congressional delay on national health insurance but increasing expense accounts by "thousands of dollars";

–President Ford talking about new policies but still surrounding himself "with the same old Nixon economic advisors";

–the people are confused; "They ask for direction and they get WIN buttons." Cain's statement suggested "We need leaders we can believe in": that "the American people want to believe President Ford, but I am not yet convinced that they believe in him."

Liberty Union candidate Parenti spoke next, deciding to talk about law and corruption in personal conduct. He spoke of the time he was on the Jack Barry show, and that Barry had asked if it weren't "all a problem of morality."

Parenti had answered then that morality is not exclusively a matter of personal liability. The example of police "on the take" was explained by the "conditioning of the corporate capitalist system."

"Police are perfect products of their environment; they're taught to think vertically," said Parenti.

He explained "thinking vertically" in terms of a football analogy: you're running down the field towards your goal and anybody else had better look out.

"It's a war of all against all. You're taught that the person next to you isn't your brother, he's an enemy ... a competitor. The Liberty Union doesn't buy that ethic," Parenti declared.

Marcelle Leahy spoke next. "I won't touch on the issues, because I feel that most of you have come in contact with Patrick or have read about him, and where he stands. Instead I'll talk about his qualifications," she said.

Leahy is one of five members of the National District Attorney's Association on the Economic Crime Committee. They have been investigating the oil companies for eight months.

Leahy has also been Chittenden County's State's Attorney for eight years.

Mallary's representative, Dick Riehle read a statement from the Republican candidate, outlining some of his key votes in his three years in Congress:

–$15 million to deal with the problems of child abuse;

–Solar energy research;

–$2.30 minimum wage;

–Taxes on windfall oil profits;

–Decreases in military spending.

Riehle added a few comments on his own, noting the number of young people working for Mallary (only two are over 30) and the input of young people in the campaign. He added that "Mallary has not been a down-the-line Republican, but has voted on a lot of issues independently."

Riehle indicated that the Congressman has been rated very favorably by Common Cause and The League of Women Voters. Common Cause gave Mallary an 80% rate on issues, while the LWV rated him 83%.

Jeffords arrived late and out of breath, explaining his car broke down. He started on a jovial note, joking about the neck brace he has worn since he suffered a whiplash injury in a car accident two weeks ago. He called it his "clerical collar."

"I am running for the U.S. House because I believe that it's important for people to get involved in politics, to come up with solutions to the critical problems that this society faces," the candidate began.

He spoke on one area of concern: "the role of women in society."

He called for the class of "male chauvinist pigs who have gained supremacy and superiority" to "gracefully give up some of these things – to respect women, who want a fair shake in society."

Jeffords noted that as Attorney General, he had hired "the first female assistant attorney general the state's had." He has women on his campaign staff, and Helen Burbank is his campaign treasurer.

"What we must do is insure equal quality for women," declared Jeffords.

Novotny, Cain's representative, spoke up:

"My wife is doing quite nicely." (Patricia Novotny is on the Burlington board of aldermen.) Novotny said the rules were on the books and that they just had to be enforced. Jeffords appeared to believe that if a law can't be enforced, there's something wrong with it: "Legal changes have to be made; no law is any good unless it is enforced properly."

Parenti commented that he was glad the Republicans were finally seeing the light. "We've got two women on the statewide ticket (Martha Abbott and Nancy Kaufman). About 40% of our candidates are women."

A sizable proportion of questions following the initial talks were aimed at Parenti, who had been looking tired all evening. Some questions came from his opponents.

Riehle quizzed him about his attack on big companies, asking "How do you do a job on the companies without hurting the workers?"

Parenti suggested legislation to turn the companies over to the public, "eliminating the conditions which necessitate evil."

Jeffords challenged Parenti's foreign policy statement, charging: "You're saying to do away with foreign aid. You want our country to take care of our own, and tell the rest of the world to go to hell!"

Parenti objected, "I'm not against foreign aid. The money goes from the ruling elite in one country to the ruling elite in another; it never gets to the peasants."

After the question and answer period, coffee and doughnuts were served, and Parenti, Jeffords, and M Leahy stayed chatting with students and visitors late into the evening.

Freedom Of Sexual Expression

On Sunday, October 6th, the first program of Burlington After Dark, a show concerned with the facilitation of Gay consciousness throughout the Burlington area was aired. Designed to aid in the community's recognition and acceptance of the various local organizations involved with Gay Liberation, the hourly program, heard twice monthly also aims to instill a sense of continuity and Gay pride among local homosexual people.

The issue of freedom of sexual expression was introduced by the theme of social conformity versus non-conformity; examining the traditionally defined roles of men and women, explored through the lyrics of songs. Among the choices were included: Janis Joplin's "I Need A Man to Love," (herself an alleged bisexual woman, although her vocals never contained suggestive implications, as this probably would have confused and aided in dissaptation of her 'Mother Earth' imagery,) joined with various cuts by Bob Dylan, (Just Like A Woman), Billie Holiday, (All of Me), all which clearly illustrated the point of dominant-subservient stereotypical relationships among men and women.

To further exemplify the seriousness of confused sexual identities, a selection by the Kinks was utilized, entitled "Lola," perhaps the most blatent and viciously stereotypical piece of musical literature ever written concerning homosexual relationships during the Sixties.

In contrast to the concepts of social conformity, as seen through these stereotypical roles, was noted the energies of dissent, evident in the Sixties, with the eruption and gradual growth of such pioneer liberation forces as war protesters, Blacks, Women, and the Poor. Stressed was the fact that Gay liberation has found its place among the ranks in quest for Human liberation, directing its energies towards a sense of universal Gay awareness.

In this social evolution, Gays, it was stated, are striving to break prefabricated stereotypes of 'looking' and/or 'acting' Gay. Gay men and women are found in all socio-economic, political and religious orders. Encouraged in the broadcast was the importance of a Gay Pride from those individuals from the various echelons of the social spectrum, resulting in the prime factor of unification.

Musical selections chosen to correlate these political ideas included Bob Dylan's "The Times They Are A-Changin'," and David Bowie's "Changes."

Following was presented a short, effective poetry reading, consisting of a brief, but sensual and definitive work by Walt Whitman concerning the freedom of adolescent love, followed by a work dedicated to Burlington, Vermont, entitled "In the Monotonous Village."

Also commented upon was the lack of sexual ease, i.e., the low degree of enlightened sexual consciousness to be found in the Burlington area, in contrast to that found in any urban area, which accurately attests to the restrictive provincialism reflective of Burlington, Vermont.

The next grouping of musical selections consisted of cuts from the Broadway musical Hair, ("Sodomy" and "My Conviction"), and a song from a Gay group from the Seattle, Washington area, identified as Lavender Country, featuring "Back In the Closet Again."

A regular portion of the program will be dedicated to the Lavender Calendar, consisting of area Gay news and announcements of interest to the Gay community.

Following the News announcements was an editorial marking the history of the development of the Gay community, beginning with the Gay dances held at the Next Thing, initiated over one year ago. Other developments mentioned were the institution of open houses, rap groups for both Gay men and women, Gay individuals serving on high school and medical school panel discussions concerning the subject of homosexuality, as well as a heated debate within the St. Paul's lecture series, considering the question: "Should sanctions against homosexuality be abolished?"

A note of criticism was sounded nearing the end of the program, concerning the lack of support from Gay students and the comment that there is no sense of Gay awareness on what must be one of the straightest campuses in New England. People interested in contacting the Gay community should consider the various supportive organizations listed as follows:

Prospective Gay Student Union – those interested in organizing, contact 658-3830

Gay Men's Switchboard – Sundays, 7-10 p.m., contact 658-3810

Women's Switchboard – contact 862-5504

Vermont Women's Health Center – contact 863-1386

Gay in Vermont – contact 658-3830 or 862-2397

Also Bookshops which stock such Gay periodicals as Gay Community News, Gay Sunshine, Fag Rag, Off Our Backs, in addition to a wide range of other Gay literature, are the Little Professor, Church Street, and the Vermont Bookshop, Dorset Street.

Projections were made that future shows might provoke some controversial dialogue, in addition to being generally entertaining. Also, special shows would attempt to deal with topics such as the pros and cons of electroshock therapy, Gay people in history, Gay life in urban areas, and interviews with responsible, vocal Gay, Bisexual, and Straight individuals.

In closing the program, music consisted of Martha and the Vandellas' "Dancing in the Street," and Carole King's "Beautiful," dedicated to the Burlington Gay community.

The next show is scheduled from 7-8 p.m., Sunday, November 3. Those individuals interested in working on, or contributing to the program may dial 658-3830 for further information.

Tales From The Ozone

by Paul Prior

This past summer marked the tenth anniversary of one of rock's finest bands, The Who. The boys celebrated in true form, playing a week's worth of dates at the Madison Square Garden in New York. Primarily a "greatest hits" concert, the group drew from close to all of their albums. As a gift to their fans, they have released Odds and Sods, a montage of songs that were never included on their albums.

Three of the tracks were taken from what is known in England as an E.P., standing for "extended play". This means that four songs were recorded and released on an eight inch disk. It's a bit larger and more expensive than American 45's. The tracks include bassist John Entwistle's "Post Card", reminiscent of his solo work with the group Rigor Mortis. Peter Townsend contributes "Now I'm a Farmer" and "Glow Girl", the latter includes the chorus "It's a girl, Mrs. Walker, it's a girl." This indicates the song was recorded sometime before "Tommy."

Several more of the songs were recorded before their masterpiece "Tommy." "Little Billy" was recorded around the time of their Sell Out album, and was an anti-smoking commercial intended for use by the Cancer Society. It was never used, however, apparently too long or too good. The earliest piece on the LP is "I'm the Face," the Who's first single release in England. There are some real standouts among the material most recently recorded. "Pure and Easy" was recorded in 1971 by the Who and is also included on Pete Townsend's solo effort, "Who Came First." I prefer Townshend's version the best, somehow the Who's version fails to equal Townsend's in intensity. "Naked Eye" is fine, distinguished by singer Roger Daltry's vocal work. You might recognize part of the song as being one of the riffs from "My Generation" on the Live at Leeds album. "Long Live Rock" is a humorous tune containing quite a bit of the band's history. They play a melody similar to "Johnny B. Goode" and couple it with lyrics such as "We were the first band to vomit in the bar and find the distance to the stage too far."

There are several other tracks, some good, some only average. However, one of the average cuts by the Who would put some recent efforts by many rock bands to shame. There is always merit in the work of the Who. Whether it be Entwhistle's outlandlish bass, or the explosive drumming of madman Keith Moon, or the excellence of Daltry and Townshend, it will always mean something above and beyond any accolades – The Who!

NEW & USED STEREOS

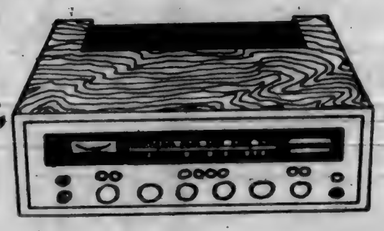
Available at Burlington Store Only

MOVING OUT OF SHELBURNE ROAD STORE

Save on Store Demos

Save on Store Demos

SAVE 25% on ALL RECORDING TAPE



ALL RECORDING TAPE 25% OFF

SPEAKERS		Reg.	NOW
New Scott SII New		139.00	90.00
KLH-32		119.00 pr.	80.00
SAE-MKXI 100 Watt Speakers		300.00 ea.	150.00
~~Ultralinear 150A~~		~~129.95~~	~~60.00~~
~~Ultralinear 100A~~		~~80.00 ea.~~	~~49.00~~
AR 4XA - Demos		75.00	40.00
ESS-AM T-5 Demos		190.00 ea.	142.00
AR2 AX 2 pr. Demo		140.00	80.00

MISCELLANEOUS
Sony SQO-2050 Adapter 4 Channel	99.00	49.00
Sony TC824tc-8 Track Player with 4 Speakers	300.00	150.00
Craig 8 Track Player Home Unit with 2 Speakers	79.95	60.00

ALL RECORDING TAPE 25% OFF

AMPS-RECIEVERS-TUNERS	Reg.	NOW
Lafayette LR-221 - 4-Channel Reciever New	359.95	269.00
Technic-SA6000-4 Channel Reciever 70 Watts RMS	429.95	300.00
Technics-SA5400 2-4 Channel 20 Watts RMS New	290.00	205.00
Lafayette LR220-4 Channel Reciever 44 Watts RMS	289.95	203.00
Dokorker (used) SX8000 Reciever 50 Watts RMS	399.95	260.00
JVC-5436 Reciever 4 Channel 85 Watts RMS New	579.95	434.50
Sony TC-824 TC 20 Watts Used 300 20 Watts NEW	300.00	150.00
~~Kenwood Tuner KTC005~~	~~289.95~~	~~217.50~~
Kenwood-KA4006 Demo	269.95	202.50
Lafayette LA950 Amplifier 50 Watts RMS New	129.95	97.50
Lafayette LR200 AM-FM Reciever 20 Watts RMS New	199.00	150.00
Lafayette Tuner AM-FM Dolby New	230.00	180.00
Lafayette 4 Channel Reciever 220 Watts RMS New	569.95	427.00
Sherwood SEL-300 Tuner New	499.00	375.00
~~Scott R75 Reciever AM-FM 50-50 RMS~~	~~499.00~~	~~375.00~~
Sony ST-5055 AM-FM Tuner New in Box	189.95	141.75

TURNTABLES	Reg.	NOW
Garrard Model 70 with Shure M75E Base and Dust Cover New	129.00	59.00
Garrard Model 62 with Shure M55E Base & Dust Cover New	89.00	62.00
Garrard X10 with Base & Dust Cover	59.95	45.00
Garrard 74 M/S with M91ED Base & Dust Cover	129.00	75.00
Miricord 650 Turntable with New Shure M55E Base & Dust Cover	189.00	139.00
JVC Manual with Base & Dust Cover Shure M55E	170.00	139.00
BSR - 310X Turntable Demo New		30.00

TAPE DECKS
Sony Cassette - TC129	149.95	120.00
JVC - Cassette	149.95	120.00
JVC - Cassette 1668	300.00	200.00
TEAC - TC160	259.00	200.00
Dokorder - 7100 - 'Reel to Reel Reversing	499.95	350.00
Technics RS-714US - 7" 3 Motors Reel-Reel	~~479.00~~	~~350.00~~

LAST 10 DAYS
Store closing (Sat) 11-2-74

LAFAYETTE®
370 Shelburne Rd. Burlington
137 Pearl St. Essex Junction

LAST 10 DAYS
Store closing (Sat) 11-2-74

CLASSIFIED

Very good 735 x 14 tire, mounted and balanced, $12; antique engraved percussion shotgun, $65; Austrian hiking/climbing boots, Men's size 7, $20. 656-2631 after 6 p.m.

"Music Man" – Saw the world today. Your butterful luvyyou. –Amazon Lady.

Found: a black wallet found near Bailey Library, Friday night. Call 899-3213 or 985-3648. Ask for Judith.

Garage for winter parking. Grant St. 864-7786.

Lost: one flowered shaped torquoise ring. Lost in Annex Building. Reward, call 656-2614. Bill Frick.

Squash Players! Trying to learn to play squash, but need partner. Have background in raquet sports. If you'd like to play, give me a call. Doris, 658-2748.

My roommate and I would like to buy a used piano. Willing to pay $100 negotiable. Call David or Steve, 862-0310.

Car pool or ride wanted – Vergennes to Burlington. Arrive UVM 8:00 a.m. Leave 4:30 or 5:00 p.m. Call 877-2713 after 6:00.

For Sale: 1963 Chevy station wagon. Runs well. Any reasonable offer accepted. Please call 877-2713 after 6:00.

Lost (or stolen) Red, woman's wallet at the UNH football game. Money not important, but some papers and pictures irreplaceable. Any information – please call Cathy, x3855. Reward if found.

Violin for sale (includes bow) – asking $70 or best offer. Call 862-6832. Ask for Craig.

For sale: Leather pocketbooks made to order. $15. Call 862-6832. Ask for Craig.

Lost: 1 pair glasses; gray tortise shell, lost in vicinity of 235 Marsh Life Science on Monday. If found, please call Laurie at 864-4343.

For Sale: 1968 Chevy Biscayne 4 dr. 6 cyl. stand. shift, radio, inspected, make an offer, call evenings between 6 and 10 p.m., 862-7282.

Ride needed to Ithaca today, call Laurie at 864-4343.

For Sale: Suede and fur jacket size 38. Suitable for man or woman. Excellent condition; selling for moral reasons. Will take best offer. Call Leslee 656-4282.

3 girls looking for a 3 bedroom apartment for January, as close to campus as possible. Please call Amy at 2855 or Ellyn at 3872.

For Sale: 1966 Ford Falcon. Good battery tires. Runs good. $60. 656-3279.

Tired of staying in the kitchen during your own dinner party, and facing the pile of dishes afterwards? Let us do the work, call 656-3279.

For sale: 1966 Volkswagon bug. Needs new muffler, minor body and electrical work: $150. Call Richard Harrington, 863-6254, between 5–7 p.m.

1963 Ford 6-cyl. standard. New battery, rebuilt motor and front end, 2 new tires, AM-FM radio, $125. Also exc. mounted snow tires, 825 X 14, $20 with car or $30 seperate. 656-2631 after 6 p.m.

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up to date, 160 page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days)
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11961 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

Capture The Flag Stalemated

by Stephen W. Tanner

On Saturday October 21 the sun rose on a crisp autumnal morning. It was ideal weather for battle. Coolidge Hall met with Robinson Hall for their second annual "Capture the Flag" game. Waged in Centennial Woods on the UVM Campus, the armies fought heroically, but the outcome of the game was a stalemate.

Throughout the week tension had been mounting between the old rivals in anticipation of the day-long struggle to steal the opponent's flag. The days before Saturday had seen Coolidge toilet papering the interior of Robinson and a retaliation that filled RA of Coolidge Alan Coulter's room with scraps of newspaper wall to wall and nearly floor to ceiling.

On the Friday night before the game Coolidge attacked the exterior of Robinson leaving "C's" written in soap and peanut butter on the windows and even larger ones in ketchup on the door stoops. The outraged Robinsonites again retaliated at Saturday breakfast in Simpson by pelting the Coolidge tables with orange peels and donuts thus heightening anxiety on both sides.

Led by Cheryl King (RA from Robinson) and Alan Coulter (RA from Coolidge), the two armies began their march from the Redstone campus. Coolidge outnumbered Robinson 48 to 28. War whoops and battle cries sounded from the two groups who were dressed in anything from battle fatigues to warpainted faces and weeds and leaves covering entire bodies. Curious and bewildered stares looked on from Harris Hall as the raving soldiers passed a flask of brandy to avert the morning chill and create the all important comraderie necessary in warfare.

At the entrance to the woods Coulter donned his blue and white sun bonnet and pointed out respective sides to players declaring, "Mother Coolidge on this side, Wimps on this side!" Infuriated Robinsonites attacked a defamatory noun to the word "Mother" and proclaimed the new label rightly described the side occupied by Coolidge Hall.

After delays in resituating the flag sites, the game commenced at noon. Initially both teams practiced strong defenses to trim members of the opposition thus making attack less dangerous. A prisoner exchange was effected at one point to free some 20 Coolidgeites and 16 Robinsonites who wailed and beat sticks on logs to release energy pent up by being captive.

Both teams achieved high points in the game nearly scoring victories. Attacking for Coolidge Hall, Chris Groves snatched the Robinson flag and sprinted toward Coolidge territory getting halfway back before he was trapped on all sides by the Robinson defense. The marauding raiders of Robinson made several solo attempts and one final group assault that allowed Field Marshall Flip Wall to grab the flag and break for home ground. He was soon tackled, but managed to pass the flag to a team mate who also was dragged to the ground in defeat.

The game was cut short at 4 p.m. Reportedly that time had been designated as the time when negotiation would decide on an extension of the game. The game was called because escaped prisoners at that time who had been recaptured were disregarding their captors and storming toward the Robinson flag. Tempers and ankles alike were blamed for the early cessation.

A celebration for the deadlocked teams was held at 8 p.m. to warm the chilled and battletorn rivals. Plans were announced for a rematch to take place soon, possibly on the golf course at night. Dance and drink soon eased the stalemate as the first flurries of snow fell in the October night.

The Carbohydrate Myth Dispelled

by Sue Morse and Cindy Theeli Living/Learning Nutrition Program

Carbohydrate is almost universally a dirty word among weight reducers such as Suzy Q., whom we left last time eating a cheeseburger. For Suzy Q., carbohydrate equals fatness. She is trying her best to ignore all the cakes, ice creams, alcoholic beverages and other appealing goodies in this group. This mouthwatering image of sugars and starches easily breaks down Suzy Q's will power more so than an image of proteins or fats.

What are carbohydrates and why are they so despised or ignored? Carbohydrates – your average Charlie Carbos – are basically sugar molecules or a chemical string of glucoses called starch.

For the benefit of all weight-watching alcohol fans, your average 8 ounce beer contains approximately 10.6 grams of carbohydrate; Tom Collins, 9.0 grams; Martini, .3 grams; and your Port or Muscatelle a whopping 28.0

Carbohydrates are not more easily stored than proteins or fats but are used up faster so that you may feel hungry soon after a meal high in just carbonyarates rather than a balance of proteins, fats and carbohydrates. When Suzy Q becomes hungry again, she tends to snack on more starchy grams of carbohydrate in an 8 ounce glass. The average slice of white enriched bread contains 11.9 grams of carbohydrate. One gram of Charlie Carbo is equivalent to four calories of potential energy. Although no minimum carbohydrate requirement is known, it is suggested that individuals on a normal diet consume at least 100 grams daily; most Americans' intake of carbohydrate is between 200-300 grams daily.

foods – a vicious circle? But starches are not the "baddies" of a balanced diet. We require carbohydrates because of their nutritive and caloric values. An ounce of potato, the most ridiculed and stepped on of the starches, is no more a villian than an ounce of either bran flakes or rice.

After eating a couple of spoonfuls of sugar or a candy bar, you may feel a sudden surge of energy. This doesn't last though, as your system rapidly uses the sucrose. Suzy Q. needs a more constant intake of energy than this continuous fluctuation in her diet.

Where does Charlie Carbo live? Carbohydrates as a food group coms from glycogen in organ meats, especially liver, and from lactose in milk. Sugar and honey are 99 per cent carbohydrate (by weight); most dry cereals, 80 per cent; flour, cookies, crackers, 70-75 per cent; dried fruits and jams, 70 per cent; bread, 50 per cent; grains, noodles, potatoes, 20-30 per cent; legumes, beans, and peas, 16-20 per cent; fresh fruits, 12 per cent; leafy vegetables 2-5 per cent. In the United States, the main source of carbohydrates are bread, potato, and corn. France's carbohydrate diet includes artichokes and wine; Japan subsists on rice and in Guatemala, tortillas and black beans provide starches. Indians derive starch from potatoes, mangoes, and a flat wheat-flour bread called chapati. Polynesians live on taro, breadfruit, and bananas while African tribesmen's sole carbohydrate source is milk.

Many of the world's undernourished countries subsist on a heavy carbohydrate diet and this further perpetuates the myth that starch is bad. Most of the world's undernourished are malnourished because of a lack of calories and/or proteins, fats and vitamins rather than the excess of carbohydrates. We need starch in order to maintain our glycogen stores and keep the blood-sugar level adequate for the brain. When Suzy Q starves herself for more than a day, her blood-glucose and glycogen stores are the first to be utilized. Within fourteen hours your body begins to metabolize fat, the next of our articles on the food groups.

Sig Ep Nets $1500 In Walkathon

by Steve Emerson and Andy Seiple

The Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity at the University of Vermont netted over $1500 for the Vermont Heart Association by successfully completing a twenty-mile walk-a-thon this past weekend.

The walk, which coincided with UVM's Homecoming, capped a month-long drive during which fraternity members canvassed area merchants and professional workers for contributions. Approximately fifty brothers and pledges braved an early morning chill to cover a twenty-mile route, which took them from their house on Main Street, through Williston and Essex Junction to Winooski.

A Burlington squad car helped them through heavy Homecoming traffic in downtown Burlington, and led them back to Centennial Field, where the walk ended with an appeal to the crowd for donations.

David Butler, a senior from St. Albans, received an award from the Vermont Heart Association for collecting the largest total amount of donations. He received over $150 worth of pledges.

The Vermont Heart Association also gave a plaque to the members of the house commending them for their efforts.

The Walk-a-thon was publicized by WJOY, WDOT, WVMT, WEZF, and WRUV. The brothers and pledges of Sigma Phi Epsilon want to thank all those businesses and persons who donated to their efforts.

Baha'u'llah Brings Hope For The Unity Of Mankind

The Baha'i Faith is an independent world religion which, since its inception 131 years ago, has spread to nearly every country. It was founded by Baha'u'llah who claimed to be a human vehicle of divine revelation in the tradition of Abraham, Moses, Buddha, Christ, Zorooaster, Muhammed, and other messengers of manifestations of God who have appeared at each stage in history Baha'u'llah emphasized the oneness of God, the oneness of religion, and the oneness of mankind. A Baha'i is a follower of Baha'u'llah.

The first stirrings of the new faith came from Shiraz, Persia (now Iran) in 1844, when a young man called the Bab (a title meaning "the gate") declared that he was a prophet of God and the forerunner of a great world teacher. The proclamation of the Bab fanned quickly throughout Persia. Religious leaders, frightened by the rapid growth of the Babi movement, combined with the government in an effort to stamp it out. This resulted in the death of over 20,000 Babis, and culminated in the public execution of the Bab in 1850.

One of the more prominent Babis, Mirza Husayn Ali who was given the title of Baha'u'llah (the Glory of God) by the Bab, was thrown into a dungeon in Tehran because of his association with the Bab. While in this dungeon, he received a vision that marked him as the world teacher foretold by the Bab. Baha'u'llah was then exiled to Baghdad where, in 1863, he announced his mission to his followers.

The religious and civil leaders of Persia, seeing the influence of the Baha'i Faith, as it was now called, grow even stronger under the leadership of Baha'u'llah, demanded that he be exiled further from Persia So he was exiled to Constantinople, Adrianople, and finally on to Akka, Israel, an imprisonment reserved for the worst criminals of the Ottoman Empire. Toward the end of his life, Baha'u'llah was allowed to move to Bahjee, a residence outside the prison city, and here he gave audience to the many leaders and officials who sought his presence. Baha'u'llah died at Bahji in 1892.

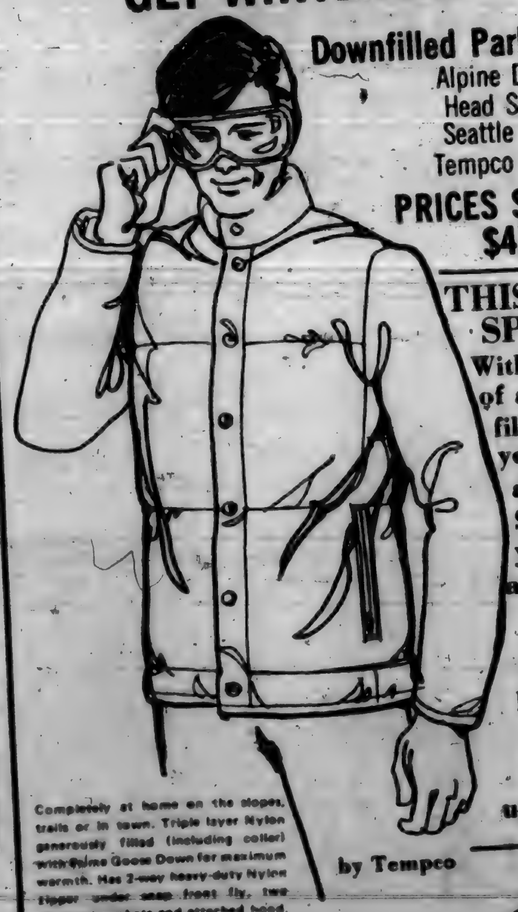
During his lifetime, Baha'u'llah wrote over one hundred books and tablets, including proclamations to crowned heads and religious leaders of the world. Some of his teachings, which center around the unity of mankind, are the elimination of prejudice, in every form, the harmony of science and religion, a spiritual solution to the economic problem, the equality of man and woman, universal compulsory education, the adoption of a universal auxiliary language, and the establishment of a world government.

'Abdu'lbaha, regarded by Baha'is as the perfect exemplar of Baha'u'llah's teachings, carried on his father's ministry. Upon his release from prison, Abdu'lbaha traveled extensively and in 1912 he spent eight months touring from coast to coast in the United States, speaking in churches, synagogues universities, and philanthropic and scientific societies. When he died in 1921, Abdu'lbaha appointed Shogi Effendi, his eldest grandson, as the Guardian of the Faith.

Under the guidance of Shogi Effendi, the Baha'i Faith expanded according to an outline left by 'Abdu'lbaha and the administrative order was developed. After the death of Shogi Effendi in 1957, the world leadership of the faith was assumed by the Universal House of Justice at Haifa, Israel, which was first elected in 1963.

The Baha'i Faith grew steadily during the ministries of the Bab, Baha'u'llah, and 'Abdu'lbaha. During the Guardianship of Shogi Effendi, the number of countries and territories where Baha'is resided reached 200. At the present, under the Universal House of Justice, the number of countries open to the faith is over 300 and the number of languages into which Baha'i literature has been translated and published is over 500. Baha'is throughout the world are striving to realize Baha'u'llah's statement that "The earth is but one country and mankind its citizens."

GET WINTERIZED



Downfilled Parkas by:
Alpine Designs
Head Skiwear
Seattle Quilts
Tempco Quilters

PRICES START AT $47.50

THIS WEEK SPECIAL
With purchase of any Down-filled Parka you may buy a matching Ski Hat of your choise and pay only $2.

Over 200 hats to pick from.

Values up to $10.-

Completely at home on the slopes, trails or in town. Triple layer Nylon generously filled (including collar) with Prime Goose Down for maximum warmth. Has 2-way heavy-duty Nylon zipper under snap front fly, two zippered pockets and attached hood. By Tempco. $59.50.

by Tempco

Open 9-9 Mon-Fri
Sat 9-5:30

BANKAMERICARD
MASTER CHARGE

Valuga Sports
1250 SHELBURNE RD.
South Burlington, Vt.
862-1961

the Class of '75

Focused on All Students

Make your appointment now for your YEARBOOK PORTRAITS at ARIEL OFFICE
Lower Billings Center
or call 656-2056

Pictures of seniors for yearbook and individual portrait packages will be taken November 4-8, Monday - Friday.
Appointments should be made.
Drop by the Ariel Office (lower Billings Center) or call 656-2056, October 28-November 1, Monday - Friday.

You will think that we have turned the University Store upside-down

UNIVERSITY STORE

ON THE CAMPUS

SPECIAL ART PRINT SALE

ONE WEEK ONLY!

Featuring Reproductions by:

Picasso, Dali, Michelanglo, Monet, Modigliani, Klee, Brueughel, Bosch, Blake, Beardsly, Lautrec, Rembrandt and many more

ART REPRODUCTION:
Regularly Priced $5-8.00
Now $2.00 Each 3 for $8.00

ART POSTERS:
Regularly Priced $3-5.00
Now $1.99 each 3 for $5.00

OTHER SELECTED POSTER:
Regularly Priced $3-5.00
Now $1.00 each 6 for $5.00

PLUS: ALL STUDIO ONE POSTERS ½ PRICE

OTHER ALL OTHER POSTERS & PRINTS 10% OFF

Greeting Cards at half price

BUY NOW - THIS SALE WILL NOT LAST

Special Shipment of RECORDS AT REDUCED PRICES

Rock, Jazz, Classical & much more

ONE WEEK ONLY OCT 28 - NOV 1

10% OFF ALL BOWMAR CALCULATORS

CURRENTLY IN STOCK

Featuring the new

MX140 "Advanced Scientific" Bowmar Brain

Features:

- Scientific notation
- Parenthetical operation, 2 level
- Extra large LED eight digit display
- Full floating decimal
- Full algebraic operation
- Full memory with register exchangers
- Rechargeable and AC operation
- 115/230V switchable worldwide adapter/charger
- Deluxe soft vinyl carrying pouch

Regular Price $159.95
SAVE 10%

Bowmar

OTHER BOWMAR BRAINS — Reg Price

MX-25	34.95
MX-55	44.95
MX-90	79.95
MX-100	129.95

SAVE 10% THIS WEEK

Now you can order it!

a better than gold college ring at a lower than gold price!

Sure everyone likes the lower price of John Roberts SILADIUM. But "lower price" was a happy coincidence.

Note! John Roberts also offers you an unconditional lifetime guarantee! If at any time you are not satisfied with your ring you can get your money fully refunded!

John Roberts' goal was to perfect a superior formula — to produce a "better than gold" ring. After more than three years of testing and mixing, SILADIUM was born — superior school ring jewelry.

Of course, dozens of our earlier formulas would have made cheaper rings — even lower-priced than SILADIUM. We believe you'll agree "cheaper" is not the most important criterion for a ring that symbolizes educational achievement, cherished memories, and is purchased for a lifetime of enjoyment.

What's really important about a SILADIUM ring is that the deep die design won't "rub away" in a few years time, the brilliant highlights won't dim; a SILADIUM ring will never tarnish, corrode or cause skin irritation, it never requires polishing, and it's the most comfortable ring in the industry. A SILADIUM ring is better, and we're very pleased about that.

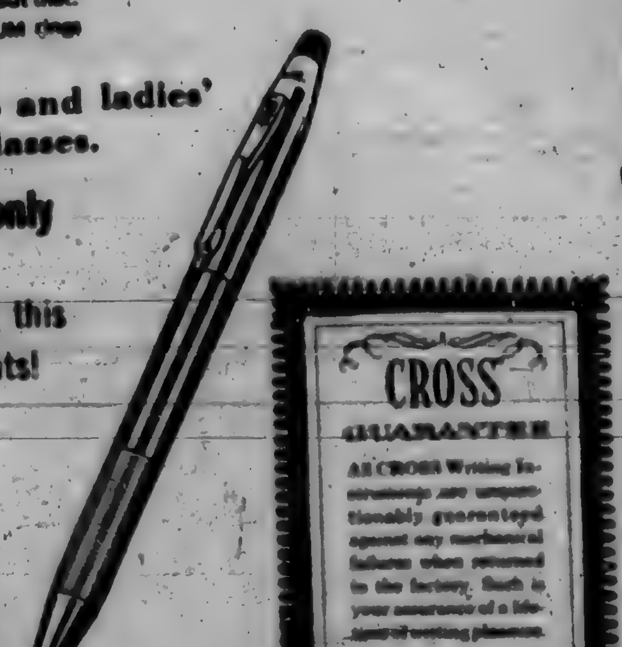
The thousands of students who have ordered our SILADIUM rings will be pleased too — long after they've forgotten the lower price.

Come in and see the fine selection of men's and ladies' University of Vermont Rings for all classes.

and as a special offer this week only

Any student ordering a John Roberts 'Siladium' Ring this week will receive a Cross Pen with our compliments!

$10.00 Deposit Required
8 - 10 Week Delivery



A John Roberts Representative will be available during this week to answer your question and take your orders.

November is Book Sale Month at the University Store

Energy Consumption Must Be Cut

The University Energy Conservation Committee, chaired by Wayne C. Patterson, Executive Vice President, met on October 17, 1974, to discuss the energy situation for the upcoming year. The energy Conservation Committee is made up of faculty, staff and students, etc.

Dave Kelley reported that due to the complete cooperation and assistance of all faculty, staff and students the University was able to reduce its electrical consumption by an average of 6% per cent and fuel oil consumption by 23 per cent for Fiscal Year 1974.

The University is expected to be allocated only 85 per cent of its 1973 allotment. However, the past two winters have been extremely mild. If University is allowed only 85 per cent of the 1973 allotment then there might be extreme shortages.

Dr. Patterson reported that the State Energy Office, directed by Tom Orr, predicted possible heating fuel shortages for Vermont this winter. Professor Tuthill reported that a colder winter than last year is predicted for the northeastern United States. In light of these facts and the rising costs of fuel and electricity, the Committee supported the continuation of the University's Energy Conservation policies.

In summary these policies and procedures are:

ELECTRICAL: The objective of these measures is to reduce both total and peak consumption. Prizes are being considered to induce cooperation.

The University will monitor the electrical consumption of all buildings on a monthly basis. These results will be published and circulated throughout the University community in an effort to encourage individuals to reduce their consumption.

All ornamental lighting of buildings will be discontinued. However, in order to provide security for the campus, major pedestrian walk areas will continue to be lighted.

The use of elevators constitutes a major demand on our consumption of electrical power. Therefore, it will be requested that elevator use be limited to handicapped service personnel only. Signs to this effect will be placed on all facilities.

Wherever practical, hall and vestibule lighting will be reduced by one half.

Utilization of air-conditioning equipment in special purpose spaces will be modified to reduce electrical consumption.

HEAT:

All University spaces will have thermostats set at 65 degrees F.

There are two major causes for overheating of spaces. The principle cause is the individual adjustment of thermostats by faculty, staff and students to suit personal tastes. Effective immediately, each thermostat will be monitored on a daily basis by Buildings and Grounds personnel and set at the appropriate level. The crowding of some classroom space results in abnormally high temperatures. Spaces so utilized will be reduced well below the 65 degrees.

All University buildings not used for evening classes will be reduced in temperature starting at 5 p.m. in an effort to drastically reduce the number of active buildings. We will attempt to schedule all evening classes and events in a limited number of buildings. In addition, all university buildings will be reduced to minimum night heating requirements for the duration of weekends and holidays, starting early Friday afternoon.

During the mid-semester recess, it will be essential to save fuel in partially occupied buildings. Therefore students and others wishing to maintain their residence during this period will be asked to consolidate their quarters in one complex.

The acquisition and installation of storm windows for various campus buildings has been accelerated. Maintenance has a supply of clear plastic and tape for individuals to seal off windows where there is a draft or heat loss.

Hot water supply to all public lavatory facilities will be restricted.

The University consumes sufficient No. 2 heating oil to heat over 600 homes for one year. In order to make these resources more available to the public we will convert to the use of No. 6 fuel and natural gas.

University personnel will continue to conduct weekly combustion efficiency tests on all boilers and, in addition, will monitor fuel consumption weekly.

GASOLINE:

All University vehicles are not to exceed 20 m.p.h. in campus and 50 m.p.h. on public highways.

Snow plowing and grounds maintenance will be reduced to operational minimum.

GENERAL: The conservation of energy related resources is the responsibility of all members of the University community. In an effort to gain broader participation, a direct system has been established for reporting mechanical failures in heating and electrical systems. This HOTLINE NUMBER is extension 2560. All incidents so reported will be investigated.

The committee also proposed several contingency plans in the event fuel oil supplies become inadequate to heat the University buildings. The committee will be studying these proposals in more detail and then submit them to faculty and student groups for their comments and input.

If these efforts fail to save enough energy, more drastic steps are being considered, including the four day week, longer Christmas vacation and the closing of UVM during extremely cold days.

College Row Has Undergone Changes

by T. D. Seymour Bassett

The caption of this browned and faded campus view, received from the Jennison Engineering Co. in the papers of McIntosh & Crandall, is "No. 10 Wrecked, 1886, Old Gymnasium."

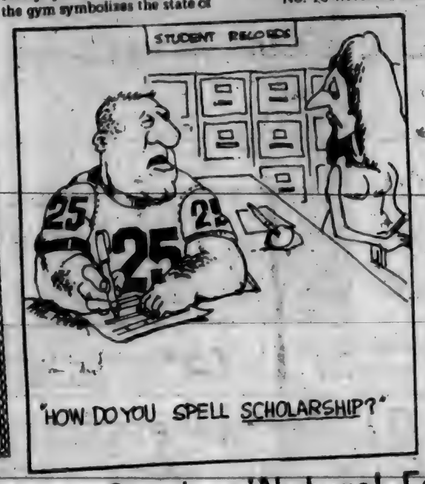
College Row has usually been pictured from the west, presenting its well-decorated face to the public. But when students get with the camera, they are interested in the back side too. Number Ten seems to have been a brick ten-holer between the birch and the maple, demolished after John Purple Howard gave over $40,000 to modernize the Old Mill in 1883-84 with indoor water closets and all the fixings.

The barn to the north of the ruin could have originally been an out-building for the first president's house, "the old yellow house" north of the Old Mill, which is off the picture to the left. This barn/gym was a concession to student clamor for sports, and administration search for space to drill the UVM Battalion in bad weather. In the warm seasons, the college boys played their own brand of baseball and football (which was more like soccer) on the college green. The buggy beside the gym symbolizes the state of athletic development in the 1880's. This "gymnasium" burned in July, 1886, and the students hoped that the loss would hasten the construction of an adequate building. But John P. Howard died without earmarking any more money for a gym, which was not erected until 1901 (now the Tyler Theatre).

In the background is the 1863 library, recently the Art Building north of Votey, but then on the site of Williams Hall, and housing the Park Gallery of art within its mansard roof. Faintly to the right appears the residence of William Augustus Deering, instructor in History, somewhere between the present Mansfield House and the Fleming Museum.

It looks as if we can date the local use of the reel-type lawnmower to precede this picture.

No. 10 Wrecked, 1886, Old Gymnasium



I Came to Your Door

Loneliness brings me here
To you, again, opening,
Your door, your breasts,
Hidden behind your gown.

No words between us,
As you let me in,
Upstairs in your room,
The wind outside breathes,
As we do.
Like leaves, we fall together.

The feeling has been dying for so long –
Faded colours, once so vivid, once so alive.
Words and more words
Falling around us in endless torrents
We walk in silence, eyes watching the ground
Searching for what is left to remember.
Scuffing through the scattered, brittle words,
Kicking them about until they lost all semblance of order,
Watching them settle once more, the meanings lost,
Their souls wrenched out and broken.

Our love stands before us, naked, grey and cold,
Pulling its life inward to the hidden core
I dig my nails into it –
It no longer bleeds.

You run madly in the street
Chasing the flurries of leaves that dance before you
Taunting, elusive,
They are fleeing, it is futile,
they are gone.

Alison McBean
October 17, 1974

Why Choose Vermont?

Both Vermonters and out-of-state students are attracted to the University of Vermont because of a combination of its academic reputation and its location in scenic Vermont.

This is one of the findings in a survey conducted by the University's Office of Institutional Studies, with Fred A. Curran, assistant director in charge.

Members of the present and last year's freshman classes were polled. Each student was given a list of 19 factors which might be considered when selecting a college to attend. They were asked to rate these as of no importance, minor importance or major importance.

Among Vermont students, the University's general academic reputation was at the top of the list this year, with 68 per cent listing it of major importance, up from 57 per cent last year. In second place was UVM's academic reputation in your specific area of interest, with 65 per cent, up from 60 per cent last year.

In third place was the cost of tuition and fees, followed by "nature and environment of Vermont" and "proximity to your home."

He said out-of-state applicants more frequently visit the campus and attend group meetings to answer their questions than do the Vermont prospective students. "This year we are trying to encourage Vermont applicants to examine the University as critically and as carefully as the out-of-state applicants do. The Vermonters tend to rely more on what they are told by students they know, or relatives. We feel they should take a close look for themselves."

Among non-Vermonters, the "nature and environment of Vermont" and "the campus environment" were in first and third place, as of major importance. The university's general academic reputation was second, and its academic reputation in their specific area of interest was fourth. In fifth place, at 61 per cent this year, was "a visit to the campus".

Richard E. Steele, director of admissions, noted that in a year in which many colleges and universities faced major problems of finding enough students, the University of Vermont has had its largest application volume. A total of 9,163 men and women, 1,733 Vermonters and 7,430 out-of-state applied for approximately 1,760 openings in the freshman class.

"That overwhelming number of applications plus the results of this survey convince us that we have the 'ideal combination for a University...a reputation for academic excellence plus an ideal setting said Steele.

He believes that when students mentioned the environment, they were thinking of the entire state, with its mountains for hiking and skiing so accessible to the University, the city, with its activities and shopping areas, and the University itself, and its many facilities for study and enjoyment.

He has noted a change in applicants in recent year. "They have become much better education consumers. They are interested in the general reputation of the University, but beyond that, they really want to know what they are going to get in their major. It is fortunate that we have so many good departments to talk about. They are much more sensitive, too, to career opportunities after graduation."

Sheet Music -Honky Tonks

Sheet Music- 10CC – London (UK) – Second album, with more studio technocracy and wit. Superbly self-produced effort...so good, in fact, that McCartney has booked use of their studio for his next one. Cuts include—Wall Street Shuffle, which becomes tastier with each passing day; Worst Band in the World, which could easily be used as an epitaph for all our dying rock heroes, and Time Bomb, a snappy tribute to the aeroplane and hi-jinx. Much more controlled than their first album, with considerably more continuity from cut to cut. 10CC are still toying with the sixties sounds ala Beach-Boys-Beatles, with seventies production-it works.

Close up the Honky Tonks The Flying Burrito Brothers –A&M — a supgr two-record anthology-type collection from the Burrito years, 1968-1972. All their best plus extra featuring Chris Hillman, Gram Parsons, Chris Ethridge, and Sneaky Pete. Country rock collections aren't complete without this one.

Triumvirate– Illusions On A Double Dimple — Harvest (Capitol)– Aside from great cover graphics, a great disc inside too. Not too strong on vocals, but keyboards and synthesizer are great. Classical influences are obvious but not overwhelming. Disc stands strong as creative and vibrant new band. Take a listen.

"Gabonzo" Creates 'Natural Foods For Saga's Menus

The response to the Natural Foods Program so far has been very enthusiastic – at least enthusiastic enough to warrant Holtz's presence. In the past the program was largely the work of students doing the cooking and baking in the off hours of the night. Diane Susie started the idea four years ago. Katie Kelly and Joan Galinas were responsible for putting the casseroles and breads on the tables last year. Katie Kelly still works on making casseroles for the healthy appetites of natural foods connaisseurs.

Right now, Holtz is planning on serving two solid natural foods meals a day; Lunch at Wright Hall and dinner at Simpson. Breads, honey and granola are supplemental at breakfast now along with yoghurt at lunch and dinner. Plans are possible to move the entire Natural Foods Program to Living and Learning so that a dining hall open three meals a day could serve three full natural foods meals daily.

"Garbonzo" saw, he was eating Saga food six to eight years ago and did not like it so well. He moved into his own house and began cooking natural foods for himself and friends. Now he is back at Saga and changing some of the things that his taste buds did not take to before. From his cooking experience, Holtz has seen the art of cooking die. He is trying to revitalize it by going back to the essentials of foods and creating fresh new dishes for Wright and Simpson.

Steve "Gabonzo" Holtz is trying to get natural foods on the tables, but they are expensive and his working facilities are limited. As he himself says, "things take time," but the program is moving toward expansion.

Behind the scenes at the Redstone Food Factories, buried in the stainless steel steaming jungle of cooking pots, pans and sizzling griddles, is a lone Saga Chef. Every day he is up early devising a special menu to brew in his special cauldron to serve to the special eaters at Wright and Simpson Halls. His name is Steve "Gaponzo" Holtz. His title is the Natural Foods Chef otherwise known as the "Miso" cook.

soybean paste used in making soups and sauces. It is also the name of the storeroom where Steve keeps all his "weeds and seed" (lentils, raisons, currents, beans and other delights).

"Gabonzo" Holtz? He got his nickname the first day he worked in the kitchen. He was preparing his famed "Refried Garabonzo Beans" in a steam cooker when the lid suddenly blew off and refried garabonzo beans spewed over the kitchen. Leroy, his supervisor, dubbed him "Garabonzo" on the spot.

Holtz is the first cook assigned by Saga to cook especially for their Natural Foods program. Wright and Simpson are the only halls which regularly serve a natural foods meal in addition to the "regular" food. Living and Learning cafeteria does serve Natural Foods, but they are supplements to the meal scheduled.

Holtz insists that the foods he serves be called "natural foods" as opposed to "health foods". He believes "all foods are health foods" in the sense that they keep us alive, but "natural foods are foods with the least amount of artificial ingredients". The meals he serves are all vegetarian.

Some of the "Garbonzo's" specialties are Egg Plant Parmesan, Chicken Bone Chile, Soy Spinach High-Rise, Veg-all Delight, and Lentil Mushroom Supreme.

IF YOU TALK OVER A HORNY BULL'S HEAD, THAT'S EXACTLY WHERE HE'LL TOSS YOU.

"The Montezuma Horny Bull"
1 oz. Montezuma Tequila
.5 oz. CONCENTRATED ORANGE BREAKFAST DRINK. Over ice.
It's sensational, and that's no bull.

Montezuma TEQUILA

©1974 80 Proof Tequila Montezuma Imports Co., Inc., New York, New York

We Want You To Join Our Church As An
Ordained Minister
And Have The Rank Of
Doctor of Divinity

JEANS–IN JEANS–IN JEANS–IN

NOW THE PLACE FOR FABULOUS JEANS
LEVI'S, LEE, LANDLUBBER
IN THE WAY–IN SHOP

MAGRAMS

Mobil Snow Tire Prices
Three Types To Select From!

$23.95
Any Size Listed Below
Mobil Super Traction 78

Tire Size	Regular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
A78-13	24.61	23.88	1.78
F78-14	26.82	23.88	2.41
G78-14	27.69	23.88	2.66
800-15	26.33	23.88	1.78
G78-15	27.69	23.88	2.63

$33.95
Any Size Listed Below
Mobil Super Traction Belted

Tire Size	Regular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
A78-13	36.95	33.88	1.80
C78-13	38.95	33.88	2.00
E78-14	42.95	33.88	2.33
F78-14	46.95	33.88	2.60
G78-14	46.95	33.88	2.67
F78-15	46.95	33.88	2.68
G78-15	46.95	33.88	2.74

$49.95
Any Size Listed Below
Mobil Radial Traction

Tire Size	Regular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
FR78-14	57.95	49.88	2.81
GR78-14	59.95	49.88	2.95
HR78-14	62.95	49.88	3.15
GR78-15	61.95	49.88	3.05
HR78-15	63.95	49.88	3.20
LR78-15	67.95	49.88	3.60

SPILLANES SERVICECENTER
Williston Road

Gil Low eludes a UNH defender in gettin... background.

Soccer Team...

by Gary Brooks

Under sunny skies on Friday afternoon at Archie Post Field, the University of Vermont soccer team beat New Hampshire in a close match, 3-2. Freshman Carl Christensen decided the game with a goal on a indirect kick inside the penalty zone. Kim Beal added two scores.

Beal, playing on the line for the first time, scored his initial goal in the first half at 28:45. The tally came after a diving stop of a shot by UVM standout, John Koerner, by UNH goaltender Phil Pierce. This was the only scoring of the first half.

Beal's second goal came 35 seconds into the second half. Koerner passed to him just outside the penalty area. Beal faked around a UNH fullback, dribbled toward the net, and kicked... Pierce... the net... The... on a... Mendi... The sh... going t... kick w... tallied...

Harriers Impre... in Bo...

The Vermont cross country team delivered an excellent performance this past weekend as they finished second in the Codfish Bowl Cross Country Championships. The race took place in Boston's Franklin Park.

More than 200 runners from 27 colleges participated in the event. Springfield finished first with 97 points and Vermont had 99 for second place. Keene State, the third place finisher, had 173 points. The winner of the race was not from any of these colleges but was a UNH runner, George Reed. Reed ran the five mile course in 23:59.

COLOR FULL SHORTS
by Elliot Freeman

Excuse me
Nothing is perfect
The silverware is tainted
I am lost
Thank you

No one wants
To be
Lonely
In this world
No choice

Afternoon
Gray
Truck rolls

Becoming
I just want to be
Never am
I'm always going

...Esther Cohen

(continued from page one)

been a member of the House Health and Welfare Committee for nine years.

Esther Cohen will be at UVM on Monday, October 28. She will answer questions and give a general discussion of her views. The place is 115 Living Learning Commons at 7:00 p.m.

MEXIC... at the 5 corn...
Largest Selection
Turquoise &...
Afghani, Indian
jewelery, tapestrie...
Open...
10% off any pu...

Changes

...residence of William Augustus Deering, instructor in History, somewhere between the present Mansfield House and the Fleming Museum.

It looks as if we can date the local use of the reel-type lawnmower to precede this picture.

...been dying for so long
...once so vivid, once so alive.
...e words
...us in endless torrents
...nce, eyes watching the ground
...what is left to remember.
...gh the scattered, brittle words,
...bout until they lost all semblance of order,
...settle once more, the meanings lost,
...nched out and broken.

...before us, naked, grey and cold,
...nward to the hidden core
...nto it -
...eds.

...in the street
...rriss of leaves that dance before you
...ve,
...g, it is futile,
...gone.

Alison McBean
October 17, 1974

...aga's Menus

...Living and ...e does serve ...but they are ... the meat ...

...hat the foods ...lled "natural ...d to "health ...es "all foods ... in the sense ...s alive, but "natural foods are foods with the least amount of artificial ingredients". The meals he serves are all vegetarian.

Some of the "Garbonzo's" specialties are Egg Plant Parmesan, Chicken Bone Chile, Soy Spinach High-Rise, Veg-all Delight, and Lentil Mushroom Supreme.

...oll Snow
... Prices
...Types To Select From!

...Listed Below
...r Traction 78

...gular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
24.81	23.88	1.70
26.82	25.88	2.41
32.88	30.88	2.56
36.33	33.88	1.70
37.88	35.88	2.63

...Listed Below
...r Traction Belted

...gular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
35.95	33.88	1.80
38.95	36.88	1.90
42.95	39.88	2.33
46.95	38.88	2.50
49.95	39.88	2.67
49.95	39.88	2.68
48.95	38.88	2.74

...Listed Below
...ial Traction

...gular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
57.95	49.88	2.81
58.95	49.88	2.96
62.95	49.88	3.15
61.95	49.88	3.06
63.95	49.88	3.26
67.95	49.88	3.40

...SPILLANES
...SERVICECENTER
...Williston Road

Gil Low eludes a UNH defender in getting to the ball. Rich Whidden watches in the background. SPS Photo: Mike Durkin

Soccer Team Defeats UNH 3-2

by Gary Brooks

Under sunny skies on Friday afternoon at Archie Post Field, the University of Vermont soccer team beat New Hampshire in a close match, 3-2. Freshmen Carl Christensen decided the game with a goal on a indirect kick inside the penalty zone. Kim Beal added two scores.

Beal, playing on the line for the first time, scored his initial goal in the first half at 28:45. The tally came after a diving stop of a shot by UVM standout, John Koerner, by UNH goaltender Phil Pierce. This was the only scoring of the first half.

Beal's second goal came 35 seconds into the second half. Koerner passed to him just outside the penalty area. Beal faked around a UNH fullback, dribbled toward the net, and kicked a soft shot that beat Pierce to the upper right part of the net.

The Wildcats scored at 2:02 on a deflection by halfback Mendi Masser of a direct kick. The shot caught goalie Jim Taft going the wrong way. The direct kick was blocked and Masser tallied as he fell to the ground.

This goal seemed to inspire the Wildcats. They outhustled UVM to the ball for the next fifteen minutes. Taft was thrown out of the game for unsportsmanlike conduct as he knocked over a UNH lineman inside the penalty area. Jeff Jonas replaced the ejected Taft. Jonas gave up the tieing goal after making a fine initial save but a rebound shot went by him. Christensen then broke the deadlock with the deciding goal on the indirect kick.

UVM outshot UNH 17-14 with Taft and Jonas combining to stop eight shots. Pierce made 11 stops for the Wildcats.

This victory was the fifth of the season for the Cats. They have lost three and tied one. The next game is at Middlebury on October 23.

Harriers Impress in Boston Meet

The Vermont cross country team delivered an excellent performance this past weekend as they finished second in the Codfish Bowl Cross Country Championships. The race took place in Boston's Franklin Park.

More than 200 runners from 27 colleges participated in the event. Springfield finished first with 97-points and Vermont had 99 for second place. Keene State, the third place finisher, had 1.. points. The winner of the race was not from any of those colleges but was UNH runner, George Reed. Reed ran the five mile course in 23:59.

For UVM, the top finisher was Bob Graves who tied for fourth place. Mike Berry was in a tie for sixth place. Graves' time was 24:36 with Berry just one second behind. Vermont could have won if their next best finishers did just a little better. Whitee Pete Welch finished 24th and the fourth man finished 27th, Springfield's third and fourth finishers placed 19th and 22nd. That was the margin of defeat for the Harriers.

Rounding out the top ten schools were UMass, Plymouth, UConn, Coast Guard, SMU, Central Conn., and Boston St.

PFG-Schedule

PATRICK-FORBUSH-GUTTERSON SCHEDULE
WEEKEND OF Oct. 25, 26, and 27

Friday, October 25
GYM – Fac. Staff Recreation – 7–10:30 p.m.
POOL – Fac.. Staff Recreation – 7–10:30 p.m. (7–8 under 15 yrs.)
TENNIS – Fac. Staff Recreation – 7–10:30 p.m.
TRACK – Fac. Staff Recreation – 7:10:30 p.m.

Saturday, October 26
GYM – Student Recreation – 1–5 p.m.; 7–10 p.m.
POOL – Student Recreation – 1–5 p.m.; 7–10 p.m.
TENNIS – Student Recreation – 1–5 p.m.; 7–10 p.m.
TRACK – Student Recreation – 1–5 p.m.; 7–10 p.m.

Sunday, October 27
GYM – Actionfest & Varsity Basketball Practice. Student Recreation – none
POOL – Actionfest until 3:30. Student Recreation – 3:30 – 5 p.m.
TENNIS – Student Recreation – 1–5 p.m.
TRACK – Student Recreation – 1–5 p.m.

HANDBALL AND SQUASH COURTS: By appointment only. Call 3069.
Monday through Friday
TENNIS – 8:00 – 10:30 p.m.
POOL – 8:30 – 10:30 p.m. Students
OTHER FACILITIES – 7–8 p.m. Students
These periods may be superseded by varsity activities or special events.

The PFG facilities are being used very little after 10:00 p.m. on Saturday nights. Accordingly, they will be shut down at this hour, 10:00 p.m., on Saturday nights starting the weekend of October 25.

Rugby Club Is Victor Over URI

The University of Vermont Rugby Team defeated Rhode Island by a score of 16-6 marking the first time that UVM has defeated an Yankee Conference opponent. Playing its most consistent game of the season, UVM was able to dominate throughout the first half with Vermont't backfield continually being able to kick the ball into Rhode Island territory.

UVM's first score came when wing Linus Smith kicked an up and under kick over the Rhode Island wing and was able to fall on the ball in the Rhode Island end zone. The conversion was missed, leaving the score 4-0.

The second score came when Tracy Hamman was given the ball from the scrum and was able to run five yards into the end zone for another try. Thomas again made the conversion making the score at half time, 16-0.

The second half saw Rhode Island attempt a comeback with a more organized attack by their forwards. UVM was not able to dominate field position as it had in the first half. The Cat defense however was able to consistently keep Rhode Island away from UVM's goal line. Both Rhode Island scores came late in the game when UVM was called for offside, Rhode Island converting on both penalty kicks.

The victory raises UVM's record to four wins and three defeats. UVM's next game will be against the Concord Rugby Club on Saturday, Oct. 26, 2 p.m., at the Archie Post Field.

...Liberty Union's Sanders

...continued from pg. one)

at all. Another aspect of Sanders' tax proposal is to increase corporate taxes which he says have decreased steadily from 1954. He urges at least a $3.00 minimum wage, saying that $2.00 an hour is starvation wages.

Inflation has hit Vermont hard, says Sanders. "Economic inflation in Vermont is far worse than Democratic and Republican candidates come to acknowledge. Unemployment is officially 7 per cent and probably 50 per cent higher."

While the rich are getting richer," Sanders thinks the wage earner is falling behind because of inflation.

Sanders does not think that the Liberty Union will steal an exorbitant amount of votes from Democrats, but instead support will come from Republicans as well. Quoting a common Liberty Union theme he says, "People have got to stop accepting the lesser of two evils." Sanders thinks people should "fight and support what they believe in and stop compromising their principles."

Sanders, along with the other Liberty Union candidates, advocates public ownership of Vermont utilities. They and Sanders state that public power is about 30 per cent cheaper than private power. He points out that Central Vermont Utility made three million in profits, while Green Mountain Power made 1.9 million.

The two major utilities in Vermont are already bankrupt, says Sanders. He suggests that the utilities should be denied pay hikes so they will go bankrupt. Subsequently, the state will take over the operation of the utilities. The utilities will then be reestablished as Rural Co-ops with money coming from the rate payer.

Another corporation attacked by Sanders is ATT, which has 83 per cent of the shares in New England Telephone. He points out that ATT made three billion dollars in profit, but is asking for a 23 per cent increase. "ATT is the major corporate rip-off artist in the U.S."

Sanders emphasized the importance of the Liberty Union Party in Vermont politics. "It strikes me very strongly that people have got to stop wasting their votes for the lesser of two evils. A strong vote for Liberty Union will tell the people of this state and America that Vermonters are sick and tired of status-quo and are willing to fight for basic fundamental changes," Sanders concluded.

Intramural Swim Results

FINAL RESULTS—INDIVIDUAL
50 Yd. Freestyle
Ron Kirkwood (Christie) 23.3 (a new intramural record), Fred Dalby (Independent), Kevin Martin (Medics), Frank Thomas (Medics), Ken Hadley (Delta Psi).
100 Yd. Freestyle
Tom Haggerty (Christie) 52.6, Kirk Johnson (Medics), Bruce Renfrew (Medics), Pete Austin (Wright).
100 Yd. Backstroke
Mark Roierson (Medics), Fred Shaw (Medics), Paul Magnarella (Independent), Pete Austin (Wright).
100 Yd. Breastroke
Ray Chagnon (Medics) 1:18.9, Frank Thomas (Medics), John Carpenter (Wright).
50 Yd. Butterfly
Tom Haggerty (Christie) 27.2, Fred Dalby (Independent), Kirk Johnson (Medics), Paul Magnarella (Independent), Bob Feins (Medics).
200 Yd. Freestyle Relay
Johnson, Thomas, Renfrew, Shaw (Medics), 2:13.8.
150 Yd. Medley Relay
Roierson, Chagnon, Johnson (Medics) 1:34.3.
Carpenter, Austin, Martin (Wright)
Hammond, Clark, Miller (Wing) A Women's Team
Diving
Kevin Martin (Wright) 132.4 points. Frank Thomas (Medics).
FINAL RESULTS – TEAM: Medics, 55 points (this is the fourth straight year that the Medics have won the championship). Wright, 23 points. Christie, 15 points. Independent, 13 points. Delta Psi, 1 point.

COLOR FULL SHORTS
by Elliot Freeman

Excuse me
Nothing is perfect
The silverware is tainted
I am lost
Thank you

No one wants
To be Lonely
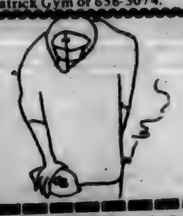
In this world
No choice

Afternoon
Gray
Truck rolls

Becoming
I just want to be
Never am
I'm always going



Anyone wishing to help the varsity basketball team as a manager this season, please contact Coach Peter Salzberg at Patrick Gym or 656-3074.

...Esther Cohen

(continued from page one)

been a member of the House Health and Welfare Committee for nine years.

Esther Cohen will be at UVM on Monday, October 28. She will answer questions and give a general discussion of her views. The place is 115 Living Learning Commons at 7:00 p.m.

SNOW TIRES!!!
Complete line of SNOW TIRES
-new and retreads.
All UVM students and faculty get 10% discount with this ad.
E&E TIRE CO., INC.
152 RIVERSIDE AVE.
864-7759

MEXICO NORTH
at the 5 corners Essex Jct., Vt.
Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont
Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more
Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.
10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

Surprise your mother... eat breakfast at McDonald's!

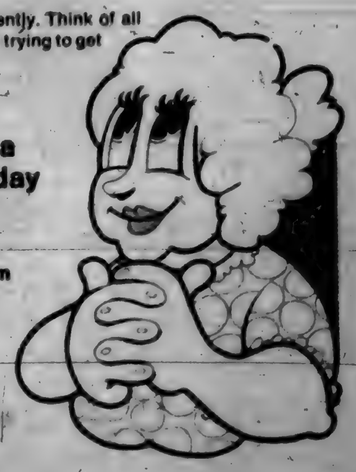
Wait 'til she hears about Egg McMuffin

You probably think breakfast is for sissies. You know, the kind of people who get out of bed an hour early, just because their mothers always said to them, "Eat your eggs!" But McDonald's Egg McMuffin breakfast is a whole new ballgame. A fried egg, cheese and a slice of Canadian bacon, neatly stacked on a toasted, buttered English muffin.

It's delicious, so nobody is going to have to nag you into eating it . . . and it's fast, you'll love it.

If you really want to knock your mother out, you should even go the complete breakfast route; juice and coffee or milk with your Egg McMuffin.

But break it to her gently. Think of all those years she spent trying to get you to eat your eggs.



You deserve a breakfast today

Egg McMuffin® served daily 7:00 am to 11:00 am

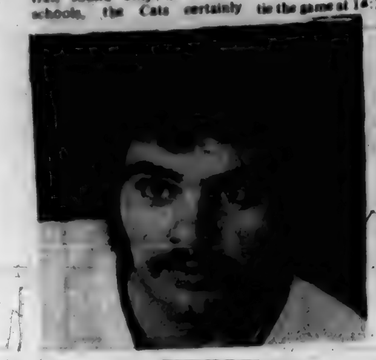
McDonald's®

1205 Williston Rd. So. Burlington, Vt.
Barre- Montpelier Barre, Vt.
106 Pearl St. Essex Junction, Vt.
Rt. 7 St. Albans, Vt.

Icecats Lose Two To Wisconsin Sextet Before Capacity Crowds

The Vermont hockey Catamounts scored three straight goals and briefly surged ahead in the final period, 5 to 4, only to succumb to a Wisconsin rally in the game's waning minutes. The Badger Skaters defeated UVM 6-5 before a large crowd at Madison, Wisconsin Friday night in the 1974-75 hockey openers for both clubs.

Vermont is playing in hockey's senior circuit for the first time this year and they fared well against highly rated Wisconsin. The contest was marked by jarring checks throughout and though this 'toughness' is made up to be a trait found only in Western schools, the Cats certainly



Roger Mallette

Tom McNamara

dished out their share of physical chastisement.

The Catamounts seemed nervous and tight as they began, perhaps due to the large crowd of 8000 Wisconsin rooters or the long wait in Madison before the first game. Vermont's hopes for the upset soared as defenseman John Glynne blasted home a shot from he point to open the scoring with just over three minutes gone by.

Wisconsin retaliated with Steve Alley's first tally, but freshman Randy Koch put UVM back on top with a tip-in set up by Chris Hurley and Ted Curtis at 1:32 of the second period. The Wisconsin Badgers struck back with three straight goals over the next 20 minutes to build a 4-2 lead as Mark Capouch scored their fourth goal of the evening at 1:26 of the third period.

Vermont's scoring punch, dormant for most of the second period, finally erupted at the 3:23 mark of the final period on a power play deflected by Billy Koch off a shot by Ted Curtis. The Catamounts tied the score when Chris Hurley's hard centering pass from the corner period when Mark Capouch scored his second goal of the night. After goalie Dibble made a couple of game-saving stops for the Badgers, his teammates countered with their sixth goal and ultimate winning margin. The score was a result of a shot which trickled off the bodies and skates of three players before it crossed the goal line, past flustered goal tender Tom McNamara of UVM.

Defensive breakdowns by the Vermont icemen were a major factor in the loss. Forwards tended to be drawn into corners and consequently some opponents were left unrestrained. Another factor was a Wisconsin goaltender named Mike Dibble. Dibble, a gutsy second season performer, glittered throughout the game and turned in several fine saves.

But Dibble's efforts were equaled, if not outdone, by Vermont's sophomore stopper Tom McNamara. McNamara was a stellar figure for the Cats as he turned back 37 Wisconsin shots during this game, which was his debut as a starter for Vermont.

In the second game, the Badgers again scored a goal in the first period, two in the second, and three in the third. However, the Cats could only score one when it didn't matter any more. The final score was 6-1 despite the fine goalkeeping efforts of Tom McNamara.

McNamara made 51 saves including 20 in the final period. This was one short of Dave Reece's record of 52 set in 1970.

For Wisconsin, their overall size and speed was too much for the Cats to handle. They clearly showed why they are one of the best in Western College hockey.

A freshman, Mike Eves, did the heavy scoring with four goals and one assist. His second goal of the night with 52 seconds left in the second period took some juice out of the Cat attack. UVM had to play catchup after trailing 3-0 at the end of the second period.

Roger Mallette scored the only UVM goal in the third period. Bill Koch and Bill McAlduff netted assists on the goal. Mallette was playing in a plastic cast to protect a broken bone in his left wrist.

The Cats now prepare for the next tough tussle in the West. They return to St. Louis to play the Billikens in a two game series over the weekend of November 1. Hopefully, the results will parallel last year's two game split with St. Louis that vaulted the Cats into the national headlines.

●●●●●●●●●●●

The Scoring – Game One
First Period:
UVM – Glynn (Colby, Brady) 3:12
Wisc. – Alley (DePrez) 12:04
Second Period:
UVM – R. Koch (Hurley, Curtis) 1:30
Wisc. – DePrez (Lundeen) 6:18
Wisc. – McIntosh (Lundeen, Polfuss) 10:58
Third Period:
Wisc. – Capouch (Eaves) 1:26
UVM – B. Koch (Glynn, Curtis) 3:23
UVM – Hurley (Unassisted) 7:52
UVM – O'Connell (Rickard, Murphy) 12:07
Wisc. – Capouch (Eaves) 15:23
Wisc. – Alley (TAft, Lundeen) 17:31
Saves – McNamara – UVM –10-14-13-37; Dibble – Wisc. –4-8-11-23
UVM 1 1 3 – 5
Wisc. 1 2 3 – 6

●●●●●●●●●●

Game Two
First Period:
Wisc. – Eves (Jefferies) 1:25
Second Period:
Wisc. – Norwich (unassisted) 7:22
Wisc. – Eves (Gwozdecky) 19:08
Third Period:
Wisc. – Eves (Gwozdecky, Johnson) 5:53
Wisc. – Eves (Capouch, Gwozdecky) 6:09
UVM – Mallette (Koch, McAlduff) 13:07
Wisc. – Gwozdecky (Eves, Capouch) 17:53
Saves – McNamara – UVM –19-12-20-51; Perkins – Wisc. – 10-8-0-18; McFadden – Wisc. 0-0-12-12.
UVM 0 0 1 – 1
Wisc. – 1 2 3 – 6

U.V.M. SPORTS

Bob Chenvert finds a big hole behind goal blocking lad by Larry Lockwood (46) in game against UNH. SPS Photo: Dan Green

UNH Overpowers UVM 38-21

by Norm Robinson

Homecoming Weekend was supposed to be the next peak in an up-down season for the University of Vermont football team as they hosted the Wildcats of New Hampshire. The result was anything but as UNH defeated the Catamounts, 38-21, before a crowd of over 9000 faithfuls on a cold, blustery day.

Don Losano, a junior halfback, led the way for the Wildcats with 130 yards, while freshman quarterback Jeff Allen threw for 96 yards and ran for 60 more.

Most UVM followers know that the Catamounts must pass well for them to win. On Saturday, passing was inconsistent. Bob Bateman, the UVM quarterback, broke the school record for completions with 23-43, but it was not enough. The record was previously held by Earl Olsen of Rutland, Vt.

When someone breaks a record, it usually is not considered to be in inconsistent performance, but it was against UNH. A gusting wind and near-freezing temperatures did not help matters, but when Bateman appeared to be throwing the ball well, passes were dropped, and when receivers were open, Bateman failed to hit them.

The one bright spot for UVM was their running attack. Even though Sam Blood was hurting, the Catamounts ran up 155 yards on the ground. Lockwood had 77, Bob Gilligan gained 42 in limited action, and Mike McAllister got some tough yards.

Don Locano scored New Hampshire's first touchdown on a 17-yard sweep. UNH drove downfield after the opening kick-off and ran through and around the Vermont line. An interference penalty on Vermont kept the drive going.

UVM came right back as Bateman, mixing his plays well, ran Lockwood and Gruss up the middle and around the right side for good yardage. Paul Tarry scored moments later on a 14-yard strike from Bateman.

Early in the second period, UVM appeared to be gaining momentum and the defense was coming alive. On the first play from scrimmage, Allen faded back to pass and hit Dennis Oulette, over a Vermont player, for 80 yards and a touchdown. This could easily be labeled the biggest play of the day. Had Vermont held the Wildcats, the momentum would have changed and the result might have been different.

After the bomb to Oulette, UNH went to town. A 14-yard run by Allen, a 32-yard field goal by Dave Teggart, and a 2-yard plunge by Al Parchuck, put the Wildcats ahead 31-7.

Vermont scored once more before the half. UVM drove from their 25 in 13 plays, capped off by a 21-yard strike by Bateman to Sam Blood. Bateman was forced out of the pocket and hit Blood, who faked two defenders and scampered in for the score. A pass attempt for the two point conversion was incomplete.

The second half was an anti-climax to the previous two periods. Bateman put the ball into the air 27 times in an attempt to catch up, but the UNH defense stiffened and yielded only one late touchdown.

Vermont's last score came on a one-yard smash by McAllister after the Catamounts received a punt.

New Hampshire scored once more on Al Parchuck's second touchdown on a one-yard run.

UVM's performance can be compared to last week's against Rhode Island. Penalties at critical points in the game hurt the Catamounts as they had last week.

If the game had been played between the twenty yard lines, Vermont would have won. UVM had more total yardage, 422-396, first downs, 29-18, and more than twice as much passing yardage, 267-111.

What hurt the Cats the most was New Hampshire's running game. The offensive line for the Wildcats opened huge holes, and Losano, Parchuck, and Allen took advantage of it.

Although UVM was inconsistent and unable to move the ball inside the twenty, credit must be given to a fine University of New Hampshire team. Ray D'Amrosia and Manny Bendana played well on defense and center Kevin Martell had a solid game as well.

Fred Fournier, Tony Kurnick and Paul Jerry were stand-outs for Vermont. Fournier and Kurnick were in on many tackles and Jarry made some fine catches.

Vermont is now 2-4 on the season and 1-4 in the Yankee Conference. All hope for a .500 season in the Yankee Conference is over with Maine the only conference opponent left.

Rochester is UVM's next rival on Saturday at Centennial Field. A victory here and Vermont will still have a shot at a winning season overall.

●●●●●●●●●●

COLLEGE FOOTBALL SCORES
Dartmouth 7 – Brown 6
Yale 42 – Columbia 2
Pitt 35 – Boston College 11
Maine 7 – UConn 0
Mass 17 – Rhode Island 7
Boston U 14 – Bucknell 10
Northeastern 52 – Springfield 30
Amherst 27 – Rochester 0
Middlebury 56 – Hamilton 16
Norwich 21 – Boston St. 16

Lacrosse Club Meets

The UVM Lacrosse Club is going to have an informal meeting Sunday, Oct. 27 at 2 p.m. The meeting will be outside the track behind Gutterson. Bring your sticks and balls. If you are interested and can not make it to the meeting, please leave your name and phone number in Billings. Gutterson. Bring your sticks and balls. If you are interested and can not make it to the meeting, please leave your name and phone number in Billings.

On September 26 the club held its first meeting of this year. The main orders of business were getting the names of new members and electing officers for this year. Ken Bartlett was elected President. Tom Humphries and George Bento are vice-presidents. Jeff Davis is secretary, Chuck Sheketoff is treasurer and Sieldon Roesch handles Public Relations. The club voted in favor of having a Boy Lacrosse program during November and early December. The officers, in cooperation with Coach Cassegrande are presently making plans for the spring season.

Girl's X-C Win Tri-Meet

Last Saturday morning, the UVM Girls' X-C team captured the tri-meet held at Middlebury College. They placed second, third, and fourth out of a field of 20 runners, from Middlebury and Dartmouth on the 4.3 mile course. The girls ran together, and all came in within three seconds, giving UVM a strong finish.

The results were: First Place- Kathy Anderson, Middlebury at 29:45; Second- Kathy Gleny, UVM at 31:21; Third- Judi Robitaille, UVM at 31:22; Fourth: Jane Griffith, UVM at 31:24.

WINTER STORAGE
BICYCLES OR MOTORCYCLES
PINE STREET, BURLINGTON
FOR INFORMATION CALL 864-0779 ANYTIME

REILLY TIRE COMPANY
FROM RECAPS TO RADIALS
WE HAVE IT
BE PSYCHED
AND SET FOR THE SNOW !

ACCOMPANIED BY A COPY OF THIS AD
ACCESSIBLE TO UVM
31 San Remo Drive
So. Burlington

VALUABLE COUPON
SPECIAL TO STUDENTS AND FACULTY MEMBERS
10% DISCOUNT
ON YOUR PURCHASES AT
CAMPUS PHARMACY
ACROSS FROM
The Medical Center

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 863-7686
FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS
INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES
560 X 15 Snow Tires
FITS MOST BUGS & SAAB 95 and 96's
24.95 inc. FET & mounting
VW BRAKE JOB
Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 turn drums, rebuild 4 wheel cylinders.
$49.95
VW Beetle Exhaust Complete
$29.95

COKE REDEMPTION CENTER IS OPEN
Mon. 1-5 PM
Wed 11AM -1PM
Fri. 11AM-3PM
Back of Dental Hygiene Bldg.
Cheers!
It's the real thing. Coke.

OCTOBER 31, 1974
VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 23

Vermont's

by Mark Sawyer

On Monday night, a debate was held between the candidates for Vermont's senatorial seat in the Patrick Gym – a seat which is being vacated by Senator George Aiken. Democratic nominee Patrick Leahy, Republican nominee Richard Mallary, and Liberty Union nominee Bernard Sanders were the participants.

Frank Samson, chairman of the debate, laid the ground rules. Each candidate had ten minutes to make an opening statement and then five minutes rebuttal time, followed by questions from the audience.

Leahy opened his statement with a quip about the Mallary campaign slogan "Charisma Isn't Everything", commenting that in his opinion Bernard Sanders has plenty of charisma.

Leahy began his serious remarks with the observations that it was "an interesting problem to solve the world's problems in five or six minutes." Instead of addressing specific issues, he spoke along the general lines of why anyone would want to go to Congress and what is missing in Congress today.

The candidate cited "healthy indignation" as his motivation for seeking the Senate seat, remarking that he was disturbed as both a consumer and lawyer about recent events exhibiting "the playing of favorites in areas of justice and economics."

Leahy also expressed concern about Congress' slow reaction to crisis situations that arose in areas concerning energy, the environment, the economy and the challenges of strong Presidents. He admonished those who "throw up their hands and quit" or adopt the philosophy that "to get along you go along." Leahy promised to provide an innovative voice in Congress and not let Vermont's [illegible] forgotten.

In closing, the Democratic hopeful reiterated that he would work "for innovation and reaffirm faith in democracy", citing the major problem with America as "low regard for government and nothing has been done."

Mallary opened his statement urging people to realize they should not elect a Senator solely on his position on immediate issues but should examine his "experience, capacity and philosophy" and his ability to meet changing issues. Mallary emphasized that he was running on his public record, citing three years service in the House, ten years in state legislature, and ten years in town government.

Concerning his voting record, the candidate quoted an aide of George Aiken asserting that judgment on a voting record solely on the basis of roll call votes was "irresponsible" and must be examined within the context of parliamentary procedure. Mallary noted that his total record was rated from [illegible] by the John Birch Society to [illegible] by the League of Women Voters.

He also commented that "Watergate has shown that our political system is not totally good" but stressed that Congress was responding, citing the Campaign Reform Bill and the Privacy Act. Mallary also affirmed his support for special pieces of legislation, ranging from the funding of solar energy to the regulation of strip mining.

Liberty Union candidate Bernard Sanders opened his statement on a low note, commenting that over a four month campaign he could not "remain constantly outraged about the issues of "napalm burning young children, elderly people not surviving the winter and men earning $2 an hour unable to support their families and turning to alcohol."

He criticized the Democrats and Republicans for limiting campaign issues, asserting that the major issue is "what is happening to your life." Sanders contended that politics involves "your sex life, watching reruns of 'I Love Lucy', boring lectures, Watergate, making money [illegible] commercials on more products, and the Burlington Free Press printing junk."

Sanders stated that he [illegible] to ask "dumb-bunny questions" like why "some people have billions and others nothing" or why you only have freedom

OCTOBER 24, 1974

...IRTS

...ome against UNH. SPS Photo: Dan Green

...VM 38-21

...32-yard field ...Teggart, and ...y Al Parchuck, ...ahead 31-7.

...ored once more ...UVM drove ...in 13 plays, ...21-yard strike ...to Sam Blood. ...rced out of the ...t Blood, who ...defenders and ...or the score. A ...s the two point ...incomplete. ...d half was an ...he previous two ...an put the ball ...7 times in an ...ck up, but the ...stiffened and ...one late

...last score came ...rd smash by ...the Catamounts

...shire scored once ...erchuck's second ...a one-yard run. ...formance can be ...ni week's against ...). Penalties at ...in the game hurt ...ts as they had last

...had been played ...wenty yard lines, ...uld have won. ...e total yardage, ...owns, 29-18, and ...twice as much ...267-111.

...that Cats the most ...pshire's running ...means line for the Wildcats opened huge holes, and Lossno, Parchuck, and Allen took advantage of it.

Although UVM was inconsistent and unable to move the ball inside the twenty, credit must be given to a fine University of New Hampshire team. Ray D'Amrosio and Manny Bendana played well on defense and center Kevin Martell had a solid game as well.

Fred Fournier, Tony Kurnick and Paul Jerry were stand-outs for Vermont. Fournier and Kurnick were in on many tackles and Jarry made some fine catches.

Vermont is now 2-4 on the season and 1-4 in the Yankee Conference. All hope for a .500 season in the Yankee Conference is over with Maine the only conference opponent left.

Rochester is UVM's next rival on Saturday at Centennial Field. A victory here and Vermont will still have a shot at a winning season overall.

●●●●●●●●●●

COLLEGE FOOTBALL SCORES

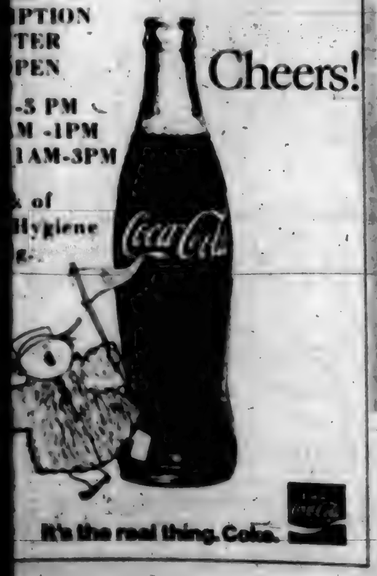
Dartmouth 7 – Brown 6
Yale 42 – Columbia 2
Pitt 35 – Boston College 11
Maine 7 – UConn 0
Mass 17 – Rhode Island 7
Boston U 14 – Bucknell 10
Northeastern 52 – Springfield 30
Amherst 27 – Rochester 0
Middlebury 56 – Hamilton 16, Norwich 21 – Boston St. 16

...s X-C Win Tri-Meet

...day morning, the ...-C team captured ...eld at Middlebury ...y placed second, ...urth out of a field ... from Middlebury ...th on the 4.3 mile ...girls ran together, ...e in within three seconds, giving UVM a strong finish.

The results were: First Place- Kathy Anderson, Middlebury at 29:45; Second- Kathy Glass, UVM at 31:21; Third- Judi Robitaille, UVM at 31:22; Fourth: Jane Griffith, UVM at 31:24.

...KE
...IPTION
...TER
...PEN
...-5 PM
...M -1PM
...1AM-3PM
...k of
...Hygiene
...g.



It's the real thing. Coke.

OCTOBER 31, 1974
VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 23

VERMONT CYNIC

University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont

...a privilege to Live in Paradise

Vermont's Senatorial Candidates Fight It Out During Debate

by Mark Sawyer

On Monday night, a debate was held between the candidates for Vermont's senatorial seat in the Patrick Gym – a seat which is being vacated by Senator George Aiken. Democratic nominee Patrick Leahy, Republican nominee Richard Mallary, and Liberty Union nominee Bernard Sanders were the participants.

Frank Samson, chairman of the debate, laid the ground rules. Each candidate had ten minutes to make an opening statement and then five minutes rebuttal time, followed by questions from the audience.

Leahy opened his statement with a quip about the Mallary campaign slogan "Charisma Isn't Everything", commenting that in his opinion Bernard Sanders has plenty of charisma.

Leahy began his serious remarks with the observations that it was "an interesting problem to solve the world's problems in five or six minutes." Instead of addressing specific issues, he spoke along the general lines of why anyone would want to go to Congress and what is missing in Congress today.

The candidate cited "healthy indignation" as his motivation for seeking the Senate seat, remarking that he was disturbed as both a consumer and lawyer about recent events exhibiting "the playing of favorites in areas of justice and economics."

Leahy also expressed concern about Congress' slow reaction to crisis situations that arose in areas concerning energy, the environment, the economy and the challenges of strong Presidents. He admonished those who "throw up their hands and quit" or adopt the philosophy that "to get along you go along." Leahy promised to provide an innovative voice in Congress and not let Vermont's [illegible] be forgotten.

In closing, the Democratic hopeful reiterated that he would work "for innovation and reaffirm faith in democracy" citing the major problem with America as "low regard for government and nothing has been done."

Mallary opened his statement urging people to realize they should not elect a Senator solely on his position on immediate issues but should examine his "experience, capacity and philosophy" and his ability to meet changing issues. Mallary emphasized that he was running on his public record, citing three years service in the House, ten years in state legislature, and ten years in town government.

Concerning his voting record, the candidate quoted an aide of George Aiken asserting that judgment on a voting record solely on the basis of roll call votes was "irresponsible and must be examined within the context of parliamentary procedure. Mallary noted that his total record was rated from 0 by the John Birch Society to 83 by the League of Women Voters.

He also commented that "Watergate has shown the political system is not totally good" but stressed that Congress was responding, citing the Campaign Reform Bill and the Privacy Act. Mallary also affirmed his support for specific pieces of legislation, ranging from the funding of solar energy to the regulation of strip mining.

Liberty Union candidate Bernard Sanders opened his statement on a low note commenting that over a four month campaign he could not "remain constantly outraged" about the issues of "napalm burning young children, elderly people not surviving the winter, and men earning $2 an hour unable to support their families and turning to alcohol."

He criticized the Democrats and Republicans for limiting our main issues, asserting that the major issue is "what is happening to your lives." Sanders contended that politics involves "your sex life, watching reruns of 'I Love Lucy', boring lectures, WCAX making money running commercials on moronic products, and the Burlington Free Press printing junk."

Sanders stated that he liked to ask "dumb-bunny questions" like why "some people have billions and others nothing" or "why you only have freedom of speech if you don't exercise it."

(l. to r.) Patrick Leahy, Dick Mallary, Bernard Sanders — SPS Photo: Bill Busby

The candidate called for "fundamental and radical change" to correct the deficiencies inherent in a system where "a handful of people control the country."

In closing, Sanders challenged his opponents to answer the questions he posed. He asserted that the basic problem in the United States is that people are powerless and not really living in the full sense of the word. He called for an examination of reality to see our basic problems and "to quit monkeying around with reform."

Leahy opened the rebuttal period agreeing with Sanders that vast inequities in wealth holdings are morally wrong. Leahy was more concerned, however, that such inequities were "legally right" and called for "needed tax reform and a basic overhaul in the tax system." He also attacked the dual system of justice and the shirking of moral leadership by high officials.

Mallary's rebuttal expressed concern about the "low repute of Congress and politicians" but felt the situation was different in Vermont where "politics are traditionally clean and close to the people." He also asserted that Congress is making attempts to regain lost powers but deemed his major concern as the economy "since inflation has the power to destroy our economic and political institutions."

Sanders opened his rebuttal by asking Leahy whether he would favor a limitation on personal wealth. When Leahy replied it would be impossible to draft suitable legislation, Sanders contended that Leahy was "ducking the issue" and admonished Mallary for not dealing with the problem.

Sanders used his remaining time to expound upon his philosophy stating that "if civilization is to continue ordinary people must wake up and take power." He urged "average people to stand up and fight back" and to work with the Liberty Union Party to "build a state and country we can be proud of."

SPS Photo: Bill Busby

The first question from the audience dealt with Sanders' comment that many people were "fearful of the future."

Sanders replied that "many things in our culture are fundamentally wrong", citing the relation between psychosomatic illness and lifestyle. He feared that "people are losing what is human in themselves."

Mallary responded that for all its faults and inequities, he would not prefer to live in another country and professed optimism for the future.

Leahy expressed concern for the future regretting that "we would be the first generation to leave the world in a worse situation than when we found it."

When questioned about his low rating by a senior citizens group Mallary replied that it was due to his votes against inflationary programs. Sanders

(continued on page thirteen)

Faculty Senate Approves Alternate Spending For UVM

by Randy Jensen

A unique program, designed to change the method of funding of UVM, was accepted by the Faculty Senate last Thursday. Submitted by Professor Daniels, head of the Faculty Financial Policy Committee, the proposal advocates state appropriation for professional and service programs and an equalized tuition rate for undergraduate programs.

Basically, the plan calls for a division in funding for the university. Only professional and service programs (including the Medical School and Agriculture Services) would apply for state appropriations. On the other hand, the general university would be treated like a private college in the sense that the same tuition would be charged to both Vermonters and out-of-staters. The state would subsidize Vermont students to defer the higher tuition costs.

Why was this plan proposed? The main cause is that the faculty is concerned about the amount and direction of money that Vermont spends on higher education. Part of this concern is stated in the proposal, "...Vermont's per capita expenditure for state support of public higher education is below the national median allowing for our high per capita for medical education, per capita support for non-medical education is even lower."

The committee is especially concerned that the state does not appropriate enough money for the sum of tuition differential granted. (This sum, approximately 8 million dollars, is calculated by multiplying the number of Vermont students times the difference in in-state and out-of-state tuition, $1,600). This year the state is short 2.8 million in appropriations to make up for the lower tuition charged to Vermonters.

Because of this deficiency, the university only receives 5.2 million for the general university, instead of the 8 million it is supposed to receive. The problem of this, according to Professor Daniels, is that money for the Medical School comes out of the undergraduate tuition support. He feels the state is not aware of which programs receive the state appropriation money. "The practice of submitting a single-figure budget request justified primarily in overall cost terms rather than in program terms obscures these distinctions and permits the state to remain unaware of the inadequacy of the level of its supports for various commitments of the university."

The Financial Policy Committee feels that with the current 2.8 million deficiency, that some "educational value" is given away or that the quality of education has declined. They feel undergraduate programs are already insufficiently supported and further cuts will hurt the undergraduate programs.

Recommendations by the committee urge the state to appropriate directly 5.5 million for Medicine and Agriculture Services. On the other hand, 8 million would be allocated for the undergraduate tuition subsidy. This brings the total to 13.5 million that would be requested. This is about 2.5 million more than the current UVM budget request.

The committee strongly urges that the "state must pay for what it expects to get." The committee goes on, saying that if the state doesn't fulfill its obligations toward funding the university, "it would have no choice except to cut the rate of tuition subsidy and force the families of Vermont undergraduates to shoulder the burden that the tax payers resisted."

The proposal now goes to the administration and the trustees for consideration. According to Professor Daniels, if the proposal is not accepted, one of the possibilities to relieve UVM's financial crisis is "to reduce the number of Vermont students." But, he added, "we would be very reluctant to fall back on that solution."

Mock Civil Air Disaster Scores A Definite Success

by Stephen W. Tanner

At 9:40 a.m. Wednesday, October 24, a fictitious Omega Airlines DC-9 landed 1500 feet short of runway 15 at the Burlington International Airport. Supposedly skidding 1000 feet it broke in half and burst into flames hurling 47 passengers in an area 50 feet west of the runway.

Photo Courtesy Burlington Free Press

The hypothetical plane crash was the cause of a mock Civil Defense air disaster exercise (code named Redbird) designed to test the speed and efficiency of Ambulance District 3, local Fire Departments, law enforcement units, and medical facilities in the event of such a disaster.

To simulate the crash, Airport Manager Thomas Schmidt lit a fire amid pieces of scattered wreckage. Students from the UVM School of Nursing and South Burlington High School seniors volunteered themselves to be made up as victims. Imitation blood mixed from chest injuries and compounded by fractures. Shock cases with protruding intestines were found in the woods. Several girls were running aimlessly in hysteria and still others were labeled dead on impact.

Ten minutes after the "air crash" report went out, Burlington Fire Department trucks and ambulances were on the scene. UVM Rescue followed close behind. Other ambulance units came from Colchester, Essex Junction, Elmwood Memorial, Mallett's Bay, and Milton. All arrived at a command post which served as an information point and dispersal center for the "victims" at the airport.

Leaving ambulances under the direction of drivers and Dave Modica (Lieutenant in Burlington Fire Department) at the command post, three Emergency Medical Technicians carried stretchers and performed immediate first aid to the helpless "casualties" on the field.

In a culling process called "triage" the victims were tagged with blue & red ribbons deciding who among them needed immediate attention. Firemen calmed the flames during this 25-minute interval.

The red-ribboned victims were transported immediately to the command post where a team of three medical personnel from the UVM Medical Center and Fanny Allen Hospital (Essex Junction) "re-tagged" deciding which medical facility could adequately handle each case. Doctors started I.V.'s and called hospitals to prepare them for the arrivals.

Ambulances then sped the wounded passengers to the hospitals as Campus Security and State policemen blocked traffic at main intersections. UVM Rescue made a total of two trips, carrying two victims each time.

During the drill a back-up system had been instituted. Seven to ten people had been called from their homes or classes by UVM Rescue to come and aid at the crash. Security units drove them to the Airport.

(continued on page thirteen)

Liberty Union's Martha Abbott Votes For The Vermont People

by Kathy Stiasni

Martha Abbott, Liberty Union's candidate for governor is approaching the problems of deteriorating conditions for the majority of Vermonters with a degree of straightforwardness noticeably lacking in the "platforms" of her gubernatorial contenders, Thomas Salmon and Peanuts Kennedy.

Abbott is speaking to the issues of housing, soaring utility rates, farming and business, land use, and unemployment which directly affect the lives and pocketbooks of Vermont people.

She has proposed a housing plan under which the state would "float enough municipal bonds to make direct loans to low and middle income Vermonters to build 5,000 new houses over the next two years. This would avoid the need of going through the banks as Salmon's little band-aid program is doing," she said. Salmon's housing plan may pay to renovate substandard housing for a mere 500 families.

Abbott believes that the utilities should be publicly owned. Such ownership does not imply another state bureaucracy, rather it entails the establishment of local utility districts in which each rate payer would have one vote.

Abbott objects to land use arguing that "there are other ways of limiting land for commercial development." She feels that the land use plan overlooks the small farmer and the priority of preserving open and rural land. "It is driving up the price of land to a point where Vermonters can't buy it."

The farmers also are discriminated against by giant agribusinesses, according to Abbott. Their resources are badly needed yet there is no market, and thus no incentive for them to produce and sell. Abbott a critical of the lethargy of the Department of Agriculture, as another example of the state's lack of responsiveness to the peoples' needs.

Abbott is highly critical of the Salmon administration; its promises to labor and subsequent backing of contractors in lowering the minimum wage, and its support of the importation of Jamaican workers for apple growers, while Vermonters are unemployed. Salmon also virtually excluded single unemployed people from general assistance claiming to be helping families.

These unfulfilled promises and contradictions are devastatingly interconnected, argued Abbott. They are designed to perpetuate a

(continued on page thirteen)

Candidates Support Nuclear Moratorium

released by VPIRG

Four of the six candidates for the U.S. House and Senate support a moratorium on the construction of any new nuclear power plants until safety problems are met, according to results from a questionnaire sent out by the Vermont Public Interest Research Group, Inc. (VPIRG). In other questions five candidates strongly favored releasing federal highway trust funds for local road improvements, including maintenance of existing roads. There was also strong support for national beverage container legislation.

Candidates were asked whether they would support and actively work for a moratorium on the construction of new nuclear power plants until (a) the emergency core cooling systems are tested and proven dependable? (b) absolutely safe means of waste disposal are developed; and (c) Americans are guaranteed full insurance coverage for all nuclear injuries.

House candidate James Jeffords agreed to support a moratorium until the emergency core cooling systems are tested. Senate candidate Leahy also favored a moratorium arguing that it would be an "action-forcing" provision which would spur nuclear proponents to solve problems before rather than after, plants are built. Bernard Sanders also agreed to work for a moratorium, while Michael Parenti went further and urged the dismantling of all present plants.

Francis Cain said he could not support a moratorium although he felt that we should not build a second plant in Vermont and that we should "go extremely slowly" in building new plants. Senate candidate Richard Mallary also would not support a moratorium, citing a "substantial consensus of experts" who felt the plants are safe and that solution of the waste problem will be achieved. He was however skeptical about a second nuclear plant for Vermont.

On bottles, VPIRG asked if candidates would support legislation similar to Senator Hatfield's S. 2062 instituting a national container deposit law. All the candidates except Cain were in support of national legislation. Mallary did not specifically endorse S. 2062, saying more generally he would "support national legislation designed to encourage or mandate the use of reusable or directly recyclable beverage containers." Leahy said he would support S. 2062, but professed to find it "unclear" and said he would work for "improvements".

As for diversion of federal

(continued on page thirteen)

Beach Boys Tickets Go On Sale November 4

On November 20 the S.A. Concert Bureau will present the Beach Boys at the Patrick Gymnasium. Tickets will go on sale November 4 for students and November 11 for general admission. They are $5 and $6 respectively.

They will be bringing to UVM one of the finest and most talked about shows in the U.S. Having sold over 70 million records (only second to the Beatles), they combine beautiful music with the most exquisite harmonies ever to enter the rock music world. Their music grows on you. The Endless Summer album which was released at the beginning of the summer was number one on the record charts for several weeks. It contains an array of songs from the surfing and dragging days most of which you will be guaranteed to hear at the concert.

Even more exciting will be the playing of new material from their upcoming album which is scheduled to be released the day after the concert. This new album will be unique in that all songs are written by Brian Wilson whose presence in the groups has faded in the last three years. It is supposed to be in the style of the Pet Sounds album released in 1966 which was the last album Brian wrote entirely. This will be their first studio album in almost two years when Holland was released. Holland plus the three albums before it proved that there was much more to the Beach Boys than surfing. Rolling Stone Magazine voted three out of those four as one of the six best records for their respective years of release.

There's more. About two weeks ago, they released the second of two double albums which are reissues of albums from their middle age ('67-'69). Those contain some of the most mellow and relaxing cuts they ever wrote. A good feeling seems to flow through your body when you listen to them.

Prepare yourself to lay it all out on November 20, but hurry, tickets will go fast.

The Beach Boys

Featured This Week :

Cynic Endorses Candidates....p.4
Canadian Studies Exhibit p.9
Football Team Wins!....p.16

Table Of Contents

Arts & Entertainment . . . . . p. 6
Calendar/Announcements . . . . p. 2
Editorial . . . . . p. 4
Op. Ed. . . . . p. 5
Sports . . . . . p. 16

- CALENDAR and ANNOUNCEMENTS -

Ski Club Holds Annual Show

The University of Vermont Ski Club will hold its annual Ski Show this Saturday, November 2 in the main lounge of the Living/Learning Center. The show will include exhibits from various ski areas, shops, and lodges in the region. Also included will be a raffle of equipment, ski movies, a ski swap shop, and information on the Club's trip to Aspen during Christmas Vacation. If you intend to bring used equipment to sell, please bring it before noon. Of special interest will be an exhibit by the manufacturers of Rossignol skis. The show will run from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Next Thing Workshops

The following November workshops will be presented by The Next Thing in conjunction with the Center for Human Potential and Mind Resources. Most of the sessions will be in our Space at 73 Church St. and will cost $2 registration fee. For exceptions, general information, registrations, or complete catalogs, call, write, or drop by The Next Thing at 73 Church St., 862-2013.

Wilderness Reckoning, with John Lippincott and John Willem.

Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Nov. 1,2,3, 4:30 until 6 p.m., at the Center for Human Potential in East Monkton, $5 deposit required with registration; $15 on arrival, please make checks out to The Next Thing.

(continued on page twelve)

Year Abroad Offered

Students interested in spending a year in Austria studying at Salzburg University are invited to attend an informal meeting (with refreshments) on November 14th at 8:30 p.m. in the German House of the Living/Learning Center, B200.

Further information about this meeting or the program itself can be obtained from the Department of German and Russian.

Economics Meeting Cancelled

The meeting has been rescheduled for Nov. 5. All majors and prospective majors are invited to attend a meeting to meet your department chairmen and your representatives. Professor Nadworthy will deliver a short lecture on some of his current research. It will be held in John Dewey Lounge, Old Mill at 4 p.m. Refreshements will be served.

Bose Speaker Demonstration

There will be a Bose Speaker Demonstration (High Fidelity Exposition) November 5,6,7, at the North Lounge in Billings. The purpose is to acquaint students with the latest in hi-fi development and technical information.

A half-hour demonstration of hi-fi equipment will be given. A question and answer will follow the demonstration. A $1,200 system will be given at the end of three days by a drawing with free tickets. Included in the give-away are a Sansui Receiver 661, a Dual turntable 1228, a Teac cassette dicks 160, and a Bose 501.

Who Are The Grads?

Have you ever wondered who the UVM grad students are? One way to find out would be to come to the Grad student party, Saturday, Nov. 2 at 8:30 in Slade Hall (Redstone Campus.) The purpose is simply to open channels of communication between UVM's grad student population by providing an opportunity for grad students to meet students from other departments. All grad students are welcome.

BYOB. For more information, call Simone Suchet, ext. 3389, or Cheryl King, ext. 3085.

Concert Bureau Openings

There are four openings on the Student Association Concert Bureau for freshmen and Sophomores beginning in the fall of 1975. If you are interested, please leave your name, address, and telephone number in the Concert Bureau mailbox at the Student Activities desk in Billings Center, care of Staige Davis. Interviews will be arranged.

"The Phoenix Sonshine"

"The Phoenix Sonshine," a Jesus-rock group from Southern California, coming to UVM from their second European tour, will be appearing in concert November 6 at 7:30 p.m. at the Arena Theatre (under the Fleming Museum.) Appearing with "Phoenix Sunshine" will be Tom and Candy Green – from southern Vermont. Admission is free. Sponsored by Inter-Varsity.

Sunday Night At The Movies

This Sunday's Living Learning Movie of the Week is The Caine Mutiny. Among the big names that turn in fine performances are Humphrey Bogart, Van Johnson, Jose Ferrer, and Fred MacMurray, in the movie inspired by Herman Wouk's novel. The show times are 7:00 and 9:30 in 115 Living Learning Commons. Admission is $.75.

Two Lane Series presentations, a performance by the National Folklore Dance Group of Honduras, and many films and seminars are coming events of interest at the University of Vermont next week, Oct. 28-Nov. 3.

Currently on view at "Everyone's Gallery," 105 Commons Bldg., Living-Learning Center is a display of "Resident Works," and for the next three weeks Botany 151, Plants and Man, will have a "carcurbit" show up in the lobby of Marsh Life Sciences Building.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31

Chemistry seminar, Prof. F. E. Ziegler, Yale, "The Total Synthesis of Eremophilone," 10:30 a.m., B-112 Cook Building.

Home economics seminar, author-craftswoman Virginia Harvey, "Basketry," at 7:30 p.m., B-106 Cook Bldg. Reception immediately following in the Vermont Room, Terrill Hall.

SA Films presents "The Music Man," 7:30 p.m., 101 Votey Building. Also "The Longest Day" at 10:00 p.m.

The Medieval-Renaissance Program presents a multi-media show on the theme of pilgrimage in the Middle Ages, 8:30 p.m., 115 Commons Building, Living-Learning Center. Speakers will be Profs. William Cook, history, and Ronald Herzman, English, SUNY at Genesco.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1

12:30-4:30 p.m. The UVM Plant and Soil Science Society will be selling a variety of apples, including MacIntosh and Cortlands, in the breezeway between the greenhouse and Hills Building. Part of the profits will go toward a Society Field Trip.

Mathematical sciences seminar, Dr. David Hosmer, University of Massachusetts, "Information and Mixtures of Two Normal Distributions," 3 p.m., B-104 Cook Building.

"Friday at Four," open house, 4 p.m. at Royall Tyler Theatre.

Lane Film Society Series presents another "Truffaut Classic" – "Bed and Board" with showings at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. at 235 Marsh Life Sciences Building. Tickets at the door, or from Lane Office, 234 Waterman, 656-3418.

SA Films presents "Slaughterhouse Five"; 7:30 and 10:00 p.m. tickets at the door of 101 Votey.

International folk dancing, 8-11 p.m., Southwick.

"Roundhouse," informal entertainment in a coffee-house atmosphere, basement, Billings.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 2

Gestalt Workshop at the Church St. Center for Community Education, 10 to 5, Reservations, information: 656-4221, or visit in person at 135 Church St.

SA Films presents "Cool Hand Luke" at 7:30 p.m., 101 Votey.

Lane Series presents jazz-pop singer Cleo Laine, 8 p.m., Memorial Auditorium. Tickets at Lane Office, 234 Waterman, or make reservations, 656-3418.

The Spanish suite at the UVM Living-Learning Center hosts the National Folklore Dance Group of Honduras, 8 p.m., 115 Commons, as part of Vermont's cultural exchange with Honduras. Donations.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 3

No events listed. Isn't that nice?

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 4

10 a.m. to 9 p.m., The Religion Dept. presents "Psychology and Religion: A C. G. Jung Symposium", 115 Commons (Room 120 during evening), Living-Learning. A display of dream and fantasy art.

10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Billings Center Governing Board will be selling tickets to "Play Strindberg" to be performed Nov. 7 through Nov. 10 in Billings.

Betty LaGrange of the Dept. of Physiology and Biophysics at UVM, will speak on "Metabolism of myosin heavy and light chains in cultured embryonic chick muscle," C-219 Given.

4 p.m., Pre-law committee alumi panel in Billings Marsh Lounge. Also at 7:45 p.m. in Old Mill, John Dewey Lounge.

5 p.m., VPIRG will meet, Conference Room C, Billings.

7 p.m., UVM Modern Dance Workshop, Southwick Ballroom, for more information, 3240.

7 to 8 p.m., Start of the Church St. Center for Community Education Bluegrass Banjo mini-course. Call 4221 for details, registration.

7:30 to 9 p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's mini-course in Increasing Your Reading Effectiveness.

7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's mini-course in The Biology of Survival. Phone 4221 for details, registration.

7:30 p.m. SA Films presents "The Sorrow and The Pity", 103 Rowell, free.

7:45 p.m., Scottish Country Dancing in 107 Perkins, Geology Building. Call Ben or Dot Stein before Nov. 11, 863-4103, for information.

8 to 9:30 p.m., Dr. Edward J. Miles, UVM professor of Geography, will speak in 115 Commons, on "Geopolities and National Identity" as part of the Cross Cultural Program.

8:30 p.m., This week, WRUV's "Open Circuit" will discuss "Getting Along With Black People", moderated by Deborah Janone. Includes interviews with UVM students.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5

9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Ceramic Studio Pottery Sale in Billings' Marsh Lounge through Thursday.

10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Sale and exhibition of Tomlinson Gallery prints in the Fleming Museum, Oriental Gallery.

12 noon, UVM/Dartmouth Medical Physics Seminar with Dr. Malcolm Pope. Topic: "Mechanical Properties of Bone", in 226-A of the Mary Fletcher Unit.

12 noon to 4 p.m., New counseling service available at Billings. Hung up or strung out? Contact Bob Rios or Calvin Chappel, 3340.

12:15 p.m., Music Dept. sponsors an informal student at Ira Allen Chapel, free.

1 to 3 p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's mini-course in Batik (wax work on fabric). Call 4221 for details, registration.

6:30 p.m., Christian Science College Organization meets at Harris Hall's recreation room.

7 to 9:30 p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's mini-course in Asian cooking. 4221 for details, registration.

7:30 to 9 p.m., Start of "Modern Trends in Education" at the Church St. Center, 4221 for details, registration.

7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Church St. Center's mini course, "Resolving Conflicts Fairly," 4221 for details and registration.

7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Church St. Center's mini-course, "Fundamentals of Investing."

7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Church St. Center's mini-course, "Housewares of the American Home."

7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's mini-course, "Creative Writing and Poetry" with Tinker Greene.

7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's course in "Simple Bookbinding."

7:30 to 10:00 p.m., "Basics of Platinum Printing", Church St. Center.

7:30, SA meets, Billings Marsh Lounge.

7:30, The Lamplighters meet in MAT Lounge. For information, call Sue Kukla, 2952.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6

Nancy Koch's workshop in "Relaxation", scheduled at noon has been cancelled due to the pottery sale at Billings.

12:15 p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's "Lunch Bunch Film Series." Free of charge. Call 4221 for details.

1 to 3 p.m., Tickets on sale at Billings for a special $1 film showing at Merrill's Showcase.

3 to 5 p.m., International Club of UVM meets at the Area and International Studies Center, 479 Main St., for coffee. All welcome.

4 p.m., UVM Women's Caucus Advisory Board meeting at the Women's Center, Blundell House.

4 p.m. Weekly meeting of "Tertulia", for those who speak Spanish, Building D, Suite 350, L/L.

5:30 to 7 p.m., Church St. mini-course in "Fencing."

7:30 to 9 p.m., Mini-course, "Hatha Yoga."

7:30 to 9 p.m., Mini-course, "Ways with Wines", Church St.

7:30 to 9:30 p.m., John Lippincott will speak on "Altered States of Consciousness", Harris-Millis lounge, free. Call 3340 for more information.

7:30 "Phoenix Sunshine", a Jesus-rock group from So. California will be in concert, Arena Theatre. Sponsored by Inter-Varsity, free.

7:30, Informal meeting, Outing Club, formal meeting. Informal at 7:30, formal at 8, with a show entitled: "Obscure Crags of Northern New England." 305 Votey.

8 p.m., Concert by Con Brio Chamber Ensemble in Commons, 115 Living-Learning. Tickets at door.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 7

9:30 – 11 a.m. Church St. Center's mini-course on "Winter Birds" starts today.

UVM Horse Club

The UVM Horse Club will not be meeting at its regular time this week. Instead, it will be meeting on Friday night at 8:00 p.m. in the classroom at the Spear Street Farm. All are invited. If there are any questions please call President Vernie Batcheldor at 863-5944.

Mid-Semester Blues?

Mid-Semester grades got you down? Do you need help in developing comprehension, study skills, critical reading abilities, flexibility, or wish to increase your reading rate; Contact CRIP – the College Reading Improvement Program, a free service of the Reading Center, Waterman Building.

Your first job may be your last.

It has happened that way often in the past. Many of the college graduates who join us decide to build satisfying lifetime careers in our organization.

Why this decision?

☐ Perhaps because of the relative stability of Pratt & Whitney Aircraft over the years. This has resulted from a talent for providing continually more powerful engines for the majority of commercial aircraft operated by airlines of the free world.

☐ Perhaps a significant factor has been the planned diversification into non-aircraft fields. For example, we have developed jet engines that now provide power for utilities, high-speed trains, marine vessels, chemical complexes and other applications.

☐ Perhaps the emphasis on new products with exceptional growth potential. Fuel cell powerplants that do not pollute the atmosphere and are far more efficient in producing energy from scarce fuel typify this aspect.

☐ Perhaps an important plus has been a competitive salary structure and increasingly more important assignments that lead to attractive futures in management.

☐ Perhaps most important, for many, has been the challenge of working at the frontiers of the art in virtually every technical and scientific field. Certainly, ability is tested to the utmost in improving powerplants that can lift their own weight plus additional thousands of pounds of plane, passengers and cargo. Man's ability is tested, too, in the development of new and better ways to utilize the world's energy resources.

We have attractive career opportunities for engineers, scientists and graduates in a variety of other specialties such as accounting and business administration. So see your College Placement Office for our descriptive brochure, requirements and interview dates. Or write to Mr. Len Black, Professional Placement, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft, East Hartford, Connecticut 06108.

Pratt & Whitney Aircraft U A

An Equal Opportunity Employer Male and Female

Factories in East Hartford, Connecticut and West Palm Beach, Florida.

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS November 4 and 5, 1974

SPECIAL

MEN'S FISHERMENKNIT SWEATERS

PULLOVERS $9.95

CARDIGANS $11.50

WHILE THEY LAST

SLIGHTLY IRREG

SHOP FIRST AT THE

CHARLESTOWN MALL STORE

65 Main St.

OPEN DAILY 9-9, SATURDAY 9-5

WINTER STORAGE

BICYCLES OR MOTORCYCLES

PINE STREET, BURLINGTON

FOR INFORMATION CALL 864-0779 ANYTIME

ESTHER COHEN

Admits she has a special interest . . .People

Help Re-Elect Esther Cohen

General Assembly - Vermont House of Representatives

Registered Stud UVM in the Living Learning Center, Harris-Millis, Tupper Hall, Austin Hall, Marsh Hall, Converse, Buckham Hall, Chittenden Hall, and Willis Hall.

VOTE TUES. NOV. 5

Mater Christi School

Independent-Democrat

ROW 21 THE LAST ONE ON YOUR BALLOT

Religion Dept

On November 4, the Religion Department of UVM is sponsoring an all day symposium in the Living and Learning Center (Commons Building) on the work of Swiss psychiatrist, Carl Gustav Jung (1875-1961). The theme of the conference will be "Psychology and Religion." Two Jungian analysts will be present and also representatives from the fields of psychology, psychiatry, counselling, and religion, who will discuss Jung's contribution and relevance to their disciplines. Films and other visual materials will be included.

The work of C.G. Jung is not widely known even to psychologists since current textbooks tend to relegate him

Cunning

WEEKDAY LITURGIES: Monday: 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday: 4:15 p.m. and 10:00 p.m.; Wednesday: 4:15 p.m.

HOLY DAY LITURGIES: Thursday, Oct. 31, for Holy Day on Friday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Friday, Nov. 1, Feast of All Saints: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

ALL SOULS DAY: Saturday, Nov. 2: 9:00 a.m. and 12 noon.

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Saturday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday: 9:00 and 11:30 a.m., 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: 7:30 a.m. every day.

Hillel

Sunday, November 3, there will be a brunch at 11:30. Directly following, there will be a slide show about a recent trip (Spring 1974) through the Negev and Sinai Peninsula

Every Tuesday at 4:00 p.m. there will be a study group in Jewish Customs and Ceremonies. Until further

St. Anslem

On November 3, the St. Anselm's Coffee House is opening. This is not something on the level of the Roundhouse. It is rather a quiet place to go on Sunday night between 8:00 and 11:00 p.m., where you can relax, talk, even study comfortably, and listen to some music. You can take a break from studying and get a cup of coffee.

We'll have a fire and a pot of hot water. This week several guitarists, especially David Newcombe, are going to play for a while.

There is no cover charge. We just feel that there are too few places where people can slow down and be persons. Come on by.

If you have a talent (poetry, music, acting), this might be a place for you to express it. We are open to many possibilities.

Schedule: Sunday – Ho

If you c you'll se
If you don'
don't say we d

Bob Bush 23
Jim Francke 8
Tony Wright

The Ætna Colleg
Life Insurance for

Ætna Life Insurance Company

p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's Biology of Survival. Phone 4221 for details,

Films presents "The Sorrow and The Pity",

Scottish Country Dancing in 107 Perkins,
. Call Ben or Dot Stein before Nov. 11, rmation.
m., Dr. Edward J. Miles, UVM professor of peak in 113 Commons, on "Geopolitics and
" as part of the Cross Cultural Program.
is week, WRUV's "Open Circuit" will discuss vith Black People", moderated by Deborah interviews with UVM students.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5

m., Ceramic Studio Pottery Sale in Billings' ough Thursday.
m., Sale and exhibition of Tomlinson Gallery
g Museum, Oriental Gallery.
M/Dartmouth Medical Physics Seminar with Topic: "Mechanical Properties of Bone", in Fletcher Unit.
p.m., New counseling service available at or strung out? Contact Bob Rios or Calvin

tic Dept. sponsors an informal student at tea rt of the Church St. Center's mini-course in fabric). Call 4221 for details, registration.

tian Science College Organization meets at on room.
Start of the Church St. Center's mini-course
21 for details, registration.
Start of "Modern Trends in Education" at r, 4221 for details, registration.
p.m., Church St. Center's mini course,
Fairy," 4221 for details and registration.
p.m., Church St. Center's mini-course, vesting."
p.m., Church St. Center's mini-course, American Home."
p.m., Start of the Church St. Center's e Writing and Poetry" with Tinker Greene.
Start of the Church St. Center's course in m., "Basics of Platinum Printing", Church

illings Marsh Lounge.
plighters meet in MAT Lounge. For Kukla, 2952.

NESDAY, NOVEMBER 6

rkshop in "Relaxation", scheduled at noon
e to the pottery sale at Billings.
of the Church St. Center's "Lunch Bunch charge. Call 4221 for details.
ets on sale at Billings for a special $1 film howcase.
rnational Club of UVM meets at the Area adies Center, 479 Main St., for coffee. All men's Caucus Advisory Board meeting at Franklin House. meeting of "Tertulia", for those who speak

Suite 350, L/L. urch St. mini-course in "Fencing."
ini-course, "Hatha Yoga."
ini-course, "Ways with Wines", Church St.
., John Lippincott will speak on "Altered ess", Harris-Millis lounge, free. Call 3340
.
Sunshine", a Jesus-rock group from So. n concert, Arena Theatre. Sponsored by meeting, Outing Club, formal meeting, rmal at 8, with a show entitled: "Obscure w England." 305 Votey.

by Con Brio Chamber Ensemble in g Learning. Tickets at door.
RSDAY, NOVEMBER 7
urch St. Center's mini-course on "Winter emester Blues?

odes get ed help in rehension,
l reading or wish to increase your reading rate;
Contact CRIP – the College
Reading Improvement Program, a free service of the Reading Center, Waterman Building.

TORAGE
OTORCYCLES
URLINGTON
864-0779 ANYTIME

OHEN interest . . . People her Cohen
mbly - Representatives
UVM in Center,
Hall,
Hall,
Hall,
Hall.
NOV. 5
School Democrat
N YOUR BALLOT

Religion Dept. Symposium On Jung

On November 4, the Religion Department of UVM is sponsoring an all day symposium in the Living and Learning Center (Commons Building) on the work of Swiss psychiatrist, Carl Gustav Jung (1875-1961). The theme of the conference will be "Psychology and Religion." Two Jungian analysts will be present and also representatives from the fields of psychology, psychiatry, counselling, and religion, who will discuss Jung's contribution and relevance to their disciplines. Films and other visual materials will be included.

The work of C.G. Jung is not widely known even to psychologists since current textbooks tend to relegate him to a rather minor position in the history of psychology, as an early schismatic from Sigmund Freud (along with Alfred Adler who has suffered similarly.) The originality and scope of his work, however, once led an English writer to describe him as "one of Western Man's great liberators" while a recent BBC film series (to be shown at the symposium) caused a flood of letters asking for it to be repeated. If anything, his ideas have tended to be known in the U.S. more in seminaries and religion departments than among psychologists, although a small number of Jungian institutes do exist.

Carl Gustav Jung was born in Switzerland, near Basel, where he later trained as a psychiatrist. Early in his career, at the turn of the century, he came under the influence of Freud just when the early psychoanalytic movement was beginning to have something of a succes de scandale in the psychiatric world. For several years the aspiring Jung was a passionate champion of Freud's then radical theories, representing for the older Viennese doctor a possible heir apparent who could win new converts from the very first psychoanalytic outpost in Switzerland.

But by the time Jung met Freud, he had himself already made important innovations in the field of psychiatry. He had developed the well known association test, introduced the term complex into psychology and produced a classic study of schizophrenia (then called dementia praecox.) Freud readily assimilated much of Jung's work into psychoanalysis but a growing tension developed between the two men around Freud's theory of infantile sexuality. Jung had held reservations about the theory from the start but suppressed them. Eventually, as it became more and more clear to him that many other than sexual factors were at play in neurosis and psychosis he broke off from Freud and began his own school, later called Analytical Psychology, in Zurich.

Jung's psychology is not as easy to grasp as Freud's because he deliberately avoided the clear cut mechanistic structures of his early mentor, tending instead towards a holistic view of the psyche. The key to Jung's

(continued on page eleven)

Advisory Committee

A Student Advisory Committee is being formed in the hopes of enabling the University Health Services to more efficiently satisfy the student health care needs at UVM. The main goal of this committee would be to establish a direct line of communication between UVM students and the University Health Services Director and Staff.

We feel that the students have a valuable contribution to make in suggesting improvements in this area. As we will soon be moving our operation to the new East Avenue Facility, such a committee should prove to be especially helpful.

Anyone interested in serving on such a committee would be expected to attend a monthly committee meeting as well as the health services monthly staff meetings. This should not develop into strictly a "complaint department," but provide positive suggestions to improve the quality of our services.

If you are interested in helping us help you, please contact Paula or Rachel at ext. 3350.

CESS Sponsor Careers Fair

What does a consulting teacher do? How can I help a child with a "disorder in communication?" How can I use my physical education major when I graduate? What do I need to do in order to become certified?

Answers to these questions and many others will be answered during the Careers Fair, to be held on November 12 from 12-3:30 pm in Watgerman Building. Although the Careers Fair is sponsored by the College of Education and Social Services, many other departments which fall under the general heading of "Human Services" will have displays and will be present to answer questions. Each of the departments of the College of Education and Social Services will be representing its particular specialty area. These will include: Teacher Corps, Career Placement, Responsive Teacher Program, Teaching and Learning Specialties, Physical Education Careers, Student Personnel Services, and many other areas. Representatives from outside the college will include Speech Pathology, Vocational Technology, Nursing, Physical Therapy, Home Economics, the Council on Exceptional Children, and several others. Each area will have a display of printed materials and/or media presentations, plus representatives from the area present to answer questions.

Watch next week's issue of The Cynic for more details.

Placement Office

EMPLOYERS:

November 11 – Hartford Hospital. Seeks: BS/AD Nurses for Staff Nursing.

November 11 – The Lummus Company. Seeks: BS/MS in CE, ME, EE, Chem. E for Process, Project, Design Engineering, Field Constr.

November 12 – General Electric Co. Seeks: Bachelors or Masters: Tech. Degrees – All Areas for Direct Placement or training programs both corporate and local. Technical areas.

November 13 – General Electric. Second Day.

November 14 – Republic Steel Corporation. Seeks: BS/EE, ME, CE, MME and BS/Admin. – Industrial Management for engineer and management trainees. Citizenship required.

November 15 – Price Waterhouse & Company. Seeks: BS/Accts. for international CPA firm. Four weeks orientation program stressing basic auditing skills. Assisting and taking charge of exam of fin. statements, tax review, systems review, spec. invest and preparation of fin. reports.

GRADUATE SCHOOLS:

November 11 – Northeastern University – all majors.

November 13 – American Grad. School of International Management. Offers a tripartite grad. program in Modern Languages, International Studies, and World Business leading to a Master of International Management. 3 semesters or one calendar year with summer session.

Russian Educator To Discuss Solzhenitsyn

Serge Kryzytski, born in Russia and educated in Poland and presently an Associate Professor at Oberlin College, will be a guest lecturer of the Russian/East Europe Studies Program at UVM. On Wednesday, November 6, at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Lounge he will give a public talk entitled: Solzhenitsyn's Gulag Archipelago That Shook the World. It will be followed by a question and answer period. All interested students, faculty, and townspeople are urged to attend.

Honduran Folk Dancers Visit UVM

One of the finest folk dance groups in the world, the National Folklore Dance Group of Honduras, Central America, will appear at Commons 115, Living/Learning, November 7, at 8:00 p.m.

A small donation will be asked to help cover the expense of flying the group and its instruments to Miami and Vermont: $.25 with UVM I.D.; $1.00 for other students; $2.00 for Burlington community.

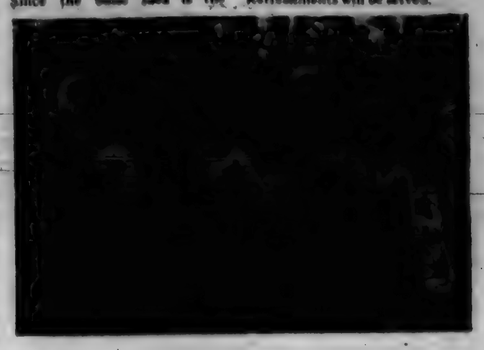
The Honduran folk dancers have appeared in many countries in Latin America, performed at the Olympics, and have been enthusiastically received in other parts of the United States. The group has been awarded numerous medals and honors, and taken first place in Central American competition.

Its director, Senor Rafael Manzanares, a lawyer, has received a national art prize for his work in founding the organization.

Critics have hailed the group for preserving and expressing tribal dances. They've also noted the wide variety of the dances and music, something they trace back to the imprint of European and African migrations, both slave and free, to Honduras.

The visit is part of the Vermont-Honduras Partners program, an exchange of cultures, ideas and education. Since the basic idea is the development of friendship on a personal level, residents are urged to say hello in any casual meetings and give the visitors a warm welcome.

Tickets will be on sale at the Romance Languages Dept. and D 350 L/L Center, or call 656-4263. A reception will follow the performance. Refreshments will be served.



Elective Credit For Military Studies

President Edward C. Andrews Jr. has notified the Faculty Senate that elective credits will be given for military studies.

In a letter to Dr. Wilfred Roth, chairman of the Faculty Senate, Dr. Andrews said, "This is to inform you of my conclusion, and hence agreement with the Academic Affairs Committee, that the Constitution supports the Senate's action of April 22, 1965, directing elective credit for military studies and that this policy remains in effect since it has never been repealed or changed."

The question arose when the Arts and Sciences College announced it would not give credit for such studies. Following Senate discussion of this action, the Academic Affairs Committee researched the issue and found the 1965 directive.

VPIRG Sponsors Issues "Mobile Homeowner's Bill Of Rights"

VPIRG is presently distributing the "Mobile Homeowner's Bill of Rights" in pamphlet form to mobile homeowners. The pamphlets inform mobile homeowners of their legal rights and obligations within a trailer park. Volunteers are needed to hand out the pamphlets to every mobile home owner in every trailer park in every part of the state. This is an important project because the "Bill of Rights" was only passed by the legislator this year and many mobile homeowners remain ignorant of their rights relating to leases, entrance fees, selling, sub-letting and eviction, and hence, are still being exploited.

People willing to circulate the pamphlets should contact the VPIRG office, 49 North Prospect, between 10-4 Monday through Friday.

In response to popular demand, the VPIRG office, 49 North Prospect, will be open 10-4, Monday through Friday with the exception of 11:30-1:00 Tuesday and Thursday.

Volunteers man the office, and more are needed to fill the 11:30-1:00 Tuesday and Thursday vacancy.

Please contact the VPIRG office, 49 North Prospect if interested.

Cunningham -Newman Center

WEEKDAY - LITURGIES: Monday: 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday: 4:15 p.m. and 10:00 p.m.; Wednesday: 4:15 p.m.

HOLY DAY LITURGIES: Thursday, Oct. 31, for Holy Day on Friday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Friday, Nov. 1, Feast of All Saints: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

ALL SOULS DAY: Saturday, Nov. 2: 9:00 a.m. and 12 noon.

WEEKEND LITURGIES: Saturday: 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.; Sunday: 9:00 and 11:30 a.m., 4:15 and 6:30 p.m.

CONFESSIONS: Before weekend Masses and any time by appointment.

MORNING PRAYER: 7:30 a.m. every day.

BASIC CATHOLICISM: 7:15 p.m. each Monday night.

JUSTICE AND PEACE: Study-Action Group meets at 9:00 p.m. on Mondays.

CHOIR PRACTICE: for the 4:15 Sunday Mass Group – at 7:30 p.m. every Tuesday.

LITURGY MEETING: The staff at the Center meets each week at 4:00 p.m. on Mondays to plan the weekend liturgies. Anyone interested in joining the group should contact Fr. Holland.

PRE-CANA SERIES: The next marriage preparation series will take place at St. Anthony's Parish in the Inter-Parish Center. The schedule is as follows: Nov. 3 – Communications, M/M Herb Franzen; Nov. 10 – Sexuality, Dr. John J. Murray; Nov. 17 – Finance, M/M Joseph Doppman; Nov. 24 – Theology, M/M Ted Stronach.

LEAP PROGRAM: A weekend of spiritual renewal and experience in Christian community for young adults 18-25. For further information or for application forms, contact Sr. Lindora.

ALABAMA HERE WE COME! Again this year a group from the Center will be traveling to Alabama during Semester Break to do volunteer work. If you would like to join the group, please contact Fr. Holland.

HOLY YEAR CELEBRATION: On Tuesday, November 12 at 10:00 p.m., we will celebrate a Liturgy of Reconciliation in preparation for the Holy Year of Peace and Reconciliation. This service will involve all Burlington area colleges and will be held at the Cunningham Newman Center.

DAY OF AWARENESS: November 14 at Trifility College. Fr. Bryan Hehir will be the main speaker. This is an opportunity to gain more insight into the whole area of Justice and Peace.

Hillel House

Sunday, November 3, there will be a brunch at 11:30. Directly following, there will be a slide show about a recent trip (Spring 1974) through the Negev and Sinai Peninsula

Every Tuesday at 4:00 p.m. there will be a study group in Jewish Customs and Ceremonies. Until further notice, the meetings will be held in 420 Waterman.

The Jewish Welfare Board offers a Masters Program in Jewish Social work. See write up in this addition of the Cynic.

The Hillel House is on 389 College St. and is open daily, Sunday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Comfortable and quiet, a great place to study.

St. Anslem's Chapel

On November 3, the St. Anselm's Coffee House is opening. This is not something on the level of the Roundhouse. It is rather a quiet place to go on Sunday night between 8:00 and 11:00 p.m., where you can relax, talk, even study comfortably, and listen to some music. You can take a break from studying and get a cup of coffee.

We'll have a fire and a pot of hot water. This week several guitarists, especially David Newcombe, are going to play for a while.

There is no cover charge. We just feel that there are too few places where people can slow down and be persons. Come on by.

If you have a talent (poetry, music, acting), this might be a place for you to express it. We are open to many possibilities.

Schedule: Sunday – Nov Eucharist 9 a.m.; Tuesday – Holy Eucharist 10 p.m., Thursday – Holy Eucharist 10 p.m.; Mondfy–Friday Morning Prayer 7:15 a.m.

All Saints' Day Service

On Halloween, or as it was called, All Hallow's Eve (October 31), there will be a Eucharist in the Chapel at 10:00 p.m. This is a very central feast day in the church; being that on it we remember that we are not only members of an earthy group of people, but we are also members of one communion and fellowship in Jesus Christ.

That communion stretches into the dark past and dim future. On this night, our celebration focuses on that fellowship and we join with those who have gone before and those who will come after us in thanking God for his love.

VALUABLE COUPON
SPECIAL TO STUDENTS AND FACULTY MEMBERS
(prescriptions excluded)
10% DISCOUNT
ON YOUR PURCHASES AT
CAMPUS PHARMACY
ACROSS FROM
The Medical Center

Levi's
Pants Plus
12 N. WINOOSKI AVE.
BURLINGTON, VT.
05401
802 • 864-0161
10% OFF WITH VALID UVM ID.

PLANTASIA
INDOOR PLANT SPECIALISTS
LANDSCAPING

107 ST. PAUL STREET, BURLINGTON, VERMONT 05401
(802) 863-4455

MAZEL'S
Family Shoe Store
194 North St. Burlington
dunham
CONTINENTAL TYROLEANS®

Also Available In A 9" Boot For Men And Women

Tyroleans . . . the hiking, biking, camping, mountaineering or anywhere boots . . . You'll find 'em at Mazel's in Men's & Ladies' sizes . . . Comfort from first step to last . . . the boots for all outdoors and all seasons.

FREE PARKING OPEN DAILY 9 to 6 THURSDAY and FRIDAY

If you compare,
you'll select Ætna...
If you don't compare,
don't say we didn't warn you!
Bob Bush
Jim Francke
Tony Wright
231 S. Union Street
862-1701
Ætna LIFE & CASUALTY
The Ætna College Plan...
Life Insurance for students
Ætna Life Insurance Company, Hartford, Connecticut

RE-ELECT
EVELYN L. JARRETT
Democrat-District 4-9
A Candidate who has served with integrity and responsibility on the House Institutions Appropriations and Judiciary Committees.
VOTE NOV. 5 - Adams School -
All Redstone Campus Buildings are in District 4-9

VERMONT CYNIC

Founded In 1883

Barbara Proctor '75, Editor-in-Chief
Rick Steinberg '75, Assistant Editor
Wyatt Kash '77, Managing Editor
Randy Jensen '77, News Editor
Margo Bernhard '75, Features Editor
Lissa Clarkin '75, Arts Editor
Peter Campbell '75, Assistant Arts Editor
Mike Schwartz '75, Sports Editor
Kathy Stewart '77, Copy Editor
Debbie Powell, '76, Advertising Manager

Editorials

Abbott For Governor

Martha Abbott as governor can most effectively deal with Vermont's problems. She is willing to fight for what she believes in without compromising her principles. She is the only candidate for governor who will not bow down to the big interests of corporations in Vermont. Her interests are clearly with the poor, the working class, the elderly and other people who have little to say in government.

Abbott's stand on utility rates is her most commendable asset. She has urged public ownership of the utilites to cut the high cost of these companies. Her plan would help Vermont break away from high prices for utilities dominated by out-of-state money. Her proposal would help relieve the high costs of fuel and electricity for the Vermont consumer especially ones who are on a set income.

We also commend Abbott on her stand to support a raise in minimum wage. The $2 an hour wage is inadequate to meet the high costs of living and the declining buying power of the Vermont worker. Abbott wants to see a minimum wage which will enable a person to live decently, an important responsibility of government.

It is Abbott's tax reforms that would be most beneficial to Vermonters. She demands that people pay a fair amount of taxes. Abbott also wants elimination of loopholes, and an increase in the amount that corporations and business would pay. Such reforms will help alleviate the poor financial situation of Vermonters.

Vermont needs a governor who will work for the Vermonter and not for the out-of-staters. Martha Abbott is the most dedicated, responsible candidate. She also will listen and fight for Vermonter's concerns.

R.J.

Leahy For Senate

By a plurality vote, the Vermont Cynic endorses Patrick Leahy for United States Senator.

Leahy is the only Democrat or Republican we have chosen to endorse. This is because he embodies the progressive spirit that, hopefully, can provide Vermont with a good future.

Patrick Leahy is only 34 years old. He has young, fresh ideas, which Vermont desperately needs. Leahy's main opponent, Dick Mallary, is merely a continuation of the dull mediocrity we have seen in too many of Vermont's representatives.

There is actually nothing wrong with Mallary. He has been a conscientious congressman for the past few years. He has served Vermont to the best of his ability. Right now, however, we need a change. Liberty Union's Bernard Sanders also represents a new viewpoint. We admire Sanders for his courageous outspoken views. We agree with many of them. But Patrick Leahy will be the most effective of these three candidates in bringing about these changes.

Leahy's re... as Chittenden County State's attorney is mer...orious. He has helped to greatly reduce crime in this area. He has also been an ardent supporter of decriminalization of marijuana and other social legislation.

It is in the area of social legislation in which Pat Leahy, as a U.S. Senator, can do the most for Vermonters. Leahy supports price controls on gasoline, a decrease in military aid and other legislative decisions which will strongly benefit the average citizen.

Patrick Leahy supports the underdogs. He champions the students, the senior citizen and perhaps, most importantly, the Vermonter. Leahy does not want to see these people get shafted. He urges strong social changes which will benefit these people.

Our nation, and our political system, is presently undergoing some serious upheavals. We need new representatives with different ideas. As students, we must recognize and support any attempt to help those who do not have controlling interest. We feel Patrick Leahy will give us this help.

B.F.

Parenti For Congress

Liberty Union's Michael Parenti is the only congressional candidate who offers Vermonters a break from the traditional two-party system.

Parenti believes that there is little difference between Democrats and Republicans. We agree with him. He intends to fight all corporate capitalists who, in his words, "own and control our resources, our land, our lives and our labor." If anyone can do this, he can.

Michael Parenti has always fought the oppressive establishment. His outspoken beliefs cost him his job at this university three years ago. This did not stop Parenti. He has continued to speak out and fight against all those who do not wish to share what they have. We need a voice like this in Congress.

Parenti is the best of the Liberty Union. He combines their fervent idealism with a practical sense of how to accomplish his plans. Parenti will bring a new concept to Congress. He truly represents a viable alternative for those dissatisfied with the two major party candidates – and we all should be dissatisfied.

Many people feel it is foolish to "waste a vote" on a Liberty Union candidate. A vote is never wasted if it is sincerely meant. Parenti recently quoted Eugene Victor Debs, the famous labor leader, as saying, "I'd rather vote for someone I want and not get him or her, than vote for someone I don't want." If enough people want a change, we'll get one.

B.F.

The Educational Dream Machine

by Cecilia Vistica

Is the educational system at UVM an incentive to learning or a hindrance to creative thinking? Ideally, we should be enjoying the comprehension of ideas in and of themselves; in instances, we are made slaves to the marking system. "Achievers" who aim for high grades, find that they may have to swallow their principles for the sake of pleasing the professor's preconceived and often petty notions as to what the role of the student should be. Sincerity does not often bring positive results. It becomes obvious that student response is unwelcomed and that, indeed, it is rarely even considered.

Granted, professors are extremely erudite. Their knowledge on the subjects they present often exceeds that of the student who has not had proportionate years of access to the same broad informational area. Must this mean that the student is handicapped and is not deserving of positive feedback which he comprehends the often difficult theories which are presented in the course material?

In an authoritarian classroom where the teacher believes himself to be the only font of truth, at least one ideal of education is corrupted. The sharing process which makes learning so enjoyable becomes non-existant, and the student suffers from continual frustration in knowing that only fleeting opportunities will be given for the rendering of his own insights (at moments which will be teacher-controlled and teacher-initiated.)

In this situation, standard examinations and term papers become the sole proving grounds. Frustration arises when form and correct spelling take precedence over the incorporation of ideas.

As the semester proceeds, one may feel a sense of impending doom, knowing that it is all very arbitrary anyway. Individual fates are sealed within the first few classes. Only a handful of students are allowed to do well. It is not impossible to get a "B", but when one continually strives for excellence, knowing that the effort will not be commensurate with the final grade, a sense of helplessness results (and possibly anger, which of course could never be exhibited, let alone comprehended.)

Perhaps even apathy towards the material will ensue. For when there is no just incentive system to learning, and in fact, when the bulk of students in a classroom are regarded as lowly creatures who are incapable of achieving the professor's level of knowledge (an obvious impossibility), education becomes a burden instead of a delight.

This is not to ask for "easy" courses. Challenges can be wonderful. But they turn into nightmares if one realizes that fair play, or recognition for one's abilities, is largely absent.

Letters To The Editor

Frats At UVM

To the Editor:

Fraternities are often criticized for such things as rowdiness, drunkenness, not creating an intellectual atmosphere, and even being snobbish and cliquy. However, one good aspect which is frequently overlooked by these critics is the community involvement on the part of most of the fraternities at UVM. For instance, Sigma Nu, often the recipient of much criticism, sponsors a Christmas party each year prior to vacation. The event is given for a group of underprivileged children in hopes that this exciting time of year may be a little happier for them. The usual scene is set up with a tree, lights, various appropriate ornaments, and of course, Santa Claus. In the near future the fraternity plans to lend their cellar to a theater group who perform plays for kids who have never witnessed a staged performance. This particular presentation is for the sole purpose of raising money for the acting group so that they can travel to areas where children have never seen a play. Friends of UVM Hockey hold their weekly meeting at the House and also several members are involved with OVP.

Sigma Phi each year, with the assistance of ADPi sorority, have a Halloween party for a group of retarded children. The entire group is dressed in costumes and such festivities as dunking for apples and carving pumpkins are enjoyed by all. At Thanksgiving a $60 basket of ham and turkey is sent to a local family who would not have been able to afford such food on this special day of the year. They are also involved with OVP and the Big Brother Program.

Just recently Sigma Phi Epsilon sponsored a 20 mile walk-a-thon which completed the final phase of a month long drive to raise money for the Vermont Heart Association. Needless to say, the drive was successful as the fraternity collected over $1500 from Burlington area merchants and businesses.

These are just a few fraternities and just a few of the community activities that fraternities are involved in outside the usual norm. On a superficial level the fraternities might be criticized, however, after a closer observation one will discover much good.

Sincerely,
Thomas B. Wheeler

The Brick Problem

To the Editor:

We are writing today to express our concern over what we believe to be a nation-wide problem. It has come to our attention that the price of the everyday housebrick has increased by 300 percent over the past year.

We feel that not enough people are aware of this situation, and measures must be taken to remedy the problem. It is time for the members of this community to unite and voice their concerns to the brick industries of this nation.

We present as evidence the case of Clay vs. The State of Illinois, July, 1973. We believe that the case is clearly presented and well-defined.

The sloppy, apathetic environment surrounding this situation is appalling. The UVM community must open it's eyes to the brick problem.

Sincerely yours,
Ernest T. Bass
President
Save Our Bricks (SOB)

Immature Editorial

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to your immature editorial on the subject of speed dips. I am tired of reading false statements in the Cynic.

The University did not fill in the speed dips for the sake of visiting parents who were on campus during Parent's Weekend. The Administration, after receiving numerous complaints, decided that certain speed dips were unneccessary.

It was felt that double speed dips, that is, two speed dips within fifteen feet of each other, did not have any more of an effect on speeding than a single dip would have. Therefore, an asphalt company was contracted to fill in certain dips permanently, in order to eliminate the double-dip condition.

However, the asphalt company filled in all the dips by mistake. The University had specifically stated which dips were to be eliminated, but the paving firms obviously misunderstood the instructions. When this mistake was realized, the company agreed to dig out the desired dips at no charge to the university.

You did not attempt to find out the facts behind this speed dip fiasco. Do not develop the misconception that I favor speed dips, I don't. But I resent people cutting down the Administration and making false accusations concerning their decision-making. The Administration was merely trying to help alleviate a problem and a mistake was made. The mistake was not the fault of the University. Said mistake did not cost the University any money.

Therefore, your statement that these events reflected a senseless and irresponsible financial policy is absolutely wrong. Before you make any such accusations, I suggest you research the issues thoroughly. If anything, your false statements reflect senselessness and an irresponsibility that reveals your editorial ineptness.

Rick Fisher
410 Chittenden Hall

Editor's Note:

Pressed to meet our deadline, we made an inaccurate assumption that the dips were filled in for parents' weekend. But we have checked into the matter and been informed that the UVM Grounds Department, and not an outside asphalt company, did the work. Thus, the university did make a mistake, and this error cost the university money.

Green Death

To the Editor:

Green Death...

...strikes in more ways than one. After having read the Saga chase drama a fortnight ago I was set upon discovering this tall villian who scared a fellow glop slopper.

My method to unravel this mystery was to conspicuously sneak goodies (preferably tuna sandwiches and apples) out of that epicurean hall of delights, fondly known as Waterman. The question was at which meal did he guard the portholes of escape? "Obviously not breakfast," I deduced, "who ever heard of tunafish before noon?" At first I was baffled when no green meanie appeared as I openly proliferated goodies noon and evening... but finally it happened, on Sunday October 20th. My roast beef sandwiched was too much for the green meanie and he pursued me on my departure.

I knew it was him immediately because he opened with the same lines of "work study and scholarly hardship" familiar to the tunasnatcher. After being unable to stop my progress by means of a blockade he threatened to fight me – over a sandwich?

Preparing myself for a sporting contest, I placed the sandwich in my pocket to the objections of his, surely, X-rated mouth. To the amusement of College Street by-passers he snatched half the sandwich from my pocket and retreated to his unoccupied post. And so ends another saga drama.

David Luskin

One View Of The Elections

by Robert P. Melcher

The Race for the Senate. Mallary vs. Leahy

I do not claim to be able to present you with all the issues, but I can give you the assortment of issues that will allow you to see what the candidates will do if elected. If so must excuse me for not including Bernard Sanders, but I have trouble viewing him as a serious candidate, and I could not write about him with any objectivity. The entire Liberty Union Party has no chance of winning, so I will omit them with the exception of Michael Parenti, the former UVM political science professor.

SOCIAL ISSUES

Marijuana

Candidate Leahy is not in favor of the legalization of marijuana because to date there is little ability on the part of law enforcement to prevent users from driving while stoned.

Mallary is against legalization but for lesser penalties. He believes that the state should not regulate any drug for recreational purposes, because regulation always leads to some form of promotion and Congressman Mallary gives no priority to the promotion of recreational drugs.

Homosexuality

Both candidates agree that since homosexuality is a crime without a victim, persecution of homosexuals is inappropriate so long as both parties are consulting adults.

In the social issues I believe that both candidates will tend to vote the same way. Neither considers these issues to be of priority enough to do any pioneer work in the areas of social concern.

DOMESTIC POLICY

The Economy

Both candidates are in favor of cutting wasteful government spending.

Mr. Mallary added that other things have to be done in the way of structural economic changes. He did not specify what exactly should be done.

Mr. Leahy has outlined certain steps that would, by his account, "attack the components of inflation." They are to keep down energy costs, health costs, and housing costs, and to plug tax loopholes to the wealthy.

My analysis of the economic policies of the two candidates is that Mr. Mallary's unwillingness to mention what exact actions he would take means that his actions would tend to be painful on a short term basis.

Mr. Leahy's actions are divided between those that would tend to make life easier for the poor, (good) and those that would help in the short term.

In this issue my tendency is towards Mallary because he seems to be prepared to take brave stands that will have the desired effect, even though unpopular. Mr. Leahy's proposals are based more on a sense of justice rather than what will achieve the long-term effect desirable to us.

FOREIGN POLICY

Nuclear responsibility:

Mr. Mallary believes that reactor technology should be provided to any nation that wants it; that the only restriction should be that the nations must submit to inspection by international agencies to prevent the manufacture of nuclear weapons by countries that received aid in agreement not to manufacture weapons.

The examples of India, and Israel both of whom have weapons through the aid of other nations should not be repeated. He was not adverse to the idea of extending such controls to all nuclear technology.

Mr. Leahy: "I am totally opposed to the export of nuclear reactors to the Middle East. Along with reactors goes nuclear technology which may be adapted for warfare. The U.S. should discourage, not encourage, the proliferation of nuclear weapons."

In this issue I again favor Mr. Mallary's stand. To limit nuclear technology for peaceful purposes is both unethical and pragmatically impossible. Other nations have been exporting technology and we can not prevent them from getting the technology.

To refuse access to our technology would estrange other

(continued on page fourteen)

In Defense Of Amnesty

by Scott Gewehr

It would seem that President Ford has alienated a good many people by granting anmesty to Nixon. And with good reason. Ford has deprived these people of their God-given right to extract their pound of flesh in retribution for the ex-President's horrible crimes against humanity. Ford has snatched from them their unalienable right to avenge themselves for those tortuous days when the Watergate hearings preempted "Love of Life" and "General Hospital." And the president has ended the likelihood of further prostituting our system of justice.

I firmly believe that Nixon is guilty of most, if not all, of the alleged crimes relating to Watergate. Had he remained in office, impeachment would have been inevitable and justifiable. But he is not in office, so such a trial would serve no purpose, except to shout to the world, "In case you don't know by now, our President is a crook."

The avowed purpose of the prison system in America is to rehabilitate criminals and to ensure that their crime is not repeated. In the case of Nixon, this purpose has been achieved without sending him to prison. I would question whether even Tricky's family consider him to be innocent at this point. Unless the American people are dumb enough to elect him to any office in the future, the opportunity to repeat his crime is gone, and with it the need for a correctional institution.

Moving on to a more practical aspect of the discussion, do any of you really think that an ex-president of the United States could even be convicted of any crime, before your grandchildren died of old age? The time and expense of such a legal battle simply are not justified by whatever consolation we could derive from seeing the man in jail, if indeed he ever got that far.

Besides, the trial of an ex-president would probably pre-empt "As The World Turns."

* * * *

The Cynic welcomes letters and columns from students, faculty or any other readers. Material for publication must be signed, but names will be withheld upon request.

VERMONT CYNIC

NEWS: Vincent Arias, George Georgakis, Andy Morse, Audrey Rothstein
SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson
FEATURE: Paul Ajamian, Carol Dufait, Amy-Catherine Fischer, Pam Hogarth
PRODUCTION: Joan Forsaith, Karen Hill, Beth LeVine, Mark Valle , Daniel Mead
ARTS: Sari Bodi, Robert Denike, Amy Fisher, Barbara Freedman, Joe Kauffman, Adelaide Murphy, Paul Prior, Marsha Wolotz
ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee - Brown, Sherry Grancov, Debbie Powell
COLUMNISTS: Debbie Adler, Tom McCormick, Scott McKay,
BUSINESS MANAGER: Fern Gutman

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by the columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of the members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published yearly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and business offices in the Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone: 658-4911. Deadline for copy is one week prior to date of publication.

Published in 1883. Subscription rate $5.00 per year, single copy ten cents.

Open Sea...

by Scott Mac...

Though some of us don't ... encountered days like this...

****

The following is one man's ac... Catamount. Like those professional ... of every young American male, this ... articulate his story with eloquence ... he decided to employ yours truly as ... go, with one fellow's fried fulmi... MacKay. And contrary to establi... accepts all responsibility for this sto... is...

****

... the alarm clock pierces the fin... ungodly hour of nine a.m.... out o... picture window view of a dreary, ... matter what they tell you, Novemb... when the postcard panorama that l... afternooned, tree denuded gloom, s... cold, shower force, a precursor of de... Thankful this morning of no remna... evening, no melancholy hangover to ... we'd jump right back into bed, that'...

Shower. Breakfast. The first cig... punctuated, like a long Faulkner... commas, by nicotine. Inhale deep, ... class...

Waterman Building, that asylum ... run this institution are sequestered in... class. History is usually an endeavor ... the day, for history professors are ... penchant for spending most of their ... depravity of mankind, peering colle... eye at wars, famines, depressions, ... not this morning, as this usually ... launched into the intellectual equiva... back and forth between events lik... peddle musty wicker chairs and wort... were probably stolen from motel r... this morning, just staring out the wi... bell ruins a desultory daydream...

Walking across campus, say "he... few people, none of whom care, real... people don't really care any way...

Bookstore. Wait in the first o... purchase a newspaper. Wind blown ...

Pull open the oaken door to B... tables manned by Jesus Freaks (how... chop down to produce that religiou... Marine recruiters and some self-imp... high school student council preside... me to vote for Dick Mallary.

And there is a Salmon poster ... escapes comment only because ... Kennedy, used car salesman, Verm... around Woodchuck who should be ... his genes won't be passed on. Liber...

urinate our votes down a Repub... they both lead to the same sewer, ... call it a moral victory, whatever ... politician needed on an abysmal ... nihilistic gut telling us what Amer... and a five dollar ounce...

Downstairs to the dingy Den, ... the bane of every hungry/thirsty ... these days is a wonderful place if ... waiting in hockey-ticket length li... your onion sub, an overpriced, u... truck-stop diner coffee...

Grab whatever available chair ... by choosing the newly christened ...

Greeks Get ...

by Sue Wa...

One of the biggest problems of ... been the lack of communication ... among the different houses. We no... campus which has great potential ... and it looks as if it is going to work.

Plans for the GCC or Greek ... started last year. At that time a co... and structure of the council was ... being put into action to help brin... fraternities together, to get all t... coordinated, and probably most ... communication going within the sy...

So far the response from each ... We have chairmen for each of ... enthusiastic plans to help the Gr... other new ideas. The major thing ... Both fraternity and sorority me... committee. There are still o... membership, campus activities, so... academic excellence and public aw...

Plans are in the making for a ne... new all-Greek, Greek-campus and ... The Academic Excellence Comm... tutoring program for Greeks, whil... wants to try out some new idea... joining the Greek houses.

The Intra-system Communica... trying to get some communicati... houses. Maybe you saw the Greek ... weekend? What we need now is ... every Greek organization. We want ... here's your chance to get a little ... fraternity at the same time.

We plan to use the Cynic and t... let us know about any up-coming ... one phone call to any one of the c... to let the rest of the Greek system ... house. The deadline for calling will ... We'd also like any articles that a... please get these to any Communic... Wednesday night, or leave them in ...

The committee members (so ... 864-7007 – Bob Sanford – Sigma ... Sue Wagner, Nina Saltzman – A... Mary Godin – Gamma Phi Beta, ... Alpha Delta Pi, 864-5484 or 86... people a call to report your news.

Right now, most of the indivi... campus may be functioning all righ... all the houses start to work ... Coordinating Council has great po... System working. So if any of you ... ideas at all that will help us imp... here's your chance. Come to a G... what's going on. We know the Gr... work.

Editor

Immature Editorial

...his letter in ...immature ...pect of speed ...reeting false ...ynic. ...did not fill in ... the sake of ...ho were on ... Parent's ...ministration, ...numerous ... that certain ...unnecessary ...double speed ... speed dips ...et of each ...any more of ...ding than a ...uld have. ...alt company ...fill in certain ...in order to ...double-dip ...

...alt company ...by mistake. ...specifically ... were to be ...paving firms ...erstood the ... this mistake ... company ... the desired ...gs to the ...

...empt to find ...d this speed ... develop the ...at I favor ...

Green Death

...e ways than ...ead the Sage ...t night ago I ...overing this ...ed a fellow ...

... unravel this ...nspicuously ...erably tune ...pins) out of ... of delights. ... Waterman, ... which meal ...portholes of ...udy not ...aced, "who ...afish before ... was baffled ...nie appeared ...ated goodies ... but finally ...p. Sunday ... roast beef ...

sandwiched was too much for the green meanie and he pursued me on my departure.

I knew it was him immediately because he opened with the same lines of "work study and scholarly hardship" familiar to the tunamatcher. After being unable to stop my progress by means of a blockade he threatened to fight me -- over a sandwich?

Preparing myself for a sporting contest, I placed the sandwich in my pocket to the objections of his, surely, X rated mouth. To the amusement of College Street by-passers he snatched half the sandwich from my pocket and retreated to his unoccupied post. And so ends another saga drama.

David Luskin

...fense Of Amnesty

by Scott Gewehr

...that President Ford has alienated a good many ...g amnesty to Nixon. And with good reason. ...d these people of their God-given right to ...d of flesh in retribution for the ex-President's ...ainst humanity. Ford has snatched from them ... right to avenge themselves for those tortuous ...tergate hearings preempted "Love of Life" and ...." And the president has ended the likelihood ...uting our system of justice.

...e that Nixon is guilty of most, if not all, of the ...ating to Watergate. Had he remained in office, ...uld have been inevitable and justifiable. But he ...e such a trial would serve no purpose, except to ...eld. "In case you don't know by now, our ...k."

...purpose of the prison system in America is to ...inals and to ensure that their crime is not ... case of Nixon, this purpose has been achieved ... him to prison. I would question whether even ...onsider him to be innocent at this point. Unless ...ople are dumb enough to elect him to any office ...e opportunity to repeat his crime is gone, and ...or a correctional institution.

...o a more practical aspect of the discussion, do ... think that an ex-president of the United States ...victed of any crime, before your grandchildren ... The time and expense of such a legal battle ...tified by whatever consolation we could derive ...an in jail, if indeed he ever got that far.

... trial of an ex-president would "probably ...e World Turns."

●●●●

...welcomes letters and columns from students, ...other readers. Material for publication must be ... will be withheld upon request.

...MONT CYNIC

...Arish, George ...Morse, Audrey ...Alemain, Carol ...ardner Fischer, ...Robert Doolin, ...ann Freedman, ...Belinda Murphy, ...Roberts, ...Debbie Adler, ...Scott McKay, Gutman

Steve Rice Elliott Freeman

SPORTS: Gary Brooks, Charlie Grace, Rick Katz, Norm Robinson

PRODUCTION: Joan Fornelli, Karen Hill, Beth LeVine, Mark Valle , Daniel Mead

ADVERTISING: Katherine Bowers, Stephen Lee Brown, Sherry Granoff, Debbie Powell

BUSINESS MANAGER: Pam

...expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in ...do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the ...administration, faculty, or staff, or the State of ...opinions expressed by the columnists do not ...reflect the opinion of the majority of the ...the CYNIC Editorial Board.

...weekly during the college year by the students ...ity of Vermont and State Agricultural College. ...Business offices in the Billings Center, ...Vermont. Telephone: 656-2011. Deadline for ...week prior to date of publication.

...1868. Subscription rate: $8.00 per year, single ...

Open Season: One Day In The Life...

by Scott MacKay

Though some of us don't like to admit it, we've all encountered days like this...

●●●●●●●●●●●●

The following is one man's account of a day at Camp Catamount. Like those professional athletes who are the heroes of every young American male, this fellow assumed he couldn't articulate his story with eloquence requisite for publication, so he decided to employ yours truly as his Al Hirshberg. So here we go, with one fellow's fried fulminations, as told to Scott MacKay. And contrary to established custom, yours truly accepts all responsibility for this story. If it turns out good, that is...

●●●●●●●●●●●●

... the alarm clock pierces the lingering morning dream at the ungodly hour of nine a.m.... out of the sack, greeted by the picture window view of a dreary, cold November day. Ah, no matter what they tell you, November is the cruelest month, when the postcard panorama that is October fades into a dark afternooned, tree denuded gloom, and this morning it hits with cold shower force, a precursor of death, a harbinger of Winter. Thankful this morning of no remnants of an ill-spent previous evening, no melancholy hangover to battle this morning... or else we'd jump right back into bed, that's for sure.

Shower. Breakfast. The first cigarette of a day that will be punctuated, like a long Faulknerian sentence fraught with commas, by nicotine. Inhale deep, mechanical pulls, proceed to class...

Waterman Building, that asylum where all the inmates who run this institution are sequestered is the scene of this morning's class. History is usually an endeavor one can tolerate this early in the day, for history professors are a genial sort despite their penchant for spending most of their waking hours probing the depravity of mankind, peering collectively through a jeweler's eye at wars, famines, depressions, beheadings and the like. But not this morning, as this usually well-organized lecturer has launched into the intellectual equivalent of a garage sale, darting back and forth between events like an auctioneer trying to peddle musty wicker chairs and worthless old Gideon bibles that were probably stolen from motel rooms. So not much history this morning, just staring out the window until that cacophonic bell ruins a desultory daydream...

Walking across campus, say "hello" or "how are you" to a few people, none of whom care, really. But most people, hell, all people don't really care anyway...

Bookstore. Wait in the first of many lines of people to purchase a newspaper. Wind blown strut back towards Billings...

Pull open the oaken door to Billings, only to be faced by tables manned by Jesus Freaks (how many scarce trees did they chop down to produce that religious cant?), dour countenanced Marine recruiters and some self-important looking moron with a high school student council president's cloying grin exhorting me to vote for Dick Mallary.

And there is a Salmon poster in the other corner, but he escapes comment only because he is pitted against Peanut Kennedy, used car salesman, Vermont's Meldrin Thompson, all around Woodchuck who should be castrated just to insure that his genes won't be passed on. Liberty Union claims we shouldn't urinate our votes down a Republican or Democratic drain as they both lead to the same sewer, so vote for them and they'll call it a moral victory, whatever in hell that is... The only politician needed on an abysmal morning such as this is a nihilistic nut telling us what America really needs is a nickel beer and a five dollar ounce...

Downstairs to the dingy Den, SAGA's new El Dorado and the bane of every hungry/thirsty off campus resident. The Den these days is a wonderful place if you get multiple orgasms beer waiting in hockey-ticket length lines for a little roast beef with your onion sub, an overpriced, undersized apple, and a cup of truck-stop diner coffee...

Grab whatever available chair exists, commit an egregious sin by choosing the newly christened "no-smoking" round room.

Open the newspaper to the sports page, as one must read of man's achievements before pondering the deprivations that comprise the rest of the "news". Ignite a cigarette, glance up from the newspaper to meet the mean stare of a young lady so inflamed with my smoking this infernal Winston that she looks as though she could suck the rust off a trailer hitch...

"Can't you read?" she frankly inquires. "There is no smoking in here."

"Frankly, honey, no I can't read if you are going to hassle about my smoking" is my slightly embarrassed retort.

I proceed to convey to her that there were no seats in the smoke encrusted section of the Den, thank her for her concern for my vitiated lungs and remind her that I would be dead when she will be alive in a nursing home, but all of this is to no avail.

"I wish there were a state law here in Vermont, one that stopped people from smoking in public places in restricted areas like we have in -- (State withheld to protect sources), and my father's a lawyer and he said that a lot of places are going to do it pretty soon."

"Look, I don't care whether your father is a lawyer, pimp or encyclopedia salesman, there's no difference anyway... and I heartily suggest that you do your homework, brush after meal, take one-a-day vitamins and yes, for Christ sakes, find a boyfriend." And I retreated quickly, as it was obvious that this anti-nicotine fiend was intent upon making a scene and rallying everyone in the "non-smoking" room to her noble cause...

May as well try and study. After this morning, I cannot attend my afternoon class, which one can skip without compunction anyway as it is about as stimulating as eating three Qualudes and sitting down to watch a Soap Opera...

Instead, stroll to the vicinity of that sterile, functional box filled with books, known as Bailey Library. Attack the reserve desk for some long-neglected articles. Proceed upstairs to the second floor, commence perusing an article so dry, nebulus and boring that you secretly hope that it aided some struggling Ph. D. in his quest for tenure, as this reprint from some obscure, scholarly journal certainly has no other redeeming value. Up to the third floor, for a peek at the current Rolling Stone, in futile hope that it will have something slightly more mentally appetizing than that waterheaded journal. Lost again. Nothing in the Stone except a well-written piece on what a sham Evel Knievel is, but anybody over eight years old is cognizant of that already, that's for damn sure...

Look up as the sun finally makes an impotent effort to filter through the clouds, my gaze catches a half-studying girl seated a mere table away. She sports an unremarkable face dominated by whimsical pair of mildly sensuous, soft doe-like brown eyes. The only item I've been even casually interested in all day... She soon leaves in the tow of some guy who probably has been thinking the same perversely normal thoughts as I, but has an enormously better chance of making them come to pass...

Four-thirty now... another wasted day, its fires have consumed me... how to salvage what is left...

Downtown to one of Church Street's famous barrooms, one of those clean well lighted places for college kids, people young enough to not supposed to need clean well lighted places. Down three draughts with the tenacity of someone afraid that Prohibition is coming back tomorrow. Hell, its happy hour... cynical, misanthropic laugh... drain five more mugs and wait for the alcohol to crawl up the spine, paralyze the mind. Muse that Camp Catamount's only export must be brains, because anyone who ever had any must have left, then consider the alternative and quickly bury any thoughts of doing anything except drinking another beer... And try to recall what Fitzgerald said about knowing life was all hopeless anyway, but how you still have to retain the ability to function, to still keep banging your head against the concrete wall... but ole F. Scott sure numbed himself with alcohol plenty... and at least I'll get a decent, drunken sleep, an ephemeral peace... and you're only a grain of sand on a mile long human beach... and tomorrow morning is going to be awful...

You Never Know: The Magical Pumpkin

by Elliot Freeman

To tell you the truth I am having trouble remembering exactly what happened, Doc. The whole thing is difficult to look at, almost like gazing into a shattered mirror; all my recollections are jagged and twisted and don't really fit together too well. But as my Doctor you advise me to get the thing off my chest... right? Okay. In that case I will give you what information I can... maybe it will make sense.

The day before Halloween is where I will start. I was sitting at the kitchen table, just sitting there listening to the radio and mushing a stale piece of something around the top of the table with a dirty knife. I have a lot of nervous energy so it is a rare moment that I am not doing something ridiculous with my hands... picking at things or twirling my hair with my fingers... people get really bugged at me for it, they say it makes them nervous. I can't help it. That's why I smoke cigarettes, not to look cool or anything, but it keeps my hands busy.

The kitchen table sits right in front of this picture window that looks out across this field which gives way to these woods that after a while stretch up onto the side of a ridge. Real pretty, especially this time of year. Quiet violin kind of classical music came on the radio and I started looking out the window at the sun sliding down the opposite side of the ridge. The view was a pattern of great blotches of color.

I think that the combination of the classical music and the sunset and the colors of the trees and it being the day before Halloween got me feeling good, almost like I was a little kid or an old man, seperated from the grinds and spins of day-to-day life. I was in a special secret place above and beyond the claw of reality.

It didn't take long for the sun to slip away and the gray of dusk to start pressing upon the window like a dismal curtain. The glass of the window reflected the light inside and in this mirror I saw this big ole pumpkin on the counter.

I got up and walked over to it and stood there a while looking at it and touching it. It was huge. It was orange. It was the biggest orange pumpkin that I have ever seen. I didn't know that anyone had bought a pumpkin, but I figured that my brother must have gotten it before he left for Boston. One of his old girlfriends was down there and she invited him down for the weekend for some kind of great time. Although he didn't want to go, he went. He's very horney.

I hadn't carved a pumpkin in, oh my God, years... in centuries. I got my hands on a knife and started carving away. It was fun, kid's fun. First, I did a big circle around the top and it took both hands to just lift that piece out. I was planning to draw a face, a real happy face, great big smile and missing teeth... the whole bit... a masterpiece face. As soon as the top piece was out though, I started cleaning out the insides. With both hands squishing around the seeds and the slime and the gunk, I got a whole lot of the mess and pulled it out and threw it on some paper. I stood there about ten minutes playing with it.

That's when I remembered how good it used to be eating those seeds after they were baked a little and salted. Immediately I got all excited and set to the task of preparing the seeds. I started to pick the seeds out from the rest of the slop so I could wash them off, but I was in an adventurous mood and kind of anxious so I started eating the seeds right then. What is funny is that they didn't taste bad at all. In fact the taste was almost like chocolate flavored honey, if you can imagine that... delicious.

I could not stop myself from eating them. Must have chewed up about thirty or so when suddenly I started to get this really queasy feeling in my stomach. It was kind of bloated by then. I could feel those seeds sloshing all over as I moved. I went over to the table and sat down.

It was like some fog that settled over me. Sitting there in that chair I had the feeling that I was lost and surrounded by a huge beast. I remembered my legs were as heavy as the Empire State Building and my eyes were opened wide as the Wild Wild West. I couldn't stop smiling and would become hysterical, laughing for no apparent reason at unexpected intervals. That is the last real time bearing that I can remember, sitting at the table. I don't know how long I was there. My guess is probably four or five hours.

What happened then was that I went back over to the pumpkin and for a reason unknown to me I dragged that thing over to the door, opened the door and rolled that damn pumpkin onto the driveway.

As soon as the pumpkin hit the blacktop it started to spin in a circle. Faster and faster it spun and then smoke poured out of the hole in the top, a big cloud of this perfectly white smoke. It looked like an angel dust convention had just pulled into town. When the smoke cleared a brand new fire-engine red Cadillac was sitting there and this beautiful brown-haired girl was sprawled across the hood of the car totally naked. She asked me if I could go for a ride. Why not?

Well I began to drive and I had that same feeling again as I sat behind the controls of this monster car of being lost and surrounded by a huge breast. I told Zena, that was the naked girl's name, that the Breast Mobile was a hell of a machine and that everybody should have one. She just grinned, a real disarming type grin, and rubbed the inside of my leg with her hand.

I can't recall too much after that... oh yeah... we did pick up a hitchhiker. I swear to you we picked up Humphrey Bogart. Good Ole Bogie was standing at the side of the road looking mean with his thumb partially exposed. We stopped. He jumped in. We drove on. He sat in the back seat mumbling something about a passport or some paper or something like that and about some cafe. I didn't have any idea what the hell he was talking about; he was hard to understand. He spoke as if he had a roll of toilet paper in his mouth. We had only gone five or six miles when Bogie grabbed me by the nape of my neck and said that this had gone far enough... he felt he was being taken for a ride and wanted no part of it. He turned into a real grouch about it so I pulled off onto the shoulder and let him out.

Letting Bogie out of the car is the last thing I remember. You showed me the police report before that described in complete and rather embarrassing detail a number of extraordinary events that are supposedly my doing. Well Doc, I can't deny any of them although offhand, I can't think of any reason why I might have run naked through a nunnery, but I guess I must bear full responsibility for my actions. I will say that what happened was due to unfortunate circumstances beyond my control.

●●●●●●●●●●●

DOCTOR'S REPORT -- After extensive interviews and examinations of Lew Quacias it is all too apparent that this young man is suffering from demonic delusions, severe stress, and anxiety. He claims that his actions were due to the fact that he accidently ingested a large amount of magical pumpkin seeds. Continued observation is recommended.

Weird Scenes Inside The Gold Mine

by Ken Turner

The people all around me are listening intently and taking notes. The subject of this Wednesday morning's lecture is dipolar molecules. I should be at home listening to Beethoven's Ninth. Dr. Woodworth has referred to a page in the text. Two hundred and fifty books are crackling, shuffling, ruffling. People are whispering and mumbling. Ontario wilderness.

Pine trees creaking and whispering to themselves. Mosquitoes buzzing around the outside of the tent. Moths dusting the canvas with their wings. Soft slap, slap of the lake against the rocks in the warm moonlight. Far away, a loon haunts the stillness with his call. The chalk shrieks against the black board.

I look up sharply and see hands raise to cover ears and hear sharp breaths sucked in to drown out the sound. The professor drones on.

Why didn't I go home? Dr. Woodworth has used an outrageously funny analogy. The class explodes with laughter and applause.

The wind screams crazily through the trees, ripping branches, stripping the leaves. The lake lunges against its shore, leaping onto the rocks, foaming on the sand. The rain comes suddenly, pocking the water, the leaves, the ground, the overturned canoe. And, then, it's over.

The lake surface crawls back into itself and becomes calm. The fever subsides. Moths brush wetly against the lantern. The silent voices return to the night.

I wade through this darkness back to my chemistry lecture. I am still in darkness, nothing is familiar. The professor has run far ahead of me and not marked the trail. He has given me valuable information that I can't use.

Weird scenes inside the gold mine. It's ended, the class is over. The people move sluggishly and push towards the exits. I still sit in my seat at the top of the lecture hall and watch.

Then, I stand and pull my feet out of the night and walk outside to a bright, cold day.

Greeks Get Organized

by Sue Wagner

One of the biggest problems of the Greek system at UVM has been the lack of communication organization and planning among the different houses. We now have a new organization on campus which has great potential to solve all these problems -- and it looks as if it is going to work.

Plans for the GOC or Greek Coordinating Council were started last year. At that time a constitution outlining the goals and structure of the council was drawn up. The plans are now being put into action to help bring all the UVM sororities and fraternities together, to get all their activities organized and coordinated, and probably most important of all -- to get communication going within the system.

So far the response from each of the houses has been great. We have chairmen for each of the committees -- all with enthusiastic plans to help the Greek system and open to any other new ideas. The major thing that we need now is people. Both fraternity and sorority members are needed on every committee. There are still opportunities to help with membership, campus activities, social and community services, academic excellence and public awareness for the Greek system.

Plans are in the making for a new organized Winter Weekend, new all-Greek, Greek-campus and Greek-community activities. The Academic Excellence Committee is hoping to set up a tutoring program for Greeks, while the Membership committee wants to try out some new ideas to get people interested in joining the Greek houses.

The Intra-system Communications Committee is already trying to get some communication started among the Greek houses. Maybe you saw the Greek Newsletter that came out last weekend? What we need now is input from every house and every Greek organization. We want to know what's going on. So here's your chance to get a little publicity for your sorority or fraternity at the same time.

We plan to use the Cynic and the Greek Newsletter, so please let us know about any up-coming events or news. All it takes is one phone call to any one of the committee members each week to let the rest of the Greek system know what's going on at your house. The deadline for calling will be 8:00 p.m. on Wednesdays. We'd also like any articles that anyone would like to write, so please get these to any Communications committee member by Wednesday night, or leave them in our mail box at Billings.

The committee members (so far) are: Dave Lott -- Acacia, 864-7007; Bob Sanford -- Sigma Phi, 862-2270; Sue Lantman, Sue Wagner, Nina Saltzman -- Alpha Chi Omega, 863-3195; Mary Godin -- Gamma Phi Beta, 656-4082; Mary Ellen Smith -- Alpha Delta Pi, 864-5484 or 863-9841. So give any of these people a call to report your news.

Right now, most of the individual Greek houses on the UVM campus may be functioning all right, but it is very important that all the houses start to work together soon. The Greek Coordinating Council has great potential to really get the Greek System working. So if any of you Greeks out there have any ideas at all that will help us improve the UVM Greek System here's your chance. Come to a GOC meeting sometime and see what's going on. We know the Greek Coordinating Council can work.

Are Students Volunteering?

by Jen Hutchinson

Those who established the public's image of the college student in the late 1960's were the radical activists; the leaders of sit-ins, the throwers of bombs, the prophets of revolution. Those who will establish the collegiate image for the 1970's may well be a different breed: students who are giving generously of their time outside the classroom to volunteer activities in their community.

No less the activists, no less bizarre in dress, and no less convinced that America is a "sick" society, these students differ from the radical activists of the Sixties in one important way: they are working, right now, to change that society in constructive ways. They are satisfied to make progress by small steps -- by tutoring a French-speaking child to read and write English, by encouraging a drop-out to return to school, by warming the atmosphere in a hospital ward, by reading to an elderly person that no longer has the sight to read.

An estimated 400,000 college students give an average of two to four hours a week (but sometimes as many as 20 to 30 hours) to volunteer activities in their communities. Though a small fraction of the seven million students in American Colleges and universities, they are a minority sizable enough to set the pace for this generation of students, and community persons.

A decade ago, only a handful of colleges and universities had student volunteer programs, today there are estimated to be over 1700 that have some form of student-operated volunteer activities.

The bulk of student projects are in the area of tutoring, most often done with disadvantaged children. But under other such programs as -- Big Brother/Sister, Adopt-a-Grandparent, Horizons, Shac, and the Urban Youth Center, student project leaders have been branching out, extending their reach, and attracting to volunteer service students who have no interest in tutoring.

There have been some problems such as students facing the frustration of established agencies assuming that the volunteers are there to do what they have always done -- typing, filing, bookkeeping, anything to relieve the agency professionals of the drudgery that keeps them from direct contact with the clientele. Students, of course, also want direct contact with the clientele, they want a learning experience. Today that problem is being solved as more and more agencies find college students input refreshing, and helpful. The Department of Corrections uses students as counselors to the youthful offenders, in Consumer Interest Groups advising those with complaints how to proceed, with the advise of the staff attorneys.

Much of this work is such a large learning experience that students feel they should get academic credit for their programs, and many of them do, because there are departments in the University that also think it is a very worthwhile and a very important learning experience.

Joseph Blatchford, a former director of ACTION, maintains that "volunteer service is a part of one's education and ... in many instances volunteer service deserves academic credit. It's an education in the streets, and it may have a more endurin, effect than all the books and lectures a college can require."

Volunteering is not for everybody, some do drop out for one or another reason, some students are poorly motivated, some give up when they conclude that their contribution is too inadequate to the size of the problem. For them, tutoring an underprivileged child becomes senseless because an inadequate school system, a broken family, and a violent neighborhood are pushing the child toward inevitable failure.

But maybe, together we can change things...

"Hey, Louie! According to this . . . we're middle class!"

Talented Diverse Cleo Laine To Perform November 2

by Michael Thurston

On November 2, at 8:00 p.m., Memorial Auditorium in Burlington, Cleo Laine will perform the final concert of her current U.S. tour, an itinerary which included Carnegie Hall. While that may not be particularly exciting to those who aren't familiar with the name, it might be interesting to note that she's recently garnered rave reviews from such magazines as Crawdaddy and Billboard, both of which devote most of their pages to rock music. That isn't to say Cleo Laine is a rock star, but it's a solid indication that she has talent, diversity, and an ability to raise some eyebrows in a world dominated with Top 40, 'lectric guitar, and Alice Cooper. Her rare ability to trespass established categorical pigeon holes is but a portion of the underlying factors which have made her a top attraction throughout her native Britain, and all of Europe. With a repertoire that includes works by Gershwin, Sondheim, Stevie Wonder, Bacharach/David, and Noel Coward, it's a safe prediction that her Burlington performance will offer something for every taste, and prove Cleo Laine a mature, sophisticated performer.

Colman Andrews, in his Crawdaddy review of Cleo Laine Live At Carnegie Hall, begins

"People who criticize Cleo Laine usually take the same tack as those who, believing, criticize God..."

Cleo Live warrants just such a statement. Cleo goes beyond entertainment. She draws heavily upon her acting career, including credits for the like of 'Midsummer Night's Dream', 'Seven Deadly Sins', 'A Time To Laugh', and Henrik Ibsen's 'Hedda Gabler', for verbal and visual interpretations. Regardless of what she chooses to do, each number appears as though tailored for her style and delivery. Such credit lies not in the inherent quality of the music, though that, too, is beyond question, but, rather, falls upon an artists' sensitivity. Cleo's intimacy with her craft reaches far beyond the footlights... far into every seat, aisle, and balcony... one to one with audiences, everywhere.

Cleo Laine has just begun to surface in this country, with Americans getting their first exposure to a dynamo artist who's been involved in Britain's musical whirlwind since 1952. Why so long? Cleo, herself has said that everything must be just right before taking on America. Britain's leading export since The Beatles has been an endless stream of rock and rollers... now's the time for Cleo Laine. Whether she's belting out a standard, reciting gentle poetry, or giving new life to an old Bessie Smith classic, Cleo Laine is natural, relaxed, and in command. She can scrape the bottom with heavy grit... or she can soft-shoe her way through the top with delicacy and delight. The opportunity to see and hear an artist of such stature is not merely fortunate... it is, indeed, a privilege.

Con Brio Presents Both Traditional And Modern

CON BRIO CHAMBER ENSEMBLE
Wednesday, November 6

Schubert
Sonata in A major, op. 162
Allegro moderato
Scherzo
Andantino
Allegro vivace

Evelyn Read, violin — Marie Vogelmann, piano

Kelsey Jones
Sonata da Camera
Preludium
Corrente
Andante
Giga

Jane Ambrose, flute — Neil Boyer, oboe
Elizabeth Metcalfe, harpsichord

INTERMISSION

Schumann
Three Romances

Neil Boyer, oboe — Elizabeth Metcalfe, piano

Stravinsky
Octet for Wind Instruments
Sinfonia
Tema con variazioni
Finale

Thomas L. Read, conductor
Jane Ambrose, flute — Terry Ranney, bassoon
Layton Davis, clarinet — Dennis Frink, bassoon
David Brubaker, trumpet — Robert Wigness, trombone
Dean Williams, trumpet — Allen Farwell, trombone

The Con Brio Chamber Ensemble presents its second concert of the season Wednesday, November 6 at the Living/Learning Center with a program of both traditional and modern chamber pieces.

Evelyn Read and Marie Vogelmann open the program with Schubert's only full length sonata, the melodious Sonata in A major, op. 162, for violin and piano.

Neil Boyer, first oboeist with the Vermont State Symphony, makes his first appearance with the Con Brio Ensemble in Schumann's Three Romances for oboe and piano, with accompaniment by Elizabeth Metcalfe.

A modern composition by Canadian composer Kelsey Jones, Sonata da Camera, features Neil Boyer, oboe, with Jane Ambrose, flute, and Elizabeth Metcalfe, harpsichord. Written in 1957 in a neo-classical baroque form, the work was commissioned for and first performed by the Baroque Trio of Montreal.

Stravinsky's Octet for Wind Instruments, composed in 1923, is a graceful, vivacious piece of music remarkable for its deft architecture in blending together an ensemble of only wind instruments. Thomas Read conducts the eight member ensemble, with Jane Ambrose, flute, Layton Davis, clarinet, David Brubaker and Dean Williams, trumpets, Terry Ranney and Dennis Frink, bassoons, and Robert Wigness and Allen Farwell, trombones.

Curtain time is 8:00 p.m. in Commons 115 at the Living/Learning Center. General admission is $2.50, $.75 for students, and tickets will be available at the door.

Con Brio's next concert on February 12 will feature works of Mozart and Brahms, and a premier performance of a new work by Con Brio Chamber Ensemble member Thomas L. Read.

Orchestre de la Suisse Romande To Enchant Burlington

The prestigious Orchestre de la Suisse Romande, long ranked as one of the major symphonies of Europe, performs in the Lane Series on Friday, Nov. 8 at 8 p.m., in downtown Memorial Auditorium.

The program includes Igor Stravinsky's Jeu de Cartes, Robert Schumann's Piano Concerto in a-minor, op. 54, and, after the intermission, Johannes Brahms' Symphony No. 4 in e-minor, op. 56.

Conducting the Geneva-based orchestra will be its artistic director general and chief conductor, Wolfgang Sawallisch. Soloist for the Schumann Piano Concerto will be Israeli artist Ilana Vered.

The legendary orchestra of Ernest Ansermet, who was both its founder in 1918 and conductor for almost 50 years, finally is making its long-awaited American tour. Ansermet was unwilling to bring his great orchestra to the United States.

The Orchestra de la Suisse comes from the French-speaking part of Switzerland (la Suisse romande), which has numerous affinities with French culture. In 1918 Ernest Ansermet persuaded the Swiss radio to join the local authorities of the cantons and towns of Geneva, Lausanne and Vaud in a common effort to finance a symphony orchestra to serve the interests of all concerned.

Thus "l'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande" was conceived as an ensemble to perform for the opera, the radio and in symphony concerts.

During fifty years Ernest Ansermet led his orchestra from success to success and brought it up to international fame. The Orchestre de la Suisse Romande made a great number of important recordings which have become historic documents by now, since it was Ansermet and his orchestra who had first performed and then established a style of rendition and interpretation of almost all the symphonic works of composers like Debussy, Ravel, Honegger, Stravinsky, Frank Martin — to name just a few.

Wolfgang Sawallisch was named music-director of the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande one year after Ansermet's death in 1970.

Wolfgang Sawallisch, born at Munich in 1923, started his career as a pianist after studies in his native city.

Named choirmaster at the Augsburg Opera in 1947, he became musical director of the Aachen Opera House in 1952. Similar appointments at Wiesbaden and Cologne followed in 1958 and 1960. Conductor of the Vienna Symphony and later of the Hamburg State Philharmonic, (which he left only last year) Sawallisch was named music-director of the Bavarian State Opera, in 1969 and artistic director general of the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande in 1970 to succeed Ernest Ansermet.

Regular guest-conductor of many famous orchestras, Sawallisch is one of the few outstanding conductors equally successful in the lyric and symphonic field.

Soloist Ilana Vered, born in Tel Aviv, Israel, began her concert career at the age of fifteen after graduating with first prize from the Paris Conservatoire. She has now established a wide reputation in Europe, South America, the United States, Canada and Israel, and will embark on a tour of Africa this summer with the Israel Philharmonic under the direction of Maestro Torkanowsky.

Ilana has played with most of the great orchestras of the world including the London Symphony Orchestra, the Royal Philharmonic, the Boston, Israel and Baltimore Symphonies. Appearances in the 74/75 Season will include the Boston Symphony, the New Philharmonia of London, the Hamburg and Baltimore Symphonies, in addition to her tour as guest artist with the Suisse Romande in the Eastern United States.

She will also play recitals in Toronto, San Francisco, Detroit, Chicago and in Alice Tully Hall in New York. Miss Vered's debut with Maestro Solti and the Chicago Symphony is slated for the 75/76 Season.

Miss Vered has recorded Moszkowski's "Preludes" and Chopin's "Etudes" for Connoisseur Society and the "Yellow River Concerto" and Mozart No. 21 for London/Decca. Rachmaninoff's "Variations of a Theme of Paganini" will be released by London in the Fall.

Tickets for the Nov. 8 concert, $3, $5, and $6, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

The next Lane presentation will be the Neil Simon comedy hit of last season, "The Sunshine Boys," Nov. 12.

BIG BURGER

This Week's Winners:
1. Louis Maldonado
2. David Anthony
3. Little Mac
4. Doug Mackey
5. Bobby Bonds
6. Bellaire Maxwell
7. David Berson
8. Peter Kaplan
9. Mary Hammon
10. Louis Deblacid
11. John Dolan
12. Willard Gibbs
13. John Holloway
14. Davie Bissell
15. Mathew Cole

Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS

PLAZA I & II
DORSET ST
Flesh Gordon
Love Tube

Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
Williston Road
I King of Hearts
II Fantasia

State Theatre
Bank Street
Life & Times of Xavier Hollander

Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
Butch Cassidy 11 Harrow House
Lady Sings Blues
Serpico

Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
The Seduction of Mimi
The Longest Yard

Flynn Theatre
Main Street
Jerimiah Johnson

call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights
or special showings

STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS ARE NOW GOOD AT
PLAZA I & II
ON DORSET ST

SA FILMS PRESENTS
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31
THE MUSIC MAN (1962) — Robert Preston
101 Votey — 7:30 p.m. — Free
THE LONGEST DAY (1962) — John Wayne
101 Votey — 10:00 p.m. — Free
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1
SLAUGHTERHOUSE 5 (1971) — Michael Sacks
101 Votey — 7:30 & 9:30 — $1.00
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 2
COOL HAND LUKE (1967) — Paul Newman
101 Votey — 7:30 p.m. — Free
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 4
THE SORROW & THE PITY (1972)
103 Rowell — 7:30 — Free

THE LAST CHANCE SALOON
HALLOWEEN COSTUME PARTY
Thursday October 31
PRIZES FOR BEST COSTUME
SPECIAL PRICES For Those In Costume Throughout The Evening
147 MAIN ST.

THE ULTIMATE EXPERIENCE
WALT DISNEY'S FANTASIA
TECHNICOLOR
NOW at Merrill's SHOWCASE 1 & 2

"Riotously, excrutiatingly funny." —Milwaukee Sentinel
"Consistently hilarious and brilliant." —Baltimore Daily Record
"Insanely funny, outrageous and irreverent." —Bruce Williamson, PLAYBOY MAGAZINE
A GREAT NEW MOTION PICTURE COMEDY
THE GROOVE TUBE
Produced and Directed by Ken Shapiro
Written by Ken Shapiro and Lane Sarasohn
Now at PLAZA I & II

THE SILVER KEG
★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★
MONDAY-LADIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY- ½ PRICE NITE ALL NITE
WEDNESDAY
NO COVER CHARGE ALL NITE
THURSDAY- ½ PRICE ALL NITE
★ FEATURING ★
MON. OCT. 28-NOV 2
JOE WHITING BAND
NOV. 3- SASS
NOV. 4-9 HARPY
MON. NOV. 11-16
KNICKERS DOWN
MON. NOV. 18-23
DAVIS BROTHERS GARAGE

Two Reviews:

Frye's Hur

by Robert DeNike

The crowd filled Patrick Gymnasium's floor and a wall of its bleachers in anticipation of a light and sparkling hour of David Frye humor. The audience seemed well fulfilled in their expectations by the end of Frye's presentation, which included a wide variety of impressions, sexual puns and political satire.

David Frye's impressions are perhaps the strongest point of his act. As comedian and television star, Frye commands a thorough and complete repetoire of impressions (he imitates every major personality from George C. Scott to Billy Graham), striking in their accuracy and high in variety. Through this refined art of mimicking, Frye exhibits a rare and specialized skill: he possesses an uncanny ability to change the tone, inflection and pitch of his voice in twenty or thirty different ways.

A montage of film clips highlighted the performance, revealing startling scenes of the hidden and mysterious personal life of Richard M. Nixon. The camera caught Nixon in embarrassing poses, making ridiculous gestures, which the audience found most absurdly delightful and hilarious. Frye tied the film together by writing his own lyrics to the theme song "I Did It My Way."

After returning for an encore (spurred by an enthusiastic standing ovation), Frye ended his presentation on a serious note by paying tribute

Patrick Gy

by Stephen W. Tanner

David Frye in Patrick Gymnasium is in itself a humorous image. Watching the energized man, eyeballs nearly touching his eyebrows, shoulders hunched, gesticulating wildly from behind a podium nearly his own height to a massive room decorated with basketball hoops and filled with bleachers is funny by any standards.

But Frye's is an essentially night club act. It requires good visibility of his facial expressions and a sound system that is sensitive to the varying intonations of an impressionist's voice. Patrick Gym is no night club, but physical limitations aside, Frye compensated for any lack of intimacy by extending a barrage of caricatures that were devastatingly funny.

Frye ran a gamut from Billy Graham nationalizing $300 suits which "falleth from heaven and fitteth perfectly" to Henry Fonda selling GAF lightbulbs, "I don't know what yer gitten buyin' 'em, but I'm gitten a million dollars to make this ad." George C. Scott as Patton bragged, "I was damn good in battle," and then complained about "The Day of the Dolphin" saying "then they put me in a goddamn fish movie."

But the bulk of Frye's world of characters are politicians. After all, Frye made watching a Nixon Televised Address into a comedy hour.

In the political world he manages to play off prejudices and hypocrisies even offering at times a lucid insight into the leaders of government. Mayor Richar Daley exclaims, "I'm the best mayor Chicago ever had — I'm the only mayor Chicago

HALLOWE
Free Prize
for best COST
(singles & dou
SURPRISES
Witches Bre
Fun Galore!
(yards of fun
AT THE SIGN
THE
BLACK C
160 Bank

Talented Diverse Cleo Laine To Perform November 2

by Michael Thurston

On November 2, at 8:00 p.m., Memorial Auditorium in Burlington, Cleo Laine will perform the final concert of her current U.S. tour, an itinerary which included Carnegie Hall. While that may not be particularly exciting to those who aren't familiar with the name, it might be interesting to note that she's recently garnered rave reviews from such magazines as Cream and Billboard, both of which devote most of their pages to rock music. That isn't to say Cleo Laine is a rock star, but it's a solid indication that she has talent, diversity, and an ability to raise some eyebrows in a world dominated with Top 40, electric guitar, and Alice Cooper. Her rare ability to trespass established categorical pigeon holes is but a portion of the underlying factors which have made her a top attraction throughout her native Britain, and all of Europe. With a repertoire that includes works by Gershwin, Sondheim, Stevie Wonder, Bacharach/David, and Noel Coward, it's a safe prediction that her Burlington performance will offer something for every taste, and prove Cleo Laine a mature, sophisticated performer.

Colman Andrews, in his Cream review of Cleo Laine Live At Carnegie Hall, begins "People who criticize Cleo Laine usually take the same tack as those who, believing, criticize God..."

Cleo Live warrants just such a statement. Cleo goes beyond entertainment. She draws heavily upon her acting career, including credits for the like of 'Midsummer Night's Dream', 'Seven Deadly Sins', 'A Time To Laugh', and Henrik Ibsen's 'Hedda Gabler', for verbal and visual interpretations. Regardless of what she chooses to do, each number appears as though tailored for her style and delivery. Such credit lies not in the inherent quality of the music, though that, too, is beyond question, but, rather, falls upon an artists' sensitivity. Cleo's intimacy with her craft reaches far beyond the footlights... far into every seat, aisle, and balcony... one to one with audiences, everywhere.

Cleo Laine has just begun to surface in this country, with Americans getting their first exposure to a dynamo artist who's been involved in Britain's musical whirlwind since 1952. Why so long? Cleo, herself has said that everything must be just right before taking on America. Britain's leading export since The Beatles has been an endless stream of rock and rollers... now's the time for Cleo Laine. Whether she's belting out a standard, reciting gentle poetry, or giving new life to an old Bessie Smith classic, Cleo Laine is natural, relaxed, and in command. She can scrape the bottom with heavy grit... or she can soft-shoe her way through the top with delicacy and delight. The opportunity to see and hear an artist of such stature is not merely fortunate... it is, indeed, a privilege.

Con Brio Presents Both Traditional And Modern

CON BRIO CHAMBER ENSEMBLE
Wednesday, November 6

Sonata in A major, op. 162 — Schubert
Allegro moderato
Scherzo
Andantino
Allegro vivace

Evelyn Read, violin — Marie Vogelmann, piano

Sonata da Camera — Kelsey Jones
Preludium
Corrente
Andante
Giga

Jane Ambrose, flute — Neil Boyer, oboe,
Elizabeth Metcalfe, harpsichord

INTERMISSION

Three Romances — Schumann

Neil Boyer, oboe — Elizabeth Metcalfe, piano

Octet for Wind Instruments — Stravinsky
Sinfonia
Tema con variazione
Finale

Thomas L. Read, conductor
Jane Ambrose, flute — Terry Ranney, bassoon
Layton Davis, clarinet — Dennis Frink, bassoon
David Brubaker, trumpet — Robert Wigness, trombone
Dean Williams, trumpet — Allen Farwell, trombone

The Con Brio Chamber Ensemble presents its second concert of the season Wednesday, November 6 at the Living/Learning Center with a program of both traditional and modern chamber pieces.

Evelyn Read and Marie Vogelmann open the program with Schubert's only full length sonata, the melodious Sonata in A major, op. 162, for violin and piano.

Neil Boyer, first oboeist with the Vermont State Symphony, makes his first appearance with the Con Brio Ensemble in Schumann's Three Romances for oboe and piano, with accompaniment by Elizabeth Metcalfe.

A modern composition by Canadian composer Kelsey Jones, Sonata da Camera, features Neil Boyer, oboe, with Jane Ambrose, flute, and Elizabeth Metcalfe, harpsichord. Written in 1957 in a neo-classical baroque form, the work was commissioned for and first performed by the Baroque Trio of Montreal.

Stravinsky's Octet for Wind Instruments, composed in 1923, is a graceful, vivacious piece of music remarkable for its deft architecture in blending together an ensemble of only wind instruments. Thomas Read conducts the eight member ensemble, with Jane Ambrose, flute, Layton Davis, clarinet, David Brubaker and Dean Williams, trumpets, Terry Ranney and Dennis Frink, bassoons, and Robert Wigness and Allen Farwell, trombones.

Curtain time is 8:00 p.m. in Commons 115 at the Living/Learning Center. General admission is $2.50, $.75 for students, and tickets will be available at the door.

Con Brio's next concert on February 12 will feature works of Mozart and Brahms, and a premier performance of a new work by Con Brio Chamber Ensemble, member Thomas L. Read.

Orchestre de la Suisse Romande To Enchant Burlington

The prestigious Orchestre de la Suisse Romande, long ranked as one of the major symphonies of Europe, performs in the Lane Series on Friday, Nov. 8 at 8 p.m., in downtown Memorial Auditorium.

The program includes Igor Stravinsky's Jeu de Cartes, Robert Schumann's Piano Concerto in a-minor, op. 54, and, after the intermission, Johannes Brahms' Symphony No. 4 in e-minor, op. 56.

Conducting the Geneva-based orchestra will be its artistic director general and chief conductor, Wolfgang Sawallisch. Soloist for the Schumann Piano Concerto will be Israeli artist Ilana Vered.

The legendary orchestra of Ernest Ansermet, who was both its founder in 1918 and conductor for almost 50 years, finally is making its long-awaited American tour. Ansermet was unwilling to bring his great orchestra to the United States.

The Orchestra de la Suisse comes from the French-speaking part of Switzerland (la Suisse romande), which has numerous affinities with French culture. In 1918 Ernest Ansermet persuaded the Swiss radio to join the local authorities of the cantons and towns of Geneva, Lausanne and Vaud in a common effort to finance a symphony orchestra to serve the interests of all concerned.

Thus "l'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande" was conceived as an ensemble to perform for the opera, the radio and in symphony concerts.

During fifty years Ernest Ansermet led his orchestra from success to success and brought it up to international fame. The Orchestre de la Suisse Romande made a great number of important recordings which have become historic documents by now, since it was Ansermet and his orchestra who had first performed and then established a level of standard of performance and interpretation of almost all the symphonic works of composers like Debussy, Ravel, Honegger, Stravinsky, Frank Martin — to name just a few.

Wolfgang Sawallisch was named music-director of the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande one year after Ansermet's death in 1970.

Wolfgang Sawallisch, born at Munich in 1923, started his career as a pianist after studies in his native city.

Named choirmaster at the Augsburg Opera in 1947, he became musical director of the Aachen Opera House in 1952. Similar appointments at Wiesbaden and Cologne followed in 1958 and 1960. Conductor of the Vienna Symphony and later of the Hamburg State Philharmonic, (which he left only last year) Sawallisch was named music-director of the Bavarian State Opera, in 1969 and artistic director general of the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande in 1970 to succeed Ernest Ansermet.

Regular guest-conductor of many famous orchestras, Sawallisch is one of the few outstanding conductors equally successful in the lyric and symphonic field.

Soloist Ilana Vered, born in Tel Aviv, Israel, began her concert career at the age of fifteen after graduating with first prize from the Paris Conservatoire. She has now established a wide reputation in Europe, South America, the United States, Canada and Israel, and will embark on a tour of Africa this summer with the Israel Philharmonic under the direction of Maestro Torkanowsky.

Ilana has played with most of the great orchestras of the world including the London Symphony Orchestra, the Royal Philharmonic, the Boston, Israel and Baltimore Symphonies. Appearances in the 74/75 Season will include the Boston Symphony, the New Philharmonia of London, the Hamburg and Baltimore Symphonies, in addition to her tour as guest artist with the Suisse Romande in the Eastern United States.

She will also play recitals in Toronto, San Francisco, Detroit, Chicago and in Alice Tully Hall in New York. Miss Vered's debut with Maestro Solti and the Chicago Symphony is slated for the 75/76 Season.

Miss Vered has recorded Moszkowski's "Preludes" and Chopin's "Etudes" for Connoisseur Society and the "Yellow River Concerto" and Mozart No. 21 for London/Decca. Rachmaninoff's "Variations of a Theme of Paganini" will be released by London in the Fall.

Tickets for the Nov. 8 concert, $3, $5, and $6, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

The next Lane presentation will be the Neil Simon comedy hit of last season, "The Sunshine Boys," Nov. 12.

BIG BURGER

This Week's Winners:
1. Louis Maldonado
2. David Anthony
3. Little Mac
4. Doug Mackey
5. Bobby Bonds
6. Bellaire Maxwell
7. David Benson
8. Peter Kaplan
9. Mary Hammon
10. Louis Deblacid
11. John Dolan
12. Willard Gibbs
13. John Holloway
14. Davie Bowell
15. Mathew Cole

Vermont Cynic
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS

PLAZA-I & II
DORSET ST
Flesh Gordon
Love Tube

Merrill's Showcase 1 & 2
Williston Road
I King of Hearts
II Fantasia

State Theatre
Bank Street
Life & Times of Xavier Hollander

Essex Twin Cinema
Pearl Street
Essex Jct.
Butch Cassidy 11 Harrow House
Lady Sings Blues
Serpico

Cinema 1 & 2
Burlington Plaza
Shelburne Road
The Seduction of Mimi
The Longest Yard

Flynn Theatre
Main Street
Jerimiah Johnson

call theatres for times
Not Good for bargain nights
or special showings

STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS ARE NOW GOOD AT
PLAZA I & II
ON DORSET ST

SA FILMS PRESENTS
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31
THE MUSIC MAN (1962) — Robert Preston
101 Votey — 7:30 p.m. — Free
THE LONGEST DAY (1962) — John Wayne
101 Votey — 10:00 p.m. — Free
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1
SLAUGHTERHOUSE 5 (1971) — Michael Sacks
101 Votey — 7:30 & 9:30 — $1.00
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 2
COOL HAND LUKE (1967) — Paul Newman
101 Votey — 7:30 p.m. — Free
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 4
THE SORROW & THE PITY (1972)
103 Rowell — 7:30 — Free

THE LAST CHANCE SALOON
HALLOWEEN COSTUME PARTY
Thursday October 31
PRIZES FOR BEST COSTUME
SPECIAL PRICES For Those In Costume Throughout The Evening
147 MAIN ST.

THE ULTIMATE EXPERIENCE
WALT DISNEY'S FANTASIA
Now at Merrill's SHOWCASE 1 & 2

"Riotously, excrutiatingly funny." —Milwaukee Sentinel
"Consistently hilarious and brilliant." —Baltimore Daily Record
"Insanely funny, outrageous and irreverent." —Bruce Williamson—PLAYBOY MAGAZINE
A GREAT NEW MOTION PICTURE COMEDY
THE GROOVE TUBE
Produced and Directed by Ken Shapiro
Written by Ken Shapiro and Lane Sarasohn
Now at PLAZA I & II

THE SILVER KEG
★★ OUR SPECIALS ★★
MONDAY-LADIES NITE
UNESCORTED FEMALES FREE
TUESDAY- ½ PRICE NITE ALL NITE
WEDNESDAY
NO COVER CHARGE ALL NITE
THURSDAY- ½ PRICE ALL NITE
★ FEATURING ★
MON. OCT 28-NOV 2
JOE WHITING BAND
NOV. 3- SASS
NOV. 4-9 HARPY
MON. NOV. 11-16
KNICKERS DOWN
MON. NOV. 18-23
DAVIS BROTHERS GARAGE

Two Reviews:

Frye's Hu

by Robert DeNike

The crowd filled Patrick Gymnasium's floor and a wall of its bleachers in anticipation of a light and sparkling hour of David Frye humor. The audience seemed well fulfilled in their expectations by the end of Frye's presentation which included a wide variety of impressions, sexual puns and political satire.

David Frye's impressions are perhaps the strongest point of his act. As comedian and television star, Frye commands a thorough and complete repetoire of impressions (he imitates every major personality from George C. Scott to Billy Graham), striking in their accuracy and high in variety. Through this refined art of mimicking, Frye exhibits a rare and specialized skill: he possesses an uncanny ability to change the tone, inflection and pitch of his voice in twenty or thirty different ways.

A montage of film clips highlighted the performance, revealing startling scenes of the hidden and mysterious personal life of Richard M. Nixon. The camera caught Nixon in embarrassing poses, making ridiculous gestures, which the audience found most absurdly delightful and hilarious. Frye tied the film together by writing his own lyrics to the theme song "I Did It My Way."

After returning for an encore (spurred by an enthusiastic standing ovation), Frye ended his presentation on a serious note by paying tribute

Patrick G

by Stephen W. Tanner

David Frye in Patrick Gymnasium is in itself a humorous image. Watching the energized man, eyeballs nearly touching his eyebrows, shoulders hunched, gesticulating wildly from behind a podium nearly his own height to a massive room decorated with basketball hoops and filled with bleachers is funny by any standards.

But Frye's is an essentially night club act. It requires good visibility of his facial expressions and a sound system that is sensitive to the varying intonations of an impressionist's voice. Patrick Gym is no night club, but physical limitations aside, Frye compensated for any lack of intimacy by extending a barrage of caricatures that were devastatingly funny.

Frye ran a gamut from Billy Graham nationalizing $300 suits which "falleth from heaven and fitteth perfectly" to Henry Fonda selling GAF lightbulbs, "I don't know what yer gitten buyin' 'em, but I'm gitten a million dollars to make this ad." George C. Scott as Patton bragged, "I was damn good in battle," and then complained about "The Day of the Dolphin" saying "then they put me in a goddamn fish movie."

But the bulk of Frye's world of characters are politicians. After all, Frye made watching a Nixon Televised Address into a comedy hour.

In the political world he manages to play off prejudices and hypocrisies even offering at times a lucid thought into the leaders of government. Mayor Richar Daley exclaims, "I'm the best mayor Chicago ever had... I'm the only mayor Chicago

HALLOWE
Free Priz
for best COST
(singles & dou
SURPRISES
Witches Bre
Fun Galore
(yards of fun
AT THE SIGN
THE
BLACK C
160 Bank

And Modern

...no Chamber ...s its second ...the season ...mber 4 at the ...Center with a ...ditional and ...ences.

...and Marie ...the program ...ly full length ...ven Sonata in ...for violin and ...

...first concert ...mont State ...rn his first ...the Con Brio ...ciate's Three ...e and piano, ...lement by ...

...mposition by ...per Kelsey ...da Camera, ...r, oboe, with ... flute, and ...Metcalfe, ...n in 1957 in ...roque form, ...mmoned for ...

...and first performed by the Baroque Trio of Montreal.

Stravinsky's Octet for Wind Instruments, composed in 1923, is a graceful, vivacious piece of music remarkable for its deft orchestration in blending together an ensemble of only wind instruments. Thomas Read conducts the eight member ensemble, with Jane Ambrose, flute, Layton Davis, clarinet, David Brubaker and Dean Williams, trumpets, Terry Ranney and Dennis Frink, bassoons, and Robert Wigness and Allen Farwell, trombones.

Curtain time is 8:00 p.m. in Commons 115 at the Living/Learning Center. General admission is $2.50, $.75 for students, and tickets will be available at the door.

Con Brio's next concert on February 12 will feature works of Mozart and Brahms, and a premier performance of a new work by Con Brio Chamber Ensemble member Thomas L. Read.

...nt Burlington

...of the ...et Romande ...ed Ernest ...onductor of ...orchestras, ...of the few ...ctors equally ...lyric and ...

...ered, born in ...began her ...the age of ...luating with ...the Paris ...e has now ...reputation in ...merica, the ...Canada and ...ark on a tour ...ner with the ...e under the ...Maestro ...

...d with most ...stras of the ...the London ...estra, the ...onic, the ...d Baltimore ...earances in ...will include ...bay, the New ...London, the ...Baltimore ...Symphonies, in addition to her tour as guest artist with the Suisse Romande in the Eastern United States.

She will also play recitals in Toronto, San Francisco, Detroit, Chicago and in Alice Tully Hall in New York. Miss Vered's debut with Maestro Solti and the Chicago Symphony is slated for the 75/76 Season.

Miss Vered has recorded Moszkowski's "Preludes" and Chopin's "Etudes" for Connoisseur Society and the "Yellow River Concerto" and Mozart No. 21 for London/Decca. Rachmaninoff's "Variations of a Theme of Paganini" will be released by London in the Fall.

Tickets for the Nov. 8 concert, $3, $5, and $6; are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. For reservations, telephone 656-3418.

The next Lane presentation will be the Neil Simon comedy hit of last season, "The Sunshine Boys," Nov. 12.

THE SILVER KEG

★ OUR SPECIALS ★ ★

...Y-LADIES NITE
...RTED FEMALES FREE
...Y- ½ PRICE NITE ALL NITE
...WEDNESDAY
...VER CHARGE ALL NITE
...DAY- ½ PRICE ALL NITE
...FEATURING ★
...OCT 28-NOV 2
JOE WHITING BAND
...SASS
...9 HARPY
...OV. 11-16
KNICKERS DOWN
...OV. 18-23
...BROTHERS GARAGE

Two Reviews:

Frye's Humor Satisfies Audience

by Robert DeMilia

The crowd filled Patrick Gymnasium's floor and a wall of its bleachers in anticipation of a light and sparkling hour of David Frye humor. The audience seemed well fulfilled in their expectations by the end of Frye's presentation which included a wide variety of impressions, sexual puns and political satire.

David Frye's impressions are perhaps the strongest point of his act. As comedian and television star, Frye commands a thorough and complete repetoire of impressions (he imitates every major personality from George C. Scott to Billy Graham), striking in their accuracy and high in variety. Through this refined art of mimicking, Frye exhibits a rare and specialized skill: he possesses an uncanny ability to change the tone, inflection and pitch of his voice in twenty or thirty different ways.

A montage of film clips highlighted the performance, revealing startling scenes of the hidden and mysterious personal life of Richard M. Nixon. The camera caught Nixon in embarrassing poses, making ridiculous gestures, which the audience found most absurdly delightful and hilarious. Frye tied the film together by writing his own lyrics to the theme song "I Did It My Way."

After returning for an encore (spurred by an enthusiastic standing ovation), Frye ended his presentation on a serious note by paying tribute to the late JFK, RFK, and Martin Luther K. Once again Frye captured and duplicated perfectly each subject's voice but the audience (composed mostly of students) was confused by this sudden deviation from the comic element. Frye recited portions of each of these famous political figures' speeches and commented on how American democracy's rights to free speech should be recognized and appreciated. This self-assertion of patriotic conservatism on Frye's part was disappointing, out of place and detracted from the preceeding messages he had conveyed in a humorous vein.

In many ways the audience and local surroundings mold David's act and determines its course to a degree equal with the role of the performer. The audience was able to relate to Frye's remarks on his stay at the Ramada Inn. An uncooperative microphone was unexpectedly used in a smooth and effective fashion by Frye, who strangled and then kissed it. When three of his lines consecutively brought loud outbursts of laughter, he stopped in the middle of his patter, saying, "I gotta get those down" and proceeded to write them in to his speech. Similarly, when Frye failed to arouse audience response he "promised never to use that one again" and scratched vigorously on his notes with a pen. This technique of combining the improvised with the pre-planned keeps the audience attentive by enabling them to relate with greater empathy to Frye, not as a performer, but as a fellow human.

Frye could not really help but notice his audience and his immediate surroundings. First, it was obvious that he was not accustomed to performing in a gym – night clubs with even the slightest class are much preferred. Secondly, the house lights blazed brilliantly throughout, dimming only for the film. Individuals wandering and moving about distracted everyone and were often told to "shut up" or "sit down" by Frye (jokingly of course). At other times, he would informally question someone, informally or casually converse with the audience.

The technique David Frye so successfully uses steadily throughout his act is contrast. His impromptu recognition of audience reaction and allowing it to influence his act contrasts with the written speech he has rehearsed over and over. His warm tone contrasts with a harsh and cutting treatment of his audience. And his contrasting of humorous and serious moods make David Frye's style versatile and interesting. Last Thursday night was illustration enough of just how successful this comedian's style can be.

Patrick Gym Is No Night Club

by Stephen W. Tanner

David Frye in Patrick Gymnasium is in itself a humorous image. Watching the energized man, eyeballs nearly touching his eyebrows, shoulders hunched, gesticulating wildly from behind a podium nearly his own height to a massive room decorated with basketball hoops and filled with bleachers is funny by any standards.

But Frye's is an essentially night club act. It requires good visibility of his facial expressions and a sound system that is sensitive to the varying intonations of an impressionist's voice. Patrick Gym is no night club, but physical limitations aside, Frye compensated for any lack of intimacy by extending a barrage of caricatures that were devastatingly funny.

Frye ran a gamut from Billy Graham nationalizing $300 suits which "falleth from heaven and fitteth perfectly" to Henry Fonda selling GAF lightbulbs, "I don't know what yer gitten buyin' 'em, but I'm gitten a million dollars to make this ad." George C. Scott as Patton bragged, "I was damn good in battle," and then complained about "The Day of the Dolphin" saying "then they put me in a goddamn fish movie."

But the bulk of Frye's world of characters are politicians. After all, Frye made watching a Nixon Televised Address into a comedy hour.

In the political world he manages to play off prejudices and hypocrisies even offering at times a lucid insight into the leaders of government. Mayor Richar Daley exclaims, "I'm the best mayor Chicago ever had—I'm the only mayor Chicago ever had." And as Richard Nixon said, "To resign goes against every instinct in my body," but Frye adds, "excepting brain."

Frye kept his act fairly current. He dealt with Watergate at length. His Nixon asks, "Rosemary Woods was a virgin until she was 49. How could she know anything about breaking and entering?" Of Chile, Henry Kissinger raged, "I

(continued on page thirteen)

David Frye — SPS Photo: Roxane Isley

Two Music Professors Convey Their Innate Musicality

by Jack A. Grabb

Jane Ambrose (flute) and Elizabeth Metcalfe (piano) of the UVM Music Department conveyed their innate musicality at every moment of their performance (October 25, Marble Court, Fleming Museum). The playing of these two musicians was characterized by such unity of approach and musical complementation that it is difficult to discuss the two separately. Throughout the concert Ambrose's tone was pure and solid, yet translucent. Metcalfe's approach to the piano was perfectly balanced between the realization that the piano part is as important as the flute part, and the concept of the flute as the actual solo instrument.

The interesting program contained music of only two periods, the late classical-early romantic and contemporary. All the pieces have been published for the first time in the last five years, and were the first performances of them in the Burlington area. The elegant programming not only presented "strange pieces by strange composers," to quote from Ambrose's oral program notes, but also presented enough material from these two periods to give the audience a better feel for the styles. The modern pieces were most effective since the superb technical abilities of the two performers allowed them to transcend the usual mechanical concerns which often cause performances by less proficient musicians to be metronomically calculated, icy, and ineffective.

In the very first piece, Soliloquy, a contemporary piece by Harry Freedman, Ambrose and Metcalfe demonstrated their fine technique in the great clarity of the rapid passages.

Rondo in E Minor by Franz Xaver Mozart, the younger of Mozart's two surviving sons, was played with infallible timing, sense of arrival, and feel for the larger unit of time, rather than with the hammering effect of many performers who consider the note of the smallest value to be the basic unit of time. Complemented by Metcalfe's liquid arpeggios, thee result was a feeling similar to a pendulum slowly swinging in water.

The first movement, Moderato, of Sonatina (1940) by Lennox Berkeley was performed with delicate nuances in phrasing and tone delineating the angular passages from the more lyrical passages. The manner in which the two performers stayed in perfect unison in the rapid passages is also of note. The Adagio presented a fine example of their ability to keep the pulse of a piece firm and steady even when the basic pulse was so very slow. This is attributable to the solidity and control of each note of the piece. The last movement, Allegro moderato, with its playful syncopations, was a showpiece for Metcalfe's crisp attack on the piano.

The last piece of the first half was Sonatine by Franz Danzi (1763-1826). In the opening Larghetto, Metcalfe played with a great sense of breath between phrases something natural to a wind instrument, but difficult to suggest on a keyboard instrument. The lilting second movement was followed by the gay and sprightly Polacca with its wonderful "hurry-home—Harry" ending, a pleasant end to the first half of the program.

The two performers had clear, unified releases—something as important as the attack of a note for giving a piece drive.

The first piece after intermission was a Sonate by Gaetano Donizetti (1797-1848). The brief but informative program notes described this piece with its "unusual adaptation for flute of operatic vocal writing." This effect was nicely executed by Ambrose who delicately adjusted her phrasing to suggest an operatic singer.

The second piece of this half was a Sonatina composed in 1958 by Bernard Heiden who studied composition in Berlin with Paul Hindemith. This piece clearly demonstrated the power in mood-painting such musicality could have over an audience. The first movement, Allegro, ended on a high note in the flute part, from which a single, delicate web of silence gently suspended the audience down to the Andante, which showed the extended lyricism of Hindemith.

My only negative criticisms of the program would be confined to the final piece, Quintet in B Minor (1937) by David Diamond. Ambrose and Metcalfe were joined by Thomas Read (violin), Roger Gillim (viola), and Bettina Roulier (cello). I felt that the sense of ensemble and unity of approach exhibited up to this point was lost in this larger group. The two fast movements, the first and the last, were characterized by a slight lack of agreement in phrase structure, cadential rubato, and shifted tempos. It was the piano accompaniment and excellent cello playing of Roulier that were the actual cement of some passages. One had the feeling when the texture thinned and the flute part was allowed to blossom, that someone had opened the doors of the hall to a refreshing breeze.

I also felt that there was some problem with intonation, especially noticeable in the unison passages. Contrasting with these two outer movements, the middle movement, Romanzo, was more lyrical and more in tune. Nevertheless, the piece was very effective as a finale not only because of its natural tension and excitement, but also because of the awe-inspiring ease with which Metcalfe played the very difficult accompaniment of the last movement.

Ambrose and Metcalfe played Sicilienne from Poleas et Melisande by Faure as an encore for the large and appreciative audience. I can surely say that this was a most enjoyable concert, and I can heartily recommend to concert-goers any concert in which these two superb musicians are performing.

Bonnie Raitt Lets Loose

by Helen Bed

Friday night Bonnie Raitt came to town. For those of you who were there, I need say no more. But if you weren't... imagine a fired up crowd who stood virtually shoulder to shoulder. Even long before Raitt came out, the crowd was leaping and stamping to the taped music.

The night started off with a local down home band from Richmond who had the fastest pair of spoons this side of Millot. Any impatience the audience might have felt was quickly lost when the group plunged into their last song and very nearly brought the house down.

Finally out of thin air, Bonnie Raitt was on her stool. But the reception and the size of the crowd must have surprised her and I think she was tickled pink at the thought of it. It didn't take Raitt long to steal everyone's heart, a soft song here, a sad one there. But when she gets off that stool and gives herself some running room, watch out. She'll let loose with every ring she's got.

The band she came with played with her at Dartmouth this summer while normally she would be touring with Jackson Browne. One thing I liked about Raitt's band was that Ray didn't get in her way, and either drown her out or warp her own special style. While they were all fine musicians, the piano was outstanding. You really notice that, while they are far from excellent, the acoustics of Memorial Auditorium are a step up from Patrick Gym.

All through the night Bonnie Raitt had been raising the spirits of the crowd so that when it came to her last song, "Girl, You've Been in Love Too Long," they soared. Her encore, "Don't You Give It Up" and the ensuing applause said good night and thank you to both performer and audience. We really have to thank Bonnie Raitt for doing this concert as a favor to a cause she believes in. It was the best concert Burlington has seen for a long time.

Truffaut' Antoine Beds And Boards

Francois Truffaut's 1971 film masterpiece "Bed and Board" will be presented on Friday, Nov. 1, in Marsh Life Sciences Building Auditorium under the auspices of the Lane Film Society in the series "Truffaut Classic Movies."

There will be two showings of the 97-minute color movie, at 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. The film is in French, with English subtitles.

Starring in the role Antoine Doinel, who was also character in "The 400 Blows" and "Stolen Kisses," is the well-known French actor Jean-Pierre Leaud.

In "Stolen Kisses" Antoine, having been judged temperamentally unfit for the Army (as was indeed Truffaut himself), takes up his life in Paris again, pursuing a bizarre assortment of unsuccessful careers and women, before finally falling in love with Christine. "Bed and Board" is the story of their marriage.

Critic Vincent Canby of the New York Times wrote that "'Bed and Board' will turn out to be one of the loveliest, most intelligent movies we'll see this year." And Judith Crist of the New York Magazine called it "the best Truffaut in years."

Tickets for "Bed and Board", $1.00 each, are on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. For reservations telephone 656-3418.

The final film in the "Truffaut Classic Movies" series is "Shoot the Piano Player," Nov. 15.

THE BEACH BOYS

Wednesday Nov. 20th

TICKETS: $5.00 with UVM Student ID

NOV. 4th - Student ticket sales begin

$6.00 - General admission sales begin Nov. 11th

HALLOWEEN PARTY

Free Prizes
for best COSTUMES
(singles & doubles)
SURPRISES
Witches Brew
Fun Galore!
(yards of fun and games)
AT THE SIGN OF THE BLACK CAT
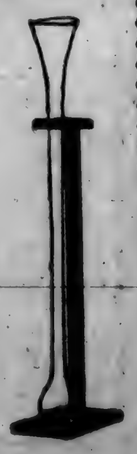
160 Bank Street



TRY AZTEC BUTTERMILK. IT DOESN'T COME FROM A COW.

Montezuma® Tequila Buttermilk
Montezuma Tequila, 1½ ounces Lemon-Lime Soda Pop, 1 bottle
Blend in blender with cracked ice. Serve in tall glass. Garnish with lemon or lime wedge.

EHECATL (THE WIND) symbol for the 2nd day of the ancient Aztec week

TONIGHT
TRY "THE OREGON PLAN"
(Served only to odd people on even days, etc.)

FAMOUS SINCE 1974

or one of the 90 other unbelievable combinations at CARBUR'S RESTAURANT
Live Entertainment Nightly
119 St. Paul St. 862-4106

....Put your head in our hands
...you won't be sorry.

The Bread Shop
152 Church St. 864-4045

Fresh ground proudly presents
November

mon	tues	wed	thurs	fri	sat
Chicken Oriental 2.50	Sweet & Sour Pork w/ Vegies 1.95	Eggplant 2.25 Parmigiana	Crepe Pocket 1.95	Beef Stew 2.00 Burgundy	Mexican Tart 1.85
Mugi Miso	Minestrone	Chicken Potato Soup	Multigrain Soup	Cream of Spinach	Sopa Mexicana
Beef & Potato Casserole 2.00 (4) Maryland Corn Chowder	Chicken Salad 2.25 (5) Pickle & Apples	Eggplant Rollatini 1.95 (6) Peasant Barley Soup	Chinese 1.95 (7) Beef & Snow Peas Lentil Soup	Mozzarella 1.95 (8) Chicken Gumbo Creole	Crepe 1.85 (9) Champignon Mediterranean Yeast Soup
Pastichio 1.85 (10)	Spanish Hot Pot 1.75 (11)	Pocket en Creme 2.50 (12)	Fillets en Papillotte 2.50 (13)	Crepe 1.85 (14) Cannellini Navy Bean Soup	Lasagne 1.85 (15) Chinese Vegetable Stew
Pasta Shells	Cream of Potato & Carrot Soup	Mushroom Barley Soup	Russian Cabbage Borscht
Sweet & Sour Chicken 2.15 (16)	Crepe 1.85 (17) Provençale	Mexican Tortilla 1.85 (18)	Rollade de Sole 2.25 (19)	Jambalaya 2.75 (20) Split Pea Soup	Beef & Potatoes 2.00 (21) Americana Pasta & Tagliatelle
Cream of Broccoli	Navy Bean Soup	Cookie Cookie Soup	Maryland Corn Chowder

Plus Everyday: Chili con Carne, Ratatouille, Salads, Hot & Cold Sandwiches, Petit Marmite, Victoria Quiches, Pastries & a Variety of Hot & Cold Beverages

MedCollegeClarifiesPolicy

by Andrew Morse

Dr. Holiday Dr. David Tormey, associate dean of the medical college, clarified the revised admission policy passed by the board of trustees a few weeks ago.

The only new part of the policy passed by the trustees was the duration of the residency clause. This simply means that preference will be given to those applicants having the greatest duration of residency within their respective New England states. Tormey explained that if two New Hampshire applicants with identical records applied for one spot in the class, the one who had lived in New Hampshire the longest would be admitted.

Since UVM is a state school, serving the New England region, Tormey explained that the major role of the college is to serve the state of Vermont and the New England region by providing physicians and medical service to its citizens.

Tormey emphasized that the best way to provide doctors for Vermont and New England is to admit students who come from those regions.

In his explanation, Tormey pointed out that the chances that a Vermonter will stay and practice in Vermont upon graduation from the UVM College of Medicine is ten times greater than the likelihood of a non-Vermonter practicing in Vermont after graduation.

Tormey cited another study which shows that it is likely that a medical student will practice in the general environment in which he grew up. That is, if a student comes from rural America there is a two and a half times greater change that he will return to the country to practice medicine, rather then moving to the city.

In keeping with this policy, only two per cent of the non New-England applicants were admitted to the College of Medicine.

The trustees' dispute arose over the admission practice of giving preference to offspring of UVM Medical College graduates.

Tormey explained that if two equally qualified applicants from New York were vying for one spot in the class, the son or daughter of the alumnus would be admitted.

Although this policy affects only four or five class positions a year, Tormey defended it, explaining that it had been practiced at the college for forty years and that many undergraduate schools give preference to children of alumni, including UVM.

Tormey expects applications for admission to reach 3000 this year; an increase of 800 over last year. Out of the 2200 that applied last year, 83 or 6% were admitted. Fifty-four per cent of the Vermonters who applied were accepted, including five whose parents were alumni of the Medical College.

IRA President Praises Committee

by Pam Hogarth

IRA has been working on and off for two years providing game machines for the UVM students, according to Ken Bartlett, IRA president.

The steering committee responsible for the project is comprised of IRA members Ann Cassevant, chairman and vice-president for ongoing projects; Jay Bigman, Connie Bush and Mellisse Dane.

Bartlett stated that they will be signing the final contract for the machines within the week.

The machines, to include pinball and air hockey, are expected to appear on campus before Thanksgiving. Bartlett said the machines will be evenly spread around campus but a final decision as to their exact location has not been made.

IRA is doing business with the All-Teck Distributing Company of Burlington. Bartlett and the committee feel All-Teck is the best and most respectable company for the service.

The time lag between the signing of the contract with the All-Teck Co. and placement of the machines is due to a number of factors.

One is determining which dorms actually want for them. A suitable location within a dorm must be required. Another major reason, Bartlett stated, is the power requirments to run the machines and which dorms can meet these stipulations.

The machines will be serviced by the All-Teck Company, which will receive a certain percentage of the profits. All-Teck provides 24-hour service. They will also periodically rotate the machines.

Bartlett pointed out that the machines will provide immediate profits collected on a weekly basis. The steering committee will be recommending where this money will be spent.

All profits will be used directly on student recreation.

(continued on page fourteen)

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER®
Downtown Burlington
Essex Junction

Professor Huck Gutman Runs On Liberty Union Ticket

Professor Huck Gutman is running for the Vermont State Legislature in District 4-9, which includes all of Redstone Campus. Gutman teaches courses in American literature at UVM. The following excerpts are from an interview he submitted to the Cynic.

Question: Why are you running for the State Legislature as a Liberty Union candidate?

Gutman: I've been involved in politics for a long time, sometimes in radical politics, sometimes within the Democratic Party. I feel that the protest politics of the sixties ended with that decade, and that much of the focus of politics in our day is oriented around the electoral system. But I see no real choice between the Democratic and Republican parties, and so I turned to the Liberty Union party as a valid alternative.

Question: Does it seem to you that the Liberty Union is a real alternative? Can any Liberty Union candidates win? And isn't winning what election campaigns are all about?

Gutman: Those are good questions, and perhaps I can take them one at a time.

First, I think that the Liberty Union does offer an alternative. Our candidates speak out on issues, as anyone who has heard the debates on television or here at UVM can testify to. Democratic and Republican candidates by and large avoid talking about specific problems and specific solutions, and speak in generalities. In addition, we not only offer proposals, but they are exciting proposals; ones which seek to address problems – some new, some old – from new perspectives.

You asked about winning. Well, it seems like a few Liberty Union candidates might win local elections. Joyce Bressler, who is running in the district around Pearl and North Streets, has an excellent chance. I think I have a chance; not a large one, but a real chance. Statewide, I don't think any of our candidates will win.

Question: But isn't winning what is important? Why throw your vote away on a candidate who can't win?

Gutman: Because if we as voters continually accept the choices we are given, choices between who of two candidates is less mediocre, we will never have a chance to vote for anyone but mediocrities. But if we say, "I won't put up with the kind of politicians and the kinds of ideas you major parties offer me," I feel we can transform the choices we will be offered two years from now.

Question: Will the Liberty Union have that effect?

Gutman: I'm certain it will. By talking about public ownership of the utilities, about providing decent medical care to all Vermonters, about changing the tax structure of Vermont and the country so that the wealthy pay their fair share of the tax load, and some of the oppressive tax burden is lifted from the shoulders of working people, we will force Democrats and Republicans to begin talking about those kinds of issues.

Question: Will Liberty Union ever win a state-wide election?

Gutman: That's a tough question. I would like to think so, but it's hard to read the future. A heartening sign, to me, has been that when I campaign in neighborhoods in my district, a lot of people say, "Well, you're new, but I think you will have a real chance in five or ten years." I'm usually surprised that people are thinking about winning us that seriously.

Question: Have you been campaigning much?

Gutman: Yes. I've been to almost every house in the district, talking with people, and I've handed out leaflets in the Redstone Dining Halls.

Question: Have you had any other surprises? While campaigning?

Gutman: Yes. I expected a lot of hostility from some people, people who are convinced Republicans or Democrats. Yet only two people, out of several thousand, have been hostile as I go around. And even more surprising is how many people say they have seen our candidates, and are thinking of voting for one or another of them. For Martha Abbott, Bernie Sanders, Michael Parenti.

Question: Why do you think people are more interested in the Liberty Union Party?

Gutman: Inflation. They talk about the problems caused by inflation and by the economic picture.

Question: Could we return to your reasons for running again? Why do you think voters should vote for you?

Gutman: Because I represent an independent attitude, a new voice that could say new things in Montpelier. After all, there are over a hundred legislators, and all are Republicans or Democrats. Some Liberty Union voices would invigorate the whole scene in Montpelier.

Question: Can you be more specific? What would you try to talk about, what would you try to legislate?

Gutman: Well, I think the state of Vermont should take over the electric power industry in the state. If we did that electric rates would not rise so rapidly – there would be no ten percent guaranteed profit funneled off to stockholders, it would be cheaper to borrow money, there would be no more rip-offs like Central Vermont taking a profit on making electricity at Vermont Yankee, another profit on sending it around the state through VELCO, another profit out of selling it to households.

I think the state should set up day-care centers in each electoral district. This would do two things: make jobs, and reduce our high unemployment, and also give women who are mothers some greater degree of choice about what to do with their lives.

I think UVM should reduce tuition for in-state students.

Question: How can that be done? Aren't we facing a budget crisis right now. And aren't tuitions scheduled to go up?

Gutman: If the State Legislature defined clearly what the state subsidy to UVM was going for – support for undergraduate education for Vermonters, specific programs necessary to the state economy, like agriculture – then the state could request, and get, a tuition reduction.

Question: But wouldn't some programs have to be cut in order to do that?

Gutman: Perhaps. But taxpayer's money should go towards things the taxpayers want it to go towards. What I'm suggesting is that the state of Vermont, as the agent for its citizens, has the right to decide what it wants to spend its taxpayer's dollars on. And I think, as a potential legislator as well as a citizen, that the top priority for state money to higher education should be to educate Vermonters well, and at a cost Vermont students can afford to pay.

Question: One final question. What will you do if you don't win on November 5?

Gutman: Well, as I said before, there is a chance I can win. If I don't, I'll do what I'm doing now regardless: work to build a third party, the Liberty Union, so that it can offer an alternative to voters. And, hopefully, to bring about an American society which is more oriented toward the needs of its people, and less concerned about the wealth and health of corporations and other economic special interests.

FLOODTIDE

I opened my eyes to the flood and saw what had yet to be seen.

I heard the tide, and felt the songs of everything that ever was and all things that will be.

And I saw that though I seemed to drift in the middle of the sea or else on the edge of the shore

I was the water
As it was the shore
As they were the light

– which was darkness –

(after the ripping flash), after the tide of all things poured to me and through me in a whirlpool silence that roared,

I was choked
with the dark and the fear of drowning
and the flash of before-thought was blotted out by the moan of the dark open jaws of the waves.

Why was nothing now to scream?
When screams built up like bursting blood and clutched my soul in strangle-grip to writhe in a death-dark dance...

Why dark and pain and pressure-waves
When all I had lived had been silent shores with pebbles white and still as houses?

forced me, formless darkly down to – Light –

(opening my eyes to what I thought was the last glimpse of the dark world...)

I saw it melt from void to form and black became the white,
day was born of night
(and night of day)

And what had seemed to vibrate evil showed itself as good
(and yet it was the same as before) but viewed at last with unborn eyes with newborn eyes

with love

And all the times I'd felt the flood and seen the darkness
feared the void,
I was caught in the hand of God,

(But I'd thought the Light was Darkness and seen the Dark as Light)
And I'd thought I'd drowned – while I was being born...
..."Good" I sighed
as I closed my eyes
...and sank...
...into...
...the stream of things.....

Beverly Hilliard

Wall to wall sound.

Bose 901® Series II speakers are not only directional, they're reflective as well. Which means your walls take an active part in reproducing the sound around you—just as it's heard in the concert hall.

We like the Bose 901's well enough to feature them as the heart of our "best value" balanced sound system. We recommend driving them with a Sony Model 7055 AM/FM receiver, coupled with a MIRICORD – 650 turntable . . . all for the package price of only $890. For our money (and maybe yours), it's the best system you can buy for the bread anywhere.

LAFAYETTE®
157 Pearl St. Essex Jct.

X-COUNTRY SKI PACKAGE $50.00
$92.00 VALUE-Skis, boots, poles, bindings and wax.
(Supply Limited)
All 1974-75 Equipment

REFINISH YOUR SKIS — NOW.
SKI TUNER — $7.00
Wet Belt Sander- Rivals Factory Refinishing Job which cost $20.00 and 6 weeks of your time.

Come In And See "What's New"
1974—1975—Equipment

SKIS	BOOTS	BINDINGS
Dynastar	Lange	Salomon
Dynamic	Heshung	Besser
Olin	Scott	Look-Nevada
Atomic

THE
(The Shop By Experts for ALL SKIERS) royal christy (Visit Us— You'll Enjoy Our Service and Advice)
Within The Ski Shop—Shelburne Road.
• 862-7472 •

Dining

Following is the revised dining hall items:

(1) A four coupon special dinne from 6 – 7 p.m. These will begin on N 31.

(2) All Dining Halls will have a price polaroid film pack.

(3) A special at "The Store" in M

Regular Dining Hall:

Waterman	Mon. – Fri.
Breakfast	7:15 – 9:1
Lunch	11 – 12:30
Dinner	4:30 – 6:0
	(closed F
Simpson
Breakfast	Closed
Lunch	Closed
Dinner	6:00 – 7:00
Marsh
Breakfast	Closed
Lunch (M. – Th.)	12:00 – 1
Dinner (M. – Th.)	5:00 – 7:0
Wright
Breakfast	7:00 – 9:3
Lunch	11:00 – 1
Dinner	4:30 – 6:0
Living Learning
Breakfast	7:00 – 9:0
Lunch	11:30 – 1
Dinner	5:00 – 7:0
Harris-Millis
Breakfast	7:00 – 8:3
Lunch	11:00 – 1
Dinner	4:30 – 6:0

Others:

H/M Ala Carte Line:
Mon. – Thur. Dinner 5:00 – 6

Catamount Den:
Mon. – Fri. 7:30 a.m. – 10:30

Given Cafeteria:
Mon. – Fri. 7:30 a.m. – 10:30

Faculty Dining Room:
Mon. – Fri. Coffee Hour
Lunch
Coffee Hour

Walters Ice Cream Shoppe:
Mon. – Fri. 10:30 a.m. – Mid

Wright Snack Bar:
Sun. – Thurs. 8:00 p.m. – 1

"The White Mouse" at Harris Mill
Sun. Only 5:30 p.m. – 8:00

"Redstone Station" Restaurant
Sat. Only 5:30 p.m. – 7:30 p.

"The Store" at Marsh:
Mon. – Sat. 12 a.m. – 7 p.m.

BEVERAGE
WAREH FANTASTIC
OF BEERS
AMERICAN & WIN
AT GREAT

WHY—COMMIT YOURSELF T PRIESTHOOD
Why be a priest? Certainly, w we live in, being a priest is a fas years past.
And committing oneself to a time seems to be one of the con the priesthood is a challenge. A Today, more than ever before young and old, are searching fo withdrawal from isolation and a experiences, for Good News in t and hope in the place of pessim
The Paulists are trying to m contemporary religious commun people, our mission is to comm to people.
Every Paulist is a missionary News on campus or in the or the printed word. he is co mission is to all of America. His Christ for all people.
It isn't easy but the Paulist Welcomes the challenge. If you way of life, send for the Paulist
Write to: Father Don C. Campb
PAU
FA

...rty Union Ticket

...n floorplates ... you be more ...ould you like to ...t would you try ...

...think the state ...ould take over ...over industry in ...did that electric ...rise so rapidly ... no top percent ...ft funneled off ... it would be ...ow-ridden, there ...ome rip-offs like ...t taking a profit ... electricity at ...akee, another ...g it around the ...(1400) another ... selling it to ...

...state should set ...nters in each ... This would do ...ake jobs, and ...unemployment. ...omen who are ...reater degree of ...hat to do with ...

...d should reduce ...e students.

...can that be ... facing a budget ... And aren't ...d to go up?

... the State ...nd clearly what ... to UVM was ... support for ... education for ...

... formless ...
...n 19
...ght

...g my eyes to what I thought
...e last glimpse
... dark world....)

...n void to form
...e the white,
... night
...y)

...emed to vibrate evil
... good
(and yet it was the same as before)

...t with unborn eyes
...yes

...s I'd felt the flood
...kness
I was caught in the hand of God,

... the Light was Darkness and seen the Dark as Light)
... I'd drowned – while I was being born...
...d
... eyes

...the stream of things.....

Beverly Hilliard

...E $50.00
...indings and wax.
(Supply Limited)
All 1974-75 Equipment

...S — NOW,
...7.00
... which cost $20.00

...t's New"
...oment

BINDINGS
Salomon
Besser
Look-Nevada

...risty (Visit Us— You'll Enjoy Our Service and Advice)
... Road.

Dining Hall Schedule

Following is the revised dining hall meal hour schedule. Please note the following special items:

(1) A four coupon special dinner at Simpson Dining Hall Monday – Thursday nights from 6 – 7 p.m. These will begin on November 4.

(2) All Dining Halls will have a Halloween/Harvest special meal on Thursday, October 31.

(3) A special at "The Store" in MAT will be offered during the week, featuring a reduced price polaroid film pack.

Regular Dining Hall:

	Mon.–Fri.	Sat.	Sun.
Waterman
Breakfast	7:15 – 9:15	Closed	Closed
Lunch	11 – 12:30	Closed	Closed
Dinner	4:30 – 6:00 (Mon.–Thur) (closed Fri.)	Closed	Closed
Simpson
Breakfast	Closed	8:00 – 9:00	8:00 – 9:00
Lunch	Closed	11:00 – 1:00	11:00 – 1:00
Dinner	6:00–7:00 (Mon.–Thur. only)	4:30 – 6:30	4:30 – 6:30
Marsh
Breakfast	Closed	Closed	Closed
Lunch (M.–Th.)	12:00 – 1:30, closed Fri.	11:00 – 1:00	Closed
Dinner (M.–Th.)	5:00 – 7:00, closed Fri.	5:00 – 6:30	Closed
Wright
Breakfast	7:00 – 9:30	Closed	Closed
Lunch	11:00 – 1:30	Closed	Closed
Dinner	4:30 – 6:00	Closed	Closed
Living Learning
Breakfast	7:00 – 9:00	8:00 – 9:00	8:00 – 9:00
Lunch	11:30 – 12:30	10:30 – 12:30	10:30 – 12:30
Dinner	5:00 – 7:00	4:30 – 6:30	4:30 – 6:30
Harris-Millis
Breakfast	7:00 – 8:30	Closed	Closed
Lunch	11:00 – 12:30	Closed	12:00 – 1:00
Dinner	4:30 – 6:00	Closed	Closed

Others:

H/M Ala Carte Line:
Mon. – Thur. Dinner 5:00 – 6:00

Catamount Den:
Mon. – Fri. 7:30 a.m. – 10:30 p.m. Closed 3:30 – 10:30 p.m.

Given Cafeteria:
Mon. – Fri. 7:30 a.m. – 10:30 a.m. 11:15 a.m. – 1:00 p.m.

Faculty Dining Room:
Mon. – Fri. Coffee Hour 8:30 a.m. – 1:15 p.m.
Lunch 11:30 a.m. – 1:15 p.m.
Coffee Hour 2:15 p.m. – 3:30 p.m.

Walters Ice Cream Shoppe:
Mon. – Fri. 10:30 a.m. – Midnight Sat. & Sun 1:30 p.m. – 1:00 a.m.

Wright Snack Bar:
Sun. – Thurs. 8:00 p.m. – 10:30 p.m.

"The White Mouse" at Harris Millis:
Sun. Only – 5:30 p.m. – 8:00 p.m.

"Redstone Station" Restaurant at Wright:
Sat. Only 5:30 p.m. – 7:30 p.m.

"The Store" at Marsh:
Mon. – Sat. 12 a.m. – 7 p.m.

Canadian Studies To Sponsor Rare Exhibits

The University of Vermont Canadian Studies Program is sponsoring two unique exhibits on the campus for the month of November as part of a continuing effort to make Canada a better-known country.

On November 4, a "Living With Snow" exhibit, part of the permanent collection of the National Museum of Science and Technology in Ottowa, will open in the North Lounge of Billings Center. "Living With Snow" is a graphic display of what it means to live in a country with prolonged snow cover. It will include a set of 45 panels with photographs, maps, diagrams and commentary on the nature of snow, problems caused by snow, the effect of snow on various kinds of transportation, skiing and the local economic effects of the development of a ski area, snow and survival from military and civilian standpoints, snow distribution and numerous other aspects. There will also be continuous slide shows, the first original Ski-Doo mass-produced by A.J. Bombadier Company, and a snow-making nozzle from RAB Engineering Company.

The exhibit, conceived by David Brack of Environment Canada and designed by Alan Todd of the Exposition Division, was originally prepared for the Twenty-Second International Geographical Congress held in Montreal in 1972 and has never before been outside of Canada. It is being co-sponsored by the Center for Northern Studies in Wolcott, Vermont.

On November 7, the Honorable Jean-Louis Delisle, Consul General for Canada in Boston, will formally open an exhibit of Eskimo art in the Small Gallery of the Fleming Museum.

A panel from the "Living With Snow" exhibit opening in Billings November 4.

One of the works of Eskimo art to be shown in the Fleming Museum beginning November 7.

The Eskimo exhibit comes to UVM from the private collection of the Canadian Department of Indian and Northern Affairs. It consists of thirty prints and thirty-seven carvings and is designed to give an overview of art activity in the Canadian North in the past fifteen years.

Six of the artists were represented in the major international exhibition Sculpture/Innuit of 1971-72. A 20-minute film on Eskimo carving, Kenojuak, will be shown at intervals throughout the display period.

Dr. Edward Miles, head of the Canadian Studies Program, was enthusiastic about the imminent arrival of the exhibits. "These exhibits... are significant not only because of their individual unique character but also because they represent the first efforts of the Canadian Studies Program in the areas of the fine arts and sciences," declared Miles.

"The program's major efforts have been in the social sciences and humanities."

Both displays will be open to the public at no charge. Billings Center is open weekdays from 7:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m., Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Sundays from 2 p.m. to 11:30 p.m.

The Fleming Museum is open weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 1 – 5 p.m. on Sundays, closed Saturdays.

These two projects have been made possible by a grant to the University of Vermont Canadian Studies Program by the William H. Donner Foundation.

BEVERAGE WAREHOUSE
FANTASTIC SELECTION OF BEERS, ALES, AND AMERICAN & IMPORTED WINES AT GREAT SAVINGS

WHY COMMIT YOURSELF TO THE PRIESTHOOD?

Why be a priest? Certainly, in times as difficult as these we live in, being a priest is a lot harder today than it was in years past.

And committing oneself to anything for any amount of time seems to be one of the conflicts of our modern age. But the priesthood is a challenge. A big one.

Today, more than ever before in history, men and women, young and old, are searching for religious meaning, for withdrawal from isolation and alienation to joyful community experiences, for Good News in the midst of discouragement and hope in the place of pessimism.

The Paulists are trying to minister to these needs. As a contemporary religious community serving the American people, our mission is to communicate the love of Christ to people.

Every Paulist is a missionary; in the pulpit or the parish house . . . on campus or in the inner-city . . . with the spoken or the printed word . . . he is communicating to people. His mission is to all of America. His message is love, the love of Christ for all people.

It isn't easy but the Paulist welcomes commitment. Welcomes the challenge. If you are interested in the Paulist way of life, send for the Paulist Papers.

Write to: Father Elon C. Campbell, Room 101

PAULIST FATHERS

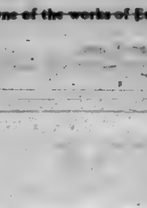
Mobil Snow Tire Prices
Three Types To Select From!

$23.95
Any Size Listed Below
Mobil Super Traction 78

Tire Size	Regular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
A78-13	34.01	23.95	1.70
F78-14	36.62	23.95	2.41
G78-14	32.89	23.95	2.66
600-15	35.33	23.95	1.78
G78-15	32.89	23.95	2.63

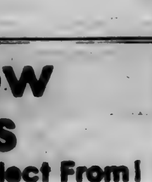
$33.95
Any Size Listed Below
Mobil Super Traction Belted

Tire Size	Regular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
A78-13	36.95	33.95	1.99
C78-13	38.95	33.95	1.80
E78-14	42.95	33.95	2.33
F78-14	46.95	33.95	2.89
G78-14	46.95	33.95	2.87
F78-15	45.95	33.95	2.86
G78-15	45.95	33.95	2.76



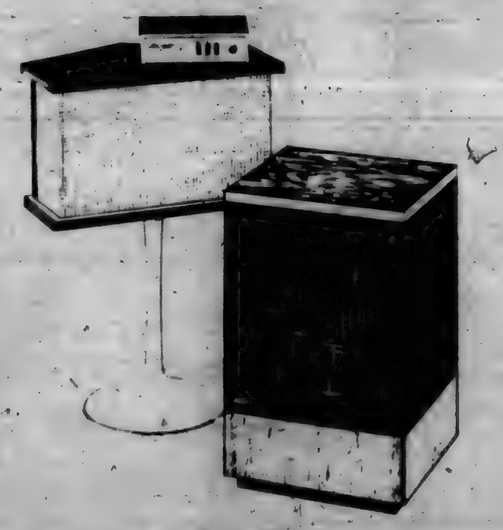
$49.95
Any Size Listed Below
Mobil Radial Traction

Tire Size	Regular Price	SALE PRICE	F.E.T.
FR78-14	57.95	49.95	2.81
GR78-14	58.95	49.95	2.95
HR78-14	62.95	49.95	3.15
GR78-15	61.95	49.95	3.05
HR78-15	63.95	49.95	3.25
LR78-15	67.95	49.95	3.60



SPILLANES SERVICECENTER
Williston Road

This is BOSE WEEK at VERMONT...



The manufacturers of the finest quality loudspeakers and electronics are sending a team of experts to U.V.M., November 5,6,&7.

There will be some fantastic presentations at BILLINGS including special demonstrations of stereo and quad, even using a computer.

Be sure to visit your local dealers this week.

Dealers in your area are:

LAFAYETTE RADIO, 157 Pearl Street; Essex Junction
TECH HI-FI, 150 Church Street, Burlington

You could win the $1000-plus Stereo System which will be given away during BOSE week. Any student can enter, any student can win.

You could WIN from these fine manufacturers:

Dual Sansui TEAC SHURE BOSE

Earth Shoe
139 bank st. · burlington, vt. 05401

WRUV Editorial Criticizes Homecoming Weekend

—The following is a transcript of an editorial broadcast on WRUV-AM-FM on Oct. 23, 1974.

The leaves have settled. The parking lots have returned to normal and another UVM Homecoming - Parents weekend has come and gone. It is a being unto itself and may best illustrate what the University is all about.

For one weekend in the early fall graduates and parents of current students are invited to enjoy the spirit of University life that they have either heard about or experienced. To the "University" or public relations - alumni - development office, this weekend represents the last one before the winter drought. Like the store manager who must make his bundle at Christmas before the January sales, the University attempts to tap the collected wealth of those returning to revel in college life. And such Wealth!

During the weekend students dodge Mercedes, El Dorados, LTDs and Winnebago campers, which is a definite cut above the standard Main Street ("Avenue of Death") bill of fare.

To create the illusion of the college atmosphere, events are scheduled and appearances are spruced up. On the weekend we have a concert, a BBQ, a football game, some beer blasts, an Oktoberfest and speeches at dinners. But is this college life?

Why not have the parents see the classes and those professors we talk at home about? Of course don't schedule it. Spot checks by regulatory powers have proven to be much more effective. True, it does take an evening to demonstrate the buzzing of the fluorescent lights in the library, a semester to learn the paper chase of registering and perhaps four years to learn why we are here at all! But we could show them some of the physical problems like the speed dips at Davis. Speed Dips? Why they disappeared just before the weekend and reappeared on the Tuesday after. Are Cadillac shocks worth more to the University donation-wise than student shocks?

Then there's the football game. the ocsist of college life a st[illegible] of school spirit, a crisp autumn day, rah-rah and pigskin. Let me set the stage for you who didn't attend. Entering the gate you buy your ticket, then you program. To your right someone is selling mums. There's the entrance to the BBQ tent. Posing that we see the gymnastics team with their Quaker Oats, cans slit and proffered to accept coins. Funneled towards the stands, the crowd goes between two cheerleaders. "Support the cheerleaders. One on your left. One on your right." Whether or not this is a method to separate political ideologies goes unanswered. Seated, we are entertained by a good band and by the ironic spectacle brought before us.

"Support these fellows who have walked through Burlington. They will be bringing around a barrel. Give what you can." This is the first of an endless stream of "Give and/or donate what you can" type messages that included the United Way and perhaps the most needy of all the UVM Football team – for recruiting. We were behind and fumbling at the time. The PA also asked us to "bring your attention to the UVM Cheerleaders". I always thought they were supposed to do that themselves.

The football team lost. One returning alumni was heard saying "I've been coming for 11 years to these damn things and we haven't won one yet!"

You see, no one wins at Homecoming. The students, who have become "good friends" with their lovers, are slightly embarrassed by the whole affair and try to ditch their parents by halftime. This is not because they don't love their mothers and fathers but they just don't wish to submit them to further "plasticity". They then return to their bedfellows in time to get sloshed Saturday night. The parents get milked economically and lulled into a false security by the surroundings.

But, it's not all bad. SAGA's Saturday night meal was one of the best in recent history. Wafer-thin roast beef swelled into thick juicy slices. (Here's another area for spot checks by our older bill payers and guardians!"

My folks came. I wasn't embarrassed. Three years of UVM allows you to give them a certain perspective. "What you see ain't what you get!"

And these organizations that follow the University's lead and try to get room on a teat of the gold cow are actually worthwhile outfits.

I think the whole affair is best summed up by a hung-over veteran asked in a fluid mechanics (that's a bathroom) on Monday morning.

"How was Homecoming?"

"Fine, I went home."

I'm Tim Lewis.

One View Of Vermont's Elections

(continued from page four)

nations that have as much right to resources and as much need for them as we do. It is unethical to the same extent that any action that limits the flow of knowledge that would better the human conditions on this earth is unethical.

The world food problem.

Mallary: Short term: do what we can to alleviate hunger by direct food export.

Long term: do what we can to increase agricultural production by means of technological exports, and to try to persuade the Arabs to make oil for fertilizer and energy available to food-deficit areas.

Leahy: To do what we can to alleviate hunger and to develop methods of producing vegetable protein, and then exporting that technology.

On this issue both men understand the problem; however Mr. Mallary seems to have greater knowledge of the intricacies of the problem.

When it comes down to the point of having to choose a candidate, I feel that I have to give my support to Mr. Mallary. Although both men would make excellent senators, Mr. Leahy exhibits a few faults that in my mind give Mallary the edge.

For instance, Mr. Leahy tends to attack his opponents so viciously that he risks alienating himself from and disrupting the potentially smooth-running machinery of the senate body. Since the Senate is the major source of our foreign policy, such action in the long run could endanger the chances of peaceful negotiations with other nations.

Mr. Leahy also has a tendency to look at a problem with an inappropriate sense of justice. One can not always show the utility of an apparently just solution, and I feel that justice encompasses utility so long as there is no disproportional and negative utility for any individual. What I mean to say is that before one can judge a corporation harshly for excess profits one must be able to show in what way those excess profits are a detriment to society. Mr. Leahy does not seem to take this into account.

JEFFORDS VS PARENTI VS CAIN

I cannot analyze these three candidates on the basis of the issues. There are no longer any issues. Even if there were issues left to argue I would not be able to argue them, because two of the candidates seem to have packed up and deserted the effort.

In five days I have not been able to reach either Frank Cain or Michael Parenti. It is of little consequence to any one because the election is all but over.

James Jeffords will win this election even if he raped an underage giraffe on the corner of Church Street at noon tomorrow. I will tell you as much about the other two candidates as I can anyway, so that you may vote with the benefit of my enlightened opinion.

Jeffords is the obvious choice for this election. People know his name and he is a Republican in a Republican state. He appears intelligent and he has the ability to be fluent without alienating the people.

Parenti is also fluent but his fluency is a detriment to him. People understand what he is saying and they consider him to be somewhat of a joke.

He would be one of the worst possible choices for the House because of his inability to adapt to the ideas of others. He could not work with others and he always, or at least whenever I have met him, has a chip on his shoulder. I have little use for a man with no tolerance.

Francis Cain has acceptable ideas, but he has not made them known, and for that matter he is relatively unknown himself. He lacks the fluency of his opponents, but even more important he lacks the votes that James Jeffords has.

James Jeffords will win.

SALMON VS KENNEDY

This is a simple race to predict. Salmon will win hands down. The issue is the economy of Vermont. But the issues are not going to decide the outcome. Salmon is an incumbent and he is reasonably popular. That is an unbeatable combination. Even some of the most stalwart Republicans that I have talked to admit defeat. What is even more damaging to Kennedy is that he is just not smart enough to be Governor. Even the majority of the Republicans seem to believe this.

The way both men want to deal with the economy is tax reform. Salmon wants to make the taxes more responsive to the needs of Vermonters, and Kennedy wants to make the tax simpler and less costly to levy.

Salmon has a reputation for being a slick politician and Kennedy was speaker of the Vermont house when the taxes he abhors so were instituted.

Take your choice, it is all you really have.

AN EVENING'S CHOICE
TWO POEMS
by Steven Rice

Not Tonight, Babe

Getting on in the evening hour,
Down to my last dollar,
As the jukebox plays a love song,
And the girl beside me rubs my knee.

Don't even know her name,
She doesn't seem to mind,
She just wants some company,
I'm her bed this evening.

But it's all wrong how we
Eventually get there.
Sitting in this bar, sipping
Whiskey Sours, spending my money,
To buy some company,
Between the sheets, intoxicated,
And it will feel good,
So good.

But when the sun comes through
The window, it will be over,
As we light our cigarettes,
Smiling to hide the hurt,

Inside the other,
Each of us will be,
Strangers still,
Maybe more so,
We won't meet again.

Oh, babe, I can't do it,
Tonight, just ain't right,
I've got to go.
Here, spend my last dollar,
On another sour,
Another guy will be around,
By the time your glass gets Empty.

THE WITCHING HOUR SALE...

FREE COFFEE & DONUTS

HALLOWEEN NIGHT, 11:00pm - 2:00AM. THE MOST AMAZING DEALS IN THE HISTORY OF HIFI, 3 HOURS ONLY, AT TECH HIFI!

COME IN COSTUME, GET AN ADDITIONAL 5% OFF!

win this system!

COME IN AND REGISTER TO WIN THIS BSR, SANSUI, & CREATIVE SYSTEM! WORTH ABOUT $400.00! NO PURCHASE REQ'D

DRAWING AT MIDNITE!!

$130 OFF LIST PRICE ON: NIKKO 2020 RECEIVER, GLENBURN 2155A TURNTABLE, STUDIOCRAFT 330 SPEAKERS. SOUNDS LIKE A $600 SYSTEM! $379.00

THE MIGHTY MIDGET! 3" DEEP!!! LIST: 328. SANSUI AU-101, GLENBURN 2110, STUDIOCRAFT 110's $228.00 MANY OTHERS TOO!!!

specials

Pilot 254 Receiver 60 WATTS RMS/CHAN, 8Ω, 20-20KHz, LIST PRICE $500, SALE $399.00

BSR 610 AWX Automatic turntable w/ cast platter LIST 110.00 SALE 79.00

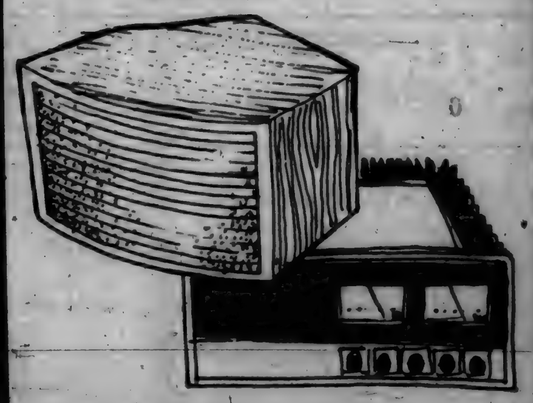
30% OFF (THIS ONLY!) ON... ALL MARANTZ 4-CHAN. GEAR IN STOCK! ON... SELECTED DEMOS BY KLH, AR, PILOT, SHERWOOD, NIKKO, ETC!!

save $200 (THAT'S A LOT, FOLKS!) Soundcraft Sansui BSR

3 GREAT NAMES COMBINE FOR 1 FANTASTIC SYSTEM. FAR TOO BIG TO PICTURE HERE, WITH SOUND TO MATCH! STUDIOCRAFT 440's; BSR 610 AWX; SANSUI 551. LISTS FOR 769.00 DELUXE! $569.00

TECH hifi 150 CHURCH ST. BURLINGTON

tech hifi is the place for BOSE speakers and amps...



tech hifi

Former

by Gregory S. Mertz
President, Student Pre-Law Association

On Monday, Nov. 4, UVM undergraduates interested in the study of law will have the unique opportunity to speak with and listen to several former UVM students who have gone on to law school. An alumni law panel has been formed to return to UVM and speak with students about the problems that confront those who will be going on to law school.

The panel will be composed of five UVM undergraduates who either have completed, or are about to complete law school. Specifically they will address themselves to three basic areas of concern.

The first topic to be discussed deals with the advantages and disadvantages of possessing a UVM education. Students need to have some idea of which courses will adequately prepare them for the study of law. Secondly, the panel will elaborate on what one should expect to encounter in law school.

Lastly, the panel will be asked to discuss careers in the law. This topic will be dealt with, as will the second, in general and specific terms. Panelists will talk about their own experiences and expand these into less specific areas.

All of the panelists are

Jewish

The Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds (CJFWF) is offering a combination of scholarship grants and loans to young men and women who seek to prepare themselves for careers with Jewish Federations in the United States and Canada.

The scholarships provide for a grant of up to $6,000 for living expenses and tuition for the first year, and a loan for an equal amount for the second year. The loan is repayable over a period of 10 years starting with the December following graduation after job placement.

The scholarship is open to college seniors who will receive B.A. or B.S. in any major course of study and graduate students

S

Who u

SA Speakers brings spea educational, cultural an must be chosen from v
as Ralph Nader, Elizabe efforts of SA Speakers.
we need your suggestion
see, along with your rea and leave it at th

Name of Spea
Any additional i
Topic of the s

The cost of th
Where the sp

OPTIONAL

Your Name:
Address
Phone Numb

AN EVENING'S CHOICE
TWO POEMS
by Steven Rice

Not Tonight, Babe

Getting on in the evening hour,
Down to my last dollar,
As the jukebox plays a love song,
And the girl beside me rubs my knee.

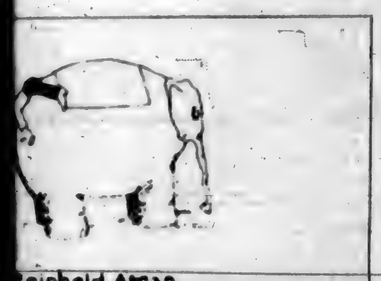
Don't even know her name,
She doesn't seem to mind,
She just wants some company,
In her bed this evening.

But it's all wrong how we
Eventually get there.
Sitting in this bar, sipping
Whiskey Sours, spending my money,
To buy some company,
But when the sheets, intoxicated,
And it will feel good,
So good.

But when the sun comes through
The window, it will be over,
As we light our cigarettes,
Smiling to hide the hurt,

Inside the other,
Each of us will be,
Strangers still,
Maybe more so,
We won't meet again.

Oh, babe, I can't do it,
Tonight, just ain't right,
I've got to go.
Here, spend my last dollar,
On another sour,
Another guy will be around,
By the time your glass gets
Empty.



Reinhold Aman

hifi is place

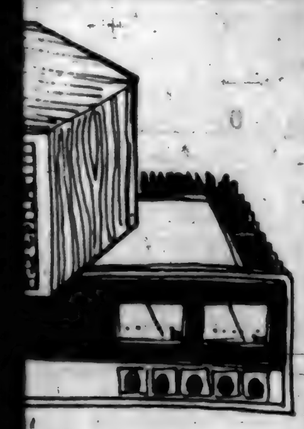
SE

kers and
...



hifi

Former Pre-Law Students Tell Of Experiences

by Gregory S. Mertz
President, Student Pre-Law Association

On Monday, Nov. 4, UVM undergraduates interested in the study of law will have the unique opportunity to speak with and listen to several former UVM students who have gone on to law school. An alumni law panel has been formed to return to UVM and speak with students about the problems that confront those who will be going on to law school.

The panel will be composed of five UVM undergraduates who either have completed, or are about to complete law school. Specifically they will address themselves to three basic areas of concern.

The first topic to be discussed deals with the advantages and disadvantages of possessing a UVM education. Students need to have some idea of which courses will adequately prepare them for the study of law. Secondly, the panel will elaborate on what one should expect to encounter in law school.

Lastly, the panel will be asked to discuss careers in the law. This topic will be dealt with, as will the second, in general and specific terms. Panelists will talk about their own experiences and expand these into less specific areas.

All of the panelists are distinguished members of the legal community and the opportunity they offer is of special significance to pre-law students. Here is a short description of each panelist's career:

Gerald D. Jacobson graduated from UVM in 1962. Upon graduation from UVM he entered law school at Cornell University. He received his LL. B. in 1965. He then enrolled in the New York University School of Law, receiving a Masters degree in labor law in 1966.

From August of 1966 until June of 1969, Jacobson was associated with the General Counsel of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, AFL-CIO.

From June 1966 to July 1970 he was associated with a management law firm with offices in New York City, and Nassau County.

During these periods he participated extensively in representation and unfair labor practice proceedings, collective bargaining negotiations and arbitration proceedings in both the private and public sectors.

He is presently an attorney, arbitrator, mediator and factfinder associated with Guggenheimer and Untermyer. He is a contributor to the publication of the Practicing Law Institute, Basic Labor Relations.

Paul Jarvis graduated from UVM in 1969. He attended Boston College law school and received his degree in 1972. He was admitted to the Vermont Bar Association in the fall of 1972 and is presently Deputy State's Attorney of Chittenden County. He has had both trial and appelate level experience. He is a resident of Essex Junction.

Ellen Jane Musinsky is a senior enrolled in the law school of Northeastern University. Northeastern is a school operating on the cooperative plan. This plan integrates the classroom experience with actual employment in a law firm. It is a relatively new program and Musinsky should be quite interesting.

She graduated from the University in 1972. Her legal internship has placed her in such employment as research assistant for the U.S. Department of Transportation and the Bureau of Developmental Disabilities, association with the New Hampshire Legal Assistance program, and research assistant for the Harvard School of Public Health.

These various programs are wide in scope and help to illustrate the concept of what a Northeaster thinks a legal education is all about.

Robert I. Richter graduated from UVM in May of 1969. He then took a place in the all 1969 freshmen class of the University of Chicago school of law.

He graduated first in his class in June of 1972 and received a clerkship with Judge Irving I. Goldberg, United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

This clerkship ran until 1973 when Richter received another federal clerkship. He was appointed to be law clerk to Justice Harry A. Blackman, Supreme Court of the United States for the '73-'74 term.

Upon completion of his clerkship to Justice Blackman he became an associate with Shea and Gardner, a law firm located in Washington, D.C. Richter's distinguished career speaks for itself.

Marilyn A. Sloane is a UVM graduate from the class of 1965.

She received her LLB(JD) from Columbia Law School in 1968. She was a semi-finalist in the Moot Court Honor competition and has published two legal articles to her credit.

Her legal experience dates back to 1968 when she was associated with the legal department of the C.I.T. Financial Corporation. In 1969 until 1970 she was associated with the legal department of the Long Island Lighting Company.

From August of 1971 until December of 1972 she had full legal responsibility for all the legal matters of C.E.D.C. Inc.

She is presently associated with the Community Legal Assistance Corporation handling such areas as: criminal violations, family law, and landlord-tenant relationships.

Two meetings will take place. The first will run from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Marsh Lounge of the Billings student center. This will be a formalized session during which each panelist will present a prepared statement regarding their individual experiences.

A second meeting will occur from 7:45 to 9 p.m. in the John Dewey Memorial Lounge in Old Mill. This will be an informal session during which individual interaction will be encouraged.

This should be a valuable experience for UVM undergraduates. All those so inclined should attend.

Medieval Summer Program

An interdisciplinary Medieval Institute in Assisi, Italy, will be held this summer by the University of Vermont, under the sponsorship of the Medieval-Renaissance Program. Running from May 28 to July 5, the Institute's students and faculty will live and eat in a Franciscan monastery in the center of this uniquely medieval town, and will receive six hours of academic credit for studying two coordinated courses.

Two members of the University faculty who are medieval specialists will do the teaching. Professor Alfred Andrea of History will teach the history of monasticism. Professor William Stephany of English will teach the work of Dante in the context of the medieval world. Both courses will expand their subjects to include a vision of the total environment of the Middle Ages which Assisi offers. The Franciscan monastic society which began in this place; the relatively unchanged medieval nature of the town, and the rural farmland which surrounds it; the numerous medieval churches and their frescoes and statuary; the music of the churches; all combine here to make an ideal setting for interdisciplinary medieval study.

For the student who was already thinking of spending summer in Europe, this Institute adds little to total expenses, gives six credits – either graduate or undergraduate – and leaves much of the summer free for further travel. For the student interested in the Middle Ages, this Institute is a unique opportunity at interdisciplinary study in a uniquely medieval place. It will be the only program in Italy concentrating on things medieval, and one of the few in all Europe.

The all-inclusive cost, which covers transportation, tuition, room, meals – everything – is $1300.

In addition, one- and two-day trips to other important centers of the Middle Ages are planned: to Ravenna and Padua, to Florence and Siena, to Orvieto and Arezzo and Perugia. Free time on several weekends will also be provided, so students may, if they wish, journey to other places which interest them. Further, the program will start with three days of sightseeing in Rome, to help get accustomed to life in Italy.

For brochures and further information, interested students may contact Professor James Howe, English Department, ext. 3056.

...Jung Psychology Symposium

(continued from page three)

psychology is the process of individuation or the development of the individual towards a wholeness which integrates the warring tendencies of the conscious and unconscious mind. This process, a lifetime's work, demands a creative dialogue with the contents of the unconscious as they appear in symbolic form. For Jung the libido is no longer a purely sexual drive but the transforming dynamic leading to integration.

The broad compass of Jung's studies attracted to him scholars from many different fields: Richard Wilhelm, translator of the I Ching, Martin Buber, the Jewish philosopher, and Wolfgang Pauli, the Nobel prize - winning physicist to name but a few of them. In later years Jung himself became more absorbed in the study of the symbolism of oriental religions and medieval alchemy. It was not until he was 82, however, that he agreed to publish memoirs that contained his own inner journey, Memories, Dreams, and Reflections – a book that must rank as one of the great spiritual autobiographies of our time. It is the essence of this journey and the more general human applications of Jung's insights that the symposium will seek to present and explore.

Jewish Council Offers Scholarship Grants And Loans

The Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds (CJFWF) is offering a combination of scholarship grants and loans to young men and women who seek to prepare themselves for careers with Jewish Federations in the United States and Canada.

The scholarships provide for a grant of up to $6,000 for living expenses and tuition for the first year, and a loan for an equal amount for the second year. The loan is repayable over a period of 10 years starting with the December following graduation after job placement.

The scholarship is open to college seniors who will receive B.A. or B.S. in any major course of study and graduate students M.A. or M.S.

Five distinct consortia, offer a specialized and integrated graduate degree (MSW – M.A.) encompassing a School of Social Work, and a related institution of higher Jewish learning with a component field work placement and instruction within a Jewish Federation.

The five programs are in: Baltimore, Boston, Cleveland, Los Angeles and New York as follows:

– The Baltimore Institute of Jewish Communal Service, a cooperative program of the School of Social Work and Community Planning, University of Maryland and the Baltimore Hebrew College with the Baltimore Associated Jewish Charities & Welfare Funds.

– School of Applied Social Science at Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, a cooperative program with the Cleveland College of Jewish Studies and the Jewish Community Federation of Cleveland.

– Brandeis University – The Benjamin S. Hornstein Program in Jewish Communal Service, a cooperative program of the Florence Heller Graduate School of Advanced Studies in Social Welfare and the Lown Graduate Center for Contemporary Jewish Studies, in cooperation with the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

– The Wurzweiler School of Social Work, Yeshiva University, in cooperation with the William E. Wiener Educational Center for Jewish Communal Service of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York.

– School of Social Work at the University of Southern California, a cooperative program with the Hebrew Union College – Jewish Institute of Religion, California School of Jewish Communal Service and the Los Angeles Jewish Federation Council.

The community organization curriculum provides the core knowledge base for practice in Jewish Federations. The Judaic component, field practice, and the class curriculum at the School of Social Work are integrated through a variety of required and elective learning experiences. Field work practice and supervision is provided through the Jewish Federation.

The candidates awarded the scholarships and loans should understand that they will be placed by CJFWF in the initial entry position with a Jewish Federation upon satisfactory completion of the course of study. As professional experience is gained, it is expected that these graduates will move up to the higher executive-managerial positions and ultimately to executive positions with Jewish Federations.

The opportunity to keep professionally up to date in this complex and changing field, is provided to all professionals through special programs and seminars developed by CJFWF.

Interested students can contact Prof. Kahn, advisor of Hillel Foundation, for more information.

SA SPEAKERS
Who would you like to hear?

SA Speakers brings speakers and events to the university in an effort to help satisfy the social, educational, cultural and recreational needs of students. In order to do this, speakers and events must be chosen from varied fields of interest and disciplines. This fall alone SA Speakers c as Ralph Nader, Elizabeth Holtzman, and Dick Gregory have appeared on campus through the efforts of SA Speakers. In planning for the remainder of this semester and for next semester, we need your suggestions. We need to know about speakers and events that you would like to see, along with your reactions to events we've already presented. Please fill out the form below and leave it at the Student Activities desk in the Main Lobby of Billings Center if you have any ideas.

SA SPEAKERS
Suggestions

Name of Speaker

Any additional information you may have, such as:
Topic of the speaking event:

The cost of the speaker:

Where the speaker can be reached:

OPTIONAL

Your Name:

Address

Phone Number:

SOUND SYMPOSIUM

WIN AN $1150 SOUND SYSTEM*
Register at the exciting demonstration in BILLINGS CENTER
November 5,6,7
See the fabulous audio equipment of these manufacturers
Dual Sansui TEAC SHURE BOSE
*No purchase necessary

The Next Thing's November Workshops

(continued from page two)

Coming from our experience in Outward Bound, and our interest in Humanistic Psychology, we will share some limit-stretching experiences. Hopefully we will meet and break through some of our self-imposed limitation while discovering both some of our strengths and the strength of groups. This workshop will require much prior organization, so please let us know 2 weeks ahead if you're interested.

Basic Auto Repair and Maintenance for Women, with the Women's Switchboard

Friday, November 1, 7:30 p.m. Changing a tire, plugs and points, oil change. Open to women only. Women skilled in this area will conduct the workshop to further strengthen and support women.

Creative Thinking, with Jill Stephenson

Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Nov. 4,5, 6, 7:30 p.m. in Room B107 at Living-Learning Center, UVM, free.

Creativity is more than a potential which we all possess in varying degrees. It is an attitude an individual has about himself and his relation to his world. It is a way of looking at something, a way of questioning, perhaps a way of life. All one needs to enjoy this workshop is a sense of wonder, curiosity, and a willingness to take risks.

Astrology, with Brad Summers

Monday, Nov. 4, 7-9 p.m. free.

An introductory talk on chart construction, methods of interpretation, transits, progressions, and occult philosophy. This session is directed toward beginning and intermediate students. The program may continue for additional sessions, if appropriate. For more information, 434-2431.

Counseling, with Rosemary Rexford

Four Tuesdays, Nov. 5-26, 3-6 p.m.

This lab will offer participants an opportunity to expand knowledge and experience of counseling. We will discuss the variables or traits that make up the core of qualities which are present in high-functioning individuals regardless of their specific roles. We will explore the helping relationship through a variety of models. Mode will be experiencing through practice, and discussion of the experience. Participants may expect to learn some basic skills they can use after the workshop is over. Minimum of 6, maximum of 18.

Drama Workshop, with Brad Summers

Tuesday, Nov. 5, 7-9 p.m.

Selected from about forty improvinational games, these workshop techniques are easily adaptable to use with kids. These exercises are fun.

Basic Hi-Fi, with Mike Patterson, Alan Campbell, and Ran Adams

Wednesday, Nov.6, 7:30 p.m.

A discussion of the process of sound reproduction, from record or tape to loudspeaker. Functions of different components; interpretation of specs, etc.

Issues in Sex Education, with Frank Hatch, Mary Hewitt, and Dr. Schmucker

Two Wednesdays, Nov. 6 and 13, 7:30 p.m. in the Counseling and Testing Building, UVM.

The two session workshop will focus on a demonstration of Planned Parenthood's approach to sex education and a discussion of related issues. The second meeting will be centered on applications to various settings and the use of creative problem solving where difficulties are perceived.

Alternatives in Healing, with Danny Mayer, MD, and Lee Zepp

6-8 Wednesdays, Nov. 6 onward, 6:30-9:30, at the Threshold space, 65 Main St., $2 per session if possible.

This course will explore different methods of healing from acupuncture, spiritualism and herbs to modern western medicine and chiropractics. We will look into the connections between these different methods and will discuss their applications to curing illness in today's world. This 6-8 week course is designed for participants in Danny's or Lee's earlier courses.

Values Clarification, with Steve Gold

Thursday, Nov. 7, 7-10 p.m., $3 per participant

Values Clarification is an approach to teaching and living in which people are encouraged to recognize, appreciate, make choices based upon and act on their own unique set of values. It is also a process of clarifying how one sees oneself in relation to the world. This workshop will introduce the theory of values clarification, provide participants an opportunity to experience the process and allow time for sharing this approach and how it can be used in various back home situations.

Consciousness and Mind: The Internal Universe, with John Lippincott

Friday, Nov. 8, 7-12 p.m.

As beings we are expressions of the Universe. In this workshop we will discuss the nature of our consciousness and through the medium of relaxation and fantasy seek to develop it. Limit of 12.

Encounter For Couples, with John and Caroline Perry

Fridays and Saturdays, Nov. 8 and 9, 7 to noon, at the Center for Human Potential in East Monkton (30 minutes south of UVM). 453-3660, $2.50 deposit 1 week ahead, $2.50 for food due on arrival: please make checks for this workshop out to the C.H.P.

A mini-marathon for couples (people who live together with some sort of time commitment). A chance to share your experiences with other couples in an atmosphere of relaxed, mutual trust. This won't be a therapy session, although it might be "therapeutic"; it won't be a cocktail party, although it might be good social fun, be prepared to talk about about the two of you and your relationship.

See 10/11&12, Perry for food, lodging, travel details. Blackbelts and Bull, with local experts

Monday, Nov. 11, at 7:30 p.m.

There's a lot of interest in the Martial Arts. This is a chance to sit down with some local experts on judo, karate, etc. and talk with them on a one-to-one basis. A chance, also, to ask questions and get some straight answers.

Hypnosis And ASC with Associates in Parapsychology

Tuesday, Nov. 12, 7:30

Pharmacology of Drugs of Abuse, with Steve Gold

Wednesday, Nov. 13, 7-10 p.m.

A basic introduction to and discussion of commonly abused drugs. What these substances are called, what general classes they fall into, and how they affect the human body will be examined. Information on emergency first aid measures will be available.

General Systems Theory, with Louise Lindner

Friday, Nov. 15, at 7:30

An introduction to sytems theory as a useful way of looking at any organization or institution. Particularly helpful for people in leadership positions to look at ways of managing bourdaries.

Sun, Rain, and Good Soil Weekend, with Dan Meyer

Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Nov. 15, 16, and 17, 8 p.m. to 2 p.m., for details on where and how much it will cost, call Dan at 863-1264.

People, like all other beings, seem to grow best in a setting where they get plenty of nourishment. In humans this seems to take the form of others affirming one's basic humanness and supporting each other's creative efforts to realize their potential. We'll try to spend the weekend doing just that through some structured activity and just being together in a nourishing way.

Gestalt Therapy Workshop with David Sokol

Friday and Saturday, Nov. 15 and 16, 7-10 p.m.

This will be a weekend of learning how to go with your changes, grow instead of shut down, a time to distinguish some of your "bad" habits of behavior and develop ways of behavior that lead to discovery instead of darkness. Write your dreams down each morning for some time before this workshop and bring them with you. If you are in the habit of ever remembering any of your dreams, we can work on opening awareness to the creative well of dreams.

Unity Players Open Theater Workshop, with the Unity Players,

Monday, Nov. 18, 7:30 p.m. Dealing With Landlords, with Bob Mueller

Tuesday, Nov. 19, at 7:30

Introductory discussion of the law, the economics, and the politics of the housing crisis. Discussion on the above and personal housing experiences, particularly with regard to landlords. I would hope to take a particular problem through the various legal, economic, and political avenues available for the resolution of the problem.

History and Sociology of Drug Abuse, with Steve Gold

Wednesday, Nov. 20, 7-10 p.m.

A brief sketch of drug abuse in America during the first half of the 20th century, followed by a closer look at the post World War II situation, ending with a hard examination of federal and business strategies around America and drugs from the late 50's through the present. Four current models used to explain drug abuse will also be presented and discussed. An open discussion will conclude the session.

An Evening's Discussion of Primal Therapy, with Michael and Burton Zahler

Thursday, Nov. 21, 7:30 p.m.

Questions, answers, theory and practice of the regressive therapies. Their limitations, and utility, dangers and drama.

Three Films by Jane Melnick, with Jane Melnick

Friday, Nov. 22, 7:30 p.m.

The movies consist of two comedies; one on city communal living and one of feminists confronting an ad man; and a serious one about a woman going crazy. Discussion of content or appproach to film will follow.

Sensory Awareness Workshop, with John Perry

Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Nov. 29 and 30 and Dec. 1, 7 p.m. until 11 a.m.

A 41-hour workshop devoted to developing and increasing personal sensory awareness and appreciation. Beginning at the intrapersonal level, we will explore the senses, especially taste, touch and smell; later we will move into interpersonal sensory experiences as the weekend develops.

UVM Students May Now Enroll In ROTC

UVM students now have an opportunity to enroll in Air Force ROTC. UVM and St. Michael's have an agreement which permits UVM students to participate in the Air Force program at St. Michael's in Winooski. Air Force ROTC is available to both men and women and UVM students are eligible for the same benefits the St. Michael's students receive. There are also many scholarships available in several areas.

Scholarships may be awarded to students interested in and qualified for flying as either a pilot or navigator. Also, two and three year scholarships are available to students majoring in scientific fields. Some of these areas are: physics, mathematics, civil engineering, mechanical engineering, and aeronautical engineering. In addition, two other scholarship opportunities exist for those interested in becoming a missile officer or those interested in and qualified to attend medical school.

Pre-medical students are enrolled with the understanding that they will receive an Air Force ROTC scholarship and will be commissioned upon completion of the program and attainment of a baccalaurette degree. Those accepted into medical college will be transferred to the medical service corps for sponsored medical education.

All Air Force ROTC scholarships cover full tuition, books, lab fees, and a $100 a month tax free check. Also, whether on scholarships or not, a student still receives the $100 check each month during his junior and senior years. Free flying lessons are also given to qualified senior cadets.

St. Michael's offers both a four year and a two year Air Force ROTC program. Students are under no obligation to the Air Force during the first two years of the four year program; unless they have received a scholarship. During this time, cadets learn about the life an Air Force Officer. Students would then attend a four week field training encampment where they would receive additional training about the USAF. Even after completion of the encampment there is no obligation to the Air Force. The obligation begins the first day of Junior classes.

The two year program is available to those students who did not participate in the four year program. Students enrolling in the two year program attend a six week encampment during the summer of their sophomore and junior years. Under this program they receive the same benefits a four year student receives.

The curriculum for Air Force ROTC is as follows:

Freshman: The Air Force Today. 1 credit each semester.

Sophomore: Air Force Ascension to Prominence. 1 credit each semester.

Junior: National Security Forces. 3 credits each semester.

Senior: Leadership and Management. 3 credits each semester.

Air Force ROTC classes meet in the Department of Aerospace Studies, located in the Sloane Art Center on the St. Michael's North Campus. There are already several UVM students enrolled. The drive between campuses is 10 to 15 minutes. Freshman classes are offered on Monday mornings from 8:30 until 9:20, and 9:30 until 10:20 and evenings from 7 to 8. Sophomore classes meet at the same times on Wednesdays. Interested students should contact the Department of Aerospace Studies by calling 655-2000, extension 281 or 282, for further information.

SA Films Start With The Longest Day

The S.A. Film schedule is very full this week with one rescheduled film The Longest Day as well as the regularly scheduled films. The Longest Day was not shown last Monday, as scheduled, because it was accidentally not ordered. But it is here now and will be presented tonight, October 31, after the regularly scheduled film The Music Man in 101 Votey at 10:00. The film bureau is very sorry for this mistake and for the bad time for the film's showing. But the film has to be shown this week or not at all, and that was the only time available for a showing. The film is three hours long, so be prepared to stay quite late.

The regularly scheduled film for Thursday night is the Meredith Wilson hit musical, The Music Man. This is a color film made in 1962 starring Robert Preston, Shirley Jones, and Buddy Hackett and directed by Morton de Costa. This musical had over 1500 performances on Broadway before it was made into a film. It presents Robert Preston in his original role as Professor Harold Hill, the fast-talking traveling salesman who charmed a small Iowa town into starting a boys' band as therapy for the rowdy kids (he happens to be a musical instrument salesman). The film sparkles with great songs like "76 Trombones," "Goodnight My Someone," "Lida Rose," and many more. John McCarten of the New Yorker said "Meredith Wilson's music is exhuberant..." Marion Hargrove's screenplay is full of innocent merriment... Shirley Jones and Mr. Preston line out some splendid tunes." The film was nominated for five Academy Awards including best picture and was the winner for the best musical score. It will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in 101 Votey. Admission is free.

On Friday Slaughterhouse 5, winner of the 1972 Cannes Film Festival Jury Prize Award, will be presented in 101 Votey at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Admission is $1. This color film stars Michael Sacks, Sharon Gans, and Holly Near and was directed by George Roy Hill (of Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid). Adapted from Kurt Vonnegut's novel, it is a satirical fantasy centered around the life span of one man Billy Pilgrim. Pilgrim is an individual who has come unglued from his time slot and is hurled through time and space -- both forward and backward -- in an uncontrollable and unpredictable manner.

Therefore, in a sense he represents all men in relation to time and space. Kathleen Carroll in The Daily News described the film as "a wickedly funny, deadly accurate interpretation of a most challenging book: George Roy Hill has done the impossible." And Rex Reed called it "one of the most daring, original, and totally fascinating pictures ever made."

Paul Newman returns on Saturday night in Cool Hand Luke a 1967 film directed by Stuart Rosenberg and also starring George Kennedy and Jo Van Fleet. Set in the deep South, the story, adapted from the Donn Pearce novel, centers on a harshly disciplined chain-gang and the prisoner Luke who must defy any system which seeks to limit his personal freedom. Judith Crist said, "Newman's portrayal... a stringently contemporary screen-play, and... sharp rhythmic direction... give the film a pertinence and distinction." Bosley Crowther in The New York Times said of the cast, "Paul Newman is superb in this forceful portrait of a man born to lose... totally unfaultable cast.." Newman won an Academy Award nomination for best actor for his role as Luke, and George Kennedy won the Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor. The film will be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30 p.m.

The Sorrow and the Pity, made in 1972, will be shown in 103 Rowell on Monday at 7:30. This is a documentary reaching into the lives of those who "lived" during the German occupation. It shows film clips made during the period and interviews many people on both sides of the fight. It is four and a half hours long, but is well worth seeing, an overwhelming experience into a time that will not be forgotten.

PLAY STRINDBERG

AUGUST STRINDBERG'S DANCE OF DEATH
CHOREOGRAPHED INTO 12 ROUNDS
By FRIEDRICH DURRENMATT

NOVEMBER 7-10
THE APSE-- BILLINGS CENTER
8:00 P.M.

TICKETS -- $2.00 - General Admissions
$1.00 Student I.D.

ON SALE:
OCTOBER 30- NOVEMBER 8; 10:30- 2:30
MAIN LOBBY -- BILLINGS

Sponsored By -- The Billings Center Governing Board

SKIN and SCALP care center by
FOOSTIEN
For Those who appreciate the beauty of a Natural Complexion...
European Estheticain
113 Church Street
658-2770
A COMPLETELY ORGANIC TREATMENT
Removal of Blackheads
Treatments for oily skin & scalp
Treatments for dry skin & scalp
High frequency treatments to stop loss of hair
Scalp and Shoulder Massage
Body Massages
Hair removal by wax
Cosinta Products
Reasonable Prices Come down and Visit!!!

KOREAN KARATE
DISCIPLINE
PHYSICAL FITNESS
SELF CONFIDENCE
SELF DEFENSE
DAY & EVENING CLASSES
MEN-WOMEN- CHILDREN
VERMONT TAE KWON DO, INC.
LAKE SHORE DR
MALLETS BAY 864-0414
VISITORS WELCOME!

...Air D

(continued from page one)

Two UVM Rescue members were sent to the Burlington Fire Department in case of any real emergency. During the exercise they handled the actual cardiac arrest of a woman in Burlington. Vergennes and Winooski Fire Departments served as backup for the Burlington area in the event of any real fire.

In an involved critique conducted by Civil Defense officials after the "disaster" concluded the major defect stressed was the need for greater communication. There are two frequencies used by the Emergency Units: one for daily work and one for just such disasters. Many units had to keep switching frequencies in case any real disaster occurred.

Communication was also difficult at the command post as well as between hospital and triage teams. "This could be worked out however," noted Walter McCaffey, Civil Defense spokesman.

He added, "Every one has learned a lot out of the drills. And though it has been in the planning stages for months, it doesn't stop tomorrow. We've just begun to do something."

Federal Aeronautics Aviation Inspector William Depuy of Winooski rose and complimented all units involved saying "My hat is off to you." He had observed the exercise and found few flaws. He continued, "Burlington Airport is not required to perform such exercises, yet the community, with the help and push of the Civil Defense, had the initiative to test themselves and find their own strengths and weaknesses." This Depuy believed to be "highly commendable."

... Martha Abbott

(continued from page one)

Abbott added, "People who are working can't possibly hope to improve their conditions, while the many unemployed are clamoring for the same jobs."

"Frustrations are deepening and economic conditions are worsening," said Abbott. This seems to be an optimal climate for the growth of a third party, a peoples' party. Abbot believes the Liberty Union "will definitely get about five per cent of the vote in the forthcoming election." This is enough to become recognized as an official political party under Vermont law.

"If we had the resources, if the press treated us equally, we could reach more people effectively," said Abbott. A basic problem now is the alienation of the lower income people from the political system. Many of them don't bother to vote anymore. However, Abbott remains convinced that in the near future these people will feel compelled to support a party which directly defends their interests, thus giving the Liberty Union party political momentum.

... Nuclear Moratorium

(continued from page one)

highway trust funds for local road improvement and maintenance, all candidates were enthusiastic except for Cain who although favoring increased federal support for transportation development, wanted to know more about any proposal for using trust fund monies for local road improvements before committing his support.

EB
We know them. We selection of of sub choose from. And if we don't have a pa
stock we'll be pla
it for y
EVERY BOOK SHO
106 Church S
Open Thurs. &

May Now roll In ROTC

...will ...be the medical ...sponsored ...ores ROTC ...full tuition, ...and a $100 a ...check. Also, ...rships or not, ...gives the $100 ...th during his ...r years. Free ...also given to ...dets.

...offers both a ...two year Air ...ram. Students ...gestion to the ...the first two ...year program; ...ave received ...

...ring this time, ...the life as Air ...tudents would ...ur week field ...

...ment where ...ve additional ...USAF. Even ...n of the ...ere is no ...Air Force. The ...he first day of ...

...program is ...students who ...e in the four ... Students ... two year

...t With Longest Day

...play is full of ...ent... Shirley ...ction line out ...es." The film ... for five ...including best ...he winner for ...core. It will be ...p.m. in 101 ...is free.

...Slaughterhouse ...1972 Cannes ...Prize Award, ...in 101 Votey ...9:30 p.m. This color film ...acks, Sharon ...Near and was ...Roy Hill (of ... and the ...Adapted from ...novel, it is a ...centered ...an of one man ...Pilgrim is an ...has come ...time slot and is ...ime and space ...d backward – ...rollable and ... manner.

...a sense he ...in relation to ...ce. Kathleen ... Daily News ...film as "a ...ny, deadly ...retation of a ...book. George ... done the ...d Rex Reed ... of the most ... and totally ...es ever made."

...n returns on ... in Cool Hand ...m directed by ...erg and also ...Kennedy and Jo ... in the deep ..., adapted from ... novel, centers ... disciplined ... the prisoner ...efy any system ...mit his personal freedom. Judith Crist said, "Newman's portrayal... a stringently contemporary screen-play, and... sharp rhythmic direction... give the film a pertinence and distinction." Bosley Crowther in The New York Times said of the cast, "Paul Newman is superb in this forceful portrait of a man born to lose... totally unfaultable cast.." Newman won an Academy Award nomination for best actor for his role as Luke, and George Kennedy won the Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor. The film will be shown in 101 Votey at 7:30 p.m.

The Sorrow and the Pity, made in 1972, will be shown in 103 Rowell on Monday at 7:30. This is a documentary reaching into the lives of those who "lived" during the German occupation. It shows film clips made during the period and interviews many people on both sides of the fight. It is four and a half hours long, but is well worth seeing, an overwhelming experience into a time that will not be forgotten.

KOREAN KARATE

DISCIPLINE
PHYSICAL FITNESS
SELF CONFIDENCE
SELF DEFENSE

...Y & EVENING CLASSES
...N-WOMEN- CHILDREN

VERMONT
...E KWON DO, INC.
... LAKE SHORE DR
...LETS BAY 864-0414

...TORS WELCOME!

...Air Disaster

(continued from page one)

Two UVM Rescue members were sent to the Burlington Fire Department in case of any real emergency. During the exercise they handled the actual cardiac arrest of a woman in Burlington. Vergennes and Winooski Fire Departments served as backup for the Burlington area in the event of any real fire.

In an involved critique conducted by Civil Defense officials after the "disaster" concluded the major defect stressed was the need for greater communication. There are two frequencies used by the Emergency Units: one for daily work and one for just such disasters. Many units had to keep switching frequencies in case any real disaster occurred.

Communication was also difficult at the command post as well as between hospital and triage teams. "This could be worked out however," noted Walter McCaffey, Civil Defense spokesman.

He added, "Every one has learned a lot out of the drill. And though it has been in the planning stages for months, it doesn't stop tomorrow. We've just begun to do something."

Federal Aeronautics Aviation Inspector William Depuy of Winooski rose and complimented all units involved saying "My hat is off to you." He had observed the exercise and found few flaws. He continued, "Burlington Airport is not required to perform such exercises, yet the community, with the help and push of the Civil Defense, had the initiative to test themselves and find their own strengths and weaknesses." This Depuy believed to be "highly commendable."

Robert Wilkenfeld, EMTA of UVM Rescue stressed the importance of learning in Operation Redbird. "It was a means of testing the whole Emergency and Back-up systems of Ambulance District. I think UVM Rescue's part and the operation as a whole was a success."

... Martha Abbott

(continued from page one)

Abbott added, "People who are working can't possibly hope to improve their conditions, while the many unemployed are clamoring for the same jobs."

"Frustrations are deepening and economic conditions are worsening," said Abbott. This seems to be an optimal climate for the growth of a third party, a peoples' party. Abbot believes the Liberty Union "will definitely get about five per cent of the vote in the forthcoming election." This is one step to become recognized as an official political party under Vermont law.

"If we had the resources, if the press treated us equally, we could reach more people effectively," said Abbott. A basic problem now is the alienation of the lower income people from the political system. Many of them don't bother to vote anymore. However, Abbott remains convinced that in the near future these people will feel compelled to support a party which directly defends their interests, thus giving the Liberty Union party political momentum.

...Nuclear Moratorium

(continued from page one)

highway trust funds for local road improvement and maintenance, all candidates were enthusiastic except for Cain who although favoring increased federal support for transportation development, wanted to know more about any proposal for using trust fund monies for local road improvements before committing his support.

...Patrick Gym Is Not A Nightclub

(continued from page seven)

have been accused of causing trouble in Chile. Do only trouble I ever caused was dat I knocked up a flamenco dancer dere, but dat was years ago."

Although referred to the resignation and Vice-President Nelson A. Rockefeller ("the 'A' is Assets"), he showed Ford only in bits and pieces through other characters. Frye stopped twice to write down ad-libbed comments during his act, so perhaps his routine, like Ford, is in the process of changing administrations as well.

Frye's act included a short film of Nixon in embarrassing situations. Frye caterwalled "I Did It My Own Way" in a Nixonian tenor for the soundtrack. Nixon is shown vigorously mopping his upper lip before addressing National T. V. Another brilliant little dip taken from "Milhaus" readers Nixon in his vice-presidential years on a visit to Hawaii. He takes a bit of poi and the film reverses showing him promptly removing the mouthful as jolly natives look on.

Frye's super-eight film suffered only the physical limitations of the screen size. It served as a satirical eulogy to the blundering president. (Nixon getting wrapped up in the leashes of his dogs on the White House lawn). The film ended patriotically on Nixon and Humphrey flying the American Bird in high style.

The outstanding impression of the night was a throwback to the '72 elections and George Wallace ("It's this the face of a bigot?") attacking his opponents for the presidency. "Nixon wants to sell us a used car and Teddy wants to take us for a ride in it." Addressing the issues Wallace ranted, "I'll tell you a sure fire way to stop inflation: put Muskie's face on the dollar bill."

Frye is controversial as well as funny. The advertising for his latest album was banned on all three network radios in New York. He is also a serious man. He made clear as he came on for an encore that what he does is "strictly entertainment", though the implications of his humor are certainly more far-reaching than laugh-getting.

In his encore Frye switched to a serious note that seemed immediately awkward. Beginning with Richard Burton laboring over the "Pledge of Allegiance" Frye moved to an impression of Ted Kennedy's eulogy of Robert Kennedy. ("He saw suffering and tried to heal it, saw wrong and tried to right it, saw war and tried to stop it."). He ended on a sobering rendition of Martin Luther King's "I Have a Dream..." speech; all of which hit suddenly while stomachs still ached from laughter.

After the initial impact, they carried as a fitting eulogy to two men who, had they lived, might have been able to put an end to many of the wrongs that Frye's humor takes off on. Martin Luther King, after all, is certainly not a figure Frye could ever have satirized.

Enough we had to wait an extra 20 minutes, Thursday night because too many out of 1500 bought rush seats, we saw a performance hampered by only a poor sound system and the wrong performance location. Frye himself was put off by this (his Humphrey said, "I'm proud as punch to be here tonight- in the gym") and only after a long lull did his art generate momentum.

Frye is in the process of changing his act. The old characters have new material and new characters are emerging (Peter Rodino: "We had Nixon by the balls..") and Mayor Beame of New York). I look forward to a Fordian routine (possibly Gerry giving a swimming lesson to Golda Meir in the Suez Canal) and say sizzle on David Frye.

... Senatorial Candidates Debate

(continued from page one)

contended that inflation is fought by cutting human appropriations while defense money is used to "support Fascist regimes and overthrow democratic ones."

On a question concerning Henry Kissinger's role in Chile and IndoChina, Sanders noted that he "hopes the day will come when great men face justice" and favored Kissinger's removal from office and prosecution for war crimes.

Leahy, though calling American involvement in Chile "indefensible and totally abhorrent", would not support Kissinger's removal.

Mallary stated that Kissinger deserved "substantial credit for his peace-making activities" and is "an ornament to American foreign policy."

On a question concerning out of state ownership of Vermont industries, Mallary replied that it is an "unhappy fact" but noted that out of state investment had brought IBM and General Electric to Vermont.

Sanders attacked the policy of offering tax breaks to attract industries and proposed that "money be freed up to start public corporations."

Leahy expressed skepticism about public control commenting that "government often screws up in handling things."

On the nuclear power issue, Leahy expressed "grave concern" about the safety of nuclear power plants. Mallary felt that the present plants were not a substantial hazard and that excessive costs would halt construction of new plants. Sanders favored a moratorium on construction of nuclear plants and increased funds for solar energy research.

A final question was asked Leahy concerning the Rodriquez case. Leahy forcefully replied that the investigation "couldn't have been a more open inquiry."

The candidates remained after the debate to answer questions. Sanders, who seemed to have gained the most attention of the predominately student audience, was the last candidate to leave. Leahy attended a post-debate reception in the Harris-Millis lounge while Mallary left a short time before Sanders.

Shiny Red Freight Goes To The "Gov"

by Stephen W. Tanner

The Vermont Railroad dedicated a shiny red freight locomotive to Senator George D. "Governor" Aiken, Thursday, October 24. A group of about 75 formally attired citizens gathered on the tracks at the base of Maple Street to see "Gov," and the GMC Locomotive "George D. Aiken" named for him.

At 4:30 p.m. the sun was low across Lake Champlain and the Adirondacks as Jay Wolfson, President of the Vermont Railroad, dedicated the locomotive to a man who, he said, had worked for "the increasingly important and viable railroads in Vermont and the United States."

Lola Aiken was honored with a bottle of champagne which she dutifully smashed on the wheels of the engine. She and the Senator were then led inside to the engineer's cabin where Aiken sat in the control seat. Blowing the whistle and waving jovially to the bystanders, he eased the engine forward on the southbound tracks.

For a time it looked as though "Gov." was going all the way to Rutland, but soon enough the engine stopped and with several more toots of the whistle – the locomotive returned.

Spectators were then invited to tour the engine. Everyone from overalled children to women in formals and mink climbed the ladder to see the freight hauler.

When asked how he enjoyed the ride, Senator Aiken remarked jokingly "Fine, I didn't need a seatbelt," referring to his smooth handling of the 260,000 lb. locomotive.

The group dispersed after Senator Aiken and Lola, his wife, stepped into their black Chrysler. The Aikens waved, Mrs. Aiken commented to a friend that she "hated to waste that champagne," and they drove off leaving the red locomotive in the October dusk.

Music Thing

Hey Dixie
Dobie Gray
MCA-449

Dobie Gray has a lot of things going for him. As a black artist, he doesn't do things the way most soul artists would prefer. Instead, it's off to Nashville with Paul Williams' brother Mentor, to record an album. Dobie calls upon the best Nashville has to offer in the way of studio musicians. People like Mike Leech, David Briggs, Tommy Cogbill, Lonnie Mack, Troy Seals, Reggie Young, Kenny Malone, and the Muscle Shoals Horn Section adorn Hey Dixie. As a result, the album doesn't sound particularly black, either. The mix of Gray's delivery and Nashville's backdrop lends southern bayou and delta to the album. It's a mix that's sure to please.

Dobie Gray's talent lies in his ability for brilliant interpretations of other writers' material. Hey Dixie capitalizes on just that. Only one original appears on the album, a song entitled The Music's Real (Mentor's Song), which is just about the best compliment Gray could pay Mentor Williams, the album's producer. It's also an accurate description of the album's content. Mentor Williams has brought everything to the forefront, including Dobie's rich, bassy vocals. It's all done without sacrificing clarity and crispness.

MCA has drawn Roll On Sweet Mississippi from the album as its choice for the single. While not being the best choice, it certainly is picking up airplay quickly. Watch Out For Lucy is rowdy, loud, and good-timey, and is a natural for number one on anybody's chart. Ditto for Performance, although its a gentle, acoustic number...reminiscent of old Brook Benton stock. The title tune should be required listening for every AM music director in the country!

There's a bit for everybody in Hey Dixie, and it's a few bucks well-spent. Loving Arms and Drift Away tell but part of the story. Hey Dixie is a rare treat in an industry filled with glitter, glam and ho-hum. Dobie says it best.. the music's real.

Jefferson Starship— Off To New Regions

by Paul Prior

"I dunno man, looks like snow to me..."

"I guess you're right – it's the real thing."

A conversation between two young U.V.M. students about a brisk fall day this year? No my friends, it is merely the opinion of two gentlemen waiting in line in front of one of the last vestages of divine decadance, Radio City Music Hall. Yes, there was a lot of snow in the atmosphere but not falling from the clouds. The event? Jefferson Starship, about to lift off to unexplored regions, via Hyperdrive, powered, of course, by the sheer energy of their music.

The concert bordered on the bizarre in the first half hour. The opening act calling itself Stardrive, led by Robert Mason, who is center stage with his array of synthesizers. The noises he produced from his machinery assulted one's eardrums maddeningly, and so it actually came as no surprise (except to Mason, perhaps) that some fans might be so inclined to show their displeasure. About two minutes into his set of noises one ran across the stage toward Mason. I was within the first 7 rows or so and could tell this guy was huge! He tackled Mason full force, knocking him over, along with his synthesizers and his bass player. The band halted immediately, stunned – as was the audience. In seven or eight years of going to concerts in New York I have never witnessed such an, well, effective manner of contending with horrible opening acts.

The stage disappeared into the basement of the hall (these things happen in Radio City) and within 20 minutes, the stage was set – ten seconds to lift off, and the house lights fade – We have ignition! Grace Slick and Co. launch into "Ride the Tiger" from Jefferson Starship's latest release, Dragon Fly. The present touring group differs from the one that made the March 1974 tour, but only in the bass guitarist's department. Peter Sears has joined the band, contributing also to songwriting and keyboard playing. The rest of the group are more familiar. Paul Kantner, Gutsy Grace Slick, David Freiberg, Craig Chaquico, John Barbata, and Papa John Creach. Jack Casaday and Jorma Kaukonen no longer play with the Starship, at least for the time being – there's always the hope for a reunion of sorts. The concert consisted of almost the entirety of the new album, with the previously mentioned "Ride the Tiger" being a standout, along with "All Fly Away" and "Devil's Den".

The concert was excellent all the way through, they included "Wooden Ships" and selections from previous Starship albums, Blows Against the Empire and Sunfighter. The energy level was high all evening, much the same could be said for the audience, it's almost as if the group spurred drug usage, but no, not the good old boys and girls from J.A. The new album is excellent also, it is evident that they are much tighter and more rehearsed than their previous tour this year, which was basically good but uneven. Grace and Paul seem to have it together again, that along with the fact that Sears' base playing is driving the group; the Starship have been looking in the bass category for some time. Few people realize the importance of a good rhythm section to a group – if the rhythm section lags, so does the group. The Starship illustrate this perfectly, but even then it wasn't so much a matter of a rhythm section, as much as it was due to a stagnancy of the music. I have neglected mentioning one of the best cuts on the album until now – "Caroline". For all who stopped listening to the Airplane after Marty Balin left, all I can say is "Tune In". He co-wrote "Caroline" with Paul Kantner, and he sings lead on it. Makes you feel good all over hearing the familiar Slick, Balin, Kantner harmonies on this song, that bring back the days of "acid incense and balloons". Airplane fans can only rejoice at the quality of this album, there's energy here that has been lacking for some time, one can only hope it will be retained and expanded. The Starship are in flight once again, and I can wish them only the best of luck on their mission. Go Ride the Music...

MEXICO NORTH
at the 5 corners Essex Jct., Vt.
Largest Selection of American Indian Turquoise & Silver in Vermont
Afghani, Indian & Mexican clothing, leather goods, jewelery, tapestries, antlerpipes, furniture, stained glass, & lots more
Open 9 to 9 Mon-Fri 9 to 5:30 Sat.
10% off any purchase to UVM Students with this ad

REILLY TIRE COMPANY
FROM RECAPS TO RADIALS
WE HAVE IT
BE PSYCHED
AND SET FOR THE SNOW !

Inverno etna
PIRELLI
Mohawk Storm Trac
ACCOMPANIED BY A COPY OF THIS AD
ACCESSIBLE TO UVM
31 San Remo Drive
So. Burlington

EB
We're BOOK Specialists at Everyday
We know them. We offer you a huge selection of of subject matter to choose from. And if it happens that we don't have a particular book in stock we'll be pleased to order it for you.
EVERYDAY BOOK SHOP
186 Church St. 862-6161
Open Thurs. & Fri. Evenings

SALE! SALE! SALE!
SPECIAL SKI SAVINGS
ALL CAMPING EQUIPMENT (in stock) 20%-50% off
VEL RICHMORE DEHYDRATED FOOD 50% off
SKI TUNE-UPS
YOUR CHOICE $5.98
Downhill Ski Tune Up: Edges Sharpened, Bottoms Flat Filed, Gouges-Scratches-Filled, Edges Deburred, Bottoms Waxed, Binding Maintenance Check
Cross Country Ski Tune Up: Remove all excess wax from skis, Sand Bottoms Smooth, Pine tar bottoms (burning tar into pores), Binding Check
SPECIAL DOWNHILL EQUIPMENT SAVINGS!
HEAD GK03 SKIS...regular...$120.....$60.00
HEAD HRP SKIS...regular...$155.00.....$99.00
HEAD AIR SKI BOOTS.....50% OFF
NOW IN STOCK FROM
TECHNICA SKI BOOTS $115.00
Swiss Chalet
Open Daily 9 A.M.-9 P.M. 9-6 Sat.
878-8901

Jesus-Rock Phoenix To Appear At UVM

Phoenix, Arizona, where the sun seems to shine endlessly, is the birthplace of what is today, a dynamic force in Jesus-rock music-PHOENIX SONSHINE. This trio of talented performers, now based in Southern California and having headlined several Hollywood Palladium concerts, will be sharing their warm soft-rock sound in the Arena Theatre (under the Fleming Museum) here at UVM Wednesday, Nov. 6 at 7:30 p.m. This is their first stop in the U.S. after just arriving from their second European tour. Appearing in concert with Phoenix Sonshine will be Tom & Candy Green from southern Vermont. Tom & Candy with a unique Jewish-Gentile sound which sometimes reminds one of Ian & Sylvia, have shared their songs in various parts of the U.S. including the southern California area. This free concert is being co-sponsored by Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship and Community Bible Church.

Phoenix' Sonshine records for the Destiny Record label and their music appears on two exciting albums "Shinin' in the Light" and the just released "Gospel Ship." They have sung at a variety of places in a variety of situations from Gazzaris On the Strip in Hollywood and Exhibition Stadium in Reno, Nevada to Calvary Chapel in Costa Mesa and Melodyland Christian Center in Anaheim. Appearing with Phoenix Sonshine on a number of different occasions have been Pat Boone, Andre Crouch & the Disciples and others.

This will be the second Jesus-Rock Concert that UVM has had in its long history and for some who will be attending the concert Wednesday evening, it may prove to be a most worthwhile and educational experience as well picking up on some good sound imported from the West Coast. Come early cause it doesn't take too many to pack out the Arena Theatre.

UVM Horse Club Sponsors Riding Club

The University of Vermont Horse Club will be sponsoring a riding clinic this Sunday, November 3, starting at 9:00 a.m. The clinic is for all riding members of the club and their horses, and will range from Low Intermediate, starting at 9:00 a.m. and ending with the Advanced Group at 3:30 p.m. Each session is expected to last about 90 minutes, with the students working on basic dressage and jumping, up to more advanced steps such as shoulder-in and extended trot.

The instructor for the clinic is the well-known Edward B. Emerson, Jr. Mr. Emerson is an expert rider and is known in Vermont as well as throughout the States for his riding ability. Among "Denny's" accomplishments are: National High-Point Rider of the Year (1971-72), and one of four riders to be a member of the World Championship 3-Day Event Team. The team recently competed in Burghley, England, where, for the first time in history, the United States captured the Gold Medal. Mr. Emerson now resides in Strafford, Vermont, where he runs a small, but prominent breeding farm.

The Club is proud and fortunate to have such a qualified instructor to hold a clinic for its members, and wishes to encourage any interested spectators to come and watch. The sessions will be held in the Indoor Arena at the Farm, and bleachers are available to sit on.

Questions about the Clinic, or anything pertaining to Club Activities can be addressed to Vernie Batchelder, Club President, at 863-5944.

QUESTIONS

Why do we hide when we seek love?
Why do we drink beer and kill
the time, placing another dime
in the jukebox, playing songs:
Words lost in the din?

Why do we say nothing to the stranger
who sits near, drinking a beer?
Is it fear of the unknown, or
is it fear of the known?
Is it queer to talk and seek love?

As we ask ourselves these questions,
and as the music comes to an end,
and our glass becomes empty, does the stranger
sitting near to us, think the same?

–Steven C. Rice

PFG Schedule

Patrick Purbush Gutterson Schedule
Weekend of Nov. 1, 2, & 3

FRIDAY, NOV. 1
GYM – Fac.–Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m.
POOL – Fac.–Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m. (7–8 under 15)
RINK – Fac.–Staff Recreation – ice uncertain.
TRACK – Fac.–Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m.

SATURDAY, NOV. 2
GYM – Varsity Practice 4:30–6; Student Recreation 1–4:30 and 7–10 p.m.
POOL – Student Recreation 1–5 and 7–10 p.m.
RINK – Student Recreation – ice uncertain.
TRACK – Student Recreation 7–10 p.m.

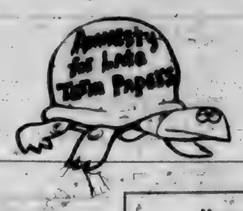
SUNDAY, NOV. 3
GYM – Varsity Practice 2:30–4:30; Student Recreation 1–2:30 p.m.
POOL – Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
RINK – Student Recreation – ice uncertain.
TRACK – Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
HANDBALL AND SQUASH COURTS: By appointment only. Call 3069.
MONDAY through THURSDAY
POOL – 8:30–10:30 p.m. Students.
OTHER FACILITIES 7–8 p.m. Students. These periods may be superseded by varsity activities or special events.

...Schwartz On Sports

(continued from page sixteen)

the games with two Western powers, and the overall Division I slate should give an indication of the strength of the team. No one can expect another 28-5 season. But one can expect a competitive team and if the schedule is a bit too much it can easily be cut back to more reasonable limits within Division I.

A recent New York Times preview of the hocky season already predicts UVM for the playoffs. This is a reasonable prediction that I would agree with. The article also mentions the importance of the intersectional games just played with Wisconsin. With such notoriety and with a coach as competent as JimCross, the UVM hockey program should continue to grow in Division I. It has already proved itself here on the campus and in Division II.



...IRA Committee

(continued from page eight)

Depending on the size of the profits various needs will be met such as recovering pool tables and maintaining ping-pong equipment. Lounge improvement of the dorms, perhaps purchasing color TVs, is another area where funds will be channeled.

If anyone has any further questions regarding the machines, contact Ray Bigman at 6290.

...Hoopsters

(continued from page fifteen)

Catamount hoopsters will play at Rutland High School, Nov. 16 at 8 p.m., followed by a Nov. 26 game at UVM's Patrick Gym. The Burlington scrimmage begins at 7 p.m. with UVM's JV's scrimmaging the Rice H.S. varsity. A UVM varsity intrasquad game will follow at 8:30 p.m. Vermont kicked off its official practice sessions Oct. 15. The first game is at Dartmouth, Dec. 2.

FALL SALE

Eastern Mountain Sports, Inc.

SPECIALISTS IN QUALITY, LIGHTWEIGHT CAMPING, MOUNTAINEERING AND CROSS COUNTRY EQUIPMENT

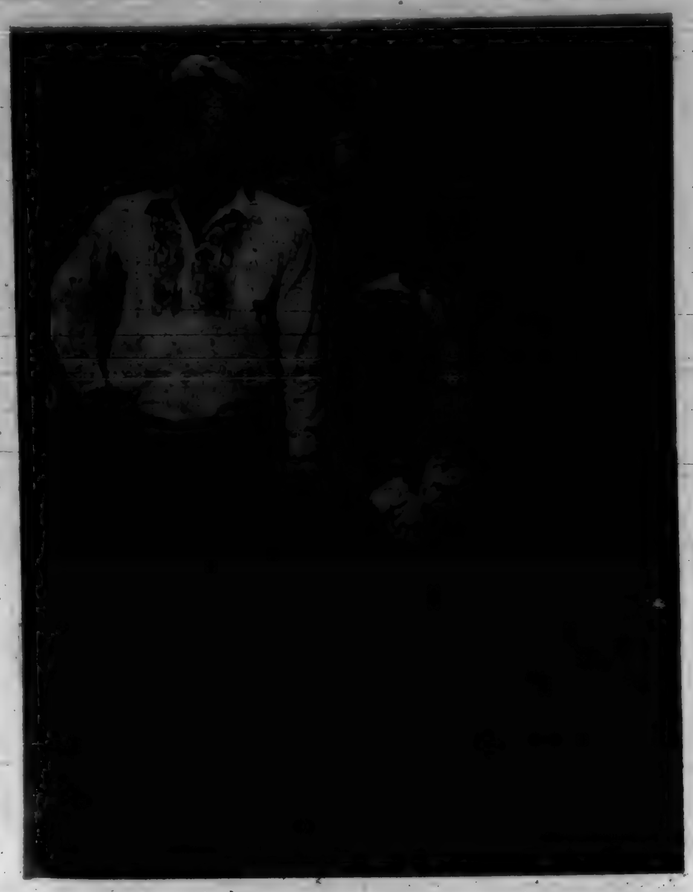
ALL RETAIL SALE PRICES WILL BE REDUCED 5% ON SAT.

WED. OCT 30 to SAT. NOV. 2

100 DORSET ST.–SOUTH BURLINGTON

–PHONE 864-0473

OPEN MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY 9 am to 9 pm



Jesus-Rock Phoenix To Appear At UVM

Phoenix, Arizona, where the sun seems to shine endlessly, is the birthplace of what is today, a dynamic force in Jesus-rock music-PHOENIX SONSHINE. This trio of talented performers, now based in Southern California and having headlined several Hollywood Palladium concerts, will be sharing their warm soft-rock sound in the Arena Theatre (under the Fleming Museum) here at UVM Wednesday, Nov. 6 at 7:30 p.m. This is their first stop in the U.S. after just arriving from their second European tour. Appearing in concert with Phoenix Sonshine will be Tom & Candy Green from southern Vermont. Tom & Candy with a unique Jewish-Gentile sound which sometimes reminds one of Ian & Sylvia, have shared their songs in various parts of the U.S. including the southern California area. This free concert is being co-sponsored by Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship and Community Bible Church.

Phoenix' Sonshine records for the Destiny Record label and their music appears on two exciting albums "Shinin' in the Light" and the just released "Gospel Ship." They have sung at a variety of places in a variety of situations from Gazzaris On the Strip in Hollywood and Exhibition Stadium in Reno, Nevada to Calvary Chapel in Costa Mesa and Melodyland Christian Center in Anaheim. Appearing with Phoenix Sonshine on a number of different occasions have been Pat Boone, Andre Crouch & the Disciples and others.

This will be the second Jesus-Rock Concert that UVM has had in its long history and for some who will be attending the concert Wednesday evening, it may prove to be a most worthwhile and educational experience as well picking up on some good sound imported from the West Coast. Come early cause it doesn't take too many to pack out the Arena Theatre.

UVM Horse Club Sponsors Riding Club

The University of Vermont Horse Club will be sponsoring a riding clinic this Sunday, November 3, starting at 9:00 a.m. The clinic is for all riding members of the club and their horses, and will range from Low Intermediate, starting at 9:00 a.m. and ending with the Advanced Group at 3:30 p.m. Each session is expected to last about 90 minutes, with the students working on basic dressage and jumping, up to more advanced steps such as shoulder-in and extended trot.

The instructor for the clinic is the well-known Edward E. Emerson, Jr. Mr. Emerson is an expert rider and is known in Vermont as well as throughout the States for his riding ability. Among "Denny's" accomplishments are: National High-Point Rider of the Year (1971-72), and one of four riders to be a member of the World Championship 3-Day Event Team. The team recently competed in Burghley, England, where, for the first time in history, the United States captured the Gold Medal. Mr. Emerson now resides in Strafford, Vermont, where he runs a small, but prominent breeding farm.

The Club is proud and fortunate to have such a qualified instructor to hold a clinic for its members, and wishes to encourage any interested spectators to come and watch. The sessions will be held in the Indoor Arena at the Farm, and bleachers are available to sit on.

Questions about the Clinic, or anything pertaining to Club Activities can be addressed to Vernie Batcheldor, Club President, at 863-5944.

QUESTIONS

Why do we hide when we seek love?
Why do we drink beer and kill
the time, placing another dime
in the jukebox, playing songs:
Words lost in the din?

Why do we say nothing to the stranger
who sits near, drinking a beer?
Is it fear of the unknown, or
is it fear of the known?
Is it queer to talk and seek love?

As we ask ourselves these questions,
and as the music comes to an end,
and our glass becomes empty, does the stranger
sitting near to us, think the same?

—Steven C. Rice

PFG Schedule

Patrick Forbush Gutterson Schedule
Weekend of Nov. 1, 2, & 3

FRIDAY, NOV. 1
GYM – Fac.–Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m.
POOL – Fac.–Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m. (7–8 under 15)
RINK – Fac.-Staff Recreation – ice uncertain.
TRACK – Fac.–Staff Recreation 7–10:30 p.m.

SATURDAY, NOV. 2
GYM – Varsity Practice 4:30–6; Student Recreation 1–4:30 and 7–10 p.m.
POOL – Student Recreation 1–5 and 7–10 p.m.
RINK – Student Recreation – ice uncertain.
TRACK – Student Recreation 7–10 p.m.

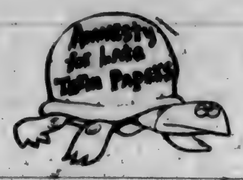
SUNDAY, NOV. 3
GYM – Varsity Practice 2:30–4:30; Student Recreation 1–2:30 p.m.
POOL – Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
RINK – Student Recreation – ice uncertain.
TRACK – Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
HANDBALL AND SQUASH COURTS: By appointment only. Call 3069.
MONDAY through THURSDAY
POOL – 8:30–10:30 p.m. Students.
OTHER FACILITIES – 7–8 p.m. Students. These periods may be superseded by varsity activities or special events.

...Schwartz On Sports

(continued from page sixteen)

the games with two Western powers, and the overall Division I slate should give an indication of the strength of the team. No one can expect another 28-5 season. But one can expect a competitive team and if the schedule is a bit too much it can easily be cut back to more reasonable limits within Division I.

A recent New York Times preview of the hocky season already predicts UVM for the playoffs. This is a reasonable prediction that I would agree with. The article also mentions the importance of the intersectional games just played with Wisconsin. With such notoriety and with a coach as competent as JimCross, the UVM hockey program should continue to grow in Division I. It has already proved itself here on the campus and in Division II.



...IRA Committee

(continued from page eight)

Depending on the size of the profits various needs will be met such as recovering pool tables and maintaining ping-pong equipment. Lounge improvement of the dorms, perhaps purchasing color TVs, is another area where funds will be channeled.

If anyone has any further questions, regarding the machines, contact Jay Bigman at 3290.

...Hoopsters

(continued from page fifteen)

Catamount hoopsters will play at Rutland High School, Nov. 16 at 8 p.m., followed by a Nov. 26 game at UVM's Patrick Gym. The Burlington scrimmage begins at 7 p.m. with UVM's JV's scrimmaging the Rice H.S. varsity. A UVM varsity intrasquad game will follow at 8:30 p.m. Vermont kicked off its official practice sessions Oct. 15. The first game is at Dartmouth, Dec. 2.

FALL SALE

Eastern Mountain Sports, Inc.

SPECIALISTS IN QUALITY, LIGHTWEIGHT CAMPING, MOUNTAINEERING AND CROSS COUNTRY EQUIPMENT

ALL RETAIL SALE PRICES WILL BE REDUCED 5% ON SAT.

WED. OCT 30 to SAT. NOV. 2

100 DORSET ST.–SOUTH BURLINGTON

–PHONE 864-0473

OPEN MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY 9 am to 9 pm

Sports News

There will be a meeting of all those interested in trying out for the indoor track and field team on Wednesday, November 6. All interested candidates should be at the indoor track (Gardner-Collins Cage), at 7:00 p.m.

★★★★★★★★

Attention all UVM students – Anyone wishing to help the varsity basketball team as a manager, please contact Coach Spitzberg at Patrick Gym, 3074.

★★★★★★★★

There will be an organizational meeting on November 1 at 7:15 pm of all people (faculty, students, etc.) interested in forming a coached fencing club. The place is Southwick North Lounge. If enough interest is generated, former UMass fencing coach, Bernard Desaultier, may be the instructor.

DA AUTO

Route 2,

FOREIG 3F

560 X 15 Snow Tires FITS MOST BUGS & 24.95 i

VW BRAKE

Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 turn drums, rebuilt 4 wheel cylinders. $4

GR SA

RECEIVERS, TUNE
1 Pioneer 424
2 Marantz 2230
1 Marantz 2245
1 Marantz 4230
1 Marantz4 240
2 Harman Kardon 630
2 Harman Kardon 50 +
1 Altec 714A
2 Sansui QR500
4 Superscope 330
3 Marantz 115B Tuner

TAPE DECKS
1 Tandberg TCD 300 Co
1 Sony TC 377 Reel-to-R
2 Pioneer RT 1050H Ree
1 Sony TC 121A
2 Sony TC 161SD
1 Pioneer HR99 8 Track
2 Concord 8 Track
1 Glenburn 8 Track

Please No

AUD

FG Schedule

...k Gutterson
...Nov. 1, 2, & 3
...1
...Fac.–Staff
...0:30 p.m.
...Fac.–Staff
...0:30 p.m. (7–8
...Fac.–Staff
...uncertain.
...Fac.–Staff
...0:30 p.m.
...NOV. 2
...Varsity Practice
...ent Recreation
...10 p.m.
...– Student
...and 7–10 p.m.
...dent Recreation
...– Student
...0 p.m.

SUNDAY, NOV. 3
GYM – Varsity Practice 2:30–4:30, Student Recreation 1–2:30 p.m.
POOL – Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
RINK – Student Recreation – ice uncertain.
TRACK – Student Recreation 1–5 p.m.
HANDBALL AND SQUASH COURTS: By appointment only. Call 3069.
MONDAY through THURSDAY
POOL – 8:30–10:30 p.m. Students.
OTHER FACILITIES – 7–8 p.m. Students. These periods may be superseded by varsity activities or special events.

chwartz On Sports

...page sixteen)

...two Western powers, and the overall Division I ...ve an indication of the strength of the team. No ...t another 28-5 season. But one can expect a ...om and if the schedule is a bit too much it can ...k to more reasonable limits within Division I.

New York Times preview of the hocky season ...s UVM for the playoffs. This is a reasonable ... I would agree with. The article also mentions the ... the intersectional games just played with ...o such notoriety and with a coach as competent as ...VM hockey program should continue to grow in ...s already proved itself here on the campus and in

...mmittee

...page eight)

...he size of the ...eeds will be met ...ing pool tables ...ing ping-pong ... Lounge ...of the dorms, ...ing color TVs, is ...re funds will be ...ne any further ...ording the ...ct Ray Sigman

...Hoopsters

(continued from page fifteen)

Catamount hoopsters will play at Rutland High School, Nov. 16 at 8 p.m., followed by a Nov. 26 game at UVM's Patrick Gym. The Burlington scrimmage begins at 7 p.m. with UVM's JV's scrimmaging the Rice H.S. varsity. A UVM varsity intrasquad game will follow at 8:30 p.m. Vermont kicked off its official practice sessions Oct. 15. The first game is at Dartmouth, Dec. 2.

SALE

...in Sports.

...WEIGHT CAMPING, ...NTRY EQUIPMENT

...REDUCED 5% ON SAT.

SAT. NOV. 2

...H BURLINGTON

...473

...RDAY 9 am to 9 pm

Sports News Briefs

There will be a meeting of all those interested in trying out for the indoor track and field team on Wednesday, November 6. All interested candidates should be at the indoor track (Gardner–Collins Cage), at 7:00 p.m.

★★★★★★★★

Attention all UVM students – Anyone wishing to help the varsity basketball team as a manager, please contact Coach Salzberg at Patrick Gym, 3074.

★★★★★★★★

There will be an organizational meeting on November 4 at 7:15 pm of all people (faculty, students, etc.) interested in forming a coached fencing club. The place is Southwick North Lounge. If enough interest is generated, former UMass fencing coach, Bernard Desaultier, may be the instructor.

Intramural Touch Football Playoffs

League Winners: League A – Sigma Phi; League B – Wasted; League C – Sigma Alpha Epsilon; League D – Orangemen; League E – Living/Learning A.

To determine the All-Campus Championship, a single elimination playoff was held. SAE defeated Living/Learning 26-8, Wasted defeated Orangemen 18-0, SAE defeated SP 4-0, Wasted defeated SAE in the final 46-2 for the All-Campus Championship.

★★★★★★★★

CORRECTION– A UVM runner was misnamed in a photo in last week's Cynic. The runner was Mike Green and not Bob Chesveret.

Women's Tennis Successful At New England Tourney

The UVM Women's varsity tennis team returned from a successful trip to New Haven, Connecticut and the New England Collegiate Tournament.

Women's singles featured two top seeds from the host Yale University team. Rosenbloom and Graham rank 34 and 31 respectively in the national rankings. Isild of Brown, Schafer from Brandeis, Taylor from Springfield, and UConn's Redmon were the other seeded single players.

Debi Bloom of Vermont won her first match against a Stonehill College player, Seducino by 6-0, 6-2. She was then defeated by Stowe of Pine Manor, 6-3,6-3 in the second round.

Shelly Hanafee, another UVM performer, advanced to the second round by default and then defeated Volpe of UMass, 6-2, 6-1. However, in the next round she lost to Gerkee of Bowdoin, 6-3, 6-4. If these girls had won they would have faced top seeds in ensuing rounds.

Nancy Muller and Anne McKenna, Vermont's top doubles team were defeated in the first round by Yellen and Hardesburg of Brandeis, 6-2, 6-1. This strong Brandeis team went on to the semi-finals of the tourney.

Mullen and McKenna went on to the consolation round and played extremely well. They defeated Adams and Dion of Fitchburg, 10-2, a team from Southern Conn. State, 10-8 and in the finals met the number one seed from Connecticut who had been upset in the regular tourney. The girls lost the finals in a close match, 10-8.

Vermont's number two doubles team of Kate Howard and Linda Hallowell received a bye in the first round but were defeated by Rocchio and Johnson of Brown, 6-2, 6-4, in the second round. They lost their match in the consolation round.

The overall showing was the best for Vermont in the five years they have participated in the tourney. In the regular season, the team finished at 7-1-1. With another year of experience behind them, Coach Sally Guerette is looking forward to continued improvement in the squad next season and in the New England's to be held in 1975 at UMass.

Preseason Basketball

Three preseason intrasquad games have been scheduled in high schools in Barre and Rutland and UVM's Roy L. Patrick Gymnasium. Head coach Peter Salzberg will bring his varsity team to the Barre Auditorium Nov. 2 for an intrasquad game at 8 p.m., which will be divided into three 20-minute segments. Following the Barre appearance, the

(continued on page fourteen)

Members of the Wasted Football team: Front Row (left to right) – Barry Gustin, John Geller, Titus Plomaritus, Bill Michaud, Tom Thomas. Back Row (left to right) – Dave Solomon, Fletcher Baltz, Paul Ridge, Bill Horner, Chuck Lubbers. Missing are Steve Hall and Norm Barbera.

Wasted Are Intramural Champs For Second Year In A Row

On Wednesday Oct. 23, SAE and Wasted clashed for the University of Vermont Intramural-football Championship. When the dust cleared, Wasted walked off the field with a rewarding 46-2 victory.

SAE reached the championship game by defeating Living Learning in the quarterfinals 18-8, and Sigma Phi in the semifinals, 4-0. Wasted drew a bye in the quarterfinals and defeated the Orange Men in the semifinals 18-0, to reach their third straight championship game.

Wasted scored early in the first quarter when Titus "Twinkle Toes" Plomaritis rifled a pass to Chuck "Two Tongues Labeau" Lubbers who was heavily covered in the end zone. Curl "The Pearl" Michaud toed the pigskin through the uprights for the 2 points. Wasted's second score was set up when "Towering T." Thomas made a dazzling interception deep in SAE's territory. On the next play Lubbers snagged another "Twinkle Toes" ariel for six points. "The Pearl" was good for two more points on the kick.

Barry "Lightning" Gustin, whose reputation for sacking the quarterback was unequaled in this year's football competition, tallied Wasted's next two points on a safety.

At halftime the score was Wasted 18, SAE 0.

SAE opened up the scoring in the second half, when Don Weaver forced a safety with an overpowering blitz.

It looked like the tide might be turning in favor of SAE, but then Curl "The Pearl" made a diving interception. Then following three blocking penalties in a row by Fletch "The Wedge" Baltz, Wasted was back near its own goal line. Wasted proved why they are the king of Razzle Dazzle football. "Twinkle Toes" Plomaritis passed to "Two Tongues Labeau" Lubbers, who then tossed to Paul "The Rock" Ridge who lateralled to Curl "The Pearl" who hotfooted it to the end zone for six more Wasted points. "The Pearl" followed up with a successful two point kick.

In the Fourth quarter SAE was driving for a score when "Two Tongues Labeau" Lubbers snagged the third Wasted interception. On the next play Plomaritis tossed to "Lightning" Gustin who alertly lateralled to "The Pearl", who was off for another T.D. jaunt. Michaud booted the kick for two points. John "Fleetfoot" Geller netted Wasted's next score when the hard charging defensive end forced SAE into a safety. Wasted tallied its next score as Plomaritis threw to "Towering T." Thomas who pitched to "The Rock" Ridge who raced across the goal line. The last score of the game was made possible on a booming 70 yard punt by "Behemoth" Bob Harner, which pinned SAE deep in their own territory. On the next play "The Rock" Ridge forced a safety.

In the three years of Wasted's existence in intramural football, they have won 20 of 21 games and copped two UVM championships. Dave Solomon, Norm Barbera and Steve "Beast" Hall have been standout performers for Wasted all year, but Norm and Beast had classes and Solomon was injured so they couldn't play in the Championship game. SAE should be noted for its fine sportsmanship, as the referees commented it "was the cleanest football game played all year".

Women's Soccer Complete Season

The UVM Women's Soccer Team completed their season on October 23 with a 1-0 victory over Castleton State. The victory gave the girls the best record in the state for the second consecutive year.

The game's only score came late in the first half on a centering pass from wing Felicia Carpenter to inner Susan Durkee.

Goalie Wendy Pierson recorded her third shutout of the season. It was the first time this year that Castleton had been held scoreless.

Playing their last game for the team were Denise Poff and Anne Quantrell who had been with the soccer team since its conception three years ago. These two girls are seniors this year.

UVM Football...

(continued from page sixteen)

been playing well of late, so UVM will be in for a rough time. Last year Maine shut them out 14-0 in Burlington. The game is to be played in Orono with a 1 p.m. starting time.

DAVE'S AUTOMOTIVE INC.
Route 2, Williston, Vt. 862-7686

FOREIGN CAR REPAIR SPECIALISTS
INCLUDING THE FINEST IN SEMPERIT RADIAL TIRES

560 X 15 Snow Tires
FITS MOST BUGS & SAAB 95 and 96's
24.95 inc. FET & mounting

VW BRAKE JOB $49.95
Includes: 8 new brake linings, 4 turn drums, rebuild 4 wheel cylinders.

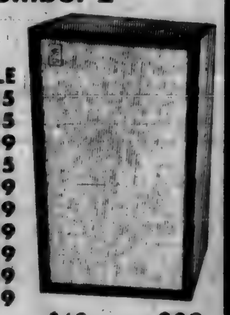
VW Beetle Exhaust Complete $29.95

GREAT HI-FI SALE

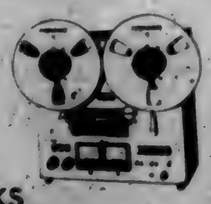
At AUDIO DEN

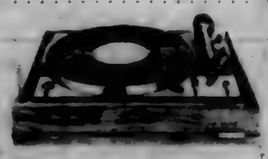
WEDNESDAY Thru SATURDAY
October 30 thru November 2

SPEAKERS	LIST	SALE
6 Marantz 7G	$200	$135
2 Marantz 5G	$100	$65
2 KLH 6	$150	$99
2 AR5	$215	$145
2 Altec 891A	$149	$99
4 Altec 891V	$119	$89
8 Infinity 1001	$149	$99
4 Infinity POS1	$89	$59
8 Altec 887A	$89	$59
2 Altec 890C	$179	$119
4 Electro-Voice 13A	$60	$39
2 Electro-Voice 14A	$90	$59
2 Electro-Voice 16A	$140	$75
2 Braun 810	$325	$225
2 Bang & Olfsen 5200	$360	$260
2 B & O 4702	$220	$150
2 KLH 17	$90	$58



RECEIVERS, TUNERS	LIST	SALE
1 Pioneer 424	$200	$149
2 Marantz 2230	$400	$299
1 Marantz 2245	$500	$375
1 Marantz 4230	$500	$375
1 Marantz4 240	$600	$450
2 Harman Kardon 630	$360	$289
2 Harman Kardon 50 +	$250	$175
1 Altec 714A	$449	$299
2 Sansui QR500	$250	$150
4 Superscope 330	$240	$165
3 Marantz 115B Tuner	$300	$240





All prices on turntables include base, dust cover and cartridge.

TAPE DECKS
1 Tandberg TCD 300 Cassette	$400	$350
1 Sony TC 377 Reel-to-Reel	$400	$325
2 Pioneer RT 1050H Reel-to-Reel	$650	$525
1 Sony TC 121A	$120	$89
2 Sony TC 161SD	$300	$240
1 Pioneer HR99 8 Track	$190	$150
2 Concord 8 Track	$60	$39
1 Glenburn 8 Track	$60	$39

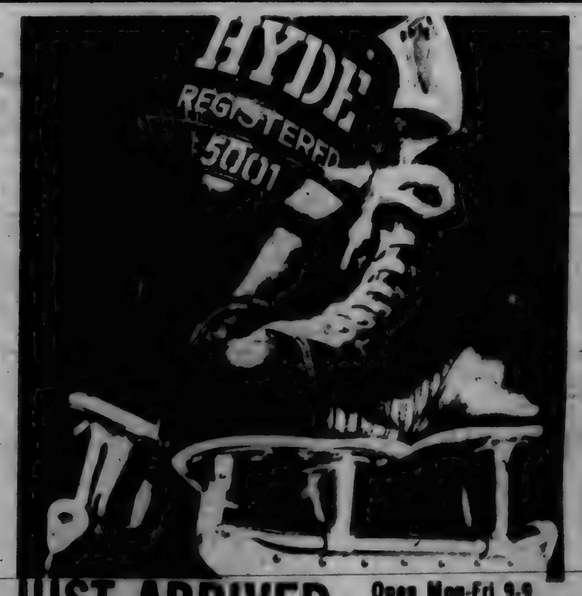
TURNTABLES	LIST	SALE
3 Garrard 42M	$96.80	$49
3 Dual 1214	$202.80	$109
3 Dual 1218	$262.80	$159
1 Dual 1229	$341.80	$199
1 PE 3012	$186	$99

MISCELLANEOUS
6 Concord Dolby	$150	$45
2 Teac Dolby	$100	$...
1 Sony Dolby	$280	$179

Please Note: Demos and new pieces are included in this sale. All sales final.

AUDIO DEN
100 Dorset St., South Burlington
Phone 863-4396
So. Main St., Middlebury — Phone 388-6788
Not all items are available in Middlebury.

FREE BEAUTY LESSON.
Consultation & Demonstration on the care of Skin & Scalp by a European Specialist.
Monday & Thursday evenings
Call 658-2770 for more information.



JUST ARRIVED
Open Mon-Fri 9-9
Sat 9-5:30
Men's
Figure & Hockey Skates
Ladies Figure Skates
by HYDE
MANY MODELS TO CHOOSE FROM Yaluga Sports

SCHWARTZ ON SPORTS

by Mike Schwartz

Why does the UVM hockey team draw so much attention? Why does the UVM hockey team win more consistently than other teams?

The answer can be directly stated by considering two factors: the coach and the way the coach handles his players.

Coach Jim Cross is a rare breed in this day of college athletics. Upon returning to Vermont from the recent trips to Wisconsin, Cross compared the programs of both colleges. The reputation of Western colleges is as a factory for the professionals. Many of the players, and Wisconsin is no exception, play for the college and then drop out to enter the pros. Coach Cross prides himself upon the UVM program where the player stays the full four years. In the case of Dave Reece or Ted Castle or any other player of superior ability the professional opportunity will still be there.

The coach upon his return was confident that the UVM program can be just as good as Wisconsin without the overall professionalism involved.

Such attitudes in coaches are rare. In last year's program on the CBS "Eye On Sports" more of the openminded outlook and player oriented attitude was seen in the coach.

And the players that Coach Cross has produced directly reflect his attitude. Over the years the UVM hockey teams have had the right blend of youth and experience.

There has always been the leader such as Ted Yeates or Patty Wright. The seniors provide enough cohesion and experience. The younger players then provide the backbone to the attack.

Last year the leading seniors were John Kisly, Willie MacKinnon, Ted Castle, and Ted Child. Behind them were such good freshmen as Tom Colby and Bill Spence. This year John Murphy, Roger Mallette and Bill Koch anchor another strong freshmen crew. Goaltending has always had an experienced netminder such as Reece, Eckerson, or Kisly.

It is this succession of players that add a long continuity of success to a program. We can't really say that there is a UVM hockey dynasty but with the ideas and attitudes of Coach Jim Cross, the UVM program should remain strong and competitive for many years to come.

This current season should provide an indication if the program is starting to get over its head or not. The overall success of playing in the Christmas tourney with teams such as Cornell,

(continued on page fourteen)

Bergeron Leads Rugby Club In Win Over Concord

The UVM Rugby team came from behind to upset the Concord Rugby Team by a score of 15-4. After trailing 4-0 at the half, Vermont came back for the big victory.

Concord, which had won its last five games, dominated play throughout the first half. Their only score of the day came on a five yard run after UVM had been penalized near their own goal line for offside. The score at the half was 4-0.

The second half began with Concord dominating play for the first 10 minutes. However the momentum changed as the Vermont backs led by senior scrumhalf, Marcel Bergeron began to control the ball. The UVM backs were able to consistently kick the ball into Concord's backfield where the Cats were often able to regain possession with strong pursuit from UVM's forwards.

Bergeron, who has provided UVM with its best individual effort of any player this season, opened the scoring with a four point try by running off a scrum from eight yards out. He then added a two point conversion.

Several minutes later, Bergeron again scored taking the ball from a 25 yard scrum and drop kicking the ball through the goal post for another three points. Bergeron's eleven points for the game raised his season's total to 35, almost 50 per cent of UVM's total of 79 points for the season.

Vermont dominated play for the last ten minutes and were again able to score when Ollie Kaufman ran eight yards for another four points.

In the "B" game, Vermont was defeated 14-4. Linus Griffith tallied UVM's only score for the Cats.

The next game is at home at the Archie Post Field, this Saturday at 1:30 when they host the Montreal Irish, one of Quebec's leading Rugby teams.

B.U. To Be Tough In Division I

All-American Vic Stanfield and Bill Burlington head a list of 20 returning lettermen as the Boston University Terriers complete their first two weeks of hockey practice this week.

The defending ECAC champions return virtually every skater from last year's overpowering scoring machine, including eight with at least 40 points and ten players who netted at least 10 goals. The top scoring team in the ECAC, the Terriers, 23-8, averaged six goals per game and had eight of the league's top 20 scorers.

In addition to Burlington, Peter Marzo and Rick Meagher return at center. Leading goal scorer Mike Eruzione and runner-up Bill Robbins are the top left wings, while Terry Meagher and Bill Buckton return at the right wing. Other high-scoring forwards back are Bill Bishop and Jim Lowell. The picture gets even more crowded with two top scoring freshmen, two-time greater Boston leading scorer Matt Marden from Malden, and state scoring champ, Mike Fidler from Malden Catholic.

The defense also remains solid with Peter Brown, second team All New England, joining Stanfield to lead the way. Chris Bannerman, John McClellan and Bob Sunderland are the other top returnees along with 1972-73 regular Jerry Gryp.

There is one problem for head coach Jack Parker and that is to find a replacement for the only regular he lost: 1972-73 all American goalie Ed Walsh. Junior reserve Pat Devlin is the leading candidate, followed by last year's B-team goalie Jack Lee and freshman Brian Durocher and Mike Allen.

The schedule, which opens November 23 at Providence, includes 10 home games and three tournaments. Among the top games at Walter Brown Rink this season wil be battles with New Hampshire, led by All-American goalie Cap Raeder, Vermont, last year's Division II champion and now in Division I; and traditional rivals Boston College and Northeastern. The Terriers will play in the Clarkson, St. Louis, and Beanpot Tournaments.

Soccer Team Beats Maine

The UVM Soccer team is nearing the end of its season. And as it comes nearer the end it seems that ties and not wins are mounting up. This past Saturday in Orono, Maine, the team played a 1-1 tie with the University of Maine. Earlier in the week, the Cats played a 2-2 tie with Middlebury. For the season, the Booters are 5-3-3.

In the game in which the Cats outplayed and outshot the Black Bears, Vermont scored first. At the 40 minute mark of the first half, Bruce Norton converted a pass from freshman sensation John Koerner.

Maine did not tie the game until the second half when the ball went behind UVM goalie Jim Taft and a Maine player headed the ball into the net.

Now it is on to the final games of the season. On Wednesday they hosted St. Michaels and this Saturday the season comes to a close with a home game against UMass.

UVM clearly outplayed their opponents as they made 26 shots on goal to Maine's 17. Jim Taft came up with 12 saves and the Maine goalie, Bob Nadeau made 16 stops.

UVM SPORTS

UVM Wins Their Third: Upend Rochester 21-12

by Gary Brooks

The 3782 faithful who were at the football game on Saturday between the University of Vermont and Rochester saw a first half of solid performance. Spectacular plays, both offensively and defensively made the game exciting. The second half was totally devoid of any action. There was no scoring in the second half, not because of a defensive struggle, but it seemed whatever the offenses tried either a fumble, interception, penalty or ineptitude would prevent any gain of yardage. UVM was heavily favored to win, but they were lucky to walk off Centennial Field with a 21-12 win.

Mike Johns leaps high to deflect a Rochester pass in last Saturday's game.
SPS Photo: Mike Durkin

Injuries played a major part in the game. Star of the game, Billy Looker, after catching five passes for 142 yards and one touchdown pass in the first quarter, suffered an ankle injury while punting in the second quarter. Backup punter Mike Gross came in to punt the next time and he was also injured. The last three punting plays were executed by guard Joe Juscen who had a minor ankle problem. Add Fred Fournier to the injured ankle list. Sam Blood, and Paul Jarry both had shoulder trouble. Looker, Gross, and Fournier are not expected back next week.

UVM's first score was the touchdown pass to Looker. The play was the result of a nine-play 80 yard drive. Looker caught two passes for 61 yards in the march. The scoring play was almost a broken play as Bateman was unable to find a receiver and threw the ball to the open side of the end zone. Looker cut to the corner and caught the pass for the score.

Rochester came back later to score after a series of turnovers. UVM cornerback Carl Clackum intercepted a Rochester pass at the Vermont 39. After a first down run by Bateman, wing back Rob Gilligan fumbled and Rochester recovered at midfield. Defensive end Mike Johns then intercepted a third down pass by Rochester quarterback Brian Pasley and ran to the Vermont 47. A clipping penalty on the play put the ball on the UVM 32. Rocky Thompson then fumbled the ball and Rochester recovered on the Vermont 38. The next play halfback Mike Carp ran all the way in for the touchdown. The extra point was missed and UVM led by one point, 7-6.

Vermont's second score of the first quarter was set up after they got possession of the ball at the Rochester 44 following a punt. Six plays later fullback Mike McAllister ran into the end zone from the five. The extra point made the score UVM 14, Rochester 6.

Rochester's second and final score of the day was set up when second string punter Mike Gross fumbled the snap for the punt. Rochester recovered on the Vermont 7 and three plays later, fullback Brian Heagney scored from the 5. UVM safety Rick Benenati prevented a tie score by intercepting the attempted pass for two points. The score was Vermont 14 and Rochester 12. UVM received the kickoff and started the drive for their final score of the game from the Vermont 30. Rocky Thompson swept right side for 26 yards and a first down. Then on third and four yards from the Rochester 40, Bateman hit Rob Gilligan on an over-the-shoulder 38 yard pass to Rochester 2. McAllister scored his second touchdown of the day and the extra point made the score UVM 21, Rochester 12, and that was the final outcome.

Rochester made a strong bid in the third quarter for another touchdown. From their 22 yard line they marched to the Vermont 15 when a holding penalty pushed the ball back to the Catamount 35. Later free safety Steve Ernst intercepted a pass to thwart the drive.

The fourth-quarter consisted of give-and-take on both sides. Vermont got no closer than the Rochester 12, but that was in the final minutes. Rochester got to the Vermont 28 and the Vermont 32, but failed both times on fourth down tries for a first down.

Aside from the three scores UVM could have broke the game wide open if they had not suffered three touchdowns called back. Sam Blood scored in the first quarter but it was disallowed because of an illegal procedure call. Joe Reed intercepted a pass and ran it in for an apparent score in the second quarter, but an offside penalty brought it back. UVM lost another score when an illegal procedure call disqualified a Larry Lockwood touchdown run.

Although Looker had a good day with five receptions, Bateman was only 11 for 24 attempts, accumulating 220 yards. Also UVM totaled 185 yards rushing. The Bateman scoring pass was his eleventh of the year, tying him with Earl Olsen for the most touchdown passes in a single season.

On defense, UVM had five interceptions and two fumble recoveries. Individually, cornerback Carl Clackum had a good day with a fumble recovery, and an interception plus three deflected passes. For Rochester, star safety Ralph Gebhart also had a good day with a fumble recovery, interception and two punt returns for 31 yards.

This victory gives UVM a 3-4 record on the season. Next week they play Maine, a Yankee Conference rival. Maine has

(continued on page fifteen)

CLASSIFIED

Call 656-4263. Person with interests in children and skiing needed for week of Dec 27-Jan. 4. Duties would include care of 7, 9, and 11 year olds with free ski ticket and 2 hrs. of hitting slopes without children. Bonus of $50 and of course room/board.

For Sale: Sennheiser HD 414 headphones, New Cord, $20. 434-2361 after 5 p.m.

FREE RETAIL CATALOGUE: Pipes, waterpipes, bongs, cigarette papers, rolling machines, superstones, underground comix, etc: Gabriella's Goodies, Box 4, Hollywood, Ca. 90028.

For Sale: Sony TC-122 Cassette Deck and 8-track AM-FM Car Radio, In Dash. Asking $150, will sell them seperately. Call 863-9862, ask for Tom Wheeler.

For Sale: 1969 Mercury Automatic P.S., P.B. Snowtires, excellent condition. Needs body work. $295. Tel. 863-2096.

EARN TOP MONEY. Seeking campus representatives to promote student travel programs. Vagabond Tours, 300 East 44th Street, Suite 1001, N.Y., N.Y., 10017 — (212) 661-1330 or (800) 223-5267 outside of N.Y.

CLASSIFIED: Loft for Sale. 83" x 50" x 63". ¾ plywood. 4x4 for Legs. Price Negotiable. Call Jesse at 863-3068.

For Sale: Fabriano Hiking Boots. $10.00 ($30.00 new). Size: Women's 6½ M. Very Good Condition. Please call Kacey, 985-8575.

WANTED: Ice Hockey Skates! About Size 11. Call Eddy 425-3055, evenings.

Having a dinner party, but tired of staying in the kitchen, and having a pile of dishes afterwards? Let us do the work, 865-3278.

For Sale: 1966 Ford Falcon Stationwagon, good tires, battery runs good, $60. 656-3278, must sell.

Ride needed to Westchester County or NYC vicinity, weekend of nov. 9th and 10th, will gladly share driving and expenses. Call Jane at 656-3275, early morning or late evenings.

ZIGGY'S

THE LARGEST HEAD SHOP IN VERMONT

PIPES, SCREENS, PAPERS, INCENSE, BURNERS, JOKES, KEY RING CLIPS, T-SHIRTS, LEATHER GOODS, PIPE GIFT SETS, CLOTHES, BONGS, ROLLERS

97½ CHURCH STREET
(Above Burlington Shoe Repair)

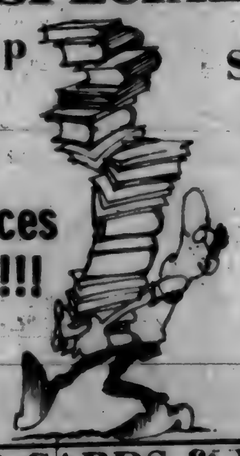
COME TO THE UNIVERSITY STORE ON THE CAMPUS
STARTS NOV. 4
AND SEE

CLOTHBOUND BOOKS AT BARGAIN PRICES

BOOK SPECIAL

Select Group — Reduced to Half of Original Prices and Below !!!

Another Select Group — Previously $1.25 — NOW 89¢



GREETING CARDS & WRAPPING PAPER STILL HALF PRICE
10% OFF BOWMAR CALCULATORS ★ ART PRINT & POSTER SALE
FINAL DAY TOMORROW

to ski or not to ski

The Answer is: Rossignol, the world's finest and friendliest high performance skis. Let us show you the 12 models priced from $70 to $2?? One of them will be right for you

STOP IN SOON

JR. Models
ST-650 JR $125
Strato-105 JR $105
TEAM $85
JET 100 $70

Open 9-9 Mon-Fri
Sat 9-5:30

1973-74 MODELS AT BARGAIN PRICES
ST-650 $165 - This years price $215
STRATO-102 $125 Reg. Price $176
Limited Supply

Valuga Sports
1200 SHELBURNE RD.
South Burlington, Vt.
862-1961

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

We Want You To Join Our Church As An
Ordained Minister
And Have The Rank Of
Doctor of Divinity

VOLUME XCII
NUMBER 24
NOVEMBER 7, 1974

VERMONT CYNIC

University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont

The Privilege to Live in Vermont

Second Faculty Union Attempts To Represent UVM Professors

The University learned Thursday that a second organization the American Association of University professors apparently seeking to represent University of Vermont faculty as a collective bargaining agent has filed unfair labor practices against UVM and on Friday UVM learned that earlier unfair labor practice charges filed by the John Dewey Federation of Teachers have been dismissed by the National Labor Relations Board.

Last May, the John Dewey Federation of UVM AFT Local 3203 of the AFL-CIO charged that UVM had discriminated against it by encouraging "support and membership in the American Association of University Professors." UVM learned Friday morning the NLRB had dismissed the AFT charges "due to insufficient evidence to support the allegation in the charge."

Thursday, UVM learned from the NLRB that the American Association of University Professors has filed unfair labor practice charges against UVM for alledgedly assisting the John Dewey Federation of AFT. There have been no hearings as yet on the AAUP allegation, which also charge that UVM "has restrained and interfered with the rights of department chairmen" in violation of provisions of the National Labor Relations Act.

At issue in the dismissed AFT charge and the charge by AAUP is use of the University's campus messenger service and the opportunity to arrange meeting space on campus.

The AFT had charged in its May complaint that UVM had denied these opportunities to AFT, while giving them to AAUP, the Faculty Senate and the Non Academic Employees Council. In a subsequent agreement, which specified the agreement "shall not constitute recognition of AFT," UVM has extended to AFT the use of messenger service and, "through normal channels," use of meeting space on campus.

It is this agreement with AFT which in part, is the basis for the AAUP charge that UVM has assisted AFT, and UVM's Executive Vice President Wayne C. Patterson reported a similar agreement has now been formalized with AAUP.

Dr. Patterson said the University was pleased with Friday's NLRB dismissal of the AFT charges, and he noted the NLRB ruling had also clarified another area which had been of "great concern" to the University.

"We had been advised by our counsel," he said, "that provisions of the National Labor Relations Act might be subject to the interpretation that the collective bargaining process might require the altering of the traditional relationship between the UVM administration and the Faculty Senate."

"In particular," he said, "the National Labor Relations Board in its decision dismissing the AFT charges, indicated the Faculty Senate is not a labor organization within the meaning of the National Labor Relations Act."

At UVM, under the authority of the Board of Trustees, "the University of Vermont Faculty is empowered to establish policy" with respect to a wide range of academic matters, including admissions standards and curriculum.

It is the Faculty Senate, a representative body elected by the faculty from its membership, which traditionally has been delegated authority in academic matters.

Administration Reacts With Caution To Faculty-Senate Tuition Proposal

by Margo Howland

Wayne Patterson — SPS Photo: Wynn Gold

Executive Vice-President Dr. Wayne Patterson indicated Friday that the recent Faculty-Senate proposal involving equalized tuition rates would be "investigated thoroughly" as a possible solution to UVM's current financial problems.

In a Cynic interview, Patterson said that the University Administration is willing to look at any proposals. He was, however, very cautious about endorsing Professor Robert V. Daniels' suggestion adopted by the Faculty Senate October 24.

The Faculty Senate proposal calls for an equalization of the tuition rates (no suggested figure was included), state funding of the Medical College and the College of Agriculture, and state subsidies for Vermont students through the Vermont Student Assistance Corporation (VSAC).

Patterson explained a number of "intangibles" involved with the proposal.

First of all, the legislature would have to amend the UVM charter, essentially returning the University to its former private-school status. There is no guarantee that the legislature would be willing to do this, and there is the added possibility of a gubernatorial veto, Patterson said.

Of the current legislative appropriation of $11,500,000, a total of $300,000 has been impounded by Governor Salmon. Under the new proposal, the University would ask for total appropriations of $13,000,000, of which $5.5 million would go to the College of Agriculture and the College of Medicine.

The rest would go to VSAC and directly to the eligible Vermont students to make up for the increase in tuition.

Patterson expressed doubt that the legislature would be able or willing to subsidize Vermont students with the current economic situation in the state.

"I go to the bi-monthly briefings from the Governor's office; I am aware of what money the taxes bring in. Unless there is a significant tax increase, I don't believe the state can do it."

He continued, "If they cut our appropriation back to $5.5 million, whether VSAC will get enough money is a real question.

"The tuition...will come very close to the present out-of-state tuition, maybe $2600. VSAC will have to pay the difference between $950 and $2600...If VSAC doesn't fund it there will be no middle-income and low-income Vermonters here," Patterson warned.

With only the Colleges of Medicine and Agriculture getting appropriations directly from the state, UVM would essentially become a private school, as it has been up to the 1950's. Patterson was asked how this would change the nature of the University.

"If they cut us loose, there are several things we have to do," Patterson began.

"We have $1.5 million paid by the state per year for bonded indebtedness. This is on buildings, reconstruction, and so forth. This does not include dormitories, the gym or the library. It does include Cook, Rowell, Votey, and Williams Science.

"If we went to private-school status, we would have to pay these bonds, and also pick up the tab for any further renovations. We would no longer be able to get the money from the state.

"It would cost an additional $2.5 million, approximately, in bonded indebtedness," Patterson figured.

"$1.5 million on what the state pays now and $1 million, on the average, per year on new reconstruction or additions, that we'd pay out of pocket."

The University has not been blessed with large endowments.

"Our $11.5 million is like the income we'd get from a $150 million endowment. Other private schools of our size have $100,000,000 in endowments.

"If Cornell, Brown, Tufts can't make it without endowments, how can we?" Patterson asked.

Patterson said cost figures on various programs are being worked out and will be presented to the trustees. He took issue with a statement attributed to Daniels in last week's Cynic that "the money for the Medical School comes out of undergraduate tuition support."

"We don't assign tuition money," Patterson responded; "the money from all schools comes out of tuition...everything comes out of the General Fund which contains both tuition and state appropriations."

Patterson was asked to comment on Daniels' quoted statement that, if the proposal is not acceptable, "one of the possibilities to relieve UVM's financial crisis is to reduce the number of Vermont students. But we would be very reluctant to fall back on that solution."

Patterson countered, "I feel as long as we're the state university our first mission is to provide a quality education for Vermont undergraduates."

"The Vermont legislature will not yield to blackmail... They have the power to put riders on the appropriation bills."

In contrast to the faculty's attitude of possibly cutting back the number of Vermont students, the Administration feels that if there isn't enough money, "we may have to cut a few programs."

The Vermont Alliance Fights Two Fronts

by Stephen W. Tanner

The Vermont Alliance is an independent non-profit organization of Vermont citizens seeking to improve the conditions of life and work in Vermont.

Presently it is involved in the fight to give low and middle-income Vermonters (the majority of people in the state) more control over their utility services and health care proposals.

Composed of some 100 to 200 members throughout the state, Vermont Alliance is pursuing five essential goals in the areas of health care. These goals, aimed at giving the consumer a greater control over health care programs, are:

To educate Vermonters about the composition of the Board of Directors of Blue Cross Blue Shield and its lack of consumer representation.

To organize against the impending Blue Cross rate hike.

To provide limited health care and patient advocacy.

To help set up regional community health organizations?

To advocate the establishment of responsible coordination of health services on the state level.

On the utilities front, Vermont Alliance is working to provide effective consumer participation in regulating the power and communication industries.

Currently a member of the "lifeline" Service, they are working for a maximum charge of $10 for the first 400 kilowatts of electricity used in a household.

This is in order to shift the burden of cost from small to large consumers. Specifically they plan to become actively involved in the existing alternate energy coalition and to advocate public ownership of utilities.

Now Vermont Alliance is working to get open evening public hearings on the New England Telephone and Telegraph proposed rate increase.

Vermont Alliance was first organized in 1973 and is also a coordinating organization for similar groups operating within the state.

The group publishes a newsletter, "PowerLine" out of their office in Montpelier, to inform citizens of the background of the power industry in Vermont.

The most recent edition (August) points out two important factors on power in Vermont. Vermont's electric power is owned and controlled by out-of-state investors, decorators, banks and corporations. Control of these companies is concentrated in the hands of a small group of people by means of "interlocking directorships" – people sitting on the boards of several companies simultaneously.

To help further their efforts, the group announces a fund-raising dinner in Montpelier Friday November 15 at 6:30 p.m. in the Unitarian Church. The Tom Azarian Potato Bug String Band will play. Donation is $3.00.

Future Of Vermont Debated By Dartmouth Prof

by Stephen W. Tanner

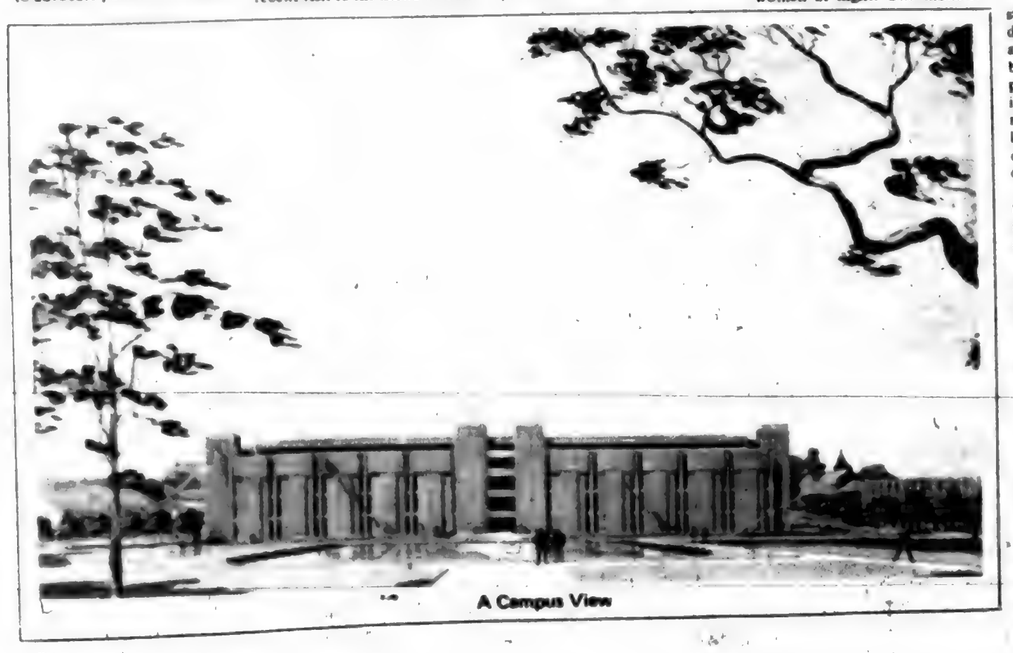
In a three hour program October 27 entitled "Vermont 2000," the various possible futures of Vermont were outlined and debated by a panel of controversial experts led by the senior author of the book Limits to Growth, Donella Meadows.

Dr. Meadows, of MIT, presently teaches at Dartmouth College. She spoke first, approaching Vermont in the year 2000 from the standpoint of its "attractiveness." She said that Vermont is now "the single most attractive state in the Union." Though this is a pleasure for residents of the state, it creates a real problem in terms of immigration and Vermont's growth. She added, as perhaps the worst omen, that some 60 million people live in an area surrounding Vermont and that many of them don't live in places nearly as attractive as this one.

She told a short story of her recent visit to the island of Oahu in Hawaii. There she studied the Hawaiians' land use planning program which is supposedly the first in the United States. When she spoke with a secretary at the office there she was told that they had no planning there, instead they "figure out variances on the code." Meadows said that sewage is dumped directly off Waikiki Beach and that due to a lack of planning Oahu has become a "Noisy unattractive place to be." Indeed a contrast to Vermont, she described but nonetheless an example of the ramifications of negligent planning.

Meadows cited two alternatives to inhibiting massive immigration and uncontrolled growth in Vermont. One, "put up a wall" which she qualified would be "unconstitutional" or two, make Vermont as "unattractive" as any surrounding area which would

(continued on page ten)



A Campus View

News Analysis:

Community Upset By Rape Incidents

by Sue Perkins

Recently, the community has been upset by rape incidents in Burlington. On Saturday, October 19, a 16-year-old was overpowered and raped behind the North Avenue Shopping Center, at 11:00 p.m.

In less than 48 hours, another woman, 15, on her way to school, was raped on a bicycle pass near the railroad.

These women, like many women, are the victims of a brutal social crime. They are victims of a male aggression our society, until recently, has done little to curb, and has often helped to propogate.

There is no stereotype rapist. He could be old, young, wealthy, poor, fatherly, or a student and still be capable of being the often fatal Dr. Jekyl/Mr. Hyde character. Whoever he is, he has deep-rooted psychological problems. He forces society to deal with him.

Particularly, he becomes women's responsibility, as women are his natural victims. Women must protect themselves from him. They must be aware that they are candidates and not set themselves up for rape, and think through what they would do if attacked.

